Through whatever combination, Mr. Hoover has broken the "Solid South." This fact alone is pregnant with many dangers for the Negro, and, it may also contain its blessings in disguise. First, Mr. Hoover went further to encourage the lily-whites of the south than did any of his previous Republican predecessors. Whether they were the cause of the G.O.P. breaking the south of course is more or less a conjecture. Nevertheless, the lily-whites will lose no time in trying to convince Mr. Hoover that 1932 makes it mandatory that he continue to recognize them. The lily-whites and the Negro, like oil and water, just will not mix. The breaking of the solid south will naturally cause the Republicans to revamp their views on questions of interest to the white south. The telegram which James Francis Burke, general counsel for the Republican national committee wired to Mr. Hoover, is very significant of what the future holds. In his congratulatory message, he said: "You have broken the solid south and introduced Dixie to the Republican household, where a warm welcome awaits her."

Will Dixie be welcomed with all her hates, prejudices and proscriptions (?) or will she be cleansed of these vices before being given a seat at the Republican pie counter? Robert R. Church, of Tennessee alone of the southern Negro leaders survived the pre-election campaign. Will he survive the welcoming party Mr. Burke speaks of, or will he too follow the trail of Perry W. Howard, of Mississippi; Walter Cohen, of Louisiana, and Ben Davis, of Georgia, after Mr. Hoover enters the White House? Will Mrs. Georgia Williams, National Committeewoman from Georgia, and Mrs. Mary Booze, National Committeewoman of Mississippi, who figured so prominently in the dance episode of the campaign, retain their post, or will they be forced to relinquish them to white Dixie maidens who feared the Pope's assent in America in case of a Smith victory and thereby joined the calvacade for the protection of protestantism? Since the fiasco at Kansas City last June, and the subsequent indictment of Perry Howard none of these leaders know just where they stand in the party's councils.

The Republican party could have broken the solid south years ago if they had only enforced the Federal constitution. The disfranchisement of the Negro has been the only thing that has prevented this deliverance all these years.

To paraphrase a biblical expression we state, "the party that lives by prejudice, will perish by prejudice." Now after sixty years, the south, which has maintained its stronghold in politics because of its prejudice against the Negro, now finds this position and the very existence of the Democratic party, menaced because of its prejudices.

PITCHED ON LOW PLANE.

It is extremely unfortunate for the citizenship of our United States that certain leaders of both parties who are taking part in the present campaign for president should stoop to such low depths in an effort to win favor among the voters to the candidates of their choice.

The opinion prevails generally, in view of the many unfair and slanderous utterances that have been injected into the campaign, that regardless as to which candidate wins, it will require many years to recover from the effects of the slime and filth that have been spread among the people. In fact, the methods employed have been pitched on the lowest plane within the memory of some of the oldest citizens of our land, all of which are wholly below the dignity of men and women engaged in a contest to select the man for the high and important office of president of a nation.

It is almost inconceivable and unthinkable that men, regardless as to their enthusiasm in behalf of a candidate, would employ backwoods political tactics as was shown in the case of certain Mississippians, who went to the extent of being so unfair as to draw the name of a respectable, Christian lady before the eyes of the public on a charge of participating in a dancing affair with one of the candidates. Nothing could possibly be gained by such unfair methods, and the matter will only serve to embarrass relatives and friends of the colored lady in question when a record of such might be re-opened in future years. Any reasonable man or woman of the present time would not be inclined for one moment to place any credence in the report that Mrs. Booze danced with Mr. Hoover, or any other individual for that matter, but as years pass on, such a report could be revived and, in view of the absence of refutatory facts as accurately outlined as they are today, prove annoying to friends of the lady whose name was drawn into the affair.

The fact that a man occupying a position with any degree of responsibility would aid in the circulation of such an unfounded and unreasonable rumor should serve to disqualify him in the estimation of the public, and brand him as that type of spreaders of venom whose operations throughout our country are serving to create great confusion.

SENATOR WATSON AFRAID TO SPEAK AT NEGRO MEETING

CHICAGO, Oct. 24—Why did U. S. Senator James E. Watson fail to speak at a colored Republican rally in the 8th Regiment Armory after sitting on the platform three hours, is the question being quite generally asked here.

The Indiana Senator had been advertised as the principal speaker, yet the much heralded address failed to materialize. When introduced, he received scattering applause and sat down without uttering a word.

During the three hours Senator Watson sat on the platform listening to long talks by colored spell-binders, whispered conferences took place between him and Senator Adelbert Roberts, Negro chairman of the meeting. The supposition is that the Senator would be heckled regarding his connection with the K. K. K. As one Negro in the audience was heard to remark : "Well, he better not talk here. He knows the time, the place, and the girl. He is a K. K. K.

When asked after the meeting why he remained silent, Senator Watson gave as an explanation, "I, I came here as the guest of Col. Roscoe Simmons. I was sent here by the National committee. I had a bad throat and could not talk here."

"Did you expect to give an address when you arrived at the meeting? he was asked.

"You bet," he answered. "I spoke in Dayton last night and will speak again tomorrow night. One night's rest will be enough for my throat."

NOT BRAINLESS SHEEP, WON'T VOTE HOOVER

Armond Scott In Bitter Letter Declines Post On G. O. P. Committee

"SOMETHING ROTTEN IN DENMARK" HE DECLARES

Ku Klux For Hoover Who Talks Only Of 18th Amendment

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Armond W. Scott, attorney in declining a place on the G. O. P. Advisory Committee, wrote Chairman Hubert Work the bitterest letter yet received.

Others who have declined publicly include: R. R. Church, Tennessee; Finley Wilson, D. C.; Neval Thomas, D. C.; D. W. Alexander, Newark. Many others declined privately.

Mr. Scott's letter reads:

Hon. Hubert Work.
Chairman of the Republican Nat. Committee,
Barr Building, Washington, D. C.

A few weeks ago, I received a formal invitation from you to become a member of the Advisory Committee of the colored end of the Republican Campaign Committee.

I took the matter under advisement for some days, but finally came to the conclusion that it is about time for the red blooded Negroes of this country, to show their righteous resentment against a party which we have served and followed for over 60 years like a herd of brainless sheep, following to slaughter, so called leaders whose only purpose and ambition was to save their own hides and secure positions for their families and themselves, and when I further considered the fact, that either through bad judgment or ill advice, you ignored all of the outstanding political leaders of our race in the different sections of our country, who have constituencies who follow them, and in their stead, selected voteless, political eunuchs of the District of Columbia, to show the experienced and outstanding leaders like Robert R. Church, of Memphis, Tenn · Oscar DePriest, Louis Anderson, and Bob Jackson, of Chicago, and hundreds of others whose names I could mention. I feel it is about time that we help you by letting you know the real attitude of the rank and file of the Negro voters of this country, so that the next time you will not repeat this blunder.

Men, Not Measures

The time is about come when the color of a man's skin should no longer be an index to his politics, and the Negroes have learned the lesson, to vote for men instead of measures, and for men only who believe in every amendment to the Constitution the United States.

Jim Crow At Kansas City

We have not forgotten the treatment by your group at Kansas City of the last few Negro leaders who were there to appear in Court in our behalf. There they were jim-crowed, humiliated, and relegated, and in addition to the same, the stage was set to drive from the councils of the Republican party, the last few political representatives remaining of our group. In furtherance of this nefarious and contemptible scheme, Walter Cohen was dethroned; Ben. Davis has been elimnated, and Perry Howard crucified; but thanks be to God the Negroes of this country have been aroused as never before, and they are now prepared "to do business" with and relegate all political wolves in sheep's clothing. For all these years, the "Uncle Tom Negro" has always been whipped in line when told the Republican Party was the party of Abraham Lincoln, but they failed to remember or do not know that, on the 18th day of September, 1865, Abraham Lincoln delivered a speech and among other things, said:

Abe Lincoln's Bunk

"I am not now nor ever have been, in favor of bringing about in any way the social and political equality of the white and black races; I am not, nor ever have been in favor of making voters or jurors of Negroes, nor of qualifying them to hold office, nor to intermarry with the white people; and I will say, in addition to this, that there is a physical difference between the white and black races which I believe will forever forbid the two races living together on terms of social and political equality.

"And inasmuch as they cannot so live, while they do remain together, there must be the position of superior and inferior, and I, as much as any other man, am in favor of having the superior position assigned to the white race".

Ku Klux For Hoover

The further reason for causing me to decline this invitation is that, the Ku Klux Klan of this country is solidly supporting Herbert Hoover, and the loyalty, love, and affection of the so-called solid South for your candidate, caused him and also makes me suspicious, me to hesitate about supporting and feel that there is something "rotten in Denmark" so far as the future of our people in this country is concerned, under the presidential leadership of Herbert Hoover. Why even the restaurant of the United States Senate, of which body your Vice-Presidential candidate is a prominent and outstanding member, refuses to serve ladies and gentlemen of our group.

Why Only 18th Amendment

Your National Convention at Kansas City singled out the 18th Amendment and pledged your party to its heartiest support, for the enforcement of which the present administration has been spending a hundred million dollars a year, but you said not a word about the enforcement of the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments; which not only protects and safeguard us in our civil and political rights, but are the very fundamental principles upon which this government is founded.

U. S. Jim Crow

In every department of the National Government in the capital of the Nation, over one of which departments you presided and where our people are employed, they are jim-crowed, segregated and humiliated, notwithstanding the fact that we have a Republican Presidetan, a Republican Senate, and a Republican House of Representatives, and those jim crow departments were first inaugurated by a Republican President, and they have continued up until this very hour.

For the foregoing reasons and many others, too numerous to mention, I most respectfully decline your offer to become a member of the so-called Advisory Committee of the jim-crow end of the Republican Campaign Committee.

MR. HOOVER'S DEFECTS

The oponents of Nominee Hoover are hard put to get something on him. First, it was said he drank some liquor with the great lawyer—Clarence Darrow. Mr. Darrow Denied that. Then they try to attack his American citizenship, but that was thoroughly spiked by the State Department. Resort was then made to the lowest form of attack peculiar to America—the racial. He was held up as a man unfit for the presidency because, forsooth, he issued an order abolishing racial segregation in his department while a member of President Coolidge's Cabinet. People, however who are not disturbed by their standing in life, refuse to get excited about that. But to cap the climax a governor of a state not much of a one, it must be said, when progress, intellect and fairness are considered—Mississippi, allows himself to engage in a low form of slander. He asserted that Mr. Hoover danced with a colored lady—of course, Governor Bilbo did not put it that way—when he was in his benighted state. Think of a governor lending himself to the scattering of that which he knew was not true. And then when called to task excused himself by saying that he was only repeaating what he had heard!

Well if that's all they can say against such an eminent character, the United States will be most fortunate in having such a person as its chief magistrate as he will be after March 4 th. 1929.

OUR WOMEN AND THE ISSUES

THAT THE INFLUENCE of women upon the outome of the present National political campaign will be the deciding factor in the final results is evident. Never before in political contests have women played a more active part, been called upon to occupy positions within the inner circles of both the dominant political parties, or been wooed with greater enthusiasm and sincerity than now. Heretofore the exercise of the political privileges by women has been in the nature of an experiment; but with the increasing number of their sex holding appointive and elective offices, it has been found expedient also to give them recognition on an equal basis with men in organized politics and in all of its respective activities and functions. Both the seasoned veterans of yesterday, sound, wise and rational in their judgments and the younger school, progressive, radical, ingratiating, are to be found expounding the basic principles of the respective parties they represent on the issues of the campaign.

It is most heartening to note that especially two women have arrested the attention of the voters in general to a greater extent than any other speakers, advisers or counsellors. Their intelligent interpretation of the issues of the present national political campaign rings true is sound, convincing, and influential because they are fully informed of and on the issues, because they believe in those issues themselves, because they are women of strong personalities and characters, and, because their own achievements in life square with the precepts and fundamentals of their party.

Nannie Burroughs and Mary McLeod Bethune have the ear of the public on the vital issues of such great importance to our women and their future political destinies. They have both endorsed the Republican party its principles and commended its candidates to the voters of their race and sex in good faith and with a background of experience born of contacts with men and the conditions they describe, observation, vision and deliberation. Their reasonings are sound, their utterances sober and their judgments pure and unadulterated. Everywhere colored women are being influenced and guided by their pronouncements of the issues. It will be well that all women heed their entreaties; for greater and more far-reaching to women than men of this nation, and particularly of our group are the issues of nullification, prohibition, representation and the home. If our political fate is to be rescued from the disasters that threaten our leadership from within and without, our women must do it. About every movement and achievement permanent and creditable to the race has either been initiated, carried forward or supported by our women. They are in the majority at political meetings, display a keen interest in the discussions of the issues and will be called upon to stem the tide in favor of the Republican candidates of merit at the November election.

There may be other notable and splendid women also devoting themselves to this splendid cause of saving the country from the baneful influence of the solid South. Together with these two noble women of international fame, of unselfish services to their race and of strong characters, they are blazing the trail that their women might follow through to noble victories today and tomorrow. The political salvation of the American Negroes is vested in the present issues. Let all women inform themselves and enlst to do battle in the forthcoming election for righteousness in government. Such stalwarts as Nannie Burroughs and Mary McLeod Bethune will not lead them amiss

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation

Greenville, N. C., Reflector
Wednesday, October 31, 1928

BRINGING IN THE NEGRO

The injection of the negro question into the campaign in this state by the anti-Smithites apparently is an acknowledgment of a feeling on their part that in urging the support of Herbert Hoover they are supporting the negro party and must somehow, somewhere find some negroes in the Democratic party in order to alibi their present stand. Rightly declaring that the issue is one th... should have no part in this campaign and that the action of McNinch and his associates is nothing more than an appeal for the moron vote, the News and Observer says:

Nobody will give more severe condemnation of the attempt to McNinch to charge Smith with following the example of Republicans than the quiet, conscientious citizen who declared some time ago he could not vote for Smith because Smith wishes to change the prohibition law.

That would be proper, if Smith had made any order, as Hoover did, to compel white women clerks to work side by side with Negro clerks in the Department of Commerce. It is utterly misleading to say that because ex-Mayor Hylan, driven from office by the Smith forces in New York, appointed one Negro to office and he dictated a letter to a white woman stenographer, Smith is to be opposed. It is no secret that the Republican party has since 1868 given the ballot to illiterate Negroes and subjected the South to the rule of corrupt white and Negro politicians wherever it had the power. As late as 1900 in North Carolina the White Supremacy campaign put an end to the orgies. The ignorant Negroes were far less to blame than Russell and Butler and the political leaders who fattened upon the credulity of their Negro followers. These and other white politicians, who opposed the purified suffrage, were false to the Negroes who served them as soon as they could no longer give them office. And intelligent Negroes know that.

If the Negro issue has any place in this campaign, and this paper thinks it has none, the only possible suggestion is that it behooves Southern white men, having gone through the flames in past years, not to trust the State or National Republican party, seeing that it stands today for the Dyer bill and Tinkham threats to decrease Southern representation and that a Republican victory may again bring the menace of the Force bill.

For McNinch to appeal to voters to support Hoover because a defeated Democrat appointed one Negro to office in New York City, when the Republican party has appointed 100,000 to office and would do so again, is to make no appeal except to the moron vote. And fortunately, there are not enough morons in North Carolina to greatly influence the election.

Declaring that farm relief, the power question, and Republican corruption in office are the real issues of the campaign, the Observer asks McNinch to state his mind on these things and concludes:

These are great questions in the campaign and they cannot be sidetracked by the absurd and ridiculous appeal to the morons.

NEW YORK EVE. POST

OCT 26 1928

The Daily Mirror of Washington

By Clinton W. Gilbert

Both Parties Are Skeptical About the Negro Vote in November

Washington, Oct. 25.

TRAVELING about the country in quest of political information, one wonders a good deal about the negro vote. Before I left Washington I had been told by a leading Republican of West Virginia that his State was doubtful chiefly because of the negro voter's inclination this time to go to the Democratic Party. But, as in the case of all other kinds of votes, nobody seems to know anything definite about the negro vote. The Republicans when asked say, "Yes, we'll lose some negro votes." And the Democrats when asked say, "Yes, a good many negroes say they will vote for Smith." But neither party seems to be interested, although if this election should be close the negroes would hold the balance of power, at least in Maryland, West Virginia, Indiana, Missouri and Oklahoma, and perhaps also in States like New Jersey, Ohio and Illinois—in other words, in States enough to decide the election.

Here are scraps of information about the negroes' voting intentions, picked up along the road. An important Southern negro leader, a Republican, who had made an investigation in several Northern cities, said that most of the negroes north of the Mason and Dixon line would vote for Smith. South of it such negroes as had a vote would stick to the Republican Party. This negro said that if he lived in the North he would vote for Smith. As far west as Omaha, where there are not many negroes, one heard that most of those there were would vote Democratic.

In Kansas City the negroes would mostly vote Democratic. But that was for a special reason. The city is under the control of a powerful Democratic machine. And where such conditions exist the negroes are likely to vote as the machine wishes. In Memphis, Tenn., the same situation exists as in Kansas City, with the same result. In St. Louis, where the Republican machine is the stronger, the negroes have generally been Republicans. But this year it is said that they will mostly vote the Democratic ticket. In Chicago the negroes are excited over the idea that Mr. Hoover aims to establish a lily-white Republican Party in the South. Most of the negroes there are reported to favor Smith.

The reason why there is no excitement over this situation among politicians is that the Republicans refuse to believe that they will lose the negro vote this year. And the Democrats can't bring themselves to believe that they will gain the negro vote.

Republican

THE MARYLAND COLORED VOTE FOR HOOVER

The Smith campaign from the start was one of noise and demonstration. The big parades, the wild shouts and screams that attend every Smith campaign meeting were heralded before the election as unfailing portents of a big Smith victory election day. Herald-Commonwealth

The same methods applied to the efforts to turn the colored vote to Smith. Noise, bluster, bragg everywhere all the time. And now that the election is over and Hoover elected by the greatest electoral majority ever given a President, carries a larger precentage of all the states than any former President the Smith die hards are still claiming, still showing that Hoover really didn't win a big victory and the colored Maryland die hards try to prove that anyhow Baltimore colored voters really and truly rallied to the Smith banner. We humbly beg leave to observe that if the colored Democrats rallied to Smith they didn't do it with votes. 11-17-28

In another column is published the votes by precincts in the 14th Ward; in that ward are eight princincts with heavy majorities of white voters every one of which gave Smith a majority; there are also fourteen precincts with heavy colored majorities in every one of which Hoover received an overwhelming majority. Baltimore, Md.

Examination of the votes in the white majority precincts and the colored majority precincts reveal that in the Fourteenth Ward not more than 800 colored voters voted for Smith. In the 17th Ward the other heavy colored ward Smith received 998 votes; two precincts the 10th and 11th have white majorities registered: in the 10th there are 172 whites and 106 colored registered; Smith received 143 votes, Hoover 95 in that precinct; in the 11th precinct 217 whites and 143 colored registered: Smith received 236 votes, Hoover 85 in that ward. In all other precincts of the 17th Ward a majority of the voters are colored and Hoover received heavy majorities.

The Afro-American makes the claim that Smith received 40 per cent of the colored vote in Baltimore; such a claim is absurd and ridiculous on its face as the figures given show, and that claim is made only to boost the vote getting power of the Negroes who worked for Smith in Baltimore. Not more than 15 per cent of the colored vote of Baltimore went to Smith and less than 15 per cent in the entire State including Baltimore.

JOURNAL
DALLES, TEX.
NOV 12 1928

LEADERS GIVE STORY OF G. O. P. RISE IN TEXAS

MOVEMENT STARTED EIGHT YEARS AGO TO GAIN STRENGTH.

SEEK WHITE RULE

Negroes Are Gradually Being Ousted From Party Councils.

The far-sightedness of Republican leaders in Texas who eight years ago decided to make the Texas party a "white man's party was responsible in a large measure for the Hoover victory in this State this fall, in the opinion of Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, who was recruited from the Democratic ranks when the Texas Republicans moved to bar negroes from active participation in party affairs.

"If the Texas Republican party had not been a white man's party I doubt if Texas would have voted for Hoover, in spite of the resentment among Democrats against Al Smith's wetness and other attributes unpleasing to most Southerners," Mr. Bullington said.

Interesting facts concerning the beginning of the movement to make the Texas Republican party "white" were disclosed by Mr. Bullington when he visited Dallas after the general election.

A group of prominent Republicans visited Wichita Falls in 1919 or 1920, Mr. Bullington said, and urged a number of Wichita Falls citizens who called themselves Democratic "protectionists" to join the Republican party.

"I told them I would not even consider becoming a Republican as long as negroes took part in the party councils," Mr. Bullington said.

"The Republican Council was formed and incorporated under the State laws as a benevolent organization. I believe Paul Gage of Dallas was the chairman. The members included the late Col. H. F. McGregor of Houston, who was Republican National Committeeman; Phil Baer, Paris, State chairman; R. B. Creager, Brownsville, vice State chairman; F. E. Scobey, San Antonio; Eugene Nolte, Seguin, now State chairman; Joe Kingsbury, Fort Worth; Clarence E. Linz, Dallas, and others.

"This council constituted the governing body of the party, but was apart from the party organization. The first active move to make the party 'white' was at the presidential convention in San Antonio in 1920. Gooseneck Bill McDonald and the other negro delegates walked out when they realized they would not be seated and formed the black and tan party."

Leonard Withington, director of organization for the Texas Republican party, recalled an interesting side light of this convention. The chairman could not find a gavel, so an empty beer bottle was pressed into service. Delegates began to laugh and yell when they saw the bottle and the chairman assured them that it was empty. In contesting the convention action at the national convention McDonald quoted from the stenographic report the words of the chairman, "It's empty," to mean that the convention hall was empty.

The Republicans established permanent State headquarters in 1921, with Col. W. E. Talbot in charge as director of organization. Mr. Creager toured the State, gathering subscriptions from Republicans and Democrats who wanted a two-party State to maintain the organization.

The party has put out a full State ticket every election and county tickets in many counties. Every county was organized and negroes were gradually dropped from county chairmanships and other posts.

No negro has served as county chairman for the last four years according to Mr. Withington, and there have been only two negro county chairmen in the last eight years.

The Republicans took advantage of the discord in the Democratic ranks in 1924 and rolled up a record vote for Dr. George C. Butte, Republican candidate for Governor. The vote this year opened the way for the bolting that occurred last Tuesday, the Republican leaders believe, and Democrats found they were not struck dead when they failed to vote the ticket straight.

Republican leaders in other Southern States are expected to follow the system adopted by the Texas Republicans in regard to keeping party control entirely in the hands of the white leaders, Mr. Withington said. News dispatches from the East have indicated that the Republican party will seek to follow up its advantage gained last Tuesday by moving toward a complete "white man" control.

TELEGRAPH
Morning
OCT 21 1928

The "Moral" Side

Our friends who have gone over to the Republican side in this national campaign continue to insist that they have done so because of the "moral" issues involved, despite the fact that it has been pointed out to them that they are inconsistent in embracing a gang of thieves and perjurers and election corrupters in the name of morality. They do insist, however, and insist with some vehemence—so much vehemence, in fact, that they are led into calling the newspapers that are supporting Smith "the Tammany press" and the "wet press" and the "subsidized press". The men and women who are supporting Smith they gently refer to as "bleary-eyed sots" and "guzzlers" and "Tammany thimble-riggers". In the name of morality, apparently, they are willing to say anything, no matter how unmoral it is.

It is well, therefore, to examine the morals of this campaign closely before the election comes upon us. Those who are condemning Smith most loudly as unmoral and immoral are the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, Christian organization, the members of the Ku Klux Klan, which calls itself a Christian organization and various other similar orders. It is significant that all of them profess to be Christian—that is, followers of Christ. Manifestly, when they say a thing is "moral" or "immoral", they mean that it is "moral" or "immoral" according to the teachings of Christ and the Bible. Of course, they have set up their own standards and their own judgments of morality, but they have no bona fide standard and no bona fide judgment of morality save as it is given in the Bible.

Christ accepted the Ten Commandments as the code of morals for His teachings and added one, "I say unto you, that ye love one another as I have loved you." The Ten Commandments, therefore, must form the basis for any judgment of the moral issues involved in this campaign. It is well, therefore, since the bolters have already judged the morality of the Democratic party, and found it immoral, now to judge the morality of the party into which they have gone in their search for the Holy Grail of morality. The Ten Commandments will be used:

1—Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

Now, neither party is a religious party, but the Republican party has worshipped the Mammon of wealth since it first began to pursue a policy that would create large fortunes upon the one hand and miserable, tenement poverty upon the other. It now worships statistics and figures and reductions in income tax.

2—Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image.

The silver dollar is the graven image of the Republican party. It bears the inscription, "In God We Trust", but the Republicans have made it, "In God and the United States Marines We Trust". Worshipping this graven image of wealth, this symbol of Mammon, the American nation, under a Republican administration, has sent instruments of death into the peaceful forests of Nicaragua to be used against primitive men armed only with machetes. Mammon has been a prospering God; he has given us airplanes to bomb native villages. He has given us warships to send up peaceful rivers. He has given us 14-inch guns to raze unfriendly cities. He has given us instruments of death to clear our paths to the natural resources the God of nature put in the hills of Central America. The graven image the Republicans worship has brought us more of its kind, but it has also brought us the hatred of people who ought to consider us, a great Christian nation, as we call ourselves their friends.

3—Thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah, thy God, in vain.

Naturally, that cannot apply to a political party, although members of both parties profess, perhaps, to be the direct representatives on earth of God and to speak in his name. It is a right bad failing with the bishops.

4—Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

That is another commandment that cannot apply to political parties. It might have some bearing upon the ministers who profane their pulpits with unholy and un-Christian denunciation.

5—Honor thy father and thy mother.

The Republicans have observed this commandment. Alexander Hamilton, with his idea that only the fit should govern and that the fit, because they are fit, should have the wealth of the country so that they may wisely distribute it, was the spiritual father of the Republican party and Harriet Beecher Stowe, with her bitter hatred of the South and its institutions was the spiritual mother. The Republicans have honored their father by trying to grab all the wealth and keep the benefits and power for the "fit" and they have honored their mother by attempting to enact the Dyer bill and the two force bills intended directly to express the hatred of the Republicans for the South. The party was conceived in hatred for the South; the pangs that attended its birth were a fratricidal war and it has cherished ever since the memory of that war. With the Dyer bill it seeks now to continue the causes.

6—Thou shalt no kill.

Look at the reports from Nicaragua of the victories of our 20th century airplanes over the 16th century machetes. Look at the reports of our marines. Further, recall that Jesse Smith, overwhelmed by his own iniquity as a figure in the Harding administration, blew his own brains out in Harry Daugherty's bathroom. Recall that Charles Cramer, conscience-stricken after he had engaged in the conspiracy to steal from the disabled veterans of the World War, blew his brains out. Recall that Warren Harding [illegible] by the discovery of the iniquity that he had carried with him to Washington, died a grief-stricken man. It was a Republican administration, the Republican party itself, that fostered, tolerated and participated in such an orgy of corruption that it killed three men at least and ruined the homes and lives of many others.

JOURNAL
DALLES, TEX.
NOV 1 2 1928

LEADERS GIVE STORY OF G. O. P. RISE IN TEXAS

MOVEMENT STARTED EIGHT YEARS AGO TO GAIN STRENGTH.

SEEK WHITE RULE

Negroes Are Gradually Being Ousted From Party Councils.

The far-sightedness of Republican leaders in Texas who eight years ago decided to make the Texas party a "white man's party" was responsible in a large measure for the Hoover victory in this State this fall, in the opinion of Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, who was recruited from the Democratic ranks when the Texas Republicans moved to bar negroes from active participation in party affairs.

"If the Texas Republican party had not been a white man's party I doubt if Texas would have voted for Hoover, in spite of the resentment among Democrats against Al Smith's wetness and other attributes unpleasing to most Southerners," Mr. Bullington said.

Interesting facts concerning the beginning of the movement to make the Texas Republican party "white" were disclosed by Mr. Bullington when he visited Dallas after the general election.

A group of prominent Republicans visited Wichita Falls in 1919 or 1920, Mr. Bullington said, and urged a number of Wichita Falls citizens who called themselves Democratic "protectionists" to join the Republican party.

"I told them I would not even consider becoming a Republican as long as negroes took part in the party councils," Mr. Bullington said.

"The Republican Council was formed and incorporated under the State laws as a benevolent organization. I believe Paul Gage of Dallas was the chairman. The members included the late Col. H. F. McGregor of Houston, who was Republican National Committeeman; Phil Baer, Paris, State chairman; R. B. Creager, Brownsville, vice State chairman; F. E. Scobey, San Antonio; Eugene Nolte, Seguin, now State chairman; Joe Kingsbury, Fort Worth; Clarence E. Linz, Dallas, and others.

"This council constituted the governing body of the party, but was apart from the party organization. The first active move to make the party 'white' was at the presidential convention in San Antonio in 1920. Gooseneck Bill McDonald and the other negro delegates walked out when they realized they would not be seated and formed the black and tan party."

Leonard Withington, director of organization for the Texas Republican party, recalled an interesting side light of this convention. The chairman could not find a gavel, so an empty beer bottle was pressed into service. Delegates began to laugh and yell when they saw the bottle and the chairman assured them that it was empty. In contesting the convention action at the national convention McDonald quoted from the stenographic report the words of the chairman, "It's empty," to mean that the convention hall was empty.

The Republicans established permanent State headquarters in 1921, with Col. W. E. Talbot in charge as director of organization. Mr. Creager toured the State, gathering subscriptions from Republicans and Democrats who wanted a two-party State to maintain the organization.

The party has put out a full State ticket every election and county tickets in many counties. Every county was organized and negroes were gradually dropped from county chairmanships and other posts.

No negro has served as county chairman for the last four years, according to Mr. Withington, and there have been only two negro county chairmen in the last eight years.

The Republicans took advantage of the discord in the Democratic ranks in 1924 and rolled up a record vote for Dr. George C. Butte, Republican candidate for Governor. The vote this year opened the way for the bolting that occurred last Tuesday, the Republican leaders believe, and Democrats found they were not struck dead when they failed to vote the ticket straight.

Republican leaders in other Southern States are expected to follow the system adopted by the Texas Republicans in regard to keeping party control entirely in the hands of the white leaders, Mr. Withington said. News dispatches from the East have indicated that the Republican party will seek to follow up its advantage gained last Tuesday by moving toward a complete "white man" control.

TELEGRAPH
OCT 21 1928

The "Moral" Side

Our friends who have gone over to the Republican side in this national campaign continue to insist that they have done so because of the "moral" issues involved, despite the fact that it has been pointed out to them that they are inconsistent in embracing a gang of thieves and perjurers and election corrupters in the name of morality. They do insist, however, and insist with some vehemence—so much vehemence, in fact, that they are led into calling the newspapers that are supporting Smith "the Tammany press" and the "wet press" and the "subsidized press". The men and women who are supporting Smith they gently refer to as "bleary-eyed sots" and "guzzlers" and "Tammany thimble-riggers". In the name of morality, apparently, they are willing to say anything, no matter how unmoral it is.

It is well, therefore, to examine the morals of this campaign closely before the election comes upon us. Those who are condemning Smith most loudly as unmoral and immoral are the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, Christian organization, the members of the Ku Klux Klan, which calls itself a Christian organization and various other similar orders. It is significant that all of them profess to be Christian—that is, followers of Christ. Manifestly, when they say a thing is "moral" or "immoral", they mean that it is "moral" or "immoral" according to the teachings of Christ and the Bible. Of course, they have set up their own standards and their own judgments of morality, but they have no bona fide standard and no bona fide judgment of morality save as it is given in the Bible.

Christ accepted the Ten Commandments as the code of morals for His teachings and added one, "I say unto you, that ye love one another as I have loved you." The Ten Commandments, therefore, must form the basis for any judgment of the moral issues involved in this campaign. It is well, therefore, since the bolters have already judged the morality of the Democratic party, and found it immoral, now to judge the morality of the party into which they have gone in their search for the Holy Grail of morality. The Ten Commandments will be used:

1—Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

Now, neither party is a religious party, but the Republican party has worshipped the Mammon of wealth since it first began to pursue a policy that would create large fortunes upon the one hand and miserable, tenement poverty upon the other. It now worships statistics and figures and reductions in income tax.

2—Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image.

The silver dollar is the graven image of the Republican party. It bears the inscription, "In God We Trust", but the Republicans have made it, "In God and the United States Marines We Trust". Worshipping this graven image of wealth, this symbol of Mammon, the American nation, under a Republican administration, has sent instruments of death into the peaceful forests of Nicaragua to be used against primitive men armed only with machetes. Mammon has been a prospering God; he has given us airplanes to bomb native villages. He has given us warships to send up peaceful rivers. He has given us 14-inch guns to raze unfriendly cities. He has given us instruments of death to clear our paths to the natural resources the God of nature put in the hills of Central America. The graven image the Republicans worship has brought us more of its kind, but it has also brought us the hatred of people who ought to consider us, a great Christian nation, as we call ourselves, their friends.

3—Thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah, thy God, in vain.

Naturally, that cannot apply to a political party, although members of both parties profess, perhaps, to be the direct representatives on earth of God and to speak in his name. It is a right bad failing with the bishops.

4—Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

That is another commandment that cannot apply to political parties. It might have some bearing upon the ministers who profane their pulpits with unholy and un-Christian denunciation.

5—Honor thy father and thy mother.

The Republicans have observed this commandment. Alexander Hamilton, with his idea that only the fit should govern and that the fit, because they are fit, should have the wealth of the country so that they may wisely distribute it, was the spiritual father of the Republican party and Harriet Beecher Stowe, with her bitter hatred of the South and its institutions was the spiritual mother. The Republicans have honored their father by trying to grab all the wealth and keep the benefits and power for the "fit" and they have honored their mother by attempting to enact the Dyer bill and the two force bills intended directly to express the hatred of the Republicans for the South. The party was conceived in hatred for the South; the pangs that attended its birth were a fratricidal war and it has cherished ever since the memory of that war. With the Dyer bill it seeks now to continue the causes.

6—Thou shalt no kill.

Look at the reports from Nicaragua of the victories of our 20th century airplanes over the 16th century machetes. Look at the recovery of the iniquity that he had carried with him to Washington, died a grief-stricken man. ports of our marines. Further, recall that It was a Republican administration, the Re- Jesse Smith, overwhelmed by his own iniquity publican party itself, that fostered, tolerated as a figure in the Harding administration, and participated in such an orgy of corrup- blew his own brains out in Harry Daugherty's tion that it killed three men at least and bathroom. Recall that Charles Cramer, con- ruined the homes and lives of many others. science-stricken after he had engaged in the conspiracy to steal from the disabled veterans of the World War, blew his brains out. Recall that Warren Harding [illegible] by the dis-

Party Affiliation.

Lake Butler, Plain Times
Thursday, August 2, 1928

Race Issue Is Foremost Say Dixie Editors

CARPETBAGGING IS REVIEWED BY REPUBS IN SOUTH

Patronage Sold

NEWSPAPERS UTTER WHITE SUPREMACY BATTLE CRY

Atlanta, Ga., July 30.—That the race question will be a paramount issue in the presidential campaign, so far as the South is concerned, is evident from a casual reading of newspapers in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, the Carolinas and Florida.

The Asheville (N. C.) Citizen speaks of "prohibition, religion and Tammany Hall" as "smoke screens," while the Jackson (Mississippi) News points out that state's rights, "an underlying Democratic principle as opposed to Republican centralization of power at Washington," will be emphasized to bring the campaign close to "Southern people who do not want federal interference with their marriage laws, election statutes or public school operations."

"Force bills of reconstruction days," says a writer in the Columbia (S. C.) Record, "were designed to provide armed government supervision over local elections in Southern States, and were finally defeated only with the aid of New York delegations in congress, thanks to Tammany's historic friendship for the South." The Birmingham News calls the recently exposed trafficing in postal and other federal appointments in the South "carpetbagging again" and believes that the practice, "indulged in by Republicans whenever in power since the death of Lincoln, would be intensively developed in the South under Mr. Hoover since he is naturally an artful organizer, a superb propagandist and a believer in centralization of authority in government bureaus and departments with their increasing number of employee-voters." If the Republicans are continued in the saddle, the Macon Telegraph thinks "Hoover's organizing ability will knit their political machinery so closely that we will have Republican control of this country for many a year, and state's rights may become only a memory."

The point is made by the New Orleans Daily States that there were sixty colored delegates in the Republican National Convention at Kansas City, that one of them (John Hawkins of Washington, D. C.) seconded Herbert Hoover's nomination in the Kansas City convention this year, and that "purchased Southern colored delegations" helped give Mr. Hoover the majority necessary to nominate him. "As they have supported him he must reward them with positions and favors," comments the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser.

The Savannah (Ga.) Morning News quotes figures to show the steady decline in number of lynchings in the South and elsewhere, by years and by states, and adds: "The tendency is toward practical elimination, and there is not nearly so much excuse now as there may have been a few years ago for the anti-lynching activities of certain northern congressmen and for the anti-lynching plank in the Republican platform this year, written by the Republicans purely as a "vote catcher" and as a direct "slap at the Democracy of this great section of the country."

The Atlanta Constitution declares "the negro question in the South is not a theory or even a campaign bugaboo, it is a condition," but it is the "South's problem and Southerners will solve it, for the government of the South is in the hands of Southern Democrats." The St. Augustine (Fla.) Record says: "The South is not only Democratic, it is Southern."

"One real tragedy of this thing," states the Birmingham News editorially, "is the havoc that is worked by it upon the negro race in the South. Democrats do not blame the negro but the master strategists of the Republican party who unfailingly resort to this despicable, desperate expedient to win delegates in the South before each national convention and to win electoral votes in the North in each general election. It is the Republican party that invariably revives the race question and re-solidifies the solid South. Shall the self-respecting South submit to these indignities, to this violation of its standards of elemental human decency? Shall the South betray every instinct of its tradition and its blood? Shall the South, by substituting venality for virtue, bow down to the political gods of Herbert Hoover of California and his negro henchman Perry Howard of Mississippi? What would Wisconsin do under the circumstances? What would Massachusetts do?"

Republican.

The Macon (Ga.) Telegraph, the Albany (Ga.) Herald, the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun, the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser, the New Orleans (La.) States, the Jackson (Miss.) News, the Columbia (S. C.) Record the Raleigh (N. C.) Times, and the Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union are among the scores of leading Southern newspapers that are appealing for the maintenance of white supremacy stressing the danger of any Southern state assisting in the effort to place Secretary Hoover in the White House.

Citing the fact that segregation of the races, ordered by President Woodrow Wilson in the departments at Washington, had maintained until Hoover, becoming ambitious for the presidency, was prevailed upon by negro politicians from Boston and Philadelphia to abrogate the Wilson order in the Department of Commerce, the Atlanta Constitution declares editorially, "In the pending national campaign the question of white supremacy is paramount, and supersedes every controversial issue—it strikes at the very heartstone of every white man's home in the South."

"Within the past few days, in the disgraceful disclosures as to juggling federal patronage by a negro referee, this burning question, on which hinges the hope of the South, as it hinged in the dark days of reconstruction, has been accentuated," says the Atlanta newspaper, which continues:

"In Mississippi, where a negro patronage referee has been indicted and discharged for auctioning postmasterships and other U. S. jobs, the conditions are so 'astonishing,' as expressed by members of the senate investigating committee, that a grand jury, rather than a congressional group, undertook the investigations. Thus it is all over the South. Only a few months ago a postmaster in Florida lost his official head, and one in Georgia suicided when he was commanded to pay but was unable to do so. The senate investigations are now spreading into every Southern state.

"And what is to be expected should Secretary Hoover be elected to the presidency?

"He is entitled to his racial ideas. They were made plain during the World War, when, as food administrator, he brought the blacks and whites together, in his numerous division headquarters and office rooms in Washington—men and women of every shade and color—to work side by side, feed from the same tables and use the same rest rooms.

"It was only after the segregation order of President Wilson that such a condition was remedied. That order remained in effect, in all governmental departments, and with entire satisfaction, the white and black employes being properly separated, until a few months ago when upon the initiative of negro politicians of Boston, Philadelphia and elsewhere, Secretary Hoover abrogated the order as to the department of commerce, and all its branches, and today the same conditions exist as prior to the Wilson order ten years ago. Today the white and black employes, men and women, in all branches of that department, work side by side, use the same lavatories, and in no respect is there any racial segregation.

"The Republican candidate for president has never lived in the South. He has visited it only a few times. He has only stopped in Georgia for a brief period, and in waiting for his schedule in Savannah the fact that he received as his guest on his private car the negro national committeewoman of Georgia, one Maymie Williams, may have had more political than racial significance. At that time his candidacy for the nomination was brewing.

"He lived the most of his adult life in London and other European capitals. There social and racial conditions are different.

"But that does not alter, nor extenuate the situation in this country.

"While the racial question is inbred, it is sacred, it is crucial.

"The negro is equal to the white before the law, and the administration of the law in this, and in other states in the 'old black belt' gives to him freely and correctly that equality.

"He is encouraged to become useful in citizenship, in the trades, in industry, in agriculture.

"He is educated through the public school system on a parity with the whites, and the expenses are paid by taxation which accrues largely from the whites.

"Every upstanding citizen believes in justice, full and complete, to the negro.

"But that does not mean a relinquishment of white supremacy, for which the best blood of the South was shed to maintain, and which the upstanding thought of Americans, in every state, recognizes to be right.

"It does not mean social equality, or negro political domination, as the latter is today in the juggling by a negro assistant attorney general of these United States of federal jobs in Georgia and elsewhere. Will this negro political domination not expand and be made more intolerable if Secretary Hoover becomes the nation's executive?"

Former Governor Brough, of Arkansas, speaking before the Press Association of his state, made this plain when he said the real issue in the present national campaign is "Anglo-Saxon supremacy."

Wright Willingham, prominent attorney of Rome, Ga., writes that "a negro of Rome is a dispenser of federal patronage," adding that "this darkey, Bre'r Davis, of Georgia-at-large, and Bre'r Howard, of Mississippi-at-large, and other negroes hold the Republican throttle in the South."

The Constitution declares "it is time to think seriously of this question. Mr. Hoover is entitled to his views. Democratic malcontents and insurrectionists who want to join him and his negro Republican dictators in the South, may find comfort in such company. But white supremacy is the hope of the South. For it we fight!"

And the Florida Times-Union, Jacksonville, plainly states the issue thus: "Florida does not desire to see a president in the White House who believes in race equality."

G. O. P. NERVOUS AS COAST STATE NEGROES WAVER

Defection in Ranks of Colored Voters Seen in Four Seaboard States

MAY SAVE NEW JERSEY

Defection in the ranks of colored voters in four Atlantic seaboard states were reported to Republican headquarters here by campaign workers who were sent into them to canvass the situation. These states are Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Jersey. They have a total of 44 electoral votes and may determine the Presidential election.

While defection exists to a great extent, Republican party managers at headquarters were told, recalcitrant colored Republicans would probably be regular and able to align their personal views with those of the party by November 6.

New Jersey Man Go To Hoover

The view was expressed that the colored vote in New Jersey would go to Hoover. But at present there is considerable uneasiness about the situation in that state. Daniel E. Pomeroy, vice chairman of the Republican national committee; Hamliton F. Kean, the Republican nominee for United States Senator, and Senator Walter E. Edge are working toward satisfying colored voters and bringing them around to the support of the Hoover-Curtis ticket. Oliver Randolph, the Rev. William A. Byrd and George E. Bates, all of Newark, are working with them.

As the Negro Comes From the Polls

By KELLY MILLER

TWO weeks ago, in the light of expectation, I wrote a release and called it "As the Negro Goes to the Polls." Now, in the light of the aftermath, I am able to indite its supplement, "As the Negro Comes From the Polls."

I made three major predictions and gave one admonition, all of which have been justified by the recent election.

In the first place, I predicted that the Negro vote would be split into two approximately equal divisions; secondly, that Mr. Hoover would be elected by a marginal majority too great to be affected one way or the other by the capacity of the Negro vote; thirdly, that the "lily white" program of the Grand Old Party, though vicious in principle, would be effective in practice.

With these thoughts in mind, I admonished the race to exercise prudent moderation in extolling the moral grandeur of the Republicans and in the anticipation of any great racial advantage that might flow from Mr. Hoover's victory.

I. That the Negro did actually divide his vote between the contesting parties admits of little doubt or dispute. Of course, partisan advocates on both sides will claim that, by virtue of their controlling influence, the vast majority of the race voted according to their direction and dictation.

II. I stated in my open letter to Mr. Hoover that his majority would probably transcend the capacity of the colored vote. As it turned out, if every qualified Negro who voted had voted either for Mr. Hoover or against him, his vote would probably have been cast in the same way. As it turned out, if every qualified Negro who voted had voted either for Mr. Hoover or against him, his vote would probably have been cast in the same way.

— Kelly Miller —

triumphant victory would have stood just the same in its unshaken security. The President-elect is, therefore, free from political obligation to the Negro vote as an entity.

The Negro as a citizen, whether he supported or opposed Mr. Hoover, is entitled to equal consideration before the law. We can only fall back upon his assurance that in his view every citizen is entitled to equality of opportunity, without regard to race or faith.

III. Mr. Hoover's drastic policy of eliminating the Negro in order to appease the "lily whites" has proved to be a successful political stroke. I predicted in my open letter that he would probably receive a million and a half "lily white" votes in the South as reward for crucifying the Negro's ambition.

The Republicans have not only broken the "Solid South," but they have shattered it into fragments. Virginia, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Texas, Florida and North Carolina have joined the Republican ranks. All of the border States have reaffirmed their allegiance by unprecedented majorities. The Southern States which Mr. Hoover did not actually carry gave a strong minority vote which promises better luck in the future.

IV. The substitution of "lily white" for Democratic control of Southern States forbodes no direct good to the Negro race. The dominant attitude of Texas towards the Negro remains unaltered under whatever political designation it may disguise itself. But the crafty cunning of the Hoover management will be overruled for the good of the Negro.

The Negro exercises the full right of franchise in Maryland, West Virginia, Missouri and Kentucky, not because the Republicans of both States love him better than the Democrats, but because both parties find it necessary to solicit his vote in order to succeed. This election has accomplished two notable results: it has split the 'Solid South"; it has split the Negro vote.

V. Those who protested against the reaction of the Grand Old Party under Mr. Hoover's reserved control may be divided into two parts: those who, like myself, regretfully pointed out its sins while remaining passively loyal, and those who openly revolted to the enemy. Although the Democrats lost, the protest has not been in vain. Moral principles are not affected by political results. Mr. Hoover and his management must think immeasurably more of the Negro race for manly protest against the ills which they genuinely feel than if the leaders should stand with Uncle Tom's docility, with complaisant acceptance of insult and injury.

Mr. Hoover has promised the Negro nothing and owes him little from a purely political point of view. We can only rely upon his broad, patriotic conception of duty to administer the government with an even hand, without regard to faith or race.

SPLIT IN GEORGIA DISTURBS G. O. P

Fight Between Ben Davis and Lily White Faction Proves Dilemma to Hoover Leaders.

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Washington, D. C., September 29.—(Special.)—The split between the Ben Davis faction of the republican party in Georgia and the lily whites is creating considerable interest among the republican leaders in Washington, and it brings to the forefront the question as to who will be the next republican national committeeman from Georgia.

Davis has occupied the position for a long time and pending the election of his successor he is still the holdover member, and will retain that position until his successor is selected.

And thereby hangs a tale!

The Georgia delegation to the Kansas City republican convention developed a heated contest as between the Davis and anti-Davis forces.

Davis, from the beginning, was for Hoover, and while the Georgia delegation was kept in line strong opposition developed to the reelection of Davis by a part of it.

The contest waxed so hot that it was referred to the republican national committee, and the committee referred the question to a subcommittee to decide whether or not Davis should succeed himself.

Committee In Dilemma.

At the meeting of the subcommittee later the matter was fully discussed and strong pressure was brought to bear upon it to force Davis out.

The committee was in a dilemma.

If Davis was ousted the adverse reaction would be felt in the large negro republican vote in New York, Massachusett Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Chicago.

On the other hand, if Davis should be chosen that would be an end to the lily white republican movement in the south, and it would prove to be an insuperable backset to the effort to Hooverize the southern democracy, for even the democratic bolters whose support is being so earnestly sought, could not stand for that.

So the committee, after long discussion, concluded that the best thing to do was to do nothing at all and to postpone action until after the presidential election at which time the question could be settled without affecting the presidential election.

GEORGIA G. O. P. SPLIT IRKS PARTY CHIEFS

Continued from First Page.

Both sides seemed satisfied—especially the Davis faction.

Two Opinions.

Davis believes that he has the support of Hoover, and of those who are closest to him in the management of the republican campaign.

On the other hand, the lily whites seem to be sure that when the presidential storm is over committee can be induced to oust Davis and elect a white republican committeeman from Georgia.

Those who know anything about the situation here believe that when the election is over Davis will unquestionably be chosen to succeed himself.

It will be recalled this problem was involved when this question came up for settlement during the Harding administration. At that time a strong lily white movement developed in Georgia headed by Charles W. Adamson, of Cedartown, and H. G. Hastings, of Atlanta, and other lifelong republicans who have for years been working to free the party from the domination of negro control, and the shame that has always been attached to the manner of the representation of the party by negro delegations at the republican national conventions.

Failed Before.

The movement then assumed considerable proportions, the lily whites succeeding to the extent of electing J. L. Philips, of Thomasville, as national committeeman. Philips was identified with the best element of white republicans in the state, and it was thought at that time that the problem was solved, for no Georgia republican stood closer to the Harding administration than Committeeman Philips. He seemed to have the situation well in hand and everything moved smoothly until the fight for the delegation to the next republican national convention. Then the storm broke loose in full force.

Philips elected a white delegation and it was bitterly contested by the negro wing of the republican party.

Philips had the advantage of party regularity and had the negro not been involved, his delegation would undoubtedly have been seated.

Then came the protest of the negro element of the large cities in the east and the middle west. They took the position that if Davis was turned down it would be an affront to the race. The other side took the position that if those who were trying to organize a white republican party in Georgia were turned down, it would be an end to the effort to establish a white republican party in the state.

Ben Davis won.

The lily white leaders were turned down and Davis again became the leader of the republican party in the state.

Have Bear By Tail.

Now the same fight is under way again, and those who are to umpire it have wisely concluded to postpone the decision until after the presidential election.

They recognize the fact that they have a bear by the tail, either way—and the question now uppermost in the minds of the republican leaders here is how to keep the bear in the middle of the road until after the election.

When it is all over the chances are ten to one that the party will do just what it did in the Harding administration and put another quietus to the lily white movement in Georgia, and the south.

At least that is the expectation of Ben Davis and those who are backing him.

As the Negro Comes From the Polls

By KELLY MILLER

TWO weeks ago, in the light of expectation, I wrote a release and called it "As the Negro Goes to the Polls.' Now, in the light of the aftermath, I am able to indite its supplement, "As the Negro Comes From the Polls." I made three major predictions and gave one admonition, all of which have been justified by the recent election.

In the first place, I predicted that the Negro vote would be split into two approximately equal divisions; secondly, that Mr. Hoover would be elected by a marginal majority too great to be affected one way or the other by the capacity of the Negro vote; thirdly, that the "lily white" program of the Grand Old Party, though vicious in principle, would be effective in practice.

With these thoughts in mind, I admonished the race to exercise prudent moderation in extolling the moral grandeur of the Republicans and in the anticipation of any great racial advantage that might flow from Mr. Hoover's victory.

I. That the Negro did actually divide his vote between the contesting parties admits of little doubt or dispute. Of course, partisan advocates on both sides will claim that, by virtue of their controlling influence, the vast majority of the race voted according to their direction and dictation.

II. I stated in my open letter to Mr. Hoover that his majority would probably transcend the capacity of the colored vote. As it turned out, if every qualified Negro who voted had voted either for Mr. Hoover or against him, his triumphant victory would have stood just the same in its unshaken security. The President-elect is, therefore, free from political obligation to the Negro vote as an entity.

— Kelly Miller —

The Negro as a citizen, whether he supported or opposed Mr. Hoover, is entitled to equal consideration before the law. We can only fall back upon his assurance that in his view every citizen is entitled to equality of opportunity, without regard to race or faith.

III. Mr. Hoover's drastic policy of eliminating the Negro in order to appease the "lily whites" has proved to be a successful political stroke. I predicted in my open letter that he would probably receive a million and a half "lily white" votes in the South as reward for crucifying the Negro's ambition.

The Republicans have not only broken the "Solid South," but they have shattered it into fragments. Virginia, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Texas, Florida and North Carolina have joined the Republican ranks. All of the border States have reaffirmed their allegiance by unprecedented majorities. The Southern States which Mr. Hoover did not actually carry gave a strong minority vote which promises better luck in the future.

IV. The substitution of "lily white" for Democratic control of Southern States forbodes no direct good to the Negro race. The dominant attitude of Texas towards the Negro remains unaltered under whatever political designation it may disguise itself. But the crafty cunning of the Hoover management will be overruled for the good of the Negro.

The Negro exercises the full right of franchise in Maryland, West Virginia, Missouri and Kentucky, not because the Republicans of both States love him better than the Democrats, but because both parties find it necessary to solicit his vote in order to succeed. This election has accomplished two notable results: it has split the 'Solid South"; it has split the Negro vote.

V. Those who protested against the reaction of the Grand Old Party under Mr. Hoover's reserved control may be divided into two parts: those who, like myself, regretfully pointed out its sins while remaining passively loyal, and those who openly revolted to the enemy. Although the Democrats lost, the protest has not been in vain. Moral principles are not affected by political results. Mr. Hoover and his management must think immeasurably more of the Negro race for manly protest against the ills which they genuinely feel than if the leaders should stand with Uncle Tom's docility, with complaisant acceptance of insult and injury.

Mr. Hoover has promised the Negro nothing and owes him little from a purely political point of view. We can only rely upon his broad, patriotic conception of duty to administer the government with an even hand, without regard to faith or race.

SPLIT IN GEORGIA DISTURBS G. O. P

GEORGIA G. O. P. SPLIT IRKS PARTY CHIEFS

do was to do nothing at all and to postpone action until after the presidential election at which time the question could be settled without affecting the presidential election.

Continued from First Page.

Two Opinions.

Davis believes that he has the support of Hoover, and of those who are closest to him in the management of the republican campaign, the lily whites seem to be sure that when the presidential storm is over committeeman can be induced to oust Davis and elect a white republican committeeman from

Fight Between Ben Davis and Lily White Faction Proves Dilemma to Hoover Leaders.

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Washington, D. C., September 25.—(Special.)—The split between the Ben Davis faction of the republican party in Georgia and the lily whites is creating considerable interest among the republican leaders in Washington, and it brings to the forefront the question as to who will be the next republican national committeeman from Georgia.

Davis has occupied the position for a long time and pending the elections of his successor he is still the holdover member, and will retain that position until his successor is elected.

And thereby hangs a tale!

The Georgia delegation to the Kansas City republican convention developed a head on contest as between the Davis and anti-Davis forces.

Davis, from the beginning, was for Hoover, and while the Georgia delegation was kept in line strong opposition developed to the reelection of Davis by a part of it.

The contest waxed so hot that it was referred to the republican committee, and the committee referred the question to a subcommittee to decide whether or not Davis should succeed himself.

Committee In Dilemma.

At the meeting of the subcommittee later the matter was fully discussed and strong pressure was brought to bear upon it to force Davis out.

The committee was in a dilemma. If Davis was ousted the adverse reaction would be felt in the large negro republican vote in New York, Massachusetts, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Chicago.

On the other hand, if Davis should be chosen that would be an end to the lily white republican movement in the south, and it would prove to be an insuperable backset to the effort to Hooverize the southern democracy, for even the democratic bolters support is being so earnestly sought, could not stand for that.

So the committee, after long discussion, concluded that the best thing to do was to do nothing at all and to postpone action until after the presidential election.

They recognize the fact that they have a bear by the tail, either way—and the question now uppermost in the minds of the republican leaders here is how to keep the bear in the middle of the road until after the election.

When it is all over the chances are ten to one that the party will do just what it did in the Harding administration and put another quietus to the lily white movement in Georgia, and the south.

At least that is the expectation of Ben Davis and those who are backing him.

Failed Before.

The movement then assumed considerable proportions, the lily whites in Georgia headed by Charles W. Adamson, of Cedartown, and H. G. Hastings, of Atlanta, and other lifelong republicans who have for years been working to free the party from the domination of negro control, and the shame that has always been attached to the manner of the representation of the party by negro delegations at the republican national conventions.

Have Bear By Tail.

Now the same fight is under way again, and those who are to umpire the republican party in the state, concluded that the best thing to do it have wisely concluded to postpone

Political – 1928.

Party Affiliation.

Anglo-Saxon Supremacy The Hope of the South, Says Willingham

Editor Constitution: The recent interpretation of democracy through your columns has been a source of interest.

Constitution

We have got a perfectly good black negro in Floyd county, Georgia, who goes by the name of "Professor" Atwater. By the conventional white (and black) republicans of this neck of the woods this black African (who, by the way, edits the only negro newspaper in northwest Georgia) is credited with controlling the patronage of the republican party in this part of the moral vineyard.

7-15-28

In the event Mr. Hoover is elected president, where is the white man in Georgia who has the temerity to promulgate the opinion that he will supersede this black "professor" in dispensing the patronage and otherwise speaking, for the republican party?

Atlanta, Ga.

This writer, though always loyal with his vote to the democratic party, did once juggle with the thought, we confess, in the days of our younger manhood, that this solid south might even be broken with propriety, for its progress and advancement. But we have not entertained for many years any such fictitious dream.

To the most casual observer it remains beyond dispute that the democratic party, even as it has been in the past, does yet remain the south's hope for the continued supremacy of Jeffersonian ideals, and the south's sole refuge for the continued supremacy of the white man's leadership in the affairs of state.

The republican party is irrevocably wedded to its alliance with the negro in politics. Should "Cuffy" linger in the south, the G. O. P. will continue to rely on him; and in the event the peregrinations of friend Cuffy should land him in the north, the G. O. P. will none the less find the necessity for the perpetuation of this political comradeship

All this talk about the "lily whites" of Georgia or elsewhere in the south is the bunk. The Ben Davises and the Professor Atwaters will continue to exercise undisputed audience in the councils of the grand old party.

It might be a matter inviting the serious consideration of our panic-stricken democratic friends, to remember that the congress still has the initiation and enactment of our laws, and these might do well to address themselves to the election of men to congress who will express the genius of the nation in the matter of Volsteadism.

This contingent of the excited cannot write off the fact that Governor Smith has demonstrated the ideals of citizenship and statesmanship and is proof of the fact that an American waif is still a potential occupant of the white house (even as Lincoln).

Tammany Hall has not yet, in spite of all attempts at vilification and abuse, turned out a Fall to betray its country, or a Forbes to rob its stricken soldiers, or a Daugherty to corrupt the attorney generalship of the nation.

In my humble capacity of private citizen, than which I aspire to no higher title, while holding to the conviction that justice shall be done to my black brother, and guaranteeing to him unmolestation in the peaceful pursuits of labor and the legitimate fruits of its rewards, I none the less subscribe to the doctrine that this is a white man's country; and experience of the past has taught me, if anything, that that supremacy cannot be secured through the practicalities of the republican party, and I shall remain true to the bridge that has thus far carried us safely across.

If the chairman of the democratic party of the state of Georgia was laboring under such a deep conviction to speak, it seems to this writer that he would have with more propriety spoken with a resignation of his stewardship of our party as chairman, than opened wide the door, and extended invitation to the voters of Georgia to be democrats in September and republicans in November, or stated in different language, followers of Mr. Jefferson in September and followers of "Professor" Atwater in November.

WRIGHT WILLINGHAM.

Rome, Ga., July 12, 1928.

HARMONY SHATERED IN GEORGIA.

Age 7-17-28

On the first page of the Atlanta Independent of June 21 appeared an article headed "Georgia's Shame at the Kansas City Convention." As the former Republican State Committeeman for Georgia, Benjamin Jefferson Davis is the editor of the Independent, it is only fair to presume that the statement emanated from him or had his approval although it bore no name of its author. It recited the harmony that prevailed in the state and district conventions that elected delegates to Kansas City, there being trouble in only two districts, the First and the Seventh. The State was unanimous on the question of National Committeeman, no name being mentioned except that of B. J. Davis, to succeed himself.

At the Georgia State convention Mr. Davis was unanimously elected and the delegates and alternates were instructed to vote for him. Eleven districts out of twelve either instructed for him or endorsed him for reelection. But all this harmony was shattered at Kansas City when Roscoe Pickett, chairman of the delegation, refused to present his name before the convention and instead nominated J. H. Watson with Mrs. George S. Williams for National Committeewoman. These names had previously been rejected by the State convention.

Republican.

Mr. Pickett's action, it is claimed, was in violation of the instructions of the State convention, he having been made chairman of the delegation by virtue of the fact that he was chairman of the State Central Committee. It was also claimed that the rules of the National Committee provide, that when delegates fail to obey their instructions for national committeeman, the convention may count their votes for the party for whom they were instructed. Nine delegates favored the Watson slate while thirteen stood by their instructions and declared for Davis. Another performed the difficult feat of being on both side ,so that nobody could tell how he would vote. The chairman arbitrarily adjourned the meeting of the delegates, refusing to allow them to pass upon the question.

This irregular action by the chairman of the delegation was declared a deliberate attempt to wreck and disorganize the Republican party in Georgia. It was the result of a combination of politicians, who boasted that they were going to reorganize the party when they returned to Georgia and put out Ben Davis, who had too much power and authority. The white man who sided with Davis and held Federal officers would also have to walk the plank under the new leadership.

While The Age has not always been able to agree with Mr. Davis in his political policies or his editorial opinions, it has great respect for his sturdy qualities of aggressive leadership in seeking and maintaining racial representation. He deserves a fair deal at the hands of the Republican Party. If the facts are as stated in the Independent, he appears to have been the victim of a dirty deal.

Witness Charges Demand for $500 For G. O. P. Place

L. L. Spence Says Wife Was Not Reappointed Postmaster When Advance Payment Refused.

PATRONAGE PROBE HERE ENDS TODAY

East Point Postmaster Testifies He Has Contributed Approximately $600 Since 1923.

Testimony that republican state officials had demanded $500 from a former postmaster for his wife's job, and revelations that the postmaster at East Point had given the party 5 per cent of his salary, or approximately $600, insce he took office in 1923 because he "didn't expect a man could hold office unless he paid" featured the second day's sessions here of the senate subcommittee investigating republican patronage charges in Georgia.

Constitution

Testifying that John W. Martin, treasurer of the republican state committee, asked him how much he would give to have his wife reappointed postmistress, L. L. Spence, of Ball Ground, Ga., told the committee that he had offered Martin $500 after his wife received her appointment, but that Martin insisted on payment in advance. He said that he refused and that his wife was not reappointed.

7-11-28

Hearings here will close today, the subcommittee announced Tuesday and the body will go to Washington to hear the postmaster general. Chairman Brookhart said that he would take along a card index submitted in the first day's evidence showing that practically all the postmasters in Georgia contribute to the republican state committee.

Atlanta Ga.

A letter from Ben J. Davis, negro, former national committeeman, also was introduced before the committee. The letter advised the state committee to refund a contribution to an applicant for a postoffice appointment who had failed to receive the job. Davis instructed that this was on advice of the postmaster general and added:

"We cannot accept money from an applicant who confesses that the money was given on his part out of consideration for an appointment."

While he at first stated that he paid the committee five per cent of his salary because he believed it to be the duty of an officeholder to support his party, S. N. Thompson, of East Point, admitted after questioning, that "To tell the truth, I don't expect a man could hold office unless he did pay."

While he denied that the committee had exacted money of him, Thompson said that he had received a letter from the state treasurer suggesting "that the books were being checked up and that everybody ought to come in."

Constitution

Thompson said he thought it was customary for postmasters to contribute, and he thought he ought to do his part.

Miss Esther McCollum, postmistress at Conyers, testified that she pays the republican committee about $100 per year of her own accord, and said that the total she had paid "might be $500."

7-11-28

Miss McCollum said she brought the money to Atlanta and paid it to the state treasurer.

"Why didn't you mail the contributions?" she was asked.

"Well," she said, "I saved a 2-cent stamp and I came into Atlanta frequently, anyway."

"Were these contributions voluntary?"

"They were."

"No one asked you to make them?"

"No."

"How much do you pay at one time?"

"Sometimes $5, sometimes $10, according to how much money I have."

"Would you send this money if you didn't hold your office?"

"Yes."

William Schley Howard, attorney for the republican committee, declaring that the suicide of L. F. Peterson, Douglas, Ga., postmaster, coupled with the charges from an Americus man of payments to the party, had precipitated the investigation, asked the committee to go into the Peterson case. He said he wanted the committee to hear from J. P. Johnston, postoffice inspector in charge here.

"It has been publicly said throughout the state," Howard said, "that the suicide of Mr. Peterson was due to 'unheard-of demands on him by the republican machine' when in fact he contributed only $100 or so to the party. The real supposed cause of the suicide was a shortage of some $7,000."

Senator George said he had no objection to hearing the witness. Inspector Johnston took the stand and said that the record was in the hands of the postoffice department and he preferred it should come from them.

Senator Brookhart interposed that the postmaster general had assured him that the department's investigation of the Peterson case would be placed at the disposal of the committee and suggested that introduction of the evidence not be attempted at this time.

Roscoe Pickett, state chairman, of Jasper, Ga., related his investigation of the Peterson case and said he learned from the department that the Douglas man had drawn overdrafts totaling $6,500 and was short $700 in addition. He said this, rather than any contributions, appeared to have been the cause for Peterson's act.

Pickett was asked by Senator George to explain how he proceeded in handling patronage matters.

The witness replied that he relied on his extensive acquaintance in the state obtained through service in both houses of the legislature and otherwise.

"Have you ever heard of cases where money was paid by applicants for postoffice jobs?" he was asked.

"I have had a few instances called to my attention."

"Can you name a recent instance?"

"I believe there was one involving a mail carrier down around Brunswick."

"Explain that."

"I don't know the facts."

"Did you investigate any of these cases?"

"I investigated the Peterson case, and the charge that he was driven to suicide by the excessive demands of the party were preposterous and I dropped the investigation."

"Since you have gone into the Peterson case," Senator George said, "I want to ask you in justice to a dead man, whether it isn't true that Peterson was notified that he would be removed two months before this shortage in the accounts was discovered?"

"I don't know how long it was."

Pickett also asserted that he had not drawn any salary as chairman since 1926, when the state party was reorganized. Treasurer Martin said Monday to the committee that Picket received a salary of $250 monthly.

The chairman also said he had paid his own expenses in some instances. Asked if any contributions had been made by the state organization to state or national campaigns, Pickett replied in the affirmative. Martin had related that all the money received by his office was used for current expenses.

Pickett was examined by Senator Cyrus Locher, democrat, of Ohio, who demanded of the chairman why he knew nothing about the regular contributions disclosed by the treasurer's card index. Pickett, answering Senator George's questioning, had related that he did not know what receipts of the state organization had amounted to. If any assessments had been made or collected, he knew nothing of it, Pickett asserted.

"Do you ever check with the treasurer who pays and who doesn't?" Senator Locher inquired.

"No."

"As chairman don't you assume any responsibility for finances?"

"No."

"You have no interest in the finances? Did you ever know the chairman of a political committee who was not interested in where the money comes from?"

"Certainly, I'm interested," Pickett replied.

"But you just said you didn't ever confer with the treasurer about finances," Senator Locher said.

Senator Brookhart asked whether Pickett knew if there were any funds in the treasury at present. Pickett said he had only asked the treasurer if he had funds to cover the office expenses.

"Did he say if the installments came in?" Senator Locher interposed.

"I didn't ask him," the chairman retorted.

Senator Harris came in with the remark that "it seems like money just drops from out of the clouds."

"It seems someone could tell us why some contributors pay centain specified amounts," Senator Harris added.

"I don't know," Pickett said.

Pickett told Senator Locher he could not tell him why various letters purported to have been mailed to postal employees by party officials or other spoke of "voluntary contributions."

Senator George read a letter which he said was from a postmaster to the treasurer, in which it was stated that $30 was inclosed, which, with $20, covers our understanding."

Pickett said he knew nothing about it.

"Do you want this committee to understand that, as chairman of this central committee, you deny all responsibility for what other members of the committee do?" barked Senator Locher.

"I can't assume responsibility for things I know nothing about," said Pickett.

Pickett also denied the statements of Treasurer Martin Monday that the regular expenses of the committee run from $1,000 to $1,200 per month.

"Why is it necessary to have three of four men employed on regular salaries the year round when you do not put out candidates for office except in the national elections?" Chairman Brookhart asked.

"It isn't necessary," Pickett replied. "We have only two men on regular salaries now, the secretary and the treasurer, and the total expenses are not running more than $600 per month."

"The only thing to keep them busy is the collections of these assessments against postmasters, isn't it?" queried Senator Locher.

"I don't understand that there are any assessments, just voluntary contributions," Pickett replied.

Assessed $100.

Senator Harris read a letter from a world war veteran stating that he had been assessed $100 by the republican organization.

"Don't you think it was an outrage to assess a soldier that much?" asked Senator Harris.

"I don't think he ought to have been assessed anything, and I don't know that he was," Pickett replied.

He also denied knowledge of the postmaster at Blairsville being assessed $350 or paying that much. He said that Union county is a republican stronghold and that the postmasters might have sent in funds for other contributors.

Returned Check.

Pickett was questioned concerning a check for $500 sent to him personally by the ordinary of Union county, and he said he sent the check back and suggested that it be forwarded to Mr. Martin as treasurer for the state committee.

"Why didn't you send it on to Martin yourself? Was it because you didn't want your indorsement on the back of the check?" Senator Locher asked.

"No. I was just closer to the sender than I was to Atlanta," Pickett replied.

Senator Harris called Davis to the stand, and inquired whether the negro's paper, the Atlanta Independent, received any money from the treasurer's funds.

Davis said he received money for regular advertising. He estimated that he had been paid about $150 by the state committee for advertising, and about $600 during the state convention.

COURIER-CITIZEN
LOWELL, MASS.

JUL 20 1928

THE REAL BATTLE-GROUND.

The more the political situation at the South develops, the more evident it appears that the Republican managers will do well to put forth their best efforts to carry the doubtful states of the North. If the agricultural states for the most part remain in the fold, and if none of the Republican states claimed for Smith on the Volstead issue (except New Jersey and New York) actually fall to the Democrats, it would not be unreasonable to hope that Oklahoma, Kentucky and Tennessee would contribute to a Republican majority. Further than that the South will probably remain solid. It has the habit.

The fact is that the anti-Smith Democrats of that section are all dressed up with nowhere to go. Developments with regard to federal patronage in Mississippi and Georgia have come at just about the psychological moment to discourage a shift to the Republican party, both in those states and in others where the same conditions are generally supposed to prevail. In Texas the puny Republican organization is split wide open and has been for years. Representative Wurzbach and National Committeeman Creager have a feud on of long standing. Creager would welcome an alliance with the Hoover Democrats. On the other hand, the faction to which Wurzbach belongs, under the leadership of J. M. O'Hara and the Negro Republican leader "Gooseneck" W. M. McDonald, has bolted to Smith. This group asserts that it "controls" 250,000 votes. One might safely leave off one or two ciphers from this estimate, seeing that the combined total of the Coolidge and La Follette votes did not approach that figure in 1924.

The strategic mistakes of the Republicans in the South go far back to the period of reconstruction. They cast in their lot with the Negroes from the first, at a time when this race was notoriously unfitted for the ballot, and the white people were inevitably thrown into the arms of the Democracy. So far all efforts to build up a white Republican party have been in vain. Indeed it is not certain that such an aim is morally justifiable, now that a large part of the Negro population is reasonably well fitted to exercise the franchise. At any rate, we fear that even the Negro vote has not been cultivated in such a way as to bring the best elements of that population to the front, and the white bolters from the Smith candidacy are not likely to feel at home among the Republicans.

It seems to be the clergy who are at the front of the bolt, but they are not unanimous. Every Sunday violent diatribes are reported from the pulpits of influential churches. One of these has more news interest, perhaps, than a hundred services in which no mention is made of politics. Yet considerable importance is to be attached to the formal statement by Warren A. Chandler, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in which he reiterates and confirms pastoral letters of former bishops, which contained the advice: "You have no commission to preach politics."

The strongest Republican organization in that part of the South which has never since the end of the reconstruction era cast its vote for a Republican candidate in a presidential election is probably in North Carolina. So far, however, this state has not given many signs of restiveness. Senator Simmons was willing to risk his leadership in the party rather than to waive his opposition to Smith's nomination—but he is not bolting. With this honored chief in line, the North Carolina Democrats are not likely to desert in large numbers. Has even Tom Heflin sailed for Europe?

On the whole, therefore, it was probably wise for the Democrats to turn down Senator Robinson's proposal for sectional headquarters in the South, and it will be equally wise for the Republicans to confine their efforts to the really close states of the North. There are certainly enough of these, in the peculiar mixup of issues which raises havoc with ordinary party calculations.

Political - 1928.

Republican.

Party Affiliation.

THE REPUBLICAN PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

HERBERT HOOVER has been selected as the candidate of the Republican party for the presidency of the United States when next November the citizens elect their chief to serve for the ensuing four years. Mr. Hoover's capacity for great achievements at home and abroad, his knowledge of foreign affairs, his position on outstanding public issues, his service to his country during the World War, his activities in relation to the Mississippi flood relief and his popularity among the masses of the American people caused him to become the unanimous choice of the delegates of the Republican national convention at Kansas City, and won for him the nomination.

He has declared himself for prohibition, is reputed to be for a protective tariff, is against government ownership of public utilities, believes in a program for the development of inland waterways, and is an advocate of farm relief. He is a sound financier, is most familiar with the problems of commerce, is an efficient executive, and is an adept at selecting subordinates. With a dearth of available presidential timber, satisfactory to the leaders, Mr. Hoover was no doubt the best qualified of those put forward. He is now planning an active campaign for the presidency.

As normal citizens, Negroes are interested in all of the vital political issues of the campaign and the qualifications of the respective candidates. But their peculiar and singular status causes them to scrutinize and examine most closely the records of all candidates as to their opinions, practices, and attitudes on the race question. This is a distasteful test to which American citizens must submit other American citizens, but conditions make it obligatory so that the question primary and paramount is, "What will be his attitude on the race question as regards the political rights of Negroes"

This question cannot be answered until the release of the campaign literature of Mr. Hoover discloses his declarations on this point or in his public utterances he cares to announce his intentions in this regard. And yet a man's public utterances count for naught unless he carries out in spirit and letter his avowals. It is not always the most voluble of our fellow citizens that are our best friends.

Herbert Hoover is not given to bombast. We do not believe that he will make any wild pledges and promises impossible of fullfillment, nor should any be exacted of him. We believe that if our political leaders are sagacious enough to draw up a demand of our attainable rights, such as the sharing of the Federal Patronage in the north and in the south, the Federal Supervision of elections in the south, including the reduction of congressional representation in the south where Negroes are denied the ballot, with the request of Mr. Hoove's support if elected and if he agrees to it, we have no doubt but that in the light of his past performances, as indicated by his disposition of the segregation of employees in his department at Washington and the flood relief situation in the south, he can be depended upon to keep his pledges.

Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, Hoover's running mate and candidate for the Republican post of vice president of the United States, is a politician of the old school, having been elected to office at the early age of 24 years, in 1888, and having continued his career in public office since that time as a regular Republican. His record in his native state, Kansas, and his acts in some instances—in congress—where the interests of colored people were involved, has shown him at least kindly disposed to the group; and this fact, together with his long association with our old guard in politics, in congress and out of it, fits him to know even better than Hoover our needs and our desires politically. There is little doubt but that he also will prove a most acceptable candidate to the colored voters, provided the pledges exacted of him on measures appertaining to the political welfare of the Negro are sound and possible of accomplishment.

The candidates are both acceptable to the rank and file of voters; it is up to our political leaders to see to it, if they desire the support of the Negro vote, that they both promise to be fair and exert themselves in behalf of such legislation as will serve to better our political status in this country. We shuold not ask or expect everything of them at once, for that is impossible, but what is most sorely needed. When they have declared themselves the Negro voter will best know what stand to take.

OF ONE BLOOD

AS predicted in the editorial columns of the Chicago Bee the "lily whites" of the Republican party in the south succeeded in either supplanting the "black and tan" delegations at the national Republican convention at Kansas City, or in weakening the influence of those remaining by direct or indirect control of some Negro delegations.

It has long been the intention and ambition of the Republican party to build up a white controlled party in the south rather than a "lily white" party as some would believe and contend. The influx of thousands of white northerners into southern states has tended to increase this ambition and desire on the part of the national Republican poliitcians. It is gradually being worked out with the aid of the southern colored brother himself. Soon the "lily whites" will control entirely the fortunes, patronage, and all of the south and some of the southern political leaders there will have helped the cause along themselves.

Some of our northern, as well as southern, political leaders show that they are of the same blood, the same mind, the same spirit and cast in the same mold when it comes to keeping white leadership and supporting white political supremacy, oftimes when they are not compelled to do it other than in obedience to their white "master's voice", rather than in obedience to the call of the blood of their black brethren. So the southern colored politicians at Kansas City are only following a natural tendency and the example of some of our Chicago and northern colored politicians who will turn down a colored candidate on occasion for a white one.

A dozen years ago or so, the Negro voters of the second ward held the balance of power. The colored constiuency of that ward was discriminated against by the white alderman outrageously. Some red-blooded Negroes thought the condition might be remedied by the election of a Negro alderman and approached the Negro political leaders of that time with their convictions on this point, but the political leaders said, "Nay, the time is not yet ripe, for one of our own." Undaunted, the Negroes of the second ward that were loyal to the race first, as they properly should have been, put up first Griffin and then Cowan, both of whom sacrificed themselves on the political altar of that day for the good of their race, only to be defeated by their own flesh and blood.

Not long since, a Negro was ambitious to represent his people in Congress. The same song to the same tune was used to defeat him by people of his own blood.

In a recent election, a colored lawyer, Granady, was wantonly slain as he went about his duties as an American citizen seeking to exercise his rights at the polls. If he had been lynched in the south or if the Ku Klux Klan had been charged with his murder and the mobbing, kidnapping and mutilation of other Negro workers, some of our colored politicians would have made the welkin ring with their raccuous wails against it and crocodile tears would have been copiously shed by them. But happening in Chicago our own political leaders, with one or two exceptions, are strangely silent; they have held no public meetings of condemnation, contributed nothing in a financial way to bring the culprits to justice, and by their silence seem to condone these political crimes. But one Negro church and one or two Negro ministers have been outspoken against these brutal acts. Even our press is inclined to pussy-foot on this local lynching.

So we can not too severely condemn the colored brethren at Kansas City whom we accuse of selling out to the "lily whites." It seems that we are all of one blood when it comes to selling or betraying our own into the hands of other groups, be it north or south. Our likeness in this respect is unquestioned.

SOUTHERN NEGRO'S POLITICAL PLIGHT!

Judging from the small part played by the Negro in the recent Republican National Convention at Kansas City, Mo., and the well-known attitude of the Democratic party of the South, which goes out of its way to disfranchise, disqualify and politically outlaw the colored race, the Southern Negro is in an awful political plight—being literally between Scylla and Charybdis; between the devil and the deep, blue sea, to employ a stereotyped adage.

Considered the balance of power in several pivotal states of the republic, the Negroes in such states are given some degree of local consideration and recognition; but nationally the race is not functioning, not even under a Republican administration, as it did in yesteryears.

Chicago Bee 6-30-28

Informer 6-30-28

Dixie Democrats and Republicans appear to have a tacit understanding regarding the part the "brother" is to play or is not to play, in the political affairs and partisan councils of the Southland, and both political parties are ever seeking to proscribe against the black race, and to relegate it to wellnigh political oblivion and partisan ostracism. Houston, Texas

Founded on equal rights for all, the Democratic party of the South has completely forsaken its ancient shibboleth; while the Republican party, which sprang into existence on the "Negro question," and which has held sway largely because of the blind support accorded the party by the Negro voters of the country, particularly in border, Middlewest, Northern and Eastern states, since emancipation, has gone off after strange and false gods.

The Southern Negro is becoming more and more a political Ishmael and partisan orphan, while so many of the reputed political leaders of the race seem to be actuated by selfish desires.

Belated returns from the Kansas City convention indicate that Negro contestants were not considered in the light of their party orthodoxy or regularity, per se; but that their presidential preference was largely the determining factor in the settlement of most contests.

To be perfectly frank and candid, some of the contesting colored delegates from the South had no case; in fact, they failed to begin at the proper place to work up their case; and in the next place, they were unfortunate to perch themselves upon the wrong band-wagon.

But be that as it will or may, the fact remains that the Southern Negro is losing, or has about lost, his place in the Republican party of Dixie; and, despite the decision of the United States Supreme Court in nullifying and invalidating the "white man's primary" law of Texas and the South, the Democrats are still excluding the Negro from active participation in the affairs of their party.

It begins to appear that the Negro needs to hold a fact-finding political conference, to ascertain if the race still has any rights left under the provisions of the American constitution; and if he has any such rights and prerogatives, to adopt some method whereby these rights can be exercised and enjoyed; for, verily, the Southern Negro is in an awful political plight—somewhat "in statu quo," or a heluva fix!

Indications Point To The Naming Of John R. Hawkins As Leader Of Negro Republicans In Campaign

Said That His Close Association With Bishop Carey and A. M. E. Church Politicians Has No Part In The Selection; Cake All Dough

(Staff Correspondence of The Age.)

Washington, D. C.—Negro management of Negro end of the Presidntial campaign now at hand is still sole objective of nearly all "Afric-Repub" politicians. All roads, there fore, lead to Washington.

Wherefore the lobby of the Hotel Whitelaw here reminds much of the lounge of some "jimcrow" hostelry at Kansas City during the recent National Convention. And, consequently, allegations and rumors are legion.

The brethren are not united, and have as much right to not be as the Nordics who didn't and got mad at each other because of it at Kansas City. So there are individuals and groups seeking what, according to somewhat authoritative "grapevine radio," none will find an assignment to "Mussolini" the whole Afric-Repub works——chief organizer, head of speakers' bureau, generalissimo of publicity, etc., etc.

Sent To Manager.

It said that all Afric brethren who have penetrated to the Hoover lair at the Department of Commerce, without a request to call, have been referred to the campaign manager—even before that worthy's selection was officially announced. It is also said that the mantle of colored Republican leadership will be placed on the erect shoulders of Dr. John R. Hawkins of Washington, who seconded the nomination of Hoover at the Kansas City Convention, beefing on the part of Northern Negroes about assignment of directors from non-voting communities notwithstanding.

Dr. Hawkins is financial secretary of the A. M. E. Church, a trustee of Howard University, and president of the Prudential Bank here. As Kelly Miller would say, Dr. Hawkins is upright, downstanding, and looks every man straight in the eye as long as he faces him; and he will face any man!

If Dr. Hawkins has been selected it, can be authoritatively said that his church influence an dclose alliance with Bishop Carly played no part in the selection. He has been lifted to the attention of the powers that be through the same influence which dictated his selecion as one of the three persons to second Hoover's nomination, which influence absolutely has no connection with the A. M. E. Church.

Among the "Afric Repub" notables at the Whitelaw was the irrepressible Roscoe Conkling Simmons of Chicago, Louisville, Memphis and Mississippi. Roscoe, who is all things unto all men, had "Uncle Joe" Watson, Ben Jeff Davis' Nemesis in tow, and presented him to all as "My friend, Mr. Watson the Republican National Committeeman for Georgia!" Hon. Davis also WAS Roscoe's friend; but, seemingly, the "King is dead. Long live the King!"

Now that some of the brethren believe their cake is all dough, it is said that a wail of defeatist blues is being sung from the refrain of which comes the query, "Why a Negro management and Negro headquarters when the platform mentions only the anti-lynching Bill? We don't need no head quarters for just 32 words!"

NEW YORK WORLD

JUL 23 1928

Threatens Big Negro Defection From Hoover

From The World's Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Neval H. Thomas, head of the Washington branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, is wrought up over the "persecution of Perry W. Howard." In a letter sent to Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt to-day, he said her activities in Mississippi are not aimed solely at Howard and his political associates, but at "the great Negro race."

"Perhaps you think you have deceived the colored people by your tactics at Kansas City and your entry into Mississippi to save it for white supremacy," said Thomas's letter. "This whole scheme against Perry W. Howard was concocted right here in Washington by the servants of Mr. Hoover to take from the colored people the last vestige of influence and prestige in a degenerate political party that has lived on the Negro for years."

Thomas warns Mrs. Willebrandt that the Negro voter will turn from the Republican party.

"We shall meet the faithless party at the polls," he said. "Every Negro newspaper in the country is railing out against the outrage, informing our millions of this last assault upon their liberties."

Political - 1928

Republican

Party Affiliation.

NEGROES IN THE BACK DOOR; WHITES THROUGH THE FRONT DOOR

This is the way Roscoe Pickett told the State Convention he solved the race problem in 1918 in addressing the delegates. His latest ebulition against Colored Republicans was at Kansas City.

He said there, that he didn't want any Negro for National Committeeman. The only reason he supported Joe Watson was because he knew Joe would not be elected, and that the surest way to beat Ben Davis was to use a "nigger" —Ben Davis made him state chairman in 1926, and 1928, over the protest of his best friends who told him that Roscoe was like a frozen snake, when thawed out he would bite him.

In the caucus the night before the convention in 1926, Mr. Pickett didn't have a peep-in for state chairman and never would have been elected had not Ben Davis okayed him—delegate after delegate stood up in open meeting and told him to his face that they didn't want him and that they came with their minds made up to see to it that he would never have the chance to order Negroes to his back door again as he said he did in 1918. Among those who were candidates for chairman were John W. Martin, O. M. Duke, Clark Grier, et al. Either of whom would have beaten Mr. Picket to a frazzle had not B. J. Davis gotten up and appealed to the delegates to elect him.

Pickett stood up in open meeting and promised if the delegates would elect him he would be good and work in harmony with B. J. Davis, and would concede the national committeeman the sole right to control the federal patronage. But Pickett has been stubborn and didn't want to keep his contract; and would have undertaken to oust Davis long ago had he had sense enough. So, at Kansas City he undertook to do the stunt under the leadership of Mr. Grier and his man Friday, by disobeying his written instructions and refusing to support the party nominee, for which he and his cohorts were removed from office and their position declared vacant.

Pickett has never contributed one thing to the National Republican Party and is now engaged in a futile effort to disrupt the party. He has been ousted as state chairman and would have the public believe that the bogus meeting he has called at Macon on August 11 (the very day that Chairman Flanders has called a meeting of the regular organization in Atlanta) has the sanction of Dr. Work, national chairman. Dr. Work has not been in the habit of recognizing insurgents who bolt their instructions as Mr. Pickett did at Kansas City. He was instructed to vote for Hoover in the state convention as second choice and bolted to Curtis. He was a dead load on the Republican party, and incapable of injecting in the work any enthusiasm or pep. No regular Republican will pay any attention to the bolters' meeting called at Macon. Every leader in the bolters' meeting is an ex-Philips man—lily-whites and Negro miscreants who lend themselves to ignorant and unscrupulous white men to drive decent colored people out of the party.

People of Georgia will never trust a Negro who had so little self-respect as to accept a place on Phillips' committee and continue to hang around after Mr. Phillips had used them for his purposes and kicked them off. Dr. W. H. Harris and Sol C. Johnson were the only colored men on the committee who had the good sense and manhood enough to decline the dishonor, in order to vindicate Lincoln Johnson, who had been slaughtered to satisfy the greed and avarice of the lily-whites; and for which President Harding expressed his regrets before he died and promised God to correct the error as soon as he returned from Alaska. But God called him from labor to reward before he could do the job, and Mr. Slemp made known his desires and the Republicans, in national convention assembled in 1924, vindicated Henry Lincoln Johnson before he passed from labor to reward.

JERSEY G. O. P. BALKS ON ENDORSING HOOVER

Okey On Republican Senator And Governor Also Withheld

WOMEN IN MAJORITY

Conference Cites Ills—To Meet Again In August

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. — A conference of 100 G. O. P. leaders representing 21 counties in session here Thursday, declined to endorse either Hoover or state candidates for U. S. Senate and governor.

The call was issued by Isaac A. Nutter, president, and James A. Lightfoot, secretary. Another conference is scheduled for the second week in August.

Reasons for actions were stated as follows:

FIRST: While it would be dangerous for the party openly to espouse lily-whitism, yet there has been a subtle policy on the part of some white Republican leaders to eliminate the Colored brother.

SECOND: The Negro has not been allotted a single position by party appointment of any consequence for the past four years.

It is true that Oliver P. Randolph, of Newark, is an Assistant United States District Attorney, but no one would ever know it. He holds the position in name only. Randolph, himself, would not know it, but for the fact that he draws his salary check.

THIRD: The selection, by the white leaders, of Dr. Walter Alexander, of Orange, as one of the delegates-at-large to the last National Convention, was against the recommendation and wishes of the Colored vote.

FOURTH: The New Jersey Negro is incensed at the treatment accorded the delegates of color from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Georgia at the past National Convention, and they charge both President Coolidge and Mr. Hoover with the responsibility for the Credential Committee's action, and further feel that the decisions were actuated by nothing less than to curry favor with the lily-whites of Dixie-land.

FIFTH: They further charge that the same catering to southern sentiment by the administration is responsible for the atacks and prosecution of Ben Davis, of Georgia, and Perry Howard, of Mississippi.

SIXTH: They charge that the administration has done nothing to relieve segregation in the Government departments at Washnigton.

SEVENTH: As for Mr. Hoover, while recognizing his great humanitarian work throughout the world, it is charged that he permitted the rankest discrimination to be shown towards Negroes in the Mississippi flood relief work; that an almost peonage system insofar as Negroes were concerned, was permitted by him during that relief work. And while they give him some credit for wiping out segregation in his department as Secretary of Labor, it is stressed that this was done only some two months prior to the National Convention the past June.

GA. MISSISSIPPI FIGHTS AIRED IN SEN. PROBE

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Factional fights against Perry W. Howard and Benjamin J. Davis, National committeeman from Mississippi and Georgia, respectively, were aired in a hearing before the Senate Committee investigating campaign funds, Tuesday.

After admitting that $11,000 had been spent by his organization for Hoover in Mississippi, Howard told the committee that a "lily white" organization had sprung up there, backing Hoover and fighting his group. This night, he said, would be carried before the credentials committee at the National Republican convention and if he finds that he has been "double crossed" he might not vote his delegation for Hoover. Howard said he had received $4.000 from Rush L. Holland, a Hoover campaign manager, and expected to get $1,000 more.

Fight On Davis

Benjamin J. Davis, the Georgia Committeeman, told the committee that he had received $2,200 from Holland. In a two hour grilling he admitted that he kept no book and could give no itemized account of how the money had been spent. $200 was credited to travelling expenses and some of it went for a stenographer in his office.

Davis, who is being opposed by Joseph H. Watson, of Albany, Ga., declared that some of the leaders were opposing because they had heard that he had received large sums of money from the Hoover campaign chest and had not divided fairly with the other delegates. He declared the reports were untrue.

In addition to the $2.200 received from Holland, Davis told the committee that he had received $750 from Watson, $200 from G. F. Flanders and about $800 collected throughout the state.

Memphis, Tenn., Commercial Appl.
Thursday, June 21, 1928

Negro Leader Sees Hope For Race From States

The negro must look to his state legislature and not to the national government for aid in improving his condition, the Rev. Sutton E. Griggs, negro lecturer and pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, said yesterday.

"Commenting editorially on the platform of the Republican party, one of the leading Republican papers of the nation, the Chicago Tribune, said: 'In Senator Borah's resolution in which he declared the constitution to be sacredly obligated upon all, his words meant nothing to the negroes; they were not intended to mean anything to them and will not have the slightest effect on their future lives under the American constitution in their states.'" Rev. Griggs pointed out.

"It has been my contention for years that negroes of the United States must look to their respective states and not to the national government for such legislation as may be needed to improve their conditions," the negro continued.

"It is my advice to my race throughout the nation to cease opposing the men among them who are working to make friends at home, and concentrate their attention upon their respective localities with a view to creating such sentiment that their white friends will be willing to co-operate with them in getting all that is needed for their development," Griggs added.

"Problems of the race will then cease to be a bone of contention as it was at the Republican convention. Then only will the American people turn their undivided attention to the general welfare of the nation."

Pay The Devil What Is Due And Place The Responsibility

There have been, and there are many, conjectures why the race is losing representation on the Republican National Committee. But the generally accepted reason given is that it is the well-planned program of the G. O. P. in common with the Democrats, to unload the Negro politically; that the movement is of lily-white origin, and the Republican Party is willing to throw its Negro allies over to realize the forlorn hope of white recruits in the South. The Independent does not take kindly to this view. While we are not satisfied with the treatment or recognition we are receiving from the hands of the Party, we are not willing to make the charge unless the proof is abundant.

The feeling is growing that Mr. Hoover is behind the elimination of Davis in Georgia and Howard in Mississippi. We cannot subscribe to this view and, moreover, we are not willing to believe the Party has any such suicidal program. If it is true in Mr. Howard's case it is not true in Mr. Davis' case. There is no analogy between the Davis and Howard cases. Mr. Howard is still a member, and the indictment does not any more disqualify him to serve than indictments against former white members of the committee who were indicted and never resigned. The National Committee has no right to prejudice his case, either by ignoring him or asking him to resign. If the Republicans, or Mr. Hoover's friends, did not want Mr. Howard on the National Committee because he is a Negro, they had every opportunity to displace him with a lily-white. His entire delegation from Mississippi was contested by the lily-whites and Mr. Hoover's friends were in complete control of the convention and could have seated the lily-whites as easily as they did Mr. Howard's delegation. But Mr. Hoover's friends chose to seat Mr. Howard's delegation and reelected him National Committeeman to succeed himself. This indictment is altogether another question, and should not be charged at Mr. Hoover's or his party's hands. Indictments mean neither guilt nor conviction, and we have no doubt that Mr. Howard will be able to establish his innocence when he has a day in court.

Mr. Davis exonerates both Mr. Hoover and the Party with the blame for his defeat at Kansas City. Negro treachery and corruption were alone responsible for his defeat. Georgia had eleven Negroes and five white men on her delegation, and why couldn't we have elected a Negro national committeeman, if he would? These eleven Negroes were instructed to vote for Mr. Davis, but they loved tainted money and treachery better than they did honesty and truth, and elected to betray the trust imposed in them. No lily-white, or the Party, is responsible for Mr. Davis' defeat. Not even the three tabooed white men who conducted the campaign and raised money to buy the cattle that sold their souls for a miserable mess of pottage could have traveled if the eleven Negroes had stood together like a stone wall.

Mr. Hoover is blameless, knew nothing about it and the crime is not chargeable to the Republican Party, but to Negro traitors.

It was Mr. Hoover's friends who defeated the unholy alliance which sought to steal the National Committeemanship from the Republicans of Georgia.

In Mississippi Mr. Howard is fought by lily-whites, but in Georgia Mr. Davis is fought by Negro leaders who play into the hands of corrupt Negro-haters.

We give Mr. Hoover a clean bill of health and place the responsibility where it belongs, at the hands of our own color. It was a Negro who brought the injunction Monday to enjoin the party from putting out presidential electors coached by white cowards who haven't the guts to show their faces. But there is always a tool for every job.

EVERY EVENING
WILMINGTON, DEL.

JUL 27 1928

GRATITUDE FOR THE BULL MOOSERS.

The effort of the old Bull Moose party to realign its forces for the November election is little short of ridiculous. Thirteen Moosers attended their recent convention and seriously adopted a platform, heard the keynote or slogan of the campaign and expressed the determination to gird on their armor for the battle of ballots. Not even the wildest flight of the imagination can give the smallest hope of their being able to do more than they are trying to do at their convention—just kick. Without the indomitable leadership of Roosevelt they can have no effect whatever on the result in November, but if their protests against buying the Negro votes in the South avail they shall not have convened in vain.

The same need for the Bull Moose being recalled into existence today exists as strongly as it did when Roosevelt blew the breath of protest into its lungs against the conduct of the G. O. P. in the South—controlling the nomination of the national ticket, and yet unable to show enough of a following to perfect an organization—just simple boss political trickery.

But the country is grateful to the Bull Moose, or it should be. It prevented the inept William Howard Taft from occupying the Presidential post during the World War without endangering the country with a third term for Roosevelt at that critical time when clear heads were needed to direct America's part in the World War. The Bull Moose gave us President Woodrow Wilson, concededly the ablest of world executives to meet war time emergencies, and who by his "notes" that brought him only jibes from partisan foes, did more to bring the war to a conclusion with victory for the Allied arms and the United States than perhaps any other single element that entered into the conflict. He disorganized the enemies' forces behind the fighting lines that eventuated in the revolt of the men and women of Central Europe, and sent the kaiser scurrying to Holland and dashed Berlin's hopes for conquest to the ground.

So the Bull Moosers may have been shot to pieces by the attacks of machine G. O. P. political bosses, but they surely served the country better than they knew or could have anticipated wh... they split the party entrenched in power with the result of paving the way for Wilson and his momentous service to the country and all civilization.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

Daytona Beach, Fla., News-Journal
Thursday, July 5, 1928

Washington Sidelights

HOUSTON—Down here in the land of the Jim Crow car, one is apt to forget that the vote of the negro in those states where the vote is not denied him is likely to determine the result of this year's presidential election.

The Republicans, from year to year, have never lost sight of that fact, and have seen to it that the lowly black brethren always received certain nourishing crumbs from the groaning board of patronage.

The Democrats don't overlook the fact, either. But whereas the Northern Democracy is sometimes inclined to take the Republican attitude, as shown in Tammany's control of the Harlem black belt, the Southern Democracy would rather lose with only white votes than win with colored help.

The question is hardly ever discussed in the open, except occasionally by a negro political leader who seeks to remind the other politicians of the political importance of his race. There seems to be a sort of gentleman's agreement, the effect of which is that Democrats don't mention the somewhat scandalous method by which patronage and convention delegates are manipulated in the South by the party in power and the Republicans in turn refrain from making nasty remarks about the disenfranchisement of the negro wherever necessary below the Mason-Dixon line.

But when Perry Howard of Mississippi boasted that he represented a group which held the balance of power in about ten states, he wasn't talking much bigger than the facts permitted. The group of delegates of whom Howard is representative not only nearly always controls the Republican nomination but the racial group of which he is a member is also credited, and with apparently good reason, with turning tides in November.

There are large blocks of negro votes in New York, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland and other states. Except in New York, they generally vote Republican, recalling the Civil war and believing that the G. O. P. is a little more friendly toward them than the Democrats.

Politicians in some of the larger cities consider their negro votes their most important nest-eggs. Big Bill Thompson, for instance, in Chicago. The negroes in a given community nearly always vote as a group. One is advised, however, that if Lowden had been nominated this year, the Republicans would have lost the votes of some 12,000 Pullman porters who work for him and as many more votes as the porters could have influenced.

While the negroes are generally delivered by their political leaders and, as remarked, are overwhelmingly Republican, one or two factors are at work which may cause some sort of a split among them this year. They have nothing against Smith or Tammany Hall, which is at least one Democratic machine that has played with them. On the other hand, they may prove fully appreciative of Hoover's order abolishing race segregation in the census bureau at Washington. One recalls Senator Cole Blease's absurd assurance some time back that both Hoover and Smith planned to put a negro in the cabinet if elected.

But most political observers have put more stress on what the whites in the border states are going to do, now that the racial issue has been raised more or less prominently by that anti-segregation order and the likelihood that congress will have a negro Republican member from Chicago next session. Although some Republicans have expressed hope of breaking into Harlem and others have said that the Hoover candidacy would appeal to other Northern negroes, it is answered that nobody is going to rob Smith of New York and that the other Northern negroes always vote Republican anyway.

The Smith people have contended that Hoover's anti-segregation order assured them the electoral vote of the more or less doubtful border states of Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma, where prejudice against negroes was greater than prejudice against wets and Tammany candidates.

Meanwhile, one observes with mild interest but no surprise that although there was a considerable group of black and tan delegates tucked discreetly far in the rear of the Kansas City convention floor those negroes in sight here serve in a distinctly menial capacity.

Dr. Kelley Miller Tells Of The Negro At Kansas City

(By Kelley Miller.)

Washington, D. C., June 25.—There were fifty Negro delegates and ten alternates at the recent Republican Convention, a goodly proportion came from Northern districts. Their interests were mainly segregated and racial. The dominant issues of prohibition and farm relief did not arouse their emotions, nor stir their enthusiasm. After the manner of the Southern plan, the Negro representatives were shut into themselves by domiciliary segregation. The great Methodist Episcopal Conference had met in the same city several weeks previous. The colored contingency was similarly disposed of. Neither politics nor religion runs as deep as the color line. The Negro is learning painfully the purpose of the Nordic to set a social separatrix which shall operate as effectively as the decimal point in arithmetic. The basic question is, what power has he to alter or affect that purpose? It operates with baleful effectiveness alike in education, religion, politics and social procedure. All of our bombardment does not seem to budge it.

SAYS NEGRO HOPPED THE BAND WAGON.

DR. KELLEY MILLER

The Negro delegates did not seem to figure in any effective way in the general procedure of the convention. In the main, they were lined up on the winning side long in advance. The Afro-American has an instinct for picking the winner and getting on the band wagon. The Negro contingent held its own racial caucus. It constituted only five per cent of the enrollment of the convention. The chief concern of the colored political leaders was to secure the insertion of a plank, insisting upon the enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. The colored troops fought nobly, but to no avail. They were not even able to have these amendments bracketed with the Eighteenth whose enforcement was especially stressed as a party policy. But true to the verbal traditions of the party some slight reference must needs be made to the Negro and his claims. Cerubus must have his sop. The insertion of the splinter of a plank on lynching was only a complimentary gesture. It serves to remind the race that the Grand Old Party has not altogether forgotten the black ally who was formerly held in such high regard and esteem. The insertion will not be without indirect benefit. It serves to keep afresh in the mind of the American people the enormity of the evil of lynching. I do not believe that a single Negro will be deceived thereby. It will certainly not be stressed as a campaign issue.

A colored delegate was assigned to make one of the four or five minute addresses seconding the nomination of Secretary Hoover. This he did creditably. I believe that this is the only instance where a Negro functioned conspicuously in the proceedings. The race undoubtedly impressed less influence upon the Kansas City Convention than upon any like session since enfranchisement. We can hardly believe that in 1884, Hon. John R. Lynch was chosen temporary chairman. As late as 1912, the late Henry Lincoln Johnson held the fate of the convention in the hollow of his hand. It was the emphatic and unswerving attitude of this bold black leader that determined the issue between Roosevelt and Taft, which put the Grand Old Party out of luck for the ensuing eight years. What a swift descent from the political heights of those days to low level of this day!

But there is a darker semblance yet. The Negro was all but eliminated as a dominant force in any of the states. Walter Cohen, the little pelican war horse was dethroned in favor of white leadership. He was personally allowed to retain his seat as a delegate merely to save the regnant party from the odium of throwing out a leading colored man without courtesy or consideration. Ber Davis lost the committeemanship in Georgia. Perry Howard alone survives, but even his temporary success has no assurance of permanency. The slightest shift in the exigencies of the situation would have relegated him to the company of his forlorn defeated brethren. Throughout the South the lily whites are in the ascendency. In Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Texas, where the voice of the Negro delegates used to be heard at National conventions, alas, they are heard no more. The Negro politician has given up the ghost, without expectation, if not without hope of resurrection.

The race owes President Harding an unrecognized political debt of gratitude. All had once before been lost to the Negro. When Judson Lyon was thrown off the national committee by Lincoln Johnson, there was not a in that august body. Lincoln Johnson fought his way to chieftanship. But when President Harding seized the reins of power, he decided to turn over to Negro control the states of Mississippi and Louisiana. The national committeeship in that state belonged to Cohen who by abnegation gave it to the very white man who has brought about his unhorsing. Such is political gratitude. But the outstanding fact remains, the Negro has been practically eliminated from trusteeship of the Grand Old Party. He is now holding on only by a tenuous thread which the scissors of political fate are ready to clip.

There is little likelihood that this power will be restored. The great Republican Party is a practical body and, excepting the Roman Catholic Church, is the most efficient organization on earth. It has no sentiment that will stand in the way of efficiency. It desires to build up a functioning Republican Party in every state of the union. Nowhere has this yet been accomplished under Negro leadership, certainly not since the days of Wright Cuney of Texas. The party in such states as North Carolina, Virginia, Florida and Texas thrives much more vigorously under white sponsorship. Negro leaders for the most part seem satisfied to traffic in delegates rather than build up strong local organizations which will induce every Republican to vote in local as well as national elections, even under restrictions by revised constitution. Theodore Roosevelt in his Progressive campaign, adopted the policy of placing in power in the Southern states the men who could best command the situation, regardless of race. But he found that they were mostly white men of local standing, courage and influence and wealth. It is needless for the would be Negro leader to hark back to the sentimentality of a by gone age. In poltics as elsewhere, it is a case of the survival of the fittest.

The loss in the South is partially offset by gains in the North. The vital difference is that the Northern delegate must needs speak with a dictated voice. He is in the hopeless minority in every state and must follow the fortune of party bosses. There is little or no latitude for racial independence.

And so, now we face the coming campaign with eyes wide open. There must be devised an entirely new set of reasons and arguments for racial support of Hoover and the Grand Old Party. Appeal to Lincoln and Sumner and Grant will not sway Negro votes as it did aforetime. Extravagant prophecy of what the new administration is going to do for the Negro has been done to death in previous campaigns with sad disillusionment. Only the simple will bite at that bate. Denunciation of the Democrats and dread of Southern fire eaters, if Smith succeeds, will no longer frighten the simple. The Southern fire eaters eat as much fire under Republican as under Democratic authority.

There are sufficient sound reasons and good sense why the Negro should, in this campaign, prefer the Republican to the Democratic party, why Hoover should be chosen rather than Smith. But the Negro spellbinder must learn a new speech. The one which he has used for the past forty years has lost its spell and potency.

CHAS. MITCHELL IS OUSTED FROM W. VA. COMMITTEE

Rumor Is He Will Be At National Headquarters, Washington

(Special to The Age)

Charleston, West Va.—The Republican State Committee met at Clarksburg on July 7, and, among other acts done, ousted Charles E. Mitchell from its personnel. Capt. Gurnee Fergusson, colored overseas veteran, realtor and owner-manager of the modern hotel here which bears his name, was elected to succeed Mitchell.

Mr. Mitchell, who is business manager of West Virgina Collegiate Institute, Charleston bank president, supreme auditor of the "alphabetical" Knights of Pythias, it is said will be compensated by assignment to a managerial post with the Republican National Committee in prosecution of the Hoover campaign among Negro voters. The entire State Republican organization, backed by the National Committeeman and Committeewoman, will press for Mr. Mitchell's assigment at Chairman Work's Washington headquarters, it is said.

A Balance of Power.

West Virginia is classed as somewhat doubtful. Its Negro vote is formidable, reliable, constitutes a real balance of power; and a demand for representation in campaign management cannot be ignored, as it is thus far the sole voting constituency to demand such representation.

Mr. Mitchell's assignment to national headquarters will not stir any enthusiasm outside of his own State nevertheless. He was eastern manager at New York under direction of Organizer, the late William C. Matthews in the Coolidge campaign of 1924, and the brethren and sisters and Negro newspapers are still squaking over Mitchell's peculiar "economy complex." He served himself "without pay" and seemed unable to appreciate that the workers in his jurisdiction were not "volunters' with just per diem expense account.

Political - 1928

Republican.

Party Affiliation

Gainesville, Ga., News
Wednesday, July 18, 1928

WHITE SUPREMACY

In the pending national campaign the question of white supremacy is paramount and supercedes every controversial issue.

It strikes at the very hearthstone of every white man's home in the south.

In Georgia the problem is peculiarly acute. Within the past few days, in the disgraceful disclosures as to juggling federal patronage by a negro referee, this burning question, on which hinges the hope of the south, as it hinged in the dark days of reconstruction, has been accentuated.

In Mississippi, where a negro patronage referee has, as alleged, auctioned postmasterships and other federal jobs, the conditions are so "astonishing" as expressed by members of the senate investigating committee, that a grand jury, rather than a congressional group, has undertaken the investigations. Thus it is all over the South.

And what is to be expected should Secretary Hoover be elected to the presidency?

He is entitled to his racial ideas. It is not charged that he is influenced in them by political expediency. They were made plain during the world war, when, as food administrator, he brought the blacks and whites together, in his numerous division headquarters and office rooms in Washington—men and women of every shade and color—to work side by side, feed from the same tables, and use the same rest rooms.

It was only after the segregation order of President Wilson that such a condition was remedied. That order remained in effect in all governmental departments, and with entire satisfaction, the white and black employees being properly separated, until a few months ago, when upon the initiative of negro politicians of Boston, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, Secretary Hoover abrogated the order as to the department of commerce, and all its branches, and today the same conditions exist as prior to the Wilson segregation order ten years ago. Today the white and black employees, men and women, in all branches of that department, work side by side, use the same rest rooms, and in no respect is there any racial segregation.

There is no purpose to reflect upon the character or the statesmanship or the business ability of the republican candidate for president. He has never lived in the South. He has visited it only a few times. He has only stopped in Georgia for a brief period, and in waiting for his schedule in Savannah the fact that he received as his guest on his private car the negro national committeewoman, may have had more political than racial significance. At that time his candidacy for the nomination was brewing.

He lived the most of his adult life in London and in other European capitals. There social and racial conditions are different.

While the racial question is inbred, it is sacred, it is crucial.

The negro is equal to the white before the law, and the administration of the law in this, and in other states in the "old black belt" gives to him freely and correctly that equality.

He is encouraged to become useful in citizenship, in the trades, in industry, in agriculture.

He is educated through the public school system on a parity with the whites, and the expenses are paid by taxation which accrues largely from the whites.

Every upstanding citizen believes in justice, full and complete, to the negro.

But that does not mean a relinquishment of white supremacy, for which the best blood of the south was shed to maintain, and which the upstanding thought of Americans, in every state, recognizes to be right.

It does not mean social equality, or negro political domination, as the latter is today in the juggling of federal jobs in Georgia and other states. Will this negro political domination not expand and be made more intolerable if Secretary Hoover becomes the nation's executive?

Former Governor Brough, of Arkansas, speaking before the Press association of his state made this plain when he said the real issue in this national campaign is "Anglo-Saxon supremacy."

Elsewhere in The Constitution today is a communication from Wright Willingham, prominent attorney of Rome, Ga., in which he makes the issue plain.

A negro of Rome is a dispenser of federal patronage, and with Bre'r Davis, of Georgia-at-large, and Bre'r Howard, of Mississippi-at-large, and others, hold the republican throttle in the south.

It is time to think seriously of this question. Mr. Hoover is entitled to his views. Democrats, malcontents and insurrectionists who want to join him, and the negro republican dictators in the south, may find comfort in such company. But white supremacy is the hope of the south. For it we fight.—Atlanta Constitution.

Clarkston, Ga., Dispatch
Thursday, July 19, 1928

CALLING HIS HAND

And the Negro is exactly right in this. If he is good enough to serve as delegate in the nomination of Mr. Hoover, he is certainly good enough to go the ticket to be voted for as an elector by the white Republicans of Georgia and take Georgia's vote to the electoral college. Just what is the difference in the two propositions? —Macon Telegraph.

Despite that the Grand Old Telegraph has been promptly and flatly called on the matter of negro republican electors and negro everything else except Al Smith in Georgia as a prospect for the November ticket, the Telegraph still persists in offering Georgians Tammany liquor leaders and the Romanist promise to head the government of this republic. We are not for the open saloon. We are not for surrendering the individual civil and religious freedom given us by our forefathers. We do not want the rule of a foreign power in America — and we do not want a Roman Catholic president. We know we do not want an ambassador of the pope here representing his as a temporal power dictating in both religious and temporal affairs everything our government does. We know we do not want that agency in this country to close our public schools so that young Americans may not have the opportunity to think and act except as Romanism dictates.

We know further that we are not wrong in this wish. We know still further that Romanist domination is boldly offered in Al Smith and John J. Raskob — and we have four years of both Romanism and the advocacy of the saloon in Raskob, whether Al Smith wins or loses. We already have that. We oppose that as the worst thing that has been offered the free American voter in this generation regardless of party affiliation or political program. We know these things for we pinch ourselves as we write these words to see if it hurts—to know that we are in a manner still alive and rational.

On the question of negro domination of Georgia, the Al Smith supporters are seeking to smelch the revolt. They know that the negro has in time past been in the way. They tell us he is still in the way. Well, it isn't so any more. The following is so correct as to detail that we offer it to our readers for what it is worth. We took it from an open letter in the Telegraph today, signed by Henry C. Davis of Macon — not a negro, but an upstanding white man who tires, as we do, of seeing pure falsehood thrust under the noses of decent Georgians in an effort to whip them into line and hold them for Al Smith.

"I am in position to state positively that there are not and there will not be any negroes on the Republican electorial ticket in Georgia. On the other hand it will be composed of white men, whom even you respect. Further, the name of the presidential and vice-presidential candidates have always appeared at the head of the list of electors, and the names of Hoover and Curtis will so appear on the ballot which will be used in the November election.

"You refer to Ben Davis as the Negro national committeeman from Georgia. This statement is misleading for the reason that Georgia has no Republican committeeman or committeewoman. The delegation to Kansas City was unable to make a selection, the convention refused to make one and referred the matter to the executive committee of the national republican committee. The executive committee later referred the matter to a sub committee of the national committee. A short time ago this sub committee refused to recognize either of the negroes who were contestants for the place. The official list of national committeemen from the states, issued by Dr. Work carries blanks opposite the state of Georgia for national committeemen and committeewomen.

In view of the fact that Georgia has no national committeeman, to whom do you refer as the "negro republicans to represent Mr. Hoover in Georgia?"

"Do you not think that the fact that Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who is one of Mr. Hoover's chief lieutenants, took personal charge of the Mississippi investigation is evidence of Hoover's desire to "clean up" the patronage situation in the South?"

276 NEGROES HOLD OFFICE IN DEMOCRATIC NEW YORK.

Have you been worried about "following the leadership of Ben Davis?"

Ben is the negro who has been Republican national committeeman for Georgia. He has been discredited by his own party, and has lost his job.

The Al Smith leaders have been making a great "to do" about this one, lone negro party official in Georgia. You will hear a lot about Ben Davis before the election. Efforts will be made to frighten you into voting for Al Smith with the old bugaboo of "negro domination," and this discredited negro, Ben Davis, will be cited as proof that the Republicans will force the negro on Georgia.

But here's something they will not tell you:

In New York City, controled by the Tammany Democrats, there are 276 negroes holding political or civil service positions, with salaries in each instance of more than $1,800 per year!

The Tammany wing of the Democratic partyparty is not only the dominant Catholic party, the dominant party of the alien influences, but is rapidly becoming the dominant negro party!

William Hard, correspondent of the Consolidated Press Association, in a special dispatch from Washington to the Atlanta Journal, says:

"Tammany Negro's Friend."

"The headquarters of favorable and equal treatment for the negro politically by Democrats in the north has been for a long time Tammany Hall. It is claimed by Tammany leaders that two hundred and seventy-six negroes now hold New York city political or civil service positions with salaries in each instance of more than eighteen hundred dollars a year. It is indeed claimed by them that negroes hold more really good and lucrative positions under the New York city government alone than under the whole federal government throughout the United States.

"Ferdinand Q. Morton, a member of the New York city civil service commission and said to be the highest salaried negro office holder in the country, with those other New York city officials of his race visited Washington last week on a tour through this country westward for the organization of "Al Smith-Joe Robinson negro clubs," in all important centers of negro voting activity.

"Even in Arkansas, a state of the 'solid south,' the chairman of the state Democratic committee, J. S. Utley, has now under consideration a project for 'Smith and Robinson clubs' among Arkansas negro voters.

"Many negroes are highly dissatisfied with Republican rule. They claim that the number of negroes occupying honorable and valuable positions under the federal government has been steadily declining. They note that the three negroes who recently have been members of the Republican national committee are all in sad trouble. Walter Cohen, of Louisiana, and Ben Davis, of Georgia, have been dropped from the committee. Perry Howard, of Misaissippi—the third and only surviving member of the committee—is being severely pursued by judicial agents of the Republican federal government for alleged injudicious transactions in relation to federal offices in Mississippi."

Montezuma, Ga., Georgian
Thursday, July 19, 1928

WHITE SUPREMACY.

In the pending national campaign the question of white supremacy is paramount, and supercedes every controversial issue.

It strikes at the very hearthstone of every white man's home in the south.

In Georgia the problem is peculiarly acute. Within the past few days, in the disgraceful disclosures as to juggling federal patronage by a negro referee, this burning question, on which hinges the hope of the south, as it hinged in the dark days of reconsruction, has been accentuated.

In Mississippi, where a negro patronage referee has, as alleged, auctioned postmasterships and other federal jobs, the conditions are so "astonishing," as expressed by members of the senate investigating committee, that a grand jury, rather than a congressional group, has undertaken the investigations. Thus it is all over the south.

And what is to be expected should Secretary Hoover be elected to the presidency?

He is entitled to his racial ideas. It is not charged that he is influenced in them by political expediency. They were made plain during the world war, when, as food administrator, he brought the blacks and whites together, in his numerous division headquarters and office rooms in Washington—men and women of every shade and color—to work side by side, feed from the same tables, and use the same rest rooms.

It was only after the segregation order of President Wilson that such a condition was remedied. That order remained in effect, in all governmental departments, and with entire satisfaction, the white and black employees being properly separated, until a few months ago when upon the initiative of negro politicians of Boston, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, Secretary Hoover abrogated the order as to the department of commerce, and all its branches, and today the same conditions exist as prior to the Wilson segregation order ten years ago. Today the white and black employees, men and women, in all branches of that department, work side by side, use the same rest rooms, and in no respect is there any racial segregation.

There is no purpose to reflect upon the character, or the statesmanship or the business ability of the republican candidate for president. He has never lived in the south. He has only stopped in Georgia for a brief period, and in waiting for his schedule in Savannah the fact that he received as his guest on his private car the negro national committeewoman may have had more political than racial significance. At that time his candidacy for the nomination was brewing.

He lived the most of his adult life in London and in other European capitals. There social and racial conditions are different.

But that does not alter, nor extenuate the situation in this country.

While the racial question is inbred, it is sacred, it is crucial.

The negro is equal to the white before the law, and the administration of the law, in his, and in other states in the "old black belt" gives to him freely and correctly that equality.

He is encouraged to become useful in citizenship, in the trades, in industry, in agriculure.

He is educated through the public school system on a parity with the whites, and the expenses are paid by taxation which accrues largely from the whites.

Every upstanding citizen believes in justice, full and complete, to the negro.

But that does not mean a reliquishment of white supremacy, for which theb est blood of the south was shed to maintain, and which the upstanding thought of Americans, in every state, recognizes to be right.

It does not mean social equality, or negro political domination, as the latter is today in the juggling of federa jobs in Georgia and other states. Wil this negro political domination not expand and be made more intolerable i Secretary Hoover becomes the nation's executive?

Former Governor Brough, of Arkansas, speaking before the Press association of this state made this plain wher he said the real issue in this nationa campaign is "Anglo-Saxon supremacy.'

Elsewhere in The Constitution today is a communication from Wright Willingham, prominent attorney of Rome Ga., in which he mades the issue plain

A negro of Rome is a dispenser of federal patronage, and with Bre'r Davis of Georgia-at-large, and Bre'r Howard of Mississippi-at-large, and others, hold the republican throttle in the south.

It is time to think seriously of this question. Mr. Hoover is entitled to his views. Domocratic malcontents and insurrectionists who want to join him, and the negro republican dictators in the south, may find comfort in such company, but white supremacy is the hope of the south. For it we fight!

The Constitution:

Political-1928

Republican.

Party Affiliation.

TAMPA, FLA.
Times
JUL 21 1928

PUBLIC PULSE

Vote for Hoover; if Republican.

Tampa, Fla., July 18, 1928.

To the Editor of The Times: I am a Protestant, a southern man to the manor born, a Mason, and am old enough to have known and felt the domination of negro, low down scalawag and vicious republican rule in the south, and I do not care to have my children or my neighbors' children pass through such trying times as there will be if Hoover with his negro loving proclivities happens to be elected, for it has not been so long in the past that when you had business with the internal revenue collector of the state of Florida, the office being in Jacksonville, you had to approach the negro holder of that office, Joe Lee, with your hat off and call him MR., and with Hoover's tendency toward social equality between the negroes and whites in his office, what will it be in the south, since the tendency of the republican party largely in the north is to cram the negro down the throats of southern whites, as witness the minute you cross the Mason and Dixon line the negro rides your Pullmans and sits by you in the movies and theaters.

I do not say it in a bragging manner, but I have a line of four ancestors who fought in the Revolutionary war to free this country from English mis-rule and domination, and I have no patience with any southern man or woman, be they Mason, preacher, bishop or what not, who has voted in the democratic primary and now say they will vote for Hoover, for they are what was called by both northern and southern people renegades or deserters.

If any well thinking democrat will study who the ones are that are making most of the trouble and creating dissensions in the democratic party they will discover those persons are mostly made up of persons who were and are republicans at heart, and now try to shine under the guise of prohibitionists, yet like their "home brew," for the strongest prohibitionist of today is the liquor runner and bootlegger. That is a well known fact which cannot be successfully denied.

I am not a drinking man. I believe in the Bible from "cover to cover." That good man, St. Paul, whom all preachers love to quote, says that a little wine is good for the stomach, so why not follow all the teachings of this Good Book.

Every true Christian who adheres to the teachings of the Bible and endeavors to uphold the constitution of the state and United States, cannot conscientiously accept a part and disregard the other, for if they do they also are nullifiers.

One bishop says, vote according to your conscience, referring as to whether one being a democrat, should vote for Al Smith or Hoover. If their consciences are so elastic that in June they can be a democrat and in November a republican then they are adherents to no party. Again I quote the Bible: "Because you are neither hot or cold I will spew thee out of my mouth and have no more of thee." So stay with the republican party if you vote for Hoover in November, for then we democrats will know where to place you two years hence. D. B. GIVENS.

* * *

Democrat
Port Clinton - O
July 20

Negro Republicans led by many white Republican leaders have organized Smith clubs and claim they will support the Democratic nominee. Republican leaders claim that the negroes have organized in order to touch the pursestrings of the g. o, p. organization. They can make the touch.

THIS CLIPPING FROM THE
NEW YORK TIMES
JUL 25 1928

WOMEN PLAN FIGHT TO ELECT HOOVER

Republican Committee Members From East and South Confer in Washington.

WILL MOBILIZE THEIR SEX

But Complain of Chairman Work's Omission to Put Them on Advisory Group.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Complaint over the failure of National Chairman Work to give women of the Republican National Committee representation on the advisory group that will conduct the Hoover-Curtis campaign in the East was voiced at the conference of party women held here today under the direction of Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Vice Chairman of the National Committee.

The conference was attended by Eastern and Southern committeewomen in accordance with a call issued by Mrs. Hert, in which she stated that she desired to effect an interchange of ideas with a view to perfecting plans for the organization of women in behalf of the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

At the outset of today's meeting a reference was made by committeewomen to the omission of any of their number on the Advisory Committee created by Chairman Work to take over the burdens of the campaign in the Eastern States. This was at the morning session. It was decided then to postpone further discussion of the subject until the session that was scheduled to be held after luncheon.

Apparently something happened in the interval to heal the threatened breach, for Dr. Work's action in making the Eastern advisory all-masculine was not mentioned again.

"Grave Mistake," Says Mrs. Sabin.

Nevertheless, according to statements made tonight, women members of the Republican National Committee insist that they are entitled to representation in the management of the Eastern campaign and they intend to press their case at Hoover headquarters.

"I think it is a very grave mistake not to give women representation on the Advisory Committee," said Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, National Committeewoman from New York. "If women are to share responsibility for the success of this campaign then they should also share in its direction and confidences."

It was agreed at today's conference that the women voters in the East may prove to be the controlling factor in determining the issue in the Presidential campaign, and for that reason it was felt it was incumbent upon Republican women with organizing ability to be up and doing if the Hoover-Curtis ticket was to win.

The plan of campaign to be conducted among women generally throughout the country may be patterned along the lines of the one that is to be adapted to the situation in New York by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, who proposes that the State shall be divided by Congressional districts and special attention devoted to those areas that may be classified as "doubtful."

Mrs. Sabin believes that the drift among women is toward the Republican ticket and that a drive for their votes should be made in Democratic as well as Republican strongholds.

"It was demonstrated in New York in 1920 that Governor Smith can be beaten there, and I believe he can be beaten again," she said. "I am of opinion that Mr. Hoover can carry the State. To do this it will be necessary to increase the number of women registrants by about 20 per cent. in every Congressional district. In New York 100 men vote where 60 votes are cast by women.

"It is our duty to see to it that women who have in the past stayed at home on election day shall this year go to the polls."

While today's conference was called primarily for the benefit of Republican Committeewomen from the Middle Atlantic and New England States, there was a scattering of representation from the South. Among those who came up from below the Mason and Dixon line was Mrs. Mary C. Booze of Mississippi, a colored woman, who has been an active Republican worker in her State for many years. In addition to Mrs. Hert, Mrs. Sabin and Mrs. Booze, other National Committeewomen in attendance were:

Mrs. W. E. Kennon of North Carolina, Mrs. Charles Warner of Delaware, Mrs. Guy P. Gannett of Maine, Mrs. W. Bladen Lowndes of Maryland, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer of Massachusetts, Mrs. Nellie D. Parker of New Hampshire, Mrs. W. Reginald Baker of New Jersey, Mrs. Charles F. Stauffer as proxy for Mrs. Worthington Scranton of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth E. Sharpe as proxy for Mrs. Charles J. Steedman of Rhode Island, Mrs. Margaret M. Tucker as proxy for Mrs. George Orvis of Vermont, Mrs. Ellia A. Yost of West Virginia, Mrs. Virginia W. Speel of the District of Columbia and Miss Katherine Byrne of Connecticut.

Deny Mrs. Booze Was Barred.

A report that Mrs. Booze was barred from the luncheon given by Mrs. Hert was denied by officers of the National Committee. They explained that after the adjournment for luncheon Mrs. Booze left the Hotel Willard, where the conference was held, to lunch with Washington friends. She returned to attend the afternoon session. It was added that Mrs. Booze was photographed with her white co-workers and took part in the discussions.

Mrs. Hert presided at the two sessions of today's conference. The keynote of her speech was that women would this year play a greater part in Republican politics than ever before. Chairman Work, Secretary Fort and General Counsel Burke of the National Committee made short talks.

Dr. Work stressed the value of women in the conduct of the campaign and he asserted that largely because of Mr. Hoover's popularity more women would go to the polls this year than in any election since the adoption of the equal suffrage amendment.

There seemed to be general agreement among the women that the presidency would be won and lost in the East this year and that Republican women could turn the scales to Hoover by effective organization.

"The Democrats haven't a chance in Ohio," said Mrs. Hugh Clarke of that State. "We have a very hard gubernatorial fight on at present, but all of the primary wounds are healed so far as the national campaign is concerned. We will sweep our State with the Hoover-Curtis ticket."

"Tennessee," said Mrs. Beulah Hughes, "will be in the Republican ranks. Never has a Republican candidate been so popular in that State as Mr. Hoover."

NEW YORK
EVE. TELEGRAM

JUL 27 1928

SAYS NEGROES DISTRUST SMITH

J. W. Johnson Declares Early Enthusiasm Has Waned.

By failing to take decisive action to win the confidence of the colored people, Democratic leaders have allowed a strong enthusiasm for Governor Smith to wane, until it now seems unlikely any appreciable number of the 3,000,000 enfranchised negroes will vote for him in November.

That is the opinion of James Weldon Johnson, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who believes the situation is unfortunate for everyone and worse for the negro than it was four years ago.

"Intelligent negroes look forward to the day when no one can point to a black man and say 'there goes a Republican,'" he said, "but the faith we had in Governor Smith seems to be misplaced.

"Two months ago we felt he was the friend of all men, who would bring us political freedom, but since his nomination nothing has been done to give us that assurance.

"Furthermore, the nomination of Senator Robinson for vice president created mistrust.

"Undoubtedly Governor Smith has been advised against any stand that would further prejudice the South, already doubtful on the prohibition issue and the Catholic question.

"Consequently we feel that a wonderful opportunity for realignment of parties has been lost and we are frankly discouraged and do not know which way to turn, to the openly hostile Democratic party or the apathetic Republican party. It is my own belief that the vote will be very much as it has always been."

DOCTOR ASKS $25,000

ITEM

Sumter - S. C.

JUL 26 1928

WHITE ELECTORS FOR GEORGIA

The negro Republicans in Georgia are resenting the suggestion that they be left off the ticket in November just because a few Georgia Democrats, who might want to vote for Hoover, object to voting for negroes on the electoral ticket. And the Macon Telegraph says the negroes are right. The Telegraph explains the Georgia complication:

If the Republican organization, with Ben Davis, the negro national committeeman in Georgia, affronts Southern negroes in this way, it is going to react upon the Republicans in Northern states, and it is not probable that the Georgia negroes are going to submit to being left off the electoral ticket this year, when they have been on the electoral tickets in years past and have every right to expect like treatment this year. The negro delegates to Kansas City cast their votes for Mr. Hoover, he is their choice, they named him as their candidate and they have too strong a call upon the Northern negroes in doubtful states to be so calmly and coldly cast aside in November, simply to please some white bolters from the Democratic ranks who would not want to vote for negro electors to go and cast votes for them in the electoral college.

And the negro is exactly right in this. If he is good enough to serve as delegate in the nomination of Mr. Hoover, he is certainly good enough to go on the ticket to be voted for as an elector by the white Republicans of Georgia and take Georgia's vote to the electoral college. Just what is the difference in the two propositions?

That raises the question as to whether or not "Uncle Joe" Tolbert will give the South Carolina Democrats who want to vote for Hoover a "lily white" electoral ticket. He might make some concession to the South Carolinians who are going over to the Republican party.—Spartanburg Herald.

THIS CLIP...
RECORD
COLUMBIA, S. C.

JUL 23 1928

AS NEGROES VIEW IT.

Monroe Mason, in a letter to The Boston Transcript, a day or two ago, declared the patronage investigations now being carried on by the Republican Senate and the Republican Department of Justice are viewed by negroes North of the Mason and Dixon line as "a conspiracy to throw negro voters overboard, particularly those in the South and border States."

He says the Northern negroes—who practically hold the balance of power in more than a dozen Northern States—consider the Dixie patronage quiz as a gesture being made on behalf of the Republican party to the "lily-white" Republicans of the South in order to carry the border States for Hoover and Curtis. "High ranking Republicans of the North," says Mason, "are thus trying to eliminate the negro by blaming him for a practice that the party has long winked at."

He charges that "both parties" have been levying assessments on office holders for many decades, especially in the South, and even in the North he says there have been both voluntary and involuntary assessments levied on federal office-holders, and the smokescreen now staged by the Republican party cannot be taken in any degree by the negro Republican except as a plan to eliminate him in the South as a political asset.

To a man up a tree it looks as though the negro race was gradually seeing the light. For fifty years the negro has been exploited to a wonderful degree by the Republican party, never for any other purposes than to get his vote. Human nature being what it is, the Republican party is no greater admirer of the negro than any other political division is. But it has made the rank and file of the negro race believe that it is his sole protector.

The two administrations of Grove Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson did much to wise up the black race to the Republican trick. These Democratic administrations held no petting parties, but they recognized negro merit and where appointment to office was logical negroes stood on an equal footing with other voters. They have not forgotten this system of justice and they promptly divided and voted largely democratic in 1916 for President Wilson.

They are still a questionmark from a Republican standpoint, and they are not going over the top for the Republicans now as they used to do. Only a few days ago William (Gooseneck) McDonald, long the outstanding leader of 250,000 Republican negro voters in Texas, stepped into the Smith bandwagon, declaring he would take the stump to tell his people why they should vote for Smith.

Bloc voting has injured the cause of the black voter fully as much as it has injured the political influence of the Solid South—this bloc voting. The sooner he learns to keep 'em guessing, and the sooner as a race he turns his back on the Republican negro baiter, the more important will he become in the political landscape, North and South. There never was a better time to take the step than in 1928.

HOOVER AND THE NEGRO

To the Editor The Birmingham News:

Your remarks in today's issue anent the late Senators Walthall and Hoar is an interesting, though too-guarded, approach to the age-old question of racial superiority.

Herbert Hoover, true to the instincts of Republican duplicity (for votes), has made the issue clear and strong. He has thrown down the gauntlet to Caucasian superiority. On HIS head be the results!

The Democratic party stands, in this instance, for biologic truth. Why resort to velvety speech, or diplomatic expression?

I'm not preaching or advocating racial prejudices. I am simply stating a great fact, and I am speaking in a large racial sense.

Let us have the truth! The Negro is not the white man's equal. Whether he can ever be so remains to be seen.

If Herbert Hoover wants to set the Senegambian in official capacity beside the fair daughters of men, let us tell him he can do it only in his own home!

Narrow? Yes, it's narrow; but it's based upon the laws of external truth, for which I'm not responsible!

F. B. CULLEN.

Birmingham, July 12.

Political — 1928

Party Affiliation

Salisbury, N. C., Post
Tuesday, July 17, 1928

NEGRO CONTROL OF G. O. P. NOW LIVE QUESTION

Findings of Postoffice Probe Bring Issue to Fore.

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Perry W. Howard, negro national committeeman for Mississippi, under indictment on charges of conspiring to violate the law prohibiting sale of federal office, was suspended today as special assistant attorney general.

James W. Hubbard, deputy United States marshal for the southern district of Mississippi, indicted with Howard, also was suspended.

CHANGE VENUE

Biloxi, Miss., July 17. (AP)—Judge Edwin R. Holmes granted a change of venue today to three negro Republican leaders, in Mississippi who are charged by the federal grand jury with trafficking in federal patronage on a motion of one of their number who charged that it would be impossible for them to obtain a fair trial here. The case will be transferred to Jackson for trial here on a date yet to be set.

Sidney E. Redmon, negro attorney, addressing the court in behalf of himself, his brother, Augustus M. Redmon and Ed L. Pattan, all of Jackson, alleged that the grand jury's indictments charging "purchase and sale of public office" and the investigation now under way by the grand jury prompted by "malice and factional politics."

He charged further that testimony before the grand jury had been obtained by "threats," coercion and promised immunity."

Biloxi, Miss., July 17 (AP)—While a federal grand jury continued to receive evidence of methods employed by Mississippi Republican leaders in dispensing federal patronage today, speculation became rife as to what effect the investigation would have on sentiment which has kept a group of negroes in control of party affairs.

A bitter factional struggle has been waged within the party in the state for the past several years. Forces headed by Perry W. Howard, negro national Republican committeeman from Mississippi, bitterly opposed at every turn by the group headed by George L. Sheldon, formore governor of Nebraska and now a delta farmer and leader of the "Lily White" faction advocating white leadership. Sheldon has made several attempts to oust Howard from his acknowledged position of party leader.

The arrest of Perry W. Howard, negro special assistant attorney general and recognized Republican leader in Mississippi, on an indictment charging conspiracy to violate the law prohibiting sale of federal offices, was imminent today in Washington.

At the same time three of six others under indictment on similar charges were en route here today for arraignment before Judge Edwin R. Holmes in federal court.

Howard, with S. D. Redmon, A. M. Redmond and Ed L. Patton, negroes, arrested yesterday at Jackson, Miss., and Scott Hubbard, deputy United States marshal stationed at Biloxi, was charged specifically with conspiring and receiving $1,500 for the appointment of A. P. Russell, of Magee, as deputy marshal for the southern district. Russell served from June until October, 1927.

Hubbard, the Redmonds and Patton, the latter of whom was indicted on the seventh count, gave temporary bonds of $2,500 each at Jackson for their arraignment here today.

Howard, whose delegation at the Kansas City national convention was recognized over the "Lily White" delegation headed by George L. Sheldon, declared through counsel in Washington yesterday that he would not oppose removal to Mississippi to stand trial. His indictment was mailed to the attorney from Biloxi yesterday.

MANY COMPLAINTS

Washington, July 17. (AP)—Complaints from practically all southern states have reached the senate sub-commitee investigating charges of sale of federal patronage in that section, but no formal action will be taken upon any of them until reports which have been called for are received from the postoffice department.

When Postmaster General New has furnished the information requested, however, the sub-committee will formulate plans and probably make a sweeping investigation, including nearly all these states. Recently the committee received complaints from Alabama on the subject. Previously it had received them from the Carolinas, Florida, Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas, and had held hearings on charges from Georgia. It is refraining from making inquiry in Mississippi until after grand jury proceedings there have ended.

It was announced today that the committee at this time had reached no decision regarding further hearings.

Republican

NEW YORK TIMES

JUL 21 1928

INDICTS TWO MORE IN PATRONAGE SALES

Grand Jury Names Negro Republican and Unidentified Man in Mississippi Inquiry.

GOES TO ARRANGE TRIALS

Federal Prosecutor Leaves Biloxi to Plan Federal Court Action at Jackson in September.

BILOXI, Miss., July 20 (AP).—A Federal Grand Jury today concluded an eight-day investigation into Federal patronage affairs in Mississippi by returning two additional indictments, one of which named a man hitherto not identified with the investigation. Court officials refused to identify the man or reveal his connection with the investigation, pending his arrest.

The other indictment named Edward L. Patton, negro Republican leader of Jackson, and brought the total of charges against him to nine. The latest charge against Patton is that he solicited $900 from B. B. Breeland of Wiggins for promoting Breeland's candidacy for appointment to the postmastership at Wiggins.

Breeland, court attachés revealed, refused to pay, and the appointment went to William E. Miller, who, with Patton and J. C. Tannehill, former Deputy United States Marshal of Summerall, is under indictment in connection with his appointment. Both are charged with violating the law prohibiting the purchase or sale of public office.

Patton also was named in an indictment for conspiring with Perry W. Howard, negro National Committeeman from Mississippi and a Special United States Attorney General S. D. Redmond, A. M. Redmond, Jackson negroes, and J. Scott Hubbard, suspended Deputy United States Marshal here, to violate the public office law in bringing about the appointment of A. P. Russell as a member of the United States Marshal's force at Magee, in which payment of $1,500 was involved.

The Grand Jury's final report was presented and accepted by Judge E. R. Holmes without comment. Millard McGilchrist, Special Prosecutor for the Department of Justice, also refused to comment. He left here tonight for Jackson to perfect arrangements for the trials there of Patton, Miller and Tannehill in September. The others will be tried at the November term of court.

Alabama

LYNCHBURG

VIRGINIA

JUL 18 1928

HOW UNGRATEFUL.

Now that Perry W. Howard, negro republican national committeeman from Mississippi, has been indicted on the charge of selling federal offices, reports are being broadcast from Washington that Herbert Hoover, republican national nominee, intends to shake off the negro rule of the party in the south.

How ungrateful. Howard was one of the Hoover lieutenants in the pre-convention campaign. He was the beneficiary of $4,000 of Hoover money and when the balloting began at Kansas City, the Mississippi delegation was delivered into the Hoover camp.

Much as Hoover might want to shake off negro rule of his party in some of the southern states, it is going to be a difficult job. The negro has been the backbone of the organization for too many years to be turned out into the cold at one stroke. And besides, southern delegates to republican national conventions might not be so easily obtained in the future, and that situation is something the practical politician aren't likely to desire disturbed for the present.

Tuscaloosa, Ala. Gazette
Tuesday, July 17, 1928

In Mississippi

The indictment of Perry Howard, the negro national committeeman from Mississippi, on a charge of conspiracy to violate the law against the sale and barter of federal offices, will give Mr. New something to think about. Indeed, it will give everybody something to think about.

Mr. New, who explained that the system of dickering in federal jobs had continued under the Republican administration because the Democrats had sought contributions from officeholders, will now be under the necessity of stating why he has permitted a special statute on the subject to go unenforced in his department. The general public, which has not had an opportunity to see corruption in this field made conspicuous in court proceedings, will be wondering just how far it penetrates, just to what extent the Republican party itself is particeps criminis.

This is no new thing that is now being disclosed. The sale of Southern patronage goes far back. It has for many years been a fixed part of the scheme of things in connection with the control of Republican delegates from this section. Mark Hanna profited by it to nominate McKinley. Practically every Southern delegate at Kansas City voted for Mr. Hoover. The obvious reason why leaders of the Republican party have acquiesced in this system is that it provides the necessary votes for the domination of conventions.

"The mainspring of the evil" is not in the lust of a few negro committeemen to make some easy money, but "in the ambition of high members of every Republican administration or national committee to control a smooth-running administration machine by means of federal offices." Thus The New York World indicates the real menace and shame of the situation. It lies in the connivance of leading Republicans.

The ugly business of peddling jobs could be stopped with perfect ease if the administration wished to do so. Mr. New's statement defending himself proves this beyond any doubt. The naked political value of allowing unscrupulous wirepullers to get their rake-off in order that their services will be available when convention time comes around—this has been at the bottom of Republican willingness to let such rottenness continue.

"It is all on a strictly commercial basis," says The World.

A certain number of trusty Republican agents in the South get federal jobs—chiefly small postmasterships and clerkships—to peddle out. They dispose of them and receive what party Treasurer J. W. Martin, of Georgia, brazenly called "voluntary contributions" in return. They pay for their share of the emoluments of the system by delivering the delegates when wanted to the men in Washington who want them. It is a neat scheme, and the only loser is the public.

It will not, therefore, be enough to indict and punish the small-fry who have been immediately engaged in selling federal offices. That will simply make their successors a little more cautious in their operations. What is necessary to remove this evil is a new birth of public conscience on the part of the practical gentlemen who run Republican politics nationally. And the best way in which to bring about this renewal of decency is to give the G. O. P. its walking ticket next November.

Millen, Ga., News
Thursday, July 19, 1928

Bulloch Times.

Ben Davivs is the Atlanta negro editor who represents the Republican Party in Georgia as its national committeeman.

A senatorial committee, appointed at the last session of congress, is at this moment holding an investigation of his alleged sale of postoffices in Georgia.

Ben Davis knows Georgia pretty well, and he knows how much to expect of the possibility of carrying the state Republican in the coming national election. In his paper last week he said:

"In Georgia we want to make a better showing at the polls. We do not hope to carry the state for Mr. Hoover, over Governor Smith, because we feel that the Democrats will continue to subordinate every principle, moral or economic, for political expediency. What they want is control, and it matters not whether control comes to them through a wet or dry instruentality. What they want is every rein of the government in their hands, and whatever is expedient to bring about this much desired result is going to be adopted. They may curse Governor Smith now, as they have been doing; they may denounce his religious beliefs because he is a Catholic, as they have been doing; they may continue to say they will not support a wet candidate, but on election day you will find them all in line voting the Democratic ticket, without regard to Smith's wetness or his religion. So the Republicans neede not expect any substantial increase in their vote for Hoover. The Democratic Party is a party of politics, not of statesmanship. It is a matter with them of what trick or policy will win, not what services they can render the country. So let us rely on our own resources. Let us nominate the very best and most respectable electoral ticket. Many Democrats in the state say they will vote for Hoover, but say they do not want to vote for a negro. Well, let's give them a white electoral ticket—decent, respectable, moral and high class—and give them an opportunity to make good or belie their logic."

Every time we see a white man riding around the country with a "Hoover" placard on his windshield, and we have seen one or two of them recently, we wonder if that man has kept well enough posted to know that Ben Davis is head of the Hoover

LEDGER-DISPATCH
NORFOLK, VA.
JUL 18

MORE FEDERAL OFFICE SCANDALS

The importance of the Republican office-selling scandal in Mississippi has been emphasized by the presence of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, who hurried to Biloxi to "observe" the proceedings of the grand jury impanelled to make an investigation. Just what the very attractive and able woman holding a high position in the department expected to "observe" is not revealed, but since the trail of office-selling appointments touches the Department of Justice, it is surmised that Mrs. Willebrandt was interested in that phase of the investigation as much as in bringing the guilty to the bar of justice.

As in Georgia, a Negro Republican leader is involved, and he, with a former United States marshal, has been indicted. The grand jury is yet to hear several hundred witnesses as to other scandals, and press reports indicate the probe will reach to every important Federal office in the state. Just how much these office-holders have been "shaken down" for is not estimated, but the boys are not in business for their health, and it takes money to round up presidential delegates who will stay put as did those who gave Mr. Hoover the Solid South at Kansas City.

There have been no recent revelations of brazenness on the part of Republican leaders in Virginia in the shaking-down process, but in other Southern states there is nothing particularly new in the charges. Postmaster-General New's naive defense of the practice in charging that the Democrats had solicited funds from Federal office-holders when the party was in power is not a parallel case. So far as mere requests for contributions by either party is concerned, there is no special harm. But when Negro Republican leaders offer postmasterships and other Federal jobs to the highest bidders among white men and women, a condition exists that should serve as a warning to those Democrats who would aid in turning the South over to the Republican party.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
Thursday, July 19, 1928

Tweedle-dee and Tweedle-dum

Interested parties undertook to explain to The Telegraph yesterday that it had made a mistake in saying editorially on Tuesday that Hoover's name would not be on the ballot in November, and that if the W. C. T. U. and other threatening bolters wanted to vote for Hoover they could not do it, but would have to vote for his electors. They claim Hoover's name will be on the ballot, as have been presidential candidates in previous years.

That is all very true, but simply to vote for Hoover or to leave his name unscratched and not vote for his electors will not be a vote for Hoover. His name will be at the head of the ticket simply to identify it as the Republican ticket. If one of the bolters wants to see whether The Telegraph is correct or not, we suggest that the bolter scratch the electors and simply cast the ballot with Hoover's name unscratched.

It is claimed also that this year's ticket will not contain the names of any Negro electors, so that the white women who want to vote the Republican ticket will not this year be confronted with that dilemma. It is claimed that Negro delegates went from Georgia and selected Mr. Hoover and that this was sufficient appeasement for the Negroes of the North whose votes were desired, and that as Mr. Hoover's selection has been made by the Negroes of Georgia they will not be allowed to participate further in the honors, but will have to content themselves with going to the polls in November and voting the Republican ticket as the Republicans have decided to have them do, and not put them on any ballots, to be voted for as electors.

Mr. Hoover has made a gesture that rather contradicts what the Georgia Republicans claim they intend to do in this matter, however, as he has put himself squarely on record as wanting the Negro vote and will go any length to get it. This was demonstrated recently when a Western Negro politician went to his office in Washington and demanded that he abolish the segregation rule then in practice and bring about the intermingling of Negroes and whites in Hoover's department, having them occupy desks alongside one another and forcing them to use the same lavoratories, etc. Based upon this cheerful acquiescence on the part of Mr. Hoover, there is no good reason to believe he is going to have Georgia Negroes offended and through them the Northern Negroes by simply having them go as delegates to Kansas City to nominate him and then have them sit down and say they are not equally capable and acceptable as electors to cast the vote of Georgia Republicans in the electoral college.

If the Republican organization, with Ben Davis the Negro national committeeman in Georgia, affronts Southern Negroes in this way, it is going to react upon the Republicans in Northern states, and it is not probable that the Georgia Negroes are going to submit to being left off the electoral ticket this year, when they have been on the electoral tickets in years past, and have every right to expect like treatment this year. The Negro delegates to Kansas City cast their Votes for Mr. Hoover, he is their choice, they named him as their candidate, and they have too strong a call upon the Northern Negroes in doubtful states to be so calmly and coldly cast aside in November, simply to please some white bolters from the Democratic ranks who would not want to vote for Negro electors to go and cast votes for them in the electoral college.

And the Negro is exactly right in this. If he is good enough to serve as delegate in the nomination of Mr. Hoover, he is certainly good enough to go on the ticket to be voted for as an elector by the white Republicans of Georgia and take Georgia's vote to the electoral college. Just what is the difference in the two propositions?

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Cordele, Ga., Dispatch
Monday, July 9, 1928

SPEAKING OF THE NEGRO

Al Smith supporters in Georgia are taking up much of their time trying to convince Georgians who are opposed to the Tammany ticket that Hoover is imposing the negro in the commerce department upon white employees—that he looks to Ben Davis in Georgia for advice on the matter of federal appointees. That slush is being used to drive the democrats back into the camp of Tammany and the Romanists.

And at the same time these Georgia newspaper operators who are running the Smith campaign forget to tell their readers anything about the Tammany negro program. Speaking of the negro, frankly, we would prefer the Hoover program—and it is bad enough—to what we would have to swallow if we accepted the Tammany ticket with Al Smith at the head of it. We think it is bad policy to agitate against the negro in Georgia where most of the colored population is trying to deserve the peaceful place it now holds in the pursuit of a livelihood and preparation for usefulness. There is no negro problem in Georgia as compared with that now existing in the north and east.

And speaking of negro coddlers, Georgians ought to know what Tammany does in that respect. First Tammany seeks to make Roman Catholics of all the negroes coming into Greater New York. Next it seeks to enroll all of them as voters. To encourage the negro to vote the Tammany ticket Tammany leaders hold the public schools open to the negroes and in any class where the little white child goes, he is the classmate of a pickaninny. His progress in school is measured by what the pickaninny can do. In all the public restaurants and eating places the negro goes and comes as the whites. A southerner who has had the experience knows that it is more than likely that before he gets his meal and gets away that a negro is likely to come in and occupy a seat at the same table for the same meal. We have seen that often in New York. In all the street cars, subways, public places—everywhere— the negro comes and goes like the white person. And at that we have seen wops everywhere that in personal appearance and cleanliness ought to give the negro some concern when the question of equality is considered.

The negroes are housed not in segregated districts, but throughout the great metropolis and often there is serious trouble when some real estate agent who wants to get hold of certain property goes out and lodges negroes adjacent in order to drive away the paying white tenants next door. Occasionally there is an interracial marriage, or a negro male found in the company with a white woman and trouble of a most serious kind follows. We were treated recently to the divorce suit of Kip Rhinelander, an old line New Yorker who had married a negress and was refused legal separation. The papers were full of this case at the time.

All that stuff results from the political coddling of the negro by the Tammany bosses. The general attitude is always to side with the negro and leave the white person to move out or find room somewhere in a more congenial climate. The negro is always right because his vote is needed in the election contests.

Those of the old timers in the south—in Georgia, especially—do not have to be told what trouble this makes. Political coddling of the negroes by Tammany leaders is far the worst thing in this country. Georgia has no troubles as compared with it. Hoover's handling of the negro is a gentleman's conduct as compared with what the New York so-called democrats do to get and hold the negro as a voter. And a Georgian who knows Tammany's record in that direction will tell you quickly that the republican attitude towards the negro as a voter is but a trifle as compared with the Tammany record.

Republican.

We have not the slightest doubt but that Al Smith's election would force upon the whites an endless, unbearable intermingling of negroes with all white employees of the government in Washington. It does as much now in New York — and Al Smith and Tammany have control of the government in New York state—have had control of it long enough to have cleaned out with anything like negro political favoritism if they had any mind in that direction.

The Georgian who objects to Hoover because Hoover gives the negro standing room in republican politics, should weigh carefully the Tammany attitude first. In New York it is negro equality with a dark, perspiry odor to it. In the notoriously famous Tammany Society the negro's democratic political membership counts for more than that of the white, because on a straight issue the negro always wins.

In Georgia he has to be able to read and write—and face a battery of sawed-off shot guns on a forced issue at the ballot box. And unless he is a worth while negro deserving the commendation and approval of the white man, he doesn't travel far in politics against the white man's will. The democratic party has at its head a negro coddling Tammany political organization now in whose ranks anybody is good enough to vote—and be counted many times.

Watch your step, Georgian. Take time to know the leadership of the democrats before deciding against the republicans because of the negro. You may get out of the frying pan into the fire.

Atlanta, Ga., Constitution
Monday, August 13, 1928

STUDIED INSULT TO SOUTH.

Southern voters, white and colored—and particularly southern white women—are being flooded with Hoover propaganda, direct and indirect; and principally indirect, as covert and subtle under-cover methods appear to be the chief stock and trade of all of the republican propagandists.

This propaganda, coming from different sources, some of it signed, and much of it anonymous, is differentiated into three distinctive classes. One is in the effort to arouse the negroes, and incite them not only to vote in November, if qualified to do so, but to become racially embittered with the southern white people, who have been their supporting friends through all the history of this country. This class of propaganda deliberately sets Hoover up as their ally, and makes his anti-segregation order the "witness on the stand" to testify to his approval of racial equality.

Another class of propaganda, coming from another and different Hoover campaign agency, is assigned to disintegrate, as far as possible, the democratic party through misguided bishops and other preachers, and women, who have been heretofore democrats, this method of scuttling the ship from the inside being based on the false and impossible premises of "anti-Smith democrats," and built around a so-called "moral issue." This class, with subtle cunningness, does not mention Hoover, as a rule, but with full knowledge that any breaking down of the vote for the democratic nominee can only mean the automatic building up of the vote for the republican nominee.

The third class is assigned to arouse religious prejudice, openly and above board, by the capitalization of ignorance, intolerance and bigotry.

These insidious attempts to throw some of the southern states into the Hoover column are the products of republican desperation, realizing as do the national leaders of that party that unless this is done Smith and Robinson will very probably sweep the country through democratic cohesiveness in the east and central west, and its debatable chances even in the Pacific coast states.

The following letter from one of the best known women of Georgia speaks frankly and knowingly of what is going on:

Editor Constitution: I am inclosing a clipping from the editorial page of July Holland's magazine, published in Dallas, Texas.

Southern women are being flooded with Hoover and anti-Smith propaganda from Washington and New York. Having been a farmer during Hoover's price-fixing era and having a friend whose daughter has recently been put under a negro boss in Hoover's department, and being familiar with the terms of the Dyer bill, which the republicans are pledged to support if victorious in November, I think there are more important subjects than "How wet is Al?", particularly as we do not know "how dry is Hoover?"

MRS. IRA E. FARMER.

977 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, Ga., August 9, 1928.

The propaganda as referred to by Mrs. Farmer is a studied insult to the south, and no scalawag in the dark days of reconstruction attempted more sordidly to impel the "free negroes" to riot and invasion of the sacred hearthstones of the southern white people. One of the paragraphs that ought to make the blood of every white man and woman in the south boil with rage is as follows:

"Some students of history believe that the southern white has degenerated morally even beyond the moral level of the negro. This theory is probably correct, and it therefore seems that the only way of regenerating the white man of the south is through his negro brother and associate. We, of the north and west, are doing our best to help this good cause along by educating the southern darkey in our colleges and sending him back for missionary duty. Our statesmen are also doing their best with that end in view. Hoover, for instance, has pulled down the bars of segregation in his department of the government, thereby allowing greater contact between whites and blacks and giving the negro the better opportunity to absorb the white man's civilization of the north and west to carry back home to his more unfortunate white neighbor of the south. It should be the duty of northern and western Americans and European emigrants who have recently made the south their adopted home to work for the uplift of the black man as the best and surest means of helping his white brethren in that section of the country.

Hollands magazine in a stinging rebuke says that such Hoover propaganda, coming out of Washington as this letter did, is such an insult, and intended for such a sinister political purpose, that even the intelligent negroes of the south "should, and probably will, resent it."

And they will. In Georgia the races as a whole have always maintained satisfactory relations, to the material advancement of the negroes. They are given every opportunity for self improvement. They are educated out of tax moneys, paid to a large extent by white property holders. They are paid good wages, and provided wholesome living conditions. But Georgia and other southern states are entirely able to handle their own problems, without any more carpet-baggers and renegades.

Perhaps Mr. Hoover is not personally responsible for the methods of the campaign being conducted for him in the south, but in this particular insult, his abrogation of the Wilson segregation order, deliberately, if not wittingly, invited it.

STUDIED INSULT TO SOUTH

Southern voters, white and colored --and particularly southern white women—are being flooded with Hoover propaganda, direct and indirect; and principally indirct, as covert and subtile under-cover methods appear to be the chief stock and trade of all of the republican propagandists.

This propaganda, coming from different sources, some of it signed and much of it anonymous, is differentiated into three distinctive classes. One is in the effort to arouse the negroes, and incite them not only to vote in November, if qualified to do so, but to become racially embittered with the southern white people, who have been supporting friends through all the history of this country. This class of propaganda deliberately sets Hoover up as their ally, and makes his anti-segregation order the "witness on the stand." to testify to his approval of racial equality.

Another class of propaganda coming from another and different Hoover campaign agency, is assigned to disintegrate, as far as posible, the democratic party through misguided bishops and other preachers, and women, who have been heretofore democrats, this method of scuttling the ship from the inside being based on the false and impossible premises of "anti-Smith democrats," and built around a so-called 'moral issue." This class, with subtile cunningness, does not mention Hoover, as a rule, but with full knowledge that any breaking down of the vote for the democratic nominee can only mean the automatic building up of the vote for the republican nominee.

The third class is asigned to arouse religious prejudice, openly and above board, by the capitalization of ignorance, intolerance and bigotry.

These insidious attempts to throw some of the southern states into the Hoover column are the products of republican desperation, realizing as do the national leaders of that party that unless this is done Smith and Robinson will very probably sweep the country through democratic cohesiveness in the east and central west, and its debatable chances even in the Pacific coast states.

The following letter from one of the best known women of Georgia speaks frankly and knowingly of what is going on:

Editor Constitution: I am inclosing a clipping from the editorial page of July Hollands' magazine, published in Dallas, Texas.

Southern women are being flooded with Hoover and anti-Smith propaganda from Washington and New York. Having been a farmer during Hoover's price-fixing era and having a friend whose daughter has recently been put under a negro boss in Hoover's department, and being familiar with the terms of the Dyer bill which the republicans are pledged to support if victorious in November, I think there are more important subjects than "How wet is Al?" particularly as we do not know "how dry is Hoover?"

MRS. IRA E. FARMER.

977 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, Ga., August 9 ,1928.

The propaganda as referred to by Mrs. Farmer is a studied insult to the south,, and no skallawag in the dark days of reconstruction attempted more sordidly to impel the "free negroes" to riot and invasion of the sacred hearthstones of the southern white people. One of the paragraphs that ought to make the blood of every white man and woman in the south boil with rage is as follows:

"Some students of history believe that the southern white has degenerated morally even beyond the moral level of the negro This theory is probably correct, and it therefore seems that the only way of regenerating white man of the south is through his negro brother and associate. We, of the north and west, are doing our best to help this good cause along by educating the southern darkey in our colleges and sending him back for missionary duty. Our statesmen are also doing their best with that end in view. Hoover for instance, has pulled down the bars of segregation in his department of the government, thereby allowing great contact between whites and blacks and giving the negro the better opportunity to absorb the white mans' civilization of the north and west to carry back home to his more unfortunate white neighbor of the south. It should be the duty of northern and western Americans and European emigrants who have recently made the south their adopted home to work for the uplift of the black man as the best and surest means of helping his white brethren in that section of the country.

Hollands magazine in a stinging rebuke says that such Hoover propaganda, coming out of Washington as his letter, did is such an insult, and intended for such a sinister political purpose, that even the intelligent negroes of the south "should, and probably will, resent it."

And they will. In Georgia the races as a whole have always maintained satisfactory relations, to the material advancement of the negroes. They are giving every opportunity for self improvement. They are educated out of tax money, paid to a large extent by white property holders. They are paid good wages, and provided wholesome living conditions. But Georgia and other southern states are entirely able to handle their own problems, without any more carpet-baggers and renegades.

Perhaps Mr. Hoover is not personally responsible for the methods of the campaign being conducted for him in the south, but in this particular insult, his abrogation of the Wilson segregation order, deliberately, if not wittingly, invited it—Atlanta Constitution.

Marietta, Ga., Cobb County Times
Saturday, August 2, 1928

WHITE SUPREMACY

(Lawrenceville News-Herald)

"In the office of the Interstate Commerce department at Washington, of which Mr. Hoover is the head, over twenty negro men and women are working side by side with an equal number of white men and women, the women having the same toilet and rest room, and the men theirs together.

"During the world war, when feed commissioner Hoover brought the negroes and whites together in his numerous division headquarters and office rooms in Washington, fed them from the same table and using the same rest room, but when President Wilson learned the situation he immediately issued an order segregating the races.

"We do not believe that Secretary Hoover did these things for political expediency, but for the reason that he favors the absolute social equality of the races, which he has the unquestioned right to do, just as we have to abhor such a situation.

"White supremacy is the main issue in Georgia, and it is a thousand times more important than prohibition and religious creeds, neither of which will be, in the slightest degree, affected by the election of Governor Alfred E. Smith to the presidency. A great man, and an honest one, and the only democrat in the nation who would have the ghost of a chance of election."

Political-1928

Republican.

Party Affiliation.

The National Negro Political Outlook

After visiting the Negro division of the Republican headquarters in Washington and Chicago with the view of surveying the situation and rendering whatever service we could to those in charge, we decided to write an article approving the set-up in spite of what had been said to the contrary.

We felt that taking everything into consideration as Republicans we had nothing to gain and everything to lose by adverse criticism—and that it behooves us to make the best of a bad situation—if we found ourselves in one—but subsequent circumstances have made it expedient that we write according to developments since our survey. Whether those at the head of the party in the nation realize it or not, the situation so far as our group is concerned, is far from satisfactory, and the outlook is not at all encouraging for the party.

The situation does not grow out of the Negro's inclination to vote the Democratic ticket, or that he has lost interest in the Republican party, but that he feels that the Republican party has lost interest in him.

The Negro is just as much Republican as he ever was, but it is growing on him that those who control Republican affairs in these latter days are not so much Republican as those who controlled in former days, when the party sought votes and not races.

The Republican party cannot win in November without the Negro and those who are telling Mr. Hoover otherwise are either dishonest or suffering from an aggravated case of bad judgment. The Democrats North and South are putting on a terrific drive for Negro votes, and are doing everything they can to keep rum sheets like the New York World and Negro-hating sheets like the Atlanta Constitution from scaring them away, and bourbon democracy is making some headway with its drive because of a few fools and Negro novices who beleve that Mr. Raskob has barrels of money and that he is going to slop it out like a farmer feeds corn to his hogs in harvest time. What the Republicans want to do is to speed up and put on a drive now in dead earnest to arouse and organize the Negro vote throughout the country for Hoover and Curtis, and cut out the damn fool idea that the Negro must be relegated to the rear until the lily-whites can break the solid-South.

The Negro is far from being satisfied. While no greater number of them could vote for Negro-hating Democracy, thousands of them may not go to the polls on election day.

So let the Republicans get down to brass tacks and organize the Negroes from Maine to California and from the Lakes to the Gulf. Spare neither money nor men to put the job over. Don't insult the Negro management by offering it $150,000 to a million-dollar job. Give them the same discretion in the premises and aplenty latitude to use their own judgment and political foresight. The colored people are not satisfied, and don't you listen to the story that they are. It matters not what the present set-up says. They simply don't know what it is all about. Neither peace nor working order obtain among the personnel of the set-up.

We want Hoover and Curtis elected and nothing can do it except all the Republican forces pulling harmoniously together—the black and the white. Stop talking about this is a new day, and that the day of the old politician has passed. This is a day when it requires the combined wisdom and experience of all men young and old to put the proposition over. Any man who thinks otherwise is deceiving himself or is drunk with his own self-importance. If the set-up is not what we would have it, let us make it our ideal by supporting and cooperating with it. Let's hold the ropes for Hawkins and staff while they organize our forces to win. If the young men haven't the political wisdom to do the job, invite enough old men to turn the trick November 6th.

But the immediate emergency is to arouse the colored vote by obliterating the color line and turning Hawkins aloose to get votes for Hoover and Curtis anywhere he can. Stop dreaming about the solid-South and take care of the Negro in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, West Virginia, Ohio, Oklahoma and Tennessee. There is nothing in Dixie for Hoover and Curtis. The Negro holds the balance of the power in the big border states, and if he won't follow a voteless leadership, use common sense and give him a voting leadership. It is not persons or races or classes that the Republican party needs, or wants, but votes. Nothing else will count in November. Hence, let us get down to the every-day business of vote-getting.

We hope conditions in our group will so adjust themselves in short that we can write the article that we had in mind when we completed our rounds at the headquarters last week. But the hour is not yet. Let Chairman Work go out on a fact-finding mission in the Negro group with a view of analyzing the situation and applying the remedy.

IS THERE AN ALLIANCE WITH THE KLAN?

An Associated Press dispatch from Thorsby, in Chilton County, reporting the Hoover rally inaugurating the Republican campaign in Alabama, says:

> Speakers, present from various sections of the State, attacked the candidacy of Governor Al Smith, paying especial attention to the religious issue.
>
> O. D. Street, Republican National Committeeman, attacked newspapers of the State, charging that they "denounce the preachers who do not adhere to their views regarding Smith."

Some time ago C. B. Kennamer, United States District Attorney for the Northern District of Alabama, speaking at Gadsden, attacked Governor Smith on religious grounds.

Recently anonymous literature blackguarding the Roman Catholic Church has been coming into Alabama from blind addresses in New York and Detroit. From Detroit comes the spurious "Knights of Columbus Oath"—now known by all informed persons to be a downright, scoundrelly forgery—which apparently has been widely distributed in Alabama, and presumably other States as well.

The New York booklet discusses "two unwritten laws" in America, one that a President shall serve only two terms, a second, that no Roman Catholic shall ever be President.

Anti-Catholic agents are roaming through Alabama distributing these vicious tracts and making scurrilous verbal attacks upon Governor Smith's church. These loathsome wretches in some instances, we are informed, represent themselves as "former Catholics."

It is significant that practically every politician in Alabama who has bolted the Democratic party to support Hoover against Smith is commonly regarded as a Ku Klux Klansman.

It is equally significant that every one of the weekly papers in Alabama that have declared against Smith is known for its Klan sympathies.

So much for the tale as it unfolds itself in Alabama. But there is news from other sectors in the long battle line in this "holy war."

In The Louisville Courier-Journal of August 10 is an editorial from which we quote as follows:

> What is the significance of the Republican County Administration's action in donating the Armory for a day to the Ku Klux Klan?
>
> That action is unprecedented here. The Klan heretofore has not had the open recognition of the governing authorities. But now the Armory, which belongs to the people of Jefferson County, is turned over free for the use of the Ku Klux Klan, which promptly announces that one of the uses to which it is to be put is to provide an auditorium for the exploitation of Heflin, the rabid ranter against the religion of one of the nominees for the Presidency.
>
> Is it possible that in making this astonishing innovation in the management of the Armory, the Republican County Commissioners have been influenced in any degree by the knowledge that we are having a campaign for the election of a President and that one of the methods employed by some of his opponents in attacking the Democratic nominee is by maligning his church, the sole occupation of Heflin?
>
> That query may do the Commissioners an injustice, but in the circumstances it is a natural and legitimate query.
>
> There are plenty of politicians in Louisville who are not above fighting a political opponent in this way; but certainly such disgraceful tacties not only have not the sanction, they have the strong disapproval, of Herbert Hoover.

The bolting bishops of the Methodist Church, South, and the bolting Baptist and Presbyterians are talking about prohibition, but they are thinking also about Al Smith's church—and at least one of them, Bishop Mouzon, has been frank enough to admit it. Recently he called upon Southern Methodist preachers to take up the Catholic question from their pulpits.

To what extent is the Republican party culpable in the premises? How far is the National leadership prepared to cooperate with Southern bigots? Is it consciously forming an alliance with the discredited and disgraced Ku Klux Klan in the Southern States? Is any of its money being used to pay for anti-papal tracts and to hire the tramps who are sneaking through the Southern States to blackguard Al Smith's church?

Yesterday Mr. Hoover disclaimed any sympathy with religious bigotry. In a mild sort of way he indirectly repudiated those supporters of his who are fighting Smith on religious grounds. This was a gallant thing to do; but it is clear that Mr. Hoover will have to go much further than he has gone in this matter. We believe that Herbert Hoover is above the vice of religious bigotry and that he has no respect for Ku Kluxism. But it is going to be necessary for him to repudiate the Klan in an explicit and emphatic manner. It is going to be necessary for him to disavow all responsibility for the anonymous vultures who, at the expense of some unknown person or organization, are mailing out costly anti-Catholic tracts in the interest of Hoover, and in disavowing such responsibility denounce these conspirators against the human conscience.

The suspicion grows that there are subterranean passages leading from some branch of the Republican National Committee to the lair of these firebrands and fanatics who are specializing in traducing Smith because of his religion.

For the sake of his own self-respect it will be necessary, we predict, for Mr. Hoover to speak more boldly and more emphatically than he has spoken, to allay this ugly suspicion. He has made a good beginning by declaring for toleration. It is The Advertiser's opinion that Hoover believes in and practices the principle of toleration. But we know that hundreds of his most active supporters are bigots and that a majority of the votes they win for Hoover in the South will be the votes of bigots.

WILSON REFUSES CAMPAIGN POST

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 29.—J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, wrote recently a letter to Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican campaign, in which he refused a position on the advisory committee of the colored voters' division, giving as his reason the loss by colored folk, under recent Republican administrations, of their civil rights, political representation and political leadership.

The refusal of Mr. Wilson to serve follows similar declarations by other leaders. Two weeks ago Carl Murphy, editor of The Baltimore Afro-American, declared editorially after seeing his name on the Republican advisory list, that The Afro had not declared for any candidate, but when it did, it would not be for Mr. Hoover.

The editor of The Indianapolis Recorder, an influential weekly in Indiana, declared editorially last week that he had not authorized the use of his name by the G. O. P.

Neval Thomas, Washington civic leader, only last week declared for Al Smith and several weeks ago, the Rt. Rev. Reverdy C. Ransom, bishop of the New York area of the African Methodist Episcopal church, declared for the New York governor.

EDITOR BEN DAVIS, OF GEORGIA

Ben Davis, Negro Republican National Committeeman from Georgia, who delivered the Georgia delegation to Hoover at Kansas City, is also editor of The Atlanta Independent. In his latest issue, according to Julian Harris, editor of The Columbus Enquirer-Sun, he prints the names of the Republican candidates for electors. On this list are two well known Georgia women Democrats who were delegates to the Houston convention. They are, Mrs. Mary Harris Armour and Mrs. Marion Williams. He writes an editorial in support of the Hoover ticket from which we quote:

> Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic party, so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred as exemplified in Memphis, Texas, Georgia and Mississippi. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic party.
>
> Al Smith is no better than the Democratic party. His record does not disclose a single favor that he had done for negroes in New York. He (the negro) knows that the Democratic party is his sworn enemy.
>
> As infamous and as wrong and cowardly as lily-whiteism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic party against the American negro.

In his comment on this editorial, Mr. Harris says, in an article in The New York Times of last Sunday. "It is to be hoped that former Democrats who are now opposing the Democratic nominee will read Ben Davis's comments."

Church Refuses Post As G. O. P. Campaigner

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug 29.—Disapproval of the appointment by Dr. Hubert Work to the colored voters' division of the Republican presidential campaign, and his resignation as a member of that body because he believed the group was "unfitted," were voiced in a letter recently to Dr. Work by Robert R. Church, powerful political boss of Memphis, Tenn.

Excerpts from his letter to to Dr. Work in which he tells his reasons for his action follow:

"Announcement of my selection as a member of the executive committee of the Colored Voters division has been made. I am not insensible of the honor.

"Since, however, I cannot bring myself to endorse either the personnel of this committee or the method by which it was chosen, I am forced to decline the appointment and withdraw from membership thereupon.

Can't Influence Votes

"In no circumstance must I become a party to such a situation as is created for us in ignoring men and women who meet issues daily and create votes and elevating above them those who dodge isssues, cannot influence a single vote, have no voice to raise when we are assailed and are Republicans only once in every four years, and then only by appointment and by choice of the people.

"To the fortunes of Mr. Hoover I am devoted. Politically I am his follower and supporter. Personally I am his ardent admirer. Nothing that my hands can find to do to assisthim will remain undone. Nothing I can do in aid of you and your party will remain unperformed."

Republican leaders claim to be surprised at Mr. Church's action. They indicate that his reference is to Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary of Howard university, and Dr. John R. Hawkins, wealthy business man of Washington. Since both these men are residents of the District of Columbia, neither has a vote in any national election. Because of this Mr. Church evidently feels that they can influence no other voters.

Political – 1928.

Party Affiliation.

One Month After Houston

It is a month after Houston. Since that eventful session of the nation's Democrats, much has happened. The editor of this paper, who observed the proceedings there with no less interest than he watched the New York meeting four years ago and who fought against the present nominee of the party in both conventions, has viewed with absorbing interest the trend in American political affairs during the past few weeks, in which hectic period we have heard of new alignments all over the country; of a Democratic East and a Republican South; of prohibition being the principal issue, with the Republicans for, and the Democrats against; of religion; the race question; and other issues being involved—issues which are loaded with dynamite. And if the leaders of American thought and opinion do not watch their step, we are likely to have misunderstandings and bitterness which will sever friendships and bring schisms even in family circles.

One purpose of this editorial is to urge our people of the South to stop long enough to take stock of the situation; to think it out clearly in all its angles, and not to let hysteria, passion, or prejudice decide us in our final determination. We do not favor trying to use a big stick, or by conscription or proscription endeavor to keep anyone in either of the old parties. Every man and every woman is responsible only to his own God and his own conscience. This is a free country and we can do as we wish. We therefore do not consider seriously the idea of having "bolters' books" or otherwise keeping members of a party herded, or hurling anathemas at those who desert it for another party. Neither do we believe it is right to use the negro and his past political affiliations with the Republican party in the South as a lever to force people to vote the Democratic ticket. Some newspapers are stirring up racial feeling by using the past of the negro in politics as a club to drive wayward Democrats back into the fold. We shall never do that, for the splendid accord that exists between the white people of the South and the millions of good negroes should continue, and we shall attempt to promote a continuation of good feeling instead of feeding the fires of prejudice and passion.

What then is our duty, our own individual duty, to our state, to our country, to the principles of free government? Bearing in mind the principles which caused the barons to wrest Magna Charta from King John, that forced the Bill of Rights and prompted the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, we should search our consciences and see which of the two old parties comes nearer to exemplifying such principles. Coming down further in the history of our own government, let us decide which of the parties stands more staunchly for the principles for which our forefathers fought and died; principles enunciated by the glorious heroes of the South who fought for that nation which "rose so pure and white and fell so free from crime; which of the two stands for the principles of that nation which emancipated Cuba from the tyranny of Spain and under Woodrow Wilson's great leadership laid down the doctrine of the rights of small nations and helped make the world safe for democracy. If we weigh all these matters carefully in our minds and reach a sober, definite, unalterable decision, then we are responsible to our conscience and our Maker and to no one else.

What of the greatest moral issue that has ever faced the American people, that of national prohibition? Does the Democratic party stand against it as Mr. Raskob would have us believe? It is a bitter pill for those who for years have fought within the ranks of the party for the principle of prohibition to have the campaign manager of the party's duly accredited nominee speak of ridding the country of the "damnable affliction of prohibition".

Will Mr. Smith in his acceptance speech repudiate such a statement and lay down the principle that he expects to secure modification of the Volstead act, not through nullification, but through enforcement; will he say that he expects to enforce the law so rigorously that the country will demand that Congress repeal the bone dry act? A great deal depends upon how the campaign is to be pitched.

Those who would charge that every opponent of Mr. Smith in the South is an opponent on religious grounds and not because of his "wetness" are unfair, since the noble women who have fought for 50 years and more under the banner of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and hundreds of ministers of the gospel and other thousands of prohibitionists by conviction are absolutely sincere. They would oppose any "wet" candidate vigorously. It is possible that Governor Smith's speech of acceptance may change the views of some of them, and we hope that this will be a happy result.

As for ourselves we hope that Governor Smith will, if elected president, enforce the law as he says he will and that in his acceptance speech he will repudiate any statements to the contrary. Certainly, in absolute fairness, every one should await the acceptance speeches of the two candidates before making up his mind definitely, and also remember, there are other issues in this campaign besides prohibition.

Republican.

And now, in the face of defection in Democratic ranks of such outstanding leaders as Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, and Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, we take occasion to emphasize our position. Many of our fathers and grandfathers have given up too much in the name and for the sake of democracy for any of us to consider lightly the matter of forsaking it in its hour of need. Certainly we must be worthy sons of worthy sires. There is nothing, however, that we shall say either now or later that shall attempt to cast into outer darkness those who do not agree with us. After all, is a matter of what we consider our duty in the light of our conscience.

During the coming days, which are bound to be fraught with a certain amount of excitement, let us not in the frenzy of enthusiasm or in the heat of political passion, allow ourselves to forget and say and do things which we may later regret. Tolerance of the other person's viewpoint is a cardinal virtue. And let us remember, too, that we must live together in this country long after a certain Tuesday in next November. And may the South, of all sections of this country, strive for a leadership of thought in the minds of true men and women that will bring us safely through the crisis!

COMMITTEE SHOULD MEET

The Constitution has received numerous communications complaining of the failure of the state democratic executive committee to function in connection with the democratic primary to be held on September 11, 1928. Inquiries are made asking why no meeting of the state committee has been held, and whether the rules and regulations formulated by the committee for the conduct of primaries were intended to be automatically operative without direction by the committee.

Constitution 9-1-28

Specific attention has been repeatedly called to rule 18, which provides that—

"The chairman of the state democratic executive committee shall appoint a subcommittee of nine, of which the chairman and secretary of this body shall be members, to arrange and supervise all of the details of the primary elections and all conventions that may be held during the tenure of said committee. Said subcommittee shall be charged with the responsibility of enforcing all the rules, regulations and resolutions of this committee while said committee is not in actual session, and is empowered to make all other necessary rules and regulations with reference to said primary elections and conventions which are not inconsistent with the provisions of law or these resolutions. A majority of said subcommittee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business."

The Constitution is in receipt of a printed circular signed by a candidate for a high state office, and whose name appears on the official ballot, purporting to have been distributed with the authority of the state democratic executive committee, which circular is headed "Anti-Smith," and which proclaims the purpose of the candidate in question to vigorously support the republican candidate for president of the United States in opposition to the candidate nominated by the democratic party in its national convention.

Rule 5 of the primary rules and regulations, unanimously adopted by the state democratic executive committee, reads as follows:

"No person shall be deemed a candidate in said primary unless he is legally qualified to hold the office for which he announces, is a valid member and adherent of the democratic party in both state and national politics, and pays the assessments hereinafter prescribed, by the time hereinafter named."

Rule 2 provides as follows:

"All white electors who are democrats and qualified to vote in the general elections who, in good faith, will pledge themselves to support the democratic candidates for all offices to be voted on this year, are hereby declared qualified to vote in said primary, and the act of voting in said primary shall constitute the aforesaid pledge."

Investigation shows that the official ballot heretofore referred to was prepared by the chairman and secretary of the state committee, as provided by rule 4, but without submitting to the state committee or its subcommittee any question of qualifications raised under rules 2 and 5 above quoted.

The rules of the state committee specifically provide for called meetings of the state committee, as follows:

"The secretary or chairman of the committee shall mail written notices to all members in advance of called meetings, notifying members of the time and place where such meetings shall be held. Called meetings shall be held upon such notice upon the direction of the chairman of the committee, and called meetings shall be held whenever and wherever a quorum of the members of the committee shall deliver to the chairman or secretary of the committee a written request for such meeting."

We have been unable to locate among the records of the democratic party in Georgia any instance in which the state democratic executive committee, after calling a state primary, has failed to meet in full committee, or through its delegated subcommittee, to make all necessary provisions for the conduct of the primary, including the essential provision of qualification.

Certainly no party emergency has ever been presented in Georgia which demanded more imperatively party action through its duly constituted committee on the question of qualification of candidates seeking the suffrage of participators in the democratic primary.

It may be conceded that unusual conditions pertaining to the national campaign have, to some extent, subordinated popular interest in the state primary to the more general interest of democrats and republicans in the general election, but genuine democrats throughout the state are not overlooking the fact that the primary to be held on September 12 is for the sole purpose of selecting democratic candidates for United States senator, governor, attorney general, secretary of state, comptroller general, state treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, state superintendent of education, commissioner of commerce and labor, prison commissioners, public service commissioners, judges of the court of appeals, justices of the supreme court, representatives in congress, judges of the superior courts and solicitor generals, state senators and representatives and candidates for all other offices to be filled in the general election of this year, and are not overlooking the fact that the rules of the state committee specifically prescribe that no elector shall vote in the primary except democrats who, in good faith, will pledge themselves to support the democratic candidates for all offices to be voted on this year, and that no candidate is qualified unless he is a valid member and adherent of the democratic party in both state and national politics.

The immediate importance of a meeting of the state or subcommittee is emphasized by the fact that "The Hoover Bulletin of Georgia," published and widely distributed in the interest of the republican party, conspicuously carries an article signed "G. E. Maddox, chairman state democratic executive committee," headed "Democrats not bound by rules of party in national election," which purports to emanate from Mr. Maddox, but which is printed with the following introduction: "No democratic voter in Georgia will be ruled out of the democratic party if he desires to vote the republican ticket in November, according to the interpretation of the primary rules by Ed Maddox, chairman of the state democratic executive committee."

While the text of the communication expresses the personal view of its author, that "a participant in the coming state primary is pledged only to support nominees of that primary," the communication as printed in the Hoover organ carries the official signature, "chairman state democratic executive committee."

The title page of "The Hoover Bulletin" is ornamented with the slogans, "Elect Herbert Hoover president," "Beat Alfred E. Smith for president" and "News bulletin for all individuals and groups working for the election of Herbert Hoover to the presidency of the United States."

Whatever may be the personal views of the chairman of the state democratic executive committee, the rules unanimously adopted by the committee itself are so clear and explicit as to leave no room for doubt that the committee itself, in formulating these rules, did not contemplate any possible condition under which the rules could be ignored and defied by the qualification of a candidate in the democratic primary who boldly proclaims his unalterable purpose to aid in the defeat of the democratic national nominee for president, by openly campaigning for the election of the republican nominee.

In any event, in justice to the democratic party in Georgia, and especially in justice to every individual member of the committee, including its chairman, a meeting of the state democratic executive committee should be called promptly by the chairman, in order that all of its members may be afforded an opportunity to vote their official expression concerning the qualification rules created by them.

If candidates who publicly proclaim their hostility to the democratic nominee and their loyalty to the nominee of the republican party shall be permitted to participate in democratic primaries, then the primary system in Georgia, having lost its usefulness as a vehicle for party expression, will be abandoned as a political farce.

Democrats in Georgia who believe in the protection afforded under the primary system have no other possible avenue of relief than by a prompt meeting of the state committee, and it is to be hoped that its distinguished chairman, regardless of his own personal views in the premises, will measure up to his party responsibility by ordering a called meeting of the committee without delay.

WALTER WHITE SAID TO HAVE DECLINED POST

"Al's" Democratic Campaign Leader Has Not Been Yet Named

SMITH UNWILLING TO SIGN A DECLARATION

New Yorkers Urging Tammany To Name A Magistrate

The American

NEW YORK — Walter White, assistant secretary of the N. A. A. C. P. is unofficially reported to have declined to head "Al" Smith's Campaign to attract colored voters.

8-11-28

Robert J. Nelson, D. C. "Eagle" editor, is also mentioned in connection with campaign leadership.

Unwillingness of Smith's advisers to have him make public his stand on the race question is said to have been the reason.

Such a public utterance as Smith was requested to make would have him pledge himself, if elected, to make no discrimination in the treatment of Negroes as citizens. His advisers claim such a statement would lose him more votes in the South than he would otherwise gain.

What reference, if any, Smith plans to the race question is awaited in his notification speech.

An article appearing in the New York Times this week details the potential power of the Negro vote, state by state, and says that Republican leaders are worried over the move that is being made by John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, to corral the Negro vote for Smith.

Rascob is to make every effort to line the colored vote behind Governor Smith in the East, West and border states with a large colored population.

Magistrate

As a result of Raskob's drive for the colored vote, Negroes in Harlem are insisting that George Olvany, "Tammany boss," name a colored man at one as magistrate in Harlem. Leaders in Harlem say that they are going to point out to Governor Smith and Olvany the wisdom of making such an appointment now.

NEGROES MUST NOT VOTE IN DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY, WHITE DAILY

Memphis, Tenn., August 6.—(By A. N. P.)—Everything is being done here to prevent Negroes from voting in the Democratic primary which will be held here this week. The efforts of those opposing the participation of the colored brother in the Democraitc primary have taken many forms the most noticeable of which was a photograph run on the editorial page of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, showing a white man instructing a Negro woman how to vote and two Negro men marking the ballot.

This photograph is headlined "This Must Not Happen Again in Memphis" and in the article thereunder, it is declared that the Negroes are voting for Hill McAllister, who sought the office of Governor of Tennessee in the last election and who is seeking the Democratic nomination in the primary. The daily paper declares that "The Commercial-Appeal" on Thursday will have reporters with cameras at precincts where fraud is usually most flagrant. Photographs of machine voted Negroes in a Democratic primary may be useful in an emergency such as a federal investigation."

Whites After Church

On the Republican side of the fence, a group of white Republicans are out after the scalp of Robert R. Church, the recognized political leader of this section. A petition circulated here Friday and Saturday urged that Mr. Church be defeated as a member of the State Republican executive committee. Leaders here, however, predict that the lily whites will be defeated in their efforts and Mr. Church will be elected by an overwhelming majority.

FROM AN IRRECONCILABLE

Editor The Advertiser:

In your editorial, "Mr. Hoover and the Federal Anti-Lynching Bill," in last Sunday's Advertiser, you mentioned the names of Senators Underwood and Harrison who fought the bill.

Why do you omit the name of Senator Borah and other Republicans who made speeches in the Senate and voted for the defeat of the bill?

People with as much good sense and as well informed as those who edit and publish newspapers in the once "Solid South," knew as well before as now that the ideals of Tammany Hall are not the ideals of the "Solid South," and that the day Gov. Smith was nominated a bitter fight would open right here among a people who have always been loyal, always fought side by side, always stuck to the nominee and always been a political nonentity in national politics

The truth of the whole matter is that Tammany Hall now has the Democratic party, lock, stock and barrel.

The separation of life-long white political friends and comrades makes a sad picture—a condition that makes these same editors and publishers, (who are innocent of producing the conditions) turn their guns on the departing brothers, is unthinkable. But when big Tammany said, "Do it," the little Tammanies answered, "Yea, Lord."

Gov. Smith is not responsible for mixed schools and "social equality" in New York, as charged, except that so far as I know, he has done nothing to better conditions.

Democratic Grover Cleveland, while Governor signed the bill that abolished separate schools for the races in New York. Social equality? Yes, they begin in the tender age of the child. If it suits those people, I do not object.

President Cleveland also wrote Fred Douglas, negro (and whose second wife was a white woman of Western New York) personal invitations to attend White House functions. Compare appointments for the last 60 years, and see if others than Republicans do not play politics.

I am not a member of the Ku Klux Klan and never was, nor do I believe that all the anti-Smith people are bad, as some would have us believe. Possibly, when the extremists of both sides begin to call each other liars we will then get more truth and personally, I think that the best lesson a child can be taught is to look for the truth, love it, live it and defend it.

Is it true, as charged, that Tammany Hall has a negro political organization in each of the 48 States? If so, what have they been promised? If not, why did nobody under the sun ever hear of a Democratic negro until this year of our Lord 1928?

And if not, why have the Democrats of the Congress? Twelfth Missouri District nominated a negro for

W. E. GLOVER.

Haleburg, Ala.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation.

Republican.

East Tennessee News Editor Characterizes Bob's Attack On Hawkins' Committee As Selfish

CHICAGO, ILL., August 28.—More than 200 colored political leaders representing various state organizations, civic and fraternal bodies, assembled Friday, and Saturday at the Wendell Phillips High School and organized the National Negro Voters League. Hon. J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, was chosen permanent chairman and presided over the sessions.

While the representative men and women of the racial group were of one accord that the Negro is not getting all that is due him from the officials in charge of our government, the eloquent speeches sent forth by the several men called upon to address the audience pledged support to the Grand Old Party and declared republicanism is the only party that the race can look to for the desired recognition and relief from the conditions complained of.

TENNESSEE EDITOR FLAYS BOB CHURCH.

Just as Chairman Finley Wilson was introducing Attorney Webster L. Porter, editor of The Knoxville, East Tennessee News, to speak, some one sitting near the well known Tennessean handed him a copy of the issue of the Chicago Defender, pointing to the article outlining a statement issued by Robert R. Church, of Memphis, Tenn., in which he offered his resignation.

After lauding the party of Lincoln and Douglass and issuing a forceful plea to the women and men who represented the leaders of the race to throw their undivided support to the Republican party in the campaign that is now being waged, the versatile young orator raised a copy of the Chicago paper containing the resignation of Church and proceeded to denounce the action of the West Tennessean as the finest example of ingratitude that has come to the attention of the public in recent years.

The large audience listened with rapt attention as the East Tennessee editor, referred to by the chairman as the "tall sycamore from the mountains of East Tennessee," declared:

"The recent letter of Robert R. Church, of Memphis, to officials in charge of the National Republican Campaign, in which he offers his resignation as a member of the committee of colored men and women selected to wage a campaign among the Negro racial group in the United States, was an exhibition of the grossest kind of ingratitude that we have seen in recent years.

"Bob is a Tennessean and we regret exceedingly that it has become necessary to direct attention to the selfishness and childish whims of the Shelby Countian, especially when the need is so thoroughly evident for the forces to pull together if Mr. Hoover is to carry that state.

"The storm center of West Tennessee's political activities for years has long been referred to as the leader of Negro politics in the state and the national leaders have exhibited an inclination to put him to the fore as concerns the group's activities. In view of such a leadership, Mr. Church has been in a position to render the race inestimable service. We have observed his tactics and, while we have never been impressed with his ability to lead, we have refrained from registering criticism, fearful lest some should misconstrue our motives. We felt that the young man was passing over the rugged shoals and that eventually the jolts and tossings that he received would knock some of the jagged selfish edges from his form, and when he might strike the calm waters where sailing would be smooth, he would forget self and then pull off his coat, roll up his sleeves and register contentions for some worthwhile recognition for the group which he represented," the speaker declared.

"Not so, however, for even at this time when honor after honor has been conferred upon the Shelby Countian and the reins of leadership have been placed in his hands for many years, we find him playing the role of a baby—whining and crying, as he offers his resignation as a member of the committee to aid in bringing about the election of Herbert Hoover, as president of the United States, offering only as an excuse the lack of experience and absence of previous political activity on the part of Dr. John R. Hawkins, Dr. Emmett J. Scott, Dr. Robert R. Moton, and others of the earnest, efficient and unselfish men and women named to aid in the campaign."

"Such an attitude," said Editor Porter, "is exhibited by Mr. Church right at the most crucial moment of the campaign, and we contend that his action savors of extreme selfishness apparently based on his not having been selected to head the campaign for the group. His action in this instance is typical of his attitude in practically every other instance that has arisen where the question of leadership existed, both in Tennessee and the nation. Bob has been the storm center in many, many contests for positions of state committeeman and other recognition at the hands of the republican party. Conventions and committee meetings that have been held, devoted hours of their time to the contention for personal position coming from Bob and his henchmen. The press has devoted front page space to his contests and in most cases he has been accorded the desired recognition. We have yet to see, for the very first time, what good has come to the Negro racial group because of Bob's elevation to leadership.

LIKENED TO SEAL.

"The situation takes on the appearance of the big seal exhibited by the circus. The large inhabitant of the water flounders about in the improvised pool, splashes the water right and left until the keeper tosses him a raw fish and then calmly dozes away on the ledge of the pool. Bob rants and snorts for position of leader. He expends countless energy in his efforts to gain position and when such is given him he folds his arms and offers nothing in return but a billiken smile, which is so much in evidence across his widely proclaimed handsome physiognomy.

DECLARES CHURCH ILL ADVISED.

"Bob Church has been ill-advised," Editor Porter declared, "and in following the advice of the disgruntled faction that suggested this most recent exhibition of selfishness and ingratitude, we are of the opinion that he has rendered himself wholly unfit for further recognition at the hands of either the republican party or the racial group of which he is a part.

"When one notes the flimsy reasons advanced by Bob for his refusal to serve as a member of the campaign committee, the situation appears all the more ridiculous. What one of the outstanding white men who have been selected by the republican and democratic parties is more widely experienced and capable of generaling the forces among the members of their racial group than is John R. Hawkins, Emmett J. Scott or Robert R. Moton? Who could be selected from among the so-called leadership who has enjoyed more success as organizers of human forces than these three men? They have rendered worthwhile service for many years. Each has been successful in his chosen profession, rising into confidence and esteem because of the unselfish and efficient service rendered, which has been accompanied by worthwhile promotions and recognition that usually follows unselfish service. The reputation of these men for unquestioned ability, honesty and sterling character is undisputed. Therefore, we are at a loss to understand just what other qualifications Mr. Church would suggest as being necessary for leadership of the campaign forces other than those possessed by Drs. Hawkins, Scott and Moton.

LINKED UP WITH HOWARD AND DAVIS.

"Will Chairman Work," the speaker questioned, "and other of the officials heading the organization accord a moment's consideration to the fallacious contention of Bob Church, in which he seeks to discredit the leadership of Hawkins, simply because he and others of his committee have not hobnobbed in the hog wallow of political activity in previous years along with Perry Howard, Ben Davis and himself? The fact that this new leadership has kept itself aloof from the selfish and questionable operations of the so-called 'Old Guard' should be sufficient reason within itself to be placed at the head.

"The fact is the 'Old Guard' is dying hard. Perry, Ben, Bob, et. al., had been holding the teat so long that it had almost grown to their upturned lips and the delicate surgical operation performed by Dr. Work and the other leaders of the republican campaign committee, proved exceedingly painful. So much so that they are now squealing and offering such rot as that advanced by Church against the capable and well qualified men already selected for work among the colored group.

"Bob and Perry and Ben were given their day and they failed miserably as concerns the rendering of worthwhile service to an oppressed group which they were appointed to represent. While legislation such as the bill to suppress lynching came up in the halls of our law making bodies and at the times when such important measures needed the undivided support of all Negroes, these fellows were conspicuous by their absence. They were so busy in an effort to have themselves placed in positions of honor and where they could feather their own nests by having themselves appointed to office that they completely lost sight of the interests of the group that was so needful of their influence. Now it is, as the 'Old Guard' is being dethroned, that the race is exhibiting a hands-off attitude."

VIRGINIA LEADER SPEAKS.

Other speakers who issued eloquent and forceful addresses before the convention were Hon. W. B. F. Crowell, grand chancellor Knights of Pythias, of Virginia; Hon. William Warley, editor of the Louisville News, Kentucky; Hon. Martin Fleming, alderman of Cleveland, Ohio; Hon. John L. Webb, of Hot Springs, Ark., and Hon. Homer Phillips, prominent attorney of St. Louis, Mo.

The executive committee of the National Negro Voters League, at the close of the session Saturday, immediately began to organize on a national basis, with delegates from the various states as a nucleus of state and city organization. This organization will comprise a national committee, made up of a committeeman and committeewoman from each state through whom the city units will be organized in their jurisdictions. This organization will proceed under direction of W. C. Hueston of Gary, Ind., chairman of the national committee.

Officers of the National Negro Voters League elected Friday were: J. Finley Wilson, president, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Grace Wilson Evans, vice-president, Terre Haute, Indiana; Charles P. Howard, secretary, Des Moines, Iowa; William M. McDonald, treasurer, Fort Worth, Texas; W. C. Hueston, chairman national committee, Gary, Indiana.

Among others in attendance were Sydney B. Thompson, Alderman Thomas W. Fleming, Mrs. Carrie Lowery, Ansel Chambers, Clarence Veney, Ohio; Frank Sutton, Jack Houston, Thomas H. Browne, Dr. Frank L. Bishop, Mrs. Abbie M. Johnson, Charles W. Gant, Pennsylvania; John T. Brewington, Guy U. Blaine, Dr. D. T. Cardwell, C. P. Richardson, Harry St. Clair, Indiana; Caesar R. Blake, Rev. George W. Avant, Zeke Alexander, E. H. Copeland, C. C. Valle, North Carolina; Biliy King, T. P. King, Mrs. Anna Vandenberg, Mrs. Ella G. Berry, Mrs. Joanna C. Snowden, Illinois; C. Henri Lewis, Cecil Rowlette, Brazil J. Bryant, Michigan; Charles W. French, Samuel Parker, Kansas; W. B. Driver, J. E. Kelly, Alabama; John L. Webb, C. M. Wade, Arkansas. Emory V. Crain, California. Octavia Washington, Dr. E. J. Gregg, Maryland; Florence Jackson, Massachusetts; Homer G. Phillips, Mrs. Myrtle Foster Cook, Edward L. Snider, Missouri; J. G. Brown, W. J. Shepherd, Iowa, William Warley, Kentucky; Benjamin J. Davis, Dr. H. P. Butler, Georgia; Dr. W. D. Thomas, Louisiana; Charles E. Mitchell, West Virginia; C. Tiffany Tolliver, W. B. F. Crowell, Mrs. Emma V. Kelly, Mrs. Mamie Hodges, Virginia; Webster L. Porter, George W. Lee, Tennessee; Perry W. Howard, Thomas I. Keys, John K. McMiller, Dr. B. H. Dilworth, Dr. W. D. Kyle, Mississippi; A. P. Scruggs, Ole W. Jackson, Nebraska; Louis E. Williams, John Duncan, Ethel Fraser, New York.

The Southern Bishops

THE war of Southern bishops over the wetness of Governor Smith is more than a side-show or a fight between Dry and ultra-Dry Democrats. It is a serious challenge to that trinity of social attitudes which rules the South, loyalty to the Protestant church, allegiance to the Democratic Party, and "keeping the nigger in his place." These three things have gone together so consistently in Southern life that a "nigger lover," a Catholic, or a Republican has, in many sections, had no chance whatever of success.

Now come a number of ultra-respectable leaders of Southern Protestantism who say frankly that they are going to bolt the Democratic ticket and vote for Hoover. They take this unprecedented step in the name of their hatred for the liquor traffic. Whatever may be the justice of their cause, we rejoice that they are smashing the political prejudices which made the Solid South solid. One of those prejudices was given a painful blow when the Democrats nominated a Catholic. Now another is threatened when a large number of native Southerners announce their intention of voting for a Republican. There is hope that a new wind of reality will blow through Southern political life.

The main question concerning the challenge of the ultra-Dry bishops is still to be answered. Will they dare to permit the Negroes to vote with them for the Republican ticket? Clearly they need the Negro vote to win, and many of the Negroes would like to give that vote. If a fair and free election were taken in the South, the Negro vote might be the deciding factor. Our guess is that the ultra-Dry bishops will never open their mouths about the Negro vote. To doubt the justice of white supremacy as it is now practiced in the South is a greater sin in the eyes of most Southern people than anything mentioned in the Decalogue. If the Hoover Democrats should venture to suggest the possibility of Negro support for their cause, the resulting tidal wave of racial fear would undoubtedly swamp them.

Bishop Warren Candler of the Methodist Church South and the Coca Cola family does not mention the Negro vote in discussing this subject. He chides his brethren for using the church openly to fight against Governor Smith. "Do not preach politics," he says, in quoting an old episcopal letter. "You have no commission to preach politics. The divinity of the church is never more strikingly displayed than when it holds on its ever straightforward way in the midst of worldly commotions."

With the bishop's attitude toward Governor Smith we are not concerned here, but since when has the Methodist Church South held to a straightforward way in the midst of worldly commotions? In the Civil War the Southern Methodists stood for the South and slavery; in the World War they stood for Wilson and the Allies; in the present controversy in the South over the eleven-hour day and twelve-hour night in cotton mills at least one church conference has espoused the cause of the mill-owners.

Bishop Candler, who leads the regular Democratic section of the Methodist Church South against Bishop James Cannon and his pro-Hoover associates, is quite willing to mix in economic and political controversies when he is on the dominant, conservative side. He favored compulsory military training at Emory University when he was chancellor, and he kept Debs from speaking on the campus of that institution in 1920 by charging that students who petitioned for the right to hear Debs "had tried to take the escutcheon of honor of this institution into their hands and stain it in dishonor by having a jailbird enter our midst." When the leaders of the American (Southern) Cotton Manufacturers' Association met recently in Richmond they were treated to a splendid eulogy from Bishop Candler, who praised them for giving their workers every educational, social, and spiritual advantage. The fact was not mentioned that these manufacturers pay their workers the lowest wages and work them the longest hours of any large manufacturing industry in the United States.

As between Bishop Candler, who appears to be wholly consumed with Pentecostal yearning, and Bishop Cannon, who says he is out to demolish Al Smith, we prefer Bishop Cannon, though he ought not to be so shocked at the thought of Roman Catholics likewise seeking their ends through politics. Why shouldn't a bishop go into politics if a moral issue is involved? And where can a political situation be found in which there is not a moral issue of some sort? Almost every aspect of moral life is conditioned by political habits and institutions, and the preacher who is interested in the moral life of the community cannot stay out of politics. He may take the plunge into politics as a non-partisan, or he may indorse one party as against another. In either case he is to be judged, as any other citizen is judged, by his knowledge of facts and the reasoned truth of his utterance.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

Upheaval Occurs In South Carolina G. O. P.

(By The Associated Negro Press)

Columbia, S. C., March 12.—For the first time in the past twenty years the leadership of Joseph W. Tolbert in the State Republican ranks has been challenged and threatened and "an opposition ticket" has been elected. This followed in the wake of what has ben termed the "dirtiest deal and the biggest steamroller feat ever accomplished in a Republican State Convention.

At the outset of the convention it was evident that the well oiled Tolbert machine was in the usual working order and there was little indication that there would be any slip up. The monkey wrench was thrown into the machinery when the Rev. J. C. White, who had been designated as temporary chairman, permitted Attorney N. J. Frederick to speak.

This happened after the various committees had been appointed by National Committeeman Tolbert, who opened the convention with a ringing address in which he declared that the Republican party was the party of all people and not solely of the Negro race. Attorney Frederick, who gained fame by his efforts to bring the Aiken lynchers to justice, ascended the platform amid the cheers of the entire convention.

The hall resounded with cheers for "Frederick" and "We Want Frederick." The brilliant attorney challenged the leadership of "Tireless Joe" Tolbert and urged the convention to throw off "the yoke of Tolbert domination" and to foster the leadership of Negroes as Georgia and Mississippi had done." Following his address, a white man by the name of Karnes ascended the platform and attempted to refute the arguments as set forth by Frederick, but the seed had been sown.

When the committee returned and made its report, the following candidates were pronounced elected amid a pandemonium of "cat calls and nayes:" Joseph W. Tolbert, John H. Goodwin, Samuel Leaphart, and W. S. Dixon. Both tickets will favor Herbert Hoover for president.

The election drew fire and L. A. Hawkins of this city submitted an opposition ticket which was elected as follows: Dr. W. M. Porter, Dr. R. J. Wilson, E. R. Riley, and J. Y. Mayes. In opening the second election, Hawkins declared that the Tolbert election was illegal and that there would be a real contest at the National Republican Convention.

The aftermath has brought forth serious criticism of both Tolbert and Rev. White. The latter has been urged to denounce the election of the Tolbert ticket, but has steadfastly refused to do so. While few believe the contest will overthrow the Tolbert faction it is believed to sound the end of Tolbert's reign in the state.

Delegation

NEW ORLEANS, La. Mar. 14—A preliminary injunction enjoining and restraining Walter Cohen comptroller of customs and his followers from acting with the Republican state central committee and from naming delegates to the National Republican Convention at Kansas City next June, was made permanent Friday by Judge Wm. H. Byrnes, J., in civil district court. Mr. Cohen, through his attorney, W. O. Hart, said he will appeal to the supreme court.

Eleven Republican committeemen affiliated with the faction represented by Emile Kuntz applied to the state court for the injunction.

PERRY HOWARD AND COHEN GROUPS ARE DEALT WITH CRUSHING BLOWS

Injunction Against Colored Republicans is Made Permanent by Chancellor's Decision

G. O. P. "LILY WHITES" WIN

See Uselessness in Taking Case to Supreme Court. Negroes to be Missing in HATTIESBURG, Miss., March 14—Waging a battle against overwhelming odds the representatives of the thousands of colored Americans in the State lost in an effort to retain their right to political privileges as the result of a decree issued to "lily white" Republicans of the state. The action practically bars Negroes of the state from participating in the activities of the Republican party and thus excludes them from all political rights as they have no representation in the Democrat party.

Overrules Motion

The crushing blow dealt the Negro voters of Mississippi came as the climax of a bitter fight between the colored voters, led by Perry W. Howard, National Republican Committeeman and assistant in the U. S. Attorney General's office, and "lily whites." The "lily whites" sought to restrain Mr. Howard and his colleagues from holding or participating in the convention within the state for electing delegates to the National Convention, and from representing themselves as the Republican party in Mississippi. A temporary injunction was granted against the Howard faction at a recent hearing in the case was appealed. Friday Chancellor T. Price Dale handed down a decision in which he overruled a motion to dissolve the injunction, thus making it permanent.

To Go To Highest Tribunal

The Howard faction made an almost useless last effort to stave off the affront of their opponents following the decision Friday. Their counsel immediately filed an appeal motion and announced that the case would be carried to the State Supreme Court. A cost bond of $500 was set by the chancellor. The complainants were placed under a $10,000 bond as long as the injunction is valid.

Whites Rejoice

The "lily whites" laughed up their sleeves," so to speak, at the last effort of the Howard group for the National Republican Convetnion will have passed into history by the time a decision can be obtained from the appeal to the Supreme Court.

The leader of the "lily whites," George L. Sheldon, former governor of Nebraska and now a Delta planter said after the verdict was received that his group, known as the S[illegible] Republican Council expects to [illegible] general mass meetings in every [illegible]ty in the state in order to set up [illegible] party machinery and se'ect del[illegible] to the state and national conve[illegible] Such actions will result in Mi[illegible]pi's Republican delegation bein[illegible] posed entirely of whites for t[illegible] time in years.

"LILY WHITES" ATTEMPT TO OUST NEGROES THROUGH COURTS

Wresting control of the Republican party from Negroes in southern states by court injunctions is the latest effort of "lily-whites," according to information reaching here Tuesday.

Court injunctions against the regular Republican organizations have been obtained by "lily-white" Republicans in the states of Mississippi, Louisiana and Georgia, the last strongholds of Negro Republicans.

In other southern states where the Negro has already been eliminated as a factor in Republican affairs, efforts are being made to keep him out of all conventions and bar his election as a delegate to county, district, state and national conventions.

The "lily-white" Republicans are being supplied with funds to carry on their fight from an unknown source. The favor with which the Herbert Hoover candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination is meeting in the south gives rise to the belief that these funds are coming from those who are backing the Secretary of Commerce.

Negroes Unyielding

Colored Republicans are unyielding. They intend to carry the fight through the courts and to the Republican national convention in Kansas City, Mo., in June, and force the Republican party to declare whether it sanctions the elimination of the colored Republicans from the party councils.

The fight of the "lily-whites" is directed mainly at Walter L. Cohen in Louisiana, Perry W. Howard in Mississippi, and Benjamin Jefferson Davis in Georgia. Emil Knutz, the Republican national committeeman for Louisiana, has joined forces with the "lily-whites" in their efforts to eliminate Mr. Cohen as a delegate to the national convention.

In Mississippi a chancery court judge at Hattiesburg has enjoined the regular Republican organization headed by Mr. Howard from holding its county, district and state conventions in accordance with the calls originally issued for these meetings. The prospect of contesting "lily-white" and "black and tan" delegations at the next convention rises.

In Georgia where the most harmonious Republican state convention in the history of the party in that state was held, the "lily-whites" have obtained an injunction to restrain the delegates from attending the national convention.

HEADS OF ELKS, GREAT FRATERNAL ORGANIZATION, CALL ON MEMBERS TO FIGHT SEC. OF INTERIOR

MIGHT BE G.O.P. NATIONAL CHAIRMAN IF HOOVER IS NOMINATED

What is at once the most startling piece of news and the most outstanding of the week, is the action of the National heads of the Elks—I. B. P. O. E. W.—one of the largest fraternal organizations of the race, in denouncing Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, and probable National Chairman of the Republican Party if Herbert Hoover is nominated for the Presidencey on the Republican ticket.

News

The Elks are very progressive and do more than "take care of the sick and bury the dead". They have a Civil Liberties Commission, among other activities, whose duty it is to wach out for the rights of the Negro race.

3-17-28

Robert J. Nelson is Executive Director and he with representatives of other organizations called on Mr. Hubert Work to demand that segregation of Negroes in his department be stopped. Mr. Work flatly refused their demands.

Louisville, Ky.

So Mr. Nelson in his capacity as Executive Director of the Elks Civil Liberties Commission is calling on all Elks to stop Mr. Work and in hitting Mr. Work he hits Mr. Hoover because Mr. Work is Mr. Hoover's Campaign Manager.

The Elks are 100,000 strong in this country. If they heed Mr. Nelson's call it will be a serious jolt to the Hoover candidacy.

Here is Mr. Nelson's defi:

Commission On Civil Liberties
I. B. P. O. E. W.
Office of
Executive Director
907 You St. N. W.
Washington, D. C.

March 9, 1928.

To the Officers and Members of the I. B. P. O. E. of W., Greeting:

For some time past this Commission, in cooperation with the local organization of the N. A. A. C. P. and the Equal Rights League, has been waging a persistent and aggressive fight against segregation in the several departments under the administration of President Coolidge The fight has been centered particularly on the Interior and the Treasury Department. We succeeded in breaking down segregation in the Pension Bureau and hadhoped to have it broken down in the Land Office of the Interior Department of which Hubert Work is the Secretary. Mr. Work flatly refuses to repeal the order establishing segregation in the Land Office of his Department.

As citizens of this country with rights equal to those of any other citizens, I am requesting that each lodge have resolutions adopted in the lodge in regular session and forward to the Congressman of your district asking that he bring the matter to the attention of the President to the end that he issue an executive order abolishing segregation in the several departments under his administration.

Segregation is not a local Washington matter. Washington as the seat of the National government makes segregation and discrimination of all kinds a matter of concern to every Negro in the country.

Your cooperation in this matter will be appreciated and by having your lodge pass the kind of resolution above mentioned you will be rendering a patriotic service to your race.

Act at your next meeting!

Fraternally Yours,
Robert J. Nelson,
Executive Director,
Elks Civil Liberties Commission.

Following in the wake of Mr. Nelson's strong statement, The Washington Eagle, official organ of the Elks, edited by Hon. J. Finley Wilson, Grand Exalted Ruler, says:

Department Segregation

The attitude of Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior Department, with respect to abolishing segregation in the Land Office of his department, should meet the hearty condemnation of colored people in all parts of the country. When the committee waited on him several days ago and asked him what he was going to do , he frankly told this committee that the segregation would stand.

Here is a head of a department under the Federal government who holds an important executive position telling freemen that an order which is un-American, and which discriminates against a certain group will stand and that they must be considered as pariahs in the service of a government which they help to maintain by their taxes now, and for which in time of war, they bravely fought to repel their country's enemies.

Hubert Work, the present Secretary of the Interior, has been holding office under the past two Republican administrations. We have never heard of any special service he rendered to the party, nor have we heard of him possessing outstanding qualifications which would fit him for the office he now holds, or the one he held before he was ctapaulated into the present one in which he rattles around, and in which he has the opportunity to wave the big stick of discrimination.

Were he the possessor of any statesmanship, had he any regard for the traditions of the Republican party in which he masquerades as a member, he would not flaunt his manifest hate for the Negro.

He is said to be high up in the councils of Herbert Hoover as aspirant for the Presidency on the Republican ticket. It has been said that in the event of Hoover's nomination Work will be the national chairman. Should such an eventuality occur the Republican party will be freighted and handicapped with a chairman who will be the subject of attack from those colored people who will fight to the bitter end Negro baiters, segregationists and lily-whites.

If the present outfit now masquerading under the name of Republican thinks of the Negro as it did twenty-five years ago it is due to a rude awakening. If they want segregation to be the issue in the next campaign, we are ready.

Political 1928

Party Affiliation.

Repubs Pledge Hoover Support

Fourteen Delegates Go To Commerce Secretary

By ATTICUS MULLIN

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 16.—Not a ripple appeared on the surface during a two-hour session of the state Republican convention here Wednesday afternoon at which Herbert Hoover was endorsed for the presidential nomination, four Hoover delegates at large chosen, and National Committeeman Oliver D. Street was endorsed.

Correction

The selection of four Hoover delegates at the convention Wednesday chalks up 14 of the 15 Republican delegates from Alabama for Hoover. One delegate from the Tenth District was instructed by his district convention for Lowden.

5-17-28

It was whispered around the hotel lobbies Wednesday morning that there was a possibility of a scrap in the convention that would be started by the delegates from the Tenth Congressional District especially directed against the ruling Republican powers in Alabama. But not a voice was raised. President Coolidge's administration was emphatically endorsed, Herbert Hoover was endorsed, Committeeman O. D. Street was endorsed and State Chairman Swan was endorsed.

Ex-Gov. W. L. Harding of Iowa delivered an address to the convention and lauded Herbert Hoover and the Republican party. His address brought applause from the large number of delegates assembled in the Jefferson Theater.

Jere Murphy of Huntsville was the chairman of the meeting and presided during the two hours' deliberations, one of the shortest state conventions and one of the tamest Alabama Republicans have ever held.

Those named as delegates at large to Kansas City were Dr. J. C. Swan, Mobile; Foy Guin, Russellville; H. G. Ashley, Ashville, and W. E. Snead, Birmingham. Alternate delegates named were S. B. Adams, Mrs. Martha Hoffman, Miss Ella Perryman and John McEniry.

The convention referred the question of naming a state ticket to oppose the Democrats in the November election to the state committee that will meet later in the year.

SUN
BALTIMORE, MD.
MAY 4 1928

Republican

PRIMARY NEAR, NEGROES MADE "WHITE WINGS"

Fifty Reported Employed By Jacoby In Week Or Ten Days.

EMPLOYES TOLD TO ROUND UP VOTES

Letter Over Schuch's Name Brings Charge By Main.

Virtually on the eve of the primary election, which takes place next Monday, came the information at the City Hall yesterday that large groups of Negroes were being put to work in the Bureau of Street Cleaning.

Fifty have been employed by Frank W. Jacoby, head of the bureau, within the last week or ten days, it was said.

Vote Round-Up Urged.

At the same time, Charles W. Main, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Baltimore, charged that a Republican ward executive, who was Commissioner of Street Cleaning in Mayor Broening's first administration, had circularized city employes and urged them to work for the Broening-Marchant-Lowndes-Jackson faction of the party. The executive is Adolph P. Schuch, of the Seventh ward.

In connection with the hiring of Negroes by a member of the Republican administration, it was pointed out that Negro "white wings" were an innovation in Baltimore. William A. Larkins, former Commissioner of Street Cleaning and a Democrat, had Negroes working in his mosquito gangs.

118 Men Laid Off.

It also was learned that 118 per diem laborers, all white, have been laid off since April 19, and 186 new men employed in the same period. The figures are for the Bureau of Street Cleaning and the construction bureaus of the Department of Public Works.

Of the new men fifty were put to work on May 1, according to employment tickets that passed through the office of the City Service Commission and the Central Pay Roll Bureau. Whether they were the Negroes put to work by Mr. Jacoby the records did not disclose. Other new men were employed in daily groups of from two to thirty-seven. There was one group of twenty-five, two of eighteen, one of twenty-two and one of twelve.

The dismissals were in groups of from six to twenty-one. They were presumed to be Democrats, or Republicans affiliated with the Weller-Tait faction in various wards of the city, but particularly in the East Baltimore wards.

Changes Cause Talk.

The lay-offs and the employment of new men gave rise to considerable discussion in the Bureau of Street Cleaning and in other bureaus of the Department of Public Works, but no mention was made of the situation at a meeting of the City Service Commission yesterday, nor at the Pay Roll Bureau.

At both offices it was said that the employment and cut-off tickets were passed on as they were received, and the men either taken off or placed on the per diem rolls as the circumstances demanded.

Bureau heads involved in the transactions asserted that the increases in their rolls were "customary at this time of the year, with the beginning of spring work."

Employment of new men and the dismissal of old men will continue, it was said, until the per diem forces are "stabilized" for the spring and summer work. It was pointed out that in the absence of a labor registration bureau, as called for in the Charter, the City Service Commission has no control over the per diem forces. They can be laid off and employed at the will of the bureau and department heads.

It is the only class of employe left to the politicians, and it was said at the City Hall that the Republican district and ward leaders appeared to be taking advantage of the opportunity thus afforded to strengthen their organization for the primary on Monday.

Reports in political circles yesterday were that Oscar B. Chenoweth, a district member of the Republican City Committee, was slated for the new position of secretary to the Appeal Tax Court, created by the Board of Estimates last Tuesday, when the position of chief assessment clerk was abolished, effective May 15.

Several days ago Mr. Chenoweth, in a letter to J. Craig McLanahan, charged that "under the guise of financing a Hoover Presidential campaign" the Maryland Hoover-for-President committee "is collecting and expending contributions" in the interest of the Weller-Tait faction of the Republican party.

McLanahan Denies Charge.

Mr. McLanahan is chairman of the Hoover committee. He denied the charges and declared that the books of the committee were open for inspection by any responsible person who cared to look at them.

Albert K. Sherman, Democratic executive of two precincts in the Twelfth ward, has held the position of chief assessment clerk for a number of years.

As secretary to the court, Mr. Chenoweth would take over Mr. Sherman's duties.

Until recently Mr. Chenoweth was a follower of O. E. Weller. He is now running on the Jackson-Lowndes-Marchant-Broening ticket for delegate to the State convention from the Fifth district.

Schuch Denies Writing It.

"I am very much under the weather and some one else is attending to these matters for me," Mr. Schuch said last night.

"I did not write the letter and am not responsible for it. Somebody wrote the letter and signed my name to it, thinking that I would approve it."

"Do you approve it?" Mr. Schuch was asked.

"Well, it suits what I am trying to accomplish, he replied.

Predicts Success.

Mr. Schuch said, although in poor health, "there is still some fight left in me."

"I want to win this fight," he added, "and we are going to carry the ward (the Seventh) by an overwhelming majority."

Letter Advises Workers To Back Mayor's Ticket

Charges that a letter which Adolph P. Schuch, Republican executive of the Seventh ward, is alleged to have circulated "indicates plainly that the money of the taxpayers of Baltimore is being used", to aid the Marchant-Lowndes-Jackson faction of the Republican party were made yesterday by Charles W. Main, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Baltimore.

"Expected To Do Part."

Mr. Main's charges were contained in a statement he issued. The following sections from the letter, over Mr. Schuch's typewritten name, are quoted as follows in the statement:

"Mayor William F. Broening is very much interested in the outcome of this (the primary) election, and as you are employed by the city you are expected to do your part to assist in getting out the vote and urging your friends to vote for the candidates in which Mayor Broening and the Seventh Ward Active Republican Association are interested.

Will Watch Returns.

"All city employes are expected to spend as much time as possible between now and election day in their precincts canvassing for votes and to assist their respective precinct executives on election day to get out the vote, and I am looking to them to do this and expect to scrutinize the returns of their respective precincts."

Mr. Schuch is aligned with the Marchant-Lowndes-Jackson faction of the party and is opposed to the Weller-Tait group. Each faction is attempting to obtain control of the Republican State Convention by the election Monday of delegates who are favorable to its cause.

Winner Controls Convention.

The Marchant forces are backing William P. Jackson, Salisbury, for reelection as National Committeeman. The Weller forces are opposed to Mr. Jackson and are presumably supporting O. E. Weller for committeeman, although the former United States Senator has not announced himself as a candidate for the post.

The faction which acquires control of the State convention will elect the majority of the delegates to the national convention, who in turn elect the National Committeeman.

Says Letter Proves Charge.

Mr. Main's statement in part is as follows:

"It has been for some time a notorious fact that Mr. Marchant (Roland R. Marchant, city boss) and his forces have been using every possible agency of the city government of Baltimore to influence sentiment and make votes for their ticket.

"That this charge made against the Marchant forces is true is proved by a letter written by Adolph P. Schuch, executive of the Seventh ward. The letter indicates plainly that the money of the taxpayers of the city of Baltimore is being used in a Republican primary for the purpose of electing the Marchant and Jackson delegates to the Republican State Convention.

Asks Mayor's Opinion.

"The letter from Mr. Schuch, which is dated May 2, 1928, was sent out generally to the registered voters in the Seventh ward.

"What has Mayor Broening to say concerning this use, from his standpoint, or misuse, from the standpoint of the public, of the taxpayers' money?"

Concord, N. C., Tribune
Monday, May 7, 1928

AFTER THE NEGRO VOTE.

The much discussed action of Secretary Hoover in ordering that negroes working in the census bureau be scattered among whites in the several offices is palpably a campaign gesture calculated to catch negro votes for him. There will be quite a few negro delegates at Kansas City, most of them from the South but some also from states like Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other states necessary to Republican success. As close as the race for the Republican nomination now is the votes of negro delegates might easily prove decisive.

It could hardly be argued that Secretary Hoover has been on the job seven years and has just now found out that the negro employes had been confined to one section of the bureau. It took a protest from a quarter that indicated negro delegate strength to get the attention of the usually alert Mr. Hoover.

The new arrangement will probably last until after the election in November, and then no matter who is elected the negro census bureau employes will probably slip back into the basement to stay until another presidential election impends.—Lexington Dispatch.

Friends of the Commerce Secretary picture him as some gigantic being who cares nothing about public office or the high position that goes with such office. They picture him as a superior sort of man, with no ambition but one to serve his fellowman. They would make one think that Secretary Hoover would accept the presidency only as a sort of sacrifice.

All of which is pure bunk. He wants to be president and he is making the usual political gestures in his effort to land the nomination. We are confident the negro employes would be in their usual place today were it not for the approaching convention and election, and we are inclined to agree with The Dispatch in their belief that after November they will be segregated, regardless of who is president.

If Secretary Hoover is elected he will send them back, for they will have served their purpose. And if a Democrat is elected he will send them back on the cry that both colored and white employe are better off when in surroundings peculiarly fitting for each.

Mr. Hoover stooped to the level of the average politician when he made this bid for the negro vote.

TO DESERT G. O. P'.S FOR DEMOCRATS

Negroes of Richmond Issue Warning to the Republican Party. Are in Favor of Al Smith

RICHMOND, Va., May 9.—(Special)—Republicans of Richmond were caused much concern Monday, when Race political leaders of the city announced that their constituents planned to desert the ranks of the Republican Party for the Democrats. The 5,000 Race voters of Richmond to nearly a man will vote the Democratic ticket in the presidential elections next Fall contingent upon the Democrats picking Al Smith as their candidate, it was said.

A test suit for damages growing out of colored voters being refused ballots in the Democratic Mayorality primary April 5, last is in U. S. District Court for trial next week. Upon the outcome of this case will rest the possibility of the colored voters becoming Democrats.

NORRIS CHARGES SOUTHERN G. O. P. VOTES FOR SALE

Convention Delegates Purchased Like Mere Merchandise; Faction Holds Control, He Says.

Washington, June 7. — (United News.)—Delegates from the south to the republican national convention have been bought and sold like merchandise over the counter, Senator Norris, Nebraska, republican, charged in a formal statement tonight.

"The country is witnessing a spectacle that occurs every four years," the senator said, "just prior to the national republican convention.

"It is the buying and the selling and the trading and the trafficking in delegates from the solid south to the republican national convention.

Contests Settled.

"The newspapers announce that these contests have been settled. Everybody knows how they were started, how they were continued, why they were started, and something about the cost of it.

"They have been handled and dealt in just like the merchant sells his goods across the counter. They come from a section where everybody knows there is no possibility of a republican presidential elector being elected, and yet, from these southern states there come delegates enough to hold the balance of power and nominate a president of the United States.

"The machinery there, everybody knows, is illegal, corrupt and disgraceful," Norris continued.

Dominating Factor.

"It is common knowledge that the delegates from the solid south, as a rule, have a republican organization only for the purpose of trafficking in government offices and in cold cash, but yet they are often the dominating influence in selecting a candidate for the republicans of the balance of the country.

"After these disgraceful and reprehensible methods have been successful and the man named, the balance of republicans over the nation must furnish the votes and the sinews of war and are supposed to shout and yell themselves hoarse in order to induce republicans to 'vote'er straight,' yellow dog and all."

Norris, although classified as a republican, has been the leader in the senate independent bloc. He has been mentioned as a presidential candidate and has 35 delegates from Nebraska and Wisconsin pledged to his candidacy.

Americus, Ga., Recorder
Saturday, May 26, 1928

BEN DAVIS, GEORGIA G.O.P. HEAD, GETS HIS.

Ben Davis, the Negro Republican National committeeman, is busy these days explaining about that contribution given by the Hoover people. You'll recall that the Georgia Republicans endorsed Mr. Hoover for presidential candidate at Kansas City next month.

The LaGrange Reporter thinks the Hoover stock in the South is going down, saying:

Unless we misjudge Southern sentiment, the testimony given before the Senate campaign funds committee by Rush Holland, Hoover agent, that he gave $2,200 to Ben Davis, negro Republican committeeman of Georgia, in addition to giving sums to other negro politicians in other states in the South, will effectively block whatever hope there may have been of a Southern bolt to Hoover in case he is nominated.

Following the testimony of Rush Holland, Ben started explaining what he did with the boodle. Joseph Watson, an Albany Negro, saw the weak spot in Ben's armor and now is out for Ben's job. Joseph wants to be national committeeman of the Grand Old Party and will carry his fight to Kansas City, where the jobs are parceled out. Of Joseph, the Albany Herald makes these observations:

It appears that the pot is already boiling from the fire kindled by this Georgia contest. The recent Republican state convention endorsed Herbert Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination, but did not instruct the Georgia delegation for him. That, together with certain other developments in which the fine Italian hand of Ben Davis, present national committeeman for Georgia, has been seen, is understood to have aroused the resentment of the Hoover supporters, and they covet Davis' scalp. If current reports are to be believed, ten of the sixteen Georgia delegates to the Kansas City convention are pledged against Davis, which is understood to mean that they are pledged to Watson.

Joseph H. Watson is a leader of his race in this state. His life has been spent in Albany, where he has many friends in both races. He is president of the Supreme Circle of Benevolence, a Negro fraternal and benevolent order with headquarters in Albany and lodges in several states. It owns a handsome headquarters building, and publishes a sprightly weekly newspaper which is circulated among its members. Watson is an able executive, he has tact and judgment in which Ben Davis often seems to be lacking, and it is not surprising that he should have been selected to lead a movement to oust the present Georgia national committeeman.

The G. O. P. pie counter is ladened with good things and we see no reason why a South Georgia Negro should not step up and feed for awhile. Ben has grown sleek and fat. Bring up the hungry ones.

Adel, Ga., News
Friday, May 25, 1928

Ben Davis, the negro National Committeeman of the Republican party from Georgia, received two thousand dollars for his services from the friends of a Republican Presidential candidate. And yet some Southern white people announce that they will vote with Davis in the event the Democrats nominate a certain candidate for President. Well, we won't. That's all.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

BOB CHURCH WINS AGAIN

THE greatest concerted effort ever made in Memphis to defeat Robert R. Church and his white colleagues who are seeking a square deal for the Negro citizen in that thriving city has ended in ignominous failure. Mr. Church and his white friend, E. H. Crump, had for weeks been the targets of the most vicious attacks this country has seen for many years. Opposed by a little group of irreconcilable lily white Republicans, the powerful Commercial Appeal and Clarence Saunders, the grocery store chain magnate, Mr. Church won his seat on the Republican State Central Committee by a majority of ten to one in the August 2 primary, and McAllister, Crump's candidate for Governor of Tennessee, carried Shelby County, where Memphis is situated by a majority of more than 20,000, while Horton, the opposition's candidate for Governor received less than 2,500 votes in the county.

This is the more remarkable when the nature of the Opposition's attacks is considered. For days Clarence Saunders, whose fortune has been built out of the nickels and dimes of Negro cooks, washerwomen and laborers, had been carrying page advertisements in The Commercial Appeal, the leading Memphis daily newspaper, attacking Ed Crump, the Democratic leader, for making an alleged unholy alliance with Bob Church and charging there was a conspiracy to urge Negro voters to capture the Democratic primary and control Memphis. These vicious advertisements were supplemented by equally vicious and mob-inciting editorials and cartoons in the Appeal almost every day intended to make the people of Memphis believe that the city was on the verge of a grave crisis. The Opposition also strung great banners across Main street and on motor trucks with the legend "Horton is no Bob Church Democrat." Thus Bob Church became the main target, and when his victory was announced the town wildly celebrated.

Other Negro communities might borrow a page from Memphis, for the victory of Bob Church and his friends was not the result of chance but of calculation. Back in August, 1927 George W. Lee, Church's lieutenant, organized the West Tennessee Civic and Political League for the purpose of protecting the liberties of the Negroes and obtaining new concessions. In a short time this league qualified 12,000 Negro voters, almost 40 per cent of the voting population of the city, and so well did the league control those 12,000 black votes that less than 50 voted for the Opposition. As a result, J. Rowlett Paine, the Mayor, who had said that a Negro would never sit in one of the city parks or hold a municipal job was relegated to the political ash heap in an avalanche of black votes. Realizing that the Negro held the balance of power in the city, The Commercial Appeal attempted to create a situation in which anybody running for office aside from the candidates it approved would be afraid to seek Negro votes. Hence the vicious editorials and cartoons. An alliance between Church and Crump was suspicioned since in every campaign except the Democratic primaries, the Negro votes have gone to a Crump candidate. While the Opposition realized that few Negroes would vote in the Democratic primaries, the cry of Negro domination was raised to scare the whites into voting for Horton, their candidate. This effort failed because the Negro political organization held five rallies every night, completely canvassed every ward and brought home to every Negro voter the absolute necessity of voting solidly for Church and the candidates endorsed by the organization.

The result of this primary election in Memphis shows what the Negro can do in the way of organization when intelligently led by fearless men of his group. If this can be done in Memphis, why not in Atlanta, San Antonio, Jacksonville, Birmingham, Houston, Raleigh and a dozen other communities in the "Solid South?" And if it can be done in the South why isn't it possible for Negroes to do the same thing in St. Louis, Philadelphia, Kansas City and New York? Of course it is possible, Chicago and Memphis have shown how it can be done. It remains for other communities to follow their example.

VOTES OF NEGROES MAY DETERMINE OUTCOME OF PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

Figures Show 5,588,500 Voters of the Race in Country

THE NORTHERN STATES ARE THE MAIN FACTOR

Balance of Power Almost Certain to Rest With Colored Vote

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug 8. — That the Negroes' votes are a potential power in determining the outcome of the presidential election may be attested by figures recently gathered to show the relative voting power of Race voters and white voters in the United States.

Facts disclosed by the investigation were as follows:

There are about 5,588,500 Negroes of voting age in the United States. While the bulk of them are located in the South where they do not count, or at least are not counted at the polls, according to Republican leaders there are a sufficient number in many of the pivotal and in some of the border States to determine the result in a close election.

According to the Census Bureau the Negro population of the country numbered 10,463,131 in 1920, and it is estimated that it was 11,698,000 in 1927. About one-half of the number estimated for 1927 had reached the voting age.

New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri, are States with a comparatively large Negro population that are regarded as either doubtful or debatable in the political contest now under way. The census of 1920 showed that each of those States had enough Negro voters that year to cut quite a figure in a national election.

The census reports disclose that in 1920 there were 5,522,274 Negroes of both sexes who had reached the voting age out of a total colored population in excess of 10,000,000. From 1920 to 1927 the number of Negroes increased to over 11,689,000, with a corresponding increase in the number of voters of that race.

In 1920 the snsus showed Negro voters in the States named as follows:

New York, 142,544; New Jersey, 75,671, Pennsylvania 191,226; Illinois, 128,090; Indiana, 53,935; Ohio 126,940; Tennessee, 245,395; Kentucky, 143,881; Missouri, 121,328, and Maryland, 141,991.

Of the total of 5,522,524 Negro voters in 1920, 2,792,006 were men and 2,730,274 women.

There are other States where the Negro is by no means a negligible factor in politics. For example there was a colored population of more than 149,000 in Oklahoma in 1920, and of these more than 76,000 had attained the voting age.

Kansas had 79,725 Negroes within her borders in 1920, and of the number 37,000 were entitled to vote. In New England the population of Negroes was: Massachusetts, 45,466; Connecticut, 21,046; Rhode Island, 10,036 Vermont, 572; New Hampshire, 621 and Maine 1,310.

Race Republican Bolters Uniting

Argus Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—That organization of Race bolters from the Republican party is proceeding on a national basis somewhat faster than expected was indicated by a display of correspondence from various parts of the country received by J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, in response to his call for a meeting of the Negro Voters League in Chicago, August 24.

Dr. S. P. W. Drew, evangelist, who was named for the vice presidential office on an interracial ticket headed by Jacob S. Coxey, of Massilon, Ohio, also announced notification ceremonies in Philadelphia on Labor Day.

The Coxey movement in Ohio had joined with the movement to elect Harry C. Smith, editor, as governor of Ohio. The Coxey notification will be made in Ohio by J. P. Green of Cleveland, on the same day as the Drew notification in Philadelphia. Smith as an Ohio candidate for various offices has polled normally 50,000 votes.

It was also stated by Dr. Drew that the notification address, in Philadelphia, would be made by Dr. Willis J. Winston, president of the Northern Baptist University. Mrs. D. F. Jackson of Selena, Mo. has been named by the United Woman's Political League to organize colored women. The movement headed by Wilson plans a Race party organization in all doubtful states.

HOOVER URGES EQUALITY FOR ALL PERSONS

Says All Men Should Have Equal Opportunity Regardless of Race or Color

STRESSES SQUARE DEAL BEFORE LAW

Over 75,000 Hear Acceptance Address Of Republican Standard Bearer

Stanford, University Stadium, California.—Herbert Hoover, nominee for the presidency of the United States by the Republican Party, urged an equal opportunity for all regardless of faith or color in his formal acceptance of the nomination before over 75,000 persons who were gathered in the stadium Saturday.

He said the "founder of our republic propounded the revolutionary doctrine that all men are created equal and all should have equality before the law." He further stated that:

Urges Equality

Equality of opportunity is the right of every American—rich or poor, foreign or native-born, irrespective of faith or color. It is the right of every individual to attain that position in life to which his ability and character entitles him. By its maintenance we will alone hold open the door of opportunity to every new generation, to every boy and girl. It tolerates no privileged classes or castes or groups who would hold opportunity as their prerogative. Only from confidence that this right will be upheld can flow that unbounded courage and hope which stimulates each individual man and woman to endeavor and to achievement. The sum of their achievement is the gigantic harvest of national progress.

Political — 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

TEE-TOTALER IN THE SOUTH, BUT HE'S "ALL WET" IN THE EAST!

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

JUSTICE NOT PERSECUTION

Oscar DePriest, regular Republican candidate for Congress from the first congressional district of Illinois, has been indicted on charges implying election frauds. It has been virtually conceded that Mr. DePriest would have been elected if the present unforseen contingencies had not arisen. He would have been the first black man to have been elected to congress within the last twenty-seven years. He had the support and endorsement of the regular Republican organization within the congressional district and it has been freely predicted that he would be elected. The indictment returned against him by the special grand jury of Cook county investigating election frauds has raised a question in the minds of the black people all over the nation. Is DePriest the victim of persecution?

It seems strange that a scrutinizing and searching light has been turned upon the activities of our political leaders within the last few months. Davis of Georgia has been accused, Howard of Mississippi has been indicted and now DePriest of Illinois has been charged and branded. Are these men guilty as charged? We do not know.

If Mr. DePriest is guilty as charged we do not believe that the better class of black citizens of Illinois would countenance his perfidy and be inclined to white-wash his wrong-doing. But Mr.DePriest has not been proven guilty and under the law he is entitled to a reasonable doubt.

It has also been asked why the special grand jury has confined and limited its activities to the black and Jewish belts. Why have there not been investigations in other wards of Chicago. What caused the special grand jury to overlook the notorious First ward? It is admitted by all that vice and corruption has not confined itself to black and Yiddish wards. The public is primarily concerned in cleaning up the entire city of Chicago and the concentration upon certain districts in our opinion has not smacked of sincerity or good faith but rather of sinister political motives.

We hold no brief or defense for vice, gambling or vote frauds and this newspaper takes pride in the fact that it inaugurated the fight on these conditions some years ago. We admit that there is gambling, policy-playing, crap shooting and various iniquities existing in the ward. They are wrong and stultify the growth of our people but we do not desire to see our leaders made the goats and be made martyrs for so-called political purity when the real motive is political design.

We do not know that DePriest is guilty, his guilt under the law is not even presumed. He should be accorded every reasonable doubt until convicted and sentenced. We believe that we are justified in the light of all the facts in presuming him innocent. The trial will tell and if it develops that he is the victim of political persecution the hearts of the black electorate will be embittered. We want justice and a square deal. We are tired of discrimnatory tactics and even if DePriest is guilty as charged we want the entire city of Chicago purged of its filth and corruption.

We are not unmindful of the other indictments returned against black men but the case of DePriest is of national interest and vital momentum because he is making history in seeking a seat in congress. We want justice not persecution.

The Ludicrous Attempt to Create a Jim Crow Republican Party.

Commercial Appeal

The attempt of the Press-Scimitar and a little group of willful white Republicans to eliminate Bob Church from direction of the Hoover campaign is one of our local political absurdities.

If Church does not direct the campaign in Memphis, it will be because he is engaged in political matters of more consequence.

10-6-28

If Church does not personally conduct the Hoover campaign in Shelby County it will be conducted by one of his lieutenants.

Memphis Press

It is surprising that anyone should question his authority. He won over the lily white faction in the August primary.

He and his faction were recognized in Kansas City. His delegation was seated in the temporary organization. He won the contest before the credentials committee.

No federal appointment is made in Memphis and Shelby County under a Republican administration without his endorsement.

Federal office-holders and applicants for federal favor not only admit his authority, but seek his favor.

His part in Republican affairs was recognized by appointment on the committee that notified Hoover of his nomination.

The present controversy smacks of ingratitude. Church is a Republican year in and year out. He is high in the councils of his party.

It is rank hypocrisy to ask him to efface himself to make way for Democratic recruits who find the color line an obstacle to complete conversion to Republicanism.

Church is modest and unassuming. He never projects himself into the spotlight of local politics. His work is done in his Beale Street office in Memphis and in the White House in Washington.

He might consent to the appointment of a titular leader locally, but he would not surrender his power and prestige with the national Republican organization. There is no call on him to do so.

The lily white Republicans and the lily pure Democrats who support Hoover might as well make up their minds that there is no such thing as a Jim Crow Republican organization.

The demand that Church and other negro Republicans make way for disaffected Democrats who want to ride with the Republican party for this trip only is a striking bit of audacity.

It is one of the traditions of the south that the Democratic party is the white man's party, and the Republican party is the negro party. It is not only a tradition of the past, but a fact of the present.

We have insisted that white persons only should vote in a Democratic primary in Tennessee. We have insisted on the right of the negro to vote in a Republican primary and as he pleases in a general election.

To exclude the negro from the Republican party to make place for white Klansmen would deprive him of his natural party affiliation and of the right of franchise.

We believe in being fair and honest in politics as in other things. Subterfuge and deception are reprehensible.

Church is the head of the Republican party in this county. He ranks higher than J. Will Taylor in the state.

His influence in the Republican party is more extensive in the south than any man, white or black.

Why muddy the water? Why attempt to deceive anybody? If the Republican party continues in control, Church will continue to be head of the party in Tennessee.

An Open Letter To The Hon. John R. Slater, Chairman Democratic Campaign Committee

Dear Sir:

It comes to our attention, that you photographed last week, the first page of the Atlanta Independent, dated September 20, 1928; and from said photostat copy, you printed and circulated thousands of circulars imitating the first page of the Independent and mailed these imitations out to white folks only; with the ulterior motive of conveying to the Anti-Smith Democrats the idea that a Negro had called them "bastards." You knew well at the time you printed, uttered and circulated said propaganda, that Ben Davis did not have Smith Democrats, nor Anti-Smith Democrats in mind, when he wrote the article. He wrote the article as a rebuke and description of that aggregation of white men who called themselves Republicans but are designated by the regulars as "lily-whites."

Col. Slater did not, and could not have misunderstood our meaning, or misinterpreted our purpose, unless he is of a very low degree of mentality; and everybody knows that the Colonel is mentally bright though he may be lacking in political experience and acumen. But possibly Mr. Slater is following the well established rule of the Democratic party, to mislead, misrepresent, and becloud the issue in order to hide its lack of a cause.

The Negro World in discussing the political outlook as it effects the Negro made this remark: "The present political editorial policy of the Independent is one of the mysteries of the ages. It is a safe guess that there is not a Negro in the country, with the possible exception of Mr. Davis, who can advance one good reason why the Atlanta Independent is today one hundred per cent Republican. The Republican party has given the editor of the Atlanta Independent one of the worst snubs ever delivered a national Negro leader."

In answering we said, that the "Independent is one hundred per cent Republican because it cannot be bought by Democrats money, or bulldozed out of the party by lily-white bastard Republicans and commercialized Negro grafters, who would sell their wives and daughters into political slavery and economic ruin, for pelf and plunder"

Mark you, we said nothing at all about Democrats of any kind except to say, we could not be bought by them, and when we said "bastards" we had wholly and solely in mind the lily-white element who argue to the Republicans north, that the only thing that keeps the south solid is the Negro, and if the Negro is disfranchised and denied his constitutional rights, the solidity of the south will disappear like a snow ball before the sun.

But the particular thing that we want to call Mr. Slater's attention to, is the question of common every day fairness. He used our article without our consent or authority; and he used it for the purpose of placing us in a false light before the public. Not for the purpose, primarily of doing us personal injury, but as a means of shaming and brow beating the Anti-Smith Democrats back into the regular Democratic organization, and to divert the Anti-Smith Democrats attention from the real issues, by holding up the menace of white supremacy and Negro domination. Now, since we have explained our position we call on Mr. Slater to correct his errors by photographing the front page of this issue, and printing thousands of this weeks front page in circular form and mail them out to white folks only that they may see that he is fair and honest in his dealings with the public. This is not asking any more than what is just and right. If a man misleads the people and imposes upon them misrepresentations, or propaganda contrary to the facts, it is the duty of the individual to correct his error by enlightening the public as soon as he finds out the truth.

The Anti-Smith Democrats is a separate and distinct political organization from either the Democratic or Republican party. It is not helping Mr. Hoover as Republicans, but as Democrats choosing between two evils and are accepting the lesser of the two. These people will return to the Democratic party, or will set themselves up as the party just as soon as the Slaters, and the Smiths return to the democracy of Jefferson and Jackson. These men standing for principles and not for policies, or whatever is expedient, moral or immoral, will not be frightened from what they conceive to be their plain duty by the falsehood and misrepresentation, that a Negro has called them "bastards."

Mr. Slater must think that the Anti-Smith Democrats can not read english and construe it for themselves, or he would not spend thousands of dollars printing imitations of the front page of the Atlanta Independent, trying to convince the Anti-Smith Democrats that a Negro has called them illegitimate political heirs; which is sufficient cause to make them vote for liquor and Tammany Hall corruption. Come clean Mr. Chairman since you have the truth and nothing but the truth, from the man who wrote the article, and knows what was in his heart and mind, and the moral courage to express it, photograph this page, print it in circular form and distribute it among the white people of Georgia, as an evidence that you love the truth better than error. You published an imitation of our front page last week without our knowledge, consent, or authority, but now we give you authority and authorize you to photograph and publish this front page, that you may have the opportunity to tell the truth and set your self free.

Political-1928

Party Affiliation.

Birmingham, Ala., News
Wednesday, October 3, 1928

POLITICAL CHAOS THREATENS SOUTH

Mississippi Veteran Points To Danger If "White Man's Party Unseated"

MERIDIAN, Miss., Oct. 3—B. F. Quarles, adjutant of the Walthall Camp, United Confederate Veterans, issues the following warning to the voters of Mississippi and the South:

"Place Mississippi in the Republican column and you inaugurate political chaos. I suppose I'm an old sinner. Probably if my memory were not so acute I might be in sympathy with these brethren who are engaged in proclaiming Hoover from their pulpits and proclaiming his temperance. It seems to me that just a moderate exercise of political sanity would be sufficient to demonstrate to any son or daughter of the men who died for a principle that to place our state in the clutches of the repugnant Republican party would be the reincarnation of the same reprehensible situation that menaced the state during our reconstruction days from 1865 to 1878, in which I actively participated.

"The negro of today differs materially from the negro of the reconstruction days and will be a more formidable foe of the Democratic party. He will necessarily be heard from in his aspirations politically and socially, he will aspire to representation in our Legislature; he will exact representation in Congress, he will demand the doing away of all segregation laws. Can we protest? No! The negroes of our state can now comply with the requirements of the constitution as to his qualifications and you cannot bar them from participation in all the privileges accorded any American citizen.

"During the period in which the negro participated in the exercise of political aspirations, he met success. The following negroes were secretaries of state: James Lynch, H. R. Levels, H. C. Carter, James Hill. A. K. Davis was lieutenant governor; T W. Carooze was superintendent of education; J. D. Worles was state librarian; James R. Lynch was speaker of the House; I. D. Shodd was also speaker.

"I question whether many of our citizens realize that such a situation existed in our state. If not, they should inform themselves before they engage in a crusade to encourage further desertion from the Democratic party.

"From my viewpoint, I regard Hoover and Smith as about equal as to their 'wetness,' in fact, they approach being 'prohibition twins' and I am persuaded neither of them would object to a little occasionally just for their stomach's sake—more to follow later—and while some of our ministers are praying for Hoover, I shall pray for the continuance of Democracy in Mississippi."

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
Sunday, September 30, 1928

Thousands

WILD CHEERS GREET THRUST AT REPUBS

Dothan Democrat Points To Achievements; Henry Steagall Joins Campaign

DOTHAN, ALA., Sept. 29.—(Special)—Over 1,000 people packed and jammed into the courthouse, blocking the aisles and occupying all available standing room and equally as large a number crowded about the front of the building unable to gain entrance, to hear Tom Espy of Dothan and Henry B. Steagall, congressman from the Third District, speak this afternoon in support of the Democratic nominee for the presidency.

Probably no more enthusiastic audience ever received a political speech in Dothan. From the moment Tom Espy began his speech with the reciting of "Don't you hear those beels go ting a ling a ling? Don't you hear those angels sweetly sing. There will be a hot time in the old town tonight." Until the climax of Congressman Steagall's speech, when he informed the audience that he had no apology to make for campaigning for the election of Al Smith, deafening applause literally shook the rafters.

Turning back the pages of time to other years when presidential elections in the South were taken seriously, the local artillery band played and marched about the downtown streets, led by banner carriers, ending the parade on the courthouse grounds. Shouts of "Hurrah for Al Smith" added color to the setting.

John W. Rish, chairman of the Houston County Democratic campaign committee, presided at the meeting this afternoon, introducing the speakers. His short talk, during which he read excerpts from the Atlanta Independent, published by Ben Davis, Georgia negro Republican leader, was also roundly applauded.

"I was born in Henry County," declared Tom Espy, the first speaker on the program, "my ancestors came from North Carolina to Barbour County to live. Their forefathers were Irish, and like Al Smith, Irish blood runs in my veins."

Mr. Espy related how his people had taken part in every war fought by America, citing the fact that one of his ancestors, Capt. Sam Espy won victory for his country and fame for himself in the revolution; that his father and three uncles left their homes and loved ones to fight in the Civil War and that his uncles were killed in battle; that two brothers entered the Spanish-American war and one was killed, and that his own son died in the World War. "Me and my people have always remained true to our country and to the Southland," he said.

Mr. Espy was enthusiastically applauded when he related how the enfranchised negro in reconstruction days were defeated at the polls and when he emphatically declared that the efforts of the Republicans to break the solid South would be in vain.

Mr. Steagall, who followed Mr. Espy on the platform, declared that he fought the nomination of Smith, but since he was selected by the two-thirds majority rule in convention he would stand by his party. He reviewed the Republican corruption during the past eight years and stressed the efforts of the Democratic party to obtain the development of Muscle Shoals declaring that if Smith was elected this work, for the benefit of the farmer, would go forward.

Milton, Fla., Gazette
Thursday, September 4, 1928

NEGRO LOSES SUIT TO GET VOTING RIGHT

Judge Holds Democrats Can Bar Anyone From Primaries

Circuit Judge Thomas F. West ruled yesterday that the Democratic committee can legally prevent negroes from voting in a white Democratic primary.

His decision in the case of H. D. Goode, negro, against three election inspectors is based on the fact that a primary election does not come under the jurisdiction of the fifteenth amendment which has been interpreted to give negroes the right of franchise.

Primary Different

In the case of a primary election, however, Judge West has ruled that the party executive committee has the right to restrict the electors in almost any way it chooses.

Republican.

When he brought suit for $5,000 damages against Thomas A. Johnson, C. J. Bell and Paul F. Riera because he was not allowed to vote in the city primary, Goode based his declaration on the fact that his rights under the constitution had been abridged.

Texas Case

Pointing out that this was not his interpretation of the fifteenth amendment when primary elections were cnocerned. Judge West quoted a Texas decision, upheld by the United States supreme court, in which the right of political party organizations to establish their own qualifications for voters, is set forth.

Judge West's decision was handed down on a demurrer to the answer to Goode's suit which was overruled. It is believed this will cause the damage suit to be withdrawn.

Goode's briefs in the case were filed by Attorney Fred W. Marsh, while the inspectors were represented by J. B. Jones, city attorney.—Pensacola Journal.

Call Asl

NEGROES ASKED NOT TO VOTE IN RECALL ELECTION

Cutter and Bolick Sign Appeal With Progress Club

The following statement by Commissioner Cutter was issued last night. Today it has been signed by Commissioner Bolick and the president of the Progress Club. We feel sure that it will be signed by Commissioner Hough as soon as he arrives in the city. Commissioner Starnes this morning said that he would rather wait until it had been presented to all the commissioners before he signed it.

Fort Myers, Florida
September 21, 1928

To the Editor of the Fort Myers Tropical News:

In an editorial in this morning's paper you charge the adherants of both factions in the recall campaign with the "responsibile business" of registering negroes. After admitting that you did not know who started it, you stated "but there is evidence that the major blame can be traced to a group which is on at least speaking terms with the Republican committee." You further stated, "This is not the time to discuss voting by negroes," and also, "It is too late to do anything about the registration, but the votes have not been cast."

Attached hereto is a communication addressed to the negro voters of the City of Fort Myers, and an agreement bearing my signature which I request the Progress Club, the Business Men's League of Fort Myers, and the other four commissioners named in the recall petition, to sign.

My action in this matter is prompted by a desire that the differences existing between the different factions in the coming recall election will be settled at the polls in a manner which will be satisfactory to all concerned.

In behalf of good government, I am,

Yours very truly,
A. B. CUTTER.

To the Negro Voters of the City of Fort Myers:

We, the undersigned, request that you do not vote in the recall election to be held October 2, 1928.

IT IS MUTUALLY AGREED by the undersigned that they will not, nor allow anyone in their behalf to, or any of their adherants to, insofar as it is within their power and control, solicit in any manner the vote of any negro for or against the recall, to transport any negro voter to or from the polls at the coming recall election, but, on the other hand, they will themselves exert all their influence and power, within legal limitations, to the end that the coming recall election shall be of the nature of a white primary.

The undersigned hereby ask the co-operation of every citizen, both black and white, so that in the coming recall election there shall be no ballots cast by negroes.

A. B. CUTTER,
Commissioner of Fort Myers.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
Monday, October 1, 1928

Even Republicans Admit Smith Will Get Big Vote In Hoover's Home State

By D. FIELD BRITTLE,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LOS ANGLES, Sept. 30—(AP)—Heaping portions of Hoover and Smith sentiment, spiced with prohibition and tariff, flavored with grapes, raisins and beans and the whole stirred "round in Colorado River Bouldier Dam water"—such is the political potpourri that California is brewing for tasting in November.

Those items and many more stand as the reasons why Californians will vote as they will, and they gave testimony also that this state that sent forth its adopted son as Republican color bearer is not necessarily unanimously for him, just as New York is not an indivisable unit behind its own Governor Smith.

It is a queer paradox in this season of paradoxes that certain elements of Hoover's own California have found more reasons that they believe to be sound for voting against him than have opposing groups in perhaps any other state. The verity of the unique situation is attested by Republican campaign leaders, but they declare the discordant forces to be small and misunderstanding minorities. The Hoover managers are not alarmed; they speak of winning majorities ranging from 300,000 to half a million votes, and they say so with an air of certainty and finality. At headquarters both here and in San Francisco spokesmen have a practice of saying that almost any calamity could befall the campaign and still not bring defeat. At the same time they concede Governor Smith is likely to poll a surprisingly large vote in this state.

Smith Victory Forecast.

The latter expression is the keynote of the Democratic campaign, a campaign that is singularly marked by perhaps more determination and resolution than by airy optimism. For publication the Smith managers speak of majorities of 50,000 votes or smaller, a forecast that admits that a Smith victory must be accomplished with Republican votes, for the Golden Poppy State is habitually Republican.

It is to a variety of sources that the Democrats look for Republican support. One of them dates back to the post-war days when the California bean grower suddenly found himself with a bumper crop and no market, a situation laid by some at the door of Herbert Hoover, who then was food administrator, dealing in food stuffs on a world-wide scale for the relief of the allies. The contentiton there, voiced also in Democratic circles, is that Hoover encouraged the bean growers to plant a record crop and then bought beans abroad instead of here.

Republican headquarters at San Francisco has taken cognizance of the circulating story by publishing a pamphlet entitled "How the California bean story became a political tear bomb." It sets forth that Hoover obtained options on Oriental beans only when it appeared that rainy weather was about to destroy the California crop. The weather then turned favorable, the pamphlet recites, and when the situation was about to straighten itself out, the armistice was signed and Europe laid down an embargo against food importations, eliminating California's needed market.

Hoover Uses Negro Labor.

The bean story is not the only one floating about the state in use against Hoover. Another concerns charges that the candidate had refused to employ white labor on his 1,300 acre farm at Wasco, in the southern part of the state. Republican headquarters sent a committee to investigate, and its report, also published in pamphlet form, declares that white labor was employed for the task it preferred, and that employment was on the basis of 50 per cent American, 25 per cent negro and the remainder Mexican.

Still, a third story, termed "fantastic" by Republicans, concerns the California grape and raisin, suddenly grown to political proportions. As detailed by both Democratic and Republican partisans, the trouble there is that the market is very unfavorable and by some process of reasoning not quite clear, the fault is charged to Mr. Hoover. His headquarters here now is preparing another pamphlet to show that Hoover is not to blame.

Combatting these cross currents has taken considerable of the Hoover managers' time and how well they succeed in retaining the farmer vote in the fertile California valleys awaits election day. Some Republican observers agree that Smith will run well among the farmers, not only on the farm relief issue but also on prohibition. Tariff enters into the picture as well, both Democrats and Republicans asserting that fruit and nut growers in particular need more protection and asserting their intentions to provide it.

GIBBONS INST. HEAD WON'T AID G. O. P.

Victor Daniels Returns Publicity To Mrs. Helen Cardoza State Leader

MABEL WILLEBR'NDT TOO

Fewer G. O. P. Heroines, Less Will Have To Blush For

RIDGE, Md.—Belief that many race voters are merely adhering to the Republican party because of their belief that the more effectual way of fighting the party's shortcomings is from within, was expressed by C. E. H. Daniel, head of Gibbons Institute, here, this week when he refused to lend his support to the present G. O. P. campaign.

Cites Willebrandt.

Returning to Mrs. Edith Cardozo, Baltimore, some Republican publicity matter that she had sent him, Mr. Daniel pointed out that no race voter could seriously believe the statements set forth in the appeal for support. Reviewing the unsavory conditions within the ranks of the G. O. P., Mr. Daniel said: "After the spectacle of Mrs. Willebrandt walking uninvited into the meeting of the National Association of Colored Women's Clubs, and actually addressing it, contrary, as they claim, to the wishes of its officers, and the more important spectacle from a national point of view of her entering into religious bigotry as a means of securing support, and her further indiscretions with regard to the enforcement of the Volstead Act — all these without challenge or rebuke — I certainly could not lend my little influence, which is most insignificant anyway, to furthering the Republican campaign.

"I have no illusions about either party, but at least I am forced into a certain respect for that party which has at least the courage of its convictions, even tho I may disagree with many of those convictions.

May Have To Blush

"As to the Republican campaign to date, it seems to me that the fewer heroics used as Negro make over it, the less we shall have to blush for."

Negro Cars With Smith Banners Touring South For G. O. P., Is Belief

Watch out for negroes in automobiles placarded with Al Smith banners!

This Democrats message is sent out to Democrats in the various counties from Birmingham. The reason for it is information obtained that the Republican national campaign bosses have equipped scores of such automobiles and loaded them down with negroes and Al Smith banners and sent them into southern states.

The object of the "negro invasion" is to prejudice the white voters in the rural sections against the Democratic national ticket and Gov. Al Smith. Report has it that the Republicans have become desperate over the plastering of the black man's label on the party and are attempting to overcome the handicap by the "negro invasion." Democrats are warned to look out for these negroes and report to their county chairman.

Silent Hoover

The more silence from G. O. P. Candidate Herbert Hoover, the more blatant becomes Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, Senator Thomas Heflin and the Ku Klux Klan.

All three of them make so much noise that Mr. Hoover is not only drowned out, but we doubt if he is saying anything at all. So palpable is this that Mr. Heywood Broun remarks in the current issue of the "Nation."

"Herbert Clark, Hoover is not running for anything, he's being run."

"Not one word has he uttered to offend the klan and all its kleagles. They may not be his men, but he is their's. Fanatics, trimmers, rascals have joined the train of Herbert Hoover, and nothing has come from the great humanitarian to discourage their support."

The Willebrandts, Ku Klux and Heflins are noising abroad in the land promising what Mr. Hoover will do to Negroes, Catholics and foreigners if elected, and the candidate in order to get the votes keeps his mouth shut tight.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Hoover promised if elected to carry out the policies of Mr. Coolidge. He makes good at the start so far as the Coolidge policy of silence is concerned.

By contrast Candidate Alfred Smith tours the country defining and explaining his views on campaign issues. Other democrats are aiding him in the campaign but to date Mr. Smith is exhibit A.

Out of the campaign two questions must occur naturally to the voters.

If elected, will Mr. Hoover find his tongue, or will the Willebrandts, ku klux and Hefflins continue to speak for him?

Secondly—Is Mr. Hoover's silence based on hypocrisy, strategy or plain fear to meet in public debate a militant speaker like Mr. Smith.

Think these things over since its inevitable that Mr. Smith or Mr. Hoover will be the next president.

While you are thinking, try to imagine Abraham Linclon or Theodore Roosevelt permitting "Aunt" Mabel and Uncle "Tom" do their talking.

Jack Johnson Bolts Party

HARTFORD, Conn. — Jack Johnson, who has been a staunch Democrat, got off the Donkey this week and crawled up on the Hoover bandwagon.

Because Chairman Raskob denied the heavyweight's affiliation with the Democrats, the former withdrew from the party.

NANNIE BURROUGHS URGES SUPPORT OF HOOVER & CURTIS

Warns Negro Not To Vote For Man Who Would Alter Constitution

Washington, D. C.—In a printed statement, Miss Nannie Burroughs, founder and principal of the National Training School, located here, and one of the most prominent colored women in America, urged colored voters, throughout the country, to support the Hoover-Curtis ticket in the national election on November 6.

She warned them "not to vote any man in power who proposes to tamper with the Constitution of the United States," referring to Gov. Smith.

"The test in this campaign is a test of the strength of the Amendments to the Constitution. If the Eighteenth Amendment is not strong enough to stand—if we vote men into office who sanction its modification or annulment—we might as well sign the death certificates of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments," said Miss Burroughs.

"Do not vote any man into power who proposes to tamper with the Constitution of the United States and do not forget that the party which Governor Smith represents did not help to write your rights into the Constitution and it should not therefore be given an opportunity to tamper with them. No chain is stronger than its weakest link. If you vote to weaken the eighteenth link, you weaken or jeopardize all of the links."

Political - 1928.

Party Affiliation.

NO NEGROES WANTED—UNTIL ELECTION DAY

Bob Church Must Take the Back Seat.

SHORTLE'S HAND FORCED

Memphis Lily Whites Afraid of Church's Effect Upon the White Dissentients, Will Have Separate Headquarters.

Bob Church and his negro Republican organization can name federal officials in Memphis, get mixed up with post office scandals, and even do what they can to corral negro votes along Beale Street or in Chicago, but he must sneak in the back door when he undertakes to sit in with the Republican organization now charged with the Hoover campaign in Shelby County.

The fuming and stewing among the lily-whites and the black and tans came to a sort of showdown yesterday. J. S. Shortle, the Republican county manager, after much capoling, some threats and considerable high-hatting, reductantly announced that Bod Church would not be named one of his vice chairmen.

"I am informed that his duties with the national Republican committee are such that he can not until election," said Mr. Shortle in a formal statement, "will be required for the work among the negroes in Chicago and New York."

And besides, Mr. Shortle continued, "the Memphis negroes have effected their own organization and they will have their own headquarters.

Commercial Appeal 10-5-28

Memphis Tenn.

Press-Scimitar Takes a Hand.

Of course. Mr. Shortle does not mean to state that his decision affects Bod Church's standing with Congressman J. Will Taylor, the patronage referee. Mr. Taylor a few days ago repudiated the report that any effort was being made higher up to give Church the air. Neither does Mr. Shortle undertake to state that the Republican national headqaurters will cease to look to Church for the conduct of the Hoover campjaign in this neck of the woods.

It does appear, however, that for the moment, at least, Church must stick around in the back yard, and not get out on the front porch.

Some credit for Mr. Shortle's reluctant decision must be given to T. E. Sharp, editor of the Memphis Press-Scimitar, a supporter of the Republican ticket. The Press-Scimitar during the last week has printed some pointed news items rather taking the side of the lily-whites who did not want to rub elbows with Church in public. The lily-whites themselves, without saying it publicly, nevertheless argued that the presence of Church as a Shelby County manager would prevent some of the Memphis lumbermen from lining up with Hoover and what is more important, would prevent a general shakedown for campaign funds.

Mr. Sharp got busy yesterday and sent the following telegram to George Akerson, Mr. Hoover's chief personal aid and secretary:

"It is reported that R. R. Church, negro political boss, is to be named vice chairman of Shelby County committee. If true, this means the alienation of thousands of Democrats who have made up their minds to vote for Hoover and will undoubtedly swing Tennessee to Smith, and probably also other doubtful southern states. As editor of a Scripps-Howard paper supporting Hoover and wishing him to win, I protest."

Church Still for Hoover.

In spite of the effort to give Church the run-around, he is not to be dismayed. He will do what he can for Hoover.

"I have not read the Shortle statement," Church told The Commercial Appeal last night. It was read to him by a reporter.

"Well," he said, "I am for Hoover and Mr. Shortle is for Hoover. I am going to do what I can for Hoover. My work in the campaign will take me pretty generally throughout the country. I will be active wherever I can do some good."

The Shortle statement follows:

"There has been some delay in the appointment of my vice chairmen and executive committee, on account of not being able to confer with several of the gentlemen whom I wish to serve, owing to their absence from the city. I have appointed as vice chairmen Mr. John Q. Eaton and Mr. Lindsay Phillips; secretary, Mr. Ross Matthews. As executive committee in charge of downtown Republican headquarters, I have appointed Messrs. Jim Quinn, Louis N. Goldert, C. H. King and Lindsay Phillips and John Q. Eaton, ex officio.

"The colored people have effected their own organization, and Dr. L. A. West, the head of Mercy Hospital, will be in charge of their activities. They will have headquarters on Beale Street.

"I desire to correct the evidently unintentional misstatements of the connection of R. R. Church with this committee. R. R. Church has not at any time, either directly or indirectly, communicated with me or made any offers or suggestions towards the appointments of either the vice chairmen or the executive committee. It was suggested by some of his friends that he be appointed on executive committee in charge of the colored activities, owing to his acquaintance and influence with his race. I am informed that his duties with the national committee are such that his time from now on until election will be required for the work with his people in Chicago and New York.

"Republican headquarters will be open in a few days at 70 Madison Avenue."

CONSTITUTION
ATLANTA, GA.
SEP 29 1928

G. O. P. 'LILY WHITE' ELEMENT FLAYED BY NEGRO EDITOR

Ben Davis, Hold-Over Negro Republican National Committeeman, Raises Flag of Revolt.

Evidence of a serious split in the republican organization in Georgia is seen in front page editorials carried in the two most recent issues of "The Atlanta Independent," the weekly negro paper published by Ben J. Davis, hold over republican national committeeman from this state.

The first of these editorials, in the issue of September 20, has been reproduced by the state democratic campaign committee, John R. Slater, chairman, and several thousand copies have been sent to all sections of the state, incontrovertibly showing the situation within the state organization of the party into which Georgians are being tempted to come, under the misleading label of "Hoover democrats."

In the opening paragraph of this editorial, Davis attacks another negro publication, the Negro World, which is edited by Marcus Garvey, of New York, who has spent several years in the federal prison here. Replying to this The Independent says:

"The Negro World, edited by Marcus Garvey but published in New York, was out in a long, disjointed, illogical editorial last week, taking the Atlanta Independent to task for being 100 per cent republican and giving Editor Davis a scathing rebuke for his continued loyalty to the party in the teeth of the party's treachery to him."

After enlarging upon this, the editorial continues:

"We answer that the Independent is 100 per cent republican because it cannot be bought by the democrats' money or be bulldozed out of the party by lily-white bastard republicans and commercialized negro grafters, who would sell their wives and daughters into political slavery and economical ruin, for pelf and plunder."

Republican

Further, it says:

"We are republicans and offer no apology for our faith. The Independent has the same right to go along with the republican organization that the World has to trail the democratic party outside of the ranks, with the hope of receiving a few crumbs from the hands of Heflin, Blease and Pat Harrison. We are not going to get out of the ship into the sea. We are republicans and no man inside the party, black or white, can make us forsake its principles because of real or imaginary grievances. Let come what may, our houses and we are going to fight it out aboard the republican ship.

In closing this editorial, Davis declares:

"Editor Davis is not a political victim of the republican party, but of a combination of lily-whites and mercenary negroes who would sell heaven that she did not think it had said anything about saving the land from being Romanized. She explained that it was her habit to outline letters to her secretary, leaving to the latter the actual phraseology.

The letter, the Post story says, was sent to Mrs. Lyon under the incorrect assumption that she had accepted the post of vice chairman of the republican committee for her precinct.

The Post quoted Mrs. Caldwell as saying that only two or three copies of the letter were distributed. The letter, as given to the Post by Mrs. Lyon, is as follows:

"Dear Madam: I am pleased to know that you have been named vice chairman of your precinct. I feel sure you are anxious to do all in your power to elect the splendid ticket, 'Hoover and Curtis,' which our party is so fortunate as to have in the field.

"Mr. Hoover, himself, and the national committee are depending on the women to save our country in this hour of very vital moral religious crisis. We must save the United States from being Romanized and run-ridden (correct) and the call is to the women to do so."

"Will you not please try to get a list of every republican woman and every Hoover democratic woman who votes at your precinct? The men will help you, and, if necessary, I think you would be willing to make a house-to-house canvass, distributing literature and finding out how the women feel in this section—would you not?

"We are sending you some cards, will send more literature, if you wish it.

"Will appreciate a reply, giving us an idea as to how your precinct stands—also a list of Hoover women at your precinct to whom we might send literature."

Herbert Hoover tonight flatly repudiated the letter published by the Washington Post.

The statement of the republican presidential candidate which was his first pronouncement on the religious issue in the campaign since his acceptance speech declared: "Whether this letter is authentic or a forgery, it does violence to every instinct that I possess. I resent and repudiate it.

"Such an attitude is entirely opposed to every principle of the republican party. I made my position clear in my acceptance speech when I said:

"'In this land, dedicated to tolerance, we still find outbreaks of intolerance. I come of Quaker stock. My ancestors were persecuted for their beliefs. Here they sought and found religious freedom. By blood and conviction I stand for religious tolerance both in act and in spirit. The glory of our American ideals is the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience.'

"I meant that then and I mean it now."

SOUTH BEND
INDIANA
OCT 3 1928

MANION TALKS TO COLORED VOTERS

Two Hundred Listen to Speech in Democratic Headquarters.

The Democratic party of St. Joseph county, Tuesday night opened an intensive campaign to enlist the colored voting strength of South Bend, Mishawaka and the outlying districts.

The first all-colored meeting of the campaign was held at Democratic headquarters, Tuesday evening, with nearly 200 colored men and women of South Bend jammed into the limited capacity of Democratic headquarters, and pledging their support to the entire Democratic ticket while Clarence Manion, the gifted orator of Notre Dame spoke from the platform.

Tuesday night's colored meeting was the first of a series of such meetings that will be held almost three times a week in various colored gathering places on the west side of the city.

Challenge Influence.

Democratic leaders, Wednesday challenged the influence of the Republican party in this county to control the colored vote. Republican headquarters have made preparations to win the colored support through the appointment of colored leaders and workers, but other influential figures in the colored residential sections declare that the Republican organization has been unable to get a foothold among colored voters.

Manion told his colored audience Tuesday night that the Republicans offered nothing to the colored voter, and he reviewed the issues of the Democratic state and national campaign, pointing out to his listeners that the issues were such as to deserve the support of the colored electorate.

Complete Supremacy.

Democratic leaders expressed the belief Wednesday, that the racial pride of the colored residents of the United States would be deeply wounded by the developments of the Republican campaign in the South, when the Republicans have promised to strike colored organizations and leaders out of politics and public office and insure the white race of complete supremacy south of the Ohio river.

WEST RESENTS REPUBLICAN PARTY PROGRAM FOR RACE

Voters Line Up For Reprisals In Doubtful States. Negro Voter Handed His Hat.

Chicago, Oct. 10—The largest and most enthusiastic meeting ever held in Chicago's history by Negroes on behalf of Democratic candidates was held in the auditorium of Wendell Phillips High School, Thirty-ninth Street and Prairie Avenue, when two thousand men and women packed the hall and lustily cheered the name of Alfred E. Smith. The name of Herbert Hoover was received in silence.

The big meeting reflected the mood of hundreds of colored voters on the South Side. The indictment of Oscar DePriest, running on the Republican ticket for Congress, and the publication of an article in the Chicago Tribune telling of the G. O. P. program to eliminate the Negro from a commanding position in politics, are the chief contributing factors in bringing about a new and unusual situation which is giving the G. O. P. leaders much concern.

Arthur Sears Henning, writing in the Chicago Tribune, says in part: "The politically dry, anti-Catholic southern Democrats cannot affiliate with the Democratic party so long as it is dominated by Gov. Smith, a wet Roman Catholic, who will be its titular head for four years at least, whether elected or defeated, and by John J. Raskob, a wet knight of the Romish Church, who is Democratic National Chairman.

"In the G. O. P. these Southerners find a party committed to the preservation of National prohibition, a party dominated by Protestants. To them the G. O. P. now opens its arms with the assurance that they have nothing to fear by joining up permanently. Their ground for distrust, fear and hatred of 'black Republicans' is being removed. The G. O. P. is handing the Negro his hat and is prepared to be as 'Lily White' as the most exacting Southern shouter for white supremacy can demand.

"The plan to build a white Republican Party in the South received the approval of Hoover early in the campaign, according to somewhat varying versions obtained from Southern Republican leaders. Some say that the program was mapped out prior to the Kansas City convention, when Hoover organization had contracted for the delivery of certain Negro delegates from the South, but promised rival 'Lily White' delegations to recognize them in the party reorganization after the convention.

"According to another version, the project did not actually take form until shortly before Hoover's acceptance speech when a number of Southern Republicans headed by Col. Jennings C. Wise of Richmond, Va., visited the candidate at Palo Alto. They explained to Hoover the opportunity of annexing the anti-Smith Democrats permanently to the Republican Party if he would authorize the elimination of the Negro and the reorganization of the Southern G. O. P. as a white man's institution.

"This movement, according to the universal understanding here, has the entire approval of Herbert Hoover, who is reputed to regard the generation of the Republican Party in the South on a white basis as one of the principal reforms he expects to carry out if elected to the Presidency."

NEGROES DENY SIGNING PLEA FOR HOOVER

Charge "Race Equality" Petition Published Here Is Fake

ONLY FOUR ON LIST FOUND

ALL REPUDIATE ALLEGED APPEAL TO CHICAGO VOTERS

(From Birmingham Post)

Charging that the petition printed in the Age-Herald of October 2 purporting to be an appeal from Alabama Negroes to Cook County, Illinois, Negroes to vote for Herbert Hoover was a misrepresentation, Anti-Smith Democratic headquarters announced Wednesday that it had affidavits from four Alabama Negroes whose names were attached to the published petition denying that they had signed such a document.

The affidavits denied that the men had signed a petition referring to "social and political equality" for the race in the South.

After the publication of the alleged petition, the Post endeavored to locate the Birmingham Negroes whose names were printed and found that none of the names was in the city directory.

Charge Names Fictitious

Anti-Smith headquarters charged that these names were fictitious.

The affidavits denying the alleged petiiton were from three Gadsden and one Alabama City colored man. They admitted having been approached by a Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hughes, but all denied that the petition presented to them was the same as the one published in the Age-Herald.

One of the men, John H. Redrick of Gadsden, stated in his affidavit that he had signed a petition asking Northern Negroes not to vote wet and asking them to stand by Southern prohibitionists. He said that he had "since been informed that this man (the circulator of the petition) works for the Al Smith campaign committee."

Says Petition Changed

J. W. Means, another Gadsden colored man, said that the petition he signed and the petition printed were entirely different.

E. F. Barnes, the third of the Gadsden men, said that he had never tried to vote, and had not signed any petition referring to social or political equality for the Negroes.

Toney E. Johnes, Alabama City Negro, signed an affidavit saying he was but 17 years old and had not signed the statement appearing in the Age-Herald over his name.

The petition as printed in the Age-Herald, included the following passages, which were specifically denied by the colored men in their affidavits:

"The level-headed leads in Alabama agree that it is not wise to claim equality with the white race. But looking ahead, Mr. Hoover's election will pave the way for that very thing.

"If this can be done, I am sure that in four years, all Negroes in Alabama will be permitted to vote. . .

"When our people are permitted to vote, that fact will mean that we will havce political equality with the whites."

None of these passages was in the petition presented to the colored men, according to the affidavits.

NEW YORK
EVE. TELEGRAM
OCT 9 1928

NEGROES' VOTE PRESENTS NEW CAMPAIGN CARE

Party Heads Realize It May Prove Decisive in Several States.

INCALCULABLE AS YET

Strength Lies on Southern Border, in Middle West and Northwest.

By RAY TUCKER,
New York Telegram Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Governor Smith's invasion of the border States on the heels of Herbert Hoover's trip to Tennessee has centred attention on a factor which furnishes a disturbing and incalculable element in the Presidential campaign—the negro vote.

In Tennessee and Kentucky, as well as other States, including possibly Illinois, their vote may prove decisive. The present concern over their position is felt chiefly by the Republicans, who have had the support of negro voters in the past. But this year there are assertions that a good part of it will go to Smith, as it has in New York for many years.

Vote Exceeds Republican Majorities.

Should a large part of this group in Tennessee and Kentucky vote for the Democratic nominee, it would enhance his chance of carrying those States. The number of negroes there who can vote is greater than the majorities by which the Republican party carried them in 1924 and 1928.

The same element has a large voting population in the four Middle Western States Smith will visit—Missouri, Indiana, Ohio and Illinos, Their total is put at 300,000 in Ohio alone, and at perhaps more in Illino.i.

In Northeastern territory, too, the negroes have great influence, notably in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It is no secret that the Democrats expect to corral some of these hitherto Republican voters, while the Republicans are working equally hard to keep them in line.

Anti-Hoover Movement Fails.

A threatened rebellion against Hoover on the ground that he sponsored the recent "Lily White" movement in the South has been suppressed. Representatives of the race met at Chicago late in August, with intentions of putting up a candidate of their own merely to punish the two major parties, but nothing came of it except speeches and resolutions denouncing political neglect of the negro.

The two negro leaders credited with stifling the movement are Roscoe Simmons, Chicago, and "Bob" Church, Memphis.

Smith is said to have won many negro voters to his standard during his recent campaigns in New York. His wet views, together with the Tammany organization's defense of the five-cent fare, appealed to the negro population.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliations.

Republican.

LAST MINUTE NEWS

WALNUT STREETERS KICKING—CLAIM REPUBLICAN ORGANIZATION TRYING TO FREEZE OUT COLORED OWNERS FOR WHITES POINT TO ALLIE WARE

Well, well, well! So they are kicking on Walnut Street about the Republican organization trying to force Colored pool-room owners out of the good places and let white ones in. What you know about that? And there's good old Ollie Ware. Right after the Republicans went in power, Ollie took over Billy Walker's place, and being popular with gang began to do a big business—"everybody" hung out at Ollie's place. But suddenly—so they say—Ollie received mysterious word he would have to move. It seems his business was killing a white man's business in the same block. Well, Ollie, so they say, didn't like that a little bit. So he hastened up to Republican headuarters to register a kick. They say Ollie was told the bosses had nothing against him, but he was renting from William Walker and Walker is a Democrat! And they, the bosses, did not want Walker to make any money, if they could help it. Ollie argued that Walter Simons, his competitor, had rented from Walker at one time. But the thumbs were turned down—Ollie has to move.

Politics is politics, and it is a good clean game, so the Mayor said the other night. And treating Ollie so rough would not be so bad, perhaps if Ollie wasn't such a good Republican worker. News

Ollie has worked hard for the party. He tried to get everybody to be for the Republicans right or wrong. He spent an hour one day during the campaign trying to get the Editor of The News to change his mind. So it is pretty tough on Ollie to be handed this rough stuff, after sticking and fighting so hard for the party. 1-28-28

But The News doesn't mean to meddle. It fought the party and so has no kick coming. And even though Ollie Ware and others disagreed with it, The News is sorry to see them handed a package. Most Colored people will agree that since pool-rooms have to exist in Negro neighborhoods they ought to be run by Colored men.

Jacksonville, Fla.

SENATOR SWANSON DEFENDS DISFRANCHISEMENT BY DENYING IT

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, backed by that eminent Republican from Idaho, Senator Borah in a 15,000-word speech defends the disfranchisement of Negroes in the South by denying that they are disfranchised.

According to Senator Swanson the Negroes of Virginia and all the other former seceding States except Tennessee are given the full privilege of the suffrage but are too ignorant or otherwise incapable of qualifying for the exercise of the privilege. Chicago Commercial News 1-28-28

Senator Swanson and the whole array of Southern politicians know that the suffrage laws as applied to Negroes in the disfranchising States are unconstitutional. They know that the provisions of the Constitution are flagrantly and openly violated regardless of whether the State Constitutional provisions and laws thereunder are worded so as to evade the Federal Constitutional provisions. Baltimore, Md.

There is a gentleman's understanding between Republicans and Democrats that Negro disfranchisement shall not be interferred with so long as public sentiment is apathetic in regard to it. The gentlemen who run the so-called Republican organizations in all the disfranchising States except Georgia and Mississippi are satisfied with conditions as they are as the smaller the number of voters the easier and less expensive it is to manipulate the machine and get delegates to National Conventions which has been the sole and sum of the political labors of those estimable Republican gentlemen. Carrying an election or polling a large or full vote at election time is never once entertained by them; their duties and labors cease after the last delegate is elected and their entire attention is then directed to the patronage to be dispensed by them under the next Administration.

These men together with Southern Democrats, poison the minds (which of course, are exceedingly susceptible to poison against the Negro) of Northern Republicans, hence the gentleman's understanding.

Negroes are not deceived or hoodwinked over the attitude of the party to which they have clung since they were given to vote. That party is their best bet and they take it knowing what they are taking and why; they know that when disfranchisement becomes a political issue through force of public sentiment aroused against it it will end and believe that the Prohibition Amendment and enforcement agitation will further their cause, and Dr. Swanson's 15,000-word speech in defense of disfranchisement was produced because of that fear.

Dr. W. G. Alexander Delegate-at-Large

Selected by New Jersey State Republican Committee

TRENTON, Jan. 16.—At a maeting of the Republican State Committee held here last Friday, Dr. Walter G. Alexander of Orange was selected as one of the seven delegates-at-large to the Republican National convention in Kansas City, and Mrs. Bessie B. Mention of Princeton was chosen one of the alternates-at-large. Amsterdam News

Dr. Alexander is a former Assemblyman from Essex County, and in 1924 was an alternate-at-large to the Republican convention in Cleveland. In the election he ran far ahead of his ticket. 1-19-28

Mrs. Mention has been active for several years in Republican politics among women. She has been for a long while president of the Colored Republican Women's Conference of New Jersey, and has maintained a strong and aggressive organization among the women. New York, N.Y.

The selection of Dr. Alexander and Mrs. Mention is of particular significance because of their independent attitude in the party in the past.

There will be added importance to the position of Dr. Alexander because of the avowed candidacy of Senator Walter E. Edge for the Vice-Presidential nomination.

George E. Bates, grand secretary of the Elks, was an aspirant for the place allotted to Dr. Alexander. Bates was supported by Isaac Nutter of Atlantic City, who was at one time a powerful political factor in Atlantic City. Dr. Alxeander was supported by Oliver Randolph, assistant district attorney, who is also a member of the State Republican Advisory Committee.

NEGROES AND THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

—o—

The announcement comes that local Negroes will be named who will provide entertainment for Negroes who come to the Republican national convention. If this means they will be associated with the whites already appointed to provide for entertaining visitors, Negroes along with the rest, well and good. But if this is a "Jim-Crow" committee to provide "Jim-Crow" entertainment, then Kansas City will have committed a breach of hospitality, and we too, if we make such a committee, will be guilty of hurting our brethren's feelings.

Race prejudice is a fact. But entertaining the convention is a wish which arose from Kansas City, not a favor asked of it. It should not set the conditions of entertainment, but should diligently study how it can give the Republicans what they have received in Cleveland, Chicago and elsewhere.

Let us not have here in Kansas City at the national convention of the Republican party social barriers erected to keep Negroes segregated as undesirables, after the fashion that the "lily-white" Republican leaders of the South take control, by holding sessions in white hotels. By all means let Negroes be on the entertainment committee, but not to take Negro visitors off to themselves.

Political Comedy

THE KINGS County Colored Republican organization has taken a stand against the importation of men from the South to run the presidential campaign in New York. They have been joined in their protest by prominent Republicans of Harlem. The contention of the New Yorkers is that they should be led in presidential and other campaigns by men of New York or its vicinity, and that the men who come here to lead them hail from states where the Negro has no vote.

BRINGING in men who have no vote to lead men who have a vote is something worthy of comic opera; it could not happen to any race but the Negro. The reason for it is plain: these imported men deliver large blocks of Negro delegates at Republican national conventions and campaign leadership is their reward. But the citizens of New York have a right to protest. What would the white Republicans of New York say if men were sent from Oregon and put over their heads to run the New York end of a presidential campaign? Sauce for the white Republican is sauce for the Negro Republican.

NEGRO LEADERS OPPOSE EFFORT OF LILY-WHITES

Little Rock, Ark.—(ANP)—Negro Republican leaders here and throughout the state are looking askance at the proposed program of the "lily-white" faction of the party "to perfect plans for the organization of a Republican State Club in which Negro and white members would cooperate."

According to the projected program, county units would be formed, and these would send delegates to the state conventions. The Negro members of the club "would be permitted to participate in the conventions and councils, which is in direct opposition to the avowed policy of the lily-white wing, and for this reason the colored people are a bit apprehensive about the plan, which they consider "sop." They have been excluded from the state conventions.

The effort to pacify the Negro members of the party is thought to have grown out of the almost solid front presented by the Negro Republicans, headed by Judge Scipio Jones, against the appointment of Wallace Townsend as federal judge in the eastern district of Arkansas. Judge Jones and his followers contend that Townsend was responsible for the exclusion of Negroes from several county conventions during his term as chairman of the Pulaski County Republican central committee.

Judge Jones further points out that Townsend had for twelve years worked diligently and assiduously against the Negro taking any part in politics in Arkansas, and that his appointment on the state interracial committee was not enough to wipe out his past record.

Whites Seek "Me-Too Bossers"

Following the usual plan in the South, it is reported that those who are supporting Townsend's candidacy are seeking the cooperation of those "Negro leaders" who are always willing to serve the white man's purpose, even to the hindrance of themselves and the interests of their race. The effort to swing this plan around Dr. G. W. Layman by electing him to the state central committee, Thursday, failed Friday when Dr. Hayman offered his resignation, declaring that protests on the part of his race had forced him to tender his resignation.

Judge Jones is fighting the candidacy of Townsend in his characteristic fashion, which has stamped him as a real fighter and champion of the Negro's cause in these parts. He has solicited the aid of those who exert national influence in the Republican party, and it is said that Benjaman J. Davis, national Republican committeeman from Georgia, and Perry W. Howard of Mississippi are lending their support to Judge Jones' efforts.

BROOKLYN EAGLE

JAN 22 1928

COHEN WHIPS THE LILY-WHITES.

The man whom President Harding picked in 1923 to be Controller of Customs at the Port of New Orleans, the negro, Walter L. Cohen, is turning out to be a pretty good politician. In the Louisiana Republican primaries he has whipped the Lily-Whites to a frazzle, and will control the Republican machine in the State, which doesn't amount to much, and the delegation to the National Republican Convention, which may mean a good deal. In the thirteen wards of New Orleans Cohen had thirteen candidates for the State Central Committee, only one a white man, and in every ward he won easily. Also the voting was heavy, for there's no check by Caucasianism on Republican primaries.

Cohen's nomination to a Federal place was hotly antagonized by Southern Democrats in the Senate, and on the first test they succeeded through Senatorial courtesy in preventing a confirmation. President Harding promptly gave Cohen a recess nomination and confirmation was arranged later. In August, 1925, "conspiracy to violate the Volstead Law" was charged against Cohen and he was indicted. But the proceedings came to nothing and the negro leader always laid the attack to Lily-White plotters. He kept his place.

The attitude of Harding, like the attitude of President Coolidge, toward the Lily-White movement was a bit mixed. It was friendly toward the movement in Virginia where C. Bascom Slemp, later secretary to Coolidge, was a leading Lily-White. But Harding balked at attacking the Johnson negro machine in Georgia, and denying patronage to colored men in cotton States was not his policy, nor has it been that of his successor. In Louisiana the blacks are an overwhelming majority of the Republicans, and no legislation to keep them out of primaries is likely. The white Democrats are very well satisfied with the status quo.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

Star.

JAN 1928

Wheeler.

A NEGRO G. O. P. COMMITTEE.

Leaders Will Look After Convention Delegates of Their Race.

Committees will be selected to look after the entertainment of Negro delegates to the Republican national convention here in June, Conrad H. Mann, general chairman in charge of arrangements here, and Robert H. Tschudy, Republican county chairman, announced today.

The committees will be chosen soon from among Negro leaders in Greater Kansas City.

Political 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

Republicans Not Confident

Negro Situation Source Of Worry To G. O. P.

By RUSSELL KENT.
(Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—As the national campaign, swings into its final weeks the sharp division which has existed among the Republican leaders over how to handle the negro situation is becoming more emphasized. It is apparent that a majority of the G. O. P. strategists have lost confidence, if indeed they ever possessed any, that the "solid South" can be broken. Nevertheless, there persists a minority which is urging that something be done to demonstrate that Hoover is not overly friendly with the colored race.

This minority group believes that if the effects of the anti-segration order by which blacks were placed alongside whites in the census bureau last Spring in order to benefit Hoover's candidacy for the Republican nomination could be overcome there might be at least a fighting chance to get white votes in the South.

10-5-28

The other group believes the whole Southern campaign from the Republican standpoint, insofar as obtaining a single electoral vote for Hoover and Curtis, is merely a dream. They believe the chief result of the campaign in the South will be to increase the popular vote without increasing the electoral vote. In support of their position they point out that 10 Confederate states—Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, and Virginia have a total population of 25,415,000 and yet in 1924 they cast fewer popular votes for Coolidge than he received in the single state of Iowa.

It is also thought by this same group that while there is opposition in certain parts of the South to Governor Smith, the ground that would have to be made up to carry any of the Southern states is too great in a campaign where every dollar that can be raised and every bit of work that can be done is needed to save normally Republican territory.

Negro Danger Forseen.

Another danger forseen by this group is that were the negro element eliminated from the Republican party organization a white Republican party in several of the states would begin its career under the dominance of the Ku Klux Klan sentiment and influence, due to the fact that the klan in many places is leading the campaign against Smith. Such a condition might result in many of the negroes in Northern states where their vote is needed for Republican success, remaining from the polls. Republican leaders do not believe many negroes will vote the Democratic ticket. But if the negroes remained away from the polls in large numbers the result might be fatal to the G. O. P., regardless of any other influence.

The fact is that it is impossible for Hoover, even if he so desired, to jar loose negro leaders in some of the Southern states where they are in power, due to the fact that most of them were pre-convention supporters of Hoover. Of the 60 negro delegates to the Republican national convention at Kansas City last June only one, Walter Cohen, of Louisiana, was pledged to any candidate other than Hoover and Cohen was for Curtis for the presidential nomination. It was the negro delegates lined up by Perry Howard of Mississippi and Ben C. Davis of Georgia, who formed a nucleus around which the Hoover strength grew at the convention at Kansas City. Therefore for the present at least, the negroes cannot be displaced by the Hoover advisers.

Patronage Probe Cited.

Since the Kansas City convention, Perry W. Howard, the Mississippi Republican national committeeman who managed the Hoover pre-convention activities among the members of his race, has been indicted on charges in connection with the distribution of Federal patronage in Mississippi. Howard claims a frame-up against him by elements desiring a "lily white" party in the South. But his associate on the Republican national committee from Mississippi, Mary C. Booze, a negress, is actively working as republican national committeewoman to get out the negro vote for the Republican ticket.

Ben C. Davis, the Georgia negro leader, apparently is back in command in that state, although he has not been formally declared seated as Republican national committeeman for another term owing to the contest which was brought to the Kansas City convention where 12 of the 16 Georgia delegates were negroes. Georgia publications recently placed in the field a full slate of white electors, including two former Democrats who were delegates to the Democratic national convention at Houston. Davis, through his paper, "The Independent" is whooping it up for the Republican ticket in Georgia.

In a recent issue of Davis's paper there is an editorial which contains the following:

"Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic party, so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred as exemplified in Memphis, Georgia, Mississippi and Texas. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic party.

"Al Smith is no better than the Democratic party. His record does not disclose a single favor that he has done for the negroes in New York. He (the negro) knows the Democratic party is his sworn enemy.

"As infamous and as wrong and as cowardly as lily whiteism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic party against the American negro."

VANN PUBLICITY CHIEF OF G. O. P. SAYS COOLIDGE COLDNESS HURTS

R. L. Vann Cites Lack of Negro Enthusiasm.

In a recent interview in the Washington Post, Robert L. Vann, Director of Publicity of the Negro Division of the Republican campaign, notes that there is a significant lack of interest and enthusiasm on the part of the Negro towards the Republican cause.

"The coldness of Calvin Coolidge toward the Negro throughout his presidential career, especially his failure to say anything in his official capacity to indicate an interest in the Negro and his problems, Mr. Vann cited as a cause for an unusually slow development of enthusiasm among Negroes for the Republican cause at this time. This coldness had developed, he believed, through a mistaken notion of the President's that the Negro masses were concerned more about their government jobs than improvement of their status as citizens.

"It was the opinion of the Director of Publicity that the Negro, old and young, was thinking more along different lines than at any other era."

EX-SERVICE MEN LAUNCH DRIVE TO ELECT HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4—With the memory yet fresh in their minds of the hardships which they suffered under the Democratic administration, during the great World War, colored ex-service men are organizing thruout the country to do their bit to elect the Hoover-Curtis ticket in the national election, according to an announcement made by Lieutenant Colonel West Hamilton who has just returned to Washington after a swing around the country.

"Just as we organized for battle during the war," said the Colonel, "we are now marshalling our forces to bring about a great peace-time victory over the Democratic party, which segregated us even when we were offering our lives for the honor of the United States; the party which designed the insulting questionnaire with which every veteran is familiar; the party that crowded our boys in Labor outfits, and the party which denied them the opportunity to advance in rank according to their merit. Our objective in this campaign is to defeat that party in the coming election, and as we did our best on the battle fields of France, so are we going to put forth our best efforts to give the Hoover-Curtis ticket an unprecedented majority on November 6."

The ex-service men's organization, under Lieutenant Colonel Hamilton in the East and Lieutenant George W. Lee in the West has been completed with the following veterans as chairmen of the state organizations of the Eastern Division:

Connecticut, Howard P. Drew, Hartford; Delaware, Dr. Oscar N. Smith, Wilmington; Maryland, Phillip Handy, Baltimore; Massachusetts, Major L. F. Hewitt, Boston; New Jersey, Howard W. Brown, Camden; New York, Floyd G. Snelson, New York City; Pennsylvania, Otto Briggs, Philadelphia; Rhode Island, James M. Stockett, Jr., Providence; West Virginia, John W. Love, Montgomery; and Virginia, Rayford W. Logan, Richmond.

Negro Baptist Convention Endorses Repub Platform

SHREVEPORT, LA., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Resolutions endorsing the platform of the Republican party "as representing the best interests of the race and the country," were adopted here today at the 48th annual session of the National Baptist Convention of America, composed of negroes.

9-9-28

The resolutions said "there are great moral and religious questions involved in the present political campaign" and declared "that our convictions are the most nearly expressed in the platform of the Republican party."

There was no discussion.

G. O. P. FACTIONS IN GEORGIA.

In a recent issue of the newspaper edited by the hold-over negro national committeeman, Ben J. Davis, a vicious attack was made on what is known as the "lilly white" element of the republican party in Georgia.

Especial reference was made to Charles Adamson, of Cedartown, who is a life-long republican who believes in the faith of that party.

There is no better citizen of Georgia, nor one who has been a greater constructive force for the state's economic development.

Mr. Adamson has always believed that two parties serve the best interest of any state. We have taken the same position time and again, and have been outspoken in the view.

10-3-28

There are a number of leading white citizens of Georgia who are out and out republicans. They are not ashamed of their party nor of their national candidates. It was the earnest hope of J. L. Philips, of Thomasville; Josiah T. Rose, collector of customs; Louis Crawford, marshal; Edward Large, Atlanta postmaster; Clinton Hager, district attorney; Harry G. Hastings, and scores of others—highly representative citizens all—to build a strong white republican party in Georgia, and their efforts ought to have succeeded. They would have done so had republican leaders in other sections of the country not been afraid, from the viewpoint of party expediency, to offer offense to negro leaders who persisted in the control of the state's party machinery.

It is courageous for any republican to say so, and to vote the ticket. It is reprehensible, however, for democrats to attempt to scuttle their party ship this year, destroy their own party by insurrection, and then add that they "remain democrats."

Men of the type we have mentioned, men of great industrial interests like Mr. Adamson, are too firmly entrenched in the esteem of their fellow citizens to be affected by the attacks of negro political leaders.

Atlanta, Ga.

TIMES

Fairmont, W. Va.

SEP 27 1928

G.O.P. ARRANGES NEGRO MEETING

Senator Ira Smith Plans Mass Event At Courthouse

State Senator Ira L. Smith, chairman of the Republican county speakers' bureau, has arranged for a mass meeting for the colored voters to be held at the court house Friday night, October 5.

This is to be the first of a series of mass meetings to be held at the courthouse on each Friday evening in October and on Saturday night before the election. T. G. Nutter, of Charleston and Arthur G. Froe, or Professor W. W. Sanders will be the speakers at the first meeting.

County Chairman John Guy Prichard and Senator Smith in conference agreed upon the staff of county speakers' bureau consisting of Carter D. Jones, Howard Wadsworth, J. Worley Powell, William Lehman, R. W. Putnam, Lorentz Steele, Joseph G. Conley, Jameson Meredith, Russell Furbee and Richard W. Tompkins. A meeting of the staff was held last night.

Meetings will be held in as many of the precincts as possible before election day. Members of the staff will be subject to call at any time where it is thought that a speech is needed. The forensic force may be augmented by older Republican members of the bar.

Senator Smith will confer with officers of the Republican Women's Club with a view of arranging joint meetings. Speakers available from the State Speakers' Bureau will be requisitioned for the bigger gatherings.

Mrs. Linnie M. Fisher, county vice chairman, is continuing her work among the women. She went to Worthington last night and will visit Millersville and Fairview this afternoon and this evening. Barrackville is on her schedule for Friday. Tuesday evening the women of Union district will meet at the home of Mrs. E. L. Gilhart in Fairfax street. The Rivesville meeting is billed for Tuesday evening.

EXPONENT
CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

SEP 29 1928

FORM HOOVER CLUB

A group of colored women met recently at the Harrison county Republican headquarters and organized a colored Hoover-Curtis club. These women have called a meeting for Tuesday at the colored headquarters.

Columbus, Ga., Enquirer-Sun
Saturday, September 29, 1928

HOOVER'S NEGRO ORDER
(From Valdosta, Ga., Times.)

It seems that Secretary Hoover, of the Department of Commerce, not only issued the order abolishing the segregation system for Negro employes, but that when he was hemmed up by Senator Stephens, of Mississippi, he denied that such an order had been passed. Senator Stephens also applied to Drector Haskins, of Mr. Hoover's department, and got from him a denial that the order was passed.

Senator Stephens then went to the Congressional Record and to the newspapers in Washington City and found where they made reference to the order under date of March 31. It is reported that the negroes in the department objected to the order almost as much as the white people did, as there was no feeling of sympathy or companionship between them and both races preferred to work separately from the other.

When Senator Stephens wrote Mr. Hoover protesting against the order he received a noncommital letter of four or five lines in reply to which he said thta "the articles which you mention are in a large degree foolish untruths". He also adds that if any action was taken against the interest of either white or colored employes "they have a full right to present the matter to me, and I have had no complaint from either group."

Senator Stephens wrote Mr. Hoover another letter in which he told him employes had lost their jobs by protesting against actions of officials higher up, and because there had been no protest was no reason to assume that the white employes were not angry over the order. The effect of the order was to put the negro men, negro women, white men and white women all together. The negro women and the white women are supposed to use the same accommodations and work side by side, after they have been separated for a great many years.

It would not have been so bad if Mr. Hoover had faced it like a man and admitted doing it, but he makes a half-way denial and seeks to create the impression that it was not an important change. It was all done to please negro politicians of Ohio. Another thing that might be remembered by those alleged Democrats who are supporting Hoover is that in every contesting delegation from the South at the Kansas City convention, the negro delegates were seated and the whites were thrown overboard. Mr. Hoover has been playing politics with the negroes from start to finish.

To one and all: Whether you are for Smith or Hoover, wet or dry, Catholic or Protestant, vegetarian or meat-eater, don't forget to be a true AMERICAN, loyal to the highest ideals of this country that is on the verge of electing to the Presidency one of the greatest Democrats the nation has produced since Thomas Jefferson.

TAMPA, FLA.

Times

SEP 27 1928

SPEAKING OF NEGROES.

Every now and then wonder arises if ever there was a political campaign into which so much blatant bunk and manifest misstatement of fact crept as there has into the present one for the presidency. The revelation of Herbert Hoover's part in making white and negro clerks in the census bureau work together and use the same toilets, when they had not done so before, has been specially prolific in this respect.

In the Public Pulse of last Friday, for instance, "A Southern Hoover Democrat" told of "high salaried negroes owing their appointment to Governor Smith when he was mayor of New York city." Inasmuch as the undeniable record is that Alfred E. Smith has never been mayor of New York city it is difficult to classify such a statement—to say whether it is ludicrous or pitiable. If it was made to deceive informed people it is the former. If it was made by one who believed it, it is the latter.

More amazing still is a declaration which has been made that "in New York city alone there are more negroes in lucrative offices (276 draw over $1,800 per year) than Uncle Sam has in the whole nation." Only a few days ago there came out of Washington a news dispatch which thoroughly refutes that statement. It follows:

> Washington, Sept. 21.—The secretary of labor has just completed a report showing that the number of negro employes of the government increased from 22,540 in 1910 to 51,882 on June 30, 1928. The total salaries paid jumped from $12,456,760 in 1910 to $64,483,133 this year.
>
> This, in the words of the statement from the secretary's office, "is the story of the negro workers who are at this time being carried on Uncle Sam's payroll, as efficient and well-paid servants of the public trust of government service."
>
> During the interim, at the close of the fiscal 1923, the negro civil service personnel of the federal government was surveyed and found to number 51,805 workers, with a total annual earning capacity of $52,655,959.
>
> The summary continued
>
> "The tremendous gain of 29,265 workers and the lump total salary sum of $40,199,199, caused by the increase from 22,540 workers and $12,456,760 in yearly salaries in 1910 to 51,805 workers and $52,655,959 in 1923, is no more remarkable than the salary total of $64,483,133 for the fiscal year 1928, a gain of $11,827,174 over that of 1923, a year which represented the close of an era in the rapid recovery of prosperity from the economic ravages of the World war. The personnel totals of 51,805 for 1923 and 51,882 for 1928, while varying but little, following the return to normalcy after reductions of war-time personnels, clearly show, when considered in connection with the monetary gain in annual salaries of the army of negro civil service employes, that this efficient group of governmental workers made a large per capita gain in income as well as a significant gain in numbers and occupations."

The secrtary of labor, a member of the Coolidge cabinet, no doubt knows much better about the number of negroes employed by the United States than does the maker of the statement relative to such employes in the city of New York and by Uncle Sam which has been quoted above. The latter speaks of 276 negroes employed in New York city. Secretary of Labor Davis tells of 51,882 of them employed by the United States on June 30, 1928, and of the "tremendous gain of 29,265 workers—(negro)—and the lump total salary sum of $40,199,199, caused by the increase from 22,540 workers and $12,456,760 in yearly salaries." Beside that, 276 negro employes in New York city who draw more than $1,800 a year are as a drop of water to a bucketful of water.

There is no need, unless it is one born of political necessity and bearing witness to disreputable politics, for misstatements of facts in regard to negroes who may be employed in public capacities. It is much better to be fair about the whole business.

Political — 1928

Party Affiliation.

Cofer-Watson-Pickett Injunction Dismissed In Fulton Superior Court

The Negro Year Book

Attorney F. A. Doughman, of Plaintiff Counsel, Withdraws Suit Against Regular Republicans to Escape Dismissal by Court.

When the bolters came to their senses, they found they had been caught in a trap by their own injunction, and slipped back to the courthouse Saturday, the 28th, after Attorney Doughman had stood up in open court, and said he was physically unable to try his case, and had his injunction dismissed, so far as it referred to Pickett, Watson and Mrs. George S. Williams. Mr. Doughman made this statement in open court Tuesday, before he withdrew his suit, to escape dismissal by the court on the grounds that there was no merit in his bill. When the bolters woke up, they found themselves in this predicament, that they were enjoining and restraining the Republican party, directly, from putting out Hoover and Curtis electors; that if they insisted upon their position the national authorities would see them fighting and blocking the success of the ticket nationally.

So, later in the day, after the attorney for the plaintiff had plead sick, he sneaked back to the courthouse and got an order dismissing the suit against Watson, Pickett and Mrs. Williams, so Pickett could issue a call. Of course Pickett and Watson were just as much parties to the suit as was Mr. Cofer, but they found themselves in a trap and the only way out of it was to dismiss all of the defendants. So when the case came along to be heard Tuesday and the defendants announced through their attorneys, Messrs. O. M. Duke, C. W. Hager and Paul E. Etheridge, that they were ready, attorney for the plaintiff rose in his place and said he desired to dismiss his suit, without prejudice. Of course, there was no alternative and the court dismissed the suit. Had Mr. Cofer not dismissed his suit against ex-Chairman Pickett he would have been in contempt of court, and could not have issued his call.

Attorney Doughman is in the habit of bringing political suits in court, and when called to be heard he is usually sick at the first call and dismisses his case on the second call. So, in the Cofer case, he was following his usual custom.

The trap the bolters found themselves in was, they could not fight the state organization without fighting Hoover and Curtis.

Mr. Benjamin Davis
Mr. Perry Howard

Republican

(The Knoxville Herald.)

Ben Davis and Perry Howard are Negro Republican National Committeemen from the States of Georgia and Mississippi. They are not ignorant scalawags, but they are educated, respectable citizens, and as representative citizens of their respective states as the rank and file of other people living there.

The only offense that may be chargeable to either of these men is that they are at the head of the Republican organization of their states. Because of this there is a class of small white men and still smaller colored men who are seeking to discredit their leadership. These men have recently been under investigation upon the charge of bartering offices in Georgia and Mississippi. No one that knows these men will for a moment believe these charges. To do so would not only be to discredit and discountenance the character of the men involved, but it would be placing a small estimate upon their intelligence as well. Messrs. Davis and Howard have known that as Negroes that it has been far more necessary that they act circumspectly in the discharge of the positions that they hold than if they were white men holding the same positions.

These allegations are but an effort to confirm the slander that has so often been made that the Negro is the corrupting influence in Southern politics, and that with the Negro eliminated that white men will be attracted to the Republican party in the South. Those making this claim do not believe it. It is a significant fact that in the Southern States where the Negro vote is smallest, or is a practical nullity, that the Democratic vote and majorities are the largest.

Ben Davis is an old-time Republican who has seen little good outside of his party. He has been honest and sincere in his dealing with fellow white and Negro Republicans who have betrayed him when they found that it was to their interest to do so. It is the same old story of ingratitude and false pretended friendship that one meets with so often in life. If the Republican party lends its aid to crush Ben Davis and Perry Howard in order to make the way clear for white politicians in Georgia and Mississippi, it will cost them many Negro votes in the coming Presidential election.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

"All Political Roads Lead On To Washington," But Race Leaders Are Finding Scant Hope For The Future

Chairman Work's Absence In Far Wisconsin Causing Mumbling and Grumbling Among Disgruntled Waiters In Hot Washington

By RIENZI B. LEMUS

Washington, D. C.—Main Republican National Committee headquarters have been established here. Deemocratic headquarters are expected to be set up here. Hence all roads, politically, lead to Washington. Therefore, at Washington all shades, kinds and sorts of political opinions and reactions are available.

And, strange as it may seem, hitherto orthodox Afric Republicans are one in mumbling and grumbling about the obvious slant the fight for Hoover among Negroes takes.

Invited To Go Home.

A casual group encountered one evening recently was "beefing" about being forced to lay around hot Washington awaiting National Committee Chairman Work's return from cool Brule, Wisconsin, whither he had gone to tender his resignation as Secretary of the Interior to President Coolidge.

A somewhat inebriated localite staggered up and wanted to know who invited them to come to hot Washington, anyway. He, (the bedrammed one) didn't; and he was just as satisfied that "Pres'dent Works" didn't.

"Me 'n Pres'dent Works don' need yer; we can run d—m campaign 'thout you. Gwan home 'an look after yer precinct," the drunk half-hiccoughed, as he staggered on his way.

Many of the brethren seem to feel that the drunk expressed sober Chairman Work's thought. For it already is quite evident that the Afric Repub is going to have plenty of non-Afric supervision in all of his greatest campaign activities this year. Others nevertheless, find no complaint on this score, and contend that "jim crow" headquarters always was unbecoming to a Republican National Committee in a Presidential campaign, anyway.

Old Appeal No Good.

Many are as pessimistic as the heat beefers interrupted by the drunk; while others are outspoken about methods to be probably pursued. For instance, an out-of-towner from a voting and numerous constituency went on to argue that the Republicans cannot get away with this old stuff appeal t Afric voters anymore, because ther is too much going on that will b used by Afric Democrats on th stump to counteract it.

He said it is all right for R pubs to talk about a wire-boun segregated cage for colored folk Houston; such was to be expect in Texas. But certainly not fro Republicans, in the War Depar ment, for instance.

And he noted the refusal of th Republican Secretary of War the Coolidge Cabinet to admit co ored soldiers to training-camp this summer, because there was n provision made to finance segrega ed Negro camps. And these aroun him agreed or acquiesced.

No Negro On Loan Board.

Another pointed out that th ratio of Negro farmers to the to tal of all farmers is 50 per cen greater than the ratio of the Negro to the total population of the country; that the Negro farmers investments in farm properties approximates two billion dollars that practically all Negro farmers are forced to borrow money a usurious interest rates, plus bonuses, instead of from the Federa Farm Loan Board—solely becaus the Negro is without representa tion in the Farm Loan Board per sonnel. He stressed the fact tha President Coolidge has resisted th most potent influences seeking ap pointment of an excellently quali fied Negro to the Board, whic President Harding had decided t do, as he was leaving on the tri from which he never returned.

All of which is true!

It was also stressed that the ap pointment of a Negro to the Farm Loan Board would mean race recognition of the most practicable kind, and of more import than appointments of all Negroes now holding big-time Federal positions

All in close proximity to the talker agreed, or nodded approval.

"Booing" The Platforms.

And when a member of the group brought up the platforms of the parties having reference to the Negro, there was a chorus of boos and guffaws. The concensus of opinion was that the less said of both platforms the better. Neither offers voters of any race anything for that matter, they agreed. Let's talk about the men. Being Republicans, Hoover met their approval, but not what the campaign promises to be among Negroes on the part of his managers.

The bellicose young Negro—of both sees—must be appealed to on different grounds than was heretofore true of Republican Presidential campaigns—to say nothing of the disgruntled elders—is the general trend of opinion among most of those who have followed the route that leads to Washington because the headquarters of the campaign managers are located here.

Republican

MR. DAVIS CORRECTS THE AFRO-AMERICAN

Atlanta, Ga., July 30, 1928.

To the Editor
The Afro-American,
Baltimore, Md.

Dear Sir:

In your editorial, entitled "What Ben Got," you conveyed an idea not according to the facts. I am being misrepresented so much by irresponsible newspapers, I think it important that I give you the facts about the matter you write.

"Ninety-five per cent of my recommendations were submitted to Senators George and Harris before being made and they approved them by moving their confirmation when they came along before the Senate to be heard. It matters not what their attitude was here last week before the Senate investigating committee, they have approved my stewardship and have cooperated with me, and many of our twelve congressmen have done the same thing."

The above excerpt, carried in your last issue, is correct as it appeared in my open letter to the Atlanta Constitution, but it does not carry the facts. I did not say "Ninety-five per cent of my recommendations were submitted to Senators George and Harris before being made," but said, "After they were made." I do not blame you for the error. I want to correct it by explaining just what I meant to say; I meant to say that I submitted 95 per cent of my recommendations to the Georgia senators, after I had mailed them to the Postmaster General. When I was elected national committeeman, the Georgia senators requested me to send the names of applicants for postmasterships to them when I recommended them to the Postmaster General, and at the same time write the applicants to write them to take care of their confirmation when they came along before the Senate for confirmation. They did not request that I do it before, but afterwards. They did not desire to take any part in their nomination, but were interested in their confirmation. So, usually, the day following the day I would recommend to the department I would write the senators and the applicants, because I thought it would help them get confirmed.

Our senators never did try to dictate Republican appointments, but desired to hold themselves near enough to them to use them in the white primaries.

I never consulted either senator as to whom I must recommend, but did not hesitate to ask their influence in getting my recommendations confirmed. I want the public to know that I was not a sycophant, or a tool, but functioned for myself.

You made the following statement, which is not according to facts:

"To summarize: Mr. Davis' job was pulling Republican plums for others under the supervision of the Democrats. For this self-sacrificing service he assessed the officeholders sufficient to pay himself $250.00 a month."

You say in the above excerpt that I assessed the officeholders sufficient to pay myself $250.00 per month. This is an error. I assessed them nothing, and collected nothing from them. It was just last week that you carried an article, "Ben Davis Exonerated." To reverse yourself so soon, especially when you do your brother a wrong, must have been, at least, inadvertently done. I know you too well to believe that you would intentionally place me in a position before the public that would prejudice my usefulness, or good name.

Hence, I call your attention to the facts and ask for space in your columns to set out my position clearly and beyond cavil.

Very respectfully,
B. J. DAVIS.

BISHOPS AND BOOTLEGGERS

THAT "politics makes of a man strange bedfellows" is being demonstrated beyond question in the present national political campaign is evident, according to published and grapevine reports. It is reported that Bishop Cannon and four other bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are leading a revolt of the bishops of his faith and the clergy into the dry Republican camp, via the prohibition party, as some remain neutral and while the majority of bishops and ministers cast their lots in the wet camp of democracy.

The latest press reports indicate that bootleggers, to a man, have decided to back the dry ticket to the limit because of the fear of loss of their occupations. At least one of the eastern bishops of our group has publicly declared himself in favor of Governor Al Smith and his wet proposals.

Prohibition, religion and the race question are the paramount issues in the coming presidential campaign. Of the three grave questions, prohibition is beyond question the most outstanding issue of the three, overshadowing farm relief, the tariff, immigration and other important questions of the moment. Prohibition has been for centuries the much mooted moral issue of the Protestant churches of the United States and has always been supported by its bishops, clergy and laymen solidly and persistently. The Catholic, Episcipal and Lutheran churches have favored, more universally, a temperance stand rather than one of total abstinence and continue to maintain that attitude. But in spite of the reaction in the great American Metropilitan centers against prohibition the evangelical churches have waged relentless wars against wet propaganda, against the repeal of the Volstead Act or the modification of the 18th Amendment and have vigorously resisted every attempt to tamper with either of them.

It is interesting to note, then, the deflection of the white Protestant clergy and laymen of the south to the wet cause of democracy. "Not that they love Caesar less, but that they love Rome more"—not that they feel that they are deserting their cause celibre, but because these Christian leaders think and hope they will keep the colored brother out of his political rights in the south by supporting the wet Democratic ticket. Thus are they found in the camp of their friendly enemies.

The anomaly of bootleggers north and south voting for the dry Republican candidate furnishes a queer complex in comparision with the dry bishops aligned with the wets on one hand and the former distillers, brewers and saloon-keepers, the latter in the days of the open saloon fighting tooth and nail against the prohibition forces. Although there is a difference between the attitudes of the present day bootleggers and the former whiskey men on lending aid to their dry enemies, they are of the same mind when it comes to fighting to keep their own residential districts clear of booze of either ancient or modern vintage.

In the old days, the brewers, distillers and grogshop keepers lived with their families in the local option or dry districts of Chicago such as Hyde Park, Woodlawn, Rogers Park, Ravenswood, Englewood or the temperate suburbs such as Evanston and other dry towns of the North Shore, and fought shoulder to shoulder with the temperance and prohibition forces to keep those districts dry where they and their loved ones lived, while fighting with the wets of the saloon districts to keep them wet. Arthur Burrage Farwell, for upward of 40 years director of the Hyde Park Protective Association numbered among his best backers, it is alleged, wealthy liquor men of Chicago who liberally contributed to the support of his organization to keep Hyde Park where they lived clean morally as well as dry.

Our present day bootleggers, it is reported, are more active than are some our of bishops in trying to keep the neighborhoods in which they live clean of boot-legging boot-leggers. They are the Federal Government's best informers, it is understood, on those who would defame the exclusive apartment buildings where they reside or invade the sacred precincts of their respective neighborhoods vending the brew of the gods.

Be that as it may, the churchmen and bootleggers seemed to have crossed each others deadlines, invaded as it were the other's territory. It will be odd if the bootleggers should defeat our southern white brethren and their wet ticket, without a care of thought or the moral issue involved. It looks likely .

As far as our colored churches are concerned, distinctly racial, separate or mixed, we have heard no loud detonations emanating from them in support of either the wet or dry stand, not even a ripple has denoted their least interest in this public question. We are only interested in the racial issue. So it appears that our bishops, clergy and laymen, except Kelley Miller, the sage of Howard who has wisely expressed himself in no uncertain terms on this score, are neutral.

Al Smith for Negro Slavery.

A very interesting situation is created in the contest of the Republican and Democratic parties for electoral votes in the Southern states and the effect of this upon the rotten Babbit-bourgeoisie of the South. The democratic party is busy, from Raskob's office down, persuading the southern ruling class that if it does not accept Wall Street's Tammany candidate, as against Wall Street's Republican candidate, the masses of agricultural laborers and other workers whose faces are black may slip into possession of some of the rights of citizenship.

Smith headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., has given out a very illuminating piece of propaganda from the pen of old Richard Cannon Watts, chief justice of South Carolina, who says:

> "If the Negro is brought into politics, the Negro will be the sufferer. Those who are endeavoring to do this very thing now do not realize the gravity of their deeds. It is like spreading gasoline over the whole South from the Patomac to the Rio Grande."

Of course when the 75-year old chief judicial representative of the law and order in South Carolina says "the Negro will be the sufferer," it means a threat of lynching or other armed violence against the Negro masses in the event the latter should attempt to claim the right to vote or other political or citizenship rights, which he points out have not been exercised in the South generally for fifty years.

The nightmare that is conjured up in the mind of the old man by the idea of letting masses of black workers and farmers vote, is indicated by the following words of the statement:

> "To any man who lived through the dark days of reconstruction in the South after the end of the war between the States any thought or suggestion of bolting the Democratic ticket is unthinkable and inconceivable.
>
> "To these men the whole period of reconstruction was like a hideous nightmare, when men and boys went to bed with shotguns, and when mothers, wives, sisters and daughters cowered in their homes with hearts torn with fear as forests of bayonets swayed before their eyes."

The old reactionary continued:

> "What can a Southern man mean when he talks of bolting the Democratic party? For a Southern man to think of such a think is traitorous to the South and all the traditions of the South. I have voted the Democratic ticket from the time the Republicans forced Negro office holders on the people of my State and I shall vote this ticket until I die.
>
> "I shall vote the entire ticket, from Governor Smith down and if the true Southern democracy stands by the party true democracy will win its most sweeping victory since the days of reconstruction."

But of course the fear that the Republican party will really do anything to let the masses of Negro slaves loosen their chains is only an instrument for Tammany politicians to use on the stagnant minds of the Southern Babbit-bourgeoisie. On the other hand the Republican party is busy proving by actions which speak louder than words that it wishes to ingratiate itself with the same Southern Babbit-bourgeoisie and will do absolutely nothing that would tend to give elbow-room to the enslaved labor of the South. The Republican party is completely and absolutely through with the Negro, as far as furthering his political rights are concerned, as was dramatically announced as early as 1920 by no less person than Warren G. Harding. Would the textile barons and other Northern capitalists that are now moving into the almost virgin labor field of the South with their mills and factories to take advantage of the cheap labor conditions—would they do anything to disturb that peculiar condition of enslavement which is facilitated by the "Jim Crow" division of the working class?

No! Anything that disturbs the Jim Crow line in the South would tend toward Bolshevism. The spreading of that sort of "gasoline from the Potomac to the Rio Grande" is not going to be done by a capitalist party. The political party that will in fact "spread gasoline" over the whole social institution of race suppression in the South must be a party seeking to overthrow the whole system of exploitation of man by man. There is such a party—the Workers (Communist) Party.

The party is in this national election-campaign for the first time getting on the ballot in many Southern states. The Negro workers and the class-conscious white lot will have their first chance in years to show their desire to destroy the institutions of labor-enslavement by voting the Communist ticket.

BISHOPS AND BOOTLEGGERS

THAT "politics makes of a man strange bedfellows" is being demonstrated beyond question in the present national political campaign is evident, according to published and grapevine reports. It is reported that Bishop Cannon and four other bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are leading a revolt of the bishops of his faith and the clergy into the dry Republican camp, via the prohibition party, as some remain neutral and while the majority of bishops and ministers cast their lots in the wet camp of democracy.

The latest press reports indicate that bootleggers, to a man, have decided to back the dry ticket to the limit because of the fear of loss of their occupations. At least one of the eastern bishops of our group has publicly declared himself in favor of Governor Al Smith and his wet proposals.

Prohibition, religion and the race question are the paramount issues in the coming presidential campaign. Of the three grave questions, prohibition is beyond question the most outstanding issue of the three, overshadowing farm relief, the tariff, immigration and other important questions of the moment. Prohibition has been for centuries the much mooted moral issue of the Protestant churches of the United States and has always been supported by its bishops, clergy and laymen solidly and persistently. The Catholic, Episcipal and Lutheran churches have favored, more universally, a temperance stand rather than one of total abstinence and continue to maintain that attitude. But in spite of the reaction in the great American Metropilitan centers against prohibition the evangelical churches have waged relentless wars against wet propaganda, against the repeal of the Volstead Act or the modification of the 18th Amendment and have vigorously resisted every attempt to tamper with either of them.

It is interesting to note, then, the deflection of the white Protestant clergy and laymen of the south to the wet cause of democracy. "Not that they love Caesar less, but that they love Rome more"—not that they feel that they are deserting their cause celibre, but because these Christian leaders think and hope they will keep the colored brother out of his political rights in the south by supporting the wet Democratic ticket. Thus are they found in the camp of their friendly enemies.

The anomaly of bootleggers north and south voting for the dry Republican candidate furnishes a queer complex in comparision with the dry bishops aligned with the wets on one hand and the former distillers, brewers and saloon-keepers, the latter in the days of the open saloon fighting tooth and nail against the prohibition forces. Although there is a difference between the attitudes of the present day bootleggers and the former whiskey men on lending aid to their dry enemies, they are of the same mind when it comes to fighting to keep their own residential districts clear of booze of either ancient or modern vintage.

In the old days, the brewers, distillers and grogshop keepers lived with their families in the local option or dry districts of Chicago such as Hyde Park, Woodlawn, Rogers Park, Ravenswood, Englewood or the temperate suburbs such as Evanston and other dry towns of the North Shore, and fought shoulder to shoulder with the temperance and prohibition forces to keep those districts dry where they and their loved ones lived, while fighting with the wets of the saloon districts to keep them wet. Arthur Burrage Farwell, for upward of 40 years director of the Hyde Park Protective Association numbered among his best backers, it is alleged, wealthy liquor men of Chicago who liberally contributed to the support of his organization to keep Hyde Park where they lived clean morally as well as dry.

Our present day bootleggers, it is reported, are more active than are some our of bishops in trying to keep the neighborhoods in which they live clean of boot-legging boot-leggers. They are the Federal Government's best informers, it is understood, on those who would defame the exclusive apartment buildings where they reside or invade the sacred precincts of their respective neighborhoods vending the brew of the gods.

Be that as it may, the churchmen and bootleggers seemed to have crossed each others deadlines, invaded as it were the other's territory. It will be odd if the bootleggers should defeat our southern white brethren and their wet ticket, without a care of thought or the moral issue involved. It looks likely .

As far as our colored churches are concerned, distinctly racial, separate or mixed, we have heard no loud detonations emanating from them in support of either the wet or dry stand, not even a ripple has denoted their least interest in this public question. We are only interested in the racial issue. So it appears that our bishops, clergy and laymen, except Kelley Miller, the sage of Howard who has wisely expressed himself in no uncertain terms on this score, are neutral.

Al Smith for Negro Slavery.

A very interesting situation is created in the contest of the Republican and Democratic parties for electoral votes in the Southern states and the effect of this upon the rotten Babbit-bourgeoisie of the South. The democratic party is busy, from Raskob's office down, persuading the southern ruling class that if it does not accept Wall Street's Tammany candidate, as against Wall Street's Republican candidate, the masses of agricultural laborers and other workers whose faces are black may slip into possession of some of the rights of citizenship.

Smith headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., has given out a very illuminating piece of propaganda from the pen of old Richard Cannon Watts, chief justice of South Carolina, who says:

> "If the Negro is brought into politics, the Negro will be the sufferer. Those who are endeavoring to do this very thing now do not realize the gravity of their deeds. It is like spreading gasoline over the whole South from the Patomac to the Rio Grande."

Of course when the 75-year old chief judicial representative of the law and order in South Carolina says "the Negro will be the sufferer," it means a threat of lynching or other armed violence against the Negro masses in the event the latter should attempt to claim the right to vote or other political or citizenship rights, which he points out have not been exercised in the South generally for fifty years.

The nightmare that is conjured up in the mind of the old man by the idea of letting masses of black workers and farmers vote, is indicated by the following words of the statement:

> "To any man who lived through the dark days of reconstruction in the South after the end of the war between the States any thought or suggestion of bolting the Democratic ticket is unthinkable and inconceivable.
>
> "To these men the whole period of reconstruction was like a hideous nightmare, when men and boys went to bed with shotguns, and when mothers, wives, sisters and daughters cowered in their homes with hearts torn with fear as forests of bayonets swayed before their eyes."

The old reactionary continued:

> "What can a Southern man mean when he talks of bolting the Democratic party? For a Southern man to think of such a think is traitorous to the South and all the traditions of the South. I have voted the Democratic ticket from the time the Republicans forced Negro office holders on the people of my State and I shall vote this ticket until I die.
>
> "I shall vote the entire ticket, from Governor Smith down and if the true Southern democracy stands by the party true democracy will win its most sweeping victory since the days of reconstruction."

But of course the fear that the Republican party will really do anything to let the masses of Negro slaves loosen their chains is only an instrument for Tammany politicians to use on the stagnant minds of the Southern Babbit-bourgeoisie. On the other hand the Republican party is busy proving by actions which speak louder than words that it wishes to ingratiate itself with the same Southern Babbit-bourgeoisie and will do absolutely nothing that would tend to give elbow-room to the enslaved labor of the South. The Republican party is completely and absolutely through with the Negro, as far as furthering his political rights are concerned, as was dramatically announced as early as 1920 by no less person than Warren G. Harding. Would the textile barons and other Northern capitalists that are now moving into the almost virgin labor field of the South with their mills and factories to take advantage of the cheap labor conditions—would they do anything to disturb that peculiar condition of enslavement which is facilitated by the "Jim Crow" division of the working class?

No! Anything that disturbs the Jim Crow line in the South would tend toward Bolshevism. The spreading of that sort of "gasoline from the Potomac to the Rio Grande" is not going to be done by a capitalist party. The political party that will in fact "spread gasoline" over the whole social institution of race suppression in the South must be a party seeking to overthrow the whole system of exploitation of man by man. There is such a party—the Workers (Communist) Party.

This party is in this national election-campaign for the first time getting on the ballot in many Southern states. The Negro workers and farmers, and the class-conscious white workers equally, will have their first chance in the South to show their desire to destroy the institutions of labor-enslavement by voting the Communist ticket.

Political-1928

Republican.

Party Affiliation

Statewide Conference Demands Full Rights; Hoover Cause Boosted

Nearly 200 Leading Texans Counsel At Dallas Parley—Negro Democrats Favor Smith—Conference Passed Harmony Resolution—Hoover Forces Claim Victory

Special to The Informer.

Dallas, Texas.—The most epochal political meeting in the recent history of Texas Negroes, attended by 193 representatives from 98 different towns and cities of the state, was held here at the Pythian Temple, 2549 Elm Street, last Saturday, under auspices of the Independent Colored Voters' League of Texas. Included in the personnel present were several heads of fraternal organizations, leading ministers of the various denominations, heads of denominational organizations, business men, educators, insurance men, farmers, doctors, dentists, pharmacists—in fact, every walk of life was represented.

HON. W. S. WILLIS, Dallas, grand chancellor Colored Knight of Pythias of Texas and endorsed as delegate-at-large from Texas to Republican National Convention at recent statewide conference.

Prof. John W. Rice, editor the Dallas Express, welcomed the delegates to the statewide conference, outlining briefly the issues confronting the colored electorate of Texas at this time. Judge R. D. Evans of Waco, president and co-founder of the league, responded and had his auditors to know that he, personally, was a Democrat of 10 years standing; that he favored full participation in all partisan elections and conventions, whether Republican or Democratic; that he favors Governor Al Smith of New York for presidential nomination by the Democrats at the Houston convention. "We need some friends at home as well as in Washington, D. C.," the speaker asserted, "and I am of the opinion that the time has arrived in Texas when we should divide our support, and not remain hog-tied to one particular party."

The following were appointed on the enrollment committee: Judge A. G. Perkins, Galveston, chairman; H. L. Mims of Houston, H. L. Price of Cuney, Virgil G. Goree of Texarkana, Colonel L. D. Lyons of Austin, Dr. B. E. Howell of Dallas and Nathan Johnson of Fort Worth.

Chisum, Former Texan, Introduced

While the enrollment committee was making up the temporary roll of the convention, several outstanding men were called upon to deliver short addresses, the first being Hon. Melvin J. Chisum of Chicago, former resident of Dallas and one of the lieutenants in the Lowden camp, pushing the claims of the former Illinois governor for the Republican presidential nomination. He counselled the delegates to organize their forces and get out a large vote at the Republican precinct conventions, which will be held in Texas on Saturday, May 5, 1928.

Other speakers were: Rev. W. L. Dickson of Dallas-Gilmer, another black Democrat and Al Smith supporter; Hon. W. S. Willis of Dallas, grand chancellor Colored Knights of Pythias of Texas; Rev. E. L. Harrison of Houston, pastor Antioch Baptist Church; H. M. Tarver of San Antonio; Dr. D. W. Porter of Sherman and Alex Bell of Palestine.

The report of the enrollment committee, submitting temporary roll, having been made permanent, the president appointed a congressional committee composed of the following persons: H. L. Price of Cuney, chairman; H. M. Tarver of San Antonio, Dr. D. W. Porter of Sherman, Prof. G. W. Jackson of Corsicana and N. Dudley, Jr., of Houston.

Congressional Heads Named

The report of the congressional committee submitted the following persons as chairmen of their respective congressional districts:

First, V. G. Goree of Texarkana; second, H. L. Price of Cuney; third, G. H. Henry of Tyler; fourth, W. J. Durham of Sherman; fifth, R. L. H. Rice of Dallas; sixth, Rev. R. T. Pardee of Corsicana; seventh, A. G. Perkins of Galveston; eighth, H. P. Carter of Houston; ninth, Newt Jones of Gonzales; tenth, L. D. Lyons of Austin; eleventh, Sam Rose of Waco; twelfth, Nathan Johnson of Fort Worth; thirteenth, A. E. Holland of Wichita Falls; fourteenth, Rev. G. F. C. Curry of San Antonio; fifteenth, H. E. Kimble of Kingsville; sixteenth, Dr. A. L. Nixon of El Paso; seventeenth, R. A. Hester of Brownwood; eighteenth, M. C. Johnson of Amarillo.

3-31-28

League's Policy Outlined

Editor C. F. Richardson of Houston, secretary-treasurer of the organization and the moving spirit in the conference, then read the following resolution outlining the policy of the league, which was unanimously adopted:

Houston, Texas

"The occasion which brings us together today to counsel and lay definite and well-defined plans for the future political action and partisan activities of the vast horde of black voters in the Lone Star State commonwealth, is indeed epochal and truly laden with many possibilities and potentialities; and, since whatever action we take here in convention assembled, whether of a positive or negative, definite or equivocal nature, will largely determine the immediate political future of fully 200,000 electors and possibly 575,000 other residents of the state, whose representatives we are on this auspicious occasion, let us act wisely and judiciously.

"In view of the fact that we have been partisan outcasts and political orphans in Texas for the last several quadrenniums; and, in view of the fact that this is presidential election year, when the American voters will be called upon both to nominate and elect candidates to the office of president and vice-president of this democratic republic, it is incumbent upon us to so deliberate and act as to make possible the regaining of some of the political ground and vantage we have lost during the past years.

"The Independent Colored Voters' League of Texas, being an independent and non-partisan organization, should not permit this fact to actuate us to straddle the fence on any issue or matter of vital concern and interest to the electorate of Texas and the nation.

"The question of transcendent importance at this hour to the Negroes of Texas is not office seeking, domination of any partisan organization, neither waving the bloody flag nor fanning the fires of racial antipathy, but active participation and deserving representation in partisan affairs..

"Be it the sense of this organization, in convention assembled, that the Negroes of Texas should organize their forces and actively participate in the Republican precinct conventions to be held in Texas on Saturday, May 5, 1928; that we frown upon and repudiate the holding of partisan caucuses, conventions and elections in and at places where all the Republican voters can not enter or attend; that we hold tenaciously to the constitutional stipulation and provision that the right to vote in any and all conventions and elections, and to even participate in partisan caucuses, shall not be denied to any man or woman because of color, creed or previous condition of servitude; that we are irrevocably opposed to the abridgement of these inalienable and sacred rights and warranties; that the voters of the various precincts exercise their constitutional prerogatives by holding such precinct conventions where no official call has been issued for same in advance, designating the place and time as required by civil statutes of Texas; that at these precinct conventions, as well as at those properly called, all the qualified voters of said voting precincts be instructed and urged to attend same and elect delegates to county conventions who will stand hard by Republican principles, practices, customs and usages; that we see to it that none but genuine, true and tried Republicans are elected as delegates to any and all conventions: county, state, congressional and national; that funds be raised at this conference for financing such an educational campaign, and that towards the consummation of this program a finance committee be appointed with plenary power to raise the money necessary for the accomplishment of this objective; that the voters be urged and advised not to become active or interested in the factional fight now going merrily apace in Texas, but to contend and labor with might and main for a party OF THE PEOPLE, FOR THE PEOPLE AND BY THE PEOPLE.

"Further, be it the sense of this convention that the voters of Texas resort to whatever procedure is necessary to enjoy and exercise their constitutional rights, even if it becomes imperative to resort to legal tribunals for mandatory writs and restraining orders; that we denounce 'political manipulators,' who would thwart and retard the healthy growth of the party organization in this state.

"Also, that the Negroes of Texas will not 'hog-tie' their cause to parties, but rather that we shall support and vote for principles instead of parties as such, and for men in lieu of measures."

Resolution Starts Fireworks

A resolution which H. P. Carter of Houston had introduced in the morning session of the conference, but which was ruled out of order due to the fact that the temporary roll had not even been made up at the time, was resubmitted in the afternoon by C. F. Richardson of Houston. The resolution, which made a plea for Republican party harmony in Texas and submitted eight names as delegates-at-large from Texas to the Republican National Convention, was both vigorously opposed and ably defended by its opponents and proponents. The chief opponents were H. M. Tarver of San Antonio, Rev. M. M. Haynes of Austin, Nathan Johnson and L. E. Bryant of Ft. Worth, W. L. Davis of Houston, H. L. Price of Cuney and others. Chief among the resolution's supporters were L. D. Lyons of Austin, J. T. Ewing and H. P. Carter of Houston, A. G. Perkins and Rev. R. C. Barbour of Galveston, and C. F. Richardson, whose final remarks on the measure really softened the opposition and resulted in a 61-36 victory for the resolution.

Mixed Delegation Is Urged

The full text of the resolution follows:

"Realizing that a tug-of-war, in either athletic contests or intra-partisan fights might be fine exercise and create a great furore and excitement, but gets the participants nowhere; and, in view of the fact that the success of the Republican party in Texas depends wholly and solely upon harmony, teamwork, group action, unselfish public spirit and subordination of all desires for public office, party domination and the emoluments and preferments attendant upon party control; tiring of the incessant and repeated internal bickerings of the last three quadrenniums and the resultant retardation of a healthy and consistent party growth in Texas; and, in order to bring about and maintain party harmony and build up a robust and functioning Republican party organization in Texas;

"Be it resolved that we, in convention assembled, go on record as being unalterably opposed to any movement or procedure within the ranks of the Texas Republicans calculated to retard and dwarf its growth and render inept and inert its functions and activities;

"That as a means towards party harmony and ironing out of internal differences, that the Independent Colored Voters' League of Texas take the position that the colored Republicans of Texas initiate and endorse a movement that the Republican State Convention, which meets at Dallas, Texas, May 22, 1928, elect eight (8) delegates-at-large from this state (with one-half vote each, in lieu of the customary four delegates with one vote each and their four alternates), including in said delegation the following outstanding Texas citizens and Republican electors: T. P. Lee and E. A. Peden of Houston, R. B. Creager of Brownsville, Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin, Eugene Nolte of Seguin, W. S. Willis of Dallas, Captain John ("Jack") Elgin of San Antonio and O. P. DeWalt of Houston."

Hoover Supporters Chosen

Among the eight men named or endorsed by the conference as delegates-at-large from the state, are several supporters and backers of Honorable Herbert C. Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination, and supporters of the secretary of commerce are claiming victory for their presidential choice and preference.

Precinct Activity Emphasized

Delegates present were urged to return to their several communities and organize their forces to actively participate in the Republican precinct conventions to be held Saturday, May 5, 1928, and the chairmen of the eighteen congressional districts were given plenary power to appoint workers in every county and precinct in their districts, in order to get out a full Republican vote at said precinct conventions.

Resolutions were passed unanimously, thanking the Dallas Express, Houston Informer and all other publications for the part played thus far by these newspapers in the cause of the league and race along political lines, and to express the league's gratitude to the grand chancellor and Colored Knights of Pythias of Texas for use of the temple's auditorium for said gathering.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. E. L. Harrison of Houston, after W. L. Davis had led in singing, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again;" while Rev. R. C. Barbour led in singing the opening song, "America," with invocation by Dr. E. Arlington Wilson, pastor Macedonia Baptist Church and president Baptist Missionary and Educational Convention of Texas.

Davis On Publicity Job

Through the instrumentality of J. A. Davis, member of the Dallas Express staff, who served as publicity director of the conference, the four Dallas daily newspapers—Times-Herald, Dallas Morning News, Evening Journal and Dispatch—carried full and lengthy reports of the conference doings, the first named newspaper devoting considerable space to the parley and dispatching one of their reporters to cover same. Its Sunday edition, on the front page, played up the meeting.

It is the consensus of opinion that this was the greatest, most far-reaching and representative meeting of its kind ever held in the state by Negroes, and the daily newspapers of the city and state have devoted many columns to the league's deliberations while in session in the North Texas metropolis.

NEGROES OF VA. AND FLA. FOLLOW WAY OF THOSE OF LA. AND MISS.

Race Citizens of Richmond Turn to Court in Demand of Right to Vote in Primaries

MAKE DETERMINED STAND FOR JUSTICE LONG DENIED

Negroes of Pensacola Defy Threats and Boldly Come Out and Stand Ground in Move

(Special)

RICHMOND, Va., Mar., 28. — A bomb-shell was thrown into the ranks of the G. O. P. "Lily Whites" as well as the Democrats here Monday when colored political leaders announced that they would apply in the Federal Court for a writ to compel the city Democratic committee to allow them to vote in the city Democratic primary April 3 for the election of a mayor.

Legal Battle Promised

The action was taken at a meeting of Nonpartisan Voters' League attended by about 2000 citizens and addressed by both colored and white lawyers. The legal fight it was announced would be headed by Atty. J. R. Pollard prominent Race leader here and director of the league.

(Special)

PENSACOLA, Fla., Mar. 28. — Following the example of their fellow citizens in the neighboring states of Mississippi and Louisiana, the colored voters of Florida have come out in open defiance of disfranchisement tendencies that have long overshadowed states of the South.

Make Bold Stand

Monday the Race Voters league of this city astounded white politicians when they issued a statement to the effect that Negro voters in this city intended to vote in the coming primaries and general election, come what will or may.

In the statement made public the league says it does not want any race riot, but says it is determined to take in the city election, voting for any candidate it chooses. It declared it would carry the fight for this right to the highest tribunal of the United States if necessary.

The statement points to the lack of representation in the administration of city affairs and financing. It states openly that Negroes in the city have not been taken care of properly, and that the league intends to retify this at the polls.

Show Determination

Painting to the fact that its members are taxpayers and otherwise eligible to vote as they choose the league says, "we want justice is all that we ask for."

In spite of the fact that the State Attorney General issued an opinion that Negroes who registered to vote in the city primary could be held for perjury, several hundred colored voters have already registered in the city.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican.

REPUBLICAN SITUATION IN TEXAS

The Houston Informer, an original supporter of Herbert C. Hoover back in the fall of 1919, when the field was full of presidential "hopes," aspirants and possibilities, finds itself in a rather incongruous position, to-wit: While favorable to and supporting the same presidential candidate that the Creager-Nolte Republican regime in Texas is supposed to be supporting, this paper also finds itself unalterably opposed to this same state partisan administration.

As between Creager-Nolte & Co., Inc., distributors de luxe of federal pie and plums in this state and supposed occupants of the Hoover band-wagon in Texas, and the Wurzbach-Littleton-Scobey-Rogers combine, the anti-Creager faction and advocates of an uninstructed delegation from this state to the National Republican Convention, which meets at Kansas City, Mo., June 12, 1928, The Informer has no other alternative and no other method of maintaining its self-respect than to assume the attitude that it is to the best interests of the so-called Republican party in this state to repudiate the present partisan administration in Texas, and supplant same with men who ring true and stand firm on the fundamental principles of republicanism and democracy (popular rule).

Notwithstanding this apparent paradoxical situation in which The Informer finds itself, we still believe that Mr. Hoover is the logical man for the Rpublican nomination; and, while this paper is for Mr. Hoover and wants to see him nominated and elected; and, in view of the fact that the anti-Creager forces are not opposed or antagonistic to Hoover's candidacy, per se, we would rather see Texas Republicans send up an uninstructed delegation to the national gathering of the party, headed by such men as Congressman Wurzbach and other outstanding Republicans, than to honor the Creager-Nolte regime in this respect, and thereby maintain the party organization in this state in the vest pockets of a handful of political manipulators.

For the last eight years The Informer has contended that the Republicans of Texas needed to engage in a partisan housecleaning, as it relates to those in control of party affairs in this state; that the party should be restored to the people, and that earnest and well-defined efforts should be initiated and conducted to really build up the party numerically, not merely during presidential election years, but at every biennial election, congressional, state and county.

Though a staunch Hoover adherent and supporter, The Informer is dubious and suspicious of certain alleged Hoover supporters in the Creager-Nolte camp, and we also have a hunch that all this reported and supposed pre-convention activity on the part of the Creager regime for Mr. Hoover, is nothing more nor less than a nice scheme being foisted upon the Texas voters of Republican persuasion, as well as independent and Democratic electors favorable to Mr. Hoover's presidential candidacy, to further entrench the present state Republican regime in absolute control and full charge of the Texas partisan organization.

The Informer agrees with the Dallas Express, which stated, editorially, last week, that Republican electors of Texas should manifest more than passing interest in the internal party fight to "unhorse" the Creager administration; that this issue is of infinitely more importance to Texas Republicans just now than any presidential aspirant and possibility.

However, there is only one way in which the Republican voters can give honest expression to their wishes in this and other respects, and that is to organize their forces and begin at the precinct conventions, which will be held Saturday, May 5, 1928, by electing delegates who are not in accord and harmony with the Creager administration and its strictly "exclusive" policy and unrepublican program.

While both the Creager-Nolte and Wurzbach-Littleton forces have held their statewide conferences and decided upon their courses of action, no meeting has been held, neither has there been an expression of the sentiment of the vast majority of Republican voters in Texas, touching either upon the presidential race or the factional fight now going merrily apace in this state.

These American citizens and Republican electors should hold a statewide conference and decide what course they will pursue and what attitude they will take in the present Republican situation in Texas; for, if the present party regime maintains control of party affairs in this state, its future is anything but roseate.

As for the Hoover candidacy and the pre-convention support of certain Texas Republicans, The Informer, though a Hoover supporter, would rather see an uninstructed anti-Creager delegation from Texas than to see a pro-Creager delegation from the state instructed for Mr. Hoover; for it is currently rumored over the state that several of those already slated for delegateship on the Creager ticket, who are whooping it up now for Mr. Hoover, and for an instructed Hoover delegation from Texas, are merely engaging in such tactics this early in the game to attain their objectives as delegates; and, that when they have been elected, there will be some collective bargaining as was done in 1920.

Candidly and frankly, knowing the political situation in Texas as well as we do, and having observed, during the past, the peculiar pranks and queer didoes of some of the "big" Republicans now supposed to be boosting and supporting the secretary of commerce, The Informer believes that the Hoover forces should not commit nor entrust their candidate's entire political fortune, as far as Texas is concerned, in the hands of the present party leaders!

Call for the Republican National Convention of 1928

To the Republican Voters of the United States:

In compliance with the rules adopted by the Republican National Convention of 1924, the Republican National Committee directs that a National Convention of delegated representatives of the Republican Party be held at Kansas City, Missouri, at 11 o'clock A. M., on Tuesday, June 12, 1928, for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice President, to be voted for at the presidential election on Tuesday, November 6, 1928, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it. The voters of the several states and of Alaska, this call by sending a copy thereof to the two members of the National Committee from each state, territory, territorial possession and the District of Columbia, and to inclose therewith copies of the call for the Chairman and Secretary, respectively, of the State Central Committee or governing committee of the party therein to be forwarded to said Chairman and Secretary, respectively, by the members of the National Committee in and for said state. In case of a vacancy in membership of the Republican National Committee, copies of the call shall be forwarded directly by the secretary of the Republican National Committee to the Chairman and Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee or governing committee of the party in said state, territory, territorial possession or district.

Political - 1/28

Party Affiliation

Republican.

REPUBLICAN SITUATION IN TEXAS

The Houston Informer, an original supporter of Herbert C. Hoover back in the fall of 1919, when the field was full of presidential "hopes," aspirants and possibilities, finds itself in a rather incongruous position, to-wit: While favorable to and supporting the same presidential candidate that the Creager-Nolte Republican regime in Texas is supposed to be supporting, this paper also finds itself unalterably opposed to this same state partisan administration.

As between Creager-Nolte & Co., Inc., distributors de luxe of federal pie and plums in this state and supposed occupants of the Hoover band-wagon in Texas, and the Wurzbach-Littleton-Scobey-Rogers combine, the anti-Creager faction and advocates of an uninstructed delegation from this state to the National Republican Convention, which meets at Kansas City, Mo., June 12, 1928, The Informer has no other alternative and no other method of maintaining its self-respect than to assume the attitude that it is to the best interests of the so-called Republican party in this state to repudiate the present partisan administration in Texas, and supplant same with men who ring true and stand firm on the fundamental principles of republicanism and democracy (popular rule).

Notwithstanding this apparent paradoxical situation in which The Informer finds itself, we still believe that Mr. Hoover is the logical man for the Rpublican nomination; and, while this paper is for Mr. Hoover and wants to see him nominated and elected; and, in view of the fact that the anti-Creager forces are not opposed or antagonistic to Hoover's candidacy, per se, we would rather see Texas Republicans send up an uninstructed delegation to the national gathering of the party, headed by such men as Congressman Wurzbach and other outstanding Republicans, than to honor the Creager-Nolte regime in this respect, and thereby maintain the party organization in this state in the vest pockets of a handful of political manipulators.

For the last eight years The Informer has contended that the Republicans of Texas needed to engage in a partisan housecleaning, as it relates to those in control of party affairs in this state; that the party should be restored to the people, and that earnest and well-defined efforts should be initiated and conducted to really build up the party numerically, not merely during presidential election years, but at every biennial election, congressional, state and county.

Though a staunch Hoover adherent and supporter, The Informer is dubious and suspicious of certain alleged Hoover supporters in the Creager-Nolte camp, and we also have a hunch that all this reported and supposed pre-convention activity on the part of the Creager regime for Mr. Hoover, is nothing more nor less than a nice scheme being foisted upon the Texas voters of Republican persuasion, as well as independent and Democratic electors favorable to Mr. Hoover's presidential candidacy, to further entrench the present state Republican regime in absolute control and full charge of the Texas partisan organization.

The Informer agrees with the Dallas Express, which stated, editorially, last week, that Republican electors of Texas should manifest more than passing interest in the internal party fight to "unhorse" the Creager administration; that this issue is of infinitely more importance to Texas Republicans just now than any presidential aspirant and possibility.

However, there is only one way in which the Republican voters can give honest expression to their wishes in this and other respects, and that is to organize their forces and begin at the precinct conventions, which will be held Saturday, May 5, 1928, by electing delegates who are not in accord and harmony with the Creager administration and its strictly "exclusive" policy and unrepublican program.

While both the Creager-Nolte and Wurzbach-Littleton forces have held their statewide conferences and decided upon their courses of action, no meeting has been held, neither has there been an expression of the sentiment of the vast majority of Republican voters in Texas, touching either upon the presidential race or the factional fight now going merrily apace in this state.

These American citizens and Republican electors should hold a statewide conference and decide what course they will pursue and what attitude they will take in the present Republican situation in Texas; for, if the present party regime maintains control of party affairs in this state, its future is anything but roseate.

As for the Hoover candidacy and the pre-convention support of certain Texas Republicans, The Informer, though a Hoover supporter, would rather see an uninstructed anti-Creager delegation from Texas than to see a pro-Creager delegation from the state instructed for Mr. Hoover; for it is currently rumored over the state that several of those already slated for delegateship on the Creager ticket, who are whooping it up now for Mr. Hoover, and for an instructed Hoover delegation from Texas, are merely engaging in such tactics this early in the game to attain their objectives as delegates; and, that when they have been elected, there will be some collective bargaining as was done in 1920.

Candidly and frankly, knowing the political situation in Texas as well as we do, and having observed, during the past, the peculiar pranks and queer didoes of some of the "big" Republicans now supposed to be boosting and supporting the secretary of commerce, The Informer believes that the Hoover forces should not commit nor entrust their candidate's entire political fortune, as far as Texas is concerned, in the hands of the present party leaders!

Call for the Republican National Convention of 1928

To the Republican Voters of the United States:

In compliance with the rules adopted by the Republican National Convention of 1924, the Republican National Committee directs that a National Convention of delegated representatives of the Republican Party be held at Kansas City, Missouri, at 11 o'clock A. M., on Tuesday, June 12, 1928, for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice President, to be voted for at the presidential election on Tuesday, November 6, 1928, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it. The voters of the several states and of Alaska, this call by sending a copy thereof to the two members of the National Committee from each state, territory, territorial possession and the District of Columbia, and to inclose therewith copies of the call for the Chairman and Secretary, respectively, of the State Central Committee or governing committee of the party therein to be forwarded to said Chairman and Secretary, respectively by the members of the National Committee in and for said state. In case of a vacancy in membership of the Republican National Committee, copies of the call shall be forwarded directly by the secretary of the Republican National Committee to the Chairman and Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee or governing committee of the party in said state, territory, territorial possession or district.

(over)

(continued from back)

Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands and the District of Columbia who are in accord with the principles of the Republican Party, believe in its declaration of policies, and are in sympathy with its aims and purposes, are invited to unite under this call in the selection of delegates to said convention.

Said National Convention shall consist of

(a) DELEGATES AT LARGE

1. Four delegates-at-large from each state.

2. Two additional delegates-at-large for each representative-at-large in Congress from each state.

3. Two delegates-at-large each for Alaska, District of Columbia, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands.

4. Three additional delegates-at-large from each state casting its electoral vote, or a majority thereof, for the Republican nominee for President in the last preceding presidential election.

(b) DISTRICT DELEGATES

1. One district delegate from each congressional district.

2. One additional district delegate from each congressional district casting 10,000 votes or more for any Republican elector in the last preceding presidential election or for the Republican nominee for Congress in the last preceding congressional election.

(c) ALTERNATE DELEGATES

One alternate delegate to each delegate to the National Convention.

DELEGATES SHALL BE ELECTED UNDER THE FOLLOWING RULES:

First—Only legal and qualified voters shall participate in a Republican primary, caucus, mass meeting or mass convention held for the purpose of selecting delegates to be elected as delegates to county, district or state conventions, and only such legal and qualified voters shall be elected as delegates to county, district and state conventions.

Second—State and district conventions shall be composed of delegates who are legal and qualified voters. Such delegates shall be apportioned among the counties, parishes and cities of the state or district. having regard to the Republican vote therein.

Third—Delegates and alternates to the National Convention shall be duly qualified voters of their respective states and territories, and in the case of the District of Columbia, residents therein.

Delegates-at-large and their alternates, and delegates from congressional districts and their alternates, shall be elected in the following manner:

(1) By primary election, in accordance with the laws of the state in which the election occurs, in such states as require by law the election of delegates to National Conventions of political parties by direct primaries; provided that in any state in which Republican representation upon the board and judges or inspectors of elections for such primary election is denied by law, delegates and alternates shall be elected as hereinafter provided.

(2) By the Republican State Committee or governing committee in any state in which the law of such state specifically authorizes the election of delegates in such manner.

(3) By congressional or state conventions, as the case may be, to be called by the congressional, state or governing committees, respectively, Notice of the call for any such convention shall be published in a newspaper or newspapers of general circulation in the district or state, as the case may be, not less than fifteen days prior to date of said convention.

(4) Provided, however, that in selecting delegates and alternates to the National Convention, no state law shall be observed which hinders, abridges or denies to any citizen of the United States eligible under the United States Constitution to the office of President or Vice President the right or privilege of being a candidate under such state law for the nomination for President or Vice President; or which authorizes the election of a number of delegates or alternates from any state to the National Convention different from that fixed in this call.

In a congressional district where there is no Republican congressional committee, the Republican State Committee shall issue the call and make said publication.

All delegates from any state may, however, be chosen from the state-at-large, in the event that the laws of the state in which the election occurs so provide.

Alternate delegates shall be elected to said National Convention for each unit of representation equal in number to the number of delegates elected therein and shall be chosen in the same manner and at the same time the delegates are chosen; provided, however, that if the law of any state shall prescribe the method of choosing alternates, they shall be chosen in accordance with the provisions of the law of the state in which the election occurs.

Election of delegates shall be certified in every case where they are elected by conventions, by the chairman and secretary of such conventions, respectively; and in case of election by primary, they shall be certified to by the proper official, and all certificates shall be forwarded by said duly elected delegates and alternates in the manner herein provided.

The delegates and alternates from Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands and the District of Columbia shall be selected in such manner and under such rules as may be adopted by the respective recognized Republican Central Committee, or governing committee by whatever name known, in and for the respective units of representation.

That such respective recognized committees are hereby authorized to designate the time and place for the selection or election of the delegates and alternates to the next Republican Convention from such units of representation, not inconsistent with the rules adopted by the National Convention.

That the said respective committees, through their respective chairmen and secretaries are authorized to issue the necessary certificate of election.

All delegates or alternates shall be elected not later than thirty days before the date of the meeting of said Republican National Convention unless otherwise provided by the laws of the state in which the election occurs.

No delegates or alternates shall be deemed eligible to participate in any convention to elect delegates to said National Convention, who were elected prior to the date of this call.

The credentials of each delegate and alternate elected must be forwarded to the Secretary of the Republican National Committee at the office of the National Committee, Munsey Building, Washington, D. C., at least twenty days before the 12th of June, 1928, for use in making up the temporary roll of the convention; except in the case of delegates or alternates elected at a time or times in accordance with the laws of the state in which the election occurs, rendering impossible the filing of credentials within the time above specified.

All notices of contests shall be forwarded in the same manner and within the same time limit. When more than the authorized number of delegates or alternates from any state, territory or territorial possession are reported to the Secretary of the National Committee, a contest shall be deemed to exist and the Secretary shall notify the several claimants so reported and shall submit all such credentials and claims to the whole Committee for decision as to which claimants reported shall be placed on the temporary roll of the Convention; provided, however, that the names of the delegates and alternates presenting certificates of election from the canvassing board or officer created or designated by the law of the state in which the election occurs, to canvass the returns and issue certificates of election to delegates to National Conventions of political parties in a primary election. shall be placed upon the temporary roll of the convention by the National Committee.

All notices of contests shall be in writing, accompanied by a printed statement setting forth the ground of the contests, and must be filed with the Secretary of the National Committee at least twenty days prior to the meeting of the National Convention, except in the case of delegates or alternates elected at a time or times in accordance with the laws of the state in which the election occurs, rendering impossible the filing of notices of contests within the time above specified.

The secretary of the Republican National Committee is directed to promulgate

Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands and the District of Columbia who are in accord with the principles of the Republican Party, believe in its declaration of policies, and are in sympathy with its aims and purposes, are invited to unite under this call in the selection of delegates to said convention.

Said National Convention shall consist of

(a) DELEGATES AT LARGE

1. Four delegates-at-large from each state.

2. Two additional delegates-at-large for each representative-at-large in Congress from each state.

3. Two delegates-at-large each for Alaska, District of Columbia, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands.

4. Three additional delegates-at-large from each state casting its electoral vote, or a majority thereof, for the Republican nominee for President in the last preceding presidential election.

(b) DISTRICT DELEGATES

1. One district delegate from each congressional district.

2. One additional district delegate from each congressional district casting 10,000 votes or more for any Republican elector in the last preceding presidential election or for the Republican nominee for Congress in the last preceding congressional election.

(c) ALTERNATE DELEGATES

One alternate delegate to each delegate to the National Convention.

DELEGATES SHALL BE ELECTED UNDER THE FOLLOWING RULES:

First—Only legal and qualified voters shall participate in a Republican primary, caucus, mass meeting or mass convention held for the purpose of selecting delegates to be elected as delegates to county, district or state conventions, and only such legal and qualified voters shall be elected as delegates to county, district and state conventions.

Second—State and district conventions shall be composed of delegates who are legal and qualified voters. Such delegates shall be apportioned among the counties, parishes and cities of the state or district. having regard to the Republican vote therein.

Third—Delegates and alternates to the National Convention shall be duly qualified voters of their respective states and territories, and in the case of the District of Columbia, residents therein.

Delegates-at-large and their alternates, and delegates from congressional districts and their alternates, shall be elected in the following manner:

(1) By primary election, in accordance with the laws of the state in which the election occurs, in such states as require by law the election of delegates to National Conventions of political parties by direct primaries; provided that in any state in which Republican representation upon the board and judges or inspectors of elections for such primary election is denied by law, delegates and alternates shall be elected as hereinafter provided.

(2) By the Republican State Committee or governing committee in any state in which the law of such state specifically authorizes the election of delegates in such manner.

(3) By congressional or state conventions, as the case may be, to be called by the congressional, state or governing committees, respectively, Notice of the call for any such convention shall be published in a newspaper or newspapers of general circulation in the district or state, as the case may be, not less than fifteen days prior to date of said convention.

(4) Provided, however, that in selecting delegates and alternates to the National Convention, no state law shall be observed which hinders, abridges or denies to any citizen of the United States eligible under the United States Constitution to the office of President or Vice President the right or privilege of being a candidate under such state law for the nomination for President or Vice President; or which authorizes the election of a number of delegates or alternates from any state to the National Convention different from that fixed in this call.

In a congressional district where there is no Republican congressional committee, the Republican State Committee shall issue the call and make said publication.

All delegates from any state may, however, be chosen from the state-at-large, in the event that the laws of the state in which the election occurs so provide.

Alternate delegates shall be elected to said National Convention for each unit of representation equal in number to the number of delegates elected therein and shall be chosen in the same manner and at the same time the delegates are chosen; provided, however, that if the law of any state shall prescribe the method of choosing alternates, they shall be chosen in accordance with the provisions of the law of the state in which the election occurs.

Election of delegates shall be certified in every case where they are elected by conventions, by the chairman and secretary of such conventions, respectively; and in case of election by primary, they shall be certified to by the proper official, and all certificates shall be forwarded by said duly elected delegates and alternates in the manner herein provided.

The delegates and alternates from Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands and the District of Columbia shall be selected in such manner and under such rules as may be adopted by the respective recognized Republican Central Committee, or governing committee by whatever name known, in and for the respective units of representation.

That such respective recognized committees are hereby authorized to designate the time and place for the selection or election of the delegates and alternates to the next Republican Convention from such units of representation, not inconsistent with the rules adopted by the National Convention.

That the said respective committees, through their respective chairmen and secretaries are authorized to issue the necessary certificate of election.

All delegates or alternates shall be elected not later than thirty days before the date of the meeting of said Republican National Convention unless otherwise provided by the laws of the state in which the election occurs.

No delegates or alternates shall be deemed eligible to participate in any convention to elect delegates to said National Convention, who were elected prior to the date of this call.

The credentials of each delegate and alternate elected must be forwarded to the Secretary of the Republican National Committee at the office of the National Committee, Munsey Building, Washington, D. C., at least twenty days before the 12th of June, 1928, for use in making up the temporary roll of the convention; except in the case of delegates or alternates elected at a time or times in accordance with the laws of the state in which the election occurs, rendering impossible the filing of credentials within the time above specified.

All notices of contests shall be forwarded in the same manner and within the same time limit. When more than the authorized number of delegates or alternates from any state, territory or territorial possession are reported to the Secretary of the National Committee, a contest shall be deemed to exist and the Secretary shall notify the several claimants so reported and shall submit all such credentials and claims to the whole Committee for decision as to which claimants reported shall be placed on the temporary roll of the Convention; provided, however, that the names of the delegates and alternates presenting certificates of election from the canvassing board or officer created or designated by the law of the state in which the election occurs, to canvass the returns and issue certificates of election to delegates to National Conventions of political parties in a primary election shall be placed upon the temporary roll of the convention by the National Committee.

All notices of contests shall be in writing, accompanied by a printed statement setting forth the ground of the contests, and must be filed with the Secretary of the National Committee at least twenty days prior to the meeting of the National Convention, except in the case of delegates or alternates elected at a time or times in accordance with the laws of the state in which the election occurs, rendering impossible the filing of notices of contests within the time above specified.

The secretary of the Republican National Committee is directed to promulgate

continued on front

Political - 1928

Republican.

Party Affiliation

Cordele, Ga., Reporter
Friday, July 6, 1928

HOOVER AND SOCIAL EQUALITY

Shortly before the Republican presidential primary in Ohio, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, now the nominee of the Republican party for president, issued an order doing away with the separation of the white and negro races in the census bureau. As one of the results of that order, he carried Ohio in the primary. On April 2, 1928, United States Senator Stephens of Mississippi wrote Mr. Hoover a letter of protest against the order, and quoted from two Washington newspapers to show that Hoover issued the order and that it was issued for political reasons. To this letter Mr. Hoover replied as follows:

"The Secretary of Commerce, Washington, D. C. April 7, 1928.—Hon. H. D. Stephens, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.—My dear Mr. Senator:—I have your letter of April 2. The articles which you mention are in large degree foolish untruths. If such action as was taken is against the interest of either the white or colored employees, they have a full right to present the matter to me. I have received no complaint from either group.

Yours faithfully,
HERBERT HOOVER.

To this letter Senator Stephens made the following reply:

"United States Senate, Washington, D. C., April 16, 1928.—Hon. Herbert Hoover, secretary of Commerce, Washington, D. C.—My dear Mr. Secretary: Answering my letter making protest against your recent order by which there is no longer a segregation of races in the Bureau of the Census, you wrote me as follows: (Hoover letter of April 7 quoted in full.) This is the full text of your letter. I note that you say, "The articles which you mention are in a large degree foolish untruths." This is a very general statement. You do not specify the foolish untruths contained in the articles. Of course, you do not designate as a foolish untruth the statement that you issued the order referred to. That is beyond denial.

You may refer to the activities of the heads of certain negro organizations, the pressure that they are said to have brought to bear on you, and the interest displayed by a negro who is running as a Hoover delegate in Ohio. Those statements may not be exactly accurate. I do not know. However, I am informed that at least one of the negroes referred to in the articles appeared in the room where the negro employees had been assigned to places by the side of white men and women, and that he was all grins and congratulated them on the recognition that had been given them.

But their accuracy is a matter not of the slightest importance. What I am interested in—what every decent white person in and out of the bureau is interested in—is the fact that the order was made. The order may not have been made for political purposes. But it occurs to me that it would be more to your credit to assign the issuance of the order to political reasons than to assign it to any other.

You say, if such action as was taken is against the interest of either the white or colored employees, they have a full right to present the matter to me. "I have received no complaint from either group." This begs the question. It is rather a disingenuous statement. "A full right" to complain! Of course, any person who can write or talk can voice a protest. But what would be the result? It is so easy to separate one from the service. A good position has often been lost for a smaller offense than protesting the action of a superior. So, Mr. Secretary, you should not offer as a defense for your action the fact that you have received no complaint.

I am informed that members of both races, under present conditions as inaugurated by you, are compelled to use the same necessary accommodations provided them. White women and negro women are forced to use the same wash rooms and toilets. You may have received "no complaint"; but your knowledge of human nature and your sense of decency and propriety must cause you to know that the breasts of many of the employees in the bureau are seething with unuttered protests against the condition that you have brought about. You can not justify your action by saying that no complaint has been made by either group of employees.

This criticism is not a political one. It is made in the interest of decency and of the welfare of the Government. History can not be trifled with. Whenever there has been a step toward social equality between the races, dire results have followed, and both races have suffered. I can look upon this action of yours only as a step toward social equality, and I can only fear the results that may ensue.

Again I protest this order, and again I appeal to you to rescind it. If you should do so, every true friend of the negro, every white person loyal to the white race, will approve of your change of mind and action in this regard.

Very respectfully,
H. D. Stephens, U. S. Senator."

When Hoover was passing through Georgia a month or two ago, the negro woman down in South Georgia who is the Republican national committee-woman for Georgia was the only person in Georgia he looked up. The whole sordid affair places Mr. Hoover in a position few people would care to occupy. His order compelling social equality in the census bureau was the lowest politics ever played in this country, and his answer to the Stephens letter displays the petulance of a spoiled child. His election as president would be a national calamity.

Cordele, Ga., Dispatch
Tuesday, July 24, 1928

LET THEM DO THEIR OWN VOTING

The Dispatch is going to dispose of one lone ballot at the November election—but it reserves the right to cast that ballot as it pleases—and we want it understood that we are for an unfettered choice for all other voters in the same manner. And with that ballot we expect to keep in cool, good humor. We want the other fellow to remain cool and stay in good humor. But we sincerely hope nothing gets in the way of the voters of Georgia and the south to keep them from voting as they please. We are ready now—will be ready then— to accept the results if we can but know the voter has been allowed to make his own choice and cast his own ballot according to his own convictions.

But we reserve the right to tell our readers that the republican party—since it fell into the hands of Herbert Hoover's friends at the Kansas City convention—has removed every negro from office in Georgia. It is cleaning up with southern negro patronage peddlers and will continue to do so till respectable white people who care about federal administration of office in the south will have as clear a way to vote conscientiously for principle and leadership—and vote the republican ticket—as will the democrats.

We also reserve the right to tell the white voters we can reach that the Al Smith soda pop brigade in Georgia is deliberately continuing to shove under the noses of southern white people the stench of the negro republican politician when there is no such thing any further in the way. We reserve the right to go further and say that Herbert Hoover has given the order that has made possible the sweeping changes which have already been made in clearing the republican party machinery in Georgia and the south of negro objectionables. The white voter who has stood aloof because of the negro in the south no longer has the bugaboo to face. We cannot vouch for the future, but we have this consolation—the Georgian and the southern white voter who has remained democratic because of the negro no longer faces that objection.

There will be an upstanding republican set of white electors in the November election—they will be offered because Herbert Hoover wants to give the southern white voter an opportunity to vote his convictions unhampered by the age old bugaboo of the negro. That thing has already been done with human, sympathetic care for the southern white voter. It has been done with promptness—was one of the very first things Herbert Hoover did after he was nominated.

We do not expect to apologize at all for telling southern white democrats who are not going to vote for Al Smith these things. We have an idea that everything this side of hades will be done by the Al Smith forces in Georgia to keep the revolting democracy from knowing that this is so. We have an idea that the most disconcerting thing Herbert Hoover has done since he became the republican nominee—in the southern Al Smith camps—is the fact that he has cleared the republican party machinery in Georgia of every trace of the negro. It is something startling—appalling. You could not force an acknowledgement of these facts from the Georgia Al Smith supporters with sawed off shot guns.

But these facts—and [illegible] more things done to open the way for revolting democrats in Georgia to vote their convictions for the best man for the office—will be known in plenty of time. They will be made so clear that every democrat who wants to take care of the democratic nominees for state and local offices and for congress may do so and still have a free hand as between the Al Smith and the Herbrt Hoover electors on the November ballot—to vote as they please.

Our own chairman of the state democratic committee has told us that we may exercise our own choice in these matters. That, he says, is nothing new. We have done that already which we pleased—and it was one of the things the late Tom Watson forced upon the unwilling democratic leaders for years ago. Ed Maddox was fair enough to tell Georgians this has been a custom a few time—to vote as we please for a presidential nominee.

We are willing to beg the censure that will be heaped upon us for telling our readers that it is so. We do not mind saying to all who want to know it—we are not going to cast a ballot now or at any other time for Al Smith and the Tammany leadership now imposed upon the democratic party. If we have enough of good company among our own people not to have to go it alone and without them in the November election, our ballot will be cast for Herbert Hoover for president—and the entire republican electoral ticket.

We do not expect to apologize anywhere for it. If we had any shame or embarrassment coming out of it, we would not do it. We have no fear either now or in the future that we will not be able to offer high ground for it—principle. If we knew the democracy at all, it isn't any part of the Tammany ticket. That offers us Romanism and the open saloon and grog shop with all their interminable vices. That is not the democracy our fathers taught us. To that democracy we intend to remain loyal—and in supporting candidates for office in Georgia and our own local contests, we still intend to vote for the candidates for office in Georgia and our own local contests, we still intend to vote for the candidate who best will uphold representative government—will defend the right of the voter at the ballot box by a clean administration of public office. That's democracy as we see it—and it ought to be the same in the national elections as in the state and local contests. We can best remain loyal to that type of democracy by voting against Al Smith and Tammany—we think that way about it just now.

NEWS
CHARLESTON, S. C.

JUL 22 1928

What Hoover Might Do

Every Democrat knows, The News and Courier can guarantee, that if Smith and Robinson be elected no negroes will be appointed federal prohibition enforcing agents in the South. No one can say that in a Hoover administration negro enforcement agents would not be appointed. Indeed, Mr. Hoover might say that he could not be loyal to his negro supporters and refuse them a share of these offices. In this he would be egregiously wrong, but Mr. Hoover has been coquetting with the negro voters of the North, rather more than Harding or Coolidge had to do.

Negro postmasters would be less annoying than negro prohibition enforcers. Of course national prohibition implies that soon or late a Republican administration in Washington will appoint negro prohibition enforcers.

The more federal offices we have the more negro officeholders we shall have.

HOOVER AND NEGRO EQUALITY.

The democratic party in Georgia, and all other southern states, believe in negro equality before the law, that is that under the law they have equal rights, privileges and protection to their persons and property, and they get it, but not to equal social rights, and that they neither ask nor want.

The northern republican party, however, stands for the political and social equality of the two races, not because the white members of it actually believe in such a situation, but for the fact that the negro leaders demand it, and there is hardly a republican state in which they do not have the balance of power, and their defection would make democratic victories assured, both locally and nationally, and it is that which makes them so cuddle southern negroes, and put them in official positions over white women and men wherever possible.

But there are many white men in the republican states who believe in absolute social equality of negroes and whites, and one of these is Secretary Herbert Hoover, the republican nominee for president.

In the office of the Interstate Commerce department, at Washington, of which he is the head, over twenty negro men and women are working side by side with an equal number of white men and women, the women having the same toilet and rest room, and the men theirs together.

Only a short time ago, while traveling through Georgia on a train made up of dining and sleeping cars bringing back delegates from the Kansas City convention, made a short stop at Savannah, and some of his political friends sent for him to step to the platform, which he declined to do, saying he was dinwith a lady, and that "lady" was a negro woman, who was a delegate to the Kansas City Convention.

During the world war, when then claiming to be a democrat, he was food commissioner, during Woodrow Wilson's administration, he brought the negroes and whites together in his numerous division headquarters and office rooms in Washington, fed them foom the same table and using the same rest room, but when Wilson learned the situation he immediately issued an order seggregating the races.

We do not believe tat Secretary Hoover did these things for political expediency, but for the reason that he favors the absolute social equality of the races, which he has the unquestioned right to do, just as we have to abhor such a situation.

Such social equality as he believes in means the misecenation, or intermarriage of the Anglo Saxon and the African, which is going on, to a very small extent, in some eastern and western states, where there are no statutes preventing such marriages, but, in the southern states it is inhibited by law.

White supremacy is the main issue in Georgia, and it is a thousand times more important than prohibition and religious creeds, neither of which will be, in the slightest degree, affected by the election of Governor Elfred E. Smith to the presidency, a great man, and an honest one, and the only democrat in the nation who would have the ghost of a chance of election.

Every white woman and man in Georgia who votes for Hoover directly indorses negro social equality and miscenegation, although all of them are bitterly opposed to both, but that act is the most, and only effective one they can possibly perform to give real force and effect to this monstrous principle.

Any person who cannot conscientiously support the national democratic ticket is not legally, nor morally bound to vote for any presidential candidate, but can scratch that, and support candidates for all state and county offices, and congressmen.

EXPONENT
CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

JUL 28 1928

THE NEGRO VOTE

A long press release was sent out the other day, evidently from the state Republican headquarters, and its purpose was to show that colored voters would by no means desert the Republican standard this year. This sort of tonic is usually held for later in the campaign, but this year things seem to be different.

Already there is a defection of Negro votes from the Hoover banner, and it is led by Neval H. Thomas, head of the Washington branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

If you would know the truth about the stuff which has been sent out in this state lauding the Negro and telling how well the Grand Old Party has cared for its colored people, you will find that it is an effort to off-set a movement of Negroes from the party which is the most unusual in American politics.

The post-office scandals in the South and the persecution of Perry W. Howard has aroused colored citizens throughout the country.

Neval Thomas has written to Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, telling her that her activities in Mississippi are not aimed solely at Howard and his political associates, but at "the great Negro race."

"Perhaps you think you have deceived the colored people by your tactics at Kansas City and your entry into Mississippi to save it for white supremacy," said Thomas's letter. "This whole scheme against Perry W. Howard was concocted right here in Washington by the servants of Mr. Hoover to take from the colored people the last vestige of influence and prestige in a degenerate political party that has lived on the Negro for years."

Thomas warns Mrs. Willebrandt that the Negro voter will turn from the Republican party.

"We shall meet the faithless party at the polls," he said. "Every Negro newspaper in the country is railing out against the outrage, informing our millions of this last assault upon their liberties."

This is why our friends on the other side are up so early in the campaign trying to placate the Negro voter. Be not misled.

Political - 1928.
Party Affiliation.

Republican.

Lily White Events Come In With Hoover Control

Picture 1. With Hoover in control, Ben Davis and Emil Kuntz lost out in the Kansas City National Republican Convention Contests.

Picture 2. Headquarters for the white has been opened in Munsey Building in Washington, D. C. under Colonel Mann, (white.)

Picture 3. The Hoover crowd is also back of the fraud accusations against Perry Howard, (Miss.) who was ousted from his D. C. office.

Picture 4. G. O. P. has agreed to work with Senator Tom Heflin, (Democrat) and the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama and Georgia.

Picture 5. Mrs. Mary Booze Miss. National Committeewoman, was barred from the official banquet in D. C.

Leaders of Democracy May Select Negro To Oppose Race Nominee

First Illinois District May Witness Hectic Race For Madden's Seat In Congress—DePriest's Forces Ready For Battle—Victory Seen For Colored Congressional Candidate In November.

Chicago, Ill.—(ANP)—If the right man can be found, Oscar DePriest, out-in-front Republican candidate for congress from the First Illinois District, may shortly find himself staunchly opposed by a Negro Democrat. Conferences with white Democratic leaders have disclosed their willingness and, in some cases, their desire, to further their party interests in the November election by placing a Negro Democrat on their ticket in an effort to beat DePriest.

These white Democrats are now seeking to learn what will be the possible attitude of the Chicago Negro toward the Democratic county ticket at election time. They have the precedent of the mayoralty election of 1923, when Negroes voted large majorities for William E. Dever, the Democratic victor, to indicate to them that situations can be arranged to bring about a reversal of the normal Republican Negro vote. Can what was done in 1923 be repeated in 1928, is the question.

Two phenomena that have interested Democrats have been the results of certain straw votes for Hoover and Smith, and the reported wavering and insecurity of the colored Republican leaders.

Straw votes gathered in the Negro district have so far given Herbert Hoover a lead of less than ten per cent over his Democratic rival, Al Smith. This is significant in view of the fact that straw votes in previous presidential years have revealed the Democratic nominee picking up only the crumbs from the table. John W. Davis in 1924 received between eight and ten per cent, as against forty and forty-five for Smith today. It is apparent that these straw votes disclose an unprecedented amount of good will for Smith that ought to be nursed and used to good effect for the Democratic state and county tickets.

Democratic Leaders Lay Plans

White Democratic leaders are also considering what is going to be the strength and position of such men as Dan Jackson, committeeman of the Second Ward; Oscar DePriest, congressional candidate and committeeman of the Third Ward, and Bishop A. J. Carey, civil service commissioner, who dominates the Fourth Ward. They and other Negro office-holders have heretofore gathered the Negro vote for William Hale Thompson, the mayor. But will they be able to repeat?

It is admitted that the Negro is for Thompson and Thompson's ticket when it is winning, but in the last primary the Thompson ticket was overwhelmed. The Republicans whose names come before the voters in November are principally from another faction—the Deneen group, which has always played a sort of cat-and-mouse game with Negro political bargain hunters. The Deneen leaders are mostly Swedes, that despite what may have been steered the Negro's way by Fred Lundin, a Swede, Negroes generally feel that the Deneenites are a cold bunch. They lack passion, zeal, and spirit. They are too meticulous. They have never been able to fire the imagination of the Negro. They don't look like winners. Thus it is that voters in the colored district, realizing that Thompson was beaten in the April primary by the Deneenites, are sure that these latter will be whipped in November by the Democrats. Politics is a cold-blooded, practical business. With the feeling prevailing among the voters that the local Democrats are going to win, are Jackson, DePriest, Carey, and others going to refrain from making bargains with the Democrats? The voters themselves feel that these leaders will take advantage of the prevailing sentiment to keep themselves entrenched in power with the victors after election.

No Inter-Party Deal Seen

DePriest probably would not make a deal now, such as he is reported to have made with the Democrats in 1923, due to the position he is running for, and any lack of support the Democratic ticket might suffer from him, would be made up for in the support that would come to the Democratic ticket if a Negro were placed upon it as the nominee for congress from the First District.

In this connection, two problems are presented: the first is of finding the Negro who might be more acceptable to Negroes than DePriest; the second is that of getting the white man who is now the Democratic nominee to withdraw. Both problems are difficult.

About twenty per cent of the vote in the district is normally Democratic. It is believed the percentage will be much greater this year. The white candidate is aware of the dissension that now exists in the Negro Republican ranks, and expects the Republican vote to be split up between two or three candidates, two perhaps running independently. With the normal Democratic vote and what will accrue to it because of the popularity of this year's ticket, the white Democratic candidate believes he has an excellent chance to be elected, and has so far declined to consider withdrawing. He holds the key to a situation which is of the utmost interest to the leaders of the Democratic party in Cook County.

WORK ORGANIZES COLORED VOTERS DIVISION OF G. O. P.

Washington, August 1.—(AP)—Organization of a "colored voters' division" of the republican national committee was announced today by Chairman Work. The division will direct the republican campaign among the negroes.

John R. Hawkins, of this city, was named chairman of the executive committee of the division, and Albon L. Holsey, secretary of Tuskegee institute, secretary.

DES MOINES
IOWA
JUL 16 1928

Negro Republicans

BY CHARLES P. HOWARD IN THE BYSTANDER.

It was my good fortune to perhaps be in on every conference of Negroes of any importance in Kansas City and this one sentiment prevailed each of the conferences, "We are fundamentally republicans, but we are thoroughly dissatisfied with the republicans. We hope that our differences may be adjusted with the republican party, but unless the republican party shows an inclination to improve upon its attitude in Kansas City, Negroes are going to do one of two things; vote the democratic ticket or organize their own independent party and run a Negro for president and vice president," and what's more the men behind the idea have the money and intelligence to do it. In a presidential election the Negro is the balance of power in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Missouri and New Jersey. Herbert Hoover cannot lose those states plus the states that he is going to lose anyway and win over Al Smith.

A coalition between the agricultural middlewest and the Negro in these pivotal states will result in both groups receiving greater recognition. I believe a constructive one here rather than a destructive one to be advantageous, but the republican party is facing a fight without question. Personally, however, I am of the opinion that our best interest may be served by fighting it out within the party.

This was indeed a gathering of the elite of the Negro republicans of America. After attending this convention I have reached the conclusion:

First, that the political leadership among Negroes has fallen into new and younger hands.

Second, that control of the republican party in the south is gradually slipping from the hands of the Negroes, and that it is only being retained where that leadership is superbly intelligent and financially independent.

Third, that southern Negro delegates are a high class intelligent group.

Fourth, that although our power in the south is diminishing it is becoming greater in the north.

Fifth, that Negroes are beginning to realize their political potency and are accordingly beginning to assert themselves.

After attending this convention I am convinced that the demands of Negroes will never be heeded until we organize ourselves into a national political organization, independent of any party and active the year round.

HOOVER LEADERS IN STATE NAMED

Committee of 21 To Meet Wednesday in Atlanta; Opposing Factions To Meet Saturday.

Appointed Saturday in a conference between republican leaders and H. G. Hastings, chairman of the Hoover campaign committee for Georgia, 21 members of an enlarged committee have been called to meet at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Ansley hotel, it was announced.

The personnel of the committee will not be announced until acceptances of the members are received, but the original committee included Mr. Hastings, O. M. Duke, of Flovilla; Clint W. Hage, United States district attorney for the northern district of Georgia; M. O. Dunning, collector of customs, Savannah, and G. F. Flanders, of Swainsboro. Dunning was in Atlanta Saturday conferring with party leaders relative to the campaign.

Plans are being formed for a vigorous two-party presidential campaign in Georgia for the first time since the Roosevelt movement in 1912, developments Saturday showed. Hastings said that the drive would be directed chiefly through Hoover-for-President clubs which are being formed "all over Georgia in a spontaneous movement."

Headquarters to be Named.

Headquarters for the Hoover committee will be chosen the latter part of the week in Atlanta, Hastings said. The committee counts on adding to the normal republican vote the ballots of all democrats who do not wish to vote for Governor Smith, he said. Hastings added that "the Hoover-for-President clubs are enlisting thousands of the best men and women in Georgia, the movement showing beyond question the deep resentment against the sale of the national democratic nomination and organization to Tammany Hall at Houston."

Georgia has not been out of the democratic column since reconstruction days. Cox, the democratic nominee, received 107,162 votes to 43,720 for Harding in 1920; and in 1924, Davis was given 123,200 to 30,300 for Coolidge.

Meanwhile, plans were being laid by rival factions of the state central committee for meetings at Atlanta and Macon next Saturday in a contest for control of the committee. Roscoe Pickett, of Jasper, whom Ben J. Davis, negro, secretary of the committee, claims to have ousted from the chairmanship, has called a meeting for Macon, while G. F. Flanders, of Swainsboro, who claims the chairmanship of the committee as successor to Pickett, has called a session for Atlanta.

Considerable speculation has been caused by the announcement Thursday night by Louis H. Crawford, United States marshal, that republican leaders in Washington had appointed a campaign committee in Georgia composed of H. P. Meikleham, of Lindale, chairman, a neutral in the central committee fight; Crawford and T. N. Hendricks, of Edison, of the Pickett faction, and J. T. Rose and Clint W. Hager, of the Flanders faction.

Chairmanship Accepted.

On the heels of Crawford's announcement, Hastings announced Friday that he had accepted the chairmanship of the campaign committee and was proceeding with the organization of the Hoover clubs.

Crawford announced Thursday night that a meeting of the committee headed by Meikleham had been called for Friday morning. Reports were that Meikleham, Crawford and Hendricks did meet Friday, and that Rose and Hager did not meet with the others.

Pickett said over the telephone from Jasper that he had not been notified of the appointment of a Hoover campaign committee for Georgia, and that appointment of such a committee would not change his plans for a meeting of the central committee at Macon next Saturday. In making his announcement Crawford indicated that the committee, composed of two men from both factions and a neutral member, would endeavor to iron out differences in the party in Georgia.

THE REPUBLICAN MEETINGS AUGUST 11

Two Republicans meetings are called for August 11; one meets in Atlanta, the other in Macon. One headed by Mr. Flanders, the other by Mr. Pickett.

We believe that the large majority of Negro and white members of the State Central Committee will come to Atlanta and offer their rebuke to the dissenting faction.

Some of us were visitors at the Republican convention held in the Fulton County court house. While we had no vote or voice, we were interested in state affairs.

Among other things, we witnessed the unanimous endorsement of Honorable B. J. Davis as National Committeeman. We feel that the State of Georgia is, morally and by every decent rule of party decorum and regard for our word and vote, bound to stand by Honorable B. J. Davis.

It does not matter what the reservations were even at the time of the convention endorsement, the truth is: the delegates were instructed to vote for Davis at Kansas City. Why should these men be allowed to violate their obligation without a protest from the public at large? This is our first reason for feeling that the faction meeting in Macon should be rebuked.

Second, Mr. Davis, as editor of the Independent, has a steady record of more than twenty years of solid courage when it comes to the matter of speaking out for "racial rights and oppressed humanity" at large. Living as he has in the heart of the South, the Hon. B. J. Davis has talked to his white neighbors of their wrongs against the black people (the needy group) without reservation or bodily fear.

The race of real men, men who suffer common oppression, cannot afford to sacrifice B. J. Davis and the great cause he so manfully champions.

How often have his editorials, bristling as they do with manly courage, served as a living spring in the desert for that powerless group of Negroes who have a few papers and few men of courage who dare to say and do the manly?

We are confidenced that the manly men, colored and white, will stand by the party cause and the great principles involved.

Signed:

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

Who'll Get The Drumstick ?

By ALBON L. HOLSEY

I attended the Republican National Convention as an onlooker of parliamentary procedure, but the doings of our folks left me somewhat disturbed in mind as to the exact status of the Negro in the Republican Party set-up.

The principal headquarters for Hoover, Lowden, Curtis and Watson were all located in the Baltimore Hotel, and it was interesting to stand in the hallways and note the contrast in apparent purpose as between the whites and the Negroes. The whites were busy hustling from one room to another, conferring with each other, exchanging cordial greetings, or pausing momentarily to show a telegram or or some mysterious something on a sheet of paper to "Ogden" or "Charley" or "Roy." They were evidently doing something which seemed to have an object.

On the other hand our folks stood around in small groups talking in low, monotone whispers, or walked around aimlessly casting inquisitive glances at some white man or trying to overhear some passing remark of the white people.

Always our people appeared to be just out on the fringe of things. On numerous occasions I saw men of our group—and some of their political leaders—address a white man and heard the white man say, impatiently and fretfully, "Sorry, can't see you now. You will have to see me later," and then he was gone. One "brother" came up to me as I stood in the hallway of the Hoover headquarters and whispered, "Say, who's handling the money up here?"

And Much Parleying

Down at the Street Hotel, where the Negroes stopped, there was much parleying and boastings of "inside information" or how the nomination was going. Also there was no end of discussion about LilyWhiteism and lack of organization among Negroes. The main topic of conversation, however, was "Who will head the Negro division of the Republican campaign? A dozen caucuses were called by as many candidates and each in turn hoped to secure for himself this plum of questionable fatness.

For several days after leaving Kansas City, this gloomy picture of the Negroes' position in politics tormented me and kept on suggesting some memory of the dim and musty past. Finally it came to me.

When I was a small boy, it was customary among colored folks in my town to have their "big cats" on Sundays and frequently the minister or some other friend was in to dinner on that day and when company came the children always waited to be served later, and usually on such occasions we had fried chicken, and invariably—especially if the minister was there—there would be nothing left on the platter but the drum-sticks, neck, and perhaps a gizard and liver.

A Hard Task

Now consider if you please the frame of mind of four hungry growing boys who had to divide these remnants and then wash the dishes before going to play. It was, therefore, no easy task but we met it with real courage, and the most ingenious schemes. Even before the guests left the table we were deciding the grave questions as to who would get the drum-stick, and frequently there was actual trading for this choice piece, as for instance, one brother used to say, "You had the drum-stick Sunday before last, and if you let me have it today, I'll bring in wood for you tomorrow." The drum-stick caucuses at the Street Hotel should be placed alongside the magnificent fight of the midwestern farmers.

Is Negro's Friend

So effective were the preconvention activities of the farmers that the Resolution Committee spent many weary hours endeavoring to frame a plank for the platform which would satisfy the demands and only a gavel-strategist like Senator Moses, the convention chairman, prevented a riotous stampede for the farmers after Frank Murphy's stirring appeal for that amendment to the majority report of the committee. In Herbert Hoover, the Republican Party has a leader of unquestionable ability, and the Negro a friend who is unhampered by petty prejudices.

Boland, Fla., News
Tuesday, July 3, 1928

—o—

There are in South Florida 70,000 white Republicans and over 200,000 black ones. Suppose the negros should qualify? Suppose half of them should qualify?—Marianna Floridan. If 200,000 dark Republicans tried to vote in South Florida on general election day, Charlie, about 180,000 of them would be so busy picking buckshot out of the first 20,000 who went to the polls, they wouldn't have time —nor inclination — to do anything else. — Palm Beach Independent. Three cheers for a democrat!

The action of Chairman Wm. M. Butler of the Republican National Committee, in seating lily white delegates from Louisiana, Florida and other southern states has aroused Negro sentiment in the northern states to the extent that it is feared a reactionary effect will result, creating dissatisfaction within racial party ranks.

Many influential citizens, West and East, have wired Chairman Butler, entering strong protest against such procedure. Fred R. Moore, editor of The New York Age, on Saturday, June 9, sent the following telegram to Chairman Butler:

Hon. William M. Butler,
Chairman, National Committee,
Muehlebach Hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

We protest against action of National Committee in sending Lily White delegates from Louisiana and other Southern states as contrary to basic principles of Republicanism, which recognized neither race nor color. Any deviation from this principle will destroy confidence and lead to dissatisfaction among colored voters in Northern States. Please present this protest to Chairman Committee on Credentials and urge hearing of contests on their merits and not on color.

FRED R. MOORE,
Editor The New York Age.

EVERY EVENING
WILMINGTON, DEL.
JUL 12 1928

LINCOLN, NOT G. O. P., FREED SLAVES.

Dahiel Lyman Ridout, a Negro of this city and a man of educational attainments and freedom from the bondage of the G. O. P., makes a plea for voters of his race to think and act politically for themselves and not sell themselves to politicians for a mess of pottage and recalls what many of us have overlooked. He says:

"The Republican party—thinking in the terms of a Negro—scored a great triumph in the days of Lincoln. That was 65 years ago, and, nationally speaking, it has little to boast of since. There has been but one Roosevelt! It might be well to reflect that Lincoln would have done what he did if he had belonged to another political party."

True and well put!

While the Republicans have nursed and proclaimed the idea that they freed the African slave. Mr. Ridout puts the credit exactly where it is due.

If history is correct the leaders of the Republican party protested with all their might against the President issuing his emancipation proclamation and it was in spite of their prayers and pleas that he shook the shackles from the millions of black slaves long before the war had ended and before the Republican party came to see the humanity and justice of the greatest act of Lincoln's wonderful career.

Therefore, for the sake of truth and historical accuracy, it is well to differentiate, and to remember that it was Lincoln who liberated our Negroes from slavery and he did so against the protests of leaders of the "Grand Old Party" when it was new.

EVERY EVENING
WILMINGTON, DEL.

JUL 9 1928

The Negro and the G. O. P.

(From the Washington Eagle, a newspaper for Colored People.)

There was a time when the Republican party nominated its candidates it was looked upon as a foregone conclusion that the colored voters of the country would cast a virtually solid vote for that party's candidate. To anyone who is familiar with the thought of the present-day Negro must realize that no man walking down the street seeing a group of colored people talking can say with any degree of accuracy that they are all going to vote the straight Republican ticket.

No one at this day can say what number of colored votes will be deflected from the G. O. P. during the coming campaign. There is a strong sentiment among colored people that bodes ill for the Republican party. There is a manifest disposition on the part of many of the colored voters to break away from that party. The colored newspapers throughout the country have been advising the leaders of that party that the failure of the leaders of the G. O. P. to live up to the traditions of the party would have the effect of driving a number of the colored voters into the ranks of the Democratic party.

The Democrats have nominated a man who makes a strong appeal to the colored people in all parts of the country. The Democratic organization in New York City has done a number of fine outstanding things for the Negroes who have allied themselves with that party. We are mentioning these things at this time to indicate to those who lead the Republican hosts that if they want to hold the Negro in line they must need do some work. Many are out of line at this time. Whether they can be gotten back will depend largely on what kind of a campaign is put forth. We are stating the bald facts as they exist from reports coming to us from all sections of the country.

BAR REPUBLICANS AT DRY CONFERENCE

Bishop Cannon Declares Only Southern Men Will Attend the Asheville Meeting Today.

SOUTH FEARS NEGRO MOVE

Democratic Leaders See End of Racial Barrier if White Party Splits.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 17.—The conference of Dry Southern Democrats and Evangelical Church Workers, which is to open a two-day session at the Battery Park Hotel here tomorrow, will draw up plans with a view to defeating the election of Governor Smith as Presidnt and for the election of dry representatives and Senators from the Southern States in November, it was announced tonight by Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The meeting was called jointly by Bishop Cannon, whose home is in Richmond, Va., and the Rev. Dr. Arthur J. Barton, of Atlanta, head of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Up to tonight hotel reservations had been made by thirty prospective delegates from all over the South.

"I want to say emphatically that we are not meeting for the purpose of organizing a third party," said Bishop Cannon. "Neither are we meeting to promote the candidacy of any Republican, as such.

"We are meeting as dry Southern Democrats for the purpose of preserving, if we can, the integrity of our party, its ideals and its traditions. No Republicans will be present, no Northerner will be present. It is too soon to indicate what line the conference will take. Generally speaking, however, we are out to elect dry candidates for the House and Senate and dry local tickets, and we are out to defeat a wet Tammany candidate for the Presidency."

Hits at Rascob as Republican Wet.

"Does that involve delivering Democratic votes to Hoover, since there is to be no third ticket?" Bishop Cannon was asked.

"Can any one protest against any Democrat voting against Governor Smith when his own wet campaign manager voted against the Democratic ticket in 1924 and when he registers himself in Who's Who as a Republican?" he said.

"The plan we are to consider at the conference," the Bishop continued, "is one of organization—how we will organize and along what concrete lines, but I hesitate to indicate those lines. There will be more than one plan submitted. Probably I will submit one of my own. We may find it necessary to compromise as we go along. But in the end we will perfect an organization to promote the ends we are after."

"We intend to hold our first session privately in order to perfect an organization and to arrive at such compromises as may be necessary," Bishop Cannon explained. "The next meeting will be open."

The meeting open to the public will be held tomorrow night.

Democratic leaders here today admitted that the conference was "important" and said it "might have grave consequences," but they declined to be quoted personally.

At the best, they said, the movement headed by Bishop Cannon was bound to provoke dissension; at the wrost it might cause such a schism in the ranks of Southern democracy that the politically inarticulate negroes would start a concerted movement to register as voters and, with the balance of power in their hands, throw several Southern States into the Hoover column.

Apprehends Negro Activity.

One of the best-known and most responsible Democrats in this section of the South said that tomorrow's conference might bring the negro question into greater prominence than it has attained since 1900. He declared that a serious split in the hitherto solid ranks of the Democratic Party in the South would bring with it a threat of negro domination in a number of Southern States.

At present, he said, the negroes make no attempt to register as voters. They were barred from the polls by the literacy test and "grandfather clause" adopted by the Southern States.

With the vast improvement in negro schools during recent years, and the consequent increase in the number of negroes who have a common school education, large numbers would have no difficulty in passing the literacy test.

The danger of the situation to the whites, according to the views expressed by some observers, is that, seeing the Democratic Party split into two factions for the first time, the negroes will apply for registration and, holding the balance of power, assume the dominant rôle. In some Southern States they form more than half the population.

It was pointed out that in 1920, Alabama, with 1,447,000 whites, had a population of 900,000 negroes. Figures given for the other Southern States are: Arkansas, whites, 1,279,000, negroes, 47,000; Florida, whites, 638,000, negroes, 329,000; Georgia, whites, 1,700,000, negroes, 1,200,000; Louisiana, whites, 1,000,000, negroes, 700,000; Mississippi, whites, 854,000, negroes, 935,000; North Carolina, whites, 1,800,000, negroes, 763,000; South Carolina, whites, 819,000, negroes, 865,000; Texas, whites, 4,000,000; negroes, 742,000; and Virginia, whites, 1,618,000, negroes, 690,000.

North Carolina was carried by the Republicans in 1896. It is the only one of these States in which the Democratic ticket has ever been defeated.

Methodists Sponsor Movement.

The movement, which is to be launched tomorrow, is being almost entirely sponsored by Methodists. Leaders of the Baptist Church assert that, as a body, their denomination will not mix in politics.

In addition to Dr. Barton, prominent Baptists aligned against Governor Smith are the Rev. W. L. Poteat, President Emeritus of Wake Forest College, the leading Baptist educational institution in the South, and the Rev. Robert J. Bateman, pastor of the First Baptist Church here. Many Baptists are expected to become active against the Democratic nominee in a personal way but not as representing the church organization.

Methodist Bishops to Attend.

In addition to Bishop Cannon, the Methodist Church will be represented by Bishop Horace M. du Bose of Winston-Salem, N. C., President of the Anti-Saloon League of Tennessee and head of the Methodist Episcopal Conference in that State; Bishop Edward D. Mouzon of Charlotte, N. C., head of the North and South Carolina Methodist Conference, and Bishop John M. Moore of Dallas, head of the Central, Northwestern and Western Texas and the New Mexico Methodist conferences.

Hotel reservations also have been made by the Rev. John W. Perry, Home Missionary Secretary of the Southern Methodist Church, and Mrs. Perry, of Asheville, the latter Vice President Woman's Missionary Council; Mrs. W. A. Newell of Gastonia, N. C., Superintendent of Social Service Work, Woman's Missionary Council; Mrs. Luke Johnson of Atlanta, of the Inter-Racial Commission, Southern Methodist Church; E. H. Rawlings of Nashville, Secretary of Education and Promotion, Board of Missions, Southern Methodist Church; R. H. Bowden of Pocahontas, Va., and Mrs. Marvin Williams, President of the Georgia Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Deets Pickett of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and morals of the Southern Methodist Church, is among those expected; also George E. Hayes of Louisville, William L. Knight of Weldon, N. C.; James A. Anderson of Forest City, Ark.; Mrs. Howard M. Hodges of Lincoln, Va., President of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and E. J. Richardson of the Anti-Saloon League of America, Washington.

Publisher Now Supports Smith.

Fred I. Thompson, formerly Vice Chairman of the United Shipping Board and publisher of The Mobile Register, The Mobile News and Item and three other Alabama newspapers, was here today. He was one of the most bitter of Governor Smith's opponents at Houston, but his newspapers are now supporting the Democratic ticket. He was quoted here as expressing the belief that Alabama was in danger as a result of the present situation.

Bishop Cannon said that invitations to the conference were not sent to Josephus Daniels, Carter Glass nor Governor Dan W. Moody of Texas.

One of the results of the meeting, it is expected, will be the organization of a Hoover for President club among Democratic women in the South. Woman's Christian Temperance Union workers from Indiana are already speaking at dry meetings which are being held to oppose Governor Smith.

REVIEW

Rockville Centre N.Y.

JUL 13 1928

Negro Republicans To Give Support to Hoover and Curtis

The Frank Graham Republican club for colored voters of Nassau county will give its full support to the candidacies of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis, Republican nominees for president and vice-president.

The club, which has a membership throughout the county, with headquarters at 16 Mill road, Hempstead, has adopted a resolution pledging itself to work for their election. The resolution follows:

"Whereas the people of the United States have for the past five years enjoyed a period of unparalled prosperity and peaceful intercourse with the nations of the world, under the wise and able leadership of Calvin Coolidge; and,

"Whereas the Republican party, at its convention held in Kansas City in June, has placed a stamp of unqualified approval on the leadership and policies of Calvin Coolidge, to the end that the United States will continue its leadership of the world, but bowing to the will of the president, who has refused to become a candidate for a third term, has chosen as the standard bearer of the party, that internationally known administrator and humanitarian, Herber Hoover,

"Be it resolved that the Frank Graham Republican club of Nassau county unqualifiedly approve the selection of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis, as the standard bearers of Republicanism and pledge its unstinted effort in working for the election of these stalwart Americans.

"Frank R. Graham, president.
"Moxey A. Rigby, secretary."

With the national campaign approaching, the membership of the club is increasing rapidly, Mr. Graham reports.

Political-1928

Party Affiliation

HOOVER AND THE SOUTH.

The people of the south have good reasons to heartily appreciate the letter of President-elect Hoover to Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers Record, of Baltimore.

He is mistaken in believing that the recent turn-over of southern votes, heretofore democratic, by which some of the southern states gave to him their electoral units, was due to "growing sentiment in favor of the principles of the republican party. Some heretofore democrats voted republican ballots on that account, no doubt. But the majority of those in the turn-over were inspired by other reasons.

11-16-28

Equally as mistaken, in our judgment, is the democrat who believes that Mr. Hoover, as a republican president, will not be a friend of the south, and that his administration will in any way show any disposition to ignore, or to penalize the south. We hold no such view, and we accept his assurances to Mr. Edmonds at their par value.

Stating that his administration would "know no difference between north, south, east and west," but "seek to deal with absolute fairness to every section of our common country," Mr. Hoover pledged his cooperation in the development of flood control projects, an intercoastal canal system and hydroelectric power. The canal system, he said, should extend eventually from Boston to "the end of Texas."

That is a heartening statement. We would call the attention of the president-elect to the almost imperative importance of a canal between the Atlantic and the Gulf by which shipping from the Gulf ports to overseas ports may be spared the necessity of the long route around the Florida keys and through the gulf stream zone, from which grain, in particular, suffers a terrific loss.

The proposed St. Marys-St. Marks canal has been agitated for generations. It was originally surveyed by George Washington. Congress has recognized its importance. The war department engineers have made surveys. And yet no other definite progress has been made. We are frank to assert that if this same situation had been in the north, or the west, it would have been a completed job many years ago.

Mr. Hoover is a great engineer. Now that he has frankly placed himself on record in favor of the development of canal waterways, "to the end of Texas," let us suggest to our southern and middle western members of congress—for the entire Mississippi valley is directly and acutely interested—to push this great project at the opening of the next congress. It is hoped that Mr. Hoover, when president, may urge this in his first message.

Adequate farm relief, in providing suitable government machinery for the absorption of surplus commodities, is needed for the southern producer as much as it is needed for the western producer. Surely under Mr. Hoover's administration this matter may be disposed of to the best economic welfare of the whole country.

If there is to be a continuation of high tariff rates to protect industry, by all means let us have equal protection for farm production so that the charge of discrimination cannot be made in fairness.

We commend Mr. Hoover's viewpoints as to the south, and he will justify the heavy vote given to him in the south if he, when president, shall use his best administrative efforts to put his expressed views into execution. We shall see what we shall see!

Republican

PRESIDENT-ELECT ALSO MAKES BID FOR DIXIE BALLOTS

Letter to Baltimore Editor Voices Appreciation for Southern Support at Recent Election.

PROMISES CONTROL OF FLOOD REGIONS

Also Points to Economic Possibilities in Water Power and Canals Throughout Section.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, November 14.—In a letter to the Manufacturers' Record, Baltimore, made public tonight, Herbert Hoover pledged himself to assist in the economic development of the south and also appealed to southerners to abandon their traditional democratic attitude by declaring the time had come for the south to vote in national elections on the basis of current issues rather than past conditions.

11-15-28

Hoover's letter, dated November 7, the day after election, and addressed to Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, Baltimore, Md., said:

Text of Letter.

"I am profoundly appreciative of the extremely heavy vote throughout the south for Mr. Curtis and myself. I accept this vote, not as a personal tribute, but as an expression of a developing sentiment throughout the south in behalf of the things for which the republican party has stood in this campaign; and while desiring to express to those who voted for Mr. Curtis and myself my profound appreciation of the honor thus done us, I want to make very emphatic that I give full credit to those who voted for my opponent for the sincerity and honesty of their convictions.

"I am not at all unmindful of the conditions which for years brought about the political solidarity of the south. I firmly believe, however, that the time has come when in all sections men and women should vote from their convictions as to conditions at the present time, and not based on things of former generations.

"The safety of this country and its continued progress toward that exalted position for which providence seems to have destined it, can in my opinion be best served by a diversity of thought and action which will cause all of the voters of this country to recognize their individual responsibility to take part in every political campaign.

Urges Citizens To Vote.

"In every community and every state, as well as in national elections, all the people should recognize their duty to express their views on local, state and national affairs through the ballot box; and in such contests all bitterness of spirit should be wiped out. However strong may be convictions or issues before the public, these political contests should be waged in a spirit of friendly, active rivalry, but not in a spirit of bitter denunciation of any one party against the other.

"I trust that it is needless for me to say to the people of the south that I am fully appreciative of the great potentialities of that section. With one-third of the nation's land area, with about three-fifths of its sea frontage, with vast resources in soil, climate and minerals, no limit can be set to the continued progress and ever increasing prosperity of the whole south.

Water Power Development.

"There are great water powers awaiting development and, as I have said before, every drop of water that unutilized runs its course idly to the sea is an economic loss.

"There are great potentialities in the extension of the intercoastal canal system which eventually should extend all the way from Boston to the end of Texas.

11-15-28

"And to the furtherance of the development of these waterways and the possibilities for hydroelectric power not yet utilized, for the fullest upbuilding of the Mississippi river valley country by adequate floor protection, I can promise to the south my heartiest cooperation.

To Avoid Sectionalism.

"I can assure the people of the south, as well as those of the entire country, that in my administration I shall know no difference between north, south, east and west, but shall seek to deal with absolute fairness and justice to every section of our common country. There are great economic issues and vast economic potentialities in every part of this country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the lakes to the gulf. It is well said that "the development of the south means the enrichment of the nation," and this is true not only in the material sense, but also in the broader sense of the development of the spirit of Americanism which will permeate the lives of the people of the entire country, rounding out to a greater extent than we have ever known before a genuine Americanism instead of a certain degree of sectionalism. It is right that every state and every section should seek its utmost advancement, but there should be no spirit of ill-will or rivalry, for there is room enough for all, and possibilities of growth and prosperity in every part of this land greater far than the world has ever yet seen.

"Again would I express to the people of the south who have in such vast numbers by their votes shown their confidence in Mr. Curtis and myself, my profound appreciation. If it is within my power to prevent it, they shall never feel that they made a [illegible]" were printed in one of the leading Republican newspapers in the country, and in a city that, while it is the capital of the whole nation, is, nevertheless, distinctly "Yankee" in its leanings. There may be some folks in Louisiana who honestly entertain the opinion that there is nothing to worry about in the negro problem in these times; to all such The Journal commends the paragraphs quoted above.—Shreveport Journal.

THE NEGRO VOTE

A good deal of talk is heard, these days, about how Tammany Hall is supposed to control the negro vote in New York, and how the organization is preparing to vote 'em solid for Al Smith. This propaganda s being dished out by the G. O. P., of course in the hope of influencing the Southern States to give Herbert Hoover a good play—maybe an electoral vote or so.

But George Rothwell Browne, who conducts column on the front page of the Washington Post, a Republican newspaper, states the whole case in these words:

> There is only one issue in Dixie today, and that's the one that confronted it after Appomattox, when old Thad Stevens and the black Republicans sent the first carpetbaggers across the old Long Bridge. Does Miss Dixie want to see some more of 'em?
>
> Positively not! Yet every now and then we hear some good Democrat vocifering his belief that the negro, as an "isue,, is dead forevermore in the Southland. It is also said that Democrats have no right to bring a charge against the Republicans—that theirs is the black man's party—but the fact speaks for themselves. Did a Democrat ever introduce a "Force Bill" in the congress? Did a Democratic national platform ever include an "anti-lynching" plank in its platform?

The Washington Post goes a bit further into the subject by saying:

> The next time congress meets a negro will sit in the house of representatives from Illinois—the first time a member of his race has been almitted there since March 4, 1901. Twenty-seven years passed since the South sent its last black congressman to Washington—it will decide in this election whether it is willing to run the risk of resuming that custom.

We are giving space to the two items from George Rothwell Browne's column for the reason that

Eastman, Ga. Journal Aug 30, 1928

BARRY WRIGHT IS FOR HOOVER

FORCED TO LINE UP WITH REPUBLICANS EITHER WAY, HE SAYS, AND PREFERS HOOVER AND CURTIS TO TAMMANY AND THE WET DEMOCRATS.

ROME, Ga., Aug. 27.—Hon. Barry Wright, son of Judge Seaborn Wright, for many years a prominent prohibition leader of Georgia, has issued the following card defining his position in the presidential campaign:

"I shall vote for Mr. Hoover in November.

"This decision is not reached without a struggle; only after a full conviction of patriotic duty.

"I have waited to the last—till the acceptance speech — hoping against hope. In this speech I see the complete fulfillment of the open threat to the south—that the south would be ignored—flouted; that its principles would be trampled and despised; that the savage civilization of Tammany would take the place of all that the south holds most sacred.

"This speech proposes that the platform of the Democratic party be defied; that the prohibition law no longer shall be a national law; that each state shall interpret it; that at each state line a different degree of drunkenness shall be permitted; in short that law shall be abolished and anarchy shall be licensed. The constitution shall be currendered, at the dictate of the man who would be sworn to defend it, to every state that could be captured by a Tammany ized machine. We are promised a local option of open nullification.

"Thus the platform of the party promising an enforcement of the law will be shamelessly disobeyed. The party platform, the law of the land, the constitution of our country, all betrayed for the lust of office.

"Not only does Governor Smith advocate the destruction of the prohibition law, but he demands that the constitution of the United States be amended. Each state will be put in the liquor business. The good men and women will not only be made to see this great reform destroyed; but they, as citizens, will be forced to become partners in the traffic. The father will be made a partner in the business that destroys his son; the mother a contributor to the ruin of her daughter; the very churches of the Living God stockholders in legalized debauchery. Our states—supposed to be the means of good government—are to be put in the liquor business. What a glorious opportunity this will be for Tammany, and the other machines that it has educated in its particular system for government.

"Think of the shame of it; our country, instead of being the educator, instead of setting face toward the right and the good, would surrender to the criminal elements of the great cities and acknowledge defeat to enemies in its own midst when it has never met defeat of a foreign foe.

"This would-be head of our nation would not only surrender to the criminal and the lawless, but would make every man, woman and child a partner in the commerce they demand.

"Our platform stood for the preservation of the immigration law. The ignorant, vicious elements of foreign nations, it was promised, would be kept out of the country.

"But for the second time defying the promises of his party, Governor Smith will urge the change of the law, a change that will lower the type admitted, and make the scum of Europe the reservoir for us to draw from.

"I cannot vote for this betrayal of the Democratic party; this betrayal by a combination of Tammany and wet Republicans who have captured it body and soul.

"I have listened in vain for a reason. I have heard none. The crack of a party lash; insincere appeals to gratitude for the ancient past above the safety of the country today and hereafter; rabid appeals to outworn fear of the negro; these are all the reasons that are urged.

"I believe in party loyalty—but a party is simply an instrument of good government. When a party becomes an agency of corruption, when principles disappear, and lust for power take the place, then an appeal to party loyalty is an appeal to cowardice and selfishness.

"There is absolutely nothing in common between the dry Democrats of the south and the wet Republicans of the east. Governor Smith cannot bid for the wet Republicans and hold the dry Democrats. Not only is he trying to do this—not only is he trying to make us surrender to his own wet Tammany—but he is trying to force the south to line up with all the Republican Tammany Halls of the great cities of the east.

"I am forced to line up with the Republicans either way. As a southern Democrat I prefer to go with Hoover and Curtis, Coolidge and Borah, than with Raskob, Butler and Dupont, the wet Republicans, who with Tammany, have become masters of the Democratic party. I'll follow the Republican Hoover, while Mr. Howell and Governor Hardwick follow the Republican Raskob.

"Negro domination is only a false and desperate appeal by bloody shirt politicians. A million bayonets failed to put it on us. The Supreme Court of our country has utterly destroyed it. The men who preach it know it is false. The principal advocates of it today is no longer the Republican party, but this Tammany crew who dominate the Democratic party. The only negro problem that confronts the south today is the problem of keeping cheap, easily obtained and plentiful liquor away from the ignorant members of that race.

"I have heard our Protestant preachers damned and abused. Why? Because they stand for decency and good government. Because they will not surrender to forces that every newspaper in the country has denounced as forces of evil and corruption.

"I'll take my stand by the ministers of God. I'll go with them this time against Tammany and everything it stands for.

"The great cities of America are its crying shame. In them our political institutions have failed, and Tammany Hall, the owner and dictator of the Democratic party today, is known to the ends of the world as the inventor and teacher of municipal misrule.

"There is, for me, another reason. I have seen my father, from a young man to now, in his old age, give his life to fighting the liquor traffic. I have seen him surrender every personal ambition to carry on this crusade. It was not popular then. It had fighters, not lip servicers, as we see today, when the apologists for Governor Smith first assure us of their enmitp to liquor.

"My father, Seaborn Wright, led the fight a quarter of a century ago that put Georgia in front in the steady march to nation-wide prohibition. He's an old man now—and I am not going to sit idly by, and see Al Smith gamble for the presidency, gamble that the south will vote for him contrary to its convictions, at the surrender of its principles, at the sacrifice of its very civilization. I am not going to vote to sacrifice my father's life work so that America can be Tammanyized.

"BARRY WRIGHT."

A DEMOCRATIC SPEECH IN THE U. S. SENATE

Shows What Considerate Negroes Can Expect From Democratic Party If Smith Is Elected.

From time to time the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives are the scenes of deliverances by Democratic Senators and Representatives in matters pertaining to the Negro that, in the utter vileness and viciousness, the low and vulgar tone and the mean, cowardly and contemptible attack on, and insults to, millions of law abiding, taxpaying Negro citizens of the Republic are a disgrace to the Legislative Halls of the Nation and a blot on the pages of the Congressional Record.

The speeches which follow are just samples of the offal that falls from the lips of scores of Democrats who have less regard, ifpossible, for the feelings of Negroes than they have for their political and civil rights.

Colored voters who are being urged to vote for Smith and Robinson should read these speeches with care and throughly digest them and if then they can vote to put the Democratic party, controlled by such men, in power their digestion is cast iron proof against carrion however putrid and malodorous.

NORFOLK, VA.

Pilot AUG 31 1928

Colored Voters Organize League

There was a large and enthusiastic gathering in Tidewater Hall last night. The meeting was given over to completion of the organization of the Colored Voters' League. In furtherance of the Republican ticket the league designated the following committees: Executive committee, Theodore Nash, chairman; speakers' bureau, George H. Walker, chairman.

Doctor Albert O. Held, a Republican, of Baltimore, made a spirited address on the progress of the campaign in the State of Maryland. The meeting was also addressed by the Rev. O. C. Jones, G. H. Respass, J S. Webb, Frank Walker and Robert Gibson.

Tidewater Building has been designated as the headquarters of the league, and meetings will be held hereafter at 8 o'clock each Friday night until after election.

Quincy, Fla., Times Thursday, August 23, 1928

FLORIDA NEGROES QUIT THE G. O. P.

Five Hundred of Them Resent the "Lily White" Program of Their Party, Said

Gainesville, Aug. 18.—Adopting a set of resolutions deploring the present status of the republican party in Florida, 500 negroes, representing 41 of the 67 counties of the state, held a political meeting here today and aligned themselves against state candidates named by that party.

The resolutions, which denounced what was termed the "lily white" factions of the party, were ordered sent to Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the republican national committee.

Declaring that in crucial times of the past it had been the negro who had kept the party intact in Florida, the delegates expressed their regret that the "republican party of Florida has decided to make it an exclusively white party and deprive the representive of 500,000 industrial, law-abiding and God-fearing colored voters of a representation in the party councils."

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

TRIBUNE
CHICAGO, ILL.

SEP 30 1928

SMITH FOES IN DIXIE FIND THEY TIED OWN HANDS

Solid South Likely to Stay Solid for Al.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—I am concluding my survey of the political situation in the south with the feeling that Gov. Smith is not likely to lose, in that region, any state which has never given its electoral vote to a Republican candidate for President since the close of reconstruction. I here refer to the so-called "solid south" states, as contrasted with the border states.

Although the twin issues of prohibition and religion have split the Democratic party throughout Dixie, North Carolina and Florida are the only states consistently Democratic since reconstruction that Mr. Hoover stands a reasonable chance of winning. They are unquestionably doubtful states at this time, and probably will remain so right up to election day, but I think the chances are that Smith will pull through in both of them.

Two Put in Hoover Column.

Two other doubtful southern states—they might almost be called border states—are Tennessee, which Harding carried in 1920, and Kentucky, which went Republican in 1896 and again in 1924. These states, I believe, are more likely to be carried by Hoover than by Smith.

They are close states at best, and in each there's a strong Republican party, which, in this election, will be reinforced by a considerable proportion of the Democratic party. Then, too, there are few franchise restrictions such as will operate in other southern states to hold down the insurgent Democratic vote.

Revolt Is Widespread.

Such is the extent of the Democratic disaffection in the south produced by the nomination by the Democrats of a wet Roman Catholic for President, that, if the voters in that region were to register their convictions and prejudices fully and freely, Mr. Hoover would be likely, in my opinion, to carry every state south of the Potomac.

The revolt in the Republican party in 1912 against the nomination of Taft was no greater than the current revolt in the Democratic south against the nomination of Smith. But for the political conditions peculiar to the region Smith would have no more chance of holding the south than Taft had of the north and west in 1912.

If Smith is elected on Nov. 6 it will be for the south a case of chickens coming home to roost with a vengeance. The churchmen, the women, the Anti-Saloon league, the W. C. T. U., the Ku Klux Klan, and other elements of the southern opposition to the New York governor will realize how they tied their own hands by the franchise restrictions and electoral regulations adopted to eliminate Negroes from a voice in government.

Barred from Ballot Box.

With the disfranchisement of the Negroes, who virtually constitute the Republican party in the south, the general election became merely a formal Democratic ratification of the results of the white man's primary and only a fraction of the Democrats have taken sufficient interest in the general election to qualify to vote therein.

Now, tens of thousands of Democrats who would vote for Hoover find themselves barred from the ballot box by the ingenious regulations devised to prevent the Negroes from voting.

Furthermore, by virtue of the non enforcement of the fourteenth amendment to penalize abridgement of the franchise, the southern states have approximately 60 more congressmen and, therefore, 60 more electoral votes, than they would have were this constitutional amendment to be observed with the fidelity demanded by the southern drys for the eighteenth amendment.

But if there is any subject that rouses the southern drys to greater fury than a suggestion of nullifying or modifying the eighteenth amendment it is the demand, now and then voiced in the north, for enforcement of the fourteenth amendment by reducing southern representation in the national house in the proportion that the southerners have reduced their qualified electorate by the disfranchisement of the Negro.

Were the fourteenth amendment observed there would be 60 fewer electoral votes in the solid south today and the dry anti-Catholics there would not be shuddering at the possibility of the election of the New York governor. Without those 60 votes Smith would not have a Chinaman's chance.

Party Prejudice Plays Part.

Also in the interest of maintaining white supremacy, the southerners, who are now holding up their hands in holy horror at the iniquities of Tammany, have condoned, aided, and abetted for a generation the development of little Tammanies in southern states which are past masters in intimidating voters, manipulating election results, and otherwise ruling by right of the strong arm. In most of the southern states these little Tammanies and the election machinery are in the hands of the regular Democrats loyal to Smith, a circumstance which I found the anti-Smith Democrats everywhere viewing with the utmost foreboding.

Likewise the anti-Smith Democrats find the tables turned upon themselves by their share in the sedulous cultivation of prejudice against the Republican party as a menace to the perpetuation of white supremacy, as a result of which it became a disgrace in the south to be known as a Republican. So strong is this feeling in Dixie that tens of thousands of Democrats who are opposed to Smith, but unable to bring themselves to vote the Republican ticket, will either vote regular or remain away from the polls altogether.

To nominate a wet Catholic who proceeded to attack prohibition and advocate lowering the immigration bars to aliens, mostly Catholic and Jewish, was bad enough from the southern point of view, but to appoint John J. Raskob, a knight of the Catholic church, an official of the Association Against Prohibition and a representative of the "newer immigration," to manage the Smith campaign was adding insult to injury.

What Population Figures Show.

The extent to which the Smith candidacy represents the reaching out of the big cities for domination of a nation hitherto preponderantly rural also stirred the apprehensions of the south, which is as rural today as the remainder of the country was half a century ago or more.

Southern prejudice against foreigners and against urban influences is accounted for by the following population satistics:

	Population.	Per cent rural.	Foreign born.
Alabama	2,348,174	78	18,027
Arkansas	1,752,204	83	14,137
Florida	968,470	63	53,864
Georgia	2,895,832	75	16,564
Kentucky	2,416,630	74	30,906
Louisiana	1,798,509	65	46,427
Mississippi	1,790,618	87	8,408
North Carolina	2,559,123	81	7,272
South Carolina	1,683,724	82	6,382
Tennessee	2,337,885	74	15,648
Texas	4,663,228	68	363,832
Virginia	2,309,167	71	31,705

all the south, except Texas, forborn are but an infinitesimal perage of the population, whereas in the country at large the foreign born constitute nearly one-tenth of the population. The rural character of the southern states becomes more apparent when their percentages of rural population are compared with the rural percentage for the whole country, including the south, which is 48.6.

Immigration Issue Strong.

Under the present immigration restriction law, which limits the number of Europeans admitted to 2 per cent of their number domiciled in this country in 1890, European immigration is now about 165,000 annually. Gov. Smith has indicated that he would use the 1920 European born population as a basis, in which event, if the 2 per cent limitation were retained, approximately 250,000 would be admitted, and the character of the immigration would be materially altered. Fewer British, Germans and Scandinavians would be admitted, but vastly more Italians and other Mediterranean Europeans.

Next to religion and prohibition the immigration issue stirs thought most deeply. Much of the literature disseminated by the Dixie anti-Smith Democrats dwells on the theme that if Smith is elected the bars will be lowered to a horde of undesirable aliens, mostly Catholics and Jews. Former Judge Hugh A. Locke, chairman of the anti-Smith Democrats of Alabama, marshals a collection of menaces for the south in a page advertisement, which concludes:

"If Al Smith is elected it will be due to three things, the solid south, liquor and the foreign and Negro vote. If he is elected he is shrewd enough to bring foreigners here to increase the foreign vote. His plan would bring half a million a year. In ten years Tammany would as completely dominate the United States as it now dominates New York."

Negro Bogey Raised.

As to the Negro issue, few intelligent southerners really believe that Negro domination would be revived, even if Hoover were to carry the entire solid south. But the bogey is being raised by the regular Democrats to frighten ignorant and credulous anti-Smith Democrats back into line for the ticket.

And, trotting out the same bogey to fortify the courage of their own partisans and recruit "nigger haters" from the ranks of the regulars, the anti-Smith Democrats are painting Smith a "Negro lover," as Judge Locke phrases it, and dwelling on racial equality in New York and the support given Al by the colored voters of Harlem.

The Methodist and Baptist ebullition of antagonism to Smith because of his religion is merely the uncorking of a prejudice against Catholics that has been cultivated by the southern Protestant preachers for generations with never faltering zeal. To the majority of the southern preachers and their communicants it seems not only natural but righteous to oppose the election of a Catholic to office. To the average devout southern Methodist and Baptist a Catholic has horns, tail, and cloven hoofs.

Finds a Catholic Paper.

In my tour of the south I made it a practice to examine the Protestant church publications, and I have quoted columns of anti-Catholic matter directed at the defeat of Smith appearing in the Baptist and Methodist weeklies. Not until I reached New Orleans did I find a Catholic organ, the Morning Star.

The Aug. 25 issue reprints an article from the The Tablet, in which attacks on Smith by Protestant preachers are quoted. The article goes on: "Now you must recall the campaign is just starting. Wait until these people, all supposedly Christian and for separation of church and state, and for keeping religion out of politics, get under way; violence will be done the pulpits as these evangelists take the stump against Al in a lather of spiritual zeal. Intemperance will be the rule of the day. Religion will be a thing of the past."

Calls It Diabolical Malice.

In the issue of Sept. 8 appears an editorial which says:

"Many openly oppose Smith because of his religion; others, the more timid ones, claim to be against him because of his stand on the prohibition issue Behind the scenes, though, it is obvious that all the enmity arises from the fact that Smith is a Catholic. Two thousand years ago Christ predicted that the world would hate His church, and all through the centuries that prophecy has been fulfilled and is being fulfilled a hundredfold in this sweet land of liberty today.

"Very little of this opposition can be credited to crass ignorance. Only in the light of diabolical malice can it be satisfactorily explained."

Macon Telegraph
Sunday, August 28, 1928

ground.

A photograph taken from the same point 65 years ago is shown in comparison. Articles in the magazine tell of Macon industrially, educationally and civically, and are illustrated with reproductions of suitable views.

The article in the Manufacturers Record concerns the Carling Tile company, said to be one of the South's newest industries.

MOTON PRAISES HOOVER

Principal of Tuskegee Institute Replies on Acceptance

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—Herbert Hoover's speech accepting the Republican nomination, was commended by Dr. R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee institute, Tuskegee, Ala., in a messaget to A. L. Holsey, secretary of the colored voters division or the Republican committee, which was given out today at Republican headquarters.

Dr. Moton, successor to the late Booker T. Washington, said that he felt Hoover "was the spokesman of the first and best in American life."

DIXIE FIRST VOTERS PLEDGE AID TO HOOVER

Residents of Virginia and North Carolina who will cast their first ballots in November, with Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of Republican national committee (left) and Herbert Hoover in Washington. The new voters pledged themselves to support Hoover. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

Dublin, Ga., Press
Thursday, August 30, 1928

SEGREGATION

The Telegraph has this letter:

Please put a little piece in your paper telling the truth about Hoover's Negro segregation stunt. "Anti-Smiths" say he separated them, but Coolidge ordered them back among the white workers as it was illegal to do otherwise.

When William J. Harris, senior senator from Georgia, became director of the census in the department of commerce under Woodrow Wilson, he discovered white and negro workers occupying desks alongside each other and using the same rest rooms. He was resopnsible for the segregation order in the department of commerce.

That order remained in effect during all of Wilson's administration and for the first seven and a half years of the Harding and Coolidge administrations, more than 15 years, altogether. If it was illegal, nobody found it out.

When the Ohio Republican primary campaign was on in which Mr. Hoover was bitterly opposed by Senator Willis, Finley Wilson, the president of the Negro Elks, visited the department of commerce and is reported to have told Mr. Hoover that segregation of negroes was hurting him in Ohio. Within a few hours after Wilson's visit, the order abolishing segregation went into effect and white and negro workers are together, using the same rest rooms. That is the simple truth about segregation. Mr. Hoover abolished the existing order to win support in the Ohio primary.— Ma

Booneville, Miss., Banner
Friday, August 31, 1928

THE NEGRO IN POLITICS.

It is just a little amusing to note that the Republicans in their desperation, are actually accusing the Democrats of bringing the negro into politics.

Some of our good so-called Democrats, who say they can't swallow Smith, are echoing his sentiment.

This brings up the question as to who is responsible for the negro in politics.

Did the Democrats do it?

Not on your life.

Nor is the negro responsible for being the foot ball of designing politicians.

When let alone he is a good fellow and naturally friendly to his Southern white folks.

This is fully borne out by his conduct in the past.

During the dark days in the war between the states, the writer, a mere boy, lived in a community where there were a thousand negroes, and the only white people consisted of women and children—the white men were in the Confederate Army. And yet, instead of being a menace, these negroes were a protection. Nobody ever heard of a negro rapist until the Republicans put the notion of race equality into his head.

But who put him in politics?

The matter lies at the door-step of the Republican party.

That party passed or attempted to pass, the 14th and 15th amendments to the federal constitution, the object being to clothe the negro with the right of suffrage and elevate him to the dignity of citizenship.

The purpose of this move was two fold. One was to give the Republicans political control of the South and thus enthrone the carpet-baggers. The other was to further humiliate the South by putting, as they expressed it, "black heels on white necks," and the poor negro has been the foot-ball of the G. O. P. ever since.

The next question is, who is responsible for the negro being brought forward in this campaign?

Are the Democrats the sinners?

No. A thousand times, NO.

Is Governor Smith responsible? No.

Who then, did it.

His name is Herbert Hoover, the present Republican standard bearer, who, as Secretary of Commerce, repealed the segregation order and put whites and blacks together to work, side by side, to use together the lavatories, wash rooms, and other conveniences, of his, (Hoover's) department. In many cases he put negro men over white men and women.

This was the red flag in the bull's face that brought the negro in.

The South resented it as a gesture of social equality and the negro became to some extent an issue.

Did Mr. Hoover do this because of his love for the negro? Not much. He cares for the race only so far as he can use it as a political asset. In the doubtful states of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, the negro hold the balance of power, and no doubt, thought that his action would make safe the Republican cause.

Fortunately the negro is growing in political wisdom and is learning that the Southern white man is his real friend and some of them have Democratic learnings, and knowing this Mr. Hoover made his order.

He cares no more for the colored man, other than as a political asset than he does for the dirt under his feet.

Let no man say that the Democrats have at this time, or any other time brought the negro in politics. The party has from the beginning fought such a policy, knowing full well that it was best for both races for the negro to stay out of politics so long as he can be used by designing politicians.— Aberdeen Examiner.

DIXIE FIRST VOTERS PLEDGE AID TO HOOVER

Residents of Virginia and North Carolina who will cast their first ballots in November, with Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of Republican national committee (left) and Herbert Hoover in Washington. The new voters pledged themselves to support Hoover.

[Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

Dublin, Ga., Press
Thursday, August 30, 1928

SEGREGATION

The Telegraph has this letter:

Please put a little piece in your paper telling the truth about Hoover's Negro segregation stunt. "Anti-Smiths" say he separated them, but Coolidge ordered them back among the white workers as it was illegal to do otherwise.

When William J. Harris, senior senator from Georgia, became director of the census in the department of commerce under Woodrow Wilson, he discovered white and negro workers occupying desks alongside each other and using the same rest rooms. He was resopnsible for the segregation order in the department of commerce.

That order remained in effect during all of Wilson's administration and for the first seven and a half years of the Harding and Coolidge administrations, more than 15 years, altogether. If it was illegal, nobody found it out.

When the Ohio Republican primary campaign was on in which Mr. Hoover was bitterly opposed by Senator Willis, Finley Wilson, the president of the Negro Elks, visited the department of commerce and is reported to have told Mr. Hoover that segregation of negroes was hurting him in Ohio. Within a few hours after Wilson's visit, the order abolishing segregation went into effect and white and negro workers are together, using the same rest rooms. That is the simple truth about segregation. Mr. Hoover abolished the existing order to win support in the Ohio primary.— Ma

Booneville, Miss., Banner
Friday, August 31, 1928

THE NEGRO IN POLITICS.

It is just a little amusing to note that the Republicans in their desperation, are actually accusing the Democrats of bringing the negro into politics.

Some of our good so-called Democrats, who say they can't swallow Smith, are echoing his sentiment.

This brings up the question as to who is responsible for the negro in politics.

Did the Democrats do it?

Not on your life.

Nor is the negro responsible for being the foot ball of designing politicians.

When let alone he is a good fellow and naturally friendly to his Southern white folks.

This is fully borne out by his conduct in the past.

During the dark days in the war between the states, the writer, a mere boy, lived in a community where there were a thousand negroes, and the only white people consisted of women and children—the white men were in the Confederate Army. And yet, instead of being a menace, these negroes were a protection. Nobody ever heard of a negro rapist until the Republicans put the notion of race equality into his head.

But who put him in politics?

The matter lies at the door-step of the Republican party.

That party passed or attempted to pass, the 14th and 15th amendments to the federal constitution, the object being to clothe the negro with the right of suffrage and elevate him to the dignity of citizenship.

The purpose of this move was two fold. One was to give the Republicans political control of the South and thus enthrone the carpet-baggers. The other was to further humiliate the South by putting, as they expressed it, "black heels on white necks," and the poor negro has been the foot-ball of the G. O. P. ever since.

The next question is, who is responsible for the negro being brought forward in this campaign?

Are the Democrats the sinners?

No. A thousand times, NO.

Is Governor Smith responsible? No.

Who then, did it.

His name is Herbert Hoover, the present Republican standard bearer, who, as Secretary of Commerce, repealed the segregation order and put whites and blacks together to work, side by side, to use together the lavatories, wash rooms, and other conveniences, of his, (Hoover's) department. In many cases he put negro men over white men and women.

This was the red flag in the bull's face that brought the negro in.

The South resented it as a gesture of social equality and the negro became to some extent an issue.

Did Mr. Hoover do this because of his love for the negro? Not much. He cares for the race only so far as he can use it as a political asset. In the doubtful states of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, the negro hold the balance of power, and no doubt, thought that his action would make safe the Republican cause.

Fortunately the negro is growing in political wisdom and is learning that the Southern white man is his real friend and some of them have Democratic learnings, and knowing this Mr. Hoover made his order.

He cares no more for the colored man, other than as a political asset than he does for the dirt under his feet.

Let no man say that the Democrats have at this time, or any other time brought the negro in politics. The party has from the beginning fought such a policy, knowing full well that it was best for both races for the negro to stay out of politics so long as he can be used by designing politicians.— Aberdeen Examiner.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican

Remove Moses

AN EDITORIAL

WITH SENTIMENT in Greater New York crystallized in favor of the election of Governor Al Smith, except possibly in Harlem and a few other districts Senator George H. Moses' remarks Monday, at a meeting of the Women's National Republican Club, may be definitely relied upon to alienate the Harlem Negro vote to the candidacy of Hoover for President and Senator Curtis for Vice-President, unless his remarks are immediately repudiated by Mr. Hoover himself or by the Republican National Committee. The best way in which to do this, and about the only way that we know of that will prove effective, is to remove Senator Moses as Eastern Campaign Manager for Hoover, and let him return to the hills of New Hampshire.

"I DO KNOW THIS, HOWEVER," Senator Moses was quoted in yesterday's paper as having stated in his speech here, "THAT IN WASHINGTON THERE IS NO COLORED CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONER WHO DICTATES TO A WHITE STENOGRAPHER OF THE FEMALE SEX, SUCH AS I UNDERSTAND IS DONE RIGHT HERE IN NEW YORK."

THUS, IN THESE FEW WORDS, all the sentiment created for the election of the Republican national ticket in Harlem is wiped away, and cannot be restored until definite action is taken to restore it. More than this, Senator Moses' remarks are keenly resented by white Republican leaders here and by voting Negro citizens all over the United States.

Quitman, Ga., Free Press
Friday, September 14, 1928

Black Background Says Tampa Editor

The following editorial from the Tampa Morning Tribune was mailed to the Free Press by a Brooks county Al Smith Democrat which gives the view of a great Florida newspaper looking in on Georgia politics:

"Ben Davis, negro Republican National Committeeman for Georgia, is leading the valiant fight for Hoover in that state. Allied with him and following his leadership are a number of white men and women, who have heretofore been classed as Democrats. Suddenly afflicted with color blindness, these Georgians appear to have forgotten all the traditional standards of white supremacy in the South in enlisting under a banner waived by the soiled hands of a negro political "boss." Some of these, who were delegates to the Democratic National convention and participated in the proceedings which led to the nomination of Alfred E. Smith, have gone so far as to permit the use of their names as candidates for Presidential Elector on the Republican ticket in Georgia.

"Ben Davis, in addition to his other political activities is the editor of a paper known as the Independent. In this paper he prints the names of the Republican candidates for Elector, including those of two women, Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, well-known in Florida as a temperance lecturer and prohibition advocate and Mrs. Marvin Williams, wife of a prominent Georgia Methodist. It may be pleasing to these Southern women to see their names paraded in Republican colors in a negro paper, and endorsed as the favored candidates of a negro politician; but we are confident that it is not pleasing to the great majority of Southern women or Southern men.

"In this incident is emphasized the danger that lurks in Southern Democrats aligning themselves with the elements that control the Republican party in the South. In doing so, they cannot possibly escape the smudge of negro association or fail to encourage the advocates of racial equality.

"Editorial comments of Ben Davis in this same issue of his Independent ought to be interesting to those who are contemplating quitting the Democratic party and going over to the party of Ben Davis. "We can never vote," says Ben, "for the Democratic party so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred, as exemplified in Memphis, Texas, Georgia and Mississippi. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic party. His record DOES NOT DISCLOSE A SINGLE FAVOR THAT HE HAD DONE FOR NEGROES IN NEW YORK. The negro knows that the Democratic party is his sworn enemy. As infamous and as wrong and cowardly as lily-whiteism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic party against the American negro."

"We pass up the distasteful subject without further comment. It leaves a bad taste in a white Democratic mouth. It makes us wonder if there can be many Georgians—or Floridians—who will follow Ben Davis rather than Walter George, who will leave the party of the South for the party which institutes and endorses the negro political leadership now in the saddle in Georgia."

REPORTER

White Plains, N.Y.

SEP 14 1928

COLORED VOTERS BAND FOR HOOVER

Members of Men's Civic League of Bethel Baptist Church Organize.

An enthusiastic meeting of several hundred of the colored voters of this city took place last night at the Bethel Baptist Church, under the auspices of the Men's Civic League of White Plains.

Mrs. John D. Hoffman, of Ossining, was the main speaker. She reminded her hearers that disloyalty was not a trait of the colored citizen, and that out of gratitude for the many advantages afforded by the Republican party since the Civil War, there was no other alternative but to vote a straight Republican ticket. She distributed Hoover pins, thimbles, and auto plates to many of the large gathering.

The Rev. J. G. Williamson, president of the league, delivered a stirring plea for Herbert Hoover, and Dr. E. D. Collymore, vice-president of the league, took occasion to remind those present of the necessity for proper qualification to vote on election day. He told the new voters that they must take the literacy test before they can register and vote. He also started that the colored voters of the country could afford to vote in no other way in this campaign but for Hoover.

(Page One)

Entertainment was provided by Andrew White, who also made several stirring pleas for the support of the Republican ticket by the colored voters.

The league is a strong backer of Hoover and the Republican ticket.

SPOKANE, WASH.

Review

SEP 10 1928

NEGRO VOTERS ARE FOR HOOVER

Bishop Parks of African M. E. Makes Conference Appointments.

"The negro vote of California will go overwhelmingly for Hoover," said the Rev. H. B. Parks, bishop of the Pacific Puget Sound conference of the African Methodist church, after its session here yesterday. "Hoover will get 98 per cent of the negro vote, particularly in the states referred to as doubtful," he said. "We want a man at the head of the nation who will live up to the Constitution and we want no change in the 18th amendment."

Bishop Parks spoke to a congregation yesterday morning that occupied Bethel African church to its capacity. "The year has been good in membership and support has been kept up," he said. "We are not trying to spread out over large areas but to develop in the cities where our people live.

"This year, we will put in the budget the Douglas hospital at Kansas City, Kan., the only negro hospital in the United States, which this district has not supported before. It has five buildings and a training school for nurses.

"This district supports a school at Tallahassee, Okla., where we own 80 acres on which there are four buildings. The school raises all the food eaten except sugar and coffee. The boys are taught farming as well as general educational subjects and there is a theological department. The girls are trained in domestic science."

The bishop brought to the Pacific coast the Western Christian Recorder and the book repository, according to the editor, the Rev. J. H. Wilson of Los Angeles. Bishop Parks announced the following pastoral appointments for the coming year:

Seattle, the Rev. A. R. Dobbins; Portland, to be supplied; Tacoma, the Rev. A. W. Johnson; Yakima, the Rev. G. S. Allen; Vancouver, B C, the Rev. F E. Churchill; Bremerton, the Rev. J. C. Gratton; Everett, the Rev. J. L. Bell; Ellensburg-Roslyn, the Rev. W. B. Williams; Pendleton, the Rev. W. J. Tolliver; Spokane, the Rev. C. B. Clements; Helena, to be supplied; Great Falls, the Rev. Franklin Ladd; Billings, the Rev. F. L. Donohoo; Butte, the Rev. L. B. Stewart; Anaconda, to be supplied; Pocatello, the Rev. T. A. Patterson; Boise, the Rev. B. E. Edwards; Missoula, the Rev. C. W. Smith; Havre, to be supplied, and conference evangelist, the Rev. S. E. Bailey.

New Orleans, La., States
Wednesday, August 22, 1923

NEGRO LEADER DECLINES G. O. P. COMMITTEE POST

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(By A. P.)—J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of the Negro Elks has declined to serve under the Republican National Committee in an advistory capacity, declaring he was "not in complete harmony with the policies of the Republican party as revealed under recent Republican administrations."

Wilson said in a letter to Chairman Work that his race had lost civil rights, political representation and political leadership, and complained of "himiliating segregation with the civil service."

"I have the honor of being executive head of the largest and most influential of negro fraternities, and the additional honor of being head of the fraternity of negro fraternities," he wrote. "I know the sentiments they represent. Consequently, I can not permit myself to serve under a voteless leadership of which I do not approve."

Dothan, Ala., Eagle
Thursday, September 20, 1928

WHAT BEN DAVIS, NEGRO REPUBLICAN COMMITTEEMAN OF GEORGIA, THINKS OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

"Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic party, so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred as exemplified in Memphis, Texas, Georgia and Mississippi. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic Party.

Al Smith is no better than the Democratic Party. His record does not disclose a single favor that he had done for Negroes in New York. He (the Negro) knows that the Democratic Party is his sworn enemy.

As infamous and as wrong and cowardly as lily-whiteism is, it is worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic Party against the American Negro."

Strasburg, Va., News
Monday, September 10, 1928

Negro Voters Fail to Pledge to Hoover

By defeating a resolution pledging their support to Herbert Hoover the Republican nominee and voting "to encourage the spirit of inquiry" as to the issues and candidates, the Independent Negro Voters' League, in session at Bay Shore Monday, bespoke their independence of the Republican party in the coming presidential election.

BROOKLYN STANDARD UNION

SEP 15 1928

Southern Politics Reviewed

Possible Break to Hoover Not Regarded as Victory For Liberalism.

Whatever may be thought of the justice and necessity of the Southern Democrat's attitude toward the colored citizen, so much, at least, is fairly clear; that the solidly Democratic Southern States will not become politically doubtful unless or until there is a well-recruited and popular white Republican party to oppose the at present over-privileged white Democratic party, says the Waterbury "American and Centurian."

With this reservation it may be fairly maintained, independently of partisan yearnings, that political honesty and decency in America might be sensibly improved if the conflict of divergent political opinions in the South were to become more intense than it is now. The change would tend to wipe out Federal patronage scandals on the Republican side, and on the Democratic side to impart a more progressive tone to administrative policies under the influence of a sharper competiton for popular favor.

Bearing these liberal considerations in mind, and with a full recognition of the value of Southern support of Mr. Hoover, we nevertheless venture to propose that it would be a misfortune if many of the Southern States were to scuttle the national Democratic ticket in the coming election. In view of the reasons why these States are thought to be wavering, it would not be a victory for liberalism if they were to go Republican, but the reverse. It would be a victory for narrow-minded, prejudice, for race hatred and for religious bigotry. To the extent that it might be a victory for liberalism in a general sense, if Mr. Hoover were to gain a large measure of Southern support, the South's contribution to that victory would be only incidental, not direct, deliberate, or based on the merits of the case.

We yield to no one in our hope of seeing the South become ultimately a bi-partisan section; and so far as Southern support of Mr. Hoover at the present time might help to clinch his victory, we should be inclined to isolate the fact from its local backgrounds and rejoice at it. But the present unrest in the South does not bear any aspect of a real revolt against the one-party system. Its effects, whatever they may be, can hardly be permanent or lasting. It is too deeply colored by the mood of the Ku Klux Klan to be worthy of high respect. That there may be a real recasting of party lines in the South some day is the hope of every unbiased American citizen. But when and if it comes, we trust the Ku Klux Klan "philosophy" may be left out of it.

NEW YORK MIRROR

SEP 27 1928

A Colored Voter.

The reason I am going to vote for Governor Smith is because he is a man the people can reach. The colored man must come to know that there are no more Abraham Lincoln Republicans and he must not vote this party's ticket because his grandfather voted it, but must vote for the party that will grant to him the best conditions for the welfare of the race. My ardent appeal to my colored racemen is to support Governor Smith and prove to the world that the colored man is capable of knowing what is best for himself and his race. WM. C. BOYD.

PARTY FACES A CRISIS.

In an address of great force and logic delivered at Monroe, Senator Walter F. George pointed to the "supreme crisis" that will confront the national democratic party in the event that Mr. Hoover is elected president through support from southern states brought about by party defection. He said:

"This statement is not inspired by Tammany; this statement is not a threat coming out of the east, it represents my deliberate judgment and it is the inexorable logic of the situation. The party cannot live as a national party if democratic votes in this campaign encompass the defeat of the party's nominees and insure the election of the republican candidates."

9-24-28

It is true, and what does it mean?

It means that the party of our fathers, which saved the Anglo-Saxon white civilization of the south from the party that sought to destroy it, will be surrendered lock, stock and barrel, to that same party under the executive control of a man who brazenly and notoriously abrogated racial segregation in the department of commerce.

That statement has been denied but not by Mr. Hoover. On the subject the records are as outstanding and unmistakable as a pot-leg—and just as black.

It means that surrender will be made by mutineers in the party crew, by sticking a knife into the heart of the captain, chaining his mates, and taking charge of the ship for surrender to a designing "higher-up" for a division of the cargo.

It is a serious thought when a southern democrat analytically contemplates what the possible success of this insurrection movement will mean.

That the method and well devised plan for the democratic party's destruction from the inside should have originated in the south, upon which the republican party tried to fasten the Lodge "force bill," and is trying now to fasten the Dyer anti-lynch bill which is intended to penalize, by enormous fines and tribute exactions, hundreds of thousands of innocent white citizens of the south—one of the most bitter sectional measures known in the nation's history—is unthinkable and almost unbelievable.

The sires of the southern-born men and women who are leading in this movement to turn the democratic party over to the party that after the war stacked bayonets in the front yards of southern white homes, and brought about a revelry of negro political, legislative and police domination in Georgia and other southern states, would turn over in their graves if they knew their sons and daughters were engaged in such a nefarious undertaking.

That is not all. The destruction of the democratic party, by southern democratic bolters, would mean the passage of the Tinkham bill for radical reduction in the southern representation in congress. This would make of the south a "lost province" in national consideration.

It is time to think, and to think aloud!

It is within the memory of the present generation when four negroes were in congress from the south, when a large quota of negroes were in the state legislature, and when almost half of the post-offices were manned by negro officials.

The negro is a citizen, and correctly enjoys every privilege and service that the governments of the nation and the states afford.

The negro child is educated from the general tax fund just as the white child. There is no discrimination.

The negro has his and her place, and they are content and happy and prosperous, with the sincere support and help of the white race, so long as they are not intoxicated with false hopes and designs. Racial cooperation for general welfare is one thing. But negro political domination in the south is quite another.

The surrender of the democratic party to the republican party, through the instrumentality of democratic insurrectionists, would mean more than an indorsement of the orgy of corruption in high offices, as has marked the republican administration since 1921. It would mean a red flag of defiance against the arresting of such corruption, for the democratic party, without a stain to blemish its record, has been, and is, the only check valve.

The uncovering of the unprecedented record of scandal in and out of Washington since the close of the Wilson regime was by democratic senators. Republican senators, allied with the administration, tried to block the investigations, and obstruct justice. In a partial way they succeeded anyway. Albert B. Fall has never been penalized for one of the most outrageous crimes and betrayals in national history.

Senator George is right. And the people of the south should pause and ponder, and then with militancy strike the blow that shall say "this thing shall not be done."

COUNCIL BLUFFS IOWA

SEP 21 1928

NEGROES ORGANIZE FOR HOOVER, CURTIS

SPEAKER DECLARES RACE HAS ENJOYED SECOND EMANCIPATION UNDER G. O. P.

A Hoover-Curtis club for Negro voters of Council Bluffs was organized Thursday evening at a meeting at the Bethel Methodist church, Sixteenth street and Avenue A, with Mrs. Christine Althouse, 2538 Fourth avenue, named as president.

The meeting was called at the request of the republican state committee, and the organization effected by James B. Morris, Des Moines, Ia., Negro lawyer and editor, organizer of the Negro division of the state central committee.

Other officers of the new club include M. E. Johnson, 2547 Fourth avenue, vice president, and Clarence Reeves, 2112 South Tenth street, secretary.

"The Negroes of the United States have enjoyed a second emancipation under the republican administration," Mr. Morris declared in a speech at the meeting. "The Negroes of this country could never adhere to Gov. Alfred Smith's plan to remove the immigration barriers against an invasion of cheap foreign labor.

"The republican party and its candidates, Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis, stand for those policies in home, economic and political life that has always appealed to the colored citizens of this nation."

Plans were made to have speakers from the state headquarters at Des Moines and from the western division of the national committee at Chicago, Ill., appear before the Negro voters of Council Bluffs during the campaign.

DeVere Watson, republican county chairman, was present at the meeting and pledged the co-operation of the county central committee to the new club.

Strasburg, Va., News
Monday, September 10, 1928

Negro Voters Fail to Pledge to Hoover

By defeating a resolution pledging their support to Herbert Hoover the Republican nominee and voting "to encourage the spirit of inquiry" as to the issues and candidates, the Independent Negro Voters' League, in session at Bay Shore Monday, bespoke their independence of the Republican party in the coming presidential election.

BROOKLYN STANDARD UNION

SEP 15 1928

Southern Politics Reviewed

Possible Break to Hoover Not Regarded as Victory For Liberalism.

Whatever may be thought of the justice and necessity of the Southern Democrat's attitude toward the colored citizen, so much, at least, is fairly clear; that the solidly Democratic Southern States will not become politically doubtful unless or until there is a well-recruited and popular white Republican party to oppose the at present over-privileged white Democratic party, says the Waterbury "American and Centurian."

With this reservation it may be fairly maintained, independently of partisan yearnings, that political honesty and decency in America might be sensibly improved if the conflict of divergent political opinions in the South were to become more intense than it is now. The change would tend to wipe out Federal patronage scandals on the Republican side, and on the Democratic side to impart a more progressive tone to administrative policies under the influence of a sharper competiton for popular favor.

Bearing these liberal considerations in mind, and with a full recognition of the value of Southern support of Mr. Hoover, we nevertheless venture to propose that it would be a misfortune if many of the Southern States were to scuttle the national Democratic ticket in the coming election. In view of the reasons why these States are thought to be wavering, it would not be a victory for liberalism if they were to go Republican, but the reverse. It would be a victory for narrow-minded, prejudice, for race hatred and for religious bigotry. To the extent that it might be a victory for liberalism in a general sense, if Mr. Hoover were to gain a large measure of Southern support, the South's contribution to that victory would be only incidental, not direct, deliberate, or based on the merits of the case.

We yield to no one in our hope of seeing the South become ultimately a bi-partisan section; and so far as Southern support of Mr. Hoover at the present time might help to clinch his victory, we should be inclined to isolate the fact from its local backgrounds and rejoice at it. But the present unrest in the South does not bear any aspect of a real revolt against the one-party system. Its effects, whatever they may be, can hardly be permanent or lasting. It is too deeply colored by the mood of the Ku Klux Klan to be worthy of high respect. That there may be a real recasting of party lines in the South some day is the hope of every unbiased American citizen. But when and if it comes, we trust the Ku Klux Klan "philosophy" may be left out of it.

NEW YORK MIRROR

SEP 27 1928

A Colored Voter.

The reason I am going to vote for Governor Smith is because he is a man the people can reach. The colored man must come to know that there are no more Abraham Lincoln Republicans and he must not vote this party's ticket because his grandfather voted it, but must vote for the party that will grant to him the best conditions for the welfare of the race. My ardent appeal to my colored racemen is to support Governor Smith and prove to the world that the colored man is capable of knowing what is best for himself and his race. WM. C. BOYD.

PARTY FACES A CRISIS.

Democratic

In an address of great force and logic delivered at Monroe, Senator Walter F. George pointed to the "supreme crisis" that will confront the national democratic party in the event that Mr. Hoover is elected president through support from southern states brought about by party defection. He said:

"This statement is not inspired by Tammany; this statement is not a threat coming out of the east, it represents my deliberate judgment and it is the inexorable logic of the situation. The party cannot live as a national party if democratic votes in this campaign encompass the defeat of the party's nominees and insure the election of the republican candidates."

9-24-28

It is true, and what does it mean?

It means that the party of our fathers, which saved the Anglo-Saxon white civilization of the south from the party that sought to destroy it, will be surrendered, lock, stock and barrel, to that same party under the executive control of a man who brazenly and notoriously abrogated racial segregation in the department of commerce.

That statement has been denied but not by Mr. Hoover. On the subject the records are as outstanding and unmistakable as a pot-leg—and just as black.

It means that surrender will be made by mutineers in the party crew, by sticking a knife into the heart of the captain, chaining his mates, and taking charge of the ship for surrender to a designing "higher-up" for a division of the cargo.

It is a serious thought when a southern democrat analytically contemplates what the possible success of this insurrection movement will mean.

That the method and well devised plan for the democratic party's destruction from the inside should have originated in the south, upon which the republican party tried to fasten the Lodge "force bill," and is trying now to fasten the Dyer anti-lynch bill which is intended to penalize, by enormous fines and tribute exactions, hundreds of thousands of innocent white citizens of the south—one of the most bitter sectional measures known in the nation's history—is unthinkable and almost unbelievable.

The sires of the southern-born men and women who are leading in this movement to turn the democratic party over to the party that after the war stacked bayonets in the front yards of southern white homes, and brought about a revelry of negro political, legislative and police domination in Georgia and other southern states, would turn over in their graves if they knew their sons and daughters were engaged in such a nefarious undertaking.

That is not all. The destruction of the democratic party, by southern democratic bolters, would mean the passage of the Tinkham bill for radical reduction in the southern representation in congress. This would make of the south a "lost province" in national consideration.

It is time to think, and to think aloud!

It is within the memory of the present generation when four negroes were in congress from the south, when a large quota of negroes were in the state legislature, and when almost half of the postoffices were manned by negro officials.

The negro is a citizen, and correctly enjoys every privilege and service that the governments of the nation and the states afford.

The negro child is educated from the general tax fund just as the white child. There is no discrimination.

The negro has his and her place, and they are content and happy and prosperous, with the sincere support and help of the white race, so long as they are not intoxicated with false hopes and designs. Racial cooperation for general welfare is one thing. But negro political domination in the south is quite another.

The surrender of the democratic party to the republican party, through the instrumentality of democratic insurrectionists, would mean more than an indorsement of the orgy of corruption in high offices, as has marked the republican administration since 1921. It would mean a red flag of defiance against the arresting of such corruption, for the democratic party, without a stain to blemish its record, has been, and is, the only check valve.

The uncovering of the unprecedented record of scandal in and out of Washington since the close of the Wilson regime was by democratic senators. Republican senators, allied with the administration, tried to block the investigations, and obstruct justice. In a partial way they succeeded anyway. Albert B. Fall has never been penalized for one of the most outrageous crimes and betrayals in national history.

Senator George is right. And the people of the south should pause and ponder, and then with militancy strike the blow that shall say "this thing shall not be done."

Nonpartisan

COUNCIL BLUFFS IOWA

SEP 21 1928

NEGROES ORGANIZE FOR HOOVER, CURTIS

SPEAKER DECLARES RACE HAS ENJOYED SECOND EMANCIPATION UNDER G. O. P.

A Hoover-Curtis club for Negro voters of Council Bluffs was organized Thursday evening at a meeting at the Bethel Methodist church, Sixteenth street and Avenue A, with Mrs. Christine Althouse, 2538 Fourth avenue, named as president.

The meeting was called at the request of the republican state committee, and the organization effected by James B. Morris, Des Moines, Ia., Negro lawyer and editor, organizer of the Negro division of the state central committee.

Other officers of the new club include M. E. Johnson, 2547 Fourth avenue, vice president, and Clarence Reeves, 2112 South Tenth street, secretary.

"The Negroes of the United States have enjoyed a second emancipation under the republican administration," Mr. Morris declared in a speech at the meeting. "The Negroes of this country could never adhere to Gov. Alfred Smith's plan to remove the immigration barriers against an invasion of cheap foreign labor.

"The republican party and its candidates, Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis, stand for those policies in home, economic and political life that has always appealed to the colored citizens of this nation," DeVere Watson, republican county chairman, was present at the meeting and pledged the co-operation of the county central committee to the new club.

Plans were made to have speakers from the state headquarters at Des Moines and from the western division of the national committee at Chicago, Ill., appear before the Negro voters of Council Bluffs during the campaign.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation.

Seattle (Wn.) Times
September 1, 1928

PROGRESS OF THE NEGRO.

Editor The Times:

YOUR editorial appearing in the issue of the 25th, under the caption, "Colored Voters in the South," has attracted my special attention.

After completing my course of study at Tuskegee (Alabama), Institute several years ago under the supervision of Booker T. Washington, the greatest negro educator and philanthropist America has ever produced, I left the state of Mississippi and have lived in Ohio, Illinois, and a few months ago came to this thriving city of Seattle, where I could better my condition and where my family would receive equal rights with all men. I do not believe it possible for my race to ever become a potent factor in the civic affairs of the South, and I fear your prophecy will never be realized in that section.

Hundreds of thousands of my race have come from the South and established homes in northern states, where our children attend the same schools, meet on a common level, enjoy the public conveyances together and, in fact, our color is not a barrier to social and political equality. We have been led to accept these conditions, and my observation convinces me that this is true where the negro population has not reached great proportions.

Statistics will prove the statement that the negro holds the balance of political power in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri. We have been allied with the Republican Party since given the right of franchise. In season and out of season we have cast our votes for nominees of the Republican Party. If we were to remain silent in city, state and national elections in the states mentioned, the Democratic Party would always be successful. In view of these conditions, we believe the Republican Party should recognize our worthy leaders in the distribution of patronage. If Mr. Hoover would announce the fact that he would invite some distinguished negro to become a member of his cabinet, or that he would name some of our learned attorneys on the bench, it would be a clarion call to the negro race. We are growing tired of promises given by leaders of the party. The negro is an American citizen and the progress made since the days of slavery astonishes the civilized world. In every conflict our race has forged to the front in defense of the country.

Thoughtful people of my race are considering these vital matters, and we have now arrived at a position where political and social recognition must be given to us. Our votes made Garfield, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft and Harding Presidents of the United States, and without these votes the Democratic candidates would have won the presidency in each instance. Our numerical strength in this state has not reached great numbers, but the time is not far distant when it will become a powerful factor.

—GEORGE W. COMBS.

Manchester, Ga., Mercury
Friday, September 14, 1928

Cobb county voters who are entertaining ideas of "bolting" the democratic ticket and through their ballot endorse the rottenness and crookedness of the republican party, will do well to consider the last plank in the Grand Oil Party's platform relative to favoring the passage of the Dyer anti-lynch bill. This bill, which at the last session of congress was indignantly opposed by all southern congressmen, is aimed directly at the south. It would make the tax payers of any county cough up $10,000 for any lynching that may take place within the boundaries of a county the money to go to the depedents of the victim. Of course no one condones lynching, and because hot-headed southerners have from time to time took the law in their own hands, there is no exceuse to penalize the law-abiding citizens of a community for the ill-advised acts of their fellow citizens. Why didn't the republican party write into its platform some kind of reform for gang warfare and organized crime in large cities of the north? Why pick out Georgia and other southern states and try to ram such a preposterous bill down their throats? Lynchings in Georgia is a relic of by-gone days, while gangsters in Chicago terrify all and bring down the ridicule of the entire world upon the United States. A vote for the republican party, who would sponsor the Dyer anti-lynch bill, and have it enacted into law, would mean that you, as a voter, favor passage of such an outrage upon Georgians and other southern people.—Cobb County Times.

Columbia, Tenn., Herald
Saturday, September 1, 1928

REPUBLICANS IN HOT MEET AT NASHVILLE

ATTEMPTS TO POUR OIL ON TROUBLED WATER FAIL TO BRING ABOUT REUNION.

NOT TO SUPPORT HOPKINS

Statement Issued by Lindsey-Jackson Group As Contest from Seventh District is 'Passed" As Executive Committee Meets.

Special to The Herald.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 1.—Although no blood was shed today, the breach in the republican party was widened as the state executive committee met in Nashville and declined to take any action upon the contested election of W. H. Lindsey, of Lawrenceburg to the committee.

In an effort to bring about harmony the leaders made certain that Bob Church, negro leader, of Memphis and Congressman J. Will Taylor, about whom the storm has centered would not be in attendance.

It was decided by the Taylor group that no attempt would be made to perfect a permanent organization until after the November election and Joe B. Brown of Chattanooga was named temporary chairman and Nelson Carver was elected temporary secretary.

The supporters of Lindsey made an effort to secure some action upon his contested election but the leaders, apparently fearing that this would occasion discord overruled any attempt to go into the matter.

Upon the adjournment of the meeting the Lindsey-John W. Jackson group issued a hot statement in which it was charged that the action of the committee today means that Raleigh S. Hopkins, the republican candidate for Governor will not poll one-fifth of the republican votes in his own Congressional district—they charged that the rank and file of the party has tired of the domination of federal ofice holders and will throw off the yoke of oppression in the approaching election, voting for all democratic candidates with the exception of the Presidential nominee.

The Lindsey-Jackson group stated that it feels that it has been run out of the party by the steam roller tactics employed by the federal office holders who largely constituted the committee, or dominate the body.

Republican.

Washington, Ga., News-Reporter
Friday, August 3, 1928

"White Supremacy" Frankly Discussed

By Rev. C. B. Harbour, Of Athens, Georgia

A great deal is being said about "white supremacy." What are the facts in this case? Here are a few. Ferdinand Morton, a negro, is one of the three members of the civil Service Commission of the city of New York, which passes upon every application for a job white or black in the city. There are approximately three hundred negroes holding offices by the grace of Tammany Hall, in New York. Including members of the legislature, aldermen, assistant prosecuting attorneys, policemen, detectives, superintendents, inspectors, firemen, contractors, and stenographers, this can be verified. There is no color line in the clubs and political organizations. Governor Smith, Jimmie Walker, and other leaders meet with, fraternize and socialize with the negro for their votes.

This is true also there are 200,000 or more, negroes of voting age, members of Tammany Hall, Smith's organization in N. Y. This means that more negroes in Tammany Hall alone, will vote for Smith than the total negro vote of the entire South for Hoover. Over this large negro membership has been placed a big negro "boss." To this negro boss Smith's organization, Tammany Hall has given a white woman for a secretary, who at the dictates of the negro "boss" writes to other negroes to work for Smith. And it seems that this negro boss is geting results through the letters of his white secretary. "Goose Neck Bill," the big negro leader in Texas has declared for Smith, Smith-for-president negro clubs have been organized in Colorado and Arkansas. Certainly the negro candidate this year is not a Republican, he is a Tammany Democrat, Al Smith.

Something has been said about Hoover breaking down the color line in his department of state. Well, Al in his Tammany Society has gone him ten better. Not only are color lines disregarded, but white women are given to negro bosses as Secretaries. Hoover has never stooped this low, and never will. What is more contemptible and hypocritan for a Democratic party politician to hug a negro in the north for his vote and cry "white supremacy" in the south? Will intelligent white Southern Democrats tolerate this any longer?

When the truth is known about Al Smith, it will be next to impossible for self respecting white Southern Democrats to vote for him. He drinks from four to eight high balls and cocktails daily. He is a regular dram drinker. This means he is drinking bootleg liquor, and thereby encouraging lawlessness and disregard for the Constitution which he has sworn to uphold. The "Nation," a New York magazine, November 30, 1928, gives this fact. This magazine has been widely quoted for about eight months, without Smith denying the charge.

And so here is Al, a dram drinker, a dram drinking Catholic, a dram drinking negro ridden Tammanyite. What respectable white Southern Democrat who knows his record can vote for him? Certainly millions can not and will not.

On the other hand millions will vote for Herbert Hoover, one of the greatest statesmen of this age. He is known to be morally clean. His ability to organize and govern is proverbial. No living man has a wider ranger of international problems. Politically, Smith hasn't crossed the Hudson yet. His political range is the streets of New York. Hoover has spent much time in China, in England and other foreign countries To be sure, this is a day when a national leader must know international problems. In all this Smith would have to begin with his A. B. C's.

Furthermore, one of the South's greatest problems, the Mississippi Flood control, has been mastered by Herbert Hoover. Smith would be forced to go to Hoover for information about this great need of the South. Why vote for a second rate candidate when we have the privilege of electing a first rate one? Certainly, if Herbert Hoover was good enough for Woodrow Wilson, we should have no less confidence in him.

Loyal Southern Democrats can never forget the great and efficient service Hoover rendered our party during the world war.

But some on may say, "what about the oil scandal" But Hoover was not guilty in this Senator George says, "Hoover is a clean man." Well, the oil scandal compared with legalized liquor scandals and scandals of Tammany Hall would be like a fly speck in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean. May God grant that as loyal Southern Democrats, we say to the would be future bartenders, "never again through legalized liquor will your wretched victims lay their fiendish clutches on the throat of their terrified wives nor their brutal fists on the heads of their innocent child." Yet Al (cohol) Smith longs for the day when he can drink legalized whiskey in the open instead of bootleg behind closed doors. In the name of God and all that is decent can informed and self-respecting Southern Democrats vote for Al(cohol) Smith? The chorus of "No" is rising high er everyday.

Florence S. C.

SEP 1928

REVIEW

"INCLUDES ALL AMENDMENTS"

Here is something from The News and Courier the Hoover Democrats might well ponder:

Oscar De Priest is a Republican, and a violent "wet," a negro, and candidate for congress in Chicago. He is supporting Mr. Hoover for president. The following is sent out from the "Colored Voters Division, National Republican Committee, Barr Building. Washington, D. C."

Oscar De Priest, negro candidate for congress and avowed wet, declared: "I greatly appreciate the statement made by Mr. Hoover in his acceptance speech, that he proposed to "preserve, protect and defend" the Constitution of the United States, which includes all amendments from first to the last. Through the enforcement of all constitutional amendments, the rights of all people will be protected and a strict enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment will make the American people either sanction or repeal that amendment."

De Priest construes the meaning of Mr. Hoover's pledge to be the enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifeenth amendments, as well as the Eighteenth. That would give the ballot to the negroes in the South. De Priest, though opposed to prohibition, gladly would accept enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment if he could have enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments with it.

Does this Chicago negro corrtctly interpret Mr. Hoover These are Mr. Hoover's words in his speech of acceptance:

"There are those who do not believe in the purposes of several provisions of the Constitution. No one denies their right to seek to amend it. But the Republican party does deny the right of anyone to seek to destroy the purposes of the Constitution. Whoever is elected president takes an oath not only to faithfully execute the office of the president, but that oath provides still further that he will, to the best of his ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. I should be untrue to these great traditions, untrue to my oath of office, were I to declare otherwise."

Note Mr. Hoover's employment of the word "several." He lays stress on his intention to enforce to the best of his ability the amendments to the Constitution considered severally.

Oscar De Priest, colored candidate for congress, construes this language as Mr. Hoover's pledge to enforce the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments. The "Colored Voters Division, of the Republican National Committee" plainly agrees with De Priest. That is why it broadcasts De Priest's reference to Mr. Hoover's pledge.

The white people of the South have sought "to destroy the purposes of several provisions of the Constitution" namely, the Fourteenth and the Fifteenth amendments. In that design the white South will persevere. Mr. Hoover puts us on notice that we shall not longer succeed in this course. He will set an end to it. He will advise force bills. Anyway, that is the meaning that the negro Republican gets out of his words, and on that ground the Colored Voters Division of the Republican National Committee is appealing to the negroes to support Mr. Hoover.

If Mr. Hoover does not mean what De Priest says he means, Mr. Hoover can say so. He would not allow his committee to ask for support of negroes under a false pretense to them. The white South is warned. Mr. Hoover has spoken, and we know what his words mean to the negro voters.

There is one way to enforce the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments. That way is by force.

JOURNAL

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

SEP 13 1928

An Ancient Bogey Totters

Impartial observers have long credited the Republican National ticket with better than a fighting chance in North Carolina, Tennessee and Florida this year, but have been taking with a grain of salt the claims of enthusiastic party leaders that there is a possibility of HOOVER and CURTIS carrying other States of the formerly solid eleven, such as Alabama, Georgia and Texas.

Long has the bogey of Negro domination been used successfully to keep the white voters of Dixie pretty solidly within the Democratic ranks—so long, indeed, that it has come to be taken for granted that the great-great-great-gandchildren of the last generation of slaveholders will still be automatically enrolled as Democrats when they come of age, years hence. True, HARDING captured Tennessee eight years ago, but Tennessee was back in line again four years later.

But now the leading whites of some of these States are beginning to see the time-worn bogey for just what it is—a stuffed shirt manipulated by politicians for their own ends. As Judge HUGH A LOCKE told CARTER FIELD, THE JOURNAL'S political correspondent, in Birmingham the other day:

> Down here in the South, we understand the Negro. It is just silly to talk about the election of a Republican President making any difference on that situation. We have had Republican Presidents most of the time, and we have not had any trouble with the Negroes.
>
> Nor would new complications be added to what remains of the South's race question, if the States down there turned in and helped elect a Republican President. The freedmen of the decade following the Civil War were misled by white scalawags. Ignorant themselves through no fault of their own (they had been without any real educational opportunities), those Negroes of two generations ago were easily duped by mercenary and corrupt white politicians. Black puppets sat in office, but the hands that reached into the public coffers were, for the most part, white.
>
> Today the Negro in the South looks more and more to leaders of his own race, educated and able men. Neither he nor they are desirous of dominating anybody. They wish merely to be let alone, with the same right to prosper that white men have. And Southern whites of the better class are willing that the Negro should have the same opportunity as the white man to better his material condition.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Express

SEP 19 1928

...RGES NEGROES TO AID HOOVER

For the sake of prosperity the Republicans should remain in office, according to J. R. Hawkins, chairman of the Negro division of the Republican campaign committee, who is visiting in Los Angeles today in the interest of his party.

The duty of every Negro, says Mr. Hawkins, is to support the party that gave him the franchise to vote. The prominent visiting Negro, who seconded the nomination of Herbert Hoover at the Kansas City convention, vigorously pointed out the danger of putting the Democratic party in power.

"The Democratic party would let down the bars and foreign labor would pour into this country, competing with the laboring man here and displacing thousands of them," said Mr. Hawkins.

"The Negroes," he continued, "should live where they can vote." In the South, he pointed out, Negroes frequently are denied by Democrats the privileges of voting.

Hawkins left Washington two weeks ago on a speaking tour. He spoke recently in Chicago and will speak the latter part of this week in Akron, Ohio. Monday evening he addressed more than 1000 Los Angeles Negroes, who received with genuine satisfaction the political opinions he voiced.

The visitor is one of the leaders of his race. He is financial secretary of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, representing more than 1,000,000 Negroes; founder and president of the Prudential Bank in Washington, D. C.; was for years a leading Negro educator in South Carolina and is widely known as a writer and speaker. He has shown intense interest in charity and uplift work among members of his race.

REPORTER

White Plains N. Y.

SEP 12 1928

COLORED VOTERS WI... MEET HERE TOMORRO...

Men's Civic League Sponsors Mass Meeting to Be Held in Bethel Baptist Church in Evening.

The Men's Civic League of White Plains extends a cordial invitation to all colored voters to attend a mass meeting to be held in the auditorium of the Bethel Baptist Church, Fisher avenue and Winchester street, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Many prominent speakers will be present, including Mrs. John W. Hoffman, of Ossining, who will deliver the principal address.

Questions touching upon the November election will be discussed. A musical program will be rendered under the direction of Andrew White. Admission is free. William A. Tate is secretary of the league.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican.

THE NEGRO OWES THE REPUBLICAN PARTY NOTHING

MR. IRA T. BRYANT ISSUES SCORCHING LETTER

NASHVILLE MAN CITES LONG LIST OF WHAT HE TERMS SCAVENGER JOBS

That the Negro owes the Republican Party nothing, was the declaration made by Mr. Ira T. Bryant, Secretary-Treasurer and Manager of the A. M. E. Sunday School Union of this city, this week. Mr. Bryant substantiates his assertion by giving a long list of what he terms "scavenger jobs," and which he declares deceive nobody. In his article he says:

Clipped 9-23-28

"Yes, Negroes in this election, as in others, will be standing in large numbers loyally behind the nominee of the Republican party. It's not so much a question of party policies as it is of early environments. The spell binders will literally "shell the woods" with their hackneyed bunk about the debt of the Negro to the "Grand Old Party." Much will be said about the freeing of the Negro, but precious little about the infinitely greater freedom that came to the white man and to this country as a result of the Civil War. Civil freedom, as great as it is, means nothing as compared with a freedom of conscience, with its accompanying satisfaction of having done right in the sight of God. Such a glorious accomplishment for the white man in the sum totals of the reconstruction struggles is the very crux of the victory—freedom to the slaves a mere by-product. The party of Lincoln saved itself and the country as well in destroying human slavery. The Negro, by his valiant deeds in the field of battle, assisted not only in freeing himself, but in saving the Union. 'Tis known that Lincoln believed with all his soul that no country that boasted the traditions of the Revolutionary period could keep its self-respect and espouse a policy of "half free and half slave," but in what he did and said he was impelled by his interest in his country rather than any special love or consideration for the Negro as such.

Nashville, Tenn.

The Negro poured his life into the struggles of the Union with such freedom and alacrity as to win the admiration of the world and the party of Lincoln sought to reward his fealty and loyalty to the stars and stripes by clothing him with the full mantle of American citizenship. It was that spirit of gratitude, (crystalized in the 14th and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the country,) and not the natural consequences of the war, as these salaried spell-binders would have us believe, that placed the Negro under obligation to the Republican Party. Proof of that fact lies in the fact that up until very recently every Republican party platform has clearly renewed its allegiance to the principles and purposes that gave rise to these two amendments of the Constitution. As meaningless and as false as that stereotyped piece to catch the Negro has been, our Republican brethren have grown so cold and indifferent as to delete that little morsel from the party's declaration of principles.

Let's read What Lincoln wrote W. H. Seward, Secretary of State in the Spring of 1862

"I would save the Union. I would save it the shortest way under the Constitution. The sooner the national authority can be restored, the nearer the Union will be "the Union as it was." If there be those who would not save the Union unless they could at the same time save slavery, I don't agree with them. If there be those who would not save the Union unless they could at the same time destroy slavery, I don't agree with them. My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or to destroy slavery. If I could save the Union without freeing any slave, I would do it; and if I could save it by freeing all the slaves, I would do it; and if I could save it by freeing some and leaving others alone, I would also do that. What I do about slavery and the colored race, I do because I believe it helps to save the Union; and what I forbear, I forbear because I do not believe it would help to save the Union. I shall do less whenever I shall believe what I am doing hurts the case, and I shall do more whenever I shall believe doing more will help the cause."

President Harding's Advice

It was in that memorable address which Warren Harding made in Birmingham, Alabama, that he advised the Negro to cease voting as one great block for the Republican party. Think of such advice coming from the head of the party—the president of the United States! This same "head of the party' follows up that advice with the declaration that he "would not appoint to Federal Office any Negro where the appointment must be confirmed appointment must be confirmed by the United States Senate. Shades of Roosevelt! Does any sane Negro need any clearer proof of the real attitude of those who have taken over the reins of the Republican party? And Calvin Coolidge has during his terms of service followed words with action. No Negro has been elevated to a position of honor because Coolidge has adopted the policies of Harding. Mr. Douglass once said something about "the Republican party is the ship; all else is sea." But what would Mr. Douglass say if he were here now and could see how the Captain and other high officers have thrown us overboard?

Why Vote For Hoover?

The Negro spell-binders are all at a loss for some reason to give why Negroes should vote for Mr. Hoover. In private they will plainly tell you so. They formerly argued that "the Democrats do not want us," but they grow silent when you point to the incontrovertible proof that the Republican party is not one whit better in that respect. If the Democrat party NEVER wants us, the Republican party speaks to us only once every four years. Between the two, to some of us the attitude of the former is considerably more honorable.

They say we should vote for Mr. Hoover because we were "caged-off" at the Convention at Houston, but they forget that before we were caged-off at the enemy's meeting in Houston we were Jim-Crowed in the meeting of our friends at Kansas City.

The treachery within our ranks that recently brought about the beheading of Ben Davis in Georgia, Cohen in Louisiana, and Perry Howard in Mississippi was undoubtedly inspired by white Republican party leaders in their bid for Ku Klux Klan votes in the south. Think of a party that condones and protects such characters as Fall, Doughtery, Denby, Forbes and others of like ilk presuming to talk about official decency in anybody! In fact its hard for some of us to believe that Harding himself was not personally involved in some of the shabby work of his appointees.

But the most cowardly aspect of this Republican treachery to the Negro race is found in Secretary Works' recent statement in Washington reflecting upon the integrity of Negro political leaders of the past, and his effort to conceal the cloven hand by the veiled promise of great things to come to the race by reason of a "new leadership among Negroes." Such rot deceives no one. The truth is the men of the race now managing the affairs of the party are not one whit better in any respect than those of other days. Politics is politics, whether yesterday, to-day or tomorrow. With rare exception, those in it are there for what they can get in either money or prestige. Whatever happened in Georgia or Mississippi is exactly what happens in every other state, although probably with a different background. It takes money to maintain organizations and it certainly stands for reason that those who hold the offices should pay for upkeep of the party organization.

Some white man once tried to work up a feeling against the head of a state organization who happened to be a Negro, and made a vigorous attack upon the leader before Mr. Roosevelt. After he had finished Mr. Roosevelt calmly replied in this manner: "The Negro in that state keeps up such organization as there is. You white people made a big fight to keep them from holding those local offices and thus keep them for yourselves. Why shouldn't you be willing to do something for them?"

When the [illegible]ter was an employee in the Gov. [illegible]g Office the more than two thousand journeymen printers sought an increase of One Dollar per day in salary. They put their case in the hands of two Senators, one Republican and one Democrat. They got the increase, but not till each printer had signed a note promising to pay Twenty-five Dollars in the event the bill went through. That's what happened "right under the dome of the capitol."

Negro Should Divide Vote

This writer believes there is merit in the Harding advice to Negroes to divide their votes. Aside from that we stand for the election of Smith (1) because he stands for something, and (2) because he has the guts to say without being prodded, just what he does stand for. In this respect he is in mark contrast with Hoover, the man of indecision the sphynx of the looking-both-ways variety. He has never boasted any party affiliation and just after the war there was considerable talk making him the nominee of the Democratic party. Undoubtedly a genius for organization, he may have accepted place in the Coolidge cabinet upon condition that certain things would come to pass.

Oh, they tell us he struck a blow at segregation in his department. Maybe so, but not until he became a candidate in Ohio against Senator Willis for the Convention delegates and a Committee of Negroes had informed him that Negroes in Ohio knew about and resented the segregation in his Department.

But, they say, Negroes should support him in his remarkable stand for prohibition and the Amendment. Remarkable is indeed the word, when we recall that for so long he seemingly did not know how he stood on the question and the meaningless statement he did finally make came as a result of being "smoked out."

He said he stands for the Eighteenth Amendment and is opposed to any effort at modification. That's the identical stand of Harding and Coolidge. The peroration of his acceptance speech was a wonderful tribute of endorsement for Coolidge policies. Under the administration which he underwrote the prohibition program of the Government has been a mighty farce to which every school boy can testify. These men must know that open and above board violation of laws tends to break down every fabric of orderly government and to breed a general disrespect for lawful authority. They bow to a public clamor with such promises as they know to be meaningless and absurd.

But, say his friends, the fact that he is powerless to bring about the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment does not necessarily divorce him from his interest in it and his belief in its efficacy. Certainly not, but isn't his wholehearted approval of the Coolidge administration an endorsement of the latters effort at enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment? And in the light of that fact hasn't one the right to presume that his effort to enforce this law will be just about as strong as has been those of Coolidge? But if the purpose of this stand on the Eighteenth Amendment was a mere feint to gratify the whims of a bunch of dreamers reaching out for what is impracticable, why have they in their platform and other documents withheld from the Negro this similar little bait which they have quadrennially poked under his nose about the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments? Certainly he knows they mean nothing (just about what Hoover means about the Eighteenth) but somehow we just look for it and indeed like to hear them make their lies about what they think of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.

The Man Al Smith

We shall cast our vote for Mr. Al Smith if for no other reason than to show to the Republican party that they cannot insult all the Negroes with impunity and still keep us in line. We owe Mr. Smith nothing and to be perfectly fair the party that Mr. Smith represents owes us nothing, politically speaking. We have been their consistent enemy, and if there was anything they stood for that we did not oppose it was because we did not know of it. It might help us some to remember that this Southern Democrat which some Northern Negroes delight so to villify, has been a pronounced enemy to the Northern White Republican and has said some pretty hard things about him. As a matter of fact the hatred within the breast of the Southern white man was aimed more at the Northern white man than at the Negro. The latter was just a victim of circumtances. But in spite of what the Southern white man has done and said, in spite of his open insults, we find the Republicans of the North literally burying their feelings, throwing the Negro allies overboard into the mercies of the enemy, forgetting the past and talking on the pirit of such earnest wooing as would bring blush to the hero of a love plot.

The white man knows that if you would have friends you must show yourself friendly and he acts accordingly and advances. The Negro, seemingly, stands back, nursing his grievances of the past, consistently lines up against those from whom he must get his daily bread, and starves.

But, say our Negro Republican "whoopers," "the Negro has nothing to expect from Smith's election." That's merely an opinion. Certainly past performances do not bear out the statement. The Negroes for such support as they have given Mr. Smith in New York have received (comparatively) considerably more in the form of political recognition than they have gotten from any Republican president since Roosevelt's time.

Let it be understood this writer is not in politics, neither is he in touch with any one who is in politics, and what is more he is among the last of our group who could be referred to as an "Uncle Tom" type of Negro. He does not drink liquor and would suffer no inconvenience if there should not be made another drop of the vile stuff. But we are opposed to such prohibition humbuggery as now confronts the country. We believe more in the modification program of Mr. Smith than in the one of nullification represented by Mr. Hoover. We believe as now constituted infinitely more harm than good has come from the effects of the 18th Amendment. We believe that real peace, where there are strong contending parties, comes only from a spirit of compromise. We greatly admire the courage of Mr. Smith in contending for some neutral ground upon which these two strong contending forces can meet.

It's silly to compare the question of slavery with that of prohibition. Wrong is inherent in slavery; with liquor the harm comes from the use to which one puts it. And finally we can imagine some things happening that are fraught with more danger to the race than the ascendency of Senator Robinson to the office of President in the event of Al Smith's death. Let others vote and do as they please, but as for us we shall vote for Mr. Smith, first for the purpose of showing our contempt for the Republican party and the hypocrites in power, and for the additional reason that we believe that the hope for the rank and file of our people, particularly those of the South, depends largely upon their success in making friends with those among whom they must live and from whom they must get their living; and the race goes a long step in that direction when it sets in to ferret out and to point out some of the good qualities of the Southern white man as well as his bad traits.

But come what will or may, let us see to it that there be no strife and quarrel among our group if perchance any considerable number should accept the advice of Mr. Harding and put a "little something" on both horses, so that we can "sit pretty" matters not who wins.

Ira T. Bryant.

PRESS

Newport News Va

SEP 2 1928

ROBINSON PRESIDENT OF COLORED LEAGUE

Charles H. Robinson, colored was named president of the Citizens Civic and Welfare League at a meeting of the organization held Friday night.

Other officers elected were J. M. Clarkson, vice president; A. D. Manning; second vice president; J. C. Allen, treasurer; Rev. S. H. Davis, chaplain; J. H. Washington, assistant secretary, and Dr. L. W. Fowlkes secretary.

A definite program for the league was planned and a number of speeches, for both Hoover and Smith were made during the meeting.

The league went on record as favoring and endorsing the plan submitted by Rev. J. J. Posey as the most forward step taken recently for the protection and conservation of the health of colored people. That the city council be importuned to appoint a colored visiting nurse to be under the supervision of the health department whose duties will be to care for the pre-natal pre-school and tubercular patients and thereby have among the colored folks a diseas preventing agency.

LARGE BLOC OF DEPENDABLE VOTES

Despite the editorial contention of The Informer that some efforts should be made to organize the 100,000 or more qualified and normally Republican colored voters of Texas for the Hoover-Curtis cause, no attempt has yet been made in this direction, either by the Republican leaders or the Negroes themselves.

While The Informer realizes and recognizes that there is much objection to Governor Smith's candidacy on the part of thousands of Texas Democrats, this paper is also aware of the fact that this opposition and hostility will dwindle perceptibly before election day; that many of the professed Hoover-Democrats, learning that they can not vote for Mr. Hoover for president and Senator Robinson for vice-president, will either decide to "stomach" the wet protege of Tammany Hall and "swallow" the entire Democratic ticket from "president to constable," or be "absent without leave" on general election day.

In other words, while the Republican leaders of Texas are pursuing the proper course in trying to corral these Hoover-Democrats, they should not overlook a good bet and bargain and fail or refuse to land fully 100,000 to 125,000 ballots from the hands of colored citizens of the Lone Star State.

However, unless a statewide movement is launched and perfected to line up, educate and enlist these colored voters, The Informer fears that they will either remain away from the polls on election day, or a last-minute campaign will be conducted among them by the Smith forces and thousands of these normally Republican voters will go to the Democratic presidential electors on Tuesday, November 6, 1928.

The Smith-Democrats of Texas are visibly perturbed over the present partisan and political situation in this state, and, notwithstanding all their anti-Negro propaganda and legislation, they would rather see Negroes vote for Governor Smith and Senator Robinson than see Texas give Secratary Hoover and Senator Curtis its electoral votes.

Therefore, any party leader with a modicum of sense and foresight can readily read between the lines, and, having read the sign of the times, he should be able to interpret them and map out and execute his program to the best interests of the party, state and nation.

Negroes in other Southern states have been or are being organized to push the candidacy of Mr. Hoover and Senator Curtis, and it is high time that Texas Negroes were doing the same thing, if they want their votes to count for anything in a presidential election which bids fair to eclipse all former contests of its kind.

This paper is as sincerely and sacredly devoted to the interests of the Negro Race as any person or agency in the world. And in that devotion it appeals to the Negro to rebuke the Republican party, with its Ku Klux Klan Alliances, with its lily-white disposition, wth its anti-Negro leanings to vote for Governor Albert E. Smith for President. For twelve years the G. O .P. has been trying to get rid of the Negro and trying to win the Negro-hating, Bourbon South. Here is our time to pack our trunks and leave it. If Tom Heflin can be for Hoover, if H. W. Evans, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, can be for Hoover, if the lynchers and burners of Negroes can be for Hoover, surely we can be for Al Smith, who stands against everything they stand for.

Sure, this paper is Republican—an Abe Lincoln, a Charles Sumner, a U. S. Grant Republicanism which happens to be as dead as they are.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

Quitman, Ga., Free-Press
Thursday, September 28, 1928

HOOVER FAVORS RACE EQUALITY

Republican Nominee For President Abrogated Segregation Order In Washington To Secure Support Of Negroes.

PLAYING BOTH ENDS AGAINST THE MIDDLE

Republicans Are Trying To Deceive Both Democrats And Negroes In Dual Campaign In Both The North And The South.

W. G. Brantley, former Congressman from the Eleventh District, says people of the south have the right to vote for any candidate they choose, but they ought to be honest enough to admit doing it as Republicans and not try to vote a Republican ticket and call themselves Democrats.

In a letter written to Foster Memory, a Blackshear attorney, Mr. Brantley nails the evasion with which Hoover has sought to dismiss the charge that he revoked the order of President Wilson in regard to race segregation in the Department of Commerce. Mr. Brantley quotes extensively from correspondence between Mr. Hoover and Senator Stevens, of Mississippi, in which Mr. Hoover was asked to specifically deny and never did. Mr. Brantley says:

"The reason for all this evasion and as well for changing department of commerce was and is political. There was a contest in the Republican primary in Ohio between the forces of Hoover and those of the late Senator Willis. Hoover desired and needed negro support. A delegation of Ohio negroes visited him and following this visit the racial segregation policy of Mr. Hoover's department which had been inaugurated under the Wilson administration was changed. Another result followed, which I don't think is generally known and that is that the primary purpose of the change was effected for a negro Hoover delegate was elected as one of the "big four" from Ohio, defeating Senator Fess who ran as a Willis delegate and who later by means of a proxy became the keynote orator of the Republicans at Kansas City.

"The evasion practiced as to what was done about the segregation order is but the effort of Mr. Hoover and his followers to carry water on both shoulders. They are soft pedaling now on the negro question in the south in the effort to help our political preachers who have turned Republican, carry the south for Hoover, but there is no soft pedaling of this question in other sections of the country.

Want No White Party.

"Throughout my observation of many years there has never been evident any purpose or desire on the part of the Republican party to build up a white Republican party in the south. The present situation suits them better for two reasons: In the first place by having only a negro Republican party in the South the administration in power always controls the delegates from the south to the national Republican convention. In the next place by catering to the negro in the south, negro votes are secured in all the doubtful states where the negro holds the balance of power.

"The latest evidence of the fixed policy of the Republican party in this regard is found in the proceedings of the Kansas City convention, where, as I understand, every white contesting delegate from the south was thrown out and the negro delegates seated.

Negro Commissioner.

"As further illustrating the extent to which the Republicans have gone in the recent past in cultivating the negro, I discovered some months ago when I was interested in a matter before the commerce commission of the State of Illinois, that a member of that great body was a negro.

"It would be amusing but for its serious character to hear former Democrats in Georgia calling themselves Hoover-Democrats. There is of course no such hybrid, nor can there be. One might just as well call himself a Baptist-Methodist or a Methodist-Catholic.

"Our people can be and have the right to be either Democrats or Republicans, but they can't be both at one and the same time. Those of them who approve the Repuplican policy will vote for Hoover, but they should be honest enough to admit doing it as Republicans. One cannot vote to put the Republican party in power without being a Republican or without assuming full responsibility for its policies."

Sept. 20 News 192
Poteau, Okla.

It is amusing to us, being from the south, to see some of the negrophiles of Washington and other swamps further north, rear up on their hind legs and solemnly warn southern people of the danger of "negro domination." One in particular has attracted our attention—'twas sent by another brave annonymous patriot, clipped from the purvevor of hate, discord dissention, intolerance and damfoolishness, better known as the Fellowship Forum, which is also the common carrier of compost from republican headquarters in Poteau, and the mouthpiece of what is left of the ku klux klan. It was a picture of a negro dictating a letter to a white girl in New York City. Of course it has to tell us about the girl being a native born American which means she is a one hundred percenter, and bearing that familiar old Irish name Miss Eckstein, we have to agree. We sympathise with her for having to work under a democratic city administration that hires an occasional black man. In the meantime our sympathy also goes out to the several hundred white girls and boys who now work under Col. Cohen, the coon with the Jew name, in New Orleans—he got his under Harding, if we mistake not—we say nothing of the several hundred Herbert Hoover forced to sit side-by-side with the black ones in the commerce department in Washington, the department he presided over. Wilson segregated 'em, but Herbert thought it best to mix 'em again. In fact the republicans of the entire south have our sympathy in having to work under negro national committeemen, to say nothing of our neighbors in Arkansas having to vote for a fellow as black as the midnight musings of a disappointed devil in hell—they have to vote for Herbert thru this republican pyramid of pure sut. Yes, it is really amusing to think of the way those fellows are agonizing over negro domination in the south—we have a record of some more agonizing a few years back, in the days when our sunny southland was prostrate and under the heel of negro malitia—when our noble president was chained in a felon's cell guarded by ignorant negroes and a price was on the head of most of our prominent men and they were being hunted by black men as we hunt wolves to-day. Yes, there was much agonizing in among the fathers of these same men who now cry for us—then they sent their negro soldiers to the polls and pushed our white voters back with bayonetts and forced two negro United States Senators from the state of Mississippi in order to put over their force bill, a bill that would have made eleven states negro provinces. They failed, and why? Just a few of the hated Catholics from the City of New York stood in the way. A Catholic of New York said Jefferson Davis was not getting a square deal and went to Richmond and forced a cowardly federal government to give him his freedom—his name was O'Conner—those Catholics who had made it possible for this union to stand harbored no hate toward the men they had conquored and they forced a square deal from the fathers of the men who are so afraid that we will now be swallowed by one lone coon in New York City. Now if we remember aright when a white man buys a marriage license in Herbert Hoover's home town he is asked if the bride is colored or white—that would indicate to any one but a fool who is in danger of "negro domination." Yes, by all means, we southerners should guzzle down the stuff sent out by the Fellowship Forum, the highpriced mouthpiece of the republican national committee and klan, and forgot the fact that it was a republican president who discontinued a big postoffice in the south because the whites would not bow the knee to a negro woman pet he appointed as postmistress—forget the thousands and thousands of negroes who have grown old in the service of republican presidents in every state south of the Mason and Dixon line—bolt because there is one negro working under civil service in New York City!

Nashville, Tenn., Banner
Thursday, September 27, 1928

BLACK CLOUD GROWS.

One of the leading Negro politicians of North Carolina, and well known throughout the South to members of his race, is W. Lee Persons.

Some thirty years ago, during a period when Republicans and Populists fused in North Carolina, he was a member of the state legislature. He later ran for congress, but was defeated by outraged whites. He has since been holding a government position in Washington.

Emboldened by recent happenings, he has emerged and is making an appeal to Southern Negroes.

Below is given, in full, an open letter from him, published in the Asheville Citizen. Read it closely:

I welcome the accession of Senator Simmons to our ranks. Conversion is better late than never. Long ago we were antagonists, but we never struck below the belt. Today I welcome him with open arms to the Grand Old Party of God and morality. After all these years of defeat and disaster for the black man's party in the South I can see us again coming into our own. Not a great mary of us remain alive who can recall the days when black men sat in the chairs of state in the Southern capitol. Those days have long been gone, but, bless God, I can see them returning. It is said that a house divided against itself cannot stand, and now I see the white people of the South dividing.

I wish to use the newspapers of North Carolina to urge my people to get behind Senator Simmons and support him. What is true in North Carolina may be true in other Southern states. Just let us get control of the state machinery this time and Mr. Hoover in the White House will give us such help as will wipe out all the laws in the South which will keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man.

After welcoming Senator Simmons "to our party," he tells the Negroes what a Republican victory will mean. It will "wipe out all the laws in the South which will keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man."

He thanks God that he can see such a division among Democrats as will enable the black man's party to "again come into its own."

He recalls the days of the reconstruction era when black men sat in the chairs of state in the Southern capitals," and sees these days restored.

And what is true in North Carolina may be true in other Southern states." The assurance is based upon the election of Herbert Hoover to the presidency, Hoover whom the Negro Associated Press, published in Cleveland, O., is urging Southern Negroes to support for the reason that "his broad and sympathetic understanding of human problems, as exemplified in his stamping out segregation in his department in Washington as soon as it was called to his attention."

This race issue has not originated with Democrats. It is made by Republicans. That Negroes everywhere are being given to understand that a national Republican victory will mean racial equality is being widely broadcast and has not been checked by one word from the Republican candidate for President.

The issue of white or black will hold the South again solid. And it should.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
Monday, September 24, 1928

BEN DAVIS IS FRANK

Ben Davis, Negro, Republican national committeeman for Georgia whose place has not yet been filled by his party, says the Democratic party "stands for ignorance and meanness." Davis says he might, under certain conditions, vote for a Democrat "because of the man," but he adds that he could "never vote for the Democratic party." Al Smith, says Ben Davis, is no better than the Democratic party, and the Negro "knows that the Democratic party is his (the Negro's) sworn enemy."

The attitude of the Negro Republican leader in Georgia has something to do with the unwillingness of a great many Democrats to vote the Republican ticket. Ben is perfectly frank. He hates the Democratic party, and says so.

We are just as frank. We refuse to support the party which places Ben and his kind in authority in Georgia—which makes him, as he has been under the Republican administration, the official dispenser of federal patronage in this state. We don't like Ben's type of leadership. —Albany Herald.

Press
September 27, 1928

MRS. BOOZE ON BOOZE

One of the unanswered questions in the campaign is whether Mrs. Booze, Negro Republican National committeewoman from Mississippi, is for booze a la the New York Tribune, or regards prohibition as "a noble experiment." She was summoned to Washington to help Hoover's campaign committee outline his campaign in the South.

Does she stand with Borah as a dry or does she stand with Moses in the belief that the Volstead act is "a jackass law?"

Is Mrs. Booze for or ferninst booze?—Raleigh News and Observer.

Pensacola, Fla., News
Friday, September 21, 1928

A COLUMN A DAY

BY PERCY S. HAYES

Hoover's Famous Order
Catholicism Overshadowed
No More Amendments
Comparing Two Cities

HOOVER'S chances of carrying Texas and other Southern states in the November election have apparently gone a-glimmering. The race question is now overshadowing the Catholic issue, due to the production in an Amarillo, Texas paper recently of Hoover's famous order placing negro and white workers of the department of commerce at the same desks and allowing the negroes the use of rest rooms formerly occupied exclusively by white girls and women.

FOR NEARLY a quarter century negro workers in the department of commerce had been segregated. About six months ago Harvel H. Thomas, president of the Association for the Advancement of the Colored People and a delegation of colored politicians called on Hoover, then secretary of the department and as a result Hoover issued an order placing all workers—white and colored on the same footing.

WHITE GIRLS now work alongside of negroes at the same desks. Gaining this advantage the negroes are now bringing pressure to bear to have some of their number given administrative positions, thus making them the bosses of the white workers. That the movement will be successful is quite apparent as the Republicans are anxious to please the northern negro voters.

THE PUBLICATION of Hoover's order, letters of complaint by Southern white girls in the department of commerce, as well as correspondence between Senator Blease of South Carolina, Senator Stephens of Mississippi and Hoover in the Texas paper has caused a furore and is driving many sincere prohibitionists of Texas back into the Democratic party.

WHAT EFFECT this exposure will have on the vote in Florida and adjacent states is problematical. But is believed that white people generally will resent the action of Hoover, just as they are doing in Texas. In justice to the negroes of the South it must be said that they have never desired race equality. The leaders of the race there prefer advancement in other ways.

SENATOR CAPPER of Kansas and a number of eager reform organizations, masculine and feminine are worried over the divorce situation. It will be admitted there is cause for careful consideration. But the remedy they propose is passing a 20th amendment to the constitution. It is the same old rule. Do not make a study of a problem. Just pass "another law" and the problem is solved.

A NEW constitutional amendment seems the least desirable of remedies. There might be arguments for a uniform federal law, although there are many reasons to doubt its advisability. But an amendment on such a subject over which many individuals and communities differ, would be to go through again the disastrous experience of the eighteenth amendment and the farcical enforcement.

THE CENSUS bureau points out that marriages increased 1.2 per cent in 1926 over 1925, while divorces increased 3.12 per cent. Senator Capper refers to a growing "loss of feeling for the sanctity of the home," but he does not explain how a feeling of sanctity can be increased by law. It is a problem which cannot be solved offhand by passing resolutions, laws or even amendments.

THERE IS an amusing feature to the "vice outbreak" in Philadelphia coming right on the heels of the raids on several New York night clubs. There is no question that the New York raids were staged for political effect. Smith had just been nominated at Houston. So federal officers swooped down on New York to show the world what a wicked place Al. Smith's city is.

THEN CAME the Philadelphia outbreak, but it was not engineered from Washington. It was a real one. The "lid blew off," and it did not cost $60,000 as did the New York raids. It was just too bad from the Republican standpoint that it had to come just at this time. For when orators speak of the evils of Tammany rule the public just thinks of Philadelphia, ruled by the Republican machine, and snickers.

Restmore Lodge,
El Paso, Texas.

Athens, Ga., Banner-Herald
Sunday, September 30, 1928

Lily-White Bastards Is Term Applied To Democrat Bolters

ATLANTA.—The Atlanta Independent, published by National Republican committeeman Ben Davis, Negro, was being accorded special attention and distinction here today, in that state Democratic committee under the direction of Chairman John Slater, was having a photostatic copy of the front page made for distribution over the state as campaign material.

Davis, in the Independent, writes editorial reply to Marcus Garvey, Negro editor of The Negro World, the latter having taken Davis and his paper to task for supporting the Republican party after it had dethroned and humiliated Davis as Garvey claims it has done. Davis replies in an editorial of a column or more, the feature paragraph being as follows:

"We answer that the Independent is one hundred per cent Republican because it cannot be bought by the Democrats' money or be bulldozed out of the party by lily-white bastard Republicans and commercialized Negro grafters, who would sell their wives and daughters into political slavery and economical ruin, for pelf and plunder. We will enter into no endless quarrel with the World, but will content ourselves to give reasons for the faith that is in us. We have no quarrel with the Republican party, and if we have been mistreated as alleged by the World, it is a family affair within the party, and it is no alien's business."

Davis, it will be remembered, was national committeeman for the Republican party in this state, until the Kansas City convention, when the place was left vacant instead of re-appointing Davis. This leaves the Negress Mamie Williams, at Savannah, as the national committeewoman for the Republicans, without a committeeman. Davis, in the Independent, is carrying the Hoover ticket at the masthead and doing all possible work for his party. The Hoover Republican ticket which he prints each week is as follows:

National Republican Ticket

For president: Herbert Hoover, of California.

For vice president: Charles Curtis, of Kansas.

ELECTORS

At-large: Mrs. Marry Harris Armor, of Eastman, Charles Adamson, of Cedartown.

First district: Frank Durden, of Savannah.

Second district: J. M. Patterson of Putney.

Third district: Charles E. Brown of Cordele.

Fourth district: Henry O. Lovorn, of Carrollton.

Fifth district: Mrs. Marvin Williams, of Atlanta.

Sixth district: George S. Jones, of Macon.

Seventh district: D. C. Cole of Marietta.

Eighth district: Mrs. C. A. Ver-Nooy, of Athens.

Ninth district: W. A. Carlisle, of Gainesville.

Tenth district: E. J. Forrester, of Sparta.

Eleventh district: Dan T. Cowart, of Waycross.

Twelfth district: J. H. Rush, of Lumber City.

Political - 1928

Party Acciliation.

Republican.

SOUTH BEND

INDIANA

OCT 3 1928

LILY WHITE

The Chicago Tribune provides authenticity for one of the most amazing disclosures of the political campaign. The Republican party, it says, has become what is known in the South as "lily white", and is busy impressing the solid South with its voluntary abandonment of a policy whereby for sixty years it has cherished (and made political capital out of) the Negro.

The G. O. P., according to the Tribune, has determined to leave the Negro to his own political fate. It will swear off using him and his delegations from the South to swing nominations. It will become quite as devoted to the principle of "white supremacy" as is the Imperial Wizard of the ku klux klan. It will appoint no Negroes to office. It will raise no fuss over the disfranchisement of the race.

All this, says the Tribune's political correspondent, has the sanction and approval of Mr. Hoover and the Republican National committee.

Whether this attempt to take over the stock-in-trade of the Democratic party (South) will succeed or not remains to be seen. The habit of voting the Democratic ticket below the Mason-Dixon line is so ingrained in the inhabitants of that section that it may take more than promises to break the tradition. But the incident is significant of the desperation of Mr. Hoover's managers, who are willing to sacrifice anything to win the election.

The Republican party is, on paper, the party that is devoted to the Constitution. Every spellbinder uses that document, or at least the eighteenth amendment thereof, as the text for his political addresses. Traditionally, the Republican party is committed to other amendments to the Constitution, notably those which made the Negro a citizen and which provided for his enfranchisement. That policy, dating from the time of Lincoln, and ignored in recent years, has now openly and definitely been abandoned. The Republican party is no longer the party of Abraham Lincoln. It is the party of Hiram Wesley Evans and D. C. Stephenson.

Little by little, the Republican party has become the parallel of the klan. It has embraced, where it is expedient to do so, the principles of intolerance, setting up religious tests as qualification for office. That is a plan principle. It has espoused the cause of prohibition, which means that certain classes shall have the right to drink while others are forbidden liquor. That is a klan principle. It has now adopted the principle of white supremacy, and that is a klan principle.

It is quite evident that the Republican managers are convinced that the only methods by which they can win this election are those which will stir up racial antagonisms, social discontent and religious hysteria. On those three issues they are staking their all, win or lose.

Lafayette, Ga., Journal
Issue October 5, 1928

Has He Helped The Cause?

Many people are making capital of a recent statement made by Ben Davis, negro Republican leader, and using it to strengthen the Democratic party, but Ben's mistake, if it may be termed as such, will have no such ill effects on the Republican party, as one made by Franklin Rosevelt, in Atlanta, last week when, in a public address, stated that "he preachers and women of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union are working side by side with the ancient order of bootleggers and pouring their money into the treasury of the Republican party along with that sent there by the bootlegging fraternity."

Ben Davis is a negro and, even though well posted and educated, his statements in defence of himself when abused by another negro newspaper editor may be overlooked and as such will not be weighed any too heavily in the balances, but when a man of Mr. Roosevelt's calibre, comes down here into the Empire State of the South and make such a dastardly and insulting remark about the people who are doing most for the upbuilding of the nation, such insult will be more of a boom-e-rang to come back and sting the party from whence it came rather than hurt the preachers and women of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

We are frank to admit that some preachers and possibly some of the women of the W. C. T. U. have gone a little too far in their purpose to carry their point—but Mr. Roosevelt should remember there are thousands of other "preachers" who have steered clear of anything that would warrant his insulting fling that would ally them with the bootleggers fraternity.

If the Democratic party as a whole is to be classed as its so called mouth piece, Mr. Franklin Roosevelt, and is filled with such contemptible vile and abuse as he seems to possess, then we might class the party even lower than Mr Roosevelt has classed the "preachers and women of the W. C. T. U. Let us hope that (even as we know all preachers and women of the W. C. T. U. are not in the bootleggers class) all Democrats are not as insulting and contemptible as the so-called mouth piece of the party—and if so— then we, for one, would rather be associated with Ben Davis and his allies than with Franklin Roosevelt and his vituperous insults.

As we see it, Mr. Roosevelt, has done more to hurt the Democratic party that a dozen like Ben Davis could harm the Republicans.

SUN
BALTIMORE, MD.
OCT 8 1928

Negro Voters Held Big Factor In Election Outcome In State

G. O. P. Defections, Due To Religious And Wet Questions, Are Reported—Situation In Calvert And Charles Counties Are Cited

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN, JR.

La Plata, Md., Oct. 7—Negro defection from the Republican party is one element in the Presidential campaign in Maryland that cannot be gauged accurately. Yet, if present reports in that regard are true, it will be an important factor in determining the outcome.

This situation, while apparent in most parts of the State, is especially noticeable in Calvert and Charles counties. In both counties the Negro voters form a substantial part of the electorate and not so long ago exceeded the number of white voters.

Both May Go Democratic

Both Charles and Calvert counties are normally Republican; in fact, regularly so. Yet if the reports that are being circulated about the shift of sentiment among the Negroes to Governor Smith are true, one or both of these counties may go Democratic.

Some Republicans in Southern Maryland already have given up hope about carrying Charles county because of this factor. Calvert county, they assert, is safe. There are Democrats, however, who do not believe either county will go Democratic and some who contend that Governor Smith will carry both.

G. O. P. Book Majority 774

The Republican affiliated majority in Charles county is 774 votes. Negroes constitute the major part of the party, which was formed in this county in 1870 by Northern sympathizers primarily to obtain political preferment by capitalizing the Negro vote.

For fifteen years a Democratic candidate did not have a chance in this county, either for local offices or for State-wide campaigns. Then a break came. The Democrats made alleged corruption in the conduct of some of the local offices an issue. The Negro's fear of slavery was not so strong as at first and he was more susceptible to money. The Democrats managed to elect several of their number to local offices.

But the Democratic advance in the county did not progress far. The late Sydney Mudd, father of Thomas B. R. Mudd, the present Republican leader of Charles county, took over the leadership of the party. He gained and held the confidence of many of the white people and usually was able to carry the county for his candidates.

Mitchell Breaks Bloc

Now and then a Democrat, usually because of a strong personal following, has been able to get by this bloc. The most notable example in recent years has been State Senator Walter J. Mitchell. Three times he has been elected to the Legislature. But no Democratic Presidential candidate has ever received a majority in the county since the Negro has had the franchise.

Many Democratic leaders now decline to believe that the Negroes of the county in any large number will vote for Governor Smith. Yet there is a chance that this may happen and that, as a result, Charles county for the first time since 1870 will go Democratic.

Many Are Catholics

Many of these Negroes, in the first place, are Catholics. Most of them also are opposed to prohibition. About sixty per cent. of the population of the county is Catholic, and there is a predominant wet sentiment.

Democratic defections will not run large. In only two sections of the county has any religious prejudice appeared and Democratic leaders are concentrating their activities on these sections in an effort to remove this objection to the New York Governor.

Situation in Calvert Differs

The situation in Calvert county is a little different. There the Republican majority is 358. Rumblings of insurrection also have been heard among the Negroes there, but not to the same extent as in Charles county.

Thomas Parran, Republican county leader, has had a marked success in keeping the Negroes within the Republican fold. Furthermore, Calvert is a dry county and the Catholic population is negligible. The only Catholic church in the county is at Solomons Island. Churches of this faith are scattered throughout Charles county.

Defections Expected

Democratic defections in Calvert are expected to reach a sizable number, party leaders explain. Religious prejudice against Governor Smith is widespread and efforts to stamp it out have not met with much success. Many Democrats are dry, and wet Republicans, excepting the Negroes, are rare.

Assuming that a large block of Negroes bolt their party this time and vote for Governor Smith, it is unlikely that the county will go into the Democratic column because of the number of Democratic bolters, it is contended by some observers in this county.

Both Counties Small

Both Charles and Calvert counties are small. The direction in which they go in the election will not make a great deal of difference unless the margin distinguishing victor from loser in the State-wide result is less than 1,000. President Harding received a majority of 943 votes in Charles and 511 in Calvert. Mr. Coolidge's majorities in the two counties were 724 and 322, respectively.

But the course of the campaign in these counties is interesting in that it reflects an element of the campaign which is prevalent throughout the State. It is a situation which is giving the Democrats some hope and the Republicans considerable worry, and it makes the outcome uncertain.

25,000 Negro Voters In Counties

In the counties of Maryland there are approximately 25,000 Negro voters. In Baltimore the number reaches 27,000 in round figures. These votes in the past went virtually as a bloc to the Republican Presidential candidate. If only one-fourth of them switched this year, it would mean about a 10,000 gain for the Democrats and a 10,000 loss for the Republicans or a turnover of 20,000 votes on the basis that seventy-five per cent of those registered voted.

The Republicans fully realize the serious problem this situation offers them. They are losing no chance to make this vote certain. The Negro is being reminded that it was Lincoln who brought him from slavery and that he owes an eternal obligation to the party of the Great Emancipator.

Argument Made To Negroes

Again Governor Smith's attitude toward prohibition is being used as an argument against him with the Negro. The colored voters are reminded that the Democratic nominee plans a repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and they are told that there is no assurance he will not also repeal the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments, which abolished slavery and gave the franchise and equal rights to Negroes.

This argument is effective, assert some Republican leaders. Yet many Negroes, especially those in Baltimore, cannot be influenced by such a plea, it is said. In the final analysis, the size of the "current election expense" fund probably will have much to do with the number of Negro bolters, observers believe.

NEWS
WILMINGTON, DEL.

SEP 12 1928

COLORED FIRST VOTERS WILL PARADE TONIGHT

The colored Republicans First Voters' League, of which Joseph L. Taylor is the organizer, will parade over the principal streets of the city tonight. The organization will leave the headquarters at 1020 Walnut street at 7.30 o'clock and will be headed by the original Odd Fellows' Band.

The organization has completed arrangements for two mass meetings and outings to be held at Shellpot Park tomorrow and Friday evenings.

Republican candidates who were named at Dover yesterday have already been invited to attend the mass meeting to be held in the Arena at the park tomorrow evening and make brief addresses.

The various amusements in the park will be open during the day. There will be dancing each evening and music will be furnished by Ellis Watts Orchestra of Chester

PRESS
Newport News, Va.

SEP 16 1928

LOCAL NEGRO VOTERS WILL GO TO RALLY

Negro Voters and Leaders Will Attend All State Rally of Negro Voters Today.

A large delegation of negro voters and race leaders from this city will head for Norfolk today to attend the second all-state rally of negro voters in the past 3 weeks in an effort to further organize the colored vote of the state for the November election.

The meeting will be held in the Attucks theatre, and, according to J. Thomas Newsome, local race leader, there will be delegates present from virtually every congressional district in Virginia.

The complete organization of the negroes into what amounts to an Independent Voters' League will be the purpose of the meeting. At a conference held at Bay Shore recently, a resolution was adopted holding the negro in Virginia to an independent course in the November election. The conference tomorrow will be more or less, a continuation of the one held here.

TIMES DISPATCH
RICHMOND, VA.

SEP 2 1928

Colored Voters Will Meet Today At Shore Resort

Race Leaders From Whole State Will Discuss the Presidential Campaign

[Special to The Times-Dispatch]

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., Sept. 1—Between 600 and 1,000 Negroes from all sections of Virginia are expected here tomorrow afternoon to attend the mass meeting of colored voters called at Bay Shore by State race leaders to discuss the general political situation and probably to commit themselves to the support of Governor Alfred E. Smith or Herbert Hoover in the election next November.

A meeting of leaders and delegates from virtually every congressional district in Virginia was held two weeks ago at the colored resort, at which time plans were made for the meeting tomorrow. It is expected a definite stand either for or against the two presidential candidates will be taken by representative Negroes of Virginia as an indication as to how the colored vote will swing in November.

Sentiment in this city among the race is decidedly for Governor Smith, it was stated by local leaders, but in the State a minority sentiment has developed which would leave the Negro uncommitted and free to vote either way in the choice of a President. Confidence was expressed here this morning, however, that a definite stand would be taken by the representative race leaders at the meeting tomorrow.

In order that matters might be facilitated, a meeting of the steering committee will be held at 2:30 o'clock, J. Thomas Newsome, well-known colored attorney of this city and race leader in Virginia, stated. The steering committee will report at the mass-meeting, which is scheduled for 3:30 o'clock, any action taken.

Joseph R. Pollard, of Richmond, who led the fight against the "Lily White" element in the 1920 convention, will be chairman tomorrow. Other prominent race leaders, in addition to Newsome, who will attend, will include James M. Harrison, of Norfolk, and T. B. Young, also of that city.

TAMPA, FLA.
Times
AUG 30 1928

WRONG, AS USUAL.

J. Thomas Heflin, by some strange quirk—when Morgan, Pettus and Bankhead are recalled as having been United States senators from Alabama within a generation—senior senator from Alabama, has spoken—again. He has said wrong again—as usual.

A press dispatch from LaFayette, Ala., the Heflin home town—though many good citizens of LaFayette do not consider the fact that it is such any particular feather in LaFayette's cap, reported J. Thomas as having said that John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, "has completely committed himself to the position that it is right and proper for the voter of one party to cast his or her vote for the head of the ticket of another party without giving up party principles or party affiliations."

Probably there are some people, who, believing Heflin, will believe that; not stopping to consider that almost in the same breath in which he said it J. Thomas proved it untrue.

As a foundation for what he says Mr. Raskob has done J. Thomas quoted Raskob as having said to republicans at Philadelphia, last week: "I think there are a great many republicans who are willing to give up their party affiliations. This is the class of citizens among whom the new committee here will work."

That is as different from the deduction Heflin draws from it as J. Thomas Heflin is from Thomas Jefferson. Everyone who is just a wee bit informed knows how different that is. Instead of even by indirection intimating that "it is right and proper for the voter of one party to cast his or her vote for the head of the ticket of another party without giving up party principles or party affiliations," it speaks directly and unequivocally of "many republicans who are willing to give up party affiliations" and of special committee work that will be done among them.

Party affiliation is the milk of this cocoanut. American citizens have perfect right to be what they please, politically. They may be democrat, progressive, prohibition, republican or what not, just as suits them. No one has ever questioned that. This right exists in morals and by law. No one can, however, be a democrat and vote a republican ticket.

If there are republicans anywhere who desire to "give up party affiliations" and affiliate themselves with democracy they are within their rights, and none can say them nay. The same is true as to any democrats, anywhere, who desires to "give up party affiliations" and affiliate themselves with republicanism.

This matter needs to be clearly stated and distinctly understood. When democrats understand it and go over to republicanism it is all right with other democrats, if it is with those doing it. But no democratic voter can "cast his or her vote for the head of the ticket of another party without giving up party principles or party affiliations." One's vote is the supreme test of one's party allegiance.

Let's apply the principle involved elsewhere and see how it works: No one will gainsay that no Methodist can vote in a Baptist conference for the purpose of calling a pastor, say. Whoever votes on such a matter in such a conference must first be a Baptist. The principle is precisely the same—democrats voting for democratic candidates and republicans voting for republican candidates. The fact and the logic of it are inescapable.

If there are those who will to give up their party affiliations it is their matter. The members of the party which they may be leaving can only hope that they are fully aware of what they are doing. It seems quite evident that J. Thomas Heflin, among others, would deceive some of them as to what they will be doing if they profess democracy and vote the republican ticket. There is no such thing as a Hoover-democrat—no more than there is such a thing as a skunk which exudes the perfume of roses when in action or a negro-Caucasian.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Democrat

Warrenton, Va.

SEP 26 1928

Republican.

IF THE SOLID SOUTH BREAKS—

Predictions as to the social and political consequences of a Republican victory in Virginia vary with the political belief of the prophets. The so-called Hoover Democrats, interested primarily in defeating one presidential candidate, rather than in electing the other, are disposed to minimize the local significance of a G. O. P. victory in this State. The Republicans reaffirm their conviction that Virginia, freed of the poisonous Democratic machine, would finally amount to something. And the Democratic leaders, reading their histories, are entirely confident that nothing short of the bubonic plague could do the State as much harm as a Republican triumph.

Speculation on the possible consequences of a break in the Solid South are not confined to the area affected. Other prophets, viewing the battle from afar, have their own very definite ideas of what would transpire if the determined effort to break the ranks were to succeed. One commentator of more than passing importance is Congressman L. C. Dyer, Republican, of Missouri, author of the celebrated anti-lynching bill which was talked to death by unyielding Southern Senators of the Democratic persuasion.

"After the Solid South has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next President," predicts Mr. Dyer, "that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the South, who have for sixty years violated the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments. Then Congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of Negroes their constitutional rights as citizens and place them on an equality with all other races."

It will be noted that Mr. Dyer, in referring to "nullificationists," did not mean the scofflaw variety. "My views on prohibition are not in accord with those of Herbert Hoover," he says, "but Mr. Hoover's stand on prohibition has captured the imagination of the ardent Democratic drys of the South to such an extent that they have forgotten their Democracy and have declared for Hoover and Curtis and they cannot be sidestepped. Hoover has their votes bagged. Who was it who mistakenly said that Herbert Hoover is not a good politician? November 6 that great engineer-politician with the votes of the prohibitionists and those swayed because of the religious question in the South, will drive such a thick wedge through the heart of the Solid South and their white supremacp slogan that it will blow up their whole constitutional program."

These are the views of Representative Dyer. Of course he may be wrong, but it will require considerable hardihood for many thoughtful Southerners to gamble even with the remote possibility of losing such a stake. The Congressman is right, of course, in attributing to Southern Democrats the defeat of his iniquitous Federal anti-lynching bill. He would be equally right in recalling that Southern Democrats also defeated, by virtue of their fiery conviction and their lung power, the even more vicious force bill. As long as Republican majorities in Congress continue to regard such legislation with favor, the South would do well to remain solid.—Times-Dispatch.

BEN DAVIS AIRS HIS WOES AND CURSES "LILY-WHITES"

Negro Politician Uses Caustic Term in Reference to Democrats and Bolters

Racial, political, and personal grievances were aired last night when Ben Jeff Davis, Negro politician and orator, assailed anew the "bastard lily-white Republicans and half breeds," in his speech at the First Baptist church for colored.

By this caustic term, Davis stated, he did not mean the "Hoover Democrats, who didn't know exactly what they're doing, but are wrought up over the moral question." Of Democratic Negroes, Davis said: "They tell me there are some powerful curiosities down here, but any Negro who says he's a Democrat, is a liar."

"I am a Republican," the Negro said, "and have no apologies to make for the faith that is in me, for I know of no other party that is worthy of membership. I am not opposed to Al Smith because he is a Catholic, I am opposed to him because he is a Democrat. I am opposed to all Democrats. I am not in favor of a Democrat for any office."

Sees Georgia Gone

Davis stated plainly that he has no hope that the Republican party will carry Georgia.

"The Democrats are as sure to carry Georgia this year as we are to die," he declared, "and I don't see why there is so much consternation in Democratic leaders."

What the Negro race wants is not private personal equality, according to Davis.

"There are plenty of white people not good enough to live next to me, and there are some white folks who don't want to live by me," he said.

In the government buildings of Washington, however, the case is different. Negroes should have the privilege, Davis stated, "of drinking from the same fountains as the white citizens, and sitting in the same rest rooms as the white folks."

A restaurant operated privately has perfect right to discriminate among its patrons, he believes.

"Quit Cussin' Party"

"Let's quit cussin' the Republican party for what it hasn't done for us," he continued. "and start cussin' the Democratic party for what it has done to us."

Speaking of press opinions of the recent "repudiation of Ben Davis by the Republican party in Kansas City, he said that "W. T. Anderson has been repudiated by the Democratic party every time he has asked it for anything. Yes, every time he has asked the Democrats for anything, they have turned Captain Bill right down on his face."

Returning to the theme of white supremacy, Davis pleaded, "We can't dominate, and we don't want to dominate; all we want is an equal appeal before the law, a square deal—to register, to cast one vote, and to have that vote counted. We want nothing more and will accept nothing less."

Of the efforts of Democrats, Smith and Anti-Smith, to secure Negro votes, Davis said, "They don't want us in their party any more than they want us in their houses.

"Using The South"

"Tammany Hall don't care any more for the South than it does for me, it just wants to use the South, Bill Anderson, and Jack Slater, and Thomas Hardwick are nosing out Hoover, but how inconsistent the hypocrites are."

Getting back to the subject of "Lily-Whites," Davis remarked that he "always recommended a Democrat in preference to a lily-white. No it's not the Hoover Democrats that are bastards, its the lily-white Republicans that's bastards, the half breeds."

At the completion of Davis' talk, a white man, the only one on the platform, rose. He was introduced as "O. M. Duke, of Flovilla, the only white man who has stayed with the party."

Duke's address was brief. He had been called to Macon on business, he stated, but on learning of the appearance of "my friend from Atlanta" he had arranged to attend the lecture.

"I looked in on the Hoover Democrats today," he said, "and was somewhat thrilled by their enthusiasm, but I knew it was ill founded.

" 'Don't you know,' I said, 'that if Hoover carried Georgia by 50,000, he'd lose it?' I am sorry to say that I can't bring any ray of hope to you as to Georgia going Republican."

BANNER
NASHVILLE, TENN.

SEP 25 1928

SEGREGATION ORDER PULLS NEGRO VOTE

So Says Publicity Sent Out by Associated Negro Press.

The Associated Negro Press, an organization in the interest of Negro publicity, sends out the following:

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 25.—In an interview with a representative of the Associated Negro Press this week Attorney Perry B. Jackson, Republican nominee for the state legislature (the only colored man nominated for the state legislature in the whole state), stated that he was unqualifiedly in favor of the election of Herbert Hoover for President of the United States. Jackson, who is active in civic, fraternal and religious life of this city, stated that in his opinion not less than ninety per cent of the colored people of Cuyahoga county and state of Ohio would support the Hoover ticket. He gave as his reasons not only that Herbert Hoover was by training and experience the better qualified of the two leading candidates for the high office of President, but that his broad and sympathetic understanding of human problems as exemplified in his stamping out segregation in his department in Washington as soon as it was called to his attention, according to Noval Thomas of Washington, D. C., had a practical and direct appeal to the colored voter.

TIMES
ROANOKE, VA.

SEP 27 1928

IF THE SOLID SOUTH BREAKS—

Predictions as to the social and political consequences of a Republican victory in Virginia vary with the political belief of the prophets. The so-called Hoover Democrats, interested primarily in defeating one presidential candidate, rather than in electing the other, are disposed to minimize the local significance of a G. O. P. victory in this state. The Republicans reaffirm their conviction that Virginia, freed of the poisonous Democratic machine, would finally amount to something. And the Democratic leaders, reading their histories, are entirely confident that nothing short of the bubonic plague could do the State as much harm as a Republican triumph.

Speculation on the possible consequences of a break in the Solid South are not confined to the area affected. Other prophets, viewing the battle from afar, have their own very definite ideas of what would transpire if the determined effort to break the ranks were to succeed. One commentator of more than passing importance is Congressman L. C. Dyer, Republican, of Missouri, author of the celebrated anti-lynching bill which was talked to death by unyielding Southern Senators of the Democratic persuasion.

"After the Solid South has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next President," predicts Mr. Dyer, "that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the South, who have for sixty years violated the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments. Then Congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of Negroes their constitutional rights as citizens and place them on an equality with all other races."

It will be noted that Mr. Dyer, in referring to "nullificationists," did not mean the scofflaw variety. "My views on prohibition are not in accord with those of Herbert Hoover," he says, "but Mr. Hoover's stand on prohibition has captured the imagination of the ardent Democratic drys of the South to such an extent that they have forgotten their Democracy and have declared for Hoover and Curtis and they cannot be sidestepped. Hoover has their votes bagged. Who was it who mistakenly said that Herbert Hoover is not a good politician? November 6 that great engineer-politician with the votes of the prohibitionists and those swayed because of the religious question in the South, will drive such a thick wedge through the heart of the Solid South and their white supremacy slogan that it will blow up their whole constitutional program."

These are the views of Representative Dyer. Of course he may be wrong, but it will require considerable hardihood for many thoughtful southerners to gamble even with the remote possibility of losing such a stake. The Congressman is right, of course, in attributing to Southern Democrats the defeat of his iniquitous Federal anti-lynching bill. He would be equally right in recalling that Southern Democrats also defeated, by virtue of their fiery conviction and their lung power, the even more vicious force bill. As long as Republican majorities in Congress continue to regard such legislation with favor, the South would do well to remain solid.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

TIMES UNION
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

SEP 21 1928

NEGROES ASKED TO REMAIN WITH G. O. P.

Citizen Writes to Hoover League Saying That Greatest Test Is Now Presented.

Writing to the Hoover League of New Haven, B. C. Woolfolk, a well known colored citizen, decries the efforts of the negro Independent Democratic association to persuade members of the colored race to desert the Republican party.

In the letter the writer says:

"Gentlemen: We are face to face with the question as to whether when, through the proper uses of the ballot Republicanism will achieve victory are we going to sit idly by and be deprived and deterred from the enjoyment of that victory by the activities of the unscrupulous who will persuade many unwittingly to join their enemy's forces—the Democrats.

"There has come to us as loyal Republicans the greatest test we have ever had as negroes. A test that should stir the blood in the veins of every Republican and fire them with patriotic zeal. It should challenge every one of us to such an effort as it has never before made in the history of the party.

"Attempts are being boldly made to discredit the Republican party in its past and present attitude toward the negro. I am a negro, and frankness forces me to say that the Republican party has not done everything it might have done and perhaps should have done in the interest of the race. But will those who are advocating that my race support the Democratic ticket, be equally truthful and frank and concede that all the good we have received as a race has come from the Republican party and all the bad we have received as a race has come from the Democrats. Whence came Jim Crowism, disfranchisement, segregation, in fact, the taking away of every good thing Republicans gave my race?

"I verily believe it would be a crime for members of my race to join the forces whose obvious purpose has been, and is, to deprive them of every human and God-given right. The only index we have to the future is to be found in what the present is, and the past has been. Hence I conclude, the Democrats never have done anything good for the negro race and never will. You will find in the orchard more sticks under the good apple tree because it has the best apples.

"I am ready to lend all the powers I have to defeat this propaganda of the so-called negro independent Democratic committee. I trust wise planning and aggressive effort will result in a victorious triumph for Republicanism in November, but it can only come as a result of loyal Republicans getting busy, organizing and down to hard work immediately."

LEWIS GOES TO RANKS OF HOOVER

Says Former Secretary Is Only Hope Of Negroes; Bolted G. O. P. In 1924

By RUSSELL KENT.
(Washington Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Herbert Hoover and the Republican ticket have gained another convert from the ranks of the negroes, according to a proud announcement from Republican national headquarters. Following a conference with Mr. Hoover, himself, William H. Lewis, a prominent colored lawyer of Boston and the one man of his race to be confirmed as an assistant attorney general of the United States, having served as such under President Taft, declared for Hoover.

Lewis left the G. O. P. in 1924. Now he is back in the fold, believing as do other negro leaders in public statements that the hope of the negro is in Hoover. Lewis explains, however, that he cannot be said to be a Democrat bolting Governor Smith, which statement may give pause to some of the White Democrats who are bolting their party standard-bearer this year.

The G. O. P. publicity department quotes Lewis as saying, after his interview with Mr. Hoover and other G. O. P. leaders:

"Having gone off the reservation four years ago, many of my life-long Republican friends have urged me to come back to the fold. Accordingly, an interview was arranged for me with Mr. Hoover, the Republican candidate.

"After a lengthy interview with Mr. Hoover, I am satisfied that the interests of the colored Americans lie with the Republican nominee.

"Mr. Hoover is a man of broad and catholic sympathies. His experience in dealing with men of all colors and racial extracts, renders him truly cosmopolitan. He realizes that our country is made up of many racial groups. He proposes to deal with the colored groups just as he does with all other Americans.

"I feel certain that we shall get a square deal with Mr. Hoover. I am satisfied. I am going to take a chance with Hoover.

"In going back to my party, I wish it to be distinctly understood that I am not in the category of a Democrat bolting Governor Smith, but an American citizen exercising my prerogative to vote for the man whom I think will best serve the interests of my race and my country.

"What is best for the country in the long run will be best for the colored Americans with all others."

And thus Governor Smith has lost another vote of one who "cannot vote for Smith!"

William H. Lewis was not raised among his brothers of the race in the Southland. He graduated at Amherst College and at Harvard Law School. While at Amherst, which also numbers among its graduates other Republicans more or less frequently quoted in the public press, he played center on the 'varsity football team in 1891, and was its captain and at Harvard he played center on that team in 1892 and 1893 and for 11 years afterward he assisted in coaching the Harvard squad.

Birmingham, Ala., News
Sunday, September 16, 1928

Anti-Segregation Move Hoover Act, Georgian States

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 15—(UP)—Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, former director of the census, charged Herbert Hoover with responsibility for rescinding the order which Harris instituted in the Census Bureau segregating white and negro employes.

Harris said any attempt to deny that Hoover rescinded the order in response to demand of negro Republicans in Ohio is futile.

Senator Harris' statement was made in a speech introducing Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic nominee for vice president, who spoke here Friday night.

Congressman Charles Edwards, who presided at the meeting, said:

"I don't stand for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. We ought to give it a fair trial and I feel sure it will have a fair trial if Gov. Alfred E. Smith is elected."

Political – 1928

Party Affiliation.

Hoover Defe Social Equality, Says Ben Davis

Advertisement In Negro Paper Pictures Nominee As Negro's Friend

Quotes From Talk

Favors Same Opportunity For All Races, Says Ad

By ATTICUS MULLIN

That Herbert Hoover, Republican candidate for President of the United States is a believer in social equality that "that all men should have equal opportunity regardless of faith or color," is the declaration in an advertisement in the October 4th issue of "The Atlanta Independent," negro paper owned and edited by Ben Davis negro Republican national committeeman of Georgia.

The negro, Ben Davis in his advertisement quotes from the acceptance speech made at Palo Alto, California on Aug. 11th by Candidate Herbert Hoover. Ben Davis says it was made before an audience of 75,000 people and that it is Hoover's own words that he is using in his appeal to negroes who read his paper to vote for Hoover."

"Regardless of Faith or Color."

The negro paper in Atlanta, edited by Ben Davis prints the appeal to negroes under a heading reading "Hoover Urges Equality for All." And then the second line of the advertisement in bold type says "Says All Men Should Have Equal opportunity Regardless of Faith or Color." And then the third line of the appeal in box car letters says: "Stress Square Deal Before The Law"

Following the heading the following appears as the next of the appeal to vote the Republican ticket and for Hoover:

"Herbert Hoover nominee of the Republican party for the presidency of the United States in his formal acceptance of the nomination before more than 75,000 persons August 11, 1928 at Palo Alto, California said:

"The founders of our republic propounded the revolutionary doctrine that all men are created equal and all should have equality before the law."

He, (Hoover) further stated: "Equality of opportunity is the right of every American, rich or poor, foreign or native born, irrespective of faith or color It is the right of every individual to attain that position in life to which his ability and character entitle him. By its maintenance shall we hold open the door of opportunity to every new generation, every boy and girl. It tolerates no privileged classes or castes or groups who would hold opportunity as their perogative. Only from confidence that this right will be upheld can flow that unbounded courage and hope which stimulates each individual man and woman to endeavor and to achieve."

Attacks White Democrats.

The statement in Ben Davis's negro Atlanta paper following so closely on an editorial of the week before in the same paper wherein he attacked white men and women of the South for daring to vote the Democratic ticket, had added interest to the political campaign in Alabama. Davis said in the issue previous to October 4th that the Democratic party was the white man's party and said that it was only in Democratic states that there are Jim Crow laws and laws preventing the mixing of the races in trains, street cars, in schools, churches and anywhere. His bold statement that Hoover favors equality as between whites and blacks is just what the Democrat orators of Alabama have been telling the voters but they did not expect to have their statement confirmed so soon by the negro national Republican committeeman from Georgia.

CIVIL SERVICE MERIT SYSTEM.

When Mr. Hoover spoke in Tennessee he made the following statement:

"I believe in the merit system of the civil service and believe further that appointive offices must be filled by those who deserve the confidence and respect of the communities they serve."

It perhaps may pass the average reader with little thought. But when analyzed it is different. In vague terms it was undoubtedly a reply to the statement that "Hoover is a negro lover." We do know that he abrogated the Wilson segregation order in his own department. We do know that he has time and again been in conference with negro political leaders. We do know that Georgia has had a negro republican national committeeman for years, and that the state is without one at the present time entirely on account of political expediency. Committeeman Davis, is a hold-over, and will probably be reappointed after the election. He is directing a fight at this time against the "lily whites." But, in view of all of these facts, the republican candidate for president is to be commended for his statement, let it be interpreted as it might be.

The "merit system of the civil service" is the correct system, and Governor Smith believes as strongly in that as does Mr. Hoover.

The conservative New York Times says:

"To us in the north this may seem fantastic. But it is a serious business in the south. It may be said that the whole is merely a political maneuver, designed for the coming election only, after which it will be dropped. But such movements, calculated as they are to renew and intensify racial animosities, create evils which live after them. The chief sufferers from them are only too likely to be the colored men themselves, whom it is thus sought to make use of insincerely by campaigners of the two parties."

Whatever may have been the motive of Mr. Hoover, some of whose campaign managers, in desperation, are seeking to break the "solid south" by carrying Georgia and other states into the republican column by democratic defection, if he will adhere to his spoken statement, should he be the next president, the citizens of the south will find no fault.

The "merit system of the civil service" cannot be offensive to any one, of any race.

Republican.

KANSAS STATE G. O. P. IGNORES LEADERS

Rev. Ransom and Elisha Scott, Veteran Party Workers, on Outside

Rev. J. R. Ransom and Attorney Elisha Scott of Topeka, will not direct the campaign of the republican national committee among the Negroes of Kansas—if the republican state committee has its way. It has said so, and the language chosen admits of no amendment or retreat.

The two Topekans are well known in public affairs. For years Rev. Ransom, who is a well-known A. M. E. minister, has sacrificed his advancement in the church to his love of Kansas. Elisha Scott has been the attorney for the N. A. A. C. P. Both have been politicians because they love the game. Both have been republicans who have followed the plow of party loyalty to the end of the furrow. But the state committee will have none of them.

The mistake of Messrs. Ransom and Scott was their poor judgment in backing a loser in the August primaries. They were for J. W. Hamilton of their city. They spoke and campaigned for him. But Clyde Reed, Parsons publisher, won out, and now the state committee is as hard on them as it could be on members of another party. Some persons are unkind enough to say that if Reed's friends could not have pushed these two aside for reason of Hamilton, they would have found some other, because Reed himself despises Negroes.

In the case of Rev. Ransom, the suggestion that he head republican work in Kansas, is said to have come from the candidate for vice-president, Senator Curtis himself, who is on terms of warmest friendship with Ransom. Then too, as a minister of the A. M. E. connection, he was well known to the chairman of the national committee's campaign among Negroes, who is John R. Hawkins, the financial secretary of that church. But after all, whether it was the style of his clothes or the cut of his hair, or what not, Ransom—and Scott—will not have any high place in Kansas because Clyde Reed's state committee says so.

THE REPUBLICAN NEGRO IN THE SOUTH OR WHEN "SILENCE IS GOLDEN"

There is little during these days that the colored Republican in the South can do to help his Party. Of a truth the SILENCE of the Southern Republican Negro at this time IS GOLDEN, for with the different church groups pooling their strength against the WET candidate, the KU KLUX KLAN pooling its strength against the CATHOLIC candidate, and the democratis who have always voted the Republican ticket in all national elections, everybody talking "HOOVER" singing "HOOVER" and praying "HOOVER" seemingly unmindful of the SOUTHERN PRESS and its SMITH propaganda: three-fourths of all the decorated automobiles carrying the "HOOVER" placards, "HOOVER-CURTIS" clubs the "ANTI-SMITH" clubs organizing it is very evident that the "SOLID SOUTH" is showing most unmistakable signs of breaking and the less the Republican Negro does to agitate these different groups and to bring before them their terrible "Nightmare, Social Equality" (that nightmare which follows them as an aftermath of slavery days when they forced upon Negroes Social Equality and gave birth to a half white, half black people whom they now dread), we repeat, the less the Southern Republican Negro does during these days in the way of agitating these groups, the BETTER for the success of the Party in the SOUTH.

Our job is to hold the Negro steady and to begin to work up an interest in getting out the vote at the proper time. The state laws control the time of registration and those that are not registered can not register now, altho we realize that there are states where these laws do not exist, and citizens are still registering.

The great question which will confront the Republican Party in the South is TO GET THE REPUBLICAN VOTES COUNTED. Unless some special arrangement is made to protect the BALLOT BOXES in the SOUTH, the Republican Party need not expect a Square Deal regardless of all these evidences.

BILL McDONALD FLAYS G. O. P. LILY WHITES

Texas Leader Says He Prefers Tammany to Klan Alliance

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Speaking

to a large gathering of Negroes at a meeting of the Negro Civic League, Thomas O. Crook, president, recently held here, William M. McDonald, politically known as "Goose-Neck Bill," stated that the most vicious, relentless, and American, unjust organization in America today are the Ku Klux Klan and the Lily White Republicans.

"I'd rather stand with Tammany Hall, regardless of all its alleged misdeeds than to side with the Klan and Lily White political organizations of this country," he said. "What would the American people say if Governor Smith stood charged with forming political coalitions with these organization to win the Presidency of the American Republic," he asked.

In his talk in favor of the election of Governor Smith for the Presidency, Mr. McDonald said in part: "All citizens, black and white alike, should honor a brave and independent man like Governor Smith—a man of stainless integrity, will, and intellectual force. He has the good sense to know that Ku Kluxers, Lily Whites, flatterers, cringers and time-servers are dangerous citizens of our community, and he refuses any effort to gain applause and power by pandering to the mistakes, prejudices and passions of the multitude who are the enemies of liberty and human rights.

"There are in the South, North, East, and West thousands of white men and women who have accepted in good faith the results of the Civil War; men and women who love the American institutions and wish to preserve this Nation; men and women tired of racial hatred, tired of legislation based upon disfranchisement, peonage, inequality before the laws in all the states, and a longing for a real governmental policy based upon mutual respect and confidence—all American citizens regardless of race, color or religion.

"Governor Smith is bigger than a party. I wonder sometimes whether the United States is to forever be governed by men of parties full of hatred, full of color prejudice, full of malice, and full of slander."

HOOVER INCLUDES ALL RACES.

Just prior to the Republican candidate's invasion of Tennessee, where he addressed the whole South in favor of Republican policies, thirty editors of foreign language newspapers called upon Mr. Hoover. These callers represented newspapers which circulate among fourteen different nationalities. After thanking his callers for their interest expressed in his campaign, Mr. Hoover declared that the problems arising therein were of equal importance to all nationalities, regardless of race or creed. He further declared that there is no distinction between races in this national debate. He regarded the voters as constituting a political unit equally interested in the questions at issue. He was quotetd as follows:

> "These campaigns resolve themselves into national debates, and as a result of the great interest which they arouse give all sides an opportunity to spread information on important questions.
>
> "There is no distinction between races in this national debate. It is a discussion entirely between Americans and must be so regarded. We do not want international disputes in America. There have been too many of them here in the past."

Later on, in his address at Elizabethton, Tenn., Mr. Hoover directed his speech to the whole South, showing how the carrying out of Republican policies was essential to the prosperity of that section, as to the rest of the country. Nor was his exposition confined to the wholly materialistic view of the situation. Moral issues were expounded as well, and the increase in crime charged to the war was not omitted. He said that technicalities of court procedure have been used to defeat justice and aid law violators. He proclaimed the purpose of the Eighteenth amendment is to protect the American home and declared his purpose to secure its honest enforcement and to eliminate the abuses which have grown around it.

According to one interpretation of Mr. Hoover's address, his desire to see the Eighteenth amendment honestly enforced was set forth in the demand for swifter justice, which was taken to apply not only to prohibition violations, but to general crimes of violence, including lynchings. At all events, Mr. Hoover set forth the moral duties of the President in administering the government in no uncertain vein. He declared that as the President of the whole people, he must interpret the conscience of America and guide his conduct by the idealism of our people. Insisting that the Presidency is no dictatorship and that the government rests solely upon the will of the people, he was convinced that more of the problem of progress can be accomplished by voluntary action of the people, assisted by the cooperation of the government, than has been supposed.

This candid and convincing statement of the philosophy of government by the candidate for the chief office in the gift of the people was delivered before an audience of fifty thousand people, gathered in the shadows of the Great Smoky Mountains, and coming from the states of Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia. It was the first time that a Republican candidate for the Presidency had invaded this territory, which is a part of the New South and Republican in politics, as evidenced by the fact that a former Governor of Tennessee introduced Mr. Hoover.

The salient beliefs set forth by the candidate in these two addresses are significant. One is that all races are included in his conception of the citizenship of this country. The other is that the voluntary action of the people, or a majority of them, is necessary to accomplish any great reform. The latter statement does not mean that a minority should rest supinely under injustice, but rather agitate until the majority is brought over to the side of right. Both of these articles of belief constitute additional reasons why Mr. Hoover should be supported for the Presidency.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republicans Not Confident

Negro Situation Source Of Worry To G. O. P.

By RUSSELL KENT.
(Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—As the national campaign swings into its final weeks the sharp division which has existed among the Republican leaders over how to handle the negro situation is becoming more emphasized. It is apparent that a majority of the G. O. P. strategists have lost confidence if indeed they ever possessed any that the "solid South" can be broken. Nevertheless, there persists a minority which is urging that something be done to demonstrate that Hoover is not overly friendly with the colored race.

This minority group believes that if the effects of the anti-segration order by which blacks were placed alongside whites in the census bureau last Spring in order to benefit Hoover's candidacy for the Republican nomination could be overcome there might be at least a fighting chance to get white votes in the South.

The other group believes the whole Southern campaign from the Republican standpoint, insofar as obtaining a single electoral vote for Hoover and Curtis, is merely a dream. They believe the chief result of the campaign in the South will be to increase the popular vote without increasing the electoral vote. In support of their position they point out that 10 Confederate states—Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, and Virginia have a total population of 25,415,000 and yet in 1924 they cast fewer popular votes for Coolidge than he received in the single state of Iowa.

It is also thought by this same group that while there is opposition in certain parts of the South to Governor Smith, the ground that would have to be made up to carry any of the Southern states is too great in a campaign where every dollar that can be raised and every bit of work that can be done is needed to save normally Republican territory.

Negro Danger Forseen.

Another danger forseen by this group is that were the negro element eliminated from the Republican party organization a white Republican party in several of the states would begin its career under the dominance of the Ku Klux Klan sentiment and influence, due to the fact that the klan in many places is leading the campaign against Smith. Such a condition might result in many of the negroes in Northern states where their vote is needed for Republican success, remaining from the polls. Republican leaders do not believe many negroes will vote the Democratic ticket. But if the negroes remained away from the polls in large numbers the result might be fatal to the G. O. P., regardless of any other influence.

The fact is that it is impossible for Hoover, even if he so desired, to jar loose negro leaders in some of the Southern states where they are in power, due to the fact that most of them were pre-convention supporters of Hoover. Of the 60 negro delegates to the Republican national convention at Kansas City last June only one, Walter Cohen, of Louisiana, was pledged to any candidate other than Hoover and Cohen was for Curtis for the presidential nomination. It was the negro delegates lined up by Perry Howard of Mississippi and Ben C. Davis of Georgia, who formed a nucleus around which the Hoover strength grew at the convention at Kansas City. Therefore for the present at least, the negroes cannot be displaced by the Hoover advisers.

Patronage Probe Cited.

Since the Kansas City convention, Perry W. Howard, the Mississippi Republican national committeeman who managed the Hoover pre-convention activities among the members of his race, has been indicted on charges in connection with the distribution of Federal patronage in Mississippi. Howard claims a frame-up against him by elements desiring a "lily white" party in the South. But his associate on the Republican national committee from Mississippi, Mary C. Booze, a negress, is actively working as republican national committeewoman to get out the negro vote for the Republican ticket.

Ben C. Davis, the Georgia negro leader, apparently is back in command in that state, although he has not been formally declared seated as Republican national committeeman for another term owing to the contest which was brought to the Kansas City convention where 12 of the 16 Georgia delegates were negroes. Georgia publications recently placed in the field a full slate of white electors, including two former Democrats who were delegates to the Democratic national convention at Houston. Davis, through his paper, "The Independent" is whooping it up for the Republican ticket in Georgia.

In a recent issue of Davis's paper there is an editorial which contains the following:

"Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic party, so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred as exemplified in Memphis, Georgia, Mississippi and Texas. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic party.

"Al Smith is no better than the Democratic party. His record does not disclose a single favor that he has done for the negroes in New York. He (the negro) knows the Democratic party is his sworn enemy.

"As infamous and as wrong and as cowardly as lily whiteism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic party against the American negro."

Republican.

NEW YORK WORLD

OCT 10 1928

Negro Weekly Assails Moses; Asks Removal

The New York Amsterdam News, large Republican Negro weekly paper, demands editorially in last night's issue that Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Eastern campaign manager of the Republican National Committee, be removed from office for a remark the Senator made Monday before the National Republican Women's Club, in which he referred to Ferdinand Q. Norton, Negro Civil Service Commissioner, dictating to a white woman stenographer.

Under the heading "Remove Moses," the editorial said with "sentiment crystallizing in Greater New York in favor of Gov. Smith," the reference of Senator Moses may be "definitely relied upon to alienate the Harlem Negro vote from Hoover and Curtis, unless his remarks are immediately repudiated by Hoover himself and the National Republican Committee." The "best repudiation," the editorial continues, is to "remove Moses."

The Negro weekly carries a long article on Senator Moses's remark, topped with two lines across the paper reading:

"Republican Eastern Hoover Manager Has Ku Klux Ideas.

"Senator Moses Hurls Bombshell at Meeting of Republican Women.'"

News
Thursday, September 27, 1928

Which party is the White Man's party, the Democratic Party or the Republican Party? There were more than a hundred negro delegates to the Kansas City Convention at which Mr. Hoover was nominated; not a one at the Houston Convention at which Governor Smith was nominated. A negro seconded the move to nominate Mr. Hoover. There were no negroes to second move in the Democratic Convention. So the answer must be about a hundred to nothing in favor of the Democrats. See advertisement by the Democratic Campaign Committee in this issue of The Opp News.

GAZETTE

Texarkana Ark.

OCT 4 1928

LEAD EDITORIAL—THURSDAY

PLACING NEGROES WITH WHITES.

Persons who regard ~~as idle~~ talk Congressman Dyer's prediction that Hoover will shatter the "solid south" and that republican victory at the polls in November will be followed by national legislation that will end white supremacy in the South through enforcement enactments that will place congressional election in Southern states in the hands of federal agents would do well to read the letter by Mrs. R. L. Bunch, published in this issue of the Gazette, which shows how far the republican administration already has gone in its efforts to control the negro vote.

Recently a young woman of Cass county resigned her place in the department of commerce and returned to her home in Texas because she was compelled to work with negro men in carrying out the duties assigned to her, sacrificing the senority and civil service rights she had earned.

Democratc women of the South will not be misled by the false issues that are being emphasized by the ex-democrats who have abandoned the principles of their party and who are doing everything in their power to turn the South over to the republicans.

True democratic principles still are the big issues of this presidential campaign.

Hazlehurst, Ga., News
Thursday, October 4, 1928

Ben Davis As A Witness

The Christian Index claims that Hoover did not issue a segregation order in his department. All right, let's put Ben Davis on the witness stand. The Atlanta Independent, in a double-column editorial, endorsing Hoover, in speaking of the matter, says:

"When his (Hoover's) attention was called to segregation in his department, he said, Let me investigate. He investigated; he discovered the truth. He never thought of race, color, nor politics, but of people, human beings, serving the government in common. He acted, and there is no segregation in his department."

Senator Harris also said that Hoover did away with the segregation of the races.

What has Editor Newton to say now?

Americus, Ga., Recorder
Tuesday, October 9, 1928

CONVICTED BY ONE OF THEIR OWN HINCHMEN

Barry Wright and his so-called Hoover-Democrats, in a page advertisement—which they say was donated—shows a Tammany negro at his desk dictating to a white woman stenographer. Mr. Wright takes this as proof that Al Smith is responsible for the fact that a negro holds a $7,500 job and dictates to a white woman clerk. That he says is Tammany and then declares that Al Smith IS Tammany and that if Smith is elected Tammany will be boss in the White House and that the front door will always be open to the negro by Tammanyized Al Smith. This Mr. Wright uses to refute the statements of Democrats that the fight for white supremacy in this election overshadows all other issues.

Well let's see how Mr. Smith stands on the negro and as a witness we will take one of Mr. Wright's own hinchmen and political buddies, the "Honorable" Benjamin Davis, the Atlanta negro who is at the head of Mr. Wright's party in Georgia. Here's what Ben says in his own paper, the Atlanta Independent:

"Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic party, so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred as exemplified in Memphis, Texas, Georgia and Mississippi. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic party.

"Al Smith is no better than the Democratic party. His record does not disclose a single favor that he has done for negroes in New York. He (the negro) knows that the Democratic party is his sworn enemy.

"As infamous and as wrong and cowardly as lily-whiteism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic party against the American negro."

There you are. Can't get around that. It is from the head of Mr. Wright's party in the state.

Of course, Mr. Wright didn't refer to Mr. Hoover's order in the Department of Commerce, which put an end to the segregation of whites and blacks in his Washington office. He didn't say that whites and blacks were compelled to work along side in the Department of Commerce; that they were compelled to lunch together and to use the same toilets. Oh, no; Mr. Wright didn't mention that. Nor did he mention the fact that this change of conditions inaugurated by Senator Harris and approved by President Wilson was changed when the negroes of the North put it up to Mr. Hoover to stop segregation or forget his ambition to be president of these United States.

By the way, the negro pictured in Mr. Wright's page advertisement, secured his position under the civil service commission of New York City during the administration of Mayor Hyland, William Randolph Hearst's political allie. He is an employe of New York City and Governor Smith had no more to do with his selection than he had with the naming of Ben aDvis and the Savannah negro woman as his party's national committeeman and committeewoman.

Negroes! Do Not Be Political Footballs! Defend Your Race and Class!

A more open and brazen bid for the support of the detestable ku klux klan in the South than that made in the Elizabethtown speech of Herbert Hoover would be difficult to imagine. In discussing federal civil service appointments the republican candidate assured his audience that he believed "appointive offices should be filled by those who deserve the confidence and respect of the communities they serve." Such language is well understood in the South. It means the exclusion of Negroes from appointive offices on the ground that, because they are discriminated against as a race and exploited as workers and poor farmers they do not deserve the respect and confidence of the "lily whites." It is equivalent to a promise not to appoint Negroes as postmasters and other such jobs.

This republican campaign against Negroes was supplemented by Senator Moses when he addressed the women's national republican club in New York on Monday. This New Hampshire senator, one of the very front line politicians of the Mellon-Coolidge-Hoover machine, spoke contemptuously of a Negro official "dictating to a white stenographer of the female sex."

Thus the republican party, the party that for years has claimed the support of the Negroes as a race because they were alleged to oppose the avowedly anti-Negro policies of the democratic party in the South, publicly avows its determination to discriminate against Negroes.

What difference is there between Herbert Hoover, Senator George H. Moses and the democratic governor, Byrd of Virginia, who keeps a white woman in jail as a measure of protecting "the purity of the white race" because she married a Negro? What difference is there between Hoover and Al Smith who was nominated by the democratic convention in Houston at the identical time a cowardly mob was lynching a Negro in the vicinity and who never so much as mentioned the atrocity? Hoover would prevent Negroes being appointed to federal office no matter how competent they are just because they are held by the southern bourbons to be inferior. Smith was so anxious to appeal to southern hatred of the Negro that his Tammany machine prevented Negroes being sent to Houston for fear it would endanger his chances of nomination.

For every crime of the republicans against the Negroes, there is a crime by the democrats to match it. Both old parties are enemies of the Negro.

Negroes! Do not be fooled by either of these parties!

Do not support those parties who bid for ku klux support and defame you as a race, exploit you as a class, belittle your ability, and treat you as though you belonged to an inferior people. To be consistent you cannot support the parties that protect the lily-whites who burn alive and hang your sons, ravage your daughters and treat you worse than beasts of burden!

Oppressed as a race and a class the Negro masses should support the one and only Party that demands full racial equality—economic, social and political—the one party that fights to scourge from the face of the earth the dastardly crime of lynching.

Only the Workers (Communist) Party fights relentlessly against jim-crowism; fights to wipe out laws prohibiting intermarriage; fights against every form of segregation.

The Negro who supports any party other than the Workers (Communist) Party aids the master class keep his race and his class in monstrous thralldom.

Negroes! Refuse to be political footballs! Defend your race and your class! Vote Communist!

'Lilly Whites' Halt Speech in Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 12—(Special)—Following a protest from Florida "lily-white" Republicans, ex-Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois canceled his engagement to speak to the regular Republicans here Monday night when a mammoth mass meeting was staged at the Masonic temple.

Several thousand persons from all sections of the state had packed the auditorium to hear the senator's message. A few minutes before his scheduled time to speak, the ex-senator sent a telegram to Chairman S. D. McGill, expressing his regret at not being able to attend. It was explained that the Florida "Lily Whites" objected to his making a speech before the regular Republicans.

Despite the fact that the ex-senator failed to make his appearance the program went on enthusiastically. Speeches by A. W. Smith, Atty. S. D. McGill, Mrs. A. L. Anderson, Miss E. M. White, R. T. Thomas and Rev. H. Y. Tookes were well received.

Leaders of the Regular Republican party had called the meeting for the purpose of explaining to citizens the importance of registering for the presidential election next month.

"You people who have not registered," Atty. McGill said, "must do so when the polls open, or lose your chance to become eligible for a voice in the great decision which will be made on Nov. 6.

"Every vote will count and you cannot vote unless you register," he said. "In the eyes of Florida politicians the coming registration will determine whether Herbert Hoover or Al Smith will carry Floriad."

Political – 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

The Komedy Of Leaders!

"Whose campaign is this anyhow,
The Senegambian cried;
Hoover? Well it's a Wow!
It should be dramatized." 11/10/28

CAST OF CHARACTERS

A. L. HOLSEY, of Flood Fame.
DR. EMMETT J. SCOTT, Former Secretary of What Have You.
BOB CHURCH, The Pouter.
CLAUD BARNETT, The Road Man.
DR. JOHN R. HAWKINS, Ultimate Chairman.
FRED MOORE, The Unmovable.
CHARLIE MITCHELL, The Fixer.
ROSCOE SIMMONS, The Broadcaster.
ANDREWS, The Silent.
SENATOR ROBERTS, The Serious.
LETHIA A. FLEMING, Won't Do.
HOMER PHILLIPS, Missouri Ace.
JUDGE COBB, Off and On the Bench.
RICHER, Bob's Man Friday.
BOB VANN, The Middle Man.
DAISY LAMPKIN, The Tender-foot.
GEORGE HARRIS, The Strong Man.
MRS. HUNTON, The Tourist.
CHARLES CALLOWAY, The Field General
MELVIN CHISUM, The Wanderer.
CLARENCE VENA, The Watch Tower Man.
MYRTLE FOSTER COOK, Miss Contrary.
SCEPTER BEARERS: Lautier, Stewart, Mrs. Kendrick, Atwell, Alexander, Richardson and Uncle Joe Orgle.

Act I.

Scene: Washington, D. C.

Time: August 20 to Nov. 3, 1928.

In the Offices of Mr. Walter Brown, Commerce Dept.
Seated: Mr. Brown, with plans for organization of Negro Division.
Enter: Scott, Cobb, Hawkins, Vena, et al.

SCOTT, advancing toward Mr. Brown, with arm full of papers, etc: My Good Sir:

You will probably want to meet the organization which is to direct the campaign for Mr. Hoover. I have the honor to present it to you in almost completed form. A few of my friends have not yet arrived, but I assure you I have selected them with utmost care, and you may depend upon it that they will appear and function to a man and woman.

MR. BROWN: Your kindness exceeds my own arrangements. However, let me see your list. (Scott hands him the list.)

JUDGE COBB, breaking in: Emmett and I know all these people personally.

MR. BROWN: Wait a minute, let me read this. (Silence for one minute.) I fail to see the name of Bob Church on this list, what about him? He is a colored man, is he not?

COBB: Leave him to me, Mr. Brown, I will call him up myself. I know Bob Church intimately. He will do whatever I say.

MR. BROWN: Good, then you will attend to that, Judge, will you?

COBB: Absolutely.

MR. BROWN: I don't see Bill Lewis from Boston on this list.

EMMETT: Why that is unnecessary, Sir. Bill Lewis eats at my home whenever he does not stop at The Willard. I will have him in plenty of Time.

MR. BROWN: Well, I prefer nothing be done until the list is decided upon, and all persons chosen have accepted in writing. Is that clear?

EMMETT: We follow you clearly.

Conference adjourned. Exeunt.

Outside of Room, Emmett directs a release to the Negro papers. Lautier gets his pencil and writes. The next day The Afro-American comes out with a full set up of the organization, etc.

Time: Noon, Special Call Conference; Place Mr. Brown's offices. All enter, Emmett bearing the armful of papers.

MR. BROWN: Who in the H—— published this list? Did I not ask that no list be released until all have accepted? This is embarrassing. Whose Campaign is this, anyhow?

COBB: I am informed and believe that your Mr. Vena did this, Mr. Brown.

MR. BROWN: Vena is in the next room, call him in here.

Enters Vena, innocent, but wise.

MR. BROWN: Vena, Judge Cobb says you sent out this partially made up list of organization of the Colored Division. What about that?

VENA: Whoever says I sent it out is a ——.

Wait, Vena, don't call the Court that ugly name.

Vena subsides.

MR. BROWN: Let me resume where we left off the other day. Did you get Bob Church and Bill Lewis?

COBB: I talked to Church Long Distance. He is satisfied just so we take care of His man Friday, Richer.

What of Bill Lewis of Boston?

EMMETT: I am working on that matter myself and will have SOMETHING VERY DEFINITE FOR YOU IN A DAY OR TWO. Mr. Lewis is very busy in Court just now. But he will be with us. I have every assurance I can deliver him at the psychological moment.

MR. BROWN: Now what about these men: Alexander and Murphy for Publicity? Who are they, anyway? I thought Barnett was already working up some very effective publicity.

EMMETT AND COBB jointly: We know these men very well. They are our friends, and will work with us.

MR. BROWN: What do you fellows mean by "working with us?" I am trying to elect Mr. Hoover.

COBB: I follow.

MR. BROWN: I have a letter about a Mr. Vann. He is to be the Chairman of Publicity, and Mr. Barnett is to be secretary. I have already decided upon that. What do you know of him?

EMMETT: Mr. Vann is a personal friend of mine. When I was Secretary of War, I had frequent articles in his paper, and——

But, wait a minute, interrupted Mr. Brown. I have a letter here that settles the matter. Mr. Vann will be chairman of publicity.

BARNETT: Mr. Vann and I can and will work together without any difficulty, Mr. Brown. We have his name on our list which I gave you a month ago.

MR. BROWN: Yes, I remember.

(Whispering and low tones.) He is supposed to be flirting with Al Smith piped up somebody.

MR. BROWN: I know about that, and I have made him Chairman of Publicity for Mr. Hoover. What about Church and Bill Lewis?

THE CHORUS: Yes, sir, and he owns his own paper, too. It's the leading paper of the race. I wish you could see it sometimes. It has the greatest influence of any Negro paper. Yes, sir, we have heard from Mr. Vann Long Distance, he will be satisfied to be Chairman of Publicity. Your choice suits us, Mr. Brown.

MR. BROWN: Vena, where is Mr. Vann now? I think in New York, I'll see and let you know. Very well, he will be here when we need him. Now that the list seems complete, I appoint Dr. Hawkins Chairman of the Division. Dr. Hawkins, will you take charge? I hope you will avail yourself of the services of Mr. Holsey as Secretary. He comes well recommended. He went through that Flood Campaign with Mr. Hoover, and he is acquainted with the Hoover methods. As soon as all accept, I think you can then publish your organization. That is all today.

Exeunt.

End of Act I.

* * * * *

Act II. Time: Sometime in September.
Place: Dr. Work's Offices, Barr Bldg.
Enter Bob Church and Richer

BOB CHURCH: Dr. Work, I am Bob Church of Memphis. I have come to tell you something about politics and myself. These men you have selected to manage the Hoover Campaign will never do. I will not work with them. They are a lot of educators, bankers and what not. They are voteless people, every one of them, and I am not going to work with people who can not vote and you will have to change the personnel. My man here, Mr. Richer, can testify to what I am saying.

DR. WORK: Mr. Church, I am glad to see you. Are you a colored man?

CHURCH: I am so recognized in Memphis.

DR. WORK: Well, I hope you will take your place with the Hawkins organization and give them the benefit of your wide experience. That will help Mr. Hoover, I am sure.

CHURCH: Not much. I have headed up every Negro organization since Linc. Johnson's time, and I am not going to follow any of these educators and school teachers. I am for Mr. Hoover, but I am for leadership first. My man here, Mr. Richer, will testify to that.

RICHER: He is right, Dr. Work.

DR. WORK: Well, Mr. Church, I have nothing for you to do, if you can not join the Hawkins organization. Good day.

Exeunt Church and Richer.

Outside of Dr. Work's Office: Church to Richer: "I'll show him. I'll put an article in the papers. They shall not elect Hoover without my leadership." You know me, Richer.

Atta Boy, added Richer. Don't let them side-track me, Bob.

* * * * *

Act II, Scene 2. Time: One week later: Place Barr Bldg.
Dr. John R. Hawkins in the Chair
Present: The whole Hawkins Organization. Executive Committee and the other disciples.

DR. HAWKINS: Mr. Holsey, will you call the roll.

HOLSEY: All present Mr. Chairman.

SENATOR ROBERTS OF CHICAGO: Mr. Chairman, I must make a speech right here.

Proceed, Senator:

The Senator rises from his place: I am for Herbert Hoover and I am to tell the world. (Applause.)

DAISY LAMPKINS: Mr. Chairman: What I want to know is who is Vice Chairman of this organization?

THE CHAIR: You are one of them, Mrs. Lampkins. (Applause.)

MRS. LAMPKINS: Well, I wanted that settled here and now. I see Mrs. Hunton here talking to Mr. Fred Moore, and Mr. Moore has not even recognized me as yet. He will have to see me, won't he?

THE CHAIR: I will see you at the proper time, Mrs. Lampkins.

THE CHAIR: I want harmony in this meeting. Dr. Work will be here soon, and I want you to meet him personally. I don't want a repetition of what happened out in Chicago. Mrs. Flemming was ready to quit out there, until——

EMMETT: Mr. Chairman, may I suggest that we go into the business of checking over our organization at this time.

THE CHAIR: Good suggestion. Mr. Secretary, call the list of committees, and sub-committees. Any objections must be heard now.

FRED MOORE: Mr. Chairman, I am from New York, as you know. I am not going to go off half cocked in this business. What about New York headquarters?

GEORGE HARRIS: Mr. Chairman, I am from New York, too, don't forget it either.

CHARLIE MITCHELL: Mr. Chairman, the way we did things four years ago was this, ——

THE CHAIR: That was four years ago, thanks for the history. This is Mr. Hoover's campaign, and not Mr. Coolidge's. (Silence.)

(Whispering between Fred Moore and Vann.)

VANN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Moore and I have just spoken for the first time since the Harding campaign, and I want in the minutes of this meeting. (Laughter.)

A Voice From the Rear: Where Is Melvin Chisum in this Campaign?

Another voice: Flirting with Raskob, and Al Smith. (More laughter)

DR. SCOTT: I shall have something very definite on Mr. Chisum in a few days.

THE CHAIR: What's before the body?

HOLSEY: Mr. Chairman, I think the photographer is ready to take

Political — 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

The Komedy Of Leaders!

"Whose campaign is this anyhow,
The Senegambian cried;
Hoover? Well it's a Wow!
It should be dramatized." 11/10/28

CAST OF CHARACTERS

A. L. HOLSEY, of Flood Fame.
DR. EMMETT J. SCOTT, Former Secretary of What Have You.
BOB CHURCH, The Pouter.
CLAUD BARNETT, The Road Man.
DR. JOHN R. HAWKINS, Ultimate Chairman.
FRED MOORE, The Unmovable.
CHARLIE MITCHELL, The Fixer.
ROSCOE SIMMONS, The Broadcaster.
ANDREWS, The Silent.
SENATOR ROBERTS, The Serious.
LETHIA A. FLEMING, Won't Do.
HOMER PHILLIPS, Missouri Ace.
JUDGE COBB, Off and On the Bench.
RICHER, Bob's Man Friday.
BOB VANN, The Middle Man.
DAISY LAMPKIN, The Tender-foot.
GEORGE HARRIS, The Strong Man.
MRS. HUNTON, The Tourist.
CHARLES CALLOWAY, The Field General
MELVIN CHISUM, The Wanderer.
CLARENCE VENA, The Watch Tower Man.
MYRTLE FOSTER COOK, Miss Contrary.
SCEPTER BEARERS: Lautier, Stewart, Mrs. Kendrick, Atwell, Alexander, Richardson and Uncle Joe Orgle.

Act I.

Scene: Washington, D. C.

Time: August 20 to Nov. 3, 1928.

In the Offices of Mr. Walter Brown, Commerce Dept.
Seated: Mr. Brown, with plans for organization of Negro Division.
Enter: Scott, Cobb, Hawkins, Vena, et al.

SCOTT, advancing toward Mr. Brown, with arm full of papers, etc: My Good Sir:

You will probably want to meet the organization which is to direct the campaign for Mr. Hoover. I have the honor to present it to you in almost completed form. A few of my friends have not yet arrived, but I assure you I have selected them with utmost care, and you may depend upon it that they will appear and function to a man and woman.

MR. BROWN: Your kindness exceeds my own arrangements. However, let me see your list. (Scott hands him the list.)

JUDGE COBB, breaking in: Emmett and I know all these people personally.

MR. BROWN: Wait a minute, let me read this. (Silence for one minute.) I fail to see the name of Bob Church on this list, what about him? He is a colored man, is he not?

COBB: Leave him to me, Mr. Brown, I will call him up myself. I know Bob Church intimately. He will do whatever I say.

MR. BROWN: Good, then you will attend to that, Judge, will you?

COBB: Absolutely.

MR. BROWN: I don't see Bill Lewis from Boston on this list.

EMMETT: Why that is unnecessary, Sir. Bill Lewis eats at my home whenever he does not stop at The Willard. I will have him in plenty of Time.

MR. BROWN: Well, I prefer nothing be done until the list is decided upon, and all persons chosen have accepted in writing. Is that clear?

EMMETT: We follow you clearly.

Conference adjourned. Exeunt.

Outside of Room, Emmett directs a release to the Negro papers. Lautier gets his pencil and writes. The next day The Afro-American comes out with a full set up of the organization, etc.

Time: Noon, Special Call Conference; Place Mr. Brown's offices. All enter, Emmett bearing the armful of papers.

MR. BROWN: Who in the H—— published this list? Did I not ask that no list be released until all have accepted? This is embarrassing. Whose Campaign is this, anyhow?

COBB: I am informed and believe that your Mr. Vena did this, Mr. Brown.

MR. BROWN: Vena is in the next room, call him in here.

Enters Vena, innocent, but wise.

MR. BROWN: Vena, Judge Cobb says you sent out this partially made up list of organization of the Colored Division. What about that?

VENA: Whoever says I sent it out is a ——.

Wait, Vena, don't call the Court that ugly name.

Vena subsides.

MR. BROWN: Let me resume where we left off the other day. Did you get Bob Church and Bill Lewis?

COBB: I talked to Church Long Distance. He is satisfied just so we take care of His man Friday, Richer.

What of Bill Lewis of Boston?

EMMETT: I am working on that matter myself and will have SOMETHING VERY DEFINITE FOR YOU IN A DAY OR TWO. Mr. Lewis is very busy in Court just now. But he will be with us. I have every assurance I can deliver him at the psychological moment.

MR. BROWN: Now what about these men: Alexander and Murphy for Publicity? Who are they, anyway? I thought Barnett was already working up some very effective publicity.

EMMETT AND COBB jointly: We know these men very well. They are our friends, and will work with us.

MR. BROWN: What do you fellows mean by "working with us?" I am trying to elect Mr. Hoover.

COBB: I follow.

MR. BROWN: I have a letter about a Mr. Vann. He is to be the Chairman of Publicity, and Mr. Barnett is to be secretary. I have already decided upon that. What do you know of him?

EMMETT: Mr. Vann is a personal friend of mine. When I was Secretary of War, I had frequent articles in his paper, and——

But, wait a minute, interrupted Mr. Brown. I have a letter here that settles the matter. Mr. Vann will be chairman of publicity.

BARNETT: Mr. Vann and I can and will work together without any difficulty, Mr. Brown. We have his name on our list which I gave you a month ago.

MR. BROWN: Yes, I remember.

(Whispering and low tones.) He is supposed to be flirting with Al Smith piped up somebody.

MR. BROWN: I know about that, and I have made him Chairman of Publicity for Mr. Hoover. What about Church and Bill Lewis?

THE CHORUS: Yes, sir, and he owns his own paper, too. It's the leading paper of the race. I wish you could see it sometimes. It has the greatest influence of any Negro paper. Yes, sir, we have heard from Mr. Vann Long Distance, he will be satisfied to be Chairman of Publicity. Your choice suits us, Mr. Brown.

MR. BROWN: Vena, where is Mr. Vann now? I think in New York, I'll see and let you know. Very well, he will be here when we need him. Now that the list seems complete, I appoint Dr. Hawkins Chairman of the Division. Dr. Hawkins, will you take charge? I hope you will avail yourself of the services of Mr. Holsey as Secretary. He comes well recommended. He went through that Flood Campaign with Mr. Hoover, and he is acquainted with the Hoover methods. As soon as all accept, I think you can then publish your organization. That is all today.

Exeunt.

End of Act I.

* * * * *

Act II. Time: Sometime in September.
Place: Dr. Work's Offices, Barr Bldg.
Enter Bob Church and Richer

BOB CHURCH: Dr. Work, I am Bob Church of Memphis. I have come to tell you something about politics and myself. These men you have selected to manage the Hoover Campaign will never do. I will not work with them. They are a lot of educators, bankers and what not. They are voteless people, every one of them, and I am not going to work with people who can not vote and you will have to change the personnel. My man here, Mr. Richer, can testify to what I am saying.

DR. WORK: Mr. Church, I am glad to see you. Are you a colored man?

CHURCH: I am so recognized in Memphis.

DR. WORK: Well, I hope you will take your place with the Hawkins organization and give them the benefit of your wide experience. That will help Mr. Hoover, I am sure.

CHURCH: Not much. I have headed up every Negro organization since Linc. Johnson's time, and I am not going to follow any of these educators and school teachers. I am for Mr. Hoover, but I am for leadership first. My man here, Mr. Richer, will testify to that.

RICHER: He is right, Dr. Work.

DR. WORK: Well, Mr. Church, I have nothing for you to do, if you can not join the Hawkins organization. Good day.

Exeunt Church and Richer.

Outside of Dr. Work's Office: Church to Richer: "I'll show him. I'll put an article in the papers. They shall not elect Hoover without my leadership." You know me, Richer.

Atta Boy, added Richer.

* * * * *

Act II, Scene 2. Time: One week later: Place Barr Bldg.
Dr. John R. Hawkins in the Chair
Present: The whole Hawkins Organization. Executive Committee and the other disciples.

DR. HAWKINS: Mr. Holsey, will you call the roll.

HOLSEY: All present Mr. Chairman.

SENATOR ROBERTS OF CHICAGO: Mr. Chairman, I must make a speech right here.

Proceed, Senator:

The Senator rises from his place: I am for Herbert Hoover and I am to tell the world. (Applause.)

DAISY LAMPKINS: Mr. Chairman: What I want to know is who is Vice Chairman of this organization?

THE CHAIR: You are one of them, Mrs. Lampkins. (Applause.)

MRS. LAMPKINS: Well, I wanted that settled here and now. I see Mrs. Hunton here talking to Mr. Fred Moore, and Mr. Moore has not even recognized me as yet. He will have to see me, won't he?

THE CHAIR: I will see you at the proper time, Mrs. Lampkins.

THE CHAIR: I want harmony in this meeting. Dr. Work will be here soon, and I want you to meet him personally. I don't want a repetition of what happened out in Chicago. Mrs. Fleming was ready to quit out there, until——

EMMETT: Mr. Chairman, may I suggest that we go into the business of checking over our organization at this time.

THE CHAIR: Good suggestion. Mr. Secretary, call the list of committees, and sub-committees. Any objections must be heard now.

FRED MOORE: Mr. Chairman, I am from New York, as you know. I am not going to go off half cocked in this business. What about New York headquarters?

GEORGE HARRIS: Mr. Chairman, I am from New York, too, don't forget it either.

CHARLIE MITCHELL: Mr. Chairman, the way we did things four years ago was this, ——

THE CHAIR: That was four years ago, thanks for the history. This is Mr. Hoover's campaign, and not Mr. Coolidge's. (Silence.)

(Whispering between Fred Moore and Vann.)

VANN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Moore and I have just spoken for the first time since the Harding campaign, and I want in the minutes of this meeting. (Laughter.)

A Voice From the Rear: Where Is Melvin Chisum in this Campaign?
Another voice: Flirting with Raskob, and Al Smith. (More laughter)

DR. SCOTT: I shall have something very definite on Mr. Chisum in a few days.

THE CHAIR: What's before the body?

HOLSEY: Mr. Chairman, I think the photographer is ready to take our pictures.

THE CHAIR: Nonsense! Mrs. Hert will be here in a few minutes to speak to us.

(A Voice from the Rear: Fine Lady, I know her husband.

(MRS. HERT enters amid applause.)

"Just dropped in for a word with you people about this fight. I am tickled pink with everything. I am sure you will stand by the Grand Old Party as heretofore." (Applause.)

SENATOR ROBERTS: Mr. Chairman, I crave to speak again.

THE CHAIR: Be brief, this is Mr. Hoover's campaign, you know Senator.

THE SENATOR: What shall I do with Roscoe Simmons out in Chicago? Who is to be the Head Gunman out there? Get my status fixed here and now. I am not accustomed to having my leadership questioned by Roscoe.

DR. SCOTT: Mr. Chairman, I SHALL HAVE SOMETHING VERY DEFINITE ON ROSCOE IN A FEW DAYS.

Adjourned for Photograph and lunch.

* * * * *

Act III.

Scene One. Barr Bldg. Time: From Then On.

Dr. Hawkins on The Job: Lots of Static. Memoranda passing from office to office. Typewriters speeding up. Buzzing on all sides

Enters: Mr. Walter Brown:

Grand rush to the office of Dr. Hawkins.

MR. BROWN: Gentlemen, your budget has been fixed, and I want to see you deliver your best efforts as far as that budget will permit. Is everybody at work? I decided to co-operate with this Bureau during this campaign, and I want your full support and best efforts for Mr. Hoover.

DR. SCOTT: I SHALL HAVE SOMETHING VERY DEFINITE ON THAT FOR YOU IN A VERY FEW DAYS.

COBB: I am not a member of the Executive committee, therefore, I shall pay very close attention to what goes on here. Mr. Vann is here at last, and I think you should shake hands with him——

MR. BROWN: Oh, yes, I made him chairman, you remember. He and Mr. Barnett will work together. I have given him a budget for the publicity department.

What I am really trying to do is to get this department settled on the work for Mr. Hoover. I hope that is clear.

Exit Mr. Brown.

* * * * *

Next Day: Great Stir at Headquarters:

Dr. Hawkins is called West to his good wife, suddenly stricken ill.

Enters: DR. SCOTT: I want to see all mail, Mrs. Douglass, as Dr Hawkins requested me to contact the office daily while he is away.

MRS. DOUGLASS: Dr. Scott, I want you to get my status here. I am private secretary to Dr. Hawkins. I know my duties. Do you want to sit in Dr. Hawkins' chair when you are here?

DR. SCOTT: No, I shall avoid that entirely. I am simply a member of the Executive committee and as such I shall insist upon seeing all mail

Memoranda Begins To Fly

Memo No. 1. To Claude Barnett: The last thing Dr. Hawkins said to me before he left was to have your Mr. Stewart go back to Chicago. Please see that his wishes in this matter are carried out. EJS. Exec. Com.

STATIC FOR A FEW DAYS.

DAILY ROUTINE OFFICE GOSSIP: "What do you think of Bob Church, refusing to work with us because we are colored?"

Dreadful.

Does Mr. Work know he is from Memphis?

Search me.

Where is Mr. Walter Brown?

Ask Barnett, he knows.

Have you heard about Chicago?

Roscoe and Senator Roberts, Homer Phillips and Calloway, and I hear Lethia Flemming has put her foot in it good.

Is Bill Lewis coming into the camp with us?

Don't know. Judge Cobb is in the other room, ask him.

Just heard from New York. Fred Moore and George Harris are at it again.

Looks like Bob Church is out of the picture now. Dr. Scott is running things to suit himself.

When will Dr. Hawkins be back? Ask Mrs. Douglass. Too bad about his wife. Just you wait till he gets back here and sees what is going on

Did you hear about the Democrats? All fighting about Morton being kicked out in New York. And Finley Wilson is going for Al Smith, he and Bob Nelson. Let 'em alone. They are crazy.

Did you ever hear so much talk?

Don't mention this, but Bob Church is in the Intelligence Bureau upstairs with a Mr. Benjamin. Lord, what next?

Wait a while. Dr. Hawkins will be back in a few days.

Holsey has a private mail box in Washington. Can you beat it? Bob Church found it out.

Vann is sore about not having a stenographer for the publicity department. He appointed Lautier, didn't he? Yes, but Lautier was Dr Scott's friend. What of it? He is not working under Vann. Oh, I see Where is Vann? Gone again.

Who is the Big Bug around here, anyway?

Tell you what I heard. That Vena is close to Walter Brown, and he knows a thing or two. Saw him and Vann together while ago. That's nothing, Vann rooms with Cobb. Don't let that fool you.

My God, I never heard so much fussing. Whose campaign is this anyway?

* * * * *

Hawkins Returns: Silence for a Half-Day. In the Afternoon Dr. Hawkins Has a Conference. Vann, Holsey, Barnett, Lampkins, Vena, Andrews

Something New Happens

A Mr. Benjamin is upstairs, Mr. Hoover's close friend. Bob Church is in his office. More whispering.

The Bolt: Mr. Benjamin has cut off half the Negro newspapers. Thunder storms rise. The Budget is reduced. Letters to the papers go out from Vann and Barnett.

Mr. Walter Brown has thrown up his hands and quit.

It is now October 20. The campaign for Hoover starts. The Bigleader is not yet selected. All hope is lost and Dr. Hawkins gets thing jumming. The campaign turns into the home stretch, and all ENDS WELL.

HERALD
AUGUSTA, GA.

OCT 10 1928

NEGRO VOTERS

BY E. A. LYONS

A large crowd of representative colored citizens met at Strother's Hall Monday night under the auspices of the Negro Welfare League to organize a Richmond County Hoover Club. The meeting was called to order by Ernest A. Lyons, the congregation sang one verse of "America" and prayer was offered by Rev. E. Richardson. Notice of the meeting was read by James Elliott. After which the Hoover Club was organized. Officers elected were: E. A. Lyons, president, James Elliott, vice-president; Mme. Lizzie Allen, secretary; Mme. Pearl Wimberly assistant secretary; and Dr. E. C. Robinson, treasurer.

The keynote speech was made by E. A. Lyons the chairman. His subject was, "Why I cannot vote the Democratic ticket now, regardless of my choice of candidate." The speech in part, follows.

"Fellow citizens, there is great danger in the negro leaving the Republican party where he is wanted, to go over to the Democrat party where he is not wanted. If we leave the Republican party, our own house now, we may not be able to get in when we come back, because 'the lillie whites' will be in, we will be outdoors and nowhere to go.

"If we vote the Democratic ticket and help elect Governor Smith president, who is friendly to us, we will also make it possible for Robinson, a Southern man, who has no outstanding record of being friendly to us, to become president of the United States. If the president should die. Wherever the Democrats are in complete control, negroes are not on the government's pay roll. I do not know of a negro in this state who holds an elective or an appointive office.

"Religion must not play any part in this campaign with us. If there is a fight on the Catholic by the Protestant, under no circumstances should we be a party to it, because the negro has been the beneficiary of both the Protestant and Catholic. Both the Democrat and Republican parties have fine men for their candidates, who are friendly to us. The only difference I see is that Governor Smith is a good man running on a bad ticket while Hoover is a good man running on a good ticket.

After the chairman had finished his talk, several others spoke. Then several committees were appointed as follows: committee on transportation, John Greene, James Elliott and Willie Avery; committee on publicity, T. I. Morris, Dr. R. L. Lockett, I. R. Brown, E. A. Lyons; committee on finance, J. H. Kendall, W. T. Kaigler, Mme. Annie Williams, Mme. Martha Stewart and Dr. E. C. Robinson; political news reporters, W. C. Pritchett and St. Beasley; committee on workers, Mme. Emma Hillson, Mme. Rebecca Golikely; committee on program, W. T. Kaigler, J. A. Campbell and Rev. E. Richardson.

All committees were instructed to begin work and report at the next meeting, Thursday night, October 18th. Meetings will be held every Thursday night at Strothers Hall on Ninth Street. Everybody is invited to attend.

NEWS
CHARLESTON, S. C.

SEP 15 1928

The Implied "Force Bill" Threat

A few days ago The News and Courier published an editorial quoting Oscar De Priest, negro, of Chicago, Republican and candidate for congress, as expressing his gratification that Mr. Herbert Hoover in his acceptance speech proposed to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, which includes all amendments from the first to the last." The News and Courier then quoted from Mr. Hoover's speech: "There are those who do not believe in the purpose of several provisions of the Constitution. No one denies their right to seek to amend it. But the Republican party does deny the right of anyone to seek to destroy the purpose of the Constitution. Whoever is elected president takes an oath not only to faithfully execute the office of the president, but that oath provides still further that he will, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The colored Republican candidate for congress in Chicago, construes Mr. Hoover as pledging himself to enforce the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments. We Southern white people believe that if the purpose of these amendments had been carried out the last fifty years, we could not live in the South. We believe that the unrestricted ballot in the hands of the negroes would destroy the South now and that force bills enacted by the congress would threaten the South with revolution and ruin.

Last Monday The News and Courier received the editorial, cut from the paper, in an envelope postmarked Charleston, and accompanying it was the following in pencil, the letters printed:

"You and all of your kind who hold such views will regret your intolerant, hateful and unamerican attitude towards 12 million patriotic colored citizens. Remember the fatefull years 1861-1865. Human slavery ceast to exist by force in the 11 Southern States, Jno. Calhoun to the contrary; and so will Jim Crowism you to the contrary."

The News and Courier entertains the kindest feeling for the negro people. No newspaper has more insistently and constantly for fifty years condemned lynching and all manner of injustice and outrage practiced against them. We believe that the State of South Carolina is not giving them fair treatment in the schools, that it is denying them their just share of appropriations for public charities and benevolences. While it is insistent upon separation of the races in railroad cars, and in similar circumstances, it demands that they shall have accomodations as good as those given the whites for the same money.

Wherever the negroes have been given the ballot, trouble has been the sequel. In Chicago, Indiana, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, where they are numerous, unscrupulous politicians have plied them with money and liquor with resulting degradation of themselves as well as of the white people.

Men of fifty years ago when no municipal primaries were held. They will remember the excesses in which white candidates for mayor often engaged to obtain the support of the negro voters. Let them think of a statewide election for members of congress with two white parties striving to gain negro support.

In South Carolina the colored people are nearly as numerous as the white people our pictures.

THE CHAIR: Nonsense! Mrs. Hert will be here in a few minutes to speak to us.

(A Voice from the Rear: Fine Lady, I know her husband.

(MRS. HERT enters amid applause.)

"Just dropped in for a word with you people about this fight. I am tickled pink with everything. I am sure you will stand by the Grand Old Party as heretofore." (Applause.)

SENATOR ROBERTS: Mr. Chairman, I crave to speak again.

THE CHAIR: Be brief, this is Mr. Hoover's campaign, you know Senator.

THE SENATOR: What shall I do with Roscoe Simmons out in Chicago? Who is to be the Head Gunman out there? Get my status fixed here and now. I am not accustomed to having my leadership questioned by Roscoe.

DR. SCOTT: Mr. Chairman, I SHALL HAVE SOMETHING VERY DEFINITE ON ROSCOE IN A FEW DAYS.

Adjourned for Photograph and lunch.

* * * * *

Act III.

Scene One. Barr Bldg. Time: From Then On.

Dr. Hawkins on The Job: Lots of Static. Memoranda passing from office to office. Typewriters speeding up. Buzzing on all sides

Enters: Mr. Walter Brown:

Grand rush to the office of Dr. Hawkins.

MR. BROWN: Gentlemen, your budget has been fixed, and I want to see you deliver your best efforts as far as that budget will permit. Is everybody at work? I decided to co-operate with this Bureau during this campaign, and I want your full support and best efforts for Mr. Hoover.

DR. SCOTT: I SHALL HAVE SOMETHING VERY DEFINITE ON THAT FOR YOU IN A VERY FEW DAYS.

COBB: I am not a member of the Executive committee, therefore, I shall pay very close attention to what goes on here. Mr. Vann is here at last, and I think you should shake hands with him——

MR. BROWN: Oh, yes, I made him chairman, you remember. He and Mr. Barnett will work together. I have given him a budget for the publicity department.

What I am really trying to do is to get this department settled on the work for Mr. Hoover. I hope that is clear.

Exit Mr. Brown.

* * * * *

Next Day: Great Stir at Headquarters:

Dr. Hawkins is called West to his good wife, suddenly stricken ill.

Enters: DR. SCOTT: I want to see all mail, Mrs. Douglass, as Dr. Hawkins requested me to contact the office daily while he is away.

MRS. DOUGLASS: Dr. Scott, I want you to get my status here. I am private secretary to Dr. Hawkins. I know my duties. Do you want to sit in Dr. Hawkins' chair when you are here?

DR. SCOTT: No, I shall avoid that entirely. I am simply a member of the Executive committee and as such I shall insist upon seeing all mail.

Memoranda Begins To Fly

Memo No. 1. To Claude Barnett: The last thing Dr. Hawkins said to me before he left was to have your Mr. Stewart go back to Chicago. Please see that his wishes in this matter are carried out. EJS. Exec. Com.

STATIC FOR A FEW DAYS.

DAILY ROUTINE OFFICE GOSSIP: "What do you think of Bob Church, refusing to work with us because we are colored?"

Dreadful.

Does Mr. Work know he is from Memphis?

Search me.

Where is Mr. Walter Brown?

Ask Barnett, he knows.

Have you heard about Chicago?

Roscoe and Senator Roberts, Homer Phillips and Calloway, and I hear Lethia Flemming has put her foot in it good.

Is Bill Lewis coming into the camp with us?

Don't know. Judge Cobb is in the other room, ask him.

Just heard from New York. Fred Moore and George Harris are at it again.

Looks like Bob Church is out of the picture now. Dr. Scott is running things to suit himself.

When will Dr. Hawkins be back? Ask Mrs. Douglass. Too bad about his wife. Just you wait till he gets back here and sees what is going on.

Did you hear about the Democrats? All fighting about Morton being kicked out in New York. And Finley Wilson is going for Al Smith, he and Bob Nelson. Let 'em alone. They are crazy.

Did you ever hear so much talk?

Don't mention this, but Bob Church is in the Intelligence Bureau upstairs with a Mr. Benjamin. Lord, what next?

Wait a while. Dr. Hawkins will be back in a few days.

Holsey has a private mail box in Washington. Can you beat it? Bob Church found it out.

Vann is sore about not having a stenographer for the publicity department. He appointed Lautier, didn't he? Yes, but Lautier was Dr Scott's friend. What of it? He is not working under Vann. Oh, I see. Where is Vann? Gone again.

Who is the Big Bug around here, anyway?

Tell you what I heard. That Vena is close to Walter Brown, and he knows a thing or two. Saw him and Vann together while ago. That's nothing, Vann rooms with Cobb. Don't let that fool you.

My God, I never heard so much fussing. Whose campaign is this anyway?

* * * * *

Hawkins Returns: Silence for a Half-Day. In the Afternoon Dr. Hawkins Has a Conference. Vann, Holsey, Barnett, Lampkins, Vena, Andrews

Something New Happens

A Mr. Benjamin is upstairs, Mr. Hoover's close friend. Bob Church is in his office. More whispering.

The Bolt: Mr. Benjamin has cut off half the Negro newspapers. Thunder storms rise. The Budget is reduced. Letters to the papers go out from Vann and Barnett.

Mr. Walter Brown has thrown up his hands and quit.

It is now October 20. The campaign for Hoover starts. The Big Leader is not yet selected. All hope is lost and Dr. Hawkins gets thing summing. The campaign turns into the home stretch, and all ENDS WELL.

HERALD
AUGUSTA, GA.

OCT 10 1928

NEGRO VOTERS

BY E. A. LYONS

A large crowd of representative colored citizens met at Strother's Hall Monday night under the auspices of the Negro Welfare League to organize a Richmond County Hoover Club. The meeting was called to order by Ernest A. Lyons, the congregation sang one verse of "America" and prayer was offered by Rev. E. Richardson. Notice of the meeting was read by James Elliott. After which the Hoover Club was organized. Officers elected were: E. A. Lyons, president; Mme. James Elliott, vice-president; Mme. Lizzie Allen, secretary; Mme. Pearl Wimberly assistant secretary; and Dr. E. C. Robinson, treasurer.

The keynote speech was made by E. A. Lyons the chairman. His subject was, "Why I cannot vote the Democratic ticket now, regardless of my choice of candidate." The speech in part, follows.

"Fellow citizens, there is great danger in the negro leaving the Republican party where he is wanted, to go over to the Democrat party where he is not wanted. If we leave the Republican party, our own house now, we may not be able to get in when we come back, because 'the lillie whites' will be in, we will be outdoors and nowhere to go.

"If we vote the Democratic ticket and help elect Governor Smith president, who is friendly to us, we will also make it possible for Robinson, a Southern man, who has no outstanding record of being friendly to us, to become president of the United States. If the president should die. Wherever the Democrats are in complete control, negroes are not on the government pay roll. I do not know of a negro in this state who holds an elective or an appointive office.

"Religion must not play any part in this campaign with us. If there is a fight on the Catholic by the Protestant, under no circumstances should we be a party to it, because the negro has been the beneficiary of both the Protestant and Catholic. Both the Democrat and Republican parties have fine men for their candidates, who are friendly to us. The only difference I see is that Governor Smith is a good man running on a bad ticket while Hoover is a good man running on a good ticket.

After the chairman had finished his talk, several others spoke. Then several committees were appointed as follows: committee on transportation, John Greene, James Elliott and Willie Avery; committee on publicity, T. I. Morris, Dr. R. L. Lockett, I. R. Brown, E. A. Lyons; committee on finance, J. H. Kendall, W. T. Kaigler, Mme. Annie Williams, Mme. Martha Stewart and Dr. E. C. Robinson; political news reporters, W. C. Pritchett and St. Beasley; committee on workers, Mme. Emma Hillson, Mme. Rebecca Golikely; committee on program, W. T. Kaigler, J. A. Campbell and Rev. E. Richardson.

All committees were instructed to begin work and report at the next meeting, Thursday night, October 18th. Meetings will be held every Thursday night at Strothers Hall on Ninth Street. Everybody is invited to attend.

NEWS
CHARLESTON, S. C.

SEP 15 1928

The Implied "Force Bill" Threat

A few days ago The News and Courier published an editorial quoting Oscar De Priest, negro, of Chicago, Republican and candidate for congress, as expressing his gratification that Mr. Herbert Hoover in his acceptance speech proposed to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, which includes all amendments from the first to the last." The News and Courier then quoted from Mr. Hoover's speech: "There are those who do not believe in the purpose of several provisions of the Constitution. No one denies their right to seek to amend it. But the Republican party does deny the right of anyone to seek to destroy the purpose of the Constitution. Whoever is elected president takes an oath not only to faithfully execute the office of the president, but that oath provides still further that he will, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The colored Republican candidate for congress in Chicago, construes Mr. Hoover as pledging himself to enforce the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments. We Southern white people believe that if the purpose of these amendments had been carried out the last fifty years, we could not live in the South. We believe that the unrestricted ballot in the hands of the negroes would destroy the South now and that force bills enacted by the congress would threaten the South with revolution and ruin.

Last Monday The News and Courier received the editorial, cut from the paper, in an envelope postmarked Charleston, and accompanying it was the following in pencil, the letters printed:

"You and all of your kind who hold such views will regret your intolerant, hateful and unamerican attitude towards 12 million patriotic colored citizens. Remember the fatefull years 1861-1865. Human slavery ceast to exist by force in the 11 Southern States, Jno. Calhoun to the contrary; and so will Jim Crowism you to the contrary."

The News and Courier entertains the kindest feeling for the negro people. No newspaper has more insistently and constantly for fifty years condemned lynching and all manner of injustice and outrage practiced against them. We believe that the State of South Carolina is not giving them fair treatment in the schools, that it is denying them their just share of appropriations for public charities and benevolences. While it is insistent upon separation of the races in railroad cars, and in similar circumstances, it demands that they shall have accomodations as good as those given the whites for the same money.

Wherever the negroes have been given the ballot, trouble has been the sequel. In both thirty years ago when no municipal primaries were held. They will remember the two white parties striving for negro votes and we should have unspeakable orgies of political excesses in which white candidates for mayor often engaged to obtain the support of the negro voters. Let them think of municipal elections in twenty-five or statewide election for members of congress, Chicago, Indiana, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, are. Were the white people to divide, where they are numerous, unscrupulous parties would appeal for negro support. politicians have plied them with money and liquor with resulting degradation of them- cal corruption. Men of fifty recall municipal selves as well as of the white people. In South Carolina the colored people are towns of South Carolina nearly as numerous as the white people

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Christiansburg Va. Messenger
Thursday, November 1, 1928

Republican

An Open Letter To Negro Voters

The following is a reprint of a circular being sent to the colored voters of the south by the "Smith for President Colored League," of 126 West 46th Street, New York City, in behalf of Alfred E. Smith for President.

This was a letter written by Wm. M. (Goose-Neck Bill) McDonald of Fort Worth, Texas, to Hon. J. R. Hawkins, chairman of the colored division, Republican National Committee, of Washington, D C., and is self-explanatory.

Literature stating just the opposite is being sent to the white voters of the same section from the Smith headquarters, but it seems their wires have become crossed and some of the pieces intended evclusively for the Negro, fell into the hands of the white voters. The letter follows:

401 East 9th Street,
Fort Worth, Texas,
September 6th, 1928.

Hon. J. R. Hawkins, Chairman
National Republican Jim-crow Negro Committee
Washington, D. C.

My Good Sir:

Through you, I wish to speak to all the Negroes of the United States. I adopt this method of writing to you because you have been selected and designated by the Hoover National Campaign Committee to represent, explain, defend and speak for Mr. Hoover upon all political, racial and economical questions affecting your race with which he will have much to do if elected President.

YOU KNOW

You are an able man; well versed in the hopes and aspirations of your race. You also understand the complex Governmental problems that confront the Negro throughout the United States. You and your associate members know that certain leaders of the Hoover National Campaign Committee have formed a coalition with the Ku Klux Klan and that the latter violently opposes political equality of all Negro citizens regardless of where they live. You know that the Republican Party Organization, in all Southern States, have been put into the hands of Lily White Leaders, and that lily whiteism in party counsel stands for the elimination of, and denies, black men and women the right to participate in nominating Conventions or primaries. You know that the Ku Klux Klan and the lily white, so-called Republican Party workers demand that Negroes be not appointed to positions of public trust. You know that there is an agreement between Old Mexico and the United States, entered into by the Harding-Coolidge administrations permitting un-skilled Mexican labor to come into the United States, while at the same time the agreement prevents Negroes, because of color, going into Old Mexico. You know that segregation of government employees is reprehensible, shocking to the righteous judgment of a great Nation and contrary to the policies of a just government, and that the Departments at Washinton are honey-combed and dominated by the humiliating and degrading policy of separating government employees because of color, during hours of labor. You know that the Inter-State Commerce Commission is clothed with power to control common carriers of the States and should order all common carriers to provide and render equal service commensurate with the tariff charged to colored travelers, regardless of the State traveled. You know that peonage is a species of slavery, outlawed by the Constitution and laws of the land; whether brought about because of debts, mutual obligations or trumped up charges of crime, and cannot be defended in morals, equity, or law and should be stamped out by the administrations wherever it may now exist in the United States. You know that lynching is a crime for which no excuse can be advanced, and that the wicked practice of lynching, burning, and mobbing of human beings ought to be stopped in the name of Civilization and decent government by the law enforcement Department of the United States; and that legislation should be urged and sanctioned by the administration to accomplish these ends. These measures are vital to the best interest of all Negroes, and so far as we are concerned, stand far above all other issues.

NO MORTGAGE ON US

I do not know your position upon these measures, nor do I know how Mr. Hoover stands upon them. That these wicked things exist is real and not imaginary, every man and woman knows to be true. There is no particular argument in slander. From slavery over a bloody and terrible path, we both have marched to freedom. No party has a mortage on us. No party, no political organization has any deed of trust on you or me, and we are the sole owners of ourselves. We both are indebted to the great, noble and splendid white men and women who lived in the North, East, West and South and took a firm stand against the enslavement of our foreparents and fought for the emancipation and freedom of black men, women and children in all the States of the Union.

FRIENDLY WHITE PEOPLE

There are, as you know in the South, thousands and thousands of white men and women who have accepted, in good faith, the results of the Civil War; men and women who love American institutions and wish to preserve this Nation; men and women, tired of racial hatred; tired of legislation based upon color; tired of disfranchisement, peonage, inequality before the laws of all the States and are longing for a real just government policy based upon mutual respect and confidence of all American Citizens, regardless of race, color or religion.

These white men and women are willing that colored men and women shall be free to labor and to enjoy the fruits of their labor and have equal protection before the law; willing that colored men and women shall vote and vote for the government of their choice; willing that our children shall be educated, and shall have all the rights of an American Citizen. These men and women are tired of the Ku Klux Klan and disgusted with lily white agitators and political demagogues. They refuse to be moved by the preaching of religious hatred, or (better said) the ranting of intolerant religious bigots. In them lie the future hopes of American Negroes. They are our friends and must be cultivated, don't you think?

HELPED TO PRODUCE GREATNESS

The United States of America is the most prosperous Country on earth. Three hundred years ago, these States were a vast wilderness peopled by a few savages. But today the wealth of the United States is three or four hundred billions of dollars. Perhaps it is not amiss to say that there are 10 million farms cultivated in the United States. You know that we helped to produce and create the great wealth of the United States, and that we are a part of all the greatness of America and the greatness of the American Government. We must know and have a right seriously to consider the character, the fitness, the ideals and ideas of each Presidential Candidate who offers himself for the high and powerful position of President of the United States. We are entitled to know his mind on issues and measures primarily affecting our complex economical, racial, and governmental problems. We know the mind of Mr. Hoover's Southern managers, Bascomb Slemp of Virginia and R. B. Creager of Texas.

MUST OPPOSE OPPRESSION

The Negro race, as you will agree, must never become hirelings of oppression or champions of unjust government or of governmental policies. Whoever is for political equality of all Citizens, regardless of color, the sacred rights of man, is a true American and we ought to defend him with our voice, pen and vote in the crisis that now confronts us. Nations have been saved by the grandeur of one man. Fate may have decreed Gov. Al Smith to be the man to save the American people from self destruction. Who knows? Washington and Lincoln were not accidents—they were born and directed by Providence to establish a free republic—the freest on earth, here in America.

PRESIDENT MUST BE A PATRIOT

Then, too ,above all things, a President of the United States should be a patriot. Gov. Al Smith of New York is a statesman and patriot. He is bigger than a party. Parties at best are only a means—the good of all the States, the happiness of all the people, the only end. Governor Smith, in principles, is as good a Citizen as there is in the United States. Speaking for myself, I shall wipe from the tablet of my memory the strokes and scars of two hundred years and blur with happy tears the wrongs recorded against our race and march to the polls on November 6 and cast my vote for Gov. Al Smith and Senator Joe Robinson, confident that if they are elected God will still rule the destiny of our Nation and the Government at Washington will still live.

DON'T WEAR BLOODY SHIRT

I wonder sometimes whether the United States is to be forever governed by men and parties full of hatred. full of color prejudices, full of malice and full of slander. This campaign on which you are entering is in some of its aspects the most remarkable political campaign of American history. It will be bitter, passionate, relentless, and desperate. You and I must not wave the bloody shirt or dig up acts of reconstruction days (just after the Civil War), and proclaim them to win a vote. Let ignorant demagogues send forth such appeal, but I beg of you to refuse to stoop so low.

bing of human beings be stopped? Who knows the mind of Mr. Hoover on this question? And is it impertinent to seek information with regards to his position and what governmental policies affecting our rights as citizens will be put in operation, if he is elected President?

OUR QUARREL

Our quarrel is with the Republican Party; not the Democratic Party. The Democratic Party as a political organization, owes the Negroes of the Southern States nothing; as a matter of fact, very little, if anything, to Negro voters in Northern, Eastern and Western States. We should do something to merit their political respect and confidence. You know for sixty-five (65) years, right or wrong, the Negroes South have voted solidly for the Republican Party and against the Democratic Party. This is true in nearly all of the States. I am firm in the conviction that if the Negro electors had served the Democratic Party as they have served the Republican Party during all these years, Southern white men and women—the Democratic Party—would not have deserted us and left us without a party, or the right to act in party councils. You know the Negroes have never demanded of the Republican Party political preferment commensurate with the service they have ren-

---

MEMPHIS
TENNESSEE

OCT 28 1928

HISTORY OF REPUBLICANS.

West, Miss.

To The Commercial Appeal:

This is the history of "blunders" made by the Republican party.

1. The founding of the United States Bank in the early years of the nation. It was so corrupt that it almost bankrupted the young republic. Andrew Jackson, a Democrat, abolished it.

2. The forcing of the nation into the Civil War by its (the Republican party's) attitude towards slavery. The Republicans wished to take the slaves away from their southern masters without paying them anything. Of course slavery was wrong, but it was also wrong to bankrupt the south.

3. The treatment of the south after the Civil War when "niggers" and white trash together misruled the flower of the nation's aristocracy and white women were raped and white men murdered by negroes at the instigation of their white masters.

4. The credit mobilier, a national scandal. Cabinet officers gave government land to railroad men in return for valuable considerations, mostly money and bonds. This happened in Grant's administration.

5. The "Big Stick" policy, a ruthless running over of little nations by the United States. This was continued in the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

6. The Teapot Dome scandal, in which cabinet officers sold valuable oil lands for next to nothing in return for bribes.

7. The humbling of the south by placing negro political bosses over it. This was done by every Republican administration since the Civil War.

8. Mr. Hoover's abolition of the segregation order in the Department of Commerce forcing, by so doing, whites and negroes to work side by side.

9. The evasion of the flood control and farm relief issues by the Republican party.

10. The criminal libels circulated against Governor Smith, at least not condemned by the Republican party.

Very truly yours,
R. ARTHUR ALEXANDER.

dered the party, but have been contented to vote the ticket in and out of season, taking a crumb here and yonder without complaint, and being satisfied to be paid off in a delegateship to a State or a National Convention. I do not know what you think about it, but I think gratitude is a virtue and ingratitude is the blackest of crimes.

GUILTY OF INGRATITUDE

The Republican Party leaders are charged with ingratitude because of the things here complained of. I am opposed to the way the Republican Party has been led, used and directed for the past eight years. I have a right to enter my protest, as I am a Republican. Both the Harding and Coolidge administrations smell to Heaven. The Republican National Committee under the leadership of Will Hays is alleged to have spent $1,500,000.00 more to elect Harding and Coolidge than he had raised in 1920. This shortage had to be met and paid off. It is said that a scheme was worked out prorating this huge sum of money among the States, and the quota of each State was underwritten by certain men. And it is alleged that the patronage of the States was handed over to these men by the appointing powers at Washingtno to reimburse themselves for the sum underwritten by them and given to Will Hays to wipe out the $1,500,000.00 debt of the National Republican Committee.

CHARGES OF POLITICAL CRIME

On these allegations, the administration has been as quiet as a grave. Charges of conspiracy, bribery, and all kinds of high crimes have been made against Cabinet Officers, United States Senators, Governors, United States Attorneys, Federal Judges, Prohibition Enforcement Officers, National Committeemen, Republican Party Leaders, and Private Citizens high in the councils of the Republican Party. The Republican National Administration apparently did not know that these charges were being made by the public until it was alleged that Ben Davis, National Republican Committeeman from Georgia, and Perry Howard, National Committeeman from Mississippi, had accepted a few dollars of Hoover's Campaign funds to round up Hoover delegates to Kansas City and had sold a few post offices or marshalships. The administration had been sound asleep and could not be awakened until these charges were made, and when it did finally awake it galloped down to Georgia and Mississippi and indicted seven or eight Mississippi Negroes—Perry Howard, its right-hand-man, Friday, included.

Poor old Perry Howard must be offered as a scapegoat, or a sacrifice, to appease an outraged public conscience and to atone for the crimes, graft and corruption of the leaders of the Republican Party. True Republican men and women who revere the history, tenets, and lofty records of the Republican Party from 1860 to 1886, must, as I see it, clean out the filthy stables of the party, and the only way this may be done is to defeat Hoover and elect Al Smith President next November.

WHAT THEY SAY

They tell us that if Hoover is defeated and Al Smith is elected President, the Pope of Rome and Tammany Hall will run the Nation and the Constitution of the United States will be nullified.

These questions are smoke screens. They are political propaganda and a hullucination of evil minded persons. If Smith is elected President, you know that neither the Pope nor Tammany Hall will run the Nation, nor will the Constitution be nullified any more than it has been nullified under Harding or Coolidge by indirection. The basis for such political slander is founded in religious and racial hatred. I am firm in the opinion that Mr. Hoover must be defeated in November.

MY REMEDY

Why? you may ask. My answer—in order to rid the Republican Party and the Nation of a Government run by bootleggers, Ku Kluxers, Lily Whites, Segregators, Perjurers, Grafters, Corruptionists, and Conspirators to nullify the Constitution by indirection. A man who holds himself out as a leader of 10 or more million black men and women in the United States and who is just now urging us to vote for Mr. Hoover should at least let us know where Mr. Hoover stands upon these vital public questions and measures, to wit:

WHAT WE WANT YOU TO TELL US

1.—Certain leaders of the Republican Party, I mean Slemp of Virginia and Creager of Texas, have formed a hard and fast coalition with the Ku Klux Klan. And the Ku Klux Klan violently, uncompromisingly opposes the political equality of Negro Citizens with other Citizens in Government. These men are Hoover's Southern Managers. Will you tell the Negro voters of the United States where Mr. Hoover stands on this question? As said before, we know the stand of Slemp and Creager, but would like to know the stand of Hoover. Does he agree with his Southern managers?

2.—The Republican Party of the Southern States has been put into the hands of lily white leaders, and lily whiteism in party politics eliminates and denies black men and women the right to participate in nominating primaries or the affairs of party counsel and direction. Where does your Mr. Hoover stand on this question? Will you tell the American Negro? We already know where his Southern managers stand.

3.—The Ku Klux Klan as an organization, and lily white, so-called, Republican Party workers demand that Negroes be not appointed to positions of public trust under the Government. Does any Negro in the United States know where Mr. Hoover stands upon the question of appointing Negroes to positions of public trust in the Government? If you know, will you tell us? We know where Slemp and Creager stand on this question but do not know where Mr. Hoover stands.

4.—Is Mr. Hoover in favor of the agreement that permits unskilled Mexican labor to come into the United States from Old Mexico, while at the same time it prohibits Negro labor of the United States from going into Mexico? Will he continue or void all such agreements if elected President? What Negro knows Mr. Hoover's mind upon this question? And don't you think Negroes should know before they vote to continue the Coolidge policies? We know where Slemp and Creager stand on this agreement, but where does Mr. Hoover stand?

5.—Segregation of Government employees is reprehensible, shocking to the righteous judgment of a great Nation and contrary to the policies of a just Government. The Departments at Washington, D. C., are honey-combed and dominated with the humiliating and degrading policy of separating Government employees during hours of labor, because of color. Will Mr. Hoover continue this policy or void it, if elected President? Do you know, and as our leader, don't you think you ought to know and tell us before you advise us to vote for Mr. Hoover? We know where Slemp and Creager stand on this question. Does Hoover agree with them?

6.—We recognize the fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission is a potent factor in our Government, clothed with power to control the common railroad carriers of our country. If elected President, will Mr. Hoover, through this powerful Governmental Agency, urge that all common carriers provide and render equal service, commensurate with the tariff charged to black men and women who must sometimes use these carriers? Will the Negro leaders who are abusing all of us who have the courage to stand up and ask questions, speak out and tell us what Mr. Hoover has told them he would do, and how he would approach these questions if elected President? We want to know.

7.—Peonage is a species of slavery outlawed by the Constitution and statute laws of the land, whether brought about because of debts, mutual obligations, or trumped up charges of crime. It cannot be defended in morals, equity or law. Will Mr. Hoover, if elected President, use the Department of Justice to stamp out peonage wherever it may now exist in the United States? Don't you think that as a leader you ought to inform us with respect to Mr. Hoover's stand on this question?

8.—Lynching is a crime for which no excuse or justification can be advanced. The laws of all the States provide ample punishment for all persons who possess moronic dispositions. Will Mr. Hoover, if elected President, sanction legislation to the end that the wicked practice of lynching, burning, and mob-

PARAMOUNT ISSUES

I know that the issue of farm relief and prohibition are featured and stressed in this campaign as the leading issues, but over and above these issues, like Mr. Washington towers over other mountains, is the issue of political equality, human rights and liberties, the protection before the law, of every American Citizen, black and white alike. Witty statements, like "the Republican Party is the ship; all else is the sea," ridicule, and reciting the records of the Republican Party from 1856 to 1876, will not dovetail with the record of the Republican Party from 1920 to 1928. Millions of your oppressed race will bless the day that you were appointed to lead them, if you shoulder the task of having Mr. Hoover define his stand upon these vital questions.

With high personal regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

JOURNAL

Selma Ala

OCT 27 1928

Says The Negro Means To Have The Ballot

"The Defender", a negro weekly newspaper, published at Chicago, which is credited with a circulation of 160,000, and is sent into practically every state in the Union, carries a rather vigorous indictment of the Republican Party in its issue of Oct. 18. "The Defender" does not "bolt" or "throw over" the G. O. P. but it expresses a good deal of indignation that during the past eight years the negroes have been "fed on promises", without a single morsel of substantial food from the Republican table. "The Defender" says the Party is now again making its usual salaams to the negro voter, hoping again to lure him into its political parlor.

"The Defender" in its broadside editorial that breathes a spirit of defiance says "The colored people of the United States want justice and they mean to get it. For fifty years we have been held back from the ballot and denied that simple justice that is rightfully ours". "The Defender" further says: "The Republican administration has expended during the past eight years $360,000,000 trying to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment and not one dollar has been spent in trying to enforce the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments. These amendments have been ignored and spat upon by every President since President Hayes removed the troops from the Southland."

"The Defender" closes its scathing arraignment with this warning: "The negro in this election ought to refuse any longer to be the pawn on the political chess-board and to demand his birthright—the privilege of casting his vate and having it counted in every state of the Union. Then and not till then will he receive the consideration that has so long been flouted and denied him."

Political-1928
Party Affiliation.

Republican.

TELEGRAPH

Starke, Fla.

OCT 26 1928

WILL YOU VOTE FOR MIXED PRIMARIES?

If the Republican party polls 30 per cent of the total vote cast in the election of November 6, the Republican party will be required, under state law, to hold a primary in June, 1930, for the nomination of its candidates for the offices to be voted upon in the general election of November, 1930.

This Republican primary, under the state law, must be held on the same date as the Democratic primary. Furthermore, it must be held at the same polling places and conducted by the same election officers. Democratic and Republican voters in this double primary will go to the same places to vote, line up before the same election inspectors and mark their respective ballots. There will be a Republican ballot for Republican voters and a Democratic ballot for Democratic voters—but the voters of both parties will be in the same line.

This means that white men and women will be in close contact at all polling places with negro men and women, who will go to the polls to participate in the primary of their party, the Republican party. The very situation which our Democratic primary and our white municipal primaries were designed to avoid—the contact of white and blacks at the polls—will reappear in Florida. The fact that women are now qualified to vote and that they exercise that right accentuates the unpleasantness of the prospect.

Those misguided Democrats who vote the Republican ticket on November 6 will add their votes to the Republican total and thus aid in giving the Republican party that 30 per cent vote which will necessitate a joint primary in 1930, and the mingling of whites and blacks at the polling places in that primary. Democrats, therefore, who vote for the Republican candidates November 6 will be voting to bring back the distasteful and obnoxious conditions which obtained in this state before the Democratic primary was instituted, and to restore the contact of whites and negoes from which we have been free for years.

Isn't this a matter worthy of serious consideration by white men and women of this state?

Will they vote to establish the "mixed" primary, where no color line can be drawn

Will they vote to have white women elbowed and jostled by negro men and women at our polling places?

That's one of the things a Republican vote on November 6 means in this state.—Tampa Tribune.

EAGLE

Dothan Ala

OCT 23 1928

THINK THIS OVER

When Hoover and his friends planned his campaign in the National Republican Convention in Kansas City they selected a negro named Hawkins as one of those to second Hoover's nomination, and this he did. Have you read this speech? If not do so before you cast your vote in November. In it Hawkins claimed that the Pilgrims who landed at Plymouth and the negroes who landed at Jamestown alone had developed the United States without the aid of the Southern white men and women and that now they should rule it. Further that the negroes now need another liberator like Lincoln to not only guarantee but protect them in the exercise of all the privileges guaranteed them by the Constitution and that they had found such a liberator in the man he so cheerfully seconded—Hoover.

The significance of this is not that a negro should hold these sentiments—but that the National Republican Convention should place upon them its stamp of approval.

And did Hoover repudiate these sentiments? Not at all. On the contrary he placed upon them his stamp of approval by promoting Hawkins to one of the chief chairmanships of committees in his campaign organization, this committee being composed of negro men and women from every state in the Union, including Alabama. In addressing the members of his committee Hawkins gave a remarkably clear definition of the Republican party as follows:

"The Republican party is our party, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the task of improving our civic and political status and condition."

The significance of this is that it is the official pronouncement of one of the accredited leaders of Hoover in his struggle to become president of the United States including Alabama.

Do not be misled. Our government has always, is now, and of necessity always will be, one of parties. You cannot separate the candidate from the party. You cannot vote against Smith without voting against white supremacy. You cannot vote for Hoover without endangering the solid south. And if you succeed in breaking the solid South, you will awaken to the fact that you have destroyed your party and will have none to which to return.

The Democratic party alone has thus far guaranteed to you the very security of your homes.

Will you remain loyal to the party of your fathers or will you desert to the party of Hawkins?

This is a real, substantial and pressing danger, beside which the imaginary fear of Roman Catholic domination pales into insignificance.

Mobile Ala. Post
Friday, October 26, 1928

THE AMIABLE CYNIC BLAMES DENNY FOR THE REMOVAL OF THE MEDICAL COLLEGE

So the Republicans, who began a back-firing on the real issue in the South by absurd slanders of the Democratic nominee, charging him with all sorts of concessions to the negro, now finding that they have failed in this and that the South is united in its absolute devotion to the preservation of Caucasian civilization, and firm resolutions not to take one step toward a return to the ruinous conditions which the Republicans instituted in unhappy reconstruction days, get up an alleged non-partisan protest of some forty-five persons, as the Atlanta dispatch informs us, against either side even mentioning this issue, threatening dire consequences from the future negro Republican votes of such "dragon's teeth" be sowed.

This brings us to the question, at whose door lies the blame? We ought to say the crime of attempting the enfranchisement of the inferior race, and the consequent disturbance of the cordial relations now really existing in the South between white and colored people, besides our continual understanding and respect which produces peace, contentment, and happiness on both sides. All know the answer; it lies at the door of the party of Thaddeus Stevens, Sumner and Stanton. No wonder they quail at the mere recalling to mind of this fact and seek by this paper, and similar ones, to terrify spokesmen for the democracy into the silence of abject fear. The Republican party alone created and maintains this issue.

From this unique document we deduce that when the South shall exhibit its adhesion to the Republican party and so become a negligible factor, the reconstruction conditions will be renewed throughout its borders. Read it and the threat is apparent.

* * * *

Why should Mobilians rend their garments and tear their hair for fear that Mr. Denny may cease to preside over the trustees and faculty of the State University?

To that gentleman is due the killing of the Mobile Medical College in large, if not complete measure.

This is well known to all the local physicians who were connected with that school, and to the trustees of it, who, under the solemn guaranty of the legislature which, requiring the transfer of it and its properties to the trustees of the university, declared, nevertheless, that it should remain "for all time" located in Mobile, and relying on that assurance, unconditionally so conveyed it.

Shortly thereafter the legislature by statute and in defiance of their previous plain pledge NOT to remove it from Mobile, enacted that if this, the state's medical school, lying under the state's control, failed to maintain a certain standard, then it was not to be brought to standard, but that it was to be removed from Mobile! Thus Denny, the malign enemy of that proud college founded by the internationally known Dr. Knott, who went to Europe for, and selected its unique anatomical museum, housed in a handsome college building (now a negro school) and provided in the great hospitals of the city, public and private, with wide clinical facilities, had his will wtth tt, doubtless hoping the while to carry it physically to HIS institution in Tuscaloosa.

Let the many physicians in Alabama, Florida, Mississippi graduated by it, be consulted and it is not likely that they would be found expressing gratitude to Mr. President Denny. I think Mr. Edward I. Buck, Mr. Gregory Smith, or Dr. Bondurant will fully and heartily corroborate what is above written. They were among those who went to Tuscaloosa to save the college.

And, by the way, to meet the needs and requests of the assailed college, and before it received its fatal wound the city built a splendid addition to its public hospital here at a cost of more than sixty thousand dollars—but to no avail, so far as retaining the school was concerned.

* * * *

Why is the hideous row of signs suffered to remain on the city's land at Arlington, and by whose usurped authority were they erected there, for we acquit our worthy and able Commissioner, Mr. Bates, though universally invested with control of parks and public grounds, of having had a hand in the travacation? Who was the "yes-man," and how much, if anything, did the city receive from the sign builder?

At all events these sign boards must come down—and quickly.

* * * *

The city having already over-run its borrowing limit, the two propositions now presented must be voted down at the coming election, now rapidly approaching. Let this not be forgotten, or this duty overlooked.

SEES RACE DRIFT TO GOV. SMITH IN WEST VIRGINIA

Republican Leaders Alarmed Over Prospects Of Negroes Going To Democrats

Charleston, W. C., Oct. 31—West Virginia Republicans have sensed a big drift in this State of Negroes to Smith, and are showing grave concern. The McDowell Times, Charleston's leading Negro newspaper, manifests great alarm lest voters of the race join with forces of tolerance in the support of Governor Smith. In big headlines the Times reports that "Al Smith boosters are telling the Republican Party to go to hell." This publication admonishes Negroes that they are "fools to desert the Grand Old Party after it has served colored voters so faithfully for so many years."

The chief reason for so much apprehension among Republicans is that two large meetings were held in Charleston and Huntington under the auspices of the Smith-for-President Colored League. They were the largest attended of any political meeting ever held in the two cities. The meeetings were addressed by W. H Moore, Armond W. Scott of Washington and Dr. C. F. Hopson, State chairman.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

MISSISSIPPI'S BALLOT TO SHOW ALL TICKETS

Howard and Sheldon Factions to Be Honored.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 28.—There will be three presidential electoral tickets on the official ballot in the November national election in Mississippi. This was settled today in an opinion given by Attorney General Knox to Walker Wood, secretary of state and secretary of the state board of election commissioners. General Knox holds that according to the record placed before him by Secretary Wood, adn the statutes governing the question, both the Perry Howard, or regular Republican electoral ticket, and the Geo. L. Sheldon ticket, known as the lily white faction, are entitled to places on the official bollot. No question was raised as to the Democrats.

The Howard faction or party, is the organization that has been known as the Republican party in this state for the past 50 years, and which has been under negro leadership and control with a few white Republicans filling in, though never having a dominant voice. The Sheldon party is the new Republican organization which has declared for white leadership, white supremacy and white men for public office, though it had two prominent negro leaders in its delegation to Kansas City.

Both Mean the Same.

Both of these parties nominated straight-out white electoral tickets and both are for Hoover for president, so that there is no difference when it comes to a question of choice, and the bolting Democrats may vote for one with the same conscience as the other.

In his opinion Knox reviews the "record" before him by Secretary Wood, on which he bases his opinion, and says:

"I have given this record, which is rather voluminous, considerable study, and an examination thereof reveals that, proceedings in accordance with Section 7496 of Hemingway's code of 1927, two sets of people purporting to be members of the Republican party in Mississippi, called precinct meetings, county and state convention; one of the sets headed by Perry W. Howard, and the other by George L. Sheldon. The faction or party headed by Perry W. Howard held their convention at Jackson on April 18, at which itme they certified that they had selected certain parties as presidential electors, and a certificate to this effect was filed in the secretary of state's office signed by Perry W. Howard, 'chairman Republican state convention of Mississippi,' and signed by E. E. Robertson, 'secretary.'

"On April 30, there was held in the city of Jackson, a convention of the party headed by George L. Sheldon, who filed a certificate which is in the record, to the effect that the Republican convention selected certain parties for presidential electors, whose names they furnish in the certificate, said certificate being signed by George L. Sheldon, 'permanent chairman,' Ernest McCall Hawkins, 'permanent secretary,' and there is appended threeto the following certificate:

"'I hereby certify that the above is a true copy of the minutes of the proceedings of the Mississippi Republican state convention of 1928, held in the city Auditorium at Jackson, Miss., April 30.' Which certificate is signed by Ernest McCall Hawkins, permanent secretary.

"From the foregoing yiu will see that there are in the record two certificates showing that two Republican conventions were held, and two lists of names were certified to you as Republican electors, one list by each separate organization purporting to be an organizatoin of the Republican party in Mississippi.

"Thus, from the record you will see that theer are two lists of electors which have been certified to you by people who have complied strictly with section 7496 of Hemingway's code of 1927 and having done so, I do not see any reason or any law for denying either of said lists the right to be placed on the ballot.

"Having no other statute which I think is applicable to guide me, and having no knowledge whatever as to the inner workings of the Republican party either in Mississippi or out of Mississippi, a mdriven to the conclusion that it is your duty as ballot commissioners to place upon the ballot to be voted for at the November election, the names of the electors certified by both of these conventions."

SPRINGFIELD, MO.
Sept 28, 1928

NEGRO VOTERS HERE OPEN HEADQUARTERS

Meeting at the Washington Avenue Baptist church last night, more than 150 members of the negro division of the Greene County Hoover and Curtis club voted to open headquarters in the Masonic building, 225 Boonville avenue.

Plans for extensive campaigning among the negroes of Greene county were mapped out at the meeting, and the club unanimously approved the state and national republican platforms. An address by James Brewer, veteran politician here, was another feature of the meeting. It was announced that the next meeting of the club would be in its new headquarters.

The club elected the following committeemen and committeewomen to lead the county campaign: L. N. Smith, T. E. Mitchell, J. R. Gillam, J. F. Trout, H. T. Pike, Fred Williams, Allen Coleman J. E. Herndon, Robert Kemp, N. C. Armstrong, Jewel Bagley, P. Wilson, Charles Long, Harrison Rector, Walter Sherron, Robert Trout, Reverend A. W. Darton, Henry Barker, Shelvin Barker, Theodore Hudson and John Duffy. They will be aided as ward workers by Messrs Frances Boxley, Beaute Skinner, Cordelia Hardric., Catherine Dean, Luella Trout, Minnie Rector, C. C. Wilson, Maggie Wilson, Mary Barker, Clara Barker, Ada Stephenson, Virginia Duffy, Jessie Skinner and Nancy Bell. Reverend S. R .Wilson, president, is enthusiastic regarding progress of the club.

G. O. P. LILY WHITE ELEMENT FLAYED BY NEGRO EDITOR

Ben Davis, Hold-Over Negro Republican National Committeeman, Raises Flag of Revolt.

Evidence of a serious split in the republican organization in Georgia is seen in front page editorials carried in the two most recent issues of "The Atlanta Independent," the weekly negro paper published by Ben J. Davis, hold over republican national committeeman from this state.

The first of these editorials, in the issue of September 20, has been reproduced by the state democratic campaign committee, John R. Slater, chairman, and several thousand copies have been sent to all sections of the state, incontrovertibly showing the situation within the state organization of the party into which Georgians are being tempted to come, under the misleading label of "Hoover democrats."

In the opening paragraph of this editorial, Davis attacks another negro publication, the Negro World, which is edited by Marcus Garvey, of New York, who has spent several years in the federal prison here. Replying to this The Independent says:

"The Negro World, edited by Marcus Garvey but published in New York, was out in a long, disjointed, illogical editorial last week, taking the Atlanta Independent to task for being 100 per cent republican and giving Editor Davis a scathing rebuke for his continued loyalty to the party in the teeth of the party's treachery to him."

9-29-28

After enlarging upon this, the editorial continues:

"We answer that the Independent is 100 per cent republican because it cannot be bought by the democrats' money or be bulldozed out of the party by lily-white bastard republicans and commercialized negro grafters, who would sell their wives and daughters into political slavery and economical ruin, for pelf and plunder."

Further, it says:

"We are republicans and offer no apology for our faith. The Independent has the same right to go along with the republican organization that the World has to trail the democratic party outside of the ranks, with the hope of receiving a few crumbs from the hands of Heflin, Blease and Pat Harrison. We are not going to get out of the ship into the sea. We are republicans and no man inside the party, black or white, can make us forsake its principles because of real or imaginary grievances. Let come what may, our houses and we are going to fight it out aboard the republican ship.

In closing this editorial, Davis declares:

"Editor Davis is not a political victim of the republican party, but of a combination of lily-whites and mercenary negroes who would sell heaven for a dollar, a mug of beer or bottle of bootleg whisky."

Then, in the issue of September 27, in an editorial headed "Republican Half-Breeds a Menace to the Hoover-Curtis Ticket," Davis goes on record in terms which cannot be mistaken as to his true opinion of the "lily-white" faction of the party which he leads in this state.

Constitution

He opens by saying:

"The greatest menace to republican success in November is the curse of lily-whitism" in the south. For forty years these ignoramuses have been arguing to the national republican leaders that if the party would eliminate the negro from the party councils they would break the solid south, but have never made anybody believe their story except the lamented President Harding, who said before he died that he had been deceived by these crooks and set about to repudiate them, and correct the error that they had led him into."

9-29-28

"Lily-Whites" Despised.

Continuing in the same vein, the editorial further reiterates:

"The negroes despise the lily-whites and the lily-whites hate them unqualifiedly.

Atlanta

"The lily-whites vote in the democratic party primaries and want to hold all of the offices under every republican administration and control the party machinery in the south. All the trouble in the south today is traceable to lily-white treachery, perfidy and ignorance.

"The first step of the half-breeds, after they come into control, instead of working to elect the ticket, is to drive the negro out of the party. They never think of electing the ticket, but of eliminating the negro. They'll tell any lie, commit perjury or stoop to any depths to play their game. any depths to play their game."

While we do not believe that Mr. Hoover is a party to, or has guilty knowledge of this diabolical scheme to disfranchise the negro; plotted by the lily-whites and executed by his agents, we have many reasons to conclude that the scheme is being encourged by men high up in his war councils.

"In Georgia the regular organization surrendered everything to a white committee which has turned out to be a dyed-in-the-wool lily-white out-fit, which is carrying more scurrilous matter about the negro than the democrats are carrying. Charles Adamson, king of the lily whites, is sending out a letter soliciting funds and assuring those who will give, as an inducement, that the party will never have another negro national committeeman. This animal is at the head of our electoral ticket and was placed there by 'nigger' votes. He is only a sample of the lily whites who are doing more to defeat the republican ticket than to elect it. But Mr. Adamson has never been anything more than an ignorant piece of self-conceit without influence outside of his factory. If we hear any more of him, the 'niggers' who put him on the ticket will take him off. Just such men as he are responsible for the northern negro's attitude towards Mr. Hoover.

"The one effort of the lily-white organization is to eliminate the negro, discredit the organization that created it with a view of controlling the 'pie counter' after the election.

"The head of this lily white organization expressed the view the other day that if white speakers took part in the meeting in Clinch county at which the secretary of the regular organization was to be the principal speaker, Mr. Hoover would lose white votes.

"Who believes that Mr. Hoover would stand for this abominable rot and at the same time appealing for negro votes throughout the country? No, Mr. Hoover is too big to have any part in this conspiracy to humiliate the race. Hoover loves humanity, not races any further than races make up humanity.'"

Charlotte N. C. Dispatch
Sunday, September 16, 1928

Woltz Believes Hoover Leading Negroes Astray

Charlotte—Local politicians look with concern on what they declare to be a rising tide of hope on the part of Southern negroes that Herbert Hoover, Republican candidate for president, would open the way for them to again become a strong factor in Southern politics.

Senator A. E. Woltz, of Gastonia gave expression to the idea.

"They tell us," he said, referring to the efforts to submerge the Southern political nightmare, the negro issue, "not to say anything about it. 'Don't raise the nigger issue' Democrats and Republicans, both say 'let it alone.'"

"But I say," the senator continued, "that while we all stand in dismay at the idea of restoring the negro issue as it existed some years ago, yet the same thing is creeping up on us unaware from another angle, and it must be considered.

"Whether Hoover will give the negroes what they are hoping is a question which is not so important just now as their belief that he will do so. The whites and the blacks of the South are now in a situation fairly satisfactory to both. The races are getting along amicably and that is better and more important than their political views.

"Hoover has said, and negro leaders especially in the North and Mid-West are making capital of it, that not only the eigtheenth amendment should be enforced but also other amendments. He was doubt-

STORMS NO RESPECTERS OF PERSONS

According to announcement made this week at the Republican party's headquarters here, William H. Lewis of Boston, Mass., will support Herbert Hoover for the presidency. Mr. Lewis reached this decision after a lengthy conference here with Mr. Hoover at the latter's headquarters, Friday, September 7. After talking matters over with Mr. Hoover, the former Amherst football star, talked further with Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the Republican national committee and Walter H. Brown who is one of the chief advisers of the Colored Voters' Division.

> Serene, I fold my hands and wait,
> Nor care for wind nor tide nor sea
> I rave no more 'gainst time or fate,
> For, lo! my own shall come to me.
>
> —John Burroughs.

Since William H. Lewis supported John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee in 1924, against his fellow Amherst student, Calvin Coolidge, his declaration of his support of Herbert Hoover occasions no small amount of comment.

The big question naturally is: What did Mr. Hoover tell Mr. Lewis that made him change his politics? We wonder if the reticent Californian amplified his declaration on "equal opportunity". If he did, how far did he say he would go in seeing that the Negro got an equal opportunity before the U.S. Civil Service Commission, or, before the Government department heads who recommend men for promotion?

How far did he say he would go in seeing that Negroes who take the examinations for admission to West Point and Annapolis get an equal opportunity? Does equal opportunity for all mean that Negro citizens will be permitted to cast their ballots regardless of the section in which they live?

Mr. Lewis being a man of culture, refinement and standing, would certainly weigh carefully the words of Mr. Hoover before he made a decision. We feel sure that no mere platitudes would sway this noted Bostonian nor would generalities receive much consideration from his legally trained mind.

We hope that it is true that Mr. Lewis, like Moses, has been carried to the mountain top and permitted to view the Promised Land. Mr. Lewis remains silent as to what he saw—whether it was a mirage or a real honest-to-goodness Promised Land flowing with big opportunities for the Negro.

Perhaps Mr. Lewis will at some time before the campaign ends, tell us what Mr. Hoover said.

WHAT DID MR. HOOVER SAY?

According to telegraphic and radio dispatches, hurricanes have left a path of death and destruction from the Virgin Islands to west Florida. In this area, hundreds of lives have been lost and millions of dollars worth of property damaged or destroyed? Several days ago Haiti was visited by one of these terrible tropical storms with resultant damage and loss of life.

In all the places visited by these hurricanes, hundreds and thousands of Negroes live. They have suffered along with the rest. In many places, especially in the Virgin Islands and Haiti, they were the greatest sufferers.

Appeals are now being made for relief funds, food, medicine and clothing. The American Red Cross and other relief agencies are acting as agents in receiving and dispensing these necessary items.

These appeals for help should find a response in the heart of every man and woman in this country. The hour of need is the time to give. Don't pass up these appeals without giving something, for disaster is no respecter of persons

ROSCOE PICKETT UNHORSED

As soon as Roscoe Pickett heard that Chairman Flanders had issued a call for a special meeting of the Republican State Central Committee, he sent out an S. O. S. call signed by himself and Ben Cofer notifying the members of the Committee not to attend the meeting, that he was chairman, and would issue a call for a meeting when necessary.

The members of the Committee poid no attention to his letter, for the reason, they considered him down and out. The Committee is composed of forty colored members, and thirty-one whites, a total of seventy-one. Every colored member was present in person, or by proxy, and twenty-three white members were present and represented, making a total of sixty-three present out of seventy-one. The members didn't pay much attention to Brother Roscoe's notice, who tries to act wise by imitating Coolidge's silence. Brother Pickett doesn't seem to know that it is hard to cover up ignorance with silence.

Let Roscoe call a meeting when he feels like it, and he'll see who will answer him. Our information is that Uncle Joe has adjourned politics, and is attending to his private business. And, four of the members who attended the Macon meeting were represented at Mr. Flanders' meeting here Saturday, November 17th.

Let's see whether Br'er Roscoe is a member of the Committee now or not. He was expelled under the following rule by the Executive Committee, and the full Committee met a few days later and ratified the action of the Executive Committee: "Article III, Section I, Powers of the Republican State Central Committee. The Republican State Central Committee shall have the power to make rules and regulations for the government and control of the party in the state and for the discipline of its members generally; to try and discipline its members for violation of any rule or regulation of the party; to remove from office or membership for cause, and to fill vacancies, and to declare office or membership vacant for failure to support party nominees or to carry out written instructions, or for breach of decorum in open meeting; to conduct the business of the party itself, or through sub-committees or designated individuals. It shall make up the temporary roll for state conventions, select and recommend temporary officers for state convention; to organize and call meetings for the purpose of organization in any county or congressional district where no bona fide organization exists; and to settle all disputes as to the integrity of organization, or disputes between individuals for office in the organizations.

The above is the party law in the state, and nobody will pay attention to any of the bolters. Pickett has never had anything except what the Negroes gave him, and when he proved recreant to the trust imposed in him, they unhorsed him.

MEMPHIS

TENNESSEE

OCT 23 1928

WOULD NOT BE CLASSED WITH BILBO.

561 N. Third St., Memphis.

To The Commercial Appeal:

Since Mr. Bilbo is so anxious to have Mr. Hoover answer if he thinks it would be "offensive to you (Mr. Hoover) or indecent, infamous or disgraceful for you to come in contact with or dance with a woman of the negro race—"

I would also ask Mr. Bilbo: If you did not think it would be offensive, indecent, infamous, or disgraceful.

Please, why did you think to tell the people of Memphis that Mr. Hoover danced with Mary Booz?

Were you trying to help Mr. Hoover?

According to the papers you did not use the word rumor.

Poor ole State of Miss.

As Mr. Sunday said. "Al Smith is without a party," so is Mississippi without a governor.

And in my deep sympathy I would suggest that if Mary Booz is really a good Methodist (regardless of color) that the good people of Miss. call a special session of the Legislature and appoint Mary Booz governor until they can do better.

Now, I am not a Republican by any means, but I would vote for Hoover now if for no other reason than to keep from being classed with the Bilbo bunk.

When the Democrats nominate a Democrat I'll vote for him.

Imagine New York State 600,000 Republican with a real Democrat governor. I can't.

J. W. EAGLIN.

MEMPHIS

TENNESSEE

OCT 23 1928

WOULD BE ASHAMED.

Memphis, Tenn.

To The Commercial Appeal:

You have published so much in the Voice of the People Column about the coming presidential election that I feel that I should voice my opinion. My territory extends as far south as Yazoo City, Miss., and in covering this territory I have heard all kinds of arguments about the qualifications and disqualifications of the presidential nominees. While I do not condemn any one for voting as his conscience dictates, I am at a loss to understand how any fair minded man who was born and reared in the south can feel justified in voting for a Republican for president. It seems to me that the past eight years of Republican rule featuring thievery and every conceivable form of corruption should be enough to turn any one against the Republican party.

Several radical newspapers have made much ado about some photographs of a negro commissioner of New York City dictating a letter to a white girl stenographer, claiming that this negro was appointed by Governor Smith, and asking the question, "Is this white supremacy?" It most assuredly is not, but that is in New York, where they have no race distinction. All we can do is disapprove of it. Some say that if Al Smith is elected the same thing will take place in the south. I do not agree with them. He is too smart a man to insult the southern people by appointing negroes to public offices in the south, for if he is elected he will know that the southern people elected him.

Quite a few people say they are going to vote for Hoover because Smith is a Catholic. I am frank to admit that I would be much better pleased with Smith if he were a Protestant, but he was the choice of the delegates we sent to the national convention, so I am going to support ihm. When a man who claims to be a Democrat votes against Smith because he is a Catholic, he is practicing the very thing for which he condemns the Catholics, intolerance. Besides being a traitor to the Democratic party he is a traitor to the principles for which our fathers fought and bled on the battlefields of the Civil War.

If I should vote for Hoover on Nov. 6 I would be ashamed to call myself a Democrat.

A. K. WILLIAMS.

Political-1928

Party Affiliation

HOOVER, BILBO AND COLORED WOMEN

Now comes Governor Theo. G. Bilbo of Mississippi, with a statement in the public press saying that Herbert Hoover, the Republican candidate for the presidency of the United States, did on one occasion, while on official duty in connection with the Flood Relief work, did stop at Mound Bayou and dance with a Negro woman—What if he did? There is no law, even in Mississippi against people dancing with each other.

To the best of our knowledge and belief this statement has not hurt Mr. Hoover so far as the public generally is concerned. If there are those who believe it, they no doubt, take position that it was his personal affair and thats that.

Of course, a charge of this sort brought a prompt denial from Mr. Hoover through his former secretary, but in doing so, we think the presidential candidate lost an opportunity to enlarge on the question raised by the Mississippi Governor. Instead of using so much space in denial, a few questions might have properly been asked Mr. Bilbo. He should have been asked: How many uncles, aunts, first cousins, cousins and children he has in Mississippi who have Negro mothers. Everybody knows that there are more mulattos in Mississippi than in any other state in the union. Therefore, such a question by Mr. Hoover would have been proper under the circumstances.

If this statement by Gov. Bilbo, creates an unhappy situation or serves to embarrass Mr. Hoover, he and his advisers are to blame. We have from the beginning warned the Hoover forces against flirting with the lilywhites of the South. We have regarded this so-called bid for electoral votes from the South by the G. O. P. as an unholy alliance, conceived and borned with the expressed purpose of eliminating the Negro as a political factor in the South. But luckily, such men as Theo. Bilbo will continue to raise so much hell and tell so many lies on the Republican party and the Negroes, that little progress will be made along the lily-white line for years to come.

So far as we can now see or even discern, judging from the signs of the times, it will take another Lincoln or a new party to bring about a change in the political geographic lines.

In some sort of a subtle way, the Chicago Defender, in a recent article by Louis Lautier, tried to show that Oscar DePriest would not be seated in Congress though legally elected a member of that body by the voters of the First Illinois District.

If the Defender had used such a large amount of space in an effort to elect DePriest, and let the seating take care of itself when that time comes, we think it would have rendered by far a more valuable service to the race.

According to a statement issued by George Akerson, former secretary of Mr. Hoover, the most indecent thing a white man could be charged with, is to say that he danced with a colored woman. At least that is what he said in his denial that Herbert Hoover danced with a colored woman while doing relief work in Mississippi.

Republican

THE NEGRO IN POLITICS

In the present political campaign, the Negro is experiencing more difficulty in finding himself than ever before in his political history. During the past four years, much grumblings have been heard coming from the leaders over the "disappointments" in the treatment the race has received at the hands of the G. O. P. which has been in power the past eight years. Attention has been called to the fact the present National administration has made radical changes in all the governmental departments, by replacing Democrats with good Republicans, yet there is one relic of the Wilson administration that the Republicans love and cherish, and that is racial segregation. This is something which could be abolished tomorrow if the powers that be would just say the word. The thinking Negro is beginning to ask: What does this mean?

Then comes the prominent part which the Ku Klux Klan is playing in the behalf of the Republican National ticket. The Klan is known to be an avowed enemy of the Negro. This unholy alliance with the K. K. K. shakes our confidence and clips our sails and leaves us still to wonder where our future haven shall be.

If we look to the Democratic party, we see the South, the solid South, our natural born enemy so far as civil or political rights are concerned, and while it is true that Governor Smith personally, and the very spirit of New York appeals to the Negroes, yet the possibility of Senator Joseph Robinson becoming President of the United States if he and Smith are victorious at the polls November 6th, leaves us as a race, still trying to find ourselves. As one has put it: "We are between the devil and the deep."

Say what you may, but the fight on the Catholics is regarded by the Negroes as akin to the fight against us—wholly unjustified. It looks to us like a chance for the Negroes to hook up with a strong ally in a common cause which will stand by us after the election is over regardless of who wins.

Of course, it is said that the Democrats don't want us—Well there are many signs on the horizon that the Republican party leaders don't want us, or they would treat us better.

If there is any deflection of Negro voters from the G. O. P. in large numbers, that party alone will be responsible.

HOOVER IN FULL ACCORD WITH PLAN OF LILY WHITES, SAYS SOUTHERN LEADER

HATTIESBURG, MISS—Herbert C. Hoover is entirely sympathetic with the South on the race question and in full accord with the policy to eliminate all Negroes from leadership, asserts T. J. Willis, one of the leading exponents of Lily-Whitesm.

In support of this claim, Willis says that at the Kansas City Convention former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin, gave him the following message from the Republican Presidential nominee:

"You tell Mr. Willis and others representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated, the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We are going to have a white Republican party in the South."

Here is Willis' version of what happened at Kansas City with Mr. Hoover in the background: "When Perry Howard and his delegates arrived in Kansas City they were lined up with Mr. Butler of Massachusetts and Hilles of New York, who were leaders in the party opposing the nomination of Mr. Hoover. Butler controlled the entire delegation from his State, while Hiles had half of New York's vote in his pocket; but Perry Howard and his gang had not been seated and we were up there to fight the recognition and prepared to cast our full strength for Hoover.

"Mr. Hoover stayed in his office at Washington, being personally represented in Kansas City by former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin. Learning of the fight between white and black factions of the party from Southern States, Hoover was appraised of the fact by a personal friend.

"Hoover is entirely in sympathy with the South on the race question since he has lived in California where the Orient has caused so much embarrassment. He understands the situation down here. He called Mr Lenroot in Kansas City and told him to bring utmost pressure to bear on the Credential Committee for the recognition and seating of the white delegates from the Southern States.

"But Lenroot, his personal manager at the convention, advised against the fight, saying that the nomination was already assured in spite of the Butler-Hilles opposition, and if the race issue were forced at that time it would result in unnecessary embarrassments.

"This was Hoover's answer: 'In that case you tell Mr. Willis and others representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We are going to have a white Republican party in the South.

"And that is exactly what happened. Here in Mississippi Perry Howard and his gang are the same as out. He and his leaders have been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury and the white faction's Presidential electors are to be on the ballot. That means that after Nov. 6 the Negro faction here will be repudiated by the Republicans themselves in this state. It will mean that party affairs will have passed into the hands of reputable white men.

"When Mrs. Willebrandt heard from the lips of Lamont Rowland and and other Southern men * * * * that the situation described actually existed, she said she would immediately begin prosecution of Howard. I could not tell that when I came back from the Convention, for it was a Department of Justice secret that, if recounted, would have made me liable to the charge of contempt of court.

"All this background is given to prove that the Republican party today has changed its attitude. It believes that there are a large number of citizens in the South who would vote the Republican ticket if the party in their section is controlled by white men. and the party now intends to give them that privilege.

"Regeneration of the Republican party South of the Mason-Dixon line is one of the most significant phases of the current Republican election, according to Willis.

To the Editor of The Call:

Dean Kelly Miller and Editor Robert L. Vann, are two big Hoover boosters. We admire the zeal of both of these gentlemen, but can have no respect for their judgment. Dr. Miller thinks that his articles are so deep, learned and subtle, and that the Negro voters are so ignorant or dense that they are unable to comprehend the issues involved in the pending presidential campaign. He points out 1,000 good and sufficient reasons why Negroes should vote against the leadership of Mr. Hoover but he states that because of prohibition, all Negroes should overlook a thousand good and sufficient reasons against Hoover and for only one reason vote for Mr. Hoover.

But old man Kelly Miller is blessed with a wonderful mind. He has been sending out weekly well written. lengthy articles criticizing present day leadership of the republican party. The critiques which he sets down against the leadership of the republican party are severe, caustic, truthful and timely. His letters turn every man and woman capable of being politically insulted, dead against those leading the republican party, except himself. He convicts present day republican leadership, and proves without a question that these so-called republican leaders are headed in the wrong direction. But not for the life of us, can we divine why Dean Kelly Miller finds time to write these long, sharp, biting and truthful criticisms against present day leadership of the republican party, but winds each article up with assuring present day leadership of the republican party, which includes Mr. Hoover, that, "15,000,000 Negroes are going to brush aside all of the severe and wicked indictments, that he makes and vote to encourage and continue the leadership of which Kelly Miller himself so bitterly complains of."

Who gives Mr. Miller authority to so speak for the 15,000,000 Negroes of the United States? Kelly Miller deceives no body but himself. If he stands between Scylla and Charby dis, there are a few of the 15,000,000 of whom he assumes to speak for, find themselves in no such dilemma. We have sense enough to know that what he so learnedly points out against present day leadership of the republican party is true—and constitutes the blackest crime of ingratitude and party corruption ever recorded in the history of the republic.

Over against all of the physical and political crime, ingratitude, mal-administration of government, Ku Kluxism, Lily Whitism, graft, high taxes, trading and bartering the natural resources of the republican to powerful private monopolies, bribery and corruption of the present day leaders of the republican party; Kelly Miller stands for prohibition; (which is a part of the organic laws of the land and for which we cast our first vote and have advocated from 1887 to 1928) and urges his fellow countrymen to continue the leadership of the republican party responsibile for all the wickedness pointed out by him because this leadership pretends to be a noble experiment.

Mr. Robert L. Vann, owner, publisher and editor of The Pittsburgh Courier, thinks that all Negroes will barter their suffrage for gold without a thought or intention of delivering any service for that money. He says, "A great deal has been said about the pronounced defection of the colored voters. This is due to the fact that a great deal of money has been spent by the democratic party and they certainly are entitled to get a great deal of talk in return for a great deal of money. The huge joke of this campaign is the credulity of Mr. Raskob who has been led to believe that every Negro who accepts democratic money is going to vote for and work for Al Smith. Mr. Raskob will find out on the morning of November 6, that the Negro has been in politics a little bit longer than he has, and while he may know a great deal more about how to take the money in political campaigns, "without any thought or intention of delivering any service for that money."

This is a shameful, unwarranted and a slanderous indictment. It reflects upon the honesty, integrity, character and sincerity of every Negro man and woman in the United States including Editor Vann himself. He should out of self respect withdraw this foul and libelous reflection on his race. The Negro's worse and most uncompromising enemy could say no more aaginst the race.

We wonder if Editor Vann is talking from personal experience when he says, "Mr. Raskob will find out that Negroes know a great deal more about how to take the money in political campaigns without any thought or intention of delivering any service for that money." Did Editor Vann ever take money in political campaigns without any thought or intention of delivering any service for that money, and if he did, does it follow that all Negroes are to be judged by his actions? Editor Vann forgets tha all legislation which has for its ends the disfranchisement of Negro men and women is based on the presumption that Negroes are villainous, can be corrupted and accepts money in political campaigns without any thought or intention of delivering any service for that money.

Negro newspapers throughout the United States are all today branded by the enemies of the race as organs of vice, deception, hypocrisy, agitation, slander and even criminal libel and the enemies of the Negro race are now backed by the untruthful assertions of Editor Vann, made in a desperate attempt to ridicule the purposes and intentions of 75 per cent of the free and independent voters of his race who will vote for Gov. Al Smith, and who seek no official recognition and desire only that their children and themselves be allowed to labor and enjoy the fruits of that labor as all others are allowed under the stars and stripes.

Some day the Negroes of America will refuse to support and maintain men who for prestige or gain, slander and misrepresent the whole race. We have no brief and have not been called upon to defend Negro democrats, but we venture the assertion that 75 per cent of the intelligent, decent Negro citizens of the United States, whether republicans or democrats, capable of ebing insulted and who are disgusted with the record of present day so-called republican leaders, will march to the polls on November 6, and vote for Gov. Al Smith.

W. H. McDONALD,
Ft. Worth, Texas.

MUD SLINGING

—o—

The Negro is too much an argument in this campaign for his own good. Back in Civil War days, we were an issue, a legitimate one then. But now we are only a bogey man to frighten whites. Both parties use us, neither with good intent. The poor Negro, never an equal sharer in American prosperity, is proving the biblical truth, that from him that hath not shall be taken even that which he hath. Heflin shakes us before his party, and Moses does a similar turn for the republicans. Both parties would have our votes, but both take care to be lily-white.

Negro supporters of both candidates struggle against the pricks, but there is none of the old time fervor, because this year of 1928 is one national campaign which is labeled "a white man's election."

Negroes used to make a great ado, telling of the jobs we hold under this or that official or party. But the truth is Grover Cleveland, a democrat forty years ago, made more outstanding appointments of Negroes than any republican of recent years. The truth is we are fading from public life by appointment.

Now what shall Negroes do, facing the facts as they are? Shall we too descend to the level of the governor of Mississippi who thinks he attains political triumph when he asks Herbert Hoover "Did you dance with a Negro woman, and if you did not, would you dance with a Negro woman?" Or shall we answer from our standpoint the silliness of Moses who thanks Providence that no Negroes dictate letters to white stenographers in Washington?

We prefer to deal with politics as a means to better government, not as a mud slinging contest. We even feel superior to the politicians who get off the issue and go to making faces. The race between Hoover and Smith, even if the outcome is to benefit only whites in a large way, has its effect on Negroes. Because we too live here, we must make a choice. Whatever the neighbors say, Hoover or Smith is our president too.

We strongly urge our voters to keep cool under these trying circumstances. Let others rave, we must throw keep sane. Let white people throw mud, even at us. We can be sensible even in politics.

"All this background is given to prove that the Republican party today has changed its attitude. It believes that there are a large number of citizens in the South who would vote the Republican ticket if the party in their section is controlled by white men. and the party now intends to give them that privilege.

"Regeneration of the Republican party South of the Mason-Dixon line is one of the most significant phases of the current Republican election, according to Willis.

To the Editor of The Call:

Dean Kelly Miller and Editor Robert L. Vann, are two big Hoover boosters. We admire the zeal of both of these gentlemen, but can have no respect for their judgment. Dr. Miller thinks that his articles are so deep, learned and subtle, and that the Negro voters are so ignorant or dense that they are unable to comprehend the issues involved in the pending presidential campaign. He points out 1,000 good and sufficient reasons why Negroes should vote against the leadership of Mr. Hoover, but he states that because of prohibition, all Negroes should overlook a thousand good and sufficient reasons against Hoover and for only one reason, vote for Mr. Hoover.

But old man Kelly Miller is blessed with a wonderful mind. He has been sending out weekly well written. lengthy articles criticizing present day leadership of the republican party. The critiques which he sets down against the leadership of the republican party are severe, caustic, truthful and timely. His letters turn every man and woman capable of being politically insulted, dead against those leading the republican party, except himself. He convicts present day republican leadership, and proves without a question that these so-called republican leaders are headed in the wrong direction. But not for the life of us, can we divine why Dean Kelly Miller finds time to write these long, sharp, biting and truthful criticisms against present day leadership of the republican party, but winds each article up with assuring present day leadership of the republican party, which includes Mr. Hoover, that, "15,000,000 Negroes are going to brush aside all of the severe and wicked indictments, that he makes and vote to encourage and continue the leadership of which Kelly Miller himself so bitterly complains of."

Who gives Mr. Miller authority to so speak for the 15,000,000 Negroes of the United States? Kelly Miller deceives no body but himself. If he stands between Scylla and Charby dis, there are a few of the 15,000,000 of whom he assumes to speak for, find themselves in no such dilemma. We have sense enough to know that what he so learnedly points out against present day leadership of the republican party is true—and constitutes the blackest crime of ingratitude and party corruption ever recorded in the history of the republic.

Over against all of the physical and political crime, ingratitude, mal-administration of government, Ku Kluxism, Lily Whitism, graft, high taxes, trading and bartering the natural resources of the republican to powerful private monopolies, bribery and corruption of the present day leaders of the republican party; Kelly Miller stands for prohibition; (which is a part of the organic laws of the land and for which we cast our first vote and have advocated from 1887 to 1928) and urges his fellow countrymen to continue the leadership of the republican party responsibile for all the wickedness pointed out by him because this leadership pretends to be a noble experiment.

Mr. Robert L. Vann, owner, publisher and editor of The Pittsburgh Courier, thinks that all Negroes will barter their suffrage for gold without a thought or intention of delivering any service for that money. He says, "A great deal has been said about the pronounced defection of the colored voters. This is due to the fact that a great deal of money has been spent by the democratic party and they certainly are entitled to get a great deal of talk in return for a great deal of money. The huge joke of this campaign is the credulity of Mr. Raskob who has been led to believe that every Negro who accepts democratic money is going to vote for and work for Al Smith. Mr. Raskob will find out on the morning of November 6, that the Negro has been in politics a little bit longer than he has, and while he may know a great deal more about how to take the money in political campaigns, "without any thought or intention of delivering any service for that money."

This is a shameful, unwarranted and a slanderous indictment. It reflects upon the honesty, integrity, character and sincerity of every Negro man and woman in the United States including Editor Vann himself. He should out of self respect withdraw this foul and libelous reflection on his race. The Negro's worse and most uncompromising enemy could say no more aaginst the race.

We wonder if Editor Vann is talking from personal experience when he says, "Mr. Raskob will find out that Negroes know a great deal more about how to take the money in political campaigns without any thought or intention of delivering any service for that money." Did Editor Vann ever take money in political campaigns without any thought or intention of delivering any service for that money, and if he did, does it follow that all Negroes are to be judged by his actions? Editor Vann forgets tha all legislation which has for its ends the disfranchisement of Negro men and women is based on the presumption that Negroes are villainous, can be corrupted and accepts money in political campaigns without any thought or intention of delivering any service for that money.

Negro newspapers throughout the United States are all today branded by the enemies of the race as organs of vice, deception, hypocrisy, agitation. slander and even criminal libel and the enemies of the Negro race are now backed by the untruthful assertions of Editor Vann, made in a desperate attempt to ridicule the purposes and intentions of 75 per cent of the free and independent voters of his race who will vote for Gov. Al Smith, and who seek no official recognition and desire only that their children and themselves be allowed to labor and enjoy the fruits of that labor as all others are allowed under the stars and stripes.

Some day the Negroes of America will refuse to support and maintain men who for prestige or gain, slander and misrepresent the whole race. We have no brief and have not been called upon to defend Negro democrats, but we venture the assertion that 75 per cent of the intelligent, decent Negro citizens of the United States, whether republicans or democrats, capable of ebing insulted and who are disgusted with the record of present day so-called republican leaders, will march to the polls on November 6, and vote for Gov. Al Smith.

W. H. McDONALD,
Ft. Worth, Texas.

MUD SLINGING

—o—

The Negro is too much an argument in this campaign for his own good. Back in Civil War days, we were an issue, a legitimate one then. But now we are only a bogey man to frighten whites. Both parties use us, neither with good intent. The poor Negro, never an equal sharer in American prosperity, is proving the biblical truth, that from him that hath not shall be taken even that which he hath. Heflin shakes us before his party, and Moses does a similar turn for the republicans. Both parties would have our votes, but both take care to be lily-white.

Negro supporters of both candidates struggle against the pricks, but there is none of the old time fervor, because this year of 1928 is one national campaign which is labeled "a white man's election."

Negroes used to make a great ado, telling of the jobs we hold under this or that official or party. But the truth is Grover Cleveland, a democrat forty years ago, made more outstanding appointments of Negroes than any republican of recent years. The truth is we are fading from public life by appointment.

Now what shall Negroes do, facing the facts as they are? Shall we too descend to the level of the governor of Mississippi who thinks he attains political triumph when he asks Herbert Hoover "Did you dance with a Negro woman, and if you did not, would you dance with a Negro woman?" Or shall we answer from our standpoint the silliness of Moses who thanks Providence that no Negroes dictate letters to white stenographers in Washington?

We prefer to deal with politics as a means to better government, not as a mud slinging contest. We even feel superior to the politicians who get off the issue and go to making faces. The race between Hoover and Smith, even if the outcome is to benefit only whites in a large way, has its effect on Negroes. Because we too live here, we must make a choice. Whatever the neighbors say, Hoover or Smith is our president too.

We strongly urge our voters to keep cool under these trying circumstances. Let others rave, we must keep sane. Let white people throw mud, even at us. We can be sensible even in politics.

Political—1928

Republican

Party Affiliation.

Georgia's Shame at the Kansas City Convention

The people of Georgia, as well as the Republicans, are entitled to know what happened at the Kansas City Convention, and who was responsible for the disgraceful scenes which happened on the floor of the Convention.

We had the most harmonious State and District conventions in the state for the election of delegates to Kansas City in the history of the Party. There was trouble in only two districts, the First and the Seventh. In every other district matters were harmonious, and there was no division among the Republicans. The State Convention was noted for its harmony, peace and tranquility, and in every district as well as the state, the Hoover sentiment dominated, and was only questioned by the possibility of the President being drafted. The President being out of the question, the state was unanimous for Mr. Hoover, and no delegate could have been elected who opposed him.

As to the question of National Committeeman, the State was unanimous. No name was mentioned except that of B. J. Davis, to succeed himself. At the State Convention, he was unanimously nominated and elected, and the delegates and alternates were unanimously instructed to vote for him, having been nominated by Joe Watson, of Albany, the man who later announced against him. The Convention, on both the motions of the Committee on Resolutions and Professor E. S. Richardson, of the Third District, instructed its delegates to support him for National Committeeman. Eleven districts, out of the twelve, either instructed for him, or endorsed him for re-election, yet, at Kansas City, Roscoe Pickett, Chairman of the Delegation, refused to present his name before the Convention, and nominated Joe Watson and Mamie Williams, who were rejected by the State Convention unanimously, except two votes. The Rules of the National Committee provide that delegates instructed for national committeemen shall obey their instructions, and if they do not obey them, that the Convention may vote that they shall not violate their instructions, and count their votes for the party for whom they were instructed. Among men, instructions are generally sacred, and held inviolate, but in this case a goodly number of the Georgia delegation disregarded their instructions and presented a humiliating and sickening atmosphere around the Convention. And, among those who utterly disregarded their instructions, and who savagely attacked the nominee of the Republicans of Georgia, by propagating falsehoods and misrepresentations, were: J. H. Watson and T. N. Hendricks, from the state-at-large; B. F. Cofer, Dr. R. C. Williams, Dr E J. Turner, L. H. Crawford, Roscoe Pickett, B. W. S. Daniels and Sol Clemons. Those who stood by their instructions and sought to maintain the peace and harmony of the Convention were: Professor William James, Captain A. T. Walden, Professor E. S. Richardson, F. P. Rogers, Jr., C. W. Hager, J. J. Wright, G. W. Drake, R. P. Hufstetler, George W. Bentley, Dr. W. H. Harris, Professor H. A. Hunt, George F. Flanders and B. J. Davis. E. W. Brinkins was on both sides, and nobody could tell with which side he would ally himself, as he had made affidavits that he would vote for both Davis and Watson.

Roscoe Pickett was elected chairman of the delegation by virtue of the fact that he was chairman of the State Central Committee. He, too violated the instructions of the State Convention, for the reason he presided over the convention that elected, and instructed the delegates to vote for B. J. Davis for National Committeeman. The delegates had one meeting, which he arbitrarily adjourned, refusing to permit the delegates to pass upon the National Committeeman and the National Committeewoman, and came in the Convention, without ever having submitted the question, and nominated Joe Watson for National Committeeman, and Mrs. George S. Williams for National Committeewoman, contrary to, and in violation of, the instructions of the State Convention, the Convention having nominated and instructed for B. J. Davis and Mrs. Sarah Watson King. The first break out of the box that Pickett made in the Convention, as chairman, was to get up and announce ten votes for the report of the Committee on Credentials for the Hoover people, and six votes for the Lowden people. This vote was challenged by several members of the delegation, and the roll was called, which revealed that the chairman had tried to rob Hoover of four votes, or that the double dealers had lied to him. When the roll was called, it showed fourteen votes for Hoover and two for Lowden.

Clark Grier and Hendricks were in charge of Watson's campaign; while Messrs. Rose, Flanders and Dr. W. H. Harris had charge of the Party's interest, in doing whatever they could to maintain party integrity and regularity. If there ever was a deliberate attempt to wreck the party, and to disorganize it, it was the effort of the Grier-Watson-Hendricks combination. It was openly boasted about the corridors of the hotels that they were going to reorganize the party when they returned to Georgia; that Ben Davis had too much power and authority, and that they were going to put him out; that he had more power and authority than a white man ought to be permitted to have, and that white men like Hager, Rose and Flanders, or who held federal positions, who sided with Davis, would have to walk the plank under the new leadership—Grier-Watson-Hendricks.

The Independent warned the Republicans of Georgia before the Convention, that it was not a fight on Davis, but a fight on the party organization, on party regularity and integrity. The grafters have not been able to disgrace the state as they desired, and they knew they could not do it so long as the present persons were in charge. Hence, in order to get back to old methods of handling patronage and conducting party affairs, it was necessary to destroy the organization as it presently existed, and the State Chairman joined those who were plotting and planning to overthrow his organization, because he was not able to control the patronage of the state under the rules, and draw a big salary as did his immediate predecessor. He double-crossed his friends, and openly said that he would not vote for Hoover, if he had to meet his own expenses.

Mr. Pickett states that it cost him $2,600.00 to be elected from the Ninth Congressional District to the Kansas City Convention, which is a scathing reflection upon the integrity and intelligence of the white people in the Ninth District, as the district is 99 per cent white. Mr. Pickett ought to explain to the Congressional Committee how he spent this $2,600.00, whether he spent it in buying up delegates, or how.

This statement is made that the public may be publicans of Georgia are greater than the delegates they elected and sent to Kansas City, who fully advised of just what happened at Kansas City, and who is responsible for the ugly scenes violated their instructions. on the floor of the Convention. The question resolves itself into this situation, whether the Re-

Political—1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican

Georgia's Shame at the Kansas City Convention

The people of Georgia, as well as the Republicans, are entitled to know what happened at the Kansas City Convention, and who was responsible for the disgraceful scenes which happened on the floor of the Convention.

We had the most harmonious State and District conventions in the state for the election of delegates to Kansas City in the history of the Party. There was trouble in only two districts, the First and the Seventh. In every other district matters were harmonious, and there was no division among the Republicans. The State Convention was noted for its harmony, peace and tranquility, and in every district, as well as the state, the Hoover sentiment dominated, and was only questioned by the possibility of the President being drafted. The President being out of the question, the state was unanimous for Mr. Hoover, and no delegate could have been elected who opposed him.

As to the question of National Committeeman, the State was unanimous. No name was mentioned except that of B. J. Davis, to succeed himself. At the State Convention, he was unanimously nominated and elected, and the delegates and alternates were unanimously instructed to vote for him, having been nominated by Joe Watson, of Albany, the man who later announced against him. The Convention, on both the motions of the Committee on Resolutions and Professor E. S. Richardson, of the Third District, instructed its delegates to support him for National Committeeman. Eleven districts, out of the twelve, either instructed for him, or endorsed him for re-election, yet, at Kansas City, Roscoe Pickett, Chairman of the Delegation, refused to present his name before the Convention, and nominated Joe Watson and Mamie Williams, who were rejected by the State Convention unanimously, except two votes. The Rules of the National Committee provide that delegates instructed for national committeemen shall obey their instructions, and if they do not obey them, that the Convention may vote that they shall not violate their instructions, and count their votes for the party for whom they were instructed. Among men, instructions are generally sacred, and held inviolate, but in this case a goodly number of the Georgia delegation disregarded their instructions and presented a humiliating and sickening atmosphere around the Convention. And, among those who utterly disregarded their instructions, and who savagely attacked the nominee of the Republicans of Georgia, by propagating falsehoods and misrepresentations, were: J. H. Watson and T. N. Hendricks, from the state-at-large; B. F. Cofer, Dr. R. C. Williams, Dr E J. Turner, L. H. Crawford, Roscoe Pickett, B. W. S. Daniels and Sol Clemons. Those who stood by their instructions and sought to maintain the peace and harmony of the Convention were: Professor William James, Captain A. T. Walden, Professor E. S. Richardson, F. P. Rogers, Jr., C. W. Hager, J. J. Wright, G. W. Drake, R. P. Hufstetler, George W. Bentley, Dr. W. H. Harris, Professor H. A. Hunt, George F. Flanders and B. J. Davis. E. W. Brinkins was on both sides, and nobody could tell with which side he would ally himself, as he had made affidavits that he would vote for both Davis and Watson.

Roscoe Pickett was elected chairman of the delegation by virtue of the fact that he was chairman of the State Central Committee. He, too violated the instructions of the State Convention, for the reason he presided over the convention that elected, and instructed the delegates to vote for B. J. Davis for National Committeeman. The delegates had one meeting, which he arbitrarily adjourned, refusing to permit the delegates to pass upon the National Committeeman and the National Committeewoman, and came in the Convention, without ever having submitted the question, and nominated Joe Watson for National Committeeman, and Mrs. George S. Williams for National Committeewoman, contrary to, and in violation of, the instructions of the State Convention, the Convention having nominated and instructed for B. J. Davis and Mrs. Sarah Watson King. The first break out of the box that Pickett made in the Convention, as chairman, was to get up and announce ten votes for the report of the Committee on Credentials for the Hoover people, and six votes for the Lowden people. This vote was challenged by several members of the delegation, and the roll was called, which revealed that the chairman had tried to rob Hoover of four votes, or that the double dealers had lied to him. When the roll was called, it showed fourteen votes for Hoover and two for Lowden.

Clark Grier and Hendricks were in charge of Watson's campaign; while Messrs. Rose, Flanders and Dr. W. H. Harris had charge of the Party's interest, in doing whatever they could to maintain party integrity and regularity. If there ever was a deliberate attempt to wreck the party, and to disorganize it, it was the effort of the Grier-Watson-Hendricks combination. It was openly boasted about the corridors of the hotels that they were going to reorganize the party when they returned to Georgia; that Ben Davis had too much power and authority, and that they were going to put him out; that he had more power and authority than a white man ought to be permitted to have, and that white men like Hager, Rose and Flanders, or who held federal positions, who sided with Davis, would have to walk the plank under the new leadership—Grier-Watson-Hendricks.

The Independent warned the Republicans of Georgia before the Convention, that it was not a fight on Davis, but a fight on the party organization, on party regularity and integrity. The grafters have not been able to disgrace the state as they desired, and they knew they could not do it so long as the present persons were in charge. Hence, in order to get back to old methods of handling patronage and conducting party affairs, it was necessary to destroy the organization as it presently existed, and the State Chairman joined those who were plotting and planning to overthrow his organization, because he was not able to control the patronage of the state under the rules, and draw a big salary as did his immediate predecessor. He double-crossed his friends, and openly said that he would not vote for Hoover, if he had to meet his own expenses.

Mr. Pickett states that it cost him $2,600.00 to be elected from the Ninth Congressional District to the Kansas City Convention, which is a scathing reflection upon the integrity and intelligence of the white people in the Ninth District, as the district is 99 per cent white. Mr. Pickett ought to explain to the Congressional Committee how he spent this $2,600.00, whether he spent it in buying up delegates, or how.

This statement is made that the public may be fully advised of just what happened at Kansas City, and who is responsible for the ugly scenes on the floor of the Convention. The question resolves itself into this situation, whether the Republicans of Georgia are greater than the delegates they elected and sent to Kansas City, who violated their instructions.

AN INNOCUOUS PLATFORM.

The platform adopted by the Republicans at Kansas City consisted of the usual platitudes calculataed to placate contending factions and exalt party achievements in the eyes of its followers. The record of the Coolidge administration was indorsed without qualification and the record of the party declared to be a record of advancement of the nation.

Considerable space was devoted to the vital agricultural problem and the general depression in that industry, with a recital of the measures undertaken to relieve the farmers' burden. Assistance was promised in the reorganization of the marketing system on sounder and more economical lines by the creation of a Federal farm board, without, however, putting the government into business.

Prohibition was indorsed by quoting George Washington and Abraham Lincoln on the sacredness of the Constitution, and pledging the party and its nominees to the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment. No such specific pledge was made to enforce the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments, or any other provision of the bill of rights, so nullification of the franchise was condoned by implication, as has been the case before.

Under the head of "The Negro," appeared a perfunctory paragraph reading: "Review our recommendation that the Congress enact at the earliest possible date a Federal anti-lynching law, so that the full influence of the Federal government may be wielded to exterminate this hideous crime." This recommendation would have been stronger if it had recognized the fact that lynching is not only a crime against the Negro, who is mostly its victim, but against the State or country that tolerates it. As former Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court once defined it, Lynching is murder. A community that tolerates lynching is breeding potential murderers. The failure of the State to punish the crime of murder marks the beginning of anarchy. The evil does not end with the Negro.

The platitudes embodied in the platform do not mean anything at all, but an effort to convince the voters that the nominees will help the farmers, continue the abortive efforts to enforce prohibition and maybe introduce another anti-lynching bill for the Congress to kill in committee.

Negro Participation In The Republican Party

LILY-WHITES COME INTO POWER IN SOUTH; ESSAY TO EXCLUDE NEGRO

Councils On The Wane, Signs Of Time Show

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22.—(By The Associated Negro Press) The battle which the lily whites are waging in many southern states to eliminate Negro influence in the councils of the Republican party stands out in clear relief here. With mounting money and office seeking integrity which frequently fails on the white northern cars sympathetically these renegades are crying aloud that with the Negro eliminated a white party can be built up in the south.

Several circumstances have suggested that the march of the pale faces has gained some momentum. In the contests Negroes have both won and lost. Texas, where Negroes have had but little opportunity to participate effectively in Republican politics since the days of Wright Cuney, two generations ago, has an entire white delegation. Bill McDonald of Fort Worth and Congressman Wurzbach, the only republican congressman from Texas, having met defeat with their "black and tan," group in which several colored men were included. The white group had declared for Hoover. The McDonald faction was uninstructed. The Hoover controlled committee mowed them down. The racial angle did not enter this contest. It was a matter of being for Hoover and getting seated and being against him and losing. Creager, Texas Committeeman, is an arch enemy of black voters, however, and his victory only serves to put off still farther the time when Negroes may gain a place in Texas politics.

Florida presented a similar situation. There lily whites captured the state organiaztion, ousting national Committeeman Bean by what has been termed a trick. Bean who had two colored men on his list, one Atty. S. D. MCGill, was beaten in a packed convention. The lilies promptly declared for Hoover. Bean and his contestants came uninstructed, but the committee ruled them out. They were not for Hoover. In Mississippi and Georgia, it was a different story. Perry Howard and Ben Davis, were for the commerce secretary. These 2 delegations with the largest number of Negroes of any were seated. The most pathetic case of the convention was that of Walter Cohen. Cohen who through the years has carried National Committeeman Kunze on his back had determined it is said to dethrone Kunze and have himself elected committeeman.

Kunz grown foxy through Walter's teaching, promptly went over to the lily whites and declared for Hoover. Then he instituted court action against Cohen and his followers delaying their organization. After he was freed from the injunction, Mr. Cohen held a state convention, but he was non commital. The committee refused his delegation a seat. A leader high up in the Hoover forces in a statement to the Associaten Negro Press said, "We were not against Cohen, but he was against us. This is a convention. We are seeking votes for Hoover. Therefore, there was nothing for us to do but defeat his group. We gave Cohen his seat because we wanted to show personal appreciation for him. There was nothing racial in our action. So that the mere necessity of getting Hoover votes proved fatal for those who were opposed to him. Cohen is making an appeal to the country asking that pressure be brought on the credentials committee to seat him. His plea before the committee is said by all who heard it to have been a masterpiece. But few think he has any further chance.

In Arkansas, Scipio Jones reports a more liberal attitude on the part of Committeeman Mallory and Wallace Townsend, who will go back as National Committeeman in this convention.

Lily white Tennessee, however, is fighting Bob Church with the most vicious propaganda they can muster. The daily papers of Memphis continue to excoriate him. The Memphis Commercial Appeal greeted his winning of personally out of the convention."

A Catholic was called upon to offer prayer in preference to a protestant at the Republican Convention last week in Kansas, which only shows they don't hate them anything like as bad as they would picture the dark side to the democrats relative to Smith.—Fort Payne Journal.

NEGRO PRAISES HOOVER'S STAND ON SEGREGATION

Colored Republican National Committeeman Denies Lily White Machine Operated At Kansas City.

The following Associated Press news dispatch appearing in the daily papers last Friday brings more forcibly to attention Hoover's sympathy and encouragement to the negro voter through his stand on the abolishment of race segregation:

Washington, June 21.—Emphatic denial was made in a statement issued Thursday by Republicn National Committeeman, Perry W. Howard, of Mississippi, to charges that there was 'a Hoover Lily White Machine' at the Kansas City Convention.

Pointing out that the Mississippi delegation "was one-half white and one-half colored" as was that seated from South Carolina an that negro delegates from other states were recognized, Howard himself a negro, declared "that the Hoover people played the game fairly and squarely". And 'certainly kept faith with me in every particular."

Howard announced that he would take the stump "and defend Mr. Hoover without equivocation on the charge of Lily Whiteism attributed to his friends."

Mr. Hoover had taken a most forward step in abolishing race segregation, he declared "and has been on the square in all matters affecting our group."

It was not generally known, he said, that Mr. Hoover "had heard the cry" of Walter L. Cohen, Louisiana negro Republican leader whose seat was contested "and regardless of regularity his heart went out to him and a voice came from the Nation's capital to Kansas City saying "Don't turn Cohen

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Lily - Whitism Rampant At Rep. Meet

Few Race Leaders Attend G. O. P. Show

RACE VOTERS UNEASY

White Leaders Planning to Dethrone Negroes

Kansas City, Mo., June 12 (PNS)—The Republican national convention has let the world know it fully and completely endorses the program of lily-whitism. Practically every vestage of Negro leadership in the party has been driven out and the South has had its way. The political death of leaders in Texas, Louisana, Florida and Georgia bespeak the trend of affairs for the Negro and leaves small hope for the overthrow of lily-whitism. The white republicans of the South and the white men who recently have moved down there are determined to dethrone Negro political leadership in the South.

Race Leaders Absent

I don't want to give the impression that Negroes were not here attending the convention. They were here all right. But, very, very few of the real vote getters and influential race leaders were here. The delegates and alternates were here They had to be here, but the real race leaders, those who really count, were conspicuous by absence.

Leaders' Absence Significant

The absence of these leaders is really significant Very frequently you would hear the query, "where is so and so?" "wonder why he is not here?" "wonder why such and such person stayed away?" "Wonder what's wrong?" "It seems funny?" After hearing these various queries so frequently I, too, began to wonder what it was all about. Something must be cooking that we don't smell. Maybe the lid will come off the pot soon and we will know what the dope is. The situation is puzzling.

Show Went Over Big

In retrospect, the whole affair appears to have been pre-arranged and engineered by a clever theatrical press agent. "Mellon Holds Key," "Draft Coolidge," "Anti-Hoover" piffle seem to have been camofague catch phrases designed to rouse the rabble, create "copy," help continue to delude the disgruntled farmers while the lily-whites did their stuff in the prelude to the suns and daughters of Ham. The whole show went over big, each actor knew his lines, caught his cue. The result "brethren" were put out of political leadership in the South and Lily Whitism enthroned.

Race Leaders Smelled The Rat

Race leaders throughout the country must have been hep to the whole situation, smelled the rat as it were and politely remained away. I wondered why I could not find the big influential race leaders Wonder what they have up their sleeves? It's somewhat puzzling. Something must be cooking that I cannot smell. Time will tel.

GEORGIA NEGROES WAGE G. O. P. WAR

Joseph Watson Seeks To Oust Ben Davis; Wife of Albany Man Named Committeewoman.

BY OLIVER S. MORTON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Kansas City, Mo., June 9.—(AP)—Whatever comes of the insurgent movement that Joseph Watson, Albany negro, instituted against Ben J. Davis, Georgia's negro republican national cmomitteeman, tonight awaited the arrival here of Watson, who will be among the late comers.

Davis said Watson was endeavoring to oust him as national committeeman, but he was not committal except to assert that he did not expect anything to come of the movement. Watson is a delegate at large and his daughter, Sara W. King, has been nominated as national committeewoman.

Delegation Silent.

Members of the delegation on the ground were reticent about the movement. Some said Davis had "the upper hand with a majority of the delegates." Others said they did not know much about the matter.

It was generally understood among the delegates that Sara King had withdrawn her name from the nomination and this was looked upon as a move by the Watson wing to put the Albany negro in Davis' place. Watson's daughter likewise had not arrived.

Davis, who was sen about the Baltimore hotel where Herbert Hoover maintains headquarters, declared he still was uncertain whether all of the Georgia votes would be cast for Secretary Hoover.

Fifteen for Hoover.

"I believe, however, that Mr. Hoover will get at least 15 of the 16 votes," he declared. He did not say who might cast the single vote against Hoover.

Members of the delegation asserted that the Davis-Watson tilt had nothing to do with presidential candidates, but was a contest for leadership, if anything.

"The delegation was not organized pending the arrival of Watson and a caucus at which it was expected "everything will be settled."

C. W. Hager, United States district attorney for northern Georgia, and L. C. Crawford, United States marshal, were on the ground and said they would cast their votes for Hoover

William James, first district negro delegate, and E. F. Richardson, Marshallsville negro, likewise asserted they certainly would cast their votes for Hoover.

Republican.

High Point, N. C. Enterprise
June 13, 1928

50 Negro Delegates Republican Meeting

Fifty negro delegates and 10 alternates have seats at the Republican Natinoal Convention which is in session at Kansas City this week. This is a record. In previous years the Republicans in the South sent the most negroes to the National convention, but never before have so many States north of the Mason and Dixon line been represented by colored delegates. The migration of 700,000 negroes to the north, east and west after the World War has given Pennsylvania, New York, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and New Jersey a large colored voting population.

The number of negroes by states is: Arkansas, 3; Georgia, 11; Illinois, 2; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 5; Maryland, 3; Michigan, 1; Mississippi, 8; Missouri, 3; New Jersey, 1; Oklahoma, 1; South Carolina, 6; Tennessee, 1; and West Virginia, 2—Total, 50.

Alternates: Iowa, 1; Maryland, 3; Massachusetts, 1; Michigan, 1; New York, 2; and Pennsylvania, 2—Total, 10.

A majority of the negro delegates were for Secretary Hoover, but a stubborn minority held out for Lowden.

RECORD
COLUMBIA, S. C.
JUN 12 1928

Out in Kansas City, as the Republican party enters on its convention, the Negro leaders, who wield a tremendous power with their votes in New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania and some other States into which Negroes have poured during the past ten years, are causing some uneasiness. They are demanding "justice." While Senator Borah is cogitating his "Dry" plank, what are the Negro leaders cogitating?

"If the Republican party writes into its platform," they are saying, "a declaration for enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, it must include the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. Negro leaders feel the amendments involving their suffrage rights are as sacred as the Eighteenth Amendment. The Negro voters throughout States where they exercise considerable influence have always looked with some degree of apprehension on the expenditure of millions of dollars by the Federal Government to enforce the Prohibition amendment while it has refused to give aid to the enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth."

Southern "Dry" Democrats who want to listen to the "warnings" and heed the advice of the Anti-Saloon League, the Methodist Board and Bishop Cannon, to bolt their party in the event of the nomination of Governor Smith, because he is not "Bone-Dry," or because he is a Catholic, or because he is a member of Tammany Hall, and vote for the Republican party; Southern "Dry" Democrats who want to gang up with the G. O. P. and pal with "Negro leaders" who are going to contend for a plank in the Republican platform to attempt to destroy white supremacy in the Solid South are welcome to do so.

RECORD
COLUMBIA, S. C.
JUN 11 1928

REPUBLICAN NORMALCY.

As the Senate Campaign Funds Committee ended its probing until after the conventions of the two major parties a day or two ago, it is not astonishing that the name of Secretary Hoover led all the rest in expenditures made in his efforts to win the Republican nomination for the presidency. His outlay, according to figures gathered by the committee, a purely bi-partisan organization, authorized by Congress in efforts to spot slush funds in political campaigns, shows the Hoover outlay as totaling $380,822, which it is stated, is a larger sum than that of all the other candidates in the race in both political parties combined.

There are fourteen active candidates in both parties for the presidency. The Hoover outlay is more than three times the sum spent for Governor Smith, and it is not far below the "scandalous" total expended by former Governor Lowden's campaign committees in 1920. The difference in the totals is that while the uses of the Lowden fund in 1920 wrecked his bandwagon, the Hoover "expense account" seems to have been fairly normal for modern Republican contests.

One of the bitterest complaints in the Lowden camp at the present writing is that the Secretary of Commerce, through his Southern delegates-herder, Rush Holland, has handed out cash in blocks of $2,000 to such potent Negro National Committeemen as Ben Davis, of Georgia, and Perry Howard, of Mississippi, and that this system in 1928, has apparently been immune from criticism, while similar expenditures eight years ago spelled doom for Governor Lowden.

The Senate Committee's computations have been made by experts borrowed from the general accounting office of the government, and they have gone through all the assembled data of the committee. They give the total receipts of the fifteen (one, Willis, out by death) candidates investigating as $683,-023 and the expenditures as $731,087. The list is splendid data for this year's political scrapbooks. Receipts and expenditures for the fifteen candidates follow:

Republican:	Receipts	Expenditures.
Hoover	$339,028	$380,822
Lowden	68,123	60,922
Willis (deceased)	61,637	66,769
Watson	35,851	36,472
Curtis	12,255	11,539
Goff	None	2,979
Dawes	579	579
Norris	None	6,282
Democrats:
Smith	$120,911	$121,471
Reed	41,430	38,752
Hull	1,845	845
Walsh (withdrawn)	1,257	1,690
Hitchcock	105	1,744
Pomerene	None	100
George	None	115

Total Republican expenditures come to $566,368.

The seven Democrats spent $164,728.

From these figures politicians who are fond of such indoor sport may make many classic deductions and arrive at some logical conclusions. For example is the Hoover pre-convention showing a forerunner of his post-convention running? In other words, if it takes a $2,000 ante to soften the track for Southern delegates in goose egg States, how much would it take for a similar purpose in a general election to satisfy Harlem negroes, who might turn a very favorable trick in a close vote in New York?

The last thing the Senate Committee did prior to recessing until after the conventions was to sift some more brain-storm charges of Senator Heflin, and then to decide, after the quiz, that such charges were without substance of truth. Senator Heflin had charged that through two commissioners, Governor Smith's personal friends, William H. Todd and William F. Kenny, both contractors, had profited heavily through New York City contracts.

Chairman Steiwer accordingly delved into that subject at length, discovering that out of $12,522,102 spent by the Commissioner of Plant and Structures since July, 1918, for boat repairs and construction, the Todd dry-dock, engineering and repair companies, which are outstanding, if not the leaders in their line, had done $2,290,926 of the work. The Kenny and Allied Hickey Construction Company had received contracts for $40,531 out of $509,714 spent for traffic control lights, &c.

Having pursued this line of inquiry, which is new to campaign fund investigations, and failing to substantiate the Heflin insinuations, the committee decided to shut up shop until the National campaigns get sufficiently under way to warrant reopening of the hearings. In passing it may be said the investigation has put all candidates in the open and it has muzzled the scandal-whispering squad effectually; having shown the Alabama harlequin up as a false prophet so unmistakably that Governor Smith's friends now look upon him as a real help in time of emergency.

CONVENTION LILY WHITE PROPAGANDA

Before the meeting of the Republican National Convention at Kansas City in some states in the South a struggle for control of the organizations ensued before the campaign for delegates fairly opened. In Texas and Louisana the regular organizations were in the control of men who favored Hoover; those fighting to secure control of the organization believing that if the control of the National Committee and the Convention should be anti-Hoover they would secure their seats in the National Convention and thus the control of the organization in their respective states aligned themselves with the opposition to Hoover. It was not a question of electing colored men on the delegation, the presence or absence of colored men was the incident which was used to further the effort to secure seats at Kansas City and the organization. Had colored delegates been amply spread throughout the so-called Lilywhite delegations the fight would have been made just the same without the mention of the color line.

It was a fight of the "outs" against the "ins" to get possession of the machine in order to control the patronage of the state the next four years.

The Republican organizations in both Texas and Louisiana came down with an unbroken chain of title of sixty years passing through the hands of Wright Cuney in Texas and Walter Cohen himself in Louisiana.

The real test of the attitude of the National Committee and the Convention towards lilywhitism is in the Mississippi case. Here Perry Howard, with an organization also with an unbroken chain of title of more than sixty years, was opposed bitterly by a lilywhite organization headed by a former Governor of a northern state, who baited his delegation with one or two colored delegates in order to conceal his purpose. The Howard, or regular delegation was uninstructed but favored Hoover while the lilywhite contestants were howling Hooverites, but the Howard regular delegation was seated and lilywhitism was rebuked.

The action of the Committee and Convention in seating contesting delegations could not have been different without overturning all precedents and violating long established rules of the party in such cases.

Political-1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican

Says Perry Howard and Ben Davis Got $6,200 of Hoover $10,000 Fund

Rush L. Holland, Former Assistant Attorney General, Tells Senate Committee of Promotion of Secretary of Commerce's Campaign in South

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21. — Perry W. Howard, Republican national committeeman for Mississippi, and Benjamin Jefferson Davis, Republican national committeeman for Georgia, received a total of $6,200 out of a sum of $10,000 spent in Southern States to promote the Presidential campaign of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, the special Senate Committee investigating campaign expenditures was told by Rush L. Holland, a former Assistant Attorney General, last Wednesday.

Amsterdam News

Mr. Holland has been active in the interest of Secretary Hoover in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

He testified that he had received $10,000 at various times from Claudius H. Huston of Cattanooga, Tenn., for use in the Hoover campaign in Southern states. 5-23-28

He disbursed this money, he said, as follows: Mr. Howard, $2,000; Mr. Davis, $2,200; Oliver D. Street, white, Republican national committeeman for Alabama, $1,000; the Protective Tariff League of Florida, $2,500; Glenn B. Shipper, vice-chairman of the Florida state central committee, $500.

New York

Mr. Holland also testified that he had paid Mr. Howard the sum of $200 a week for the past 10 weeks for the maintenance of headquarters here to assist in the Hoover campaign.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, asked Mr. Holland if he had ever discussed with Mr. Howard the recent Department of Commerce order abolishing segregation of colored and white workers in the census bureau.

Mr. Holland replied that Mr. Howard had shown him a newspaper clipping telling of that order, but that he had no knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the incident.

NEGRO DELEGATE MAKES HISTORY

Represent Wealthy oBston District

(By Frank P. Chisholm)

Among the Negro delegates elected to the Republican National Convention in Kansas City in June, much significance is being attached to that of Walter Foster of Boston, Mass., who was recently elected as alternate delegate. Mr. Foster was elected on the delegation headed by Mr. Henry Parkman, Jr., of Boston. Mr. Parkman is a member of one of the oldest, wealthiest and most public spirited families of Boston. Mr. Parkman and Mr. Foster will represent the Eleventh Congressional District (Boston) Mass. This district represented by Congressman Tinkham now active on behalf of the 14th and 15th amendments. It is significant that the Parkman-Foster candidacy was the first successful challenge in more than twenty years to the uninterrupted political influence of the Charles H. Innes Boston organization. Mr. Foster was specially invited by Mr. Parkman himself to align himself with the Parkman forces.

Independent

5-24-28

Foster A Harvard Man

Walter Foster was born in Louisana, North Carolina in 1877. He came to Boston in a freight train September 1892 like a visiting hobo, his only baggage being 25 pounds flour sack containing all his worldly possessions. He was educated in the Rice Grammar school, Boston Latin School, Harvard College, and the Boston University Law School. Since 1909, he has been a practicing lawyer in Boston. He has been very active in the Republican party and in various campaigns has spoken all over the state of Massachusetts. He is a member of the Sons of North Carolina, Woodmen of the Union, and the People Baptist church in Boston. He has been active in the Boston Eastern Bible Association and was formerly a member of its executive board.

Since the days when he was the best friend and Harvard College roommate of the University beloved William C. Matthews, Walter Foster has been a fighter for the right socially and politically. In the last sixteen years his practice has been specialization in cases before the Supreme Judicial court of Massachusetts for final adjudication. In the famous suit of Jordan-Harah Company vs Collins and Sandler on suretyship, he argued for the defendant. The Supreme Court decided in his favor and it is said that this decision has determined a new principle in Massachesetts law.

Addresses Notable Gathering

During the campaign, Mr Foster spoke before many gatherings notably hose in the wealthy, exclusive back bay district of Boston. At these back bay meetings such names as the Parkmans, the Higginsons, the Shaws and the Ralloweller, were represented by the sons and daughters and the grand-sons and grand-daughters of men and women who were identified with the early abolition movement. They were profoundly impressed with Mr. Foster's thoughtful speeches and expressed deep interest not only in what he represented through his Harvard training but also in the fact that he espoused and embodied the cause of a race whose efforts to rise they and their fore-parents have always aided.

Eleventh Congressional District

The Eleventh Congressional District which Mr. Foster will represent is one of the most famous in Massachusetts. The whole country knows of the Bulfinch State House, the Boston Common with its Parkman bandstand and the public garden. In this district are monuments to Crispus Attucks and other heroes of the Boston Massacre and a monument to Robert Gould Shaw of Civil War fame. Also there are memorials to Wendell Phillips, Charles Sumner, William Lloyd Garrison and other distinguished sons of Massachusetts. The district comprises the back bay with its beautiful parks stretching aleng the famous Charles river, Old South End, historic Roxbury and beautiful Jamica Plains with its gorgeous lakes shady and winding drives.

Foster Makest History

Our hero not only spoke acceptably before some of the oldest, most distinguished and notable families of conservative Boston but also helped to defeat Charles H. Innes, himself a candidate, who is one of the best known political leaders in Massachusetts. Mr. Foster's victory completely upset the calculations of old, shrewd experienced politicians. It is a little too early to determine the significance of a Parkman-Foster victory in the best and broadest sense. Nevertheless, it is felt that Mr. Foster has made history in the sense that he and Mr. Parkman will become new types of political leaders of the Eleventh Congresional District in Massachusetts in which the generally of Boston colored people live.

CAN SOUTHERN VOTERS LINE UP WITH HOOVER'S NEGRO LEADERS?

(From Houston (Tex.) Post-Dispatch)

The adage that "politics makes strange fellows" is well illustrated in the case of a few Southern Democrats who are serving notice they will support Commerce Secretary Herbert Hoover in the event Governor Al Smith is nominated by the Democratic Party.

Independent

For Mr. Hoover, personally and through his campaign managers, is catering assiduously to Negro G. O. P. wardheelers and patronage dispensers throughout the South.

Atlanta

5-24-28

Only a short while ago, moved by the hope of winning states where the colored Republican vote is heavy, Mr. Hoover abolished the segregation arrangements prevailing in the Washington offices of the department of commerce and threw the Negroes indiscriminately among white workers, most of the latter being girls. Southern protests against the Hoover order abolishing segregation have been made in vain.

Among the campaign disbursements listed by Rush Holland, one of Hoover's organizers in the South, the heaviest handouts seem to have been made to Negro bosses whose activities have been under fire in connection with patronage abuses.

In various other ways Hoover and Hoover campaign organization have shown a tender solicitude toward the colored vote. It is doubtful if any other Republican presidential candidate of recent times has gone quite so far to emphasize views of social as well as political equality between the colored and white races. This yearning to please the Negro appears to be newly-born in Mr. Hoover's mind. The fact that it is politically inspired does not make it less conspicuous.

Southern Democrats who prefer to forget the color line rather than to support Al Smith in case he is nominated will have the privilege of contributing a Hoover campaign fund for Negro bosses of the Perry Howard type to spend.

By dropping into the department of commerce offices at Washington, D. C., they can see the Hoover ideal of social equality at work. In the campaign they can glad-hand various Negro national committeemen and other prominent colored members of the Hoover army. They can make an honest effort to deliver the Southern States over to G. O. P. rule, which in nearly every instance is on a black-and-tan basis.

By his own official action, taken at the express demand of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Mr. Hoover has said that he believes in the breaking down of segregation rules which protect the colored as well as the white race.

By his action through authorized agents, Mr. Hoover has made it plain that he will go any length to secure the Southern Negro vote. Naturally, he will be constrained to deliver in patronage what he receives in support.

If Governor Smith and Mr. Hoover are nominated by the respective parties, some of the strangest partnerships ever witnessed in the South will be formed. Southern Democrats, with the nightmare of reconstruction only one generation behind them, going over in at least an occasional instance to a Republican candidate who prefers to obey orders from the Harlem Black Belt rather than to heed the protests of the South against the mingling of Negro and white workers, elbow to elbow. Southern Democrats working side by side in the South with Negroes of the Perry Howard brand.

Truly, politics makes strange bedfellows.

Kansas City Telegraph
Monday, May 28, 1928

SOME WILL VOTE REPUBLICAN

Ben Davis, the Negro national committeeman of the Republican party from Georgia, received $2,000 for his services from the friends of a Republican presidential candidate. And yet some Southern white people announce that they will vote with Davis in the event the Democrats nominate a certain candidate for president. Well, we won't.—That's all—Adel News.

5-28

REPUBS SPLIT

DALLAS, TEXAS, May 22.—(AP)—Texas Republicans split their convention today under impetus of a heated wrangle between factions favoring the presidential nomination of Herbert Hoover and those holding out for an uninstructed delegation to the national convention at Kansas City.

Amidst scenes of disorder marked by the smashing of a plate glass door into the city hall auditorium and the arrest and release on $200 bond of C. C. Littleton, chairman of the Republican State Committee, for an uninstructed delegatoni, the followers of Littleton and Harry M. Warbach, the Lone Sta state's only Republican congressman, marched out to hold a convention of their own.

They left the Hoover adherents in charge of the municipal auditorium.

Both sides presented speakers at their conventions, however, to proclaim positive assurance of success when the matter of recognition was put before the national committee at Kansas City.

The Hoover supporters, headed by R. B. Creager, Brownsville, Republican national committeeman, met to name 26 delegates to the national convention and to instruct them for the secretary of commerce.

Those favoring an uninstructed delegation contended that only four delegates at large legitimately could be named, because 22 delegates recently were chosen at district conventions.

Those demanding an uninstructed delegation forced the reading of a minority report upholding their position, and then the trouble started.

TRIBUNE

MAY 1928

AFTER THE NEGRO VOTE.

The much discussed action of Secretary Hoover in ordering that negroes working in the census bureau be scattered among whites in the several offices is palpably a campaign gesture calculated to catch negro votes for him. There will be quite a few negro delegates at Kansas City, most of them from the South but some also from states like Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other states necessary to Republican success. As close as the race for the Republican nomination now is the votes of negro delegates might easily prove decisive.

It could hardly be argued that Secretary Hoover has been on the job seven years and has just now found out that the negro employes had been confined to one section of the bureau. It took a protest from a quarter that indicated negro delegate strength to get the attention of the usually alert Mr. Hoover.

The new arrangement will probably last until after the election in November, and then no matter who is elected the negro census bureau employes will probably slip back into the basement to stay until another presidential election impends.—Lexington Dispatch.

Friends of the Commerce Secretary picture him as some gigantic being who cares nothing about public office or the high position that goes with such office. They picture him as a superior sort of man, with no ambition but one to serve his fellowman. They would make one think that Secretary Hoover would accept the presidency only as a sort of sacrifice.

All of which is pure bunk. He wants to be president and he is making the usual political gestures in his effort to land the nomination. We are confident the negro employes would be in their usual place today were it not for the approaching convention and election, and we are inclined to agree with The Dispatch in their belief that after November they will be segregated, regardless of who is president.

If Secretary Hoover is elected he will send them back, for they will have served their purpose. And if a Democrat is elected he will send them back on the cry that both colored and white employe are better off when in surroundings peculiarly fitting for each.

Mr. Hoover stooped to the level of the average politician when he made this bid for the negro vote.

NEGROES OF SIX STATES OPPOSE RIVALS IN CONTEST FOR PLACES

(Special to The St. Louis Argus.)—

KANSAS CITY, MO., June 7—Preliminary to the opening of the National Republican Convention in Convention Hall next week, the national committee began its important decisions on the contested delegations from the South Monday. Colored delegates from six states are among the group fighting for seats in the convention. Indications are that those of the Hoover following will be victorious, with the seating of most of the Negro delegates of the Hoover faction.

Florida Negro Loses

In the opening battle Monday the lily white faction of Florida, a Hoover group, was awarded the seats over uninstructed delegation of which S. D. McGill, a Jacksonville Race lawyer, was a member. A delegate of the lily white faction in describing the situation in Florida ascerted if the Republican party in that state ever was to obtain a recognized standing it must be under white leadership. McGill was a delegate-at-large.

Perry Howard Victorious

The second round of the battle Tuesday saw the victory of the group of colored contesting delegates from Mississippi led by Perry W. Howard, over the lily white faction, which had sought to prevent Negroes from taking any active part in the National Republican Convention. All of his delegation were instructed for Hoover Mrs. Mary C. Booze, Mound Bayou, National Committee woman being one of the delegates-at-large.

Walter L. Cohen, delegate-at-large, comptroller of customs at New Orleans was beaten by his opponent, Emile Kuntz, a Hoover man. Cohen was for Curtis, it was disclosed. Cohen got some consolation, however, when he was seated as a delegate from the first Louisiana District, Kuntz being instrumental in having a contest against him withdrawn.

Bob Church Scores Victory

Wm. M. MacDonald, Fort Worth, Texas, colored delegate-at-large, was a member of the uninstructed delegation that lost to the Hoover instructed group in the Texas contest. McDonald charged the victorious creager-Nolte faction with following a policy of discriminating against Negroes, which was denied.

Bob Church of Memphis, won a decisive victory over his opponents in the Tennessee contest. His right to sit in the convention had been challenged by Jim Quinn, also of Memphis, who accused him of sale of federal patronage and violating an agreement to divide Republican political power. Church's counsel insisted that he had been selected a delegate in an orderly way and was entitled to a seat.

LITTLE CASH CIRCULATED AT G.O.P. MEET

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 15.—(By The Associated Negro Press)—The Negro has profited little financially from espousing the cause of various candidates for the Republican nomination for the presidency of the United States if the reports circulating here are true. This, too, has revived the old report that white politicians had made a "gentleman's agreement" that they would not spend money among colored politicians."

Whether there is any ground for the report this correspondent does not know, but it is a fact that the brethren have not been on "the receiving end" to any extent. The Lowden group has spent literally nothing. In fact, it is said that their colored field agent, Melvin Chisum, was "donated" to them.

The Hooverites have shown a bit more liberality but the scant $2,000 which testimony revealed had been advanced Perry Howard and Ben Davis, which the daily press has been playing up, will do little toward paying the expenses of a campaign or a political convention, according to those who know. Perry W. Howard, Mississippi's astute national committeeman, presented expense accounts which showed that he was $4,000 "in the red," because of train fares, board bills, advertising bills, and the like which were necessary. On the other hand, Creager, the white committeeman from Texas, admits he received $7,500 from Hoover forces.

Political - 1928.

Party Affiliation

300 Negroes To Go To Work For Hoover Election

Largest Number Of Blacks Ever Organized Favor Repub Nominee

Work In All States

Washington Man Chosen Head Of Body

By RUSSELL KENT
Special Correspondent For The Advertiser

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—The largest number of negroes ever designated officially as party committeemen will work for the election of Herbert Hoover and the Republican ticket in the present campaign. Announcement by Chairman Hubert Work of the appointment of the colored voters division of the Republican National Committee indicates appointment of more than 300 negroes, men and women, in all states of the Union.

This is by far the largest number of negroes ever named by the G. O. P. in a campaign, in modern times at least, although there has been a division for work among colored voters in each national campaign.

So carefully is the list of negro committee members being compiled that the first announcement, made Wednesday evening, does not include all the names, many of the committees being skeletonized until the full membership can be announced, which will be in the near future.

Hawkins Is Leader

The fight among the negroes for the post of head of the division has been won, as expected by John R. Hawkins, of Washington, who seconded Hoover's nomination at the Kansas City convention. Hawkins was attached to the New York City office of the G. O. P. in the Coolidge campaign four years ago. He is president of the Prudential Bank of Washington and is financial secretary of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

Albon L. Holsey, secretary of Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., and also secretary of the National Negro Business League, is made secretary of the executive committee of the division of which Hawkins is chairman.

R. R. Church, of Memphis, who has been a storm center of West Tennessee politics for years, is included among members of the executive committee, other members of which are Walter Foster, of Boston; Adelbert H. Roberts, of Chicago, who is an Illinois state senator; John E. Nail, New York City; Myrtle Foster Cook, whom the official notice from Republican national headquarters describes as a "prominent club woman of Kansas City;" Mrs. A. W. Hunton, of New York City, described as a "prominent civic leader;" and Dr. Emmett J. Scott, formerly special assistant to the secretary of war and secretary-treasurer of Howard University, Washington, D. C.

With the appointment of such an imposingly large committee of the colored voters division there is substantiation of reports that the Republican chieftains have abandoned hope of carrying any electoral votes of the "Solid South," by winning the votes of doubtful white Democrats and have decided to concentrate on states of the North and East, where the negro vote is a factor, the almost changing advice of Senator George B. Moses, Eastern manager, being laid aside with respect to the South. It is to be noted that negroes of the South as well as of the East and North are made members of the committee of the colored division, however.

Work's Views

National Chairman Work viewed the matter in these terms: "We are gratified that there has been such a fine voluntary response and pledge of support from the colored people. This committee is composed of leaders of thought and opinion representing their business, professional, religious and educational life. In my opinion, the election of Herbert Hoover will herald a new day of hope and opportunity for the group they represent."

Chairman Hawkins, of the division, took this view: "A spirited campaign in which business, professional and religious leaders of the race will have a prominent and active part is to be launched immediately. This program will give an effective voice to the rank and file of the race and will bring home anew to every colored man and woman voter the fact that the Republican party is our party, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the task of improving our civic and political status and condition. We must do our part in furthering its success as well as shaping its policies to fit the common need of our race and our country."

The division has committees on publicity, organization speakers, first voters, etc., whose chairmen and other officers are announced but whose full membership has not been completed. An advisory committee of 200 is being selected, with Charles W. Anderson, New York City, as chairman and Scipio A. Jones, of Little Rock, as vice chairman. Among other Southern negroes given places on committees, as announced thus far, is Lieut. George W. Lee, of Memphis, in charge of organization among colored ex-service men for the western bureau of the division.

The announcement from Republican national headquarters states that: "Mary M. Bethune, of Daytona, Fla.; Dansy Lampkin, of Pittsburgh; Sallie W. Stewart, of Evansville, Ind; Mary C. Booze, Mound Bayou, Miss.; Nannie N. Burroughs, of District of Columbia; S. Williams, of Savannah, Ga.; Hallie Q. Brown, of Wilberforce, Ohio and Lethia Fleming, of Cleveland, are among the outstanding women who, serving in various key capacities in the organization, are expected to develop great enthusiasm for Mr. Hoover among the colored women of the country."

Headquarters of the colored voters division will be in Washington in the Barr Building, where the Republican National Committee has its offices during the campaign, but branch headquarters will be opened in Chicago and possibly also in New York City.

Republican.

R. R. CHURCH FACING DOUBLE FIGHT IN TENN.

Lily Whites And Democratic Faction Train Big Guns On Republican Leader

WAVE RED SHIRT OF NEGRO DOMINATION

Hot Contest In Shelby County Over Votes Of 6,000 Race Democrats

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Facing a double bombardment from the Lily White Republicans and the Horton Democrats, R. R. Church, Reublican leader is making the fight of his life in the state primary elections August 2nd.

While Church and his lieutenants are centering their efforts on the fight again the Poole-True lily-white Republicans for control of the Republic State Executive Committee, he is also meeting the brunt of a fight being waged between the Crump and Clarence Saunders Democratic factions in the state-wide primary for governor.

Heads Ticket

Church is heading the regular Republican ticket and his running mates are Mrs. Grase Geldert, Mrs. Dave Hanover, and J. S. Shortle, all white. Running against them for places on the Committee are George H. Poole, E. M. Kinney and Mrs. Esther O. True, white. The Church organization is also behind Raleigh S. Hopkins for governor in the primary.

Doubl Eight

Making Church and Negro Democrats their target, the Horton faction of Democrats have injected the race issue into the primary fight being waged between Horton ann Hill McAlister for governor.

This fight has developed into one of the bitterest Shelby County voters have ever witnessed and under the leadership of Clarence Saunders, of Piggly Wiggly fame, the Horton faction. supported by the three daily papers. has sought to inflame white voters by broadsides in which Church is pictured as a herder of "ignorant Negro voters". Ed Crump, white, and former mayor of the city, is also said by the Horton faction to be lined up with Church to carry Shelby County for McAlister.

This Democratic factional fight against Church is based on the fact that two years ago under Church's leadership, 6,000 race men and women registered in the Democratic primary and voted for McAlister.

Republican Primary

The AFRO-AMERICAN learned through a lieutenant of the Church forces that the Negro voters will center their fight Thursday on the Republican primary and that because of the importance of the fight Church is making to keep control of the State Executive Committee, would allow the Crump Democrats to make their own fight.

It was learned, however, that a number of race voters, registered as Democrats, would participate in the primary.

Threats Ignored

Threats by the Horton faction to use strong arm methods to keep them from voting will be ignored, it was said. W. M. Staunton, white, chairman of the county Democratic primary Board has made a public statement that no registered Democrat will be barred from voting on account of race.

The Horton group have advocated barring the race voters and allowing only white Democrats to participate in the primary. Since the police depatment is under control of the McAlister faction, it has been assured that Horton watchers will not be allowed to interfere with race voters.

HAWKINS-HOLSEY WILL BOTH WORK FOR HOOVER

Dr. Work Officially Gives Names Of His Committee.

WASHINGTON, D. C., (By Wire) — Chairman Herbert Work of the Republican National Committee announces the appointment of a colored voter's division of the Republican National Committee to direct the Hoover presidential campaign.

John R. Hawkins, of Washington, D. C., at Kansas City has been made chairman of the executive committee. Albon Holsey, Sect. of Tuskegee Institute, and of the National Business League was chosen secretary.

The other members of the executive committee are Walter Foster, of Boston; State Senator A. H. Roberts, of Chicago; John C. Nalle, real estate operator of New York; Mrs. Myrtle Foster Cooke, clubwoman of Kansas City; Robert R. Church, business man of Memphis; Mrs. C. W. Hunton, of New York City, prominent civic leader; Dr. Emmett Scott, Sect-Treas., of Howard University.

"We are gratified," said Chairman Work, "that there has been such a fine voluntary response and pledge of support from colored people. This committee is composed of leaders of thought and opinion representing business, professional, religious and educational rights. In my opinion the election of Herbert Hoover will herald a new day of hope and opportunity for the group they represent."

Headquarters of the Colored Voters Commission will be in the Barr Building from which the National campaign is being conducted. Branch headquarters will be opened in Chicago and possibly also in New York.

In this campaign business, professional and religious leaders will have a prominent and active part.

Chairman Hawkins—"This token will give an effective voice to the rank and file of the race and will bring home a new realization to every colored man and woman voter that the Republican party is our party, conceived in liberty and freedom and dedicated to the task of improving our civic and political states and condition. We must do our part in furthering his success as well as his policy to fit the common need our race in our country. Other committees have been appointed to direct such activities among them.

The Publicity Committee

Robert Van, of Pittsburgh, Chairman; A Barnett, Chicago, Secretary.

Organization Committee—

Eastern Bureau

Fred R. Moore, New York, Chairman; Ernest T. Atwell, Philadelphia, Gen. Field Organizer; Lieut.-Col. S. T. Hamilton, D. C., in charge of organization for ex-service men.

Western Bureau

Carnelius R. Richardson, Richmond, Ind., Chairman; Homer G Phillips, St. Louis, Gen. Field organizer; Lieut. Geo. W. Lee, Memphis, in charge of organization for ex-service men.

Speakers' Committee, Eastern Bureau, George W. Harris, New York, Chairman.

Western Bureau, Roscoe C. Simmons, of Chicago, Chairman.

First Voters Committee, Raymond A. Alexander, Philadelphia, Chairman· Jesse Huslic, Toledo, Vice-Chairman.

Advisory committee of 200 with Charles W. Alexander, of New York, chairman. Scipio A. Jones, of Little Rock, Vice-Chairman, has also been named. Mrs. Mary M. Bethune of Daytona, Fla.; Mrs. Daisy Lampkins, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Sally Stewart, of Evansville, Ind.; Mrs. Nannie Burroughs, of Washington; Mrs. Hallie Q. Brown, of Wilberforce; and Mrs. Lethia Flemings, of Cleveland, are among the women who are to serve in various capacities.

MARCUS GARVEY OUT FOR "AL" SMITH

NEW YORK—Marcus Garvey, head of the Universal Negro Improvement Association and editor of the "Negro World," wrote his paper from London last week advocating the election of "Al" Smith for president.

Garvey accuses Republicans of throttling Haiti so the National City Bank of New York can exploit it.

Hoover represents the party, says Garvey which "passes the buck," and makes false campaign promises.

Individually, says Garvey, Smith is better than Hoover.

Monticello, Ga., News
Friday, July 20, 1928.

SLUSH FUND FOR THE ENFRANCHISEMENT OF THE NEGRO

(From the Athens Banner-Herald)

Fired with enthusiasm over the outbreak of supposed democrats in the South, joining the ranks of "Hooverism" the leaders of the republican party are planning a campaign for the enfranchisement of the negroes in this section of the country. It is a well known fact that the republicans are in possession of the largest "slush" fund that party has ever distributed during a presidential election year. Encouraged over the activities of the so-called Hooverites, recruited from the ranks of the democratic party, the republican leaders are planning a political amalgamation of the races that is bound will lead to the breaking of the "solid" South. To bring about such a condition however, it will be necessary for the new "lily-white" members of the republican party to co-operate and cast their ballots with the negro republicans. Even with a solid vote of those who may desert the democratic party along with the vote of the negro, loyal democrats do not believe that the use of the "slush" fund for the enfranchisement of the negro will overcome the democratic vote for the nominee—Governor Smith. However, it is a problem that can only be determined after the election and the votes counted. Should the political amalgamation process of the races prove successful it is but natural to presume that the negro would be restored to power and a period of reconstruction days, following the Civil War, enacted in every state of the South, carried by the republican candidate Hoover.

Recalling the scenes of the reconstruction period when federal bayonets guarded the ballot boxes and the flower of Southern manhood and citizenship were disfranchised, the action of Southern women in organizing and voting the republican ticket is conceivable. To desert a political party that freed them from negro domination; from the rule of the carpet-bagger and from force of negro equality is beyond a sane conception of duty they owe to their children and to the people of the South. If our womanhood forget the principles of democracy, which is dear to the hearts of every loyal Southerner, what hopes can we have for the preservation of white supremacy? Southern members of the Anti-Saloon League; the W. C. T. U., should scorn the dictates of these organizations to desert the democratic party on the grounds of prohibition enforcement. The wise leaders of the republican party, who are not friends to the prohibition cause, have capitalized these organizations for their use in deceiving the sentimental and blind dry forces of the South.

Those who desert the democratic party in the coming presidential election make themselves a party to restoring the dark days of the reconstruction period, when carpet-baggers ruled the South and negro domination reigned supreme.

The responsibility rests upon the voters of the South. Which shall it be? Negro domination and Hoover—or white supremacy and Smith?

A column of constructive criticism of men and measures in the hope of correcting errors and evils.

Mr. Robert Church, political leader of his people in Memphis, Tenn., is being made one of the most bitter issues in the campaign for the election of Tennessee's next governor. Anti-racial propaganda is being released by the page through the columns of the Memphis Commercial Appeal. Mr. Church has awakened his people to the power and value of their votes and has convinced the Tennesseans that the black people must be reckoned with. However he is meeting pernicious and fiendish opposition. Because the combined black vote has been placed behind fair-minded white caniddates opprobious and insulting language has been printed about the black people. Their friends among the white people have been styled "nigger lovers." This is the manner in which most white people who make an honest effort to be fair to their unfortunate brothers are described. Clarence Saunders, who started a chain of stores some years ago only to be wiped out by Wall street, is one of the most vicious and belligerent of those fighting Church. It clearly appears that Saunders, who is endeavoring to make a come-back, is mixing up anti-black propaganda with his business in the hope of gaining favor with the prejudiced southerners. It is an old scheme that has almost outlived its best days. Church is still in session nevertheless.

Lithonia, Ga., Journal
Thursday, July 12, 1928

The Macon Telegraph has made the most unalled for attack on the women of Georgia, and the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in particular, in an abusive and belittling editorial, because these women, along with hundreds of thousands of others, will not swallow the Telegraph's candidate Al. Such unfair tactics as the Telegraph delight in engaging in will do his man no good. That paper said editorially: "The W. C. T. U.'s in Georgia are leaving the Democratic party on a question of 'moral issues' and are going to the Republican party without even holding their noses. Since, with them, prohibition is the only question in which a moral issue is involved, they are prepared to accept the leadership of the Negro whose sale of postoffices in Georgia provoked the patronage inquiry by the United States Senate that begins in Atlanta tomorrow. Since the W. C. T. U's are leaving the party in Georgia, they may not object to one bit of advice. They can save the money they are now spending on their official organ, The Signal, by abolishing it and making the Atlanta Independent, edited by Ben Davis, their organ." The insult in the closing lines of the tirade will not only be resented by members of that organization, but by men and women everywhere. The Telegraph does not tell you that there is no official Negro Republican organization in Georgia now. The Kansas City convention refused to re-appoint Davis' crowd or any other negro faction, and it would not be surprising in the least that before Mr. Anderson has the opportunity of voting for Governor Al(cohol) Smith, there will be a white organization functioning in Georgia, with leaders who have heretofore ranked high in Democratic circles. The big bug-a-boo about voting with the "niggers" won't get Mr. W. T. anywhere. Brother Anderson, don't you suspect, or know, that Al Smith will get as many negro votes in New York state alone, as will vote the Republican ticket in all the Southern states?

Political - 1928

Party Accilination

Republican

PROHIBITION AND DISFRANCHISEMENT

POLITICIANS strive to make the issues upon which they shall appeal to the electorate for a lease of power for their organization. In a democratic government, such as ours, we are governed through parties, and parties are usually dominated by the strong men in them, and not always for the public good. Indeed, politics is very much like any other business. Those engaged in it strive to get as much out of it, and to put as little as possible in it, as will insure their success. There are always two major parties, but in the last election it was shown that there are some fifty-seven varieties of parties, advocating all of the political isms in the latest unabridged dictionary. Every group of citizens with a grievance wants to get it healed in some way by legislation and form themselves into a party for that purpose. Many of these organizations are harmless, serving as escape valves for "the pent up Utica" of those who sponsor them, but others are dangerous and aim at the overthrowing of established government and radical rearrangement of the economic and financial systems which have become fixed as a part of our system of government. The two major parties, of course, are the Republican and Democratic parties. As far as the Negro is concerned, there is little difference in them and their alleged principles.

As the Presidential election approaches both of the major parties are striving for advantage in selecting issues that will appeal to the greatest number of voters. But it is noticeable that both the major parties are striving with might and main to keep Prohibition and Prohibition enforcement and disfranchisement of the Negro in the Southern States out of consideration as party issues. The leaders of both parties are afraid of those issues, because they are not sure on which side a majority of the voters stand with regard to them. The Southern Democrats, apparently, stand solidly for Prohibition and Prohibition enforcement and for Negro disfranchisement, while the Republicans of the other States are divided on Prohibition and Prohibition enforcement and very indifferent on Negro disfranchisement. And the Negro citizens is himself not unanimously in favor of Prohibition and Prohibition enforcement and vastly more indifferent to the question of Negro disfranchisement than appears good for him and his best interests. Negro disfranchisement may be kept out of the campaign as an issue, as it has been since 1877, because the leaders of the Republican party are afraid to force it, but it looks as if the people of the country would force both parties to make some decisive statement of policy on the question of Prohibition and Prohibition enforcement, because of the scandalous condition of affairs which has developed in the effort to enforce the Volstead act over the protest of a large part of the voters of the country.

The Negro citizens of the United States are vitally concerned in the outcome of the Presidential election, but for one reason and another they will exercise a smaller part in nominating and electing candidates than ever before since the election of 1876. Neither party appears to much care what the Negro wants or does not want, as a matter of justice and fair play, and, as a disorganized body of voters, he needs to pull himself together and take his bearings. He can't expect others to do it for him, as they are very busy attending to their own business, of getting as much out of politics and putting as little in it as possible.

NEGROES WILL RESENT THIS INSULT

—o—

Republican chances in the national election are being threatened by what is going on in Kansas City. Just as surely as "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" first uttered in an obscure meeting by a partisan, defeated James G. Blaine for the presidency in 1884, so a fairly certain victory for republican national nominees is being jeopardized by the failure of the party's representative in Missouri to demand decent treatment for all the republicans who come here to determine the party judgment. Dr. E. B. Clements, republican national committeeman for Missouri, broke into print recently in St. Louis, saying the Negro policemen there, appointees of a republican administration, were no good. Except for that one utterance, in all the years he has been national committeeman, he has not said one word which indicated that he knew Negroes even existed, and certainly no word which showed that he valued their support to his party. Now when Kansas City through the Chamber of Commerce committee invites the republican party promising hospitality by inference and by direct statement and follows that by insulting the Negroes, Dr. Clements says not a word.

What Kansas City does has no political significance. The whole people here, democrats as well as republicans, are host. But what the republican leader in Missouri accepts, segregation of Negroes for instance, is the party's. A slight put upon Ben Davis of Atlanta, by Conrad Mann of Kansas City is more than a personal matter. Dr. E. B. Clements will be like Saul holding the cloaks of those who stoned the Christians if he lets the insult stand unrebuked.

A Negro coming to the republican convention, representing a constituency, ought to be honored in his office however thought of as an individual. And it is because Missouri's national committeeman does not insist that this office be respected, that Negroes in the crucial states, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and others, will pay back at the ballot box, what is done against the race in Kansas City.

There is no reason why we should care for individual or organization that does not care for us. It is no favor the Negro delegates ask when they insist upon perfect freedom to do in this convention what they have done in Chicago and Cleveland. It is a play upon words when the Chicago dailies and Mr. Mann say that Negroes in other republican conventions were housed in Negro hotels. Of course they were, but not all of them. Given a free choice, some went to Negro hotels, and others to white. There is plenty of evidence and no denial that Negroes in Cleveland and Chicago stopped also at white hotels. There is no excusing mistreatment of Negroes from New York or from Georgia because Kansas City is in the habit of discriminating against us here at home. It is the segregation, the restriction against our going where we please, the intentional insult, the implied condemnation, when we object to, and which we now prophecy will cost the republican party victory in November if the republican national committeeman in Missouri, Dr. E. B. Clements, does not wipe it out.

—o—

Kansas City Mo.

3-23-28

Cohen Carries Fight To Supreme Court

New Orleans, La., March 21.—(By the Associated Negro Press.)—A preliminary injunction enjoining and restraining Walter Cohen, comptroller of customs and men of his followers from interfering with the Republican State Central Committee and from attempting to name delegates to the National Republican Convention in Kansas City in June was made permanent Friday by Judge William H. Byrnes, Jr., in the Civil District Court. Cohen, through his attorney, W. O. Hart, says he will appeal to the Supreme Court. Eleven Republican committeemen affiliated with the faction represented by Emile Kuntz (Lily Whites) applied to the state court for the order.

LITTLE ROCK
ARKANSAS
MAR 18 1928

REPUBLICANS HAVE ACHIEVED HARMONY

Negroes Will Have Satisfactory Representation in Party Conventions.

A satisfactory arrangement for participation by negroes in the mass county convention of Republicans at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium Friday will be agreed upon, it was predicted yesterday by Wallace Townsend, chairman, and George L. Mallory, secretary of the Pulaski county Republican Central Committee.

Friction developed in the past few county conventions because of exclusion of negroes, but the problem practically has been solved through conferences with representatives of the negro Republicans, party leaders said. A delegation of 25 or more n will attend the convention, it w dicated.

Negro Republicans will be rep ed also on the delegations fro laski county to the Congressio trict convention at Russellville and to the state conventio May 3, according to the plan county is entitled to 20 deleg as many alternates at the di the state meetings.

Arkansas to Have 11 Votes.

One delegate and alternate to th national convention in Kansas Cit next June will be chosen at the dis trict convention, and four delegates a large and their alternates will b named at the state convention. Wit each Congressional district allowed on delegate, Arkansas will have 11 vote in the presidential balloting.

Mr. Mallory, national committeeman A. J. Russell, internal revenue collecto and state chairman, and other part chieftains for several months have ad vocated an uninstructed delegation t the national convention. It would b presumptuous for Arkansas Repub licans to sponsor any candidacy if i conflicted with the attitude of a ma jority of other delegations, Mr. Mal lory said, because the state has bee so strongly Democratic.

Herbert C. Hoover and former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois are continuing activities throughout the state, with the former apparently in the lead so far as assurance of friendly, though not instructed, delegates is concerned. Mr. Lowden's principal strength is in the eastern counties where he owns large plantations.

His personal representative, Ralph Bradford of Pontiac, Ill., visited Little Rock again last week, calling upon Mr. Mallory, Mr. Russell and Osro Cobb, secretary of the Republican state Central Committee and organization secretary of the Hoover-for-President League in Arkansas.

While the maneuvering for favorable delegates has been limited largely to the Hoover and Lowden forces, there has been increasing talk of the possibility that Vice President Charles G. Dawes may receive the nomination. Indications among Republicans here are that the Arkansas delegation would make no fight against the vice president if the trend should be toward him.

SUN
BALTIMORE, MD.
JAN 30 1928

Baltimore, Jan. 27.

Foxy Old G. O. P.

To the Editor of The Evening Sun:

Sir—Considering the letter of "a Negro Reader" relative to Negro disfranchisement, I would like to know what good the vote will do the Negroes in any State of the Union. Several hundred thousands of them vote the Republican ticket every year and every four years they decide the issue for the Republican nominee—but what do they get in return? You never hear of one even being mentioned as a member of the President's Cabinet, although they are entitled to some recognition for handing their vote over without a struggle.

Any sensible person knows that Bill Broening would not appoint a Negro to any of the "cabinet" jobs in the City Hall nor would any Republican President even consider having a Negro in his Cabinet.

One thing you have certainly got to hand the Republicans—they are clever and foxy. They keep Catholic, Jew and Negro pacified, but after election they certainly also keep them out of the picture.

Baltimore, Jan. 26. Student.

NEGRO DELEGATE SUBJECT STILL UNDECIDED

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 28—A query as to whether Negro delegates and visitors to the Republican national convention would be denied the privilege of visiting white delegates in their hotel rooms was presented Conrad Mann, chairman of the local convention committee, Monday.

Mr. Mann explained that the problem was for the hotels to handle. Local usage which does not permit regular use of hotels to Negroes, other than hotels for Negroes, would govern, he guessed.

The Negro delegates will be quartered by a local committee of Negroes assigned to the duty.

"It is my personal view," Mr. Mann says, "the Negro situation offers nothing different in convention times than in the usual case. I suppose Negroes desiring to visit white delegates in their rooms on convention business will be accorded the hotels' facilities as usual. When the convention was solicited, we made it plain that Negro delegates would find ample housing and restaurant facilities."

Blakely Ga News
W/ MAR 8 1928

Two white men and two negroes have been elected as delegates at large from Georgia to the National Republican Convention. The white men are T. N. Hendricks, of Edison, and G. F. Flanders, of Swainsboro; the negroes, Ben J. Davis, of Atlanta, and J. H. Watson, of Albany.

An Appeal To The Voters Of The 22nd Congressional Dist

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., Apr. 4.—The day upon which the citizens of this, the 22nd Congressional District will nominate their candidate to represent them in the United States Congress is near.

In view of this fact, there are two aspirants of the Republican party, and I deem it my duty to speak to my fellow citizens in behalf of one of them, namely Attorney Perry H. Hiles with whom I am intimately acquainted.

Owing to the fact that he is not generally known to our race thruout this district, I feel it to be my duty to tell you something about this good man, yet, however, he is well known among the 10,000 Negro citizens of Madison County, who say only commendable things about him.

His generosity is well known and acknowledged by all citizens of this county regardless of race, creed or color.

In mind the paramount question?" Is he safe? Can we trust him in any official capacity with our interest? We should know the attitude of any person toward our race as a whole because some of us are aware of the fact that the majority of men elected to office act friendly to a few and are not in spirit and indeed friendly to us as a race group, but use a few of us to decoy the rest to accomplish their aim and then their friendship and interest ends.

Now then, I can attest to the unwavering friendly attitude of Mr. Perry H. Hiles to our race as a whole.

Several times in this city and county he has championed our rights educationally, politically and patriotically.

In referring to the latter, which refers to him taking the initiative in behalf of establishing a monument to the memory of a former Governor of Illinois for his generous act of freeing several score of slaves on the present site now occupied by the Lincoln School of this city.

The state Legislature appropriated $5000 to erect this monument, but no one seemed to be particularly interested until a local Negro organization interested itself to have it erected upon the above mentioned spot; and immediately a contest ensued by persons of have it placed where he, as well as the citizenry, of this city and in fact the country, believed it properly should be. He has worked untiringly for twenty-five years to improve our economic condition He, with other outstanding citizens defied and prevented the county jail from being stormed and men of our race group accused of crimes for being deprived of the due course of law. Such is the kind of representative you will have in Congress providing voters of my race, which is one of the greatest on earth, cast a solid vote for him. He stands four square on the race question.

He is not bias toward any race or group. He is interested in the welfare and prosperity of all citizens The things for which he stands are in keeping with his big heart for humanity. He believes every race man and woman in America should be permitted to vote according to the constitution of the United States. Therefore he stands for the enforcement of the 13th, 14th and fifteenth amendments.. These amendments will not be enforced so as to allow our fellow race group in the south to exercise their franchise until those of us who are permitted to vote send men like Mr. Hiles to Congress who will vote for, speak and demand our rights. Last but not least, what ever local recognition the race is entitled to he will not hesitate in using his influence to secure it.

His nomination on April 10th and election in November will mean a victory for the Negroes of the 22d district as well as our friends of the other race and another real friend in the Congress of the United States.

The following individuals and organizations unhesitatingly endorse attorney P. H. Hiles: Rev. Charles Tinsley, former pastor of Wesley Chapel A. M. E. Church of this city; Phillis Wheatley Club Womens Federated Club; Progressive Club; welfare Ass'n. Baptist Ministers Alliances of East St. Louis; Ministers of the A. M. E. Church of East St. Louis District Conference.

Yours for race loyalty under circumstances,
[illegible] Gaines. —Adv

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

Klan Organ's Special Hoover Edition Proves A "Dud"

Was Advertised To Show Al Smith's Friendship For The Negro.

WASHINGTON. — The Fellowship Forum's muchly over-advertised "special edition", designed to show Al Smith's friendship for the Negro, made its appearance without creating the hoped-for sensation.

It proved to be a dud. In this issue, which advocated the election of Mr. Hoover and the defeat of Mr. Smith, there was published a picture of the Republican Presidential candidate.

Most of the articles were largely a hash of what has been appearing in the Klan's national organ throughout the campaign. A picture of Civil Service Commissioner Ferdinand Q. Morton of New York dictating to a white stenographer was again prominently displayed.

Race Mixing

In large type, reference was made to Negroes "rushing to Al Smith's ranks in the hopes of gaining race mixture."

"The evidence of the truth of this strange situation has been piled up so high that Smith's pro-Negro leanings are now generally accepted thruout the country, and political writers, even in the strongest pro-Smith newspapers, no longer seek to hide the real condition," reports the Fellowship Forum.

"On the other hand, in almost every report on the campaign from almost every State where the Negro votes, 'How the Negro Will Vote', is invariably mentioned — with the added comment that 'the bulk of the colored vote will go to Smith'."

Smiths' Address

In another article the Klan organ publishes what is purported to be a statement from the New York Times, made by Governor Smith at Liberty Hall, New York City, November 5, 1923, when addressing 5,000 Negroes.

"There is not a man in this State today who so firmly believes in the Declaration of Independence as I do, and I take it when the Constitution says, 'all men were created equal' it means what it say," Governor Smith is quoted as saying.

Copies Given Free

This statement by the Democratic Presidential nominee is published by the Fellowship Forum to prove that he advocates "social equality".

Copies of this issue of the Forum are being given away at Republican gatherings North and South, and in many instances where Republican Negroes have attended the meetings were handed one of these scurrilous sheets.

IT'S HOOVER

The great majority of American black voters are expected to vote for Hoover in the coming election next week. They have been bombarded from within and from without during the campaign as never before. They have listened to the diatribes and invectives of the campaigners, they have heard scholarly exhortations over the radio and they have read column after column of propaganda released through the newspapers. The religious issue has been whispered, the imigration problem has been shouted, the prohibition question has been thundered, the nullification possibility has been cryptically reviewed. Farm problems, segregation, and the bourbon south have also come in for their share. The Ku Klux Klan has been painted with word wizardry and the virtues of Abraham Lincoln have been paraded before the black voters with new and surprising artistry and the black voters are going to stay in the Republican ranks. But the most compelling reason that has been advanced is the threat and fear of Senator Joe Robinson. The thought of him in the presidential chair haunts the mind of black people. He looms up as a grim spectre of evil who spreads lynching, slavery and pandemonium all over the land. The black voters flee from Governor Smith when they think of the possibility of his demise in office, if elected, and the advent of Joe Robinson in the white house.

The black electorate distinctly remembers that Theodore Roosevelt was sworn in office in the Adirondack mountains when an assassin's weapon felled President William McKinley. They remember that Calvin Coolidge, the man of destiny, was sworn in in the White mountains when the Grim Reaper threw his mantle of death over the stalwart figure of Warren Harding. And they fully realize and appreciate that life is uncertain and only a flimsy thread separates us mortals from the eternal shores. They know that it exists within the range of the possible for our next president to fall in the service of his country and that the vice president would then be sworn in to finish his term of office, and with the thought of Joe Robinson taking his oath as president of the United States of America in the pestilential flat lands of Arkansas throws them into convulsive shudders of wild-eyed fear. It is a horrible thought, and therefore unthinkable for the average voter to put his cross in the Democratic circle.

There are other issues that carry weight and force but this is the one question that the glib-tongued orators cannot answer. Governor Smith is recognized as a man of ability and there are many who believe that he has the will to serve all the people of the nation but the black voters fear his associates. They know that "evil association corrupts good manners" and those who have entertained thoughts of bolting the Republicans retrace their steps, for the most part, and put their faith in Hoover and Curtis.

The black electorate has made a fairly accurate analysis of the present campaign and the Democrats have been given a listening ear to find out what the party and the east side of New York had to offer and since nothing whatsoever has been promised of a specific nature no good reason has been submitted to show why anything progressive and remedial was to be expected. On the other hand Mr. Hoover and his party have the precedents of the past. The people feel that the Republican party has done something in the past and they are hopeful that Mr. Hoover will carry out the traditions. They believe that he is cast in the mold of a humanitarian and they do not fear him. We will not expect our rights to decline under him.

Because of our economic situation the questions of water power, "state socialism," farm relief and tariff do not give us immediate concern. We are more interested in the ballot, segregation, discrimination and representation in the affairs of the government. Reason, common sense, history and hope line us up in the Republican ranks. If Mr. Hoover is elected we trust that he will serve all of the people without regard to race, color or creed. Its Hoover for us.

White People of South Face Most Critical Era Since 1860, Crisp Says

If Ranks Split, Social and Political Disintegration Will Follow, He Warns

Macon, Ga., November 1.—(Special.) — Representative Charles R Crisp told a large audience of voters here tonight the south is in the midst of the "most critical national campaign since 1860" in an address appealing to democrats of Georgia to stand by the national ticket next Tuesday.

"If our white people decline and the republicans succeed in the election," he declared, "our social and political civilization is endangered."

In his address the congressman lauded the qualifications and record of Governor Smith and excoriated the history of the republican party with regard to the south.

The speaker flayed tactics of the republican candidate, declaring:

"The republicans, realizing the desperateness of their cause, by a campaign of whispering, misrepresentation, and abuse, are making herculean efforts to divide the south. If the whites divide, the negro will be brought back into politics, his vote will be the balance of power between the parties, and our white supremacy over local affairs will be endangered.

"I appeal to the white people of the south to ponder well this situation and to do nothing themselves to light the torch that might bring political chaos upon our beloved southland."

Continuing, the speaker said:

"The democratic candidate for president, Governor Smith, is an able, honest, bold, courageous statesman the prototype of Andrew Jackson, a true tribune of the people. He possesses remarkable executive ability; he is warm-hearted, magnetic and a leader of men. His discharge of the duties of chief executive of the state of New York for eight years has demonstrated remarkable qualities of leadership. He has humanized the government of New York and has accomplished more real reforms for the benefit of the citizens of that state than any of its chief executives.

"His campaign for the presidency has demonstrated a marvelous grasp of national issues and a real capacity for leadership. If elected president he will humanize the national government and will accomplish, through his leadership, legislation that will redound to the benefit of the masses of the American people."

Compares Qualifications.

The congressman delivered a graphic descriptive comparison of the qualifications of Governor Smith with regard to those of other national leaders and predecessors in the white house. "It has been charged," he said, "that the only business qualification or experience that Governor Smith has had to equip him to discharge the duties of president was that as a boy he sold newspapers, at 16 drove a dray to support his mother, for three years was a clerk in a fish market at $75 a month, and later was president of a truck association.

"This assertion is cruelly unjust and totally inaccurate. The promulgator of it evidently does not consider as business experience Governor Smith's long, honorable and creditable service in the New York legislature, as speaker of that body, as sheriff of the city of New York (which office President Cleveland also filled) nor his tenure for the last eight years of the governorship of the state of New York.

"It must be conceded by all that the duties of the chief executive of the state of New York more nearly approach the duties of president of the United States than those of any other position in the United States. As such he presides over the destiny of practically one-tenth of the people within the United States. That he has measured up to the responsibility to the highest degree of efficiency is testified to by such distinguished New Yorkers, republicans in politics, as Charles Evans Hughes, Elihu Root, Francis Peabody and Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, who has recently conferred its highest degree upon Governor Smith for his efficiency as governor.

"It may be of interest to note that President Coolidge was never connected with any business, but, from early maturity, was in state politics in Massachusetts, serving in both branches of the legislature; as lieutenant governor, and as governor, from which office he was elevated to the vice presidency and, upon the death of President Harding, became president. The duties of governor of Massachusetts are incomparable to the duties and responsibilities of the governorship of New York.

Hoover's Qualifications.

"Now, what are Mr. Hoover's business qualifications? He is a distinguished mining engineer, all of his activities in this line having been exercised in foreign countries, and, notwithstanding his knowledge of mining engineering, as a member of the cabinet, the government did not receive the benefit of his expert knowledge when the oil rights of the United States were bartered away by Secretary Fall!

Ingratitude of Hoover.

"He came into the limelight as food administrator under appointment of Mr. Wilson, and yet in his speech of acceptance and other public addresses he has never had the gratitude to say one kind word about President Wilson, the man who made him. In the discharge of his duties as food administrator, he had the assistance of thousands of the ablest business executives of the nation, who, through patriotism, were serving their country as dollar-a-year men; and, in the discharge of his duties in this capacity, business economies were not considered, overhead charges were enormous, expenditures were lavish, the sole object being to send the food abroad, this food being paid for by appropriations from the federal treasury and contributions by charitable people of the nation.

"As secretary of commerce, Mr. Hoover has discharged his duties with ability, but this is only one of the many governmental activities. Mr. Hoover's experience falls far short of that of Governor Smith to discharge the responsible duties of president. Friends, you need have no fear as to the democratic candidate's qualifications to make a great president of the United States!"

The paramount issue before the voters in this campaign, Mr. Crisp asserted, is remedial farm legislation. "The economic situation on the farms is deplorable," he told his hearers. "Farms are being abandoned, lands and homes are being sold for taxes, bankruptcy is facing thousands of our farmers; and, unless something is done to ameliorate these conditions the rural sections of our country will become peonized and pauperized.

"Governor Smith, realizing the gravity of this situation, has pledged himself to support and work for farm legislation, and, in my judgment, the surest way to get farm legislation is through the democratic party. Governor Smith's election will give immediately to the southern cotton farmers this rellief—that Secretary of Agriculture Jardine will walk the plank—Jardine, who last year, by his unauthorized, illegal announcement that the price of cotton was too high, caused the southern farmers a loss of over one hundred millions of dollars. Republican success means that Mr. Jardine will continue secretary of agriculture and again be in a position to crush the southern cotton farmer.

G. O. P. Farm Policy.

"For seven and a half years, the republicans have been in power. They have played political football with farm legislation and, if entrusted with power again, the farmers of the nation cannot look to this party of the special interests, the party dominated by the manufacturers and preeators wealth of the country, to give relief. Cheaper fertilizer would be a boon to the agricultural interests of the country. For eight years the power trust and fertilizer interests have defeated the manufacture of cheaper nitrates for agricultural purposes at Muscle Shoals. The last congress submitted a bill to the president, which would have given the farmers nitrogens at one-half the present cost, but President Coolidge pocket-vetoed the bill. Governor Smith publicly advocates the manufacture of nitrogen at Muscle Shoals for cheaper fertilizer and pledges himself to support and advocate farm relief legislation, carrying out the farm plank of the Houston democratic platform, which the ablest farm leaders of the United States agree will restore agriculture to a prosperous basis.

"The republican party was organiz[illegible] in opposition to the south and, up to this present hour, has been antagonistic to it. As an evidence of this, in the Kansas City platform is a plank favorable to the Dyer anti-lynching bill, a law aimed directly at the south. It does not apply also to the gangster gunmen of Chicago and Philadelphia and elsewhere who commit murder for a pittance. . . . I am opposed to lynching and, as a citizen, would do anything in my power to prevent one, for I believe in law and order and the courts, but this is an infamously unjust and outrageous law. In every lynching there are two principals—the unfortunate victim, usually a woman, who has suffered worse than death followed by death, and the brute lynched.

How the Dyer Act Works.

"This law proposes to give nothing in the way of financial relief to the family of the innocent victim, but proposes to award ten thousand dollars to the family of the one lynched. A horrible crime may be committed, say, in one of your adjoining counties, and three or four redblooded Americans—call them lawless if you will—may bring the culprit into the outskirts of Bibb county at midnight and lynch him, and the law-abiding Christian citizens and property owners of Bibb county at home asleep and knowing nothing of the lynching, under this law, will be made to pay taxes to contribute to a fund to the family of the person lynched in the sum of ten thousand dollars.

"I am glad to say the only white man in Georgia that I have heard say he approved this law was Doctor Bascom Anthony, the presiding elder of my own church, who is going all over Georgia making political speeches for the republican candidate for president. He is inconsistent in his advocacy of the republican candidate, as he is favoring this law and is doing everything he can to make possible the enactment of the law, for Mr. Hoover has pledged himself to carry out this and every other plank of the republican platform.

"You who favor the Dyer anti-lynch law should vote for Mr. Hoover if you consider that of paramount importance, for his election will insure its executive approval and enforcement if it can get through congress. But you who oppose this slap at and injustice to the south, whether you call yourselves "Anti-Smith democrats" or "Hoover democrats," think well before you vote for the republican candidate for president. I don't believe, on mature reflection, you will lend your influence and vote to bring about this obnoxious legislation.

Prohibition Issue.

"I differ with Governor Smith on his prohibition views, and congress will not carry out his suggestion of modification and the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act are not endangered by Governor Smith's election, and he has pledged himself to enforce all provisions of the constitution, including the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act if elected, and he will surely perform that promise. The republicans have made an honest effort to enforce the prohibition law, and you and I know that liquor can be bought in any town in the United States.

"Senator Sheppard, the author of the eighteenth amendment; Hon. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy under President Wilson and the man who eliminated liquor from the United States navy; W. J. Bryan's daughter, Senator Barkley, Senator Glass, of Virginia, and practically every democrat who prominently participated in the enactment of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act are actively supporting Governor Smith. Governor Smith's views on this question are similar to those of President Wilson, Mr. Cox, and Mr. Davis, all favoring states' rights on this question, and in the south there was no hue and cry raised against either of these former democratic candidates on account of his prohibition views. Can it be because they were Protestants that this issue was not raised? . . . Oh, my prohibition friends, you need have no fear of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment if Governor Smith is elected president.

G. O. P. PAYROLL TOTAL $2,620 EACH WEEK

Women Workers Maximum $125 Weekly and Men $150 A Week

G. O. P. NEWSPAPER "AD" BILL $14,420

Pittsburgh, $1,000; N. Y., $800; Phila., $500; D. C., $400; Balto., $500

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Republican colored voters division filed no special report of its campaign receipts and expenditures with the clerk of the House of Representatives.

The report of the Republican national committee contains the expenditures charged against the budget allowed the colored voters division. Total disbursed by the committee which was headed by John R. Hawkins will total over $100,000. Colored workers received the same pay as whites doing this work.

According to the report of the Republic national committee the payroll of the colored voters division included the following weekly payments:

Weekly Payroll

Robert L. Mays, Chicago, $50; Frank A. Byron, Cnicago, $50; Mrs. Myrtle Foster Cook, Chicago, $125; Mrs. Lethia C. Fleming, Chicago, $125; Mrs. Grace Evans, Chicago, $75; J. A. Josey, Chicago, $50; George W. Lee, Chicago, $75; Carey B. Lewis, Chicago, $75; Homer G. Phillips, Chicago, $125; A. H. Roberts, Chicago, $125; P. L. Prattis, Chicago, $50; C. R. Richardson, Chicago, $125; Roscoe C. Simmons, Chicago, $125.

Barnett, $150

Rienzi B. Lemus, Washington, $70; George W. Harris, New York, $125; Mrs. Addie W. Hunton, New York, $100; Charles E. Mitchell, New York, $70; Fred R. Moore, New York, $125; R. L. Vann, Washington, $125; Ernest T. Attwell, New York, $125; William T. Andrews, Baltimore, $100; Mrs. Daisy E. Lampkins, Washington, $100; West A. Hamilton, Washington, $75; Claude A. Barnett, Washington, $150; John T. Risher, Washington, $75; Miss Jeannette Carter, Washington, $50; Mrs. Sarah Pelham Speaks, Washington, $50; W. H. C. Brown, New York, $70.

Hawkins Declined Expenses

Neither John R. Hawkins, chairman of the Republican colored voters division, nor Albon L. Holsey, its secretary, is listed as having received any salary. Mr. Hawkins refused his expenses.

Mrs. Garvey In Payroll

Mrs. Amy Garvey, New York, wife of Marcus Garvey, is listed as having received $35.

The following editors are listed in the report of the Republican national committee as having been paid as follows for their news service:

D. C., $100—Oklahoma, $500

E. W. B. Isaac, Nashville, Tenn., $200; T. Edward Hill, Keystone, W. Va., $400; Roscoe Dungee, Oklahoma City, Okla, $500; John Rice, Dallas, Texas, $200; A. M. Houghton, Boston, Mass., $350; W. A. Hamilton, Washington, D. C., $100; Roy C. Garvin, Kansas City, Kan., $100; George W. McDade, Knoxville, Tenn., $120; Jas. E. Washington, Memphis, Tenn. $150; T. J. Johnson, Memphis, Tenn., $400.

Courier, $1,000—Tribune, $50

I. Willis Cole, Louisville, Ky., $400; Webster L. Porter, Knoxville, Tenn., $500; Robert L. Vann, $1,000; W. T. Andrews, Baltimore, Md., $500; P. B. Young, Norfolk, Va., $200; F. Morris Murray, Washington, D. C., $400; E. Washington Rhodes, Philadelphia, Pa., $500; Arthur Lynch, Philadelphia, Pa., $300; George W. Harris, New York City, $500; Fred R. Moore, New York City, $500; William H. Davis, New York City, $800; William Monroe Trotter, Boston, Mass., $250.

Argus, $700—Call, $1,000

William J. Robinson, Detroit Mich., $250; Cornelius Edwoods, Toledo, O., $250; Norman McGhee Cleveland, O., $250: John Rives, Dayton, O., $250; W. P. Dabney, Cincinnati, O., $250; Jacob Tipper, Chicago, Ill., $200; A. M. Davis Chicago, Ill., $250; J. A. Josey, Milwaukee, Wis., $200; J. E. Mitchell, St. Louis, Mo., $700; N. B. Young, Jr., St. Louis, Mo., $150; E. M. Bryant, St. Louis, Mo., $150; C. A. Franklin, Kansas City, Mo., $1,000.

$100 For Texas

John Albert Williams, Omaha, Nebraska, $250; C. C. Calloway, Omaha, Nebr., $250; James B. Morris, Des Moines, Iowa, $250; S. B. Wilson, Nashville, Tenn., $300; S. W. Broome, Memphis, Tenn., $150; Benjamin J. Perkins, Memphis, Tenn., $150; C. F. Richardson, Houston, Texas, $100; Zenobia Alexander, Buffalo, N. Y. $100; Harry C. Smith, Cleveland, O., $150; G. B. Bailey, Newark, N. J., $300, and Joseph D. Bibb, $150.

G. O. P. HALTS OPENING OF DELAWARE SCHOOL

WILMINGTON, Del. — There has been excitement galore in Wilmington the past week over the opening of a new colored high school, which has been built and equipped by Pierre S. du Pont at a cost of over $1,000,000. Politics is said to be at the bottom of the trouble.

Du Pont is a supporter of Smith for President and recently gave $50,000 to his campaign. Republicans who are in power in the school and municipal offices are accused of being dilatory in appropriating the money to take up the administrative work in connection with the opera-tion of the school.

Citizens are holding protest meetings and have had several conferences with members of the School Board, which carried its complaints before the School Board is headed by Dr. J. B. Stubbs, Dr. H. B. Jamison, and Charles H. Colburn. The feeling is general that Mr. du Pont and they municipal offices are not being given fair considera-ing dilatory in appropriating the money. There are seven members of the School Board, six of whom are work in connection with the opera-Republicans and one Democrat. tion of the school. The Howard High School has twelve classrooms, eleven special rooms, a cafeteria, modern apartments, rest room and store room. It is the most modern and up-to-date school building in the city.

and totally inaccurate. The promulgator of it evidently does not consider as business experience Governor Smith's long, honorable and creditable service in the New York legislature, as speaker of that body, as sheriff of the city of New York (which office President Cleveland also filled), nor his tenure for the last eight years of the governorship of the state of New York.

"It must be conceded by all that the duties of the chief executive of the state of New York more nearly approach the duties of president of the United States than those of any other position in the United States. As such he presides over the destiny of practically one-tenth of the people within the United States. That he has measured up to the responsibility to the highest degree of efficiency is testified to by such distinguished New Yorkers, republicans in politics, as Charles Evans Hughes, Elihu Root, Francis Peabody and Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, who has recently conferred its highest degree upon Governor Smith for his efficiency as governor.

"It may be of interest to note that President Coolidge was never connected with any business, but, from early maturity, was in state politics in Massachusetts, serving in both branches of the legislature; as lieutenant governor, and as governor, from which office he was elevated to the vice presidency and, upon the death of President Harding, became president. The duties of governor of Massachusetts are incomparable to the duties and responsibilities of the governorship of New York.

Hoover's Qualifications.

"Now, what are Mr. Hoover's business qualifications? He is a distinguished mining engineer, all of his activities in this line having been exercised in foreign countries, and, notwithstanding his knowledge of mining engineering, as a member of the cabinet, the government did not receive the benefit of his expert knowledge when the oil rights of the United States were bartered away by Secretary Fall!

Ingratitude of Hoover.

"He came into the limelight as food administrator under appointment of Mr. Wilson, and yet in his speech of acceptance and other public addresses he has never had the gratitude to say one kind word about President Wilson, the man who made him. In the discharge of his duties as food administrator, he had the assistance of thousands of the ablest business executives of the nation, who, through patriotism, were serving their country as dollar-a-year men; and, in the discharge of his duties in this capacity, business economies were not considered, overhead charges were enormous, expenditures were lavish, the sole object being to send the food abroad, this food being paid for by appropriations from the federal treasury and contributions by charitable people of the nation.

"As secretary of commerce, Mr. Hoover has discharged his duties with ability, but this is only one of the many governmental activities. Mr. Hoover's experience falls far short of that of Governor Smith to discharge the responsible duties of president. Friends, you need have no fear as to the democratic candidate's qualifications to make a great president of the United States!"

The paramount issue before the voters in this campaign, Mr. Crisp asserted, is remedial farm legislation. "The economic situation on the farms is deplorable," he told his hearers. "Farms are being abandoned, lands and homes are being sold for taxes, bankruptcy is facing thousands of our farmers; and, unless something is done to ameliorate these conditions the rural sections of our country will become peonized and pauperized.

"Governor Smith, realizing the gravity of this situation, has pledged himself to support and work for farm legislation, and, in my judgment, the surest way to get farm legislation is through the democratic party. Governor Smith's election will give immediately to the southern cotton farmers this relief—that Secretary of Agriculture Jardine will walk the plank—Jardine, who last year, by his unauthorized, illegal announcement that the price of cotton was too high, caused the southern farmers a loss of over one hundred millions of dollars. Republican success means that Mr. Jardine will continue secretary of agriculture and again be in a position to crush the southern cotton farmer.

G. O. P. Farm Policy.

"For seven and a half years, the republicans have been in power. They have played political football with farm legislation and, if entrusted with power again, the farmers of the nation cannot look to this party of the special interests, the party dominated by the manufacturers and preators of wealth of the country, to give relief. Cheaper fertilizer would be a boon to the agricultural interests of the country. For eight years the power trust and fertilizer interests have defeated the manufacture of cheaper nitrates for agricultural purposes at Muscle Shoals. The last congress submitted a bill to the president, which would have given the farmers nitrogens at one-half the present cost, but President Coolidge pocket-vetoed the bill. Governor Smith publicly advocates the manufacture of nitrogen at Muscle Shoals for cheaper fertilizer and pledges himself to support and advocate farm relief legislation, carrying out the farm plank of the Houston democratic platform, which the ablest farm leaders of the United States agree will restore agriculture to a prosperous basis.

"The republican party was organized in opposition to the south and, up to this present hour, has been antagonistic to it. As an evidence of this, in the Kansas City platform is a plank favorable to the Dyer anti-lynching bill, a law aimed directly at the south. It does not apply also to the gangster gunmen of Chicago and Philadelphia and elsewhere who commit murder for a pittance. . . . I am opposed to lynching and, as a citizen, would do anything in my power to prevent one, for I believe in law and order and the courts, but this is an infamously unjust and outrageous law. In every lynching there are two principals—the unfortunate victim, usually a woman, who has suffered worse than death followed by death, and the brute lynched.

How the Dyer Act Works.

"This law proposes to give nothing in the way of financial relief to the family of the innocent victim, but proposes to award ten thousand dollars to the family of the one lynched. A horrible crime may be committed, say, in one of your adjoining counties, and three or four redblooded Americans—call them lawless if you will—may bring the culprit into the outskirts of Bibb county at midnight and lynch him, and the law-abiding Christian citizens and property owners of Bibb county at home asleep and knowing nothing of the lynching, under this law, will be made to pay taxes to contribute to a fund to the family of the person lynched in the sum of ten thousand dollars.

"I am glad to say the only white man in Georgia that I have heard say he approved this law was Doctor Bascom Anthony, the presiding elder of my own church, who is going all over Georgia making political speeches for the republican candidate for president. He is inconsistent in his advocacy of the republican candidate, as he is favoring this law and is doing everything he can to make possible the enactment of the law, for Mr. Hoover has pledged himself to carry out this and every other plank of the republican platform.

"You who favor the Dyer anti-lynch law should vote for Mr. Hoover if you consider that of paramount importance, for his election will insure its executive approval and enforcement if it can get through congress. But you who oppose this slap at and injustice to the south, whether you call yourselves "Anti-Smith democrats" or "Hoover democrats," think well before you vote for the republican candidate for president. I don't believe, on mature reflection, you will lend your influence and vote to bring about this obnoxious legislation.

Prohibition Issue.

"I differ with Governor Smith on his prohibition views, and congress will not carry out his suggestion of modification and the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act are not endangered by Governor Smith's election, and he has pledged himself to enforce all provisions of the constitution, including the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act if elected, and he will surely perform that promise. The republicans have made an honest effort to enforce the prohibition law, and you and I know that liquor can be bought in any town in the United States.

"Senator Sheppard, the author of the eighteenth amendment; Hon. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy under President Wilson and the man who eliminated liquor from the United States navy; W. J. Bryan's daughter. Senator Barkley, Senator Glass, of Virginia, and practically every democrat who prominently participated in the enactment of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act are actively supporting Governor Smith. Governor Smith's views on this question are similar to those of President Wilson, Mr. Cox, and Mr. Davis, all favoring states' rights on this question, and in the south there was no hue and cry raised against either of these former democratic candidates on account of his prohibition views. Can it be because they were Protestants that this issue was not raised? . . . Oh, my prohibition friends, you need have no fear of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment if Governor Smith is elected president.

G. O. P. PAYROLL TOTAL $2,620 EACH WEEK

Women Workers Maximum $125 Weekly and Men $150 A Week

G. O. P. NEWSPAPER 'AD" BILL $14,420

Pittsburgh, $1,000; N. Y., $800; Phila., $500; D. C., $400; Balto., $500

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Republican colored voters division filed no special report of its campaign receipts and expenditures with the clerk of the House of Representatives.

The report of the Republican national committee contains the expenditures charged against the budget allowed the colored voters division. Total disbursed by the committee which was headed by John R. Hawkins will total over $100,000. Colored workers received the same pay as whites doing this work.

According to the report of the Republic national committee the payroll of the colored voters division included the following weekly payments:

Weekly Payroll

Robert L. Mays, Chicago, $50; Frank A. Byron, Chicago, $50; Mrs. Myrtle Foster Cook, Chicago, $125; Mrs. Lethia C. Fleming, Chicago, $125; Mrs. Grace Evans, Chicago, $75; J. A. Josey, Chicago, $50; George W. Lee, Chicago, $75; Carey B. Lewis, Chicago, $75; Homer G. Phillips, Chicago, $125; A. H. Roberts, Chicago, $125; P. L. Prattis, Chicago, $50; C. R. Richardson, Chicago, $125; Roscoe C. Simmons, Chicago, $125.

Barnett, $150

Rienzi B. Lemus, Washington, $70; George W. Harris, New York, $125; Mrs. Addie W. Hunton, New York, $100; Charles E. Mitchell, New York, $70; Fred R. Moore, New York, $125; R. L. Vann, Washington, $125; Ernest T. Attwell, New York, $125; William T. Andrews, Baltimore, $100; Mrs. Daisy E. Lampkins, Washington, $100; West A. Hamilton, Washington, $75; Claude A. Barnett, Washington, $150; John T. Risher, Washington, $75; Miss Jeannette Carter, Washington, $50; Mrs. Sarah Pelham Speaks, Washington, $50; W. H. C. Brown, New York, $70.

Hawkins Declined Expenses

Neither John R. Hawkins, chairman of the Republican colored voters division, nor Albon L. Holsey, its secretary, is listed as having received any salary. Mr. Hawkins refused his expenses.

Mrs. Garvey In Payroll

Mrs. Amy Garvey, New York, wife of Marcus Garvey, is listed as having received $35.

The following editors are listed in the report of the Republican national committee as having been paid as follows for their news service:

D. C., $100—Oklahoma, $500

E. W. B. Isaac, Nashville, Tenn., $200; T. Edward Hill, Keystone, W. Va., $400; Roscoe Dungee, Oklahoma City, Okla, $500; John Rice, Dallas, Texas, $200; A. M. Houghton, Boston, Mass., $350; W. A. Hamilton, Washington, D. C., $100; Roy C. Garvin, Kansas City, Kan., $100; George W. McDade, Knoxville, Tenn., $120; Jas. E. Washington, Memphis, Tenn., $150; T. J. Johnson, Memphis, Tenn., $400.

Courier, $1,000—Tribune, $50

I. Willis Cole, Louisville, Ky., $400; Webster L. Porter, Knoxville, Tenn., $500; Robert L. Vann, $1,000; W. T. Andrews, Baltimore, Md., $500; P. B. Young, Norfolk, Va., $200; F. Morris Murray, Washington, D. C., $400; E. Washington Rhodes, Philadelphia, Pa., $500; Arthur Lynch, Philadelphia, Pa., $300; George W. Harris, New York City, $500; Fred R. Moore, New York City, $500; William H. Davis, New York City, $800; William Monroe Trotter, Boston, Mass., $250.

Argus, $700—Call, $1,000

William J. Robinson, Detroit, Mich., $250; Cornelius Edwoods, Toledo, O., $250; Norman McGhee, Cleveland, O., $250: John Rives, Dayton, O., $250; W. P. Dabney, Cincinnati, O., $250; Jacob Tipper, Chicago, Ill., $200; A. M. Davis Chicago, Ill., $250; J. A. Josey, Milwaukee, Wis., $200; J. E. Mitchell, St. Louis, Mo., $700; N. B. Young, Jr., St. Louis, Mo., $150; E. M. Bryant, St. Louis, Mo., $150; C. A. Franklin, Kansas City, Mo., $1,000.

$100 For Texas

John Albert Williams, Omaha, Nebraska, $250; C. C. Calloway, Omaha, Nebr., $250; James B. Morris, Des Moines, Iowa, $250; S. B. Wilson, Nashville, Tenn., $300; S. W. Broome, Memphis, Tenn., $150; Benjamin J. Perkins, Memphis, Tenn., $150; C. F. Richardson, Houston, Texas, $100; Zenobia Alexander, Buffalo, N. Y., $100; Harry C. Smith, Cleveland, O., $150; G. B. Bailey, Newark, N. J., $300, and Joseph D. Bitt, $150.

G. O. P. HALTS OPENING OF DELAWARE SCHOOL

WILMINGTON, Del. — There has been excitement galore in Wilmington the past week over the opening of a new colored high school, which has been built and equipped by Pierre S. du Pont at a cost of over $1,000,000. Politics is said to be at the bottom of the trouble.

Du Pont is a supporter of Smith for President and recently gave $50,000 to his campaign. Republicans who are in power in the school and municipal offices are accused of being dilatory in appropriating the money to take up the administrative work in connection with the opera-tion of the school.

Citizens are holding protest meetings and have had several conferences with members of the School Board. The committee of citizens which carried its complaints before the School Board is headed by Dr. J. B. Stubbs, Dr. H. B. Jamison, and Charles H. Colburn. The feeling is general that Mr. du Pont and they

There are seven members of the School Board, six of whom are Republicans and one Democrat.

The Howard High School has twelve classrooms, eleven special rooms, a cafeteria, modern apartment and store room. It is the most modern and up-to-date school building in the city.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

Negroes Use Hoover Money In Fight To Beat Whites In Southern States

WASHINGTON, May 29—(AP)—While the Senate campaign funds committee was delving today into uses made of money given Southern negro Republican national committeemen to further the campaign of Herbert Hoover, the investigation suddenly became a two-headed affair.

The House injected itself into the heretofore almost exclusively Senate field of inquiry by adopting the Snell resolution calling for appointment of a committee to investigate the campaign expenses of candidates for the vice-presidency, the House and Senate as well as those for president, now being examined by the Senate.

When the new investigation will get underway is not determined. Under the chairmanship of Representative Lehlbach, Republican, New Jersey, the committee will determine its own course, being directed under the resolution of Chairman Snell, of the rules committee, to report its findings by next Jan. 1.

Serving with Lehlbach will be Newton, Minnesota and Nelson, Maine, Republicans, and Ragon, Arkansas and Black, New York, Democrats.

$15,000 Spent In Georgia.

In a session broken by the necessity of the inquisitors rushing off to participate in a vote on adjournment the Senate committee learned from Ben J. Davis, negro Republican committeeman for Georgia, and Perry W. Howard, in the same role for Mississippi, that $15,750 had been spent by them in those states on behalf of Hoover.

It learned also something of the fight there between negroes and whites for control of the Republican organization.

Both witnesses said they were not so sure now as they were a few months ago that Hoover would get the support they had counted on in their home states.

Davis related that opposition to him had sprung up in Georgia and that delegates were being told that he had received large sums of money from the Hoover campaign chest and had not divided fairly with the other delegates. He denied that the reports were true, but said he was not certain that the complete delegation could be delivered to Hoover.

Mississippi Gets $11,000

Howard, a special assistant to the attorney general here, said $11,800 had been spent in behalf of Hoover in Mississippi and added that a "lily white," organization had sprung up, backing Hoover's candidacy and fighting his organization. The fight, he said, would be carried before the Republican National Credentials committee at Kansas City and there, he said, if he finds that he has "been double crossed" in favor of the "Lily Whites," he might not vote his delegation for Hoover.

Davis told of receiving $2,200 from Rush L. Holland, a former assistant attorney general and one of Hoover's campaign managers. Of this sum $200 was for his traveling expenses, the witness said. He was on the stand about two hours and was often confused by questions fired at him by the inquisitors. First he said the money he received had been used to pay campaign expenses including stenographic hire. He admitted that the stenographers already were employed in his office and then he said the money had been turned over to the Georgia state committee to meet expenses of delegates to the state convention. He presented bills for having printed, as advertising, calls for the National and State Republican conventions in the paper of which he is editor, the Atlanta Independent, amounting to less than a thousand dollars.

In addition to the money received from Holland, the Georgia committeeman testified he had received $750 from J. H. Watson, another Georgia negro, $200 from G. F. Flanders and about $800 collected throughout the state. He said he kept no books of his campaign expenditures and could not tell just how the money had been spent.

Howard said he had received $2,000 from Holland to be spent in promoting Hoover's campaign in Mississippi, $2,000 for his office here, most of which had been spent in Mississippi from the Hoover national committee and said he expected $1,000 more. He presented a copy of the expenses of the Mississippi Republican committee which showed $2,900 had been expended and that the committee had a deficit of $4,900. All of this, he said, had been expended in behalf of Hoover's candidacy.

Fought By White Men.

Both negroes told stories of how white men had endeavored to take control from them and how they fought such attempts. Davis said Clark Greer, a white man of Washington, went to Georgia and announced he was there to run the Hoover campaign. Davis said he then came to Washington and called on Postmaster General New who advised him to see Holland. Davis then visited Howard who arranged for him to meet Holland after which the Georgia negro received two payments to be used "legitimately" in favor of Hoover. He got $1,200 the first time and $1,000 the second time. He added that Greer did not succeed in getting control of the Hoover campaign in his state.

Howard told the committee that L. O. Crosby, a white man and former Democrat of his state who had become a close friend of Hoover's during the floods last year, had organized a party to support Hoover. He went to see Crosby, the witness testified, at Holland's suggestion believing Crosby would finance his organization's fight in Mississippi. Howard said Crosby agreed to help only if Howard would consent to step out and let Lamont Rowland, a partner of Howard's become the Republican national committeeman.

Howard said he declined to accede and left the conference, after which Crosby organized a "Lily White" Republican party. Each faction, the witness said, had selected delegates to the Republican national convention and their fight would be decided at Kansas City. Howard also told the committee that he believed Crosby's organization had spent more money than his.

SUN
BALTIMORE, MD
MAY 6 1928

MAYOR HELD ISSUE IN G. O. P. PRIMARY

Broening's Political Prestige In City At Stake, Friends Seem To Feel.

DEMOCRATS DISTURBED

They Await Action Of Merit Board In Albert K. Sherman Case.

By WALTER L. ALEXANDER,
City Hall Reporter of The Sun.

Mayor Broening's friends seem to feel that his political prestige will be at stake when the Weller-Tait and Jackson-Lowndes-Marchant forces come to grips in the battle of the ballots in the Republican primary tomorrow.

Fear that the success of the Weller-Tait candidates for delegates to the State convention will eliminate the Mayor as a political factor in the city appears to be the compelling force behind the fight of his friends. The Mayor may be described as the issue in the primary, so far as the city is concerned. He, more than any other individual, seems to be the issue with the Weller-Tait wing of the party, according to indications at the City Hall. The bitterness of the contest is worrying the independent element of both sides. They are afraid it will lead to party disaster in November.

"We Must Win City" Slogan.

Nevertheless, "We must win the city" is the slogan of the Mayor's followers. With equal fervor the Weller-Tait camp is shouting:

"We must win the city!"

Both sides were confident yesterday, but each claimed that the other was "whistling to keep up courage."

The Jackson-Lowndes-Marchant group claimed all six of the city districts on the popular vote, but said they were willing to concede "a delegate here and there" to the other side.

Negroes Given Jobs.

The primary has had the effect of almost filling the spring laboring force in the Department of Public Works with Republicans and bringing to the Negroes of the city the recognition they have been clamoring for these many years, and which was denied them in Mr. Broening's first administration.

There are more Negroes in official positions and in the laboring forces than ever before in the history of the city. They are working in the "white wings" gangs of the Street Cleaning Department for the first time.

Worried By Sherman Case.

To Democrats in and out of the City Hall the most disturbing event of the week was the abolishment by the Board of Estimates last Tuesday of Albert K. Sherman's position as chief assessment clerk of the Appeal Tax Court and the creation of a position as secretary to the court for a Republican worker.

Mr. Sherman, who has been in the employ of the Tax Court for fifteen years, is the Democratic executive of two precincts in the Twelfth ward. The Democratic members of the Board of Estimates—Howard Bryant, president of the City Council, and R. Walter Graham, City Comptroller—live in the Twelfth ward.

Action Unanimous.

They did not vote against the motion to abolish Mr. Sherman's position. It went through by unanimous consent after the Appeal Tax Court had reported that the change would save the city $500 a year in salary. Mr. Sherman was paid $3,000 a year, whereas the secretary to the court is scheduled to receive $2,500.

Inasmuch as there is no such classification as secretary of the Appeal Tax Court, the Democrats are wondering whether the City Service Commission will create it and approve a temporary appointment, which the Tax Court must ask for after May 15. Refusal of the commission to create the position would carry with it a rejection of the court's request and the upsetting of its plans in this respect.

Refused To Create Job.

It was recalled yesterday that not many weeks ago the Commissioners for Opening Streets received from the Board of Estimates authority to appoint an assistant condemnation examiner, to which position a Republican worker in Southwest Baltimore was named. There was no such classification, and the commission declined to create it, ordering the Republican stricken from the pay roll.

Creation of the classification of secretary of the Appeal Tax Court and the approval of a temporay appointment to the position would establish a precedent through which every Democratic employe at the City Hall could be dismissed by the abolishment of his position and the creation of a new one with a different name and slightly changed duties for a Republican.

It is being pointed to as one of the methods any administration could employ for the nullification of the Merit System, and it is for this reason that the Democrats, as well as the friends of the Merit System, will watch the action of the Service Commission in the Appeal Tax Court case.

Padgett Not Faring So Well.

It develops that Robert J. Padgett is not faring so well with the Broening administration, although he is said to have aided Mr. Broening and the Republican ticket in the municipal election last May.

Records of the City Comptroller's office disclose that the Pen-Mar Company, controlled by Padgett, has sold the city only $711.90 worth of the general construction supplies that have been bought in the open market, through the Central Purchasing Bureau, this city.

The city has bought $6,853.93 worth of these supplies from the Hudson Building and Supply Company, of which the Mayor's son, William F. Broening, Jr., is vice-president and secretary.

Failed To Get Order.

So it would seem that the Hudson Company virtually has supplanted Padgett's Company in the matter of open-market purchases amounting to $500 and less at one time. Padgett's company, however, has fared better in the competitive bidding before the Board of Awards, obtaining in this way approximately $16,000 worth of business, chiefly cement, since the first of the year. His company is said to have been the lowest bidder for an order for steel lining for street curbs, but did not get the order for reasons that have not been made public.

Padgett's paving company got its share of the sheet-asphalt street repairs this year, but under the terms of an old agreement whereby the work was divided equally among all three sheet-asphalt companies operating in the city, on equal terms, for the purpose of facilitating the repairs.

His company is awarded new paving contracts only when it is the lowest bidder before the Board of Awards. Otherwise these are lean days at the City Hall for the former Democratic district leader.

RESTATING OUR PARTISAN POSITION

Having been the first colored editor of this state and section of the country to openly espouse the candidacy of Hon. Herbert C. Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination and having worked in conjunction and harmony with the regular Republican organization in Harris County, headed by R. B. Morris, after a truce was agreed upon during the late winter to unite the two belligerent elements or factions in this county and work out a program of partisan harmony (which was ultimately consummated), this writer was chosen as one of the 30 delegates from Harris County to the recent state convention.

For the first time in eight years there was no genuine split in the local Republican forces, and, while a few dissatisfied and disgruntled Republicans of color essayed to hold another county convention here, their own defenders, Captain John Elgin and C. C. Littleton, took the position before the state executive committee at Dallas, Monday, May 21, that these colored "bolters" really had no case, the captain making the motion to seat the Morris delegation and Mr. Littleton seconding the motion.

Having been elected and seated as regular delegates, there was nothing else for the Harris County colored delegates and alternates to do honorably except to remain in the deliberations of the convention to which they were elected as representatives. To have done otherwise in the face of our local harmony program would have been the grossest act of perfidy and treachery.

While this editor and paper have endorsed the Hoover candidacy; worked in harmony and harness with the local Hoover leaders; insisted upon an instructed delegation, if the uninstructed group were anti-Hooverites, neither this editor nor The Informer has ever endorsed the Creager-Nolte administration of partisan affairs—often stating in our editorials that our position was somewhat paradoxical in this situation.

With approximately 12 Negroes in the Creager-Nolte convention as delegates and alternates (with about 5 or 6 votes between them), criticism is being hurled and will be hurled at those who were members of this convention, due to the fact that the Creager-Nolte regime did not consider a single Negro when it came to appointing committees and electing delegates and alternates, or presidential electors.

This editor, starting months before the convention, began an agitation for racial representation on the Republican delegation from Texas to the national convention of the party; and, as secretary of the Independent Colored Voters' League of Texas, which held a statewide conference at Dallas, March 4, 1928, it befell our lot to introduce a "harmony resolution" setting forth our objectives and naming or suggesting two colored men for positions on the delegation from the state-at-large. This resolution was adopted, and there the matter virtually ended, though a few colored Republicans kept up a constant and persistent agitation for this type of recognition.

When National Committeeman R. B. Creager, titular head of the Texas party, refused to confer with some of the leading Negroes of Texas in an effort to patch up the internal differences and affect a united party, The Informer saw the handwriting on the wall, as it related to Negro delegates, or to a Negro delegate and alternate from the state-at-large to the national parley of the party.

In refusing to place a single colored Republican on his delegation to the national convention, either as delegate or alternate, Mr. Creager is merely living up to his well-earned reputation as being a confirmed believer and firm advocate in the "lily-white" doctrine; and when some of the leading white Republicans of the state and nation were unable to swerve Mr. Creager and some of his Nordic Negrophobes from this course and show them the wisdom of pursuing a real Republican and American policy, it is absurd and preposterous to criticise and hang in effigy a handful of black men for not being able to get the race representation on the Creager-Nolte "lily-white" delegation.

This writer was not a candidate for any such position, per se, but we believed before the convention and still believe that such action on the part of the Creager convention was not only unwise and unrepublican, but that such procedure will dwarf the growth of the party in this state, and seriously hamper the candidacy of Mr. Hoover in doubtful and pivotal states, where Negroes constitute the balance of power in national elections, if this "lily-white" delegation is seated at Kansas City and their action given official approval and endorsement.

Mr. Creager, having pulled off this stunt before and gotten by with it, seems to be of the opinion that he knows his lines; but we have a hunch that such unrepublican and unfair actions are laden with many dangers, if not in reality loaded with dynamite or nitroglycerine.

Sixty Negro Delegates in Attendance At Republican National Convention

Number From South Smaller, but Northern States Send More — United on Enforcement of Amendments to Constitution

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Fifty delegates and ten alternates are the Negro's representation in the Republican National Convention, which convened yesterday.

In previous years the South sent more than it has here now, but never before have so many states north of the Mason-Dixon line been represented.

The number of Negro delegates by States is:

Arkansas, 3; Georgia, 11; Illinois, 2; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 5; Maryland, 3; Michigan, 1; Mississippi, 8; Missouri, 3; New Jersey, 1; Ohio, 1; Oklahoma, 1; South Carolina, 6; Tennessee, 1, and West Virginia, 2—total, 50.

Alternates: Iowa, 1; Maryland, 3; Massachusetts, 1; Michigan, 1; New York 2, and Pennsylvania, 2—total, 10.

As at former conventions the charge has been made that the Southern delegates are sold out at so much per to the highest bidder by candidates these delegates oppose, and by those who want to see the Negro entirely eliminated from politics.

Most of the Southern delegations containing Negroes were seated, except in the case of Walter Cohen, Collector of Customs at New Orleans. Cohen himself was seated but the rest of his delegation was defeated when the contest was brought before the committee last week.

"If the Republican Party writes into its platform a declaration for enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, it must include the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments," is the slogan of Negro leaders here.

S. D. Redmond, delegate selected for the Mississippi member of the Committee on Platform and Resolutions, said he would insist on pledging the Republicans to a more vigorous enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.

"Why should there be any discrimination?" said he. "It is well known to Senator Borah and other prominent party men that these are being ignored. Every Negro delegate here should resent any plan to favor the Eighteenth over the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments."

Thoroughly aroused over this matter, the delegates were busy today calling on their friends from other States, urging them to stand by them in their efforts to get justice.

John R. Hawkins, delegate to the Republican convention from the District of Columbia, seconded the nomination of Herbert Hoover last night in Convention hall. Mr. Hawkins finished his speech at 10:23 o'clock. He drew a parallel between the Anglo-Saxon, who arrived at Plymouth Rock and the Negro who came about the same time to Jamestown, Va. (The former; he said, tied the waterfalls and rivers of New England to the drive wheels which made the prosperity of the north while the labor cleared the wilderness and tilled the fields which enriched the south for the country. made great by their joint endeavors. He said he counted Hoover the ideal president.

RESTATING OUR PARTISAN POSITION

Having been the first colored editor of this state and section of the country to openly espouse the candidacy of Hon. Herbert C. Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination and having worked in conjunction and harmony with the regular Republican organization in Harris County, headed by R. B. Morris, after a truce was agreed upon during the late winter to unite the two belligerent elements or factions in this county and work out a program of partisan harmony (which was ultimately consummated), this writer was chosen as one of the 30 delegates from Harris County to the recent state convention.

For the first time in eight years there was no genuine split in the local Republican forces, and, while a few dissatisfied and disgruntled Republicans of color essayed to hold another county convention here, their own defenders, Captain John Elgin and C. C. Littleton, took the position before the state executive committee at Dallas, Monday, May 21, that these colored "bolters" really had no case, the captain making the motion to seat the Morris delegation and Mr. Littleton seconding the motion.

Having been elected and seated as regular delegates, there was nothing else for the Harris County colored delegates and alternates to do honorably except to remain in the deliberations of the convention to which they were elected as representatives. To have done otherwise in the face of our local harmony program would have been the grossest act of perfidy and treachery.

While this editor and paper have endorsed the Hoover candidacy; worked in harmony and harness with the local Hoover leaders; insisted upon an instructed delegation, if the uninstructed group were anti-Hooverites, neither this editor nor The Informer has ever endorsed the Creager-Nolte administration of partisan affairs—often stating in our editorials that our position was somewhat paradoxical in this situation.

With approximately 12 Negroes in the Creager-Nolte convention as delegates and alternates (with about 5 or 6 votes between them), criticism is being hurled and will be hurled at those who were members of this convention, due to the fact that the Creager-Nolte regime did not consider a single Negro when it came to appointing committees and electing delegates and alternates, or presidential electors.

This editor, starting months before the convention, began an agitation for racial representation on the Republican delegation from Texas to the national convention of the party; and, as secretary of the Independent Colored Voters' League of Texas, which held a statewide conference at Dallas, March 4, 1928, it befell our lot to introduce a "harmony resolution" setting forth our objectives and naming or suggesting two colored men for positions on the delegation from the state-at-large. This resolution was adopted, and there the matter virtually ended, though a few colored Republicans kept up a constant and persistent agitation for this type of recognition.

When National Committeeman R. B. Creager, titular head of the Texas party, refused to confer with some of the leading Negroes of Texas in an effort to patch up the internal differences and affect a united party, The Informer saw the handwriting on the wall, as it related to Negro delegates, or to a Negro delegate and alternate from the state-at-large to the national parley of the party.

In refusing to place a single colored Republican on his delegation to the national convention, either as delegate or alternate, Mr. Creager is merely living up to his well-earned reputation as being a confirmed believer and firm advocate in the "lily-white" doctrine; and when some of the leading white Republicans of the state and nation were unable to swerve Mr. Creager and some of his Nordic Negrophobes from this course and show them the wisdom of pursuing a real Republican and American policy, it is absurd and preposterous to criticise and hang in effigy a handful of black men for not being able to get the race representation on the Creager-Nolte "lily-white" delegation.

This writer was not a candidate for any such position, per se, but we believed before the convention and still believe that such action on the part of the Creager convention was not only unwise and unrepublican, but that such procedure will dwarf the growth of the party in this state, and seriously hamper the candidacy of Mr. Hoover in doubtful and pivotal states, where Negroes constitute the balance of power in national elections, if this "lily-white" delegation is seated at Kansas City and their action given official approval and endorsement.

Mr. Creager, having pulled off this stunt before and gotten by with it, seems to be of the opinion that he knows his lines; but we have a hunch that such unrepublican and unfair actions are laden with many dangers, if not in reality loaded with dynamite or nitroglycerine.

Sixty Negro Delegates in Attendance At Republican National Convention

Number From South Smaller, but Northern States Send More — United on Enforcement of Amendments to Constitution

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 1[illegible] Fifty delegates and ten alternates are the Negro's representation in the Republican National Convention, which convened yesterday.

In previous years the South sent more than it has here now, but never before have so many states north of the Mason-Dixon line been represented.

The number of Negro delegates by States is:

Arkansas, 3; Georgia, 11; Illinois, 2; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 5; Maryland, 3; Michigan, 1; Mississippi, 8; Missouri, 3; New Jersey, 1; Ohio, 1; Oklahoma, 1; South Carolina, 6; Tennessee, 1, and West Virginia, 2—total, 50.

Alternates: Iowa, 1; Maryland, 3; Massachusetts, 1; Michigan, 1; New York 2, and Pennsylvania, 2—total, 10.

As at former conventions the charge has been made that the Southern delegates are sold out at so much per to the highest bidder by candidates these delegates oppose, and by those who want to see the Negro entirely eliminated from politics.

Most of the Southern delegations containing Negroes were seated, except in the case of Walter Cohen, Collector of Customs at New Orleans. Cohen himself was seated but the rest of his delegation was defeated when the contest was brought before the committee last week.

"If the Republican Party writes into its platform a declaration for enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, it must include the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments," is the slogan of Negro leaders here.

S. D. Redmond, delegate selected for the Mississippi member of the Committee on Platform and Resolutions, said he would insist on pledging the Republicans to a more vigorous enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.

"Why should there be any discrimination?" said he. "It is well known to Senator Borah and other prominent party men that these are being ignored. Every Negro delegate here should resent any plan to favor the Eighteenth over the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments."

Thoroughly aroused over this matter, the delegates were busy today calling on their friends from other States, urging them to stand by them in their efforts to get justice.

John R. Hawkins, delegate to the Republican convention from the District of Columbia, seconded the nomination of Herbert Hoover last night in Convention hall. Mr. Hawkins finished his speech at 10:23 o'clock. He drew a parallel between the Anglo-Saxon, who arrived at Plymouth Rock and the Negro who came about the same time to Jamestown. The former; he said, tied the waterfalls and rivers of New England to the drive wheels which made the power of the north while the labor cleared the wilderness and tilled the fields which enriched the South and the country, made great by their joint endeavors. He said he counted Hoover the ideal president.

Political - 19

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

HOOVER AND CURTIS WANT VOTES, NOT RACE PREJUDICE

There is nothing being done in the state for Hoover and Curtis really substantial, except that which the Anti-Smith democrats are doing.

The Republican Organization is doing nothing worthwhile, because information from Washington stated, that the powers that be wanted to make some helpful suggestions in the matter. The Organization yielded. The next oracle we heard of, United States Marshal Crawford was boasting that the matter would be handed over to him, Hendricks, Meikleham et al. The Marshal made a trip or two to Washington, and sought the aid of the Klan to cinch the management. The organization let it be known that it had enough of lily whiteism and officious federal office holders, and the lily whites and bolters dropped out of the picture. The Organization then selected H. G. Hastings to head the campaign, because it understood that Washington wanted him. Mr. Hastings accepted, and the committee of five selected along with Mr. Hastings by the Republican Executive Committee, proceeded to enlarge itself to twenty-one. But, we have not heard of the activities of this Campaign Committee. If it has done anything for the ticket, it was strictly confined among the whites, absolutely no attention has been given to the electors, though they con- nty-five per cent of f the Party in well the South, and is an issue of race hatred peculiar to the South, and is without the knowledge, consent, or approval of Hoover and Curtis.

The men in Georgia in charge of the Republican campaign cannot, and do not want to carry the state for Hoover and Curtis. They are simply gambling for control of federal patronage, if Hoover and Curtis win. If they are in dead earnest, why do they want to organize and conduct a white man's party? Don't they know that a black man's vote counts as many as a white man's? Don't they know that Al Smith and Jake Raskob are moving Heaven and earth to capture the Negro vote? If so, why draw the color line?

Lily whites and the pernicious activities of meddlesome federal officeholders are doing more to handicap the republican ticket in the state than any other factor. Common decency cannot stomach offensive federal officeholders, nor damnable lilywhiteism.

Federal officeholders are entirely too pernicious when they take it upon themselves to appoint themselves a committee to wait upon the Secretary of State to undertake to displace the electoral ticket filed by the regular organization. These men are wilfully pernicious. They opposed Hoover before his nomination, and they were keeping up their pernicious conduct when they succeeded in striking D. C. Cole's name and inserting a Mr. Noble's. It is time to call a halt. If the Attorney General declines to act against these violators of the Civil Service law, the Civil Service Commission, and the President's attention ought to be called to the political log-rolling by federal officeholders in Georgia.

er's interest is suffer- because of med- the at- drive the state worthwhile, except what the Anti-Smith democrats are doing as a protest against the destructive forces that seized the Democratic Party at Houston.

The Negro is part and parcel of the Republican Party, and will not be eliminated. It is the party of our fathers, and we are going to keep faith. We will agree with Douglas, " that the Republican Party is the ship, and all else is sea."

PERRY HOWARD PROTESTS CAUSE STARTLING REVELATIONS

(By A. N. P.)

By the time the Senate's special patronage probe committee gets back on the job after the November election, there are signs now that evidence already in the hands of the committee will involve some "big white folks" just as the information put to use directly after the Republican National Convention resulted in the indictment of Perry W. Howard, Republican committeeman for Mississippi, and some embarrassment for Benjamin Jefferson Davis, Howard's Georgia contemporary.

After the onslaught on Davis and Howard, protests that the action of department of justice officials was political and contemplated the subjection of Negro Republican leaders in the South to "Lily White" influences brought about a change in the direction of the attack, and active work was postponed until after the election.

But Postmaster General New, who has many office holders throughout the South, set about to find out just ing their positions. He is now said to have evidence in the form of affidavits from postmasters and others in South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi, substantiating in large measure s of a wholesale traffic in fed- ppointments in southern states. subordinates had been obtain- ffidavits, which are closely guarded and will not be made public until the committee resumes its investigation after the elections, were made, according to Senator Brookhart, chairman of the Senate Committee, in response to an order issued by Mr. New, calling upon every postmaster in the four states to say, under oath, whether money was paid for their appointments and who made the demands upon them.

The disclosures in the affidavits have been so surprising that it is probable Mr. New will be asked to extend his order to include postmasters in at least two other southern states.

Republicans in Alabama Pick Democratic Electors

Precedent Is Established When Party Bolters Are Welcomed by G. O. P. With Open Arms. Editor Is Included in the List.

By The Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 30.—Convinced that the Republican vote in Alabama is safe for Herbert Hoover under any circumstances, the executive committee of that normally minority party in this state today dipped into the ranks of their heredity foe, the Democrats, for the personnel of their presidential electoral slate, in the November election.

In doing so, a precedent unheard of to the oldest "rock ribbed" Democratic state was established. The move was a strategic one, C. D. Street, Republican national committeeman, said, with the view toward having Democrats cast their votes for Democrats, who had aligned themselves with the Republican cause. The selections will be by unanimous vote of the committeemen.

The personnel of the electoral slate also provides Democratic chieftains with food for thought. It includes men and women prominent in the business, professional, social and political life of the state. One of them, J. S. Benson of Scottsboro, editor of the Progressive Age, was a delegate to the Democratic national convention at Houston while another is Mrs. J. B. Wadsworth, of Gadsden, whose husband was a delegate to Houston but since has joined the Republican ranks.

The entire slate of electors as listed at state Republican headquarters here follows:

George H. Malone of Dothan, banker and former member of the Legislature from Houston County and a life-long Democrat, and Mrs. Mary T. Jeffries, president of the Alabama W. C. T. U., electors from the state at large.

District electors:

Mrs. Martha Yerger, Mobile, daughter of Chief Justice John O. Anderson of the Alabama Supreme Court.

Seconds, Dr. A. P. Webb, prominent physician of Atmore and a life-long Democrat.

G. O. P. HEADS IN SO. WILL REMAIN FOR THE PRESENT

Party Undecided What To Do About Leadership In Southern States

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 12.—Although Republican campaign heads are divided on the question of ridding southern states of colored leadership, it is considered virtually impossible to do so at this time and probably will not be attempted now, it was learned here Thursday.

No action will be taken now because it is considered impossible to wipe out a single campaign system in use for 50 years. There is a sharp division among Republican leades as to how to handle the situation.

Would Carry South

One group believe that former Secretary Hoover to achieve victory must carry at least two of the 10 old Confederate states, "secession states" as they used to be called. They would have him root out the colored leaders, who, they insist, have earned their living in the past largely by trafficking in federal jobs and national convention delegates, and go after the white votes.

The other group looks askance at the idea of obtaining electoral votes for Hoover from the solid south. This group thinks the principal result of a southern campaign would be to increase the popular vote without increasing the electoral vote. They point out that 10 states in the south have a population of 25,415,000, and yet in 1924 they cast fewer votes for Coolidge than he received in the one state of Iowa.

Klan Control

It is also argued that it would cost too much money to carry on an effective campaign in the south. Furthermore, in many of the southern states under colored leadership, ousting of that leadership would mean joining hands with the Ku Klux Klan, which is leading the fight against Al Smith. As a result, colored voters would stay away from the polls in many sections. As a result colored vote for a Klan backed candidate or Smith with Robinson of Arkansas as vice president.

With the exception of Walter Cohen of New Orleans, the 60 delegates to the Kansas City convention went there as Hoover backers. Perry Howard of Mississippi and Ben Davis of Georgia formed the nucleus for Hoover strength. Although Howard is having trouble at present in Mississippi because of lily-white Republicans, Mrs. Mary Booze, national committeewoman from Mississippi, is working hard for the Republicans. Ben Davis is also hard at work, placing in the field a full slate of Caucasian electors, including two Democrats who were delegates to the Houston convention.

VETERAN TENN. WAR HORSE DEFINES POSITION

Eulogizes Memory of Col. "Link" Johnson

Washington, D. C.
September 8, 1928.

R. R. Church, leader of the ancient and unchanging Republicans, when shown a copy of the "Pittsburgh Courier" carrying an attack on him because of his refusal to serve on the colored executive committee of the G. O. P., broke the rule of his political life. He decided to reply.

The following statement was dictated by him and carefully gone over:

"I have seen the article in the Courier, written I am informed by Dr. Emmett J. Scott, before the Courier representative brought it to me. It is a document of a kind familiar to all who know the fine African hand of its industrious but elusive author. For 30 years his brick-bats have been hurled from behind the coat-tails of protectors.

"What Dr. Scott may think of me or of my reason for withdrawing from the hand-wrought 'committee' now directing and distressing Mr. Hoover's cause is without importance and will not, I feel, supplant the record I have made in an effort to advance our lines on the political field. I have never held an office except through election by the people. Dr. Scott never held an office at all, and such positions as he has filled came from kind hearts unable to turn a deaf ear to his cry.

"Whether Dr. Scott continues to operate Howard University or run good Dr. Hawkins or frock coat diplomatic receptions as Minister to Haiti is not the slightest concern to me. My interest in the present situation is exactly my interest in Mr. Hoover as our candidate and in the Republican party whose fortunes have long been mine. I got off the committee, not because I had been refused a leadership for which no man can say I ever applied, (and which no man can bestow upon another), but because I could not in conscience associate myself with political parasites and pretenders.

"To the charge that I am not a good follower, I plead guilty if I am asked to follow to the ballot box men who have no ballot to cast and who have not the moral courage to attempt to cast one or cry out against the crime of disfranchisement in their states. Men who fight don't follow those who run. There is not a colored Republican voter whom I would fail to follow or support if called to his standard. There is not a colored political apologist I would follow, not even at the request of Mr. Hoover, unless he was leading a procession to the public square there to receive the condemnation of an outraged people.

"Another point, that is too scandalous to be ignored, I touch. Dr. Scott brought in the name of the late Henry Lincoln Johnson, referring to him as my associate in party struggles, and linking his great name with gentlemen of the present political arrangement, there we have sin at war with absurdity. Mr. Johnson, one of the great men in all history of great men, should be spared a comparison so odious. His memory should be more sacred than that. To mention the names of Dr. Hawkins, Dr. Scott and Dr. Holsey in the same breath with that of 'Link Johnson' is a challenge to the patience of honest men.

"Mr. Johnson was a leader, a great lawyer, and a voter. He was Republican National Committeeman at the time of his death and under the laws of Georgia he could not have been unless he was a registered voter. No year passed without his return to Georgia to register as a voter and keep his citizenship clear.

"Neither Dr. Hawkins has returned to North Carolina, Dr. Scott to Texas nor Dr. Holsey to the Court House in either Georgia or Alabama to register his citizenship and play the full man.

"The main point must not be lost sight of. I stated that I retired from the committee because, first, I wanted Mr. Hoover elected, and secon[illegible] because those in front of the vo[illegible] were themselves not voters. I s[illegible] want Mr. Hoover elected and [illegible] gentlemen are still without a vot[illegible]

SUN
BALTIMORE, MD.

SEP 7 1928

NEGROES FORM CLUB TO WORK FOR SMITH

All Democratic Candidates Indorsed At Eighteenth Ward Meeting

A club of Negro voters that will work in the Eighteenth Ward for the election of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for President, and the entire Democratic State ticket, was formed last night at a meeting attended by approximately forty Negroes at 840 West Saratoga street. The organization was named the Eighteenth Ward Colored Democratic Club.

The meeting was one of three Democratic rallies held in the city. Representative Vincent L. Palmisano, candidate for reelection in the Third Congressional district, addressed the Women's Bohemian Club of the Seventh Ward. The Twenty-eighth Ward Democratic Club held a meeting with "harmony" as the keynote of the speakers.

Negroes Okay Full Ticket

Those present at the organization of the Negro Democratic club declared it represented the desires of a number of Negroes to break away from their old political alignments and to vote for Governor Smith. All the Democratic candidates for office in the Fifth district were indorsed.

The officers of the club are Richard Smith, chairman; Edward Johnson, vice-chairman; James Syler, secretary, and John H. Moore, treasurer. All are Negroes.

Other Club Enrolls Fift[illegible]

Fifty new mem[illegible] at the meeting [illegible] Ward Club [illegible] avenu[illegible] days on his triumphal march through Europe." Former Mayor Howard W. Jackson and Daniel Loden also spoke. Edward Gross, clerk of the Criminal Court, who recently returned from a trip to the Northern and Southern States, said he found a strong sentiment for Governor Smith.

Ritchie To Speak

The club will hold a meeting on September 28 at the Community Hall, Gwynn Oak Junction. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie will be among the speakers. A women's auxiliary also will be formed to work among the feminine voters in the interest of the Democratic ticket.

Representative Palmisano attacked the Harding-Coolidge administration, declared that existing immigration laws favored certain European countries and urged his hearers to disregard the "mouth-to-ear campaign" in his address to the Women's Bohemian Club, which met at 838 Chester street. Other speakers criticized the "political parsons" and their efforts to obtain a larger prohibition budget.

Young People Begin Monday

The Young People's Democratic League of Maryland will open its active campaign for the full ticket on Monday at a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Emerson. Governor Ritchie will be the principal speaker.

Following the meeting the league will begin intensive work in each precinct to bring out a large registration of young men and women voters, with particular attention to those who have just attained their majority.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation

Republican.

RECORD
COLUMBIA, S. C.

AUG 28 1928

PICK YOUR COMPANY.

Ben Davis, National Committeeman and Republican boss of Georgia, is a very eminent Southern Negro politician. He was wiser in his generation, at the Kansas City convention, than was Honorable Joe Tolbert, leader of the "Black-and-Tans" in the Palmetto State. Ben Davis delivered his Georgia delegation to Herbert Hoover and received the blessing of his chief. Mr. Tolbert was not so compliant, at first, but had to come around in the long run. This may explain why Mr. Tolbert is so active now in the attempted organization of Hoover Clubs in South Carolina, and it may explain why, for the first time in the history of his party, so far as we can remember, a "Lily White" electoral ticket has been put out in this State.

A great effort is being exerted to enveigle white Democrats to line up with the supporters of Herbert Hoover. The snare is spread; the amiable spider sits and smiles and ogles, and perhaps jingles a few odd coins in his pockets, just within the threshhold, and any Democrat disposed to stray from the fold will be welcomed with a handshake, and rewarded perhaps, with a postoffice. Mr. Joe Tolbert is out to make amends for his miscalculated treason to Mr. Hoover. In the end, we have no misgivings that Mr. Tolbert and Mr. Hoover, with Mr. Ben Davis, of Georgia, to contribute to the harmony of the occasion, will all kiss and make up. That is the Republican method. That is what makes and keeps them Republicans. There is never a rift in the Republican loot.

There appears, however, to be a basic lack of agreement between Mr. Joe Tolbert and Mr. Ben Davis, with regard to the tactics to be pursued. Mr. Tolbert, the white leader of the Republican forces in South Carolina, is trying assiduously to flatter and cajole Democrats into the Hoover column. Mr. Ben Davis, the black leader of the Republican cohorts in Georgia, on the contrary, is thoroughly contemptuous of the Democratic party, and he does not hesitate to say so. Perhaps he has ascertained that Georgia Democrats are more select with regard to their political bed-fellows than some South Carolina Democrats are, and so, unable to induce them to go along with him, he makes a gesture of scorn by giving them the air.

Let us say that Ben Davis is the editor of a newspaper called The Independent. In the last issue of his paper Editor Davis pays his respects to the Democratic party thus:

> Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic party, so long as it stands for meanness, ignorance and race hatred, as exemplified in Memphis, Texas, Georgia and Mississippi. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic party.
>
> Al Smith is no better than the Democratic party. His record does not disclose a single favor that he has done for the Negroes in New York. He (the Negro) knows that the Democratic party is his sworn enemy.
>
> As infamous and as wrong and cowardly as lily-whitism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic party against the Negro.

We trust that this tribute to the Democratic party, from Herbert Hoover's Negro ally and supporter over in Georgia, will be appreciated by the Richland County Hoover Democratic Club which is endeavoring to portray Alfred E. Smith as the idol of the Negro, seeking social equality, and Herbert Hoover as the champion of white supremacy.

We trust that the picture, painted by Herbert Hoover's Negro lieutenant in Georgia, of the "robbery and outlawry," and the "meanness, ignorance and race hatred," of the Democratic party, will prove especially palatable and delectable to the diligent "Dry" Democrat of Columbia who is having anonymous anti-Smith circulars printed for circulation in this vicinity. Of course, he is doing it very confidentially and secretly; his name is not supposed to be revealed. He is a brave man. He has the courage of his convictions—under cover. We hasten to compliment him on his choice of political bed-fellows, and we hope that he will live to enjoy having the record of his activities made public for the edification of his fellow-Democrats.

JOURNAL
Jersey City, N J
SEP 1 1928.

Colored G.O.P. Men Endorse Candidates

At a special meeting of the Colored Men's Republican Club, held in the headquarters at 629 Communipaw Avenue last night, the members, directeed by President James W. Roberson, planned for an intensive campaign from now on to election day in the interests of the Republican party.

The organization went on record as endorsing the Republican candidates from Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis to Hamilton F. Kean and Morgan F. Larson and all the way down. Plans were made to string a banner bearing the names of the Republican candidates across Communipaw Avenue in front of headquarters.

JOURNAL
Lithonia Ga
AUG 13 1928

BACKED BY BEN

It is interesting to note that the secretary of the Republican meeting that met in Macon Saturday to select the Republican electors was Ben Davis, the negro Republican national committeeman from Georgia.

"Calico" Charlie Brown, of The Cordele Dispatch, who went to Houston a supposed-to-be Democrat and returned to Georgia an anti-Smith Republican, was named a Republican elector by Ben and his master minds.

"Calico" speaks of principles and morals in politics. Yet, he as a delegate, was morally bound to the nominee.

In elevating the Republican party to dignified heights in Georgia, it is interesting to note that Ben Davis is a prominent black in this white, black and tan movement.

And "Calico" Charlie and the other electors are now backed by Ben!

And, we suggest this for a campaign song:

"We Hoover-Democrats are the stuff,
We'll stick like chiggers,
Before we'll vote for a Catholic,
Damn if we don't vote with the niggers."

—Greensboro Herald-Journal.

TAMPA, FLA.
Times
SEP 1 1928

"SREEB" IS WRONG.

In his latest Public Pulse offering, carried today, "Sreeb" makes some remarkable statements.

Were he posted he would know that it is not the fact, as he states, that "the Smith democrats in their desperate effort to hold the democratic line intact have called up or awakened the memories of reconstruction days." The truth is that what is here involved was brought into the presidential campaign when, in view of his subsequent nomination as the republican candidate, Herbert Hoover for selfish political ends, according to such an authority as the Washington Post, issued the now widely known of order throwing white and negro workers in the department of commerce into close contact; when the republican national convention adopted its platform deliberately dangling its anti-lynching plank as a bait before "THE NEGRO," and when Senator George Higgins Moses, of New Hampshire, decidedly anti-southern in his political thinking, was made a leading figure in the Hoover campaign management.

However much democrats may regret that this thing has been lugged into the campaign they can do nothing less than meet and combat it, since the republicans have brought it in.

It is somewhat difficult to decide just what "Sreeb" means, or would have inferred, when he says that "reconstruction was a policy of hide bound, corrupt politicians of the Tammany stripe." In the absence of a capacity for mind reading it is only to be concluded that his purpose was to insiduously suggest that Tammany is and was responsible for the reconstruction period. Nothing could be further from truth. The fact is that Tammany was the one and only friend the south had in those devilish days, as has been stated time and again—and as "Sreeb" must know, if he knows enough to advise at this moment. There is neither reason nor justification for "Sreeb" or anyone else insinuating political and historical inaccuracy into the present situation.

The Times agrees that reconstruction as it was "had no kinship with the spirit of Lincoln." It believes that had Lincoln lived reconstruction would have been vastly different from what it was. But Lincoln did not live, and reconstruction was precisely what republicanism encouraged it to be—if not precisely what it wanted it to be. Reconstruction, with its shame and outrages, was a thing of joy to Thaddeus Stevens and those of his school who were the mighty powers of republicanism in those days. Should it be that "Sreeb" does not know this he needs to read up before loosing another Public Pulse article from his system. Tammany, as an organization and through its individual members, helped the south in many ways during those days.

Nor is that all there is to the story of the republican effort to humiliate the south and of Tammany's standing by and lending such aid as it might to prevent the accomplishment of that end. The southern people had barely obtained control of their state governments and overcome negro rule when that Massachusetts hater of the south, Congressman Henry Cabot Lodge, introduced his force bill, the design of which was to again take away from the white people of the south the control of their state governments—by the use of federal troops at the polls. This bill was introduced June 14, 1890; it came on for final vote in the house on July 2, 1890—a case of remarkable speed for those days. It carried by a vote of 155 to 149. Among those voting against it was the solid Tammany delegation, composed of Amos J. Cummings, James W. Covert, Thomas F. Manger, John Quinn, Charles Tracy, Edward J. Dunphy, Felix Campbell, C. H. Turner, W. G. Stahlnecker, Roswell P. Flower and J. B. McCarthy.

The bill went over to the senate. It was defeated there by a filibuster led by John T. Morgan, of Alabama, the details of which it is not necessary to relate. Among the senators who favored the bill and voted yea on every motion looking toward its passage were the two from New York—William M. Evarts and Frank Hiscock, both republicans.

There are the facts—New York republicanism as represented in the senate favorable to the enactment of a force bill and every member of the Tammany delegation in the house voting against its passage.

In the light of that record—which can be verified by the Congressional Record for the dates involved—"Sreeb" places himself far afield when he insinuates reconstruction to have been the offspring of Tammany.

And "Sreeb" says of "the Smith democrats" that "they also cry aloud negro domination." He says we have lived under a republican administration for these past eight years and asks "where has been our negro domination?" The answer to that depends upon what one considers negro domination. It is past dispute that during the Harding and Coolidge administrations Ben Davis, a negro, has been dominating things no further away than Georgia, making white women and girls pay him and his machine tribute money in order to secure and retain postmasterships and the like, and that the Hoover order—placing whites and negroes in close contact in the commerce department has been issued. And there are those in plenty who are willing to cut down the south's representation in congress or put this section under a force bill, or both. There are many different kinds of negro domination, and many who are not averse to social equality.

Despite all that "Sreeb" and others who think like him have said to the contrary, The Times continues to maintain that prohibition is not a proper issue for a presidential campaign. This position is taken upon the authority of the constitution of the United States. Under that document, of which The Times still has a very high opinion, there is no possible chance for any change in the eighteenth amendment unless, as a beginning, two-thirds of the membership of both the national house and senate are favorable thereto. If such a proportion of the membership of those bodies favor starting a movement to change this section of the constitution the president—whether he be Herbert Hoover, Alfred E. Smith or "Sreeb"—has no power whatever to interfere. Such is plainly the provisions of the constitution upon the matter. In view of that we cannot for the life of us see that the legalized liquor traffic threatens us, as "Sreeb" contends.

It strikes us very forcibly that "Screeb" is seeing "varmints" where there are none and failing to see some that are but poorly hid—if hid at all. And it strikes us, further, that assertions are easy to make but that one can make them much more safely in some cases if one first stops to get history straight and to acquaint oneself with the constitution of the United States of America.

We are sorry to have to say that "THE NEGRO" is an issue in this campaign, having been made one by the republican platform. And we are compelled to say that prohibition is not a real issue in it but has, it pretty plainly appears to us, been injected in as one by resourceful republicans for the purpose—among other things—of distracting the attention of some from the fact that the other thing is an issue.

Chattanooga, Tenn., News
Tuesday, August 28, 1928

Hoover Club Organized by Colored Thirteenth Warders

A Herbert Hoover club was organized by the colored voters of the Thirteenth ward (Fort Cheatham) Monday night at the Colored Methodist church. Those attending passed resolutions to make every effort to increase the total vote in Fort Cheatham in the November election, with a huge majority for Hoover. A mass meeting was called for Tuesday night, Sept. 4, at which time some of the leading negroes in the city will speak.

The following officers were elected: The Rev. A. L. McIntire, president; Harry Ferris, vice-president; James Monroe, treasurer, and the Rev. T. J. Wynn, secretary.

NEGROES AND WHITES THROWN TOGETHER BY ORDER OF MR. HOOVER

The editor of The Tribune had a long talk with United States Senator Walter F. George during a railroad journey last week and was greatly impressed by his earnest support of the national democratic nominees as well as with his splendid grasp of national problems as a whole.

Senator George talked informingly of Hoover's act in throwing together the whites and blacks employed in his department and stated that Hoover himself was directly responsible for this shameless condition of affairs.

After Hoover got in the race for president he was visited by some negro politicians from Ohio and told that unless he abolished the order segregating the races he was likely to lose the negro vote of that state.

The order was abolished and the races thrown together almost immediately afterwards. The day after it went into effect Senator George was visited by a poor little white woman from Alabama who broke down and cried when she told him that she had been put to work right beside a burly negro man. The woman had to work somewhere, and there was nowhere else for her to go. Visits of white women from Georgia and other states followed, but of course there was nothing that the Senator could do.

There has been some attempt to deny that Hoover has made any changes in his department affecting the two races, but the facts above set out are vouched for by Senator George, who personally knows the situation as it exists, and will be substantiated by every member of congress from Georgia at Washington.

The whites and blacks were thrown together and are still working together, and at Hoover's order. And to make the situation worse, the republican candidate did not issue his order throwing them together until he was threatened by the negro politicians from Ohio.

As we understand it, the mixing of the races occurred in the census department, a section of the department of commerce, which is administered by Mr. Hoover.

Four Seek Assembly Seats From Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 6.—(A. N. P.)—An unusual number of Negro candidates for political honors, seats in the State Assembly, were balloted for Tuesday in the Republican primaries. In the Seventy-third district Sidney Dones and James Allison are the colored candidates. The whites are Charles Lewis and James Stockwell. In the Seventy-fourth district there are no white candidates but J. B. Bass, editor of the California Eagle, and Fred Roberts, editor of the New Age Dispatch, an incumbent for the past ten years, who are opponents, with indications of Bass winning. Voters in this district have become dissatisfied with Roberts' showing and Bass followers have adopted the slogan "Get Somewhere."

Political - 1928.
Party Affiliation

Republican.

REPUBLICANS NAME FOURTH NEGRO TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

E. A. Johnson Has Every Qualification for Office—First Negro Elected to New York Assembly — Reputed Wealthy

Although three prominent Harlemites declined to run for Congress on the Republican ticket from the Twenty-first congressional district, the designation has now been tendered to a fourth, who is expected to accept it. The latest designee is Edward A. Johnson, lawyer, educator, historian, author and politician, who made history in 1917 when he was elected by the Republican party as the first Negro Assemblyman in the State of New York.

Mr. Johnson was out of town when the choice was made known Monday, and at press time it could not be ascertained definitely whether or not he would accept the designation. Apart from his other qualifications, Mr. Johnson is widely reputed to be a millionaire.

EDWARD A. JOHNSON

Has Had Remarkable Career

Mr. Johnson was born sixty-eight years ago in Raleigh, N. C., the son of Columbus and Eliza A. Johnson.

At an early age, he showed a remarkable aptitude for his studies, and at the age of ten was enrolled as a student at Washington High School of Raleigh. Later he attended Atlanta University of Atlanta, Ga., and Shaw University of Raleigh, graduating from the latter institution with the degree of bachelor of laws in 1891.

He has been active as an educator, having been a principal in the public school systems of Releigh and Atlanta. At one time he was an instructor and Dean of the law school of Shaw University.

His political career began in the early Nineties. He has served as an assistant in the United States District Attorney's office of the Eastern district of North Carolina for two years, and also as a Republican chairman for the Fourth congressional district of that State.

He was an Alderman in the City of Raleigh at one time and has been sent as a delegate to the Republican National Conventions at Minneapolis, St. Louis and Philadelphia.

In 1907 Attorney Johnson came to New York to practice law and was soon actively engaged in the political affairs of this city. In 1917 he was elected as an assemblyman for the Nineteenth asembly district, achieving the honor of being the first member of his race to occupy a seat in the Assembly at Albany.

As a member of the Legislature he was instrumental in the successful passage of four bills, one of which was the Civil Rights Act, stipulating equal privileges for all in practically every public place, and of another which provided a free employment bureau with an appropriation of $30,000.

He is also gifted as a writer and has acquired many friends through his authorship of the following books: "History of Negro Race in America," "History of Negro Soldiers in Spanish-American War," "Negro Almanac and Statistics," and "School History of the Negro Race."

His devoted wife, Lena, to whom he was married in 1894, is largely credited for his many achievements and varied successes. There is also a daughter, Adelaide.

He is noted for his undauntable interest in civic affairs and held many enviable positions in various community, church and fraternal organizations.

He is a member of the Harlem Board of Trade and Commerce, the Upper Harlem Tax Payers' Association, the Southern Beneficial League, and is also vice-president of the West 135th street Y. M. C. A., and a Mason. He makes his home at 17 West 132d street.

Sun

INDIANAPOLIS
INDIANA
AUG 15 1928

Nullification In 1928

Hoover's employment in his acceptance speech of the word nullification arouses interest in the historic significance of that term.

It first sprang into being in the days of Jackson and Calhoun over an issue that still is with us—the tariff. South Carolina threatened to ignore the tariff provision of that day and went so far as to move toward withdrawal from the Union. Jackson countered with a promise of force. The crisis finally passed with a compromise.

Since that time the term has been used with more or less frequency as the issue of State's rights has arisen.

Now it appears again in 1928 and is applied to the prohibition question.

The dictionary defines nullification as "a rendering void and of no effect."

As a matter of fact, nullification is by no means absent from our legal scheme of things today. And strong forces are abroad with efforts to foster it. Even the law itself is employed to bring about nullification of the Constitution.

The grandfather clauses of the South that excluded from voting any Negro whose grandfather could not read or write nullified the Fifteenth Amendment, which provides that there shall be no discrimination against the voters because of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

That finally was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court.

Other laws accomplished the same exclusion of Negro franchise—educational tests, and this and that.

In most Southern States, despite the Fifteenth Amendment, the Negroes do not actually vote and, since many of the Southern political leaders are the loudest in their demands for preservation of the Eighteenth Amendment, there always is an embarrassing pause when a Northern wet raises the point that what is fair for the goose is fair for the gander.

And in still other directions nullification occurred.

The Fourth Amendment of the Constitution provides against unwarranted search and seizure. Yet the fanatical drys in the same breath with which they cry for sustaining the Constitution as it applies to the Eighteenth Amendment, uphold the raiding of homes for liquor without search warrant.

The Seventh Amendment of the Constitution provides for trial by jury, and yet in the judicial system itself we see courts, whose duty it is to support the Constitution, employing contempt proceedings and the injunction to circumvent the constitutional guarantee. A man sentenced to jail for contempt gets no jury trial. And that is nullification.

The First Amendment of the Constitution guarantees freedom of speech and of the press. Yet we find those arrests having to do with cases involving freedom of speech and of the press. A conspicuous example is the Roger Baldwin case recently decided in New Jersey. Nullification was effected for many months in the prosecution of Roger Baldwin.

In the main, the more fanatic a person is, the more he declares simon-pure, 100 per cent adherence to the particular law he is fanatical about, the more of a nullificationist he is toward other laws that interfere with a short-cut enforcement of his own pet statute.

It therefore is high time that the term nullification gets back into common usage and consideration.

We agree with Hoover against a treatment of the prohibition subject in a way that would mean nullification.

And we desire at the same time to go further and to say that should Hoover be elected President of the United States it will be as plainly his duty to stand against all forms of nullification with the same firmness that he promises against nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Political - 1928.
Party Affiliation

Republican.

REPUBLICANS NAME FOURTH NEGRO TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

E. A. Johnson Has Every Qualification for Office—First Negro Elected to New York Assembly — Reputed Wealthy

Although three prominent Harlemites declined to run for Congress on the Republican ticket from the Twenty-first congressional district, the designation has now been tendered to a fourth, who is expected to accept it. The latest designee is Edward A. Johnson, lawyer, educator, historian, author and politician, who made history in 1917 when he was elected by the Republican party as the first Negro Assemblyman in the State of New York.

Mr. Johnson was out of town when the choice was made known Monday, and at press time it could not be ascertained definitely whether or not he would accept the designation. Apart from his other qualifications, Mr. Johnson is widely reputed to be a millionaire.

EDWARD A. JOHNSON

Has Had Remarkable Career

Mr. Johnson was born sixty-eight years ago in Raleigh, N. C., the son of Columbus and Eliza A. Johnson.

At an early age, he showed a remarkable aptitude for his studies, and at the age of ten was enrolled as a student at Washington High School of Raleigh. Later he attended Atlanta University of Atlanta, Ga., and Shaw University of Raleigh, graduating from the latter institution with the degree of bachelor of laws in 1891.

He has been active as an educator, having been a principal in the public school systems of Releigh and Atlanta. At one time he was an instructor and Dean of the law school of Shaw University.

His political career began in the early Nineties. He has served as an assistant in the United States District Attorney's office of the Eastern district of North Carolina for two years, and also as a Republican chairman for the Fourth congressional district of that State.

He was an Alderman in the City of Raleigh at one time and has been sent as a delegate to the Republican National Conventions at Minneapolis, St. Louis and Philadelphia.

In 1907 Attorney Johnson came to New York to practice law and was soon actively engaged in the political affairs of this city. In 1917 he was elected as an assemblyman for the Nineteenth asembly district, achieving the honor of being the first member of his race to occupy a seat in the Assembly at Albany.

As a member of the Legislature he was instrumental in the successful passage of four bills, one of which was the Civil Rights Act, stipulating equal privileges for all in practically every public place, and of another which provided a free employment bureau with an appropriation of $30,000.

He is also gifted as a writer and has acquired many friends through his authorship of the following books: "History of Negro Race in America," "History of Negro Soldiers in Spanish-American War," "Negro Almanac and Statistics," and "School History of the Negro Race."

His devoted wife, Lena, to whom he was married in 1894, is largely credited for his many achievements and varied successes. There is also a daughter, Adelaide.

He is noted for his undauntable interest in civic affairs and held many enviable positions in various community, church and fraternal organizations.

He is a member of the Harlem Board of Trade and Commerce, the Upper Harlem Tax Payers' Association, the Southern Beneficial League, and is also vice-president of the West 135th street Y. M. C. A., and a Mason. He makes his home at 17 West 132d street.

INDIANAPOLIS
INDIANA
AUG 15 1928

Nullification In 1928

Hoover's employment in his acceptance speech of the word nullification arouses interest in the historic significance of that term.

It first sprang into being in the days of Jackson and Calhoun over an issue that still is with us—the tariff. South Carolina threatened to ignore the tariff provision of that day and went so far as to move toward withdrawal from the Union. Jackson countered with a promise of force. The crisis finally passed with a compromise.

Since that time the term has been used with more or less frequency as the issue of State's rights has arisen.

Now it appears again in 1928 and is applied to the prohibition question.

The dictionary defines nullification as "a rendering void and of no effect."

As a matter of fact, nullification is by no means absent from our legal scheme of things today. And strong forces are abroad with efforts to foster it. Even the law itself is employed to bring about nullification of the Constitution.

The grandfather clauses of the South that excluded from voting any Negro whose grandfather could not read or write nullified the Fifteenth Amendment, which provides that there shall be no discrimination against the voters because of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

That finally was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court.

Other laws accomplished the same exclusion of Negro franchise—educational tests, and this and that.

In most Southern States, despite the Fifteenth Amendment, the Negroes do not actually vote and, since many of the Southern political leaders are the loudest in their demands for preservation of the Eighteenth Amendment, there always is an embarrassing pause when a Northern wet raises the point that what is fair for the goose is fair for the gander.

And in still other directions nullification occurred.

The Fourth Amendment of the Constitution provides against unwarranted search and seizure. Yet the fanatical drys in the same breath with which they cry for sustaining the Constitution as it applies to the Eighteenth Amendment, uphold the raiding of homes for liquor without search warrant.

The Seventh Amendment of the Constitution provides for trial by jury, and yet in the judicial system itself we see courts, whose duty it is to support the Constitution, employing contempt proceedings and the injunction to circumvent the constitutional guarantee. A man sentenced to jail for contempt gets no jury trial. And that is nullification.

The First Amendment of the Constitution guarantees freedom of speech and of the press. Yet we find those arrests having to do with cases involving prohibition subject in a way that would mean nullification.

And we desire at the same time to go further and freedom of speech and of the press. A conspicuous example is the Roger Baldwin case recently decided in New Jersey. Nullification was effected for many months in the prosecution of Roger Baldwin.

In the main, the more fanatic a person is, the more he declares simon-pure, 100 per cent adherence to the particular law he is fanatical about, the more of a nullificationist he is toward other laws that interfere with a short-cut enforcement of his own pet statute.

It therefore is high time that the term nullification gets back into common usage and consideration.

We agree with Hoover against a treatment of the be elected President of the United States it will be as plainly his duty to stand against all forms of nullification with the same firmness that he promises against nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment.

A Lily White Party

(From the Charleston News and Courier)

A Lily White Republican electoral ticket in South Carolina is something new. That the ticket contains no negroes may have considerable significance. Presumably "Joe" Tolbert had his orders from Washington—it has not been his way to discriminate against the colored people, and it would not be his inclination. No one imagines that Tolbert would have the Republican party in South Carolina augmented by a considerable number of white voters, as that would mean the certain if gradual separation of the Tolbert tribe from the Tolbert jobs.

Orders from the Republican authorities that the negroes be excluded from the electoral ticket would on its face be construed as the baiting of the hook for discontented Democrats in the state. The Republicans see a chance of improving, at least temporarily, the position of their party, and hardly would they spurn it for the sake of Tolbert or of the negroes. They would reason, correctly, that in the long run the negroes would profit from a division of the white people, that if two vigorous white parties can be substituted for the one now existent, negro participation in politics would be invited by both. To this plan the negro leaders of the North probably would not consent.

The plan is another that may be described as an experiment noble in motive. If a large number of white South Carolinians should respond to this lure, the Republicans quietly for a few years would shove the negroes into the background. Probably in 1932 would be another Lily White electoral ticket, but in that year many negroes would vote, some of them for the Democratic candidates. Besides, Republican candidates for congress would appear in all or most of the congressional districts as well as a Republican candidate for United States senator.

National Republicans have nothing to lose by playing, temporarily, a Lily White game in the South, and, of course, they feel no solicitude for the political interests of the negroes, though they will leave nothing undone to gain negro voters wherever their votes count. It is only the people of the Tolbert stamp, whose share of the offices is the greater as the Republican vote is small, who stand to lose.

This gesture of the Republicans has its dangers to the national Republican ticket. It is a frank overture to the latterday Ku Klux Klan sentiment in South Carolina and would make fairly sure that a new and white Republican party would begin its career under the domination of Klan sentiment and influence. Those Republicans in the Northern states to whom the Klan is objectionable would not be pleased with the prospect of a Klansmen's party in the South exerting power in national Republican councils. The effect of Mr. Hoover's declaration against religious intolerance would be wholly neutralized once it should be understood that the Northern Republicans had allied their party with the Southern Klansmen.

Evidence is available that the Republicans are doing just this. Not all or nearly all the disaffected white Southern Democrats are Klansmen, but the elements sympathetic with the Klan's principles would be chiefly active and aggressive in Mr. Hoover's interest. Bishop Cannon, Bishop Mouzon and the Rev. Mr. Barton are preachers, eloquent and moving, but they are not practiced in the art of marshaling voters to the polls. Their value is as agents of propaganda, and the workers must be found outside of the ranks of ecclesiastics.

A white Republican party in South Carolina would be essentially a Klansmen's party in its beginning. Probably not all or a majority of the Klansmen would join it, but those who did join and manage it would be engineers of the Klux movement.

The News and Courier has suspected for the last six months, or twelve months, that Hiram W. Evans is an agent of the national Republican party. His motive may be not so much to elect Hoover as to defeat Smith, but regardless of motive, the fruits of his work would be to the advantage of the national party controlled and directed by Big Business and privileged wealth.

The national Republican party is purely a commercial organization, not less so than is United States Steel or General Motors. A newspaper made the keen point the other day that when Mr. Raskob of General Motors became Democratic chairman, his retirement from office in General Motors was expected, if not required. On the other hand, the selection of a "magnate" of business to conduct the Republican campaign is expected, is taken for granted. Men like Mark Hanna, Cornelius Bliss, the late George W. Perkins, the late E. H. Harriman, and Secretary Mellon usually work openly in Republican campaigns, but when a rich man becomes a Democrat, it is taken as a kind of scandal, as an example of shameless apostacy.

If these rich men can use the Klan in the South they would do so and think nothing of it. If they appraise Hiram Evans as an asset, they include him in their inventory. They are out to handle voters exactly as they handle employees, that is, to handle them in the earning of dividends, for they regard the government of the United States, including the presidency and the congress, as no more and no less than an important, if not the most important, subsidiary corporation in the carrying on of their various corporate undertakings. Hence, organizations of bishops and preachers, Klansmen, and other associations and groups are all one to them. When the negro group in particular localities is of no service they throw it overboard.

If the people of the United States could understand the nature of the national Republican party, and it is very simple—just a closely knit and articulated aggregation of vastly rich men and corporations—no Republican at any time could be elected president. These people in numbers are a negligible part of the eletcorate, but included among them is not only an enormous proportion of the money of the country but an equal proportion of the country's brains. Money buys brains. Thus the Republican party even succeeds in convincing millions of people that it creates and maintains prosperity, that without it, the country would soon be poverty stricken. Mr. Hoover's virtual claim that his party provides the people with automobiles, radios, freezeboxes, and talking machines is swallowed whole by great numbers of folk. Sensible people, who think for themselves, do not believe it. But sensible and thinking people are comparatively few. Besides, when they open their mouths, they are often accused of being socialists, radicals, and bolshevists.

Nevertheless one doubts if the Lily White scheme revealed in Joe Tolbert's electoral ticket will succeed. The Republican national committee is making an experiment noble in motive because there is nothing to lose by it.

THIS BIT OF INFORMATION SHOULD BE SOOTHING TO THOSE WHO FEAR SO-CALLED "NEGRO DOMINATION"

From week to week readers of the daily newspapers and many other publications have noted the persistent and patiently repeated statements that Secretary Hoover had abrogated President Wilson's segragation order as to the seating of white and colored employees in the Department of Commerce. To "abrogate" means to repeal or discontinue or change, and in this statement it was definitely meant to convey the idea that Secretary Hoover had disregarded the feelings of his white employees and put the white and colored clerical workers alongside each other as, it is claimed by the same doubtful authorities, was done in the old days. It is a little surprising that Southern newspapers of otherwise high standing, would take up and publish a statement so utterly unfounded, when it is so easy to obtain correct information, as proved to be the case in this instance. And it is noted that some of our leading Southern politicians have taken up this baseless and unworthy campaign material and are attempting to use it as one of their "democratic" war cries.

Below is reproduced a letter from Frederick J. Haskin, director of the information bureau of the Atlanta Journal, Washington, D. C., which should cause open-minded readers to hesitate before accepting the average run of political propaganda which is being used to "whip recalcitrant democrats into line" at this time. The name of the local citizen to whom this letter was addressed is withheld by request, but the letter may be seen at the office of this newspaper. It is reproduced below:

Frederic J. Haskin, Director,
Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.,
August 3, 1928.

Mr.
West Point, Ga.,

Dear Mr. _____:

The Department of Commerce says that no order has been given in regard to racial segregation in the Department of Commerce. No change in the seating arrangement was ordered by Mr. Hoover.

Yours very truly,
FREDERIC J. HASKIN,
Director.

Columbia, S. C., State
Saturday, August 18, 1928

HOOVER ORDER OFFENDS SOUTH

Abolition of Racial Segregation in Commerce Department Loses Voters in Dixie.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 17 (By A. P.)—Many Southern votes would be cast against Hoover in the coming presidential election because of his order abolishing race segregation in the department of commerce, Miss Lavania Engle, secretary of the Maryland League of Women Voters, declared today before the round-table on political parties of the Institute of Public Affairs, University of Virginia.

The South had come to look upon the Republican as the party which appoints Negroes to offices, Miss Engle continued.

Taking part in the same discussion, Prof. Arthur R. Hatton of Northwestern university, leader of the conference, said that the North was no more anxious to interfere with the policies of the South than it was to have the South dictate to it.

Problems that "loom most ominously in the fture of Pan-Americanism were pointed out by Victor S. Clark, editor of The Living Age, of Boston in the round-table discussion on "Our Latin-American Relations."

Gulfs between rich and the poor might be made broader throughout both Ameri as, Mr. Clark continued, when economic advances "create a community of interest between the wealthier, governing classes of the Latin-American countries and the United States and Canada.

"If you have a universay treaty to prevent war, why should not the South American states come in?" asked Prof. John H. Latane, leader of this round-table. In the two active areas of imperialistic expansion the anti-war pact does not apply."

Frederico Pezet, former ambassador to the United States from Peru, sounded a warning when he declared, "Spanish-speaking countries will in the future be some of the largest nations of the world, and if the United States ignores and belittles them today, tomorrow you may awaken to the fact that you have at your side not friends but enemies."

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

State G. O. P. Proving Puzzle To Washington

Close Political Observers Wonder How Tangle Will Turn Out

'Real Works' Out

Street-Thompson Maze Is Watched With Interest

By RUSSELL KENT
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Washington political observers are wondering what is going to happen to the Republican organization in Alabama now that the executive committee has chosen 12 "bolting" Democrats as Hoover-Curtis electors this year.

True enough, Judge O. D. Street, Republican national committeeman, is at the head of the campaign committee which will fight for the election of these 12 erstwhile Democrats as presidential electors, but in the background and not so very far back at that, there looms the figure of Joseph O. Thompson, one-time chairman of the state committee and later "Bull Moose" national committeeman for Alabama in the days of the Rooseveltian campaign.

Oliver D. Street is the nominal head of the G. O. P. anti-Smith Democratic drive in Alabama. As Republican national committeeman and federal patronage referee Judge Street has a certain pride.

Thompson "Real Works"

It is rather suspected here, however, that the "real works" of the combination ticket in Alabama this year is Joseph O. Thompson, who has announced he will open an office in Montgomery for the campaign. Judge Street's power as patronage referee necessarily would have to be divided with Mr. Thompson, even if not surrendered completely, in the event of victory for Herbert Hoover next November—even though Alabama remained Democratic, as it is confidently believed it will.

Joseph O. Thompson is somewhat of a "man of mystery" in this Alabama campaign. He is functioning, it is believed, under the guiding hand of that real "master of mystery" in the Republican campaign, Horace A. Mann, formerly of Tennessee and now of Washington, who is quite evidently in charge of Southern affairs for the G. O. P. national committee but maintains separate offices here and regarding whose official status there has been complete and somewhat significant silence on the part of National Chairman Hubert Work and his lieutenants. Mr. Thompson came here in July, immediately after the state Republican convention at Birmingham and he conferred with Mr. Mann, at which time it was hinted that the Alabama Republicans would name "outstanding prohibitionists" as Hoover-Curtis electors and certain plans which subsequently have been put into operation were suggested, even down to inclusion of the name of George H. Malone, of Dothan, formerly prominent as a Democrat and who has just been named one of the Hoover-Curtis electors for the state at large.

What Of Street?

With Joseph O. Thompson such a large factor in the Alabama G. O. P. situation, the question arises: What is to become of Oliver D. Street. Mr. Street was a pre-convention Hoover man. He had a solid Hoover delegation at Kansas City with the exception of one delegate, who finally came into the camp when Frank O. Lowden withdrew to spare himself the sting of defeat on the nominating ballot. Judge Street had Hoover pre-convention offices in Birmingham, financed by the $1,000 which Rush Holland, former assistant attorney general of the United States, handed him.

It remains to be seen whether all will be harmonious in the new line-up of the Alabama G. O. P. Judge Street's friends may not take so kindly to future events as they appear to be doing at the moment. Perhaps there may be glory sufficient for two leaders in Alabama's Republican ranks in this campaign; maybe, on the other hand, it is calculated that two sets of shoulders will be necessary to bear the weight of the defeat which most observers predict faces the new political combination.

E. E. Winters, Republican All Life, For Smith

Union Veteran, County Committeeman, Can't Stand 'Mugwumps'

Voted For Lincoln

Condemns Leaders For Yielding To Klan

Maj. E. E. Winters, of Montgomery, life-long Republican, and veteran of the Union army in the War Between the States, yesterday announced that he would vote for Smith and Robinson.

Maj. Winters, in his statement, denounces the anti-Smith Democratic electoral ticket which the Republican party organization in Alabama has accepted, saying that he does not understand "how any self-respecting Republican (unless he be an office holder) can swallow the 'Mugwump' combination."

Maj. Winters cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln and has been regularly Republican ever since, "but this is more than even a 'hardened sinner' like me can stand."

Maj. Winters' could is a tart condemnation of the Republican leaders of Alabama for yielding to the demands of bolting Democrats that they be allowed to name all of the presidential electors on the ticket. It has been charged that while all of the candidates for elector on the Republican ticket are not klansmen, they were all picked by high klan officials and forced upon Judge Oliver Street, Republican national committeeman from Alabama, once noted for his outspoken antipathy for the klan and its methods.

Maj. Winters is a member of the Republican County Executive Committee of Montgomery County, though not active in its affairs at present, and has long been a prominent figure in Republican politics in Alabama. His statement, written for The Advertiser, is as follows:

Editor Montgomery Advertiser:

If called upon to choose between the regular "dyed in the wool" Democratic electors representing the two presidential candidates, I shall vote the straight Democratic ticket.

I can't understand how any self-respecting Republican (unless he be an office holder) can swallow this "mugwump" combination.

I cast my first vote for Abraham Lincoln 64 years ago and have been voting the Republican ticket "early and often" ever since, but this is more than even a "hardened sinner" like me can stand.

Sincerely,
(Signed) E. E. WINTERS.

Herbert Hoover's tortuous policy in regard to Mississippi flood relief has been publicly shown up by Colonel Robert Ewing, the publisher of the New Orleans States. There is no denying the truth of Colonel Ewing's charge, because too many men in Mississippi and Louisiana are familiar with the facts. Mr. Hoover repeatedly declared, both in public and in private, while he was in the flooded district, as Colonel Ewing states, that the Federal Government should assume the entire financial responsibility for relieving the wrecked States. When it was suggested that there be immediate action looking to the organization of public opinion to this end, Mr. Hoover privately asked all who came to him to do nothing, to leave it to him, and he would attend to it and put it through. Then he returned to Washington. Did he thereupon state to the press how he felt about the matter? He did not. Did he rush to the hearings before the Senate committee which was taking testimony as to the flood situation and ask to be heard? He did not. On the contrary, he dodged the committee, and left Washington for ten days. Finally, when Senator Willis insisted that he should come before it and publicly demanded him, Mr. Hoover appeared, a most taciturn and reluctant witness. He thought that the policy to be followed in preventing future floods should be determined by the Army engineers and ventured no opinion of his own. Then it was discovered that he had completely forgotten his promises and thought the financial responsibility should be shared by the States in the flood district. It is a most unhappy chapter in Mr. Hoover's political record, but unfortunately it is not a unique one.—The Nation.

NEGRO VOTERS CAUSE MUCH CONCERN IN THE REPUBLICANS' RANKS

G. O. P. Leaders Worried by Growing Tendency. To Desert the Party. Evidence of New Trend

NORTHERN STRONGHOLDS THREATENED BY MOVE

Democrats Taking Bolters Into the Fold. New Party Organization Arises in the Confusion

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 4.—For the first time in the history of present day politics, Republicans are beginning to worry over holding the majority of the votes of colored Americans in a presidential election.

Far-seeing Republicans see a possibility of the Negro vote breaking away in November and thus upsetting calculations in New York, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri. Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio,

Mix-Up Arises

In the Empire State, for instance, Tammany Hall has cultivated the Race sections of Harlem. How many colored voters have been won away from the party to which they were attached traditionally is a mooted question.

During the preconvention campaign Republicans in the South opposed Negro leaders, with the result that many of the State organizations now are a "lily white basis. Soon after the convention, also Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant Attorney-General, made a personal visit to Mississippi. The indictment of Perry W. Howard, national committeeman from Mississipppi, and others followed.

Howard has powerful connections and it has been concluded by most Negroes that he is being persecuted because of his color.

Suggestions Made

Out of this has resulted Negroes put over Presidential ticket of their own in the field with the backing of the Elks.

The waiting policy at Republican national headquarters on the Race question probably is influenced by the belief that eventually the Democrats will solve the problem for the Republicans. Already the cry of "white supremacy" has been raised by southern Democrats who are trying desperately to save their States for the South. The more that cry is uttered in the next few months the less inclined will be the Negroes of the North be to desert the G. O. P.

-:- Why Fools?

By KELLY MILLER

THE erudite editor of The Crisis has said that any Negro who votes for Herbert Hoover is a fool. A great many Negroes will undoubtedly vote for Hoover at the risk of bringing down upon their heads the malediction of the wise and prudent editor, who upbraideth all men who dissent from his infallible judgment without stint or parsimony. The Good Book tells that he who sayeth to his brother "Thou fool" shall be in danger of the hell fire. Those self-deluded fools who persist in voting for Herbert Hoover, despite this maledictory admonition, will doubtless extend to the self-appointed political censor an urgent invitation to pay an immediate visit to the place that burneth with brimstone and fire.

On the other hand, it is decreed that those who vote for Al Smith should imitate the execrable Judas and commit immediate suicide. I think that all will agree that he who commits suicide is a fool; therefore, all Negroes who support either the Republican or the Democratic ticket in the approaching campaign, according to The Crisis' logic, will fall under the condemnation of that awful designation. After all, was not Shakespeare right when he exclaimed, "What fools these mortals be!"

The Negro is dressed up in his political clothes, which he puts on every four years. It is one of the failings of human nature that, when one is dressed up, he will inevitably find some place to go—even though he goes to the wrong place. It is unbearable boredom to endure the ennui of the Yankee yawl—"Nowhere to go, and nothing doing to home." Dr. Du-Bois' dictum would involve the Negro in a double acting dilemma. The Republican party is his traditional political home. If he stays there he is a fool; if he fares forth he will commit suicide. The Negro, in the midst of his bewilderment, wants constructive advice; his would-be guide, philosopher and friend confounds him with the counsel of despair.

— Kelly Miller —

As a matter of fact, this is the most perplexing campaign in the history of the American electorate. The Negro is no whit more confused than the great bulk of white voters. There will be no voters next November who can support their party with 100 per cent loyalty and devotion, unless it be the white and black Bourbons, who never learn anything new nor forget anything old.

Few, if any, voters will support either Mr. Hoover or Mr. Smith because he believes in all the things that either candidate stands for. It is no longer a question of party, but one of principle. Each voter must select that particular principle or set of principles which he deems most vital to the local and national welfare and vote for the party which for the time espouses these principles.

The agrarian will vote for the party and the candidate which he thinks will bring readiest farm relief. Those who do not believe in prohibition will support Al Smith, who embodies their hopes. On the other hand, the genuine advocates of prohibition will line up with Hoover, who stands with both feet on the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Negro's befuddlement may be a little more confusing than his white fellow electors. He must vote with Republicans, notwithstanding their abandonment of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, or stand for Smith, who is wet. While he thinks of the recreancy of the Grand Old Party, he cannot forget the traditional hostility of its Democratic adversary. Al Smith, who believes in political equality in the North, is silent on the same question in the South. Mr. Hoover, who abolished segregation in the Department of Commerce, does not dare defend his principle in face of the "lily white" demand in the South.

Although the Negro is bound by every consideration of racial self-respect to bring the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments back into the picture, he finds that it has been ignored by mutual connivance. So far as concerns the human rights issue in this campaign, dishonors are even. Prohibition is the residuary issue of divisive significance.

If the Negro deems this question vital to the welfare of the Negro and of the nation, as I do, then, despite all other drawbacks and disadvantages, he will support that party which makes most of that vital issue. Not only will he not be a fool for such advocacy, but he will thereby evince the highest political wisdom. Achilles sulking in his tent won no battles before the walls of Troy; Achilles buckling on his armor in behalf of the one thing that affected him most, despite his list of grievances against the leader of the Greeks, brought victory to his cause and glory to his name.

The Negro, while not a fool, has been fooled for the past forty years by the blandishments of pre-election promises. In this respect he can be fooled no longer. Let him keep both eyes open and vote for the sound principle of prohibition; he will thus escape the predicted folly of the fool and the tragic fate of the suicide.

OBSERVER

AUG 17 1928

COLORED REPUBLICANS PLAN FOR CAMPAIGN

An enthusiastic meeting of the Colored Men's Republican Club of Hudson County was held at Arcanum Hall, Jackson and Clinton avenues, Jersey City, last night. Close to 200 persons were in attendance and were addressed by prominent speakers.

Among the speakers, besides President Roberson, were Counselor August Zeigner, deputy superintendent of the Bureau of Elections of Hudson County; Mrs. Bessie Mention of Princeton, who was alternate-at-large to the Republican convention at Kansas City; Frank B. Chapman, candidate for Boulevard Commissioner; Counselor Aaron A. Melnicker, Benjamin Dowden, A. S. Thomas, colored, who was ousted as a member of the staff of the Bureau of Elections by former Superintendent Thomas McDonald, only to be reinstated by Superintendent John Ferguson, who is candidate for the Assembly; George Trotter, secretary of the Eighth Ward Republican Club of Jersey City; Rev. W. A. Byrd, Rev. W. A. Epps of the Zion Baptist Church of Jersey City, Mrs. Iola Epperman, organizer of the Ladies' Auxiliary, and Mrs. Alice E. Byrd.

In order to attend the meeting Mr. Chapman came to Jersey City in an airplane from Sea Girt, where he attended the awarding of medals to two members of his staff. His talk was also along the issues of the campaign.

The headquarters of the organization are located at 629 Communipaw avenue. Besides President Roberson, the officers are Fred N. Carter, vice-president; C. Bion Jones, secretary; Herbert Williams, assistant secretary; H. A. Bowley, treasurer, and C. A. Hyte, chairman of the executive committee.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

AUG 21 1928

COLORED G. O. P. VOTERS' OFFICE OPENED HERE

Dr. John R. Hawkins and Albon L. Holsey in Charge of Headquarters of Division.

Headquarters of the colored voters' division of the Republican national committee were opened here yesterday with offices on the first floor of the Barr Building, 910 Seventeenth street.

Dr. John R. Hawkins, chairman of the executive committee, and Albon L. Holsey, secretary, are in charge.

Dr. Hawkins is now in Tennessee attending a Republican conference in Nashville, but will return here Thursday.

POST
WASHINGTON, D. C.

AUG 21 1928

Colored Voters' Division Of G. O. P. Opens Offices

The colored voters' division of the Republican national committee opened headquarters here yesterday with Dr. John R. Hawkins, chairman of the executive committee, and Albon L. Holsey, secretary, in charge. The division is located on the first floor of the Barr Building. Its chairman and secretary are serving with no honorarium, a fact which marks a "new era" in organization of colored voters' divisions of the national committee.

The other personnel consists of three stenographers, three typists, two messengers, a file clerk and bookkeeper, and a field working or contact man, aggregating a salary expenditure of approximately $3,000 during the forthcoming campaign. Dr. Hawkins is now attending a conference of Tennessee Republicans in Nashville. He will return here Thursday.

Political-1928

Party Affiliation.

Democrats Given Electors' Places On G. O. P. Ticket

Mrs. Marvin Williams, Charles E. Brown and Others Are Appointed by Flanders Faction.

BEN DAVIS ADMITS DEFEAT IN GEORGIA

Says Party Cannot Expect Success Until Year 2,000; G. O. P. Factional Strife Continues.

While two rival "republican state central committees,"—their differences still unharmonized, held meetings Saturday, one in Atlanta and the other in Macon, two facts were brought out of unusual interest in Georgia politics.

First Mrs. Marvin Williams, of Atlanta, and Charles E. Brown, of Cordele, who were delegates from Georgia to the democratic national convention at Houston last June, have been named as republican electors in the November election.

Second, admission by Ben J. Davis, negro, former republican national committeeman for Georgia, that Hoover cannot carry the state of Georgia against Al Smith, and that the republicans cannot hope to gain a victory in Georgia "until the year 2000."

G. O. P. Situation Tangled.

The republican situation in Georgia became more tangled than ever Saturday when the two "state central committees" met to name electors for the Hoover-Curtis ticket for the November election. The Flanders-Ben Davis faction, convening in Atlanta, endorsed 14 electors, including the two Georgia delegates to the democratic national convention and the Pickett-Joe Watson faction met in Macon and named a committee to select a second set of electors.

Selected by a special committee and approved by H. G. Hastings, chairman of the Hoover campaign committee for Georgia, the Flanders-Davis list of electors was filed with the secretary of state Saturday morning by J. T. Rose, vice chairman of the state central committee. This faction claimed a quorum with 30 present and 23 proxies.

The Pickett-Joe Watson faction, at Macon, named Roscoe Pickett, of Jasper, and Louis H. Crawford and C. P. Goree, both of Atlanta, as a committee to choose the presidential ticket, the committee being empowered to file its list. This meeting claimed 35 present and several proxies to make up a quorum of the 71 members of the state central committee. A quorum is 36 members.

Executive Bodies Named.

Both committees named executive committees for the next two years. Advices from Macon were that Pickett's meeting selected L. H. Crawford, of Atlanta, S. C. Clemmons, Macon negro, and B. F. Cofer, Albany, negro, as an executive committee. Both factions went on record as indorsing the selection of the Hoover-Curtis campaign committee for Georgia, headed by H. G. Hastings, and pledged cooperation with the committee in the campaign.

Mrs. Williams is president of the state W. C. T. U., while Brown is editor of the Cordele Dispatch. In addition to Mrs. Williams and Brown, the list of electors filed by Rose includes several democrats, among them members of the "Anti-Smith Dry Democrat" organization, as follows: Dr. E. J. Forrester, of Sparta; Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, widely-known temperance lecturer; George S. Jones, of Macon; Mrs. C. A. Vernooy, of Athens, and Dan T. Cowart, of Waycross. Mrs. Williams said Saturday afternoon that she had accepted the invitation to serve as a republican elector, and had sanctioned the use of her name on the list.

While admitting that some of the electors had been chosen from the ranks of dry democrats, it was stated that this had not been taken into consideration in making up the list. "We merely selected a strong, outstanding ticket of white electors," said Postmaster E. K. Large, a member of the committee. "We did not consider with what party they may have been identified."

Republican.

Frank admission that he does not believe Georgia will go republican in November was made Saturday by Ben J. Davis, negro, former republican national committeeman, at a meeting in the Fulton county courthouse at which the G. F. Flanders, of Jasper, faction claimed victory over the Roscoe Pickett, of Swainsboro, wing, with a quorum of 53 members in person or by proxy.

G. O. P. Victory Not Expected

Davis, secretary of the central committee, made a brief talk in which he expressed the opinion that while Hoover probably will draw a good vote in Georgia, the state will not go republican until "the year 2000," because it "will take that long to educate the white folks to the fact that the colored folks make good citizens."

Davis told the committee that he took the floor to "make some observations." "You hear a lot of talk about what folks are going to do," he said, "but when the time comes to vote the white people are going to vote democratic."

Asked by a negro committee member if the republican party would put out a state ticket, Davis said that it would not be any use to put one out because the negroes do not want to run for state office and the party is not strong enough to carry the election.

Davis explained that the vote campaign would get underway soon, and that the party would offer "a select and high class list of white electors," for, he said, "white folks don't want to vote for negroes. But to my knowledge our party has not had a colored elector since 1900. We always offer white electors."

Stating that the negroes were interested in William D. Upshaw's campaign "since he has come out openly for Hoover and against the national democratic ticket," Davis said, however, that he believed Congressman Leslie Steele would make a better office-holder.

Expel Pickett.

The session of the committee under Flanders was featured by adoption of resolutions affirming the actions of the executive committee at its recent meeting when Pickett and several other members opposed to Davis were reported to have been ousted from the committee. The Macon meeting called by Pickett was termed "illegal," and Flanders was empowered to declare vacant the places of any committee members who attended the Bibb county session Saturday.

Coincident with the meeting of the committee here, names of 14 republican electors, including Charles E. Brown, editor of the Cordele Dispatch, and Mrs. Marvin Williams, Atlanta, president of the state W. C. T. U., members of the Georgia democratic delegation, were filed with George Carswell, secretary of state. Action of a committee in filing the list was approved by the central committee members at the meeting here, while reports from Macon were that the Pickett wing was also selecting a list of "high class, white" electors.

Mrs. Williams to Serve.

Mrs. Williams said Saturday that she has consented to serve as an elector, and has given permission to the republican committee for the use of her name as filed with the secretary of state. Selected by a committee which included Postmaster E. K. Large, of Atlanta; J. T. Rose, collector of internal revenue, and Clint W. Hager, United States district attorney for northern Georgia, the 14 electors have accepted with only two exceptions, it was announced. The committee said it would vouch for the acceptance of two persons who have not been reached with notifications, one of these being Mrs. Mary Harris Armour, widely-known temperance lecturer, who is now in Europe.

The list of the electors, all white, follows: Charles Adamson, Cedartown, and Mrs. Mary Harris Armour, Eastman, state at large; Frank Durden, Savannah, first district; J. M. Patterson, Putney, second district; Charles E. Brown, Cordele, third district; Henry O. Lovvorn, Carrollton, fourth district; Mrs. Marvin Williams, Atlanta, fifth district; George S. Jones, Macon, sixth district; D. C. Cole, of Marietta, seventh district; Mrs. C. A. VerNooy, of Athens, eighth district; W. A. Carlisle, of Gainesville, ninth district; E. J. Forrester, of Sparta, tenth district; Dan T. Cowart, of Waycross, eleventh district, and J. H. Rush, of Lumber City, twelfth district.

The committee meeting was called to order by Flanders, who then turned the gavel over to O. M. Duke, of Flovilla. In addition to the customary roll call, committee members present signed a sworn affidavit to the effect that they were present in order that that point might not be disputed by the other faction meeting in Macon. Announcement was made that there were 30 members present in person, while 23 proxies made up the balance of the total of 53 answering roll call out of the total committee membership of 71.

Resolutions indorsing the actions of the executive committee at its recent meeting and recognizing the power of the committee to transact business of the committee between meetings of the full membership were presented by Dr. W. H. Harris, of Athens, seconded by William Long, of Douglasville, and adopted unanimously.

These resolutions ratified the appointment of a campaign committee headed by H. G. Hastings, Atlanta seed man, and including M. O. Dunning, C. W. Hager, O. M. Duke, G. F. Flanders, Dr. W. H. Harris, H. A. Hunt, B. J. Davis, A. T. Walden and T. C. Williams. The meeting recognized the following executive committee for the next two years: G. F. Flanders, J. T. Rose, B. J. Davis, W. J. Shaw, John W. Martin, A. S. Anderson, Jr., Dr. W. H. Harris, C. W. Hager, O. M. Duke and A. T. Atwater.

The purpose of the resolutions was to show that the executive committee acted within its authority and that the full committee approved its actions and is bound by its doings, the resolutions said. The resolutions confirmed the ousting of Pickett, J. H. Watson, L. H. Crawford, T. N. Hendricks, B. F. Cofer, R. C. Williams, Sol C. Clemons and E. J. Turner for alleged violation of instructions to vote for Ben J. Davis as national committeeman, and also ratified the election of C. S. Wigfall, W. S. Harris, D. A. Winston, J. B. Dove, William James, R. P. Hufstetler, A. W. Barrow and H. A. Hunt to succeed the removed members.

Joe R. Lovejoy, of Greenville, fourth district, was elected to the central committee to succeed Callie Crittenden, of Cordele, who did not accept membership on the committee.

Praising Ben J. Davis, negro secretary of the committee, for his loyalty to the party, J. B. Dove, white, of Atlanta, urged the committee's indorsement of Davis, which was given in a verbal chorus. Dove scored Pickett and the other "bolters," and reviewed the fight on Davis as national committeeman by Joe Watson, Albany negro, who also sought the national committeemanship.

Cordele Dispatch Aug 6-1928

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?

The Dispatch in its entire career has never been stormed so with protests against a candidate for public office as it is now being beseiged with complaints against Al Smith and Tammany's program for the democrats. We have been in newspaper work for more than twenty years. It has not all been done here—some of it has touched larger newspapers. We have t osay tha tthe writer of these lines has never seen such a revolt.

People come often throughout the day's labors to tell us of their interests--to lend encouragement in the cause we are fighting. The write letters from all over this state. They send us fighting material—great loads of it. Here is a letter just in. It says: "I read your editorials appealing to the public in the Hoover-Smith nominations and I wish to say that I admire your stand and pluck and coming out as you did, that I heartily endorse your stand and statements. Keep the good work going. My vote goes to Hoover and every other one I can in any way influence is going, too."

This is from an outstanding citizen we never knew had any interest at all in the issue. He believes in the democracy of the south as truly as do any of us, but like most of us, he cannot believe that the interests of democcay of this country can be safe in the hands of Al Smith, Raskob, and Tammany. Women join in the same expressions. A good woman showed a mark of distress in her face the other day discussing the terrible future—the injustices, the destruction of all that southern people had placed in their higher political ambitions for the party of their choice. Romanism and liquor make up all that Tammany has to offer southern people in the program with Al Smith at the head—and this good woman knew it.

We know what it means—that there is no future for the democracy of southern people in the hands of the Tammany element. Leadership was bought by the liquor and Romanist elements that went to Houston representing the democracy in this country. Georgia came within one moment of sending just such a delegation to Houston—came near doing it after she had a favorite son to offer. With but one vote the situation was saved. Al Smith money was being spent in Georgia to steal the delegation from Senator George. There is a row and a grudge yet—Smith peopde say now that the manner of selecting the delegation was all undemocratic and absolutely preposterous. Surely, it was—in the eyes of the Al Smithites who who were here to buy up the delegation. We can name Al Smith "speakeasies"—know them by name. They were here trying to make sure of a Smith delegation from Georgia when Senator George had already been selected and given the authority to name his own delegation. That thing was prevented by one lone vote in the state executive committee.

All over this country that went on—money, money, money, in limitless amounts. It went to make Houston certain for Al Smith. Where did it come from? How many millions of dollars went to securing the nomination for Al Smith against the best interests of decent government, to say nothing of the absolute destruction of representative procedure there?

How many more millions will be expended to put that same ticket across in November—how much of it in Georgia? We cannot help what comes, we are not going to stand for it. They may lick us, but we shall stand for the ideals of a democracy brought us by our forefathers. We want clean, representative government. We are going to tell about it when we see such stuff being offered Georgians as is being thundered by the mighty Marse Hoke Smith in Atlanta. He may deny till his full blown face is red, but he cannot make us believe he is not getting many thousands of dollars for his marvellously unselfish and patriotic stand in keeping Georgia democrats in line.

This is true: There are now campaign headquarters with men in charge. Marse Hoke is popping the whip at the office holders—every mother's son of them. They have done something never before required of them in Georgia—taken the oath of allegiance to the party—the Al Smith end of it. All these unusual programs mean the expenditure of huge sums of money. And they are doing that to carry the state of Georgia for the Tammany democracy! Why all that?

It is because so many people are going to detour. They mean to leave the Al Smith ticket to Marse Hoke and the office holders. They are going another way. The revolt is complete—state wide. And it isn't going to take piles of campaign money to make it a complete revolt. It is already a decided issue—that on the conscience of the individual voter.

What we hope with all the courage in our souls today is that it remains a revolt till November. We've seen republican politics which we heartily condemn—will always condemn, but if we know ourselves today, we soleemnly affirm to our readers that there is nothing promised in the Hoover program that can ever heap upon the democrats of the south such degradation, such complete surrender of representative government, such scandal, or more corrupt political pedigrees. And the [redacted] credit in the south to the type Tammany coddles and holds dear.

The Dispatch has never seen such a wide general revolt. It is a determination not to support the Al Smith rum and Romanism program. Marse Hoke and his paid lieutenants may yell—may sound the bugle call to loyal democrats—but loyal democrats believe that the safety of their political future and the party of their fathers will best be conserved in voting the Hoover ticket in November. And they are right. We've been through enough of Al Smith and Tammany to know.

The editor of the Dispatch seeks no office. Nobody can buy the voice of this newspaper. What appears in these columns goes there after honest deliberation—after years of battling the Tammany Al Smith gangsters. We shall continue to warn our friends. Then, if they swallow the dose now confronting southern people and the democratic party in the Tammany ticket, we cannot help it. But, friend, if you knew we are sure somebody would have to argue with you on this subject. Al Smith is the greatest menace to clean, representative government that has ever been offered the people of this republic.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation

Augusta, Ga., Chronicle
Sunday, July 29, 1928

Constitution
Atlanta
Ga.
8-19-28

8-12-28

WHEN MRS. HOOVER WAS A SCHOOL GIRL—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the republican nominee for president, when she lived in Whittier, Col., and attended school there. Mrs. Hoover, indicated by arrow, is shown with part of her graduation class. There was one negro in the class. (International)

NEWS
Chandler, Okla
AUG 17 1928

A NEW LEADERSHIP

Chairman Hubert Work, of the republican National committee, has named an executive committee, to handle the work of the colored division during the presidential campaign. These men will serve without pay. The Negroes of America should take off their hats to John R. Hawkins and his colleagues, because of their unselfish attitude in this matter. The day has come when Negro America can tie to leadership which will not bind and compromise itself with the "loaves and the fishes" to the extent that later it unfits them to make demands for the race as a whole, having to do with the common weal.

Republican.

It was this sentiment that the writer voiced at Kansas City, in such meetings as the colored division had there, and in following our judgment as to the type of man who should lead out, we placed our name on the dotted line asking that John R. Hawkins be selected.

In the selection we have a man as big as his job. Banker, financial secretary of the great A. M. E. church, and one of the most substantial citizens of the District of Columbia. Mr. Hawkins could not be doing more than making a personal sacrifice to give his time and mind freely to this task and without pay, in organizing the negro republican voter in a solid phalanx for the coming November election.

But in doing so. In rendering unselfish service, Mr. Hawkins will be in a position, if the republican party is successful, to make demands for his race that under other conditions he would not be able to make. If he were a job hustler, as some of his predecessors, he would immediately place himself in the position of the mendicant, who after he has filled his own mouth, has not the courage nor the right to ask for succor for any one else.

The negroes of America want the republican party to take a firm stand on the enforcement of the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments to the constitution of the United States. While agitation is on the enforcement of the 18th amendment we want to awaken the conscience of America as to the enforcement of all of the amendments.

The great question of liberty, freedom and the underpinning of everything that is dear in American government depends upon the enforcement of all laws, and at the fountain head, at the throne of government, we should demand leadership, courageous and unafraid, leadership of the type of John R. Hawkins.—Black Dispatch.

Church Declines

Tennessee's republican boss, R. R. Church has declined a place on the Hoover campaign committee because it is headed by Mr. John R. Hawkins, of Washington, D. C., who can vote only once in four years.

Mr. Church says he objects also to the way in which this committee was selected.

The Tennessee boss has just conferred with both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis. His letter of declination is therefore an inference that his appeal to them to change the personnel of the committee or add to its membership has been turned down. No other recourse remained except publicly to resign the place proffered on the committee.

Democrats will draw comfort from the Church letter, altho Mr. Church will not bolt the party. It is another sign of the independent spirit so evident in this presidential campaign.

NEW YORK HERALD

Republican and 8-23-28

AUG 18 1928

Racial Laws Called Blunder By Northerner

Dr. Hatton, of Illinois, Tells Virginia Institute That AmendmentsAreDictation

Candor Marks Debate

New York Business Statutes Are Pointed to as Model

Special to the Herald Tribune

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 17.—The enactment of the Fourteenth and the Fifteenth Amendment was a colossal blunder, Dr. Arthur R. Hatton, of Northwestern University, told the Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia to-day.

Dr. Hatton added an admission that the working out of the racial relations problem was largely a matter to be left to the South, wherein the real problem has always pressed. Such an admission from a Republican of Illinois was regarded as real candor and an important contribution to the discussion of this theme which has effected politics in this country for sixty years.

"The North," said Mr. Hatton, "is no more anxious to interfere with the policies of the South than it is to have the South dictate to it. Four-fifths of the North will realize that many of its reconstruction reforms have been blunders."

Dr. Hatton said that a sectional difference does not mean necessarily a difference of interest.

Mrs. Aurelia H. Reinhardt, of Mills College, California, illustrated this by pointing to the Japanese situation in California, which was sectional and yet vitally affected the nation's interest as a whole.

South Fears Negro Postmasters

Two queries were put forward by Dr. James K. Pollock jr.: First, if race is the one thing that keeps a Solid South, what is there to prevent the South from voting for Hoover, and, second, why does the South think that Smith would keep up racial barriers any more than Hoover? In the discussion that followed it was pointed out that the average Southerner connected racial equality of Negroes and whites with the Republican party and that they feared Negro postmasters in the South during a Republican administration.

Dr. Hatton pointed out that the Negro population is predominantly Republican, but he is breaking away from it and voting to his best advantage.

Asserting that he did not favor social equality between the races, Dr. Hatton said he recognized that some Negroes are capable. He saw nothing wrong in the idea that some racial stocks show a lower political capacity than others.

Replying to a query by Ralph Lounsbury, as to why the Negro can't be controlled within the party in the South, Hunsdon Carey, of Norfolk, Va., said that if the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution were repealed, the South would go Republican.

Many votes in the South will be cast against Mr. Hoover in the coming Presidential campaign because of his order abolishing race segregation in the census bureau of the Department of Commerce, said Miss Lavinia Engle, Secretary of the Maryland League of Women Voters.

The future of Pan-Americanism was discussed by Victor S. Clark, editor of "The Living Age," of Boston, before the round table on "Our Latin-American Relations, where he called attention to "problems that loom most ominously."

Utilization of Land Vital

The abandoned forest was the theme of George M. Rommel, agricultural consultant of Washington and New York, who said that the economic utilization of land is vital to the nation's welfare. The prosperity of farming, he declared, depends largely on the success with which farmers are able to utilize the land they operate. "Land pays a large share of taxes and it is obvious that unproductive land, unprofitable land, means unproductive, unprofitable communities or no communities at all.

Mr. Rommell asserts that the South is showing the way to the development of a constructive forest and land utilization policy for the entire nation.

Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the retail trade board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, stated that there is a tremendous waste of time, money, energy and resources for which litigation and congested court calendars are responsible and that "business ethics" is more than a matter of pious creeds and pronouncements lacking flesh and blood. In the history of commercial arbitration, he said, the New York Chamber holds an enviable place.

"What we need is statutes similar to those in effect in New York, providing that awards shall be final and irrevocable and enforceable by the courts."

Constitution Atlanta, Ga. 19-28

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE AND HIS FRIEND, THE REV. FATHER FLANAGAN, were entertained recently by this boys' band at the president's headquarters in Superior, Wis. The same band played for Mr. Coolidge last year at his summer home in the Black Hills.

Baltimore, Md., American
Date August 23, 1928

NEGROES TO PROTEST TREATMENT OF BLACK VOTERS BY THE G.O.P.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—A permanent organization of the National Negro Voters' League is to be formed tomorrow at a conference of negro leaders from 40 states called together by J. Finley Wilson, negro, to protest against what he termed "mistreatment of negro voters at the hands of the National Republican party."

The meeting will be a sequel to a conference held at Kansas City after the Republican convention at which a territory organization was formed.

"The purpose," Wilson said, "is to find out where the negro stands in the Republican party. We are all Republicans but we want to find out whether we are going to be allowed to stay in the party. All we ask is a square deal."

TELEGRAPH
Starke Fla
AUG 31 1928

300 NEGROES ARE NAMED TO WORK FOR GOP TICKET

The largest number of negroes ever designated officially as party committeemen will work for the election of Herbert Hoover and the republican ticket in the present campaign. Announcement by Chairman Hubert Work, of the division of the republican national committee indicates appointment of more than 300 negroes, men and women, in all states of the Union.

This is by far the largest number of negroes ever named by the G. O. P. in a campaign ,in modern times at least, although there has been a division for work among colored voters in each national campaign.

The fight among the negroes for the post of head of the division has been won, as expected, by John Hawkins, of Washingtoin, D. C., who seconded Hoover's nomination at the Kansas City convention.

Political – 1928

Party Affiliation

DR. HAWKINS IS GIVEN VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Republican Leaders Pass Resolution Favoring Executive Committee Head

SCOTT AND HOLSEY ALSO COMMENDED

Program Outlined For Nation-Wide Campaign Among Colored Votesr

(Special to The Herald)

Washington. — A resolution was unanimously passed Tuesday by Negro leaders of the Republican Party expressing implicit confidence in the ability of Dr. John R. Hawkins, chairman of the executive committee of the Colored Voters Division of the Republican Party.

The resolution also expressed confidence in A. L. Holsey, secretary, and Dr. Emmett J. Scott, a member of the executive committee.

Expresses Confidence

The resolution was as follows: "In view of the criticism from certain individuals reflecting upon Chairman John R. Hawkins, Dr. Emmett J. Scott and Secretary A. L. Holsey as non-voters, we do hereby record our implicit confidence in them and their ability to conduct an enthusiastic and effective campaign for Hoover and Curtis; and we pledge to them our unanimous support and further pledge to cooperate in every possible way to accomplish this purpose."

Among those who attended the conference were Dr. John R. Hawkins, chairman of the executive committee, State Senator Adelbert H. Rogerts, Chicago; director of the Western Bureau; Mrs. Addie Hunton, of the Eastern Women's Bureau; Mrs. M. F. Cook, of the Western Women's Bureau; Attorney W. A. Foster, Boston, Dr. Emmett J. Scott, A. L. Holsey, Mrs. George S. Williams, National Republican Committeewoman of Georgia.

Mrs. Daisy Lampkin, Pittsburgh, of the Women's Division; Robert L. Vann, Pittsburgh, Chairman of the Publicity Committee; W. T. Andrews, Vice Chairman of the Publicity Committee; Claude A. Barnett, secretary of the Publicity Committee; Fred R. Moore, New York, Chairman of the Eastern Bureau; Ernest T. Atwell, Philadelphia; Col. West A. Hamilton, of the ex-service men of the East, Judge James A. Cobb, Joseph Johnson, John T. Risher and Attorney Whilfield McKinlay, of Washington.

Mrs. Yost Introduced

Mrs. Ellen L. Yost, National Committeewoman of West Virginia, was introduced to the conference by Mr. E. Mitchell and spoke. Mrs. Yost has been prominent in the educational and political life of Virginia and has done constructive work in the interest of the race.

Plans Perfected

Organization plans were completed for an active campaign among colored people. During the conference Dr. Hawkins presided. Various department heads told of the activities in the different sections of the country and outlined a program for a nation-wide campaign for the support of the colored voters for the Republican Ticket. Reports showed that active work had been started and that the colored citizens would play an active part in the forthcoming election.

Dr. Work Speaks

The meeting was held on the tenth floor of the Barr Building and included addresses by Dr. Hubert Work and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, chairman of the women's division.

Dr. Work, Chairman of the National Republican Committee, pointed out that the sole purpose of the party ticket in the forthcoming election was to effect the success of the party.

Race Vote Important

He referred to the importance of the colored vote and said, "we must not forget that we are opposing one of the strongest organizations the Democratic party has ever boasted. Therefore we must bring before the voters, not the imaginary issues, but the real issues. We have selected Herbert Hoover as our standard bearer because we believe that he is a better, a bigger and stronger man than his opponent.

Republican.

Old Time Politician Out

"The type of men in your organization are the examples of the best American citizens who are interested in the affairs of the nation. The old time politician is out of this campaign. We are depending this year upon the partiotism and the loyalty of the American people to the Republican Party and the present government."

Women Play Part

Mrs. Hert pointed out that the vote of the colored women is of vital importance. The women of the colored race are tremendously important. They posses organization possibilities of which even the men cannot boast. Bring them into the organization and make them an integral part of it." ueclared Mrs. Hert.

THOMAS H. R. CLARKE DEFINES ATTITUDE OF OF RACE VOTERS

I have just concluded reading Mr. Bargeron's article in which he outlines the plan of campaign to be conducted among the colored voters of the country by the political management of the Republican party. I have this to say that if the Republican leaders between campaigns would give one-tenth as much attention to the colored vote as they so ostentatiously exhibit upon the eve of the greatest political struggle since 1896, their sincerity and good faith might not be questioned.

There are 15,000,000 colored people within the United States, nearly three times as many people as compose the present Austrian nation since its dismemberment. They are contributing their share in the productive power of the United States, and yet the Republican leaders have so manipulated the political situation that they have "jockeyed" every colored man in the Nation out of individual political power. There isn't a single one left with anything like the power formerly exerted by Frederick Douglass, B. K. Bruce and Booker T. Washington.

A Republican Senate refused to confirm Walter Cohen, of Louisiana, and had it not been for Robert M. La Follette, the Progressive, and David I. Walsh, Democratic Senator of Massachusetts, Mr. Cohen's name would have been rejected for the third time.

Senator Walsh got on a train and traveled 500 miles to reach the Senate in time to put over Mr. Cohen's confirmation, while Republican senators stood by and cynically voted against him. Mr. Cohen is the last colored Republican in the South holding a distinguished political appointment.

I wish furthermore to say that former Chief Justice White, of the Supreme Court of the United States, himself a Southern Democrat, gave colored America its first judicial victories before that tribunal. From the Dred Scott case to the appointment of Mr. Justice White, all of our cases were lost before that tribunal, and we did not begin to get favorable decisions until this great jurist appeared in the seat of judicial power.

I intend to support in this campaign the most brilliant gubernatorial officer in America—Alfred E. Smith, for three reasons:

(a) I am tired of Republican humbuggery.

(b) Gov. Smith has given the Nation a clear-cut referendum on the prohibition folly.

(c) His election will give no encouragement to the gallant gentlemen of the Klan.

Thomas H. R. Clark.

OUST HOWARD FACTION AIM OF LILY WHITES

Eliminate Negro Control, Is Cry of G. O. P. Leader.

ELECTORS ARE INDORSED

Republican Meeting at Greenville Brings Party Members From Over State—Predictions for Election of Ticket Are Made.

Special to The Commercial Appeal.

GREENVILLE, Miss., Aug. 28.—Republicans from the four corners of the Magnolia State gathered here tonight in a formal inauguration of the Republican campaign of this state. Two presidential electors representing the "white wing" of the Mississippi party were indorsed.

Charles C. Gordon, president of the Southern States Republican League, in one of the keynote addresses of the evening declared that the "Mississippi people have been watching the movement for the re-establishment of the Republican party in this state, that contemplates complete elimination from control of new leadership, as in the past for years, by a man whose name should not be mentioned in a Republican meeting of this character, and who is now under indictment by a federal grand jury and awaiting trial."

Two Distinct Factions.

Gordon said "there had been two factions, one led by Sheldon, Rowlands, Hawkins and that group who seek to have a party that will appeal to the good judgment of the people of the state; the other under the leadership of a mulatto and a coterie of his satellites, a faction that has by manipulations sunk it to the lowest level and placed the Republican party in Mississippi in contempt with all people who desire to see the right type of people occupy public positions."

In closing Gordon advocated the two party system in the state, declaring that Mississippi recognizes the disadvantages of the one party form of government and is eagerly looking forward to the time when she will become politically normal by the establishment of two major and evenly divided political parties.

The speaker predicted that many Mississippi Democrats will odorize their preogative and cast their votes for the nominees of the Kansas City convention, Hoover and Curtis. However, he made no predictions as to whether or not the Republicans would break into the state with a victory.

Ernest McCall Hawkins, chairman of the Mississippi state Republican executive committee, predicted that with the "lily white" electoral ticket to vote for Mississippi will poll a greater vote than has ever been polled by any Republican presidential electors in Mississippi.

"We are sure," he declared, "that those who favor the election of Hoover for preside... ...n gladly support this ticket because it represents the best in thestate."

Hawkins said it was well known public offices in this state were being bought and sold and traded and that it was a direct reflection on the citizenship of the state, and that men like Rowlands, Gordon and Sheldon and others who had taken a decided stand toward cleaning up the Republican party in Mississippi were entitled to the everlasting gratitude of the people of the state and that it took men of their pluck to call a halt to the mismanagement of the Republican party in Mississippi.

The other principal address of the evening was made by George L. Sheldon, of Petitt, former governor of Nebraska. Sheldon declared that the Republican party in Mississippi is facing a new area and a bright future. He commented on the mismanagement of the party that has been disgracing the Republican name. The former governor forecasted a victory in November for the Hoover-Curtis combination, but realized that they had a hard fight ahead.

Race Question Hurts Hoover

Speaker Says He Will Lose Votes Because of This

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 18 (AP). Many Southern votes will be cast against Hoover in the coming Presidential election because of his order abolishing race segregation in the Department of Commerce, Miss Lavinia Engle, secretary of the Maryland League of Women Voters, declared yesterday before the ground table conference on political parties of the Institute of Public Affairs, University of Virginia.

The South has come to look upon the Republicans as the party which appoints negroes to office, Miss Engle continued. Taking part in the same discussion, Prof. Arthur R. Hatton, of Northwestern University, leader of the conference, said that the North is no more anxious to interfere with the policies of the South than it is to have the South dictate to it.

Problems that "loom most ominously," in the future of Pan-Americanism, were pointed out by Victor S. Clark, editor of The Living Age, of Boston, in the round table discussion on "Our Latin-American Relations."

Gulfs between the rich and poor may be made broader throughout both Americas, Mr. Clark continued, when economic advances create a community of interests between the wealthier, governing countries and the United States classes of the Latin-American and Canada.

"If you have a universal treaty to prevent war why should not these Latin American states come in?" asked Professor John H. Latane, leader of this round table. 'In the two active areas of imperialistic expansion, the anti-war pact does not apply."

Frederic Pezet, former ambassador to the United States from Peru sounded a warning when he declared "Spanish speaking countries will in the future be some of the largest nations of the world and if the United States ignores and belittles them today, tomorrow you may awaken to the fact that you have at your side, not friends but enemies."

THE CONGRESSIONAL SITUATION.

The designation for the Congressional nomination on the Republican ticket in the Twentyfirst district of New York seems to have gone begging for acceptance, so far as a racial candidate is concerned, the Rev. William P. Hayes having joined Alderman Hawkins in declining the honor. Dr. Hayes' reason for his decision, the welfare of the church of which he is pastor, which requires undivided attention and care, is all sufficient and his choice will be approved by those conversant with the situation. The committee will have to find another candidate to make the fight.

In Chicago Former Alderman Oscar DePriest, who was slated as the regular Republican nominee to succeed the late Representative Madden, is threatened with opposition within the party at the primary, but the Thompson machine will probably carry him through. The movement to nominate a Negro on the Democratic ticket to oppose him does not appear to have met with acceptance among the leaders of the opposition. In another Chicago district, William Harrison will be the regular Republican candidate, with good chances of election.

A peculiar situation will be presented in St. Louis, where a young colored lawyer named McLemore has been named for the regular Democratic nomination to oppose Congressman Dyer, the author of the Dyer anti-lynching bill. This will precipitate a curious contest and clashing of opinions. If Missouri Democrats support the regular ticket, they will be voting for a Negro representative, and if they jump to the Republican side they will put the stamp of their disapproval on lynching. The Negro voters will be placed in a dilemna almost equally awkward, of either voting against a race candidate or turning down the anti-lynching advocate.

Out of this conglomeration of mixed motives and conflicting interests, the race should emerge with one or more representatives in the next Congress, which may mark the beginning of a new era in politics.

COLORED WOMEN VOTERS MEET IN NATIONAL CAPITAL; PLEDGE TO SUPPORT HOOVER AND CURTIS

By RUBY MOYSE KENDRICK
(For the Associated Negro Press)

Washington, D. C.—Declaring for a program of organization, education and registration of Republican Negro women in the coming campaign, Miss Nannie H. Burroughs, president, opened the 2nd biennial convention of the National League of Republican Colored Women here.

More than 300 women were present, all representing organized political clubs, and many connected with state central organizations throughout the country. These women, sweltering with heat, yet smiling with hope, rolled up their sleeves and formulated plans by which they could be of service to the party in the coming campaign.

Ovation To Dr. Hawkins

An ovation was given to Dr. John R. Hawkins, recently appointed director of Republican campaign activities among colored people. Among other things in his message to these women, Dr. Hawkins said: "Neither the Republicans nor the Democrats can hope to win without the support of the women. The giving of citizenship rights to women has been the longest step forward in recent legislation."

A provisional list of women workers in both the Eastern and Western divisions was read, with an invitation to the assembled convention to submit names of prospective workers for consideration.

The convention voted a hearty endorsement of Dr. Hawkins and pledged its support of the Republican party.

Visitors From National Headquarters

Honorable Franklin Fort of New Jersey, secretary of the Republican national committee, speaking as a representative from national headquarters, said that in his mind "Hoover is the greatest man of any time before reaching the presidency."

Mr. Fort also asserted that in the performance of public service, Mr. Hoover always recognized the rights of people as people.

He recounted the record of the Republican presidential nominee in managing the problems of the food administration during war times and the Mississippi flood relief in 1927, both services being rendered without hope of reward. The convention was also reminded of a statement made by Thomas A. Edison that as secretary of commerce, Mr. Hoover had saved the American people more than one hundred million dollars without their being aware of it.

In speaking of the vice-presidential nominee, Mr. Fort said that because of his 35-year record as senator and as congressman, Senator Curtis has had the finest training to prepare him to step into the White House in the event that such a step should become necessary.

The speaker was continually interrupted by applause, especially from the Western delegations.

While introducing to the assembled women, Mrs. Alice Graham Robinson, assistant to Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Mrs. George S. Williams, national committeewoman from Georgia, expressed appreciation of the fact that every official courtesy shown any other member of the committee has been accorded the colored members.

Mrs. Robnison read greetings from Mrs. Hert, who is attending a conference of Western political leaders at Chicago. The National League of Colored Women tendered, through Mrs. Robinson, a vote of appreciation to Mrs. Hert.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, was the next speaker. During the open session of the afternoon, the convention questioned the attitude of Mrs. Willebrandt as to the place she thought the race should occupy politically.

Other speakers were Mrs. E. E. Gann, sister of Senator Curtis, Miss Coleman, and E. H. Priest, press representatives, Mrs. Victor Evans, and the veteran politician, Kelly Miller of Howard University, and Neval Thomas, president of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

New National Officers

During the afternoon, reports of Republican clubs were listed from Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Arkansas, New Jersey, Kansas, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, New York, Florida, Rhode Island, Missouri, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Mississippi, California, Kentucky, Louisiana, Texas, and the District of Columbia.

The following officers were elected for the next two years: President, Nannie H. Burroughs, District of Columbia; 1st vice-president, Mrs. S. Joe Brown, Iowa; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Belle Davis, Ohio; chairman of the executive board, Miss Daisy Lampkin, Pennsylvania; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. M. Kelly, Michigan; 1st recording secretary, Mrs. Rebecca Stiles Taylor, Georgia; 2nd recording secretary, Mrs. Ida Plumer, Indiana; 3rd recording secretary, Mrs. Blanche Davis, Florida; financial secretary, Dr. Julian Coleman, New York; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, District of Columbia; parliamentarian, Mrs. Ora Brown Stokes, Virginia; department of voters, Roberta Dunbar, Rhode Island.

Political - 1928.

Republican.

Party Affiliation.

BATTLE BETWEEN GIANTS.

The Willis-Hoover contest in Ohio is a battle between republican giants in a state that has the reputation for "making presidents." That it will seriously split the party following is inevitable, and from that fact the democrats may take courage. Ohio is pivotal. It has a democratic governor at present, but a republican representative in congress. In 1920 the presidential race was waged by two Ohioans—Governor Cox, democrat, and Senator Harding, republican. Harding carried the state, but had the republican nominee been other than an Ohio man Cox would probably have carried. 3-2-28

Constitution

In the present battle for the convention delegates, favorable toward either Senator Willis, of Ohio, or Secretary Hoover, of California, the factional lines among Ohio republican leaders are more closely drawn than ever before.

Atlanta, Ga.

Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, Cleveland, Senator Willis' campaign manager, heads the senator's slate for seven delegates at large, while Hoover's list is headed by Congressman Theodore E. Burton, also of Cleveland.

The Rev. E. W. B. Curry, negro Baptist minister at Springfield, is on the Hoover list, and A. Lee Beatty, negro, former assistant United States attorney, at Cincinnati, is on Willis' slate.

The other four Willis candidates for delegates at large are: United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs; E. W. Edwards, Cincinnati manufacturer; Colonel Edward Vollrath, Bucyrus, Spanish and world war veteran, and Fred W. Warner, Marion, state republican central committee chairman.

The remainder of the Hoover candidates for delegate at large are: Robert A. Taft, Cincinnati, son of the chief justice of the United States supreme court; W. W. Farnsworth, Waterville; Edward Orton, Jr., Columbus, and Frank Brown were the most popular second choice of the Willis slate of delegates, being selected by four of the seven delegates at large, and thirty of the forty-four district delegates. Next in popularity in the Willis list was Colonel Charles R. Fisher, retired newspaper publisher and banker of Wilmington, Ohio.

Colonel Thompson, Congressman Burton, Senator Fess and Robert A. Taft are all national figures. Congressman Burton, formerly a United States senator, is a veteran and one of the most powerful orators in congress.

The fight will be watched with keen interest throughout the United States. In the meantime if the democratic leaders will act wisely, "keep their heads" and avoid feuds and intolerances Ohio's electoral vote may be in the democratic column after the November elections.

REPUBLICAN PRIMACY ESSENTIAL TO NEGRO PROGRESS

Independent Atlanta, Ga. Feb. 23, 1928

The recent outbursts of the spirit of intolerance with its venomous hatred against certain classes of American citizens, poured upon the ears of the law-makers at the seat of our national government by representatives of standard Southern thought and policy, serves as outstanding evidence that the Negro could entertain no hope of just administration of the laws under a Democratic tenure of the White House. These effusions are but the gentle ripplings of the waters by comparison with the actual dormant tidal wave of adverse sentiment against the Negro in the South. However, they are decidedly expressive of the general attitude of the Democratic Party towards the Negro.

The odium of the discriminatory practices against the Negro during the last Democratic administration will ever remain fresh in the minds of the Negro citizens. Eight years of drastic partisan rule destroyed almost the last vestige of personal liberty and inherent rights of the Negro. Ostracism, unnecessary discrimination and officially approved segregation, even around the "throne" of our government, were practiced against the Negro; those in the employ of the government under civil service regulations were the objects of the Democrats plan of despoilation. Thus the Negro was "slaughtered" to make complete the Democratic "holiday."

The South has always aligned itself solidly with the Democratic Party because the Democratic Party adheres to the theory of states' rights as against centralized authority in our government, and under the former the South would be able to perpetuate its traditional oppression of certain classes and groups of its populace, while under centralized authority, it must await the ascendency of the Democratic Party to the executive power in the nation.

The Negro has not yet procured the full rights and proper freedom of his status as a citizen; he can not expect to achieve these priceless possessions with a strong political faction attempting to shunt him to the outer realms of American society. The Negro is seeking the proper enforcement of the laws of the nation, as applicable to all citizens, that he may receive the benefits of the protection and security of the law. He is no longer the subject of special legislation, for the obvious reason that he is a citizen, and consequently a part of the legislative and operative system of the government. He does not seek the enactment of further laws for his benefit, but is expecting the administrative power of the government to take cognizance of him as a citizen.

With nearly every door of opportunity closed against the Negro, his only hope for measuring up to his citizenship lies in his own efforts for the improvement of his status, and to succeed he must not be handicapped by those in authority in the executive positions of our government. The party in power must at least adopt the policy of protection of his rights as a citizen, and it is only when the Republican Party has held the reins in our government that the Negro has felt some measure of freedom of movement.

The Republican Party has maintained its friendly attitude towards the Negro ever since its foundation. Through its militant efforts the race was given its freedom, and the past eras of Negro progress have come under Republican regimes. The future welfare of the race depends upon the continuance of this party in power. The Democratic Party has always clung to the notion that the Negro is a nonenity in American life and therefore unworthy of serious consideration as a citizen. He is not accepted as such; his presence in the social scheme is disregarded, and to them he has no rights which must be respected.

The Negro race is a strong entity in this country; his citizenship is established and permanent, and must be recognized. The Republican Party has exhibited the spirit of true democracy towards the race; it has kept the faith from Lincoln to Coolidge, and the Negro has enjoyed a beneficial interest in the government during the party's tenure of the executive office. The party canvasses the vote, appreciates it and makes returns in the just and equitable administration of the laws.

Unless the race is willing to submit to proscription of its rights and other obstacles to its progress, it should present a solid vote to retain the Republican Party in power. There is no other program so efficacious; the progress of the race depends wholly upon the continuance of the Republican Party in charge of the reins of our government. Republican primacy in our national government is essential to Negro progress.

Mobile, Ala., Register

MAR 9 1928

LILY WHITES WIN FIRST SKIRMISH TO OUST HOWARD

Chancellor Price at Hattiesburg Holds Court Has Power to Act in Controversy

Special To The Register

HATTIESBURG, Miss., March 8.—George Sheldon, former governor of Nebraska and now a Mississippi delta planter, and 150 other white Republicans in this state won two legal skirmishes here today in their fight to overthrow Perry W. Howard and his negro colleagues from their positions as party leaders in the state Republican organization.

Chancellor T. Price Dale who granted the Lily White group an injunction 10 days ago which restrains the faction now in power from holding beat, county state elections for the purpose of selecting presidential electors, overruled a demurrer filed by the defendants here today. The ruling was handed down at 8 o'clock tonight after opposing attorneys had waged an all-day battle over points of law, centering chiefly on the question of whether a court of equity had jurisdiction in this class of case.

Prominent Lawyers Heard.

A formidable array of legal talent had been obtained by the Howard faction, headed by J. Morgan Stevens, retired state supreme court judge; while the so-called "Lily Whites" were represented by three local attorneys, J. T. Wills and Sullivan and Sullivan. In filing their demurrer this morning when the hearing was opened, the defendants incorporated in the instrument an answer to the bill of charges made by the Sheldon group. The court was then asked to hear the points of fact as well as points of law, but on strenuous objections by the complainants, who wished to withhold testimony until decision on the demurrer was given, which decision would thereby establish the contention that the chancery had jurisdiction over the case, Chancellor Dale ruled that argument on the demurrer would be heard first.

Sustains Court Authority.

Despite the fact that counsel for the Howard faction quoted at length from Mississippi court decisions in an effort to prove that courts of equity have no authority to control the actions of political parties, Chancellor Dale in overruling the demurrer said that wherever statutes had been violated governing the methods of holding primary elections, the courts could step in and prevent other such violations by issuing injunctions. He named a number of authorities in other states to uphold this decision, but admitted that the question in point had never before been brought before a Mississippi court.

Points in the bill of charges which were considered by the court as involving law violations were the following allegations: That the negro factions had failed to give the required ten-day notice in advance of the holding of elections, that they failed to give the date of the election; that such elections were held in negro churches, negro lodge halls and other public places where white men and women would not enter; and that the executive committee had failed to name the number of delegates to be chosen at such elections.

Following the chancellor's ruling, several witnesses were sworn in for the complainants and the business of taking testimony to substantiate the charges of the "Lily Whites" was started. Indications were that the hearing would continue far into the night, and Chancellor Dale said because of other engagements he would not be able to continue the case until Saturday.

Federal Office Holders and Political Contributions

Independent
Atlanta, Ga. Feb. 23, 1928

It is against the law for any federal officeholder, appointed by any officer of the government, to make contributions, voluntary or involuntary, to any person, or persons, as a consideration for appointment to office. This law is a good one, and it ought to be observed, but it should not be used as an excuse by those who live by public offices to keep from contributing to the hand that feeds them. Corruption, in every form, must be provided against, but the fellow who accepts public office and refuses, after he gets the job, to contribute of his means according to his ability for the support of the party that furnishes him bread and meat, by hiding behind the law, is equally as corruptible as the fellow who offers to buy the job for an outright consideration.

All political parties, like all churches, schools and other institutions, it matters not how honorable and meritorious their objects may be, must receive financial as well as moral support if they exist and carry out the purposes for which they were instituted. And it is just as unreasonable to suppose that a political organization can pay rent, advertise, pay for services, and for the legitimate conduct of the business without money as it is to suppose that the Gospel can be sent to China, India and other heathen lands without money.

Money should not be used to the extent of commercializing public office or making it impossible for those who are not rich to aspire, but the legitimate expenses of conducting a campaign ought to be permitted and should be paid for by those who receive the emoluments of office.

There is not a senator or congressman elected to Congress with or without opposition who does not spend thousands of dollars legitimately, or otherwise, in campaign expenses. If the candidates themselves don't spend the money their friends and corporations friendly to them put up the necessary and unnecessary expenses to carry and influence the election. And any man elected to Congress, or to any other office in the gift of the people, where there is more than a thousand dollars spent, whether or not he spends it or furnishes it, has guilty knowledge of what his friends are doing for him.

In Georgia we are not going to solicit campaign contributions from federal office-holders or state office-holders; we are not going into the brokerage business for the purpose of delivering office for a consideration, but we are going to expect those who live off the party to do their duty by the party. We do not believe that offices should be knocked off to the highest bidder, but to the most efficient and cleanest applicant. We believe that efficient service should receive first consideration, and we can not take kindly to or think well of the fellow who accepts an office from a political party and never thinks of the hands from which he received it until he wants it again. It is very largely that class of office-seekers who get into office and fail to give due consideration to the party that gives them meat and bread, who offers a consideration for a job. The individual who from time to time inquires about the exchequer of his party and if he can help it in any way, whether he contributes much or little, never offers a consideration for a job. It is always the tightwad, the close-fisted ingrate who comes up and offers the party a consideration for a job. This class of men will receive no consideration at the hands of the Organization. The Organization is not in the brokerage business; it is striving hard to build up the party and feels that the members of the organization of the party should make a contribution for the party's support in the same spirit and sense that they make a contribution to the church, lodge or any other benevolent institution—no hope of reward as a consideration for their contribution, but purely in the sense of promoting good government.

While our government is republican in form and the people exercise their power through chosen representatives, it is a government by parties and when one party is not in power administering the government, another is in power, and who believes that both parties are not spending millions for the maintenance of their organization and the prosecution of their programs, that they must maintain if they would keep their organization intact? Who believes that it is not costing Al Smith millions to maintain organizations throughout the country, with an hundred headquarters and hundreds of clerks? Will the public believe for a moment that the thousands of people employed rounding up delegates and sounding out public opinion are all volunteers, rendering service for nothing? Who would believe that the main Republican and Democratic aspirants, aspiring for nominations, are not spending, or their friends spending for them, thousands of dollars for the consummation of the purpose they have in view.

The Organization in Georgia, like elsewhere, will ever bear in mind those who help it to live, and will have but little patience with those who never think of the party except when they want a job and then are willing to buy it and pay for it in advance. We have no offices to sell, and the jobs, so far as the Organization is concerned, should be given to those whose ideals of government are too high to think that a public office is public plunder to be knocked down to the highest bidder. The Organization believes in efficiency, and if it is not inside the party, and is in any other party, the Organization is going over to that party and select those who can best administer the affairs of the government. ANON.

THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER OFFERED

—o—

If Kansas City goes through with its present plan of insisting upon the segregation of Negro delegates to the republican national convention, it will have worked a confidence game to win the meeting. The kind of treatment given Negroes in Missouri is a known condition. This state writes black laws on its statutes, and flagrantly advertises its lawlessness by lynching and bombing Negroes homes. We who live here, do so with some knowledge of the state's attitude, and in that degree accept its shortcomings. But Kansas City asked the republicans to come here and promised the same treatment for Negro delegates as given in Chicago and Cleveland. Now out of the mouth of the local chairman comes the news that Negroes will be limited to Negro hotels and Negro entertainment, with a special fund provided to insure this being done.

Call

2-30-28

Either the local chairman does not know the conditions that prevailed in Chicago and Cleveland, or he misunderstood them. It is true that Negroes filled the Negro hotels in both these cities, but the essential difference there and here is that they were not limited to Negro hotels and entertainment.

Negroes stopped in the principal hotels of Chicago and Cleveland. The majority went among their own. Given free choice, the majority usually go among their own. It is this limitation, this gratuitous insult given by Kansas City and accepted by Dr. E. B. Clements, national committeeman for the republican party in Missouri, which we object to. There is no reason for it and it is bad faith.

Participation by Negroes on the various local committees is reasonable and advantageous. What they do to make visitors enjoy their stay of their own free choice, we agree to. But that is a far different matter from acquiescing in the segregation order. The Chamber of Commerce committee says it has money, a special sum, for Negro entertainment. Does it think money can salve our feelings? Does it care with what grace we face our friends when they come here and find we have accepted segregation for them? We are not so sure about the committee finding a Negro to spend their special Negro fund. They have dipped it in deception and fouled it with insult. We cannot save ourselves from what conditions white people impose, but we can save our consciences vindicate our manhood. We can provide our own entertainment with our own money. It is our hope that no Negro will accept their thirty pieces

Republican.

Political - 1928
Party Affilation

This is the way Holloway, cartoonist on the staff of The Pittsburgh Courier, pictures the segregation of delegates to the Republican national convention which meets here in June. The insistence of Kansas City white people that they cannot accommodate Negro delegates along with state delegations at the leading hotels has caused a stir in eastern and middle western states where Negroes are important cogs in the party machine. The fact that The Courier, admittedly a staunch Republican paper, would print a cartoon of this nature, indicates how strongly Negroes are feeling the segregation order.

—From The Pittsburgh Courier

APPEAL TO PERRY HOWARD

Columbus, Miss., March 24, 1928.
To The Commercial Appeal:

Will you kindly grant me space to register the hope that when Perry Howard and his crowd meet to select delegates to the Republican national convention, and also Republican presidential electors for Mississippi, that they will, so far as possible, designate only white men as electors, so that the many fine Mississippi Democrats who threaten to bolt the party, and vote the Republican ticket, in case a certain man is nominated at Houston, may not have to vote for a lot of colored men.

I remember when Mississippi a negro represented Mississippi in the United States Senate and another was in the Lower House; when at the same time we had a negro lieutenant-governor, who acted as governor, and accepted bribes when Ames visited his home in Massachusetts to consult with his father-in-law, Ben Butler, how best to persecute we Mississippians; when we had a negro secretary of state and a negro superintendent of public education and some 50 or 60 negro members of the Legislature, few of whom could read, all uniting to rob and plunder the state, counties and cities and backed by the radicals in Congress, succeeded in turning the south into paths more horrid than those of war. I was a young fellow in those days and was greatly grieved at the deep humiliation and degradation heaped upon the state of my birth and I made a solemn vow that never, "so long as water runs and grass grows" would I cast a Republican vote. I am not going to break that resolution this good year of 1928 but will, if living in November, vote the straight Democratic ticket. I do not know who will be nominated, if Gov. Smith, so much the better. I am satisfied that there are enough other good and true men to keep Mississippi where it has stood since 1876.

H. F. SIMRALL.

Commercial Appeal
3-28-28
Memphis, Tenn.

INSTRUCTING DELEGATES FOR HOOVER

The Informer has been asked by several Hoover supporters if this paper, the original (and up to the present time, the only avowed) Hoover supporter in Texas among race newspapers, is favorable to an instructed Hoover delegation from Texas to the Republican National Convention, which convenes at Kansas City, Mo., June 12, 1928.

Informer

When discussing this matter on two former occasions, The Informer took the position that, primarily, we favored an instructed delegation for Mr. Hoover from Texas; but later this paper took the attitude that if intrapartisan harmony could be brought about by an uninstructed delegation, while this paper was favorable to the Hoover candidacy, it would agree to the latter procedure to attain this end.

4-28-28

At that time The Informer was under the impression, and had been so informed by some of the leaders in the anti-Creager movement, that they were not against Mr. Hoover, per se; that they had no particular candidate as such, but were chiefly concerned in ending the reign of vest-pocket and proxy Republicanism in Texas.

Houston, Texas,

The anti-Creagerites held that this objective could be best attained by sending an uninstructed delegation from Texas to the national parley of the Republican party, but that no fight would be waged upon Mr. Hoover's candidacy.

These anti-administration Republicans also contended that Southern states should not instruct for and play a too important part in nominating presidential candidates for the party, whose election to the office is dependent wholly and solely upon upon states not of Dixieland.

With rumors afloat that the anti-Creager opposition in Texas has developed or is fastly assuming an anti-Hoover aspect, and that certain combinations and agreements have been entered into between some of the Texas Republicans—who are, supposedly, antagonistic to the present G. O. P. state administration—with backers of other aspirants for the presidency via the Republican nomination, The Informer finds itself at the point where it can not support nor lend even silent encouragement to any movement which is hostile and inimical to Mr. Hoover, merely to get even with certain Texas Republicans who have not conducted partisan affairs in keeping with Republican principles, tenets, customs and traditions.

No paper in Texas has disagreed with the Creager-Nolte regime and its exclusive partisan policy more than The Informer; but this paper also notes that until there arose a split and schism in the Texas Republican ranks over patronage distribution in this state, none of the leaders in the present revolt movement, except Captain John A. ("Jack") Elgin of San Antonio, Harry Beck of Dallas and one or two other white Republicans of Fort Worth, ever raised their voices in protest or sought to overthrow the Creager-Nolte combination.

The Informer holds no brief for the Creager-Nolte regime, nor has this paper anything in its journalistic heart against Congressman Wurzbach, moving spirit in the anti-Creager movement; for, while the congressman's friendly and apparently fair attitude on Negro participation in Republican affairs is well known, and while he has a host of colored friends in Texas (The Informer editor being one of them), some of his white political associates are rabid Negro haters; one of them boasting in his business advertisements that his place of business was free from "Mexicans, 'niggers,' cockroaches and dogs."

Still another anti-Hooverite is reported to have been a ring leader in a mob which lynched a colored youth in his city some years ago, and this patriot (?) is universally disliked by practically every Negro in his city, county and district. If Negroes had to elect him to public office, this same man would go down to defeat in a race for the office of official dog-catcher!

The colored Republicans of Texas should heed the call of the Creager-Nolte convention, attend and participate in the Republican precinct conventions on Saturday, May 5, 1928, where delegates will be elected to the county conventions, which are slated for Tuesday, May 8, 1928; at which convention delegates will be elected to the state convention, which will be held at Dallas, Tuesday, May 22, 1928.

If the delegates at the state convention favor sending an instructed delegation to Kansas City, they have that right under the law; and The Informer holds to the opinion that such action would not be unwise in the light of recent developments and alignments, and would not be out of line and harmony with similar action taken by other Southern states whose delegations have been instructed to vote for Mr. Hoover as long as his name is before the national convention.

Some contend that, in case of a split, it will be good politics for the contesting delegation to be uninstructed, in order that its chances of being seated by the contests and credentials committee might be enhanced; but the only two Southern states thus far electing contesting delegates to the national parley, have instructed all their delegates for Mr. Hoover; and the issue of legality and party regularity, rather than the candidate, will be the determining factor in seating contesting delegations, whether from Louisiana, Mississippi or Texas.

The Informer has previously held and holds now that neither the Republican national committeeman for Texas, nor the state central committee has the right to hog-tie the Republicans of Texas to any presidential candidate; but as Republican electors and American citizens they have a right to state their individual preference and work to the end of electing a delegation favorable to their candidate; provided, however, this is done honestly, fairly and squarely, and is not manipulated and accomplished by unfair and unrepublican methods.

While some are supporting Mr. Hoover because they say he will carry out the Coolidge policy and program, The Informer is supporting him because we believe he will be a real president and will execute the policy and program which Herbert C. Hoover thinks will be to the best interest of the country.

This independence of official action was shown recently when Mr. Hoover abolished racial segregation in the department of commerce of Washington, D. C., and in his administration of the rehabilitation program in the flood area of the Mississippi River. In both instances he did not follow the lead of some one else, but acted in an official manner which he thought in keeping and harmony with American ideals and institutions.

Most assuredly, if Mr. Hoover, in quest of the presidential nomination, can perform such official acts which require much moral courage, fortitude and resoluteness, the Negroes of Texas should not be averse to backing his candidacy to the limit, despite Mr. Hoover's state boosters.

If nominated and elected, Herbert C. Hoover will be president of all the people, and, as American citizens and Republican electors, let us help to make possible his nomination and election.

If to accomplish this desired end, it becomes necessary for us to urge the state convention at Dallas to send a delegation instructed for the secretary of commerce, then let us perform this act in the same manner which characterized the action of Mr. Hoover in performing such official acts as have been tremendously beneficial and helpful not only to the Negro race, but to the American nation and society in general.

Herbert C. Hoover is not a politician, but an eminent statesman and expert economist, whose grasp on public matters, both domestic and foreign, has no equal or counterpart on this hemisphere.

Whether in harmony or discord, peace or strife, The Informer is for Herbert C. Hoover for the presidential nomination by the Republican party, and for his election next autumn.

Republicans of Texas, without ragrd to color, are urged to go to the Republican precinct conventions on Saturday, May 5, 1928, and function for the best interests of the party, both state and national.

INSTRUCTING DELEGATES FOR HOOVER

The Informer has been asked by several Hoover supporters if this paper, the original (and up to the present time, the only avowed) Hoover supporter in Texas among race newspapers, is favorable to an instructed Hoover delegation from Texas to the Republican National Convention, which convenes at Kansas City, Mo., June 12, 1928.

Informer

When discussing this matter on two former occasions, The Informer took the position that, primarily, we favored an instructed delegation for Mr. Hoover from Texas; but later this paper took the attitude that if intrapartisan harmony could be brought about by an uninstructed delegation, while this paper was favorable to the Hoover candidacy, it would agree to the latter procedure to attain this end.

4-28-28

At that time The Informer was under the impression, and had been so informed by some of the leaders in the anti-Creager movement, that they were not against Mr. Hoover, per se; that they had no particular candidate as such, but were chiefly concerned in ending the reign of vest-pocket and proxy Republicanism in Texas.

Houston, Texas,

The anti-Creagerites held that this objective could best attained by sending an uninstructed delegation from Texas to the national parley of the Republican party, but that no fight would be waged upon Mr. Hoover's candidacy.

These anti-administration Republicans also contended that Southern states should not instruct for and play a too important part in nominating presidential candidates for the party, whose election to the office is dependent wholly and solely upon upon states not of Dixieland.

With rumors afloat that the anti-Creager opposition in Texas has developed or is fastly assuming an anti-Hoover aspect, and that certain combinations and agreements have been entered into between some of the Texas Republicans—who are, supposedly, antagonistic to the present G. O. P. state administration—with backers of other aspirants for the presidency via the Republican nomination, The Informer finds itself at the point where it can not support nor lend even silent encouragement to any movement which is hostile and inimical to Mr. Hoover, merely to get even with certain Texas Republicans who have not conducted partisan affairs in keeping with Republican principles, tenets, customs and traditions.

No paper in Texas has disagreed with the Creager-Nolte regime and its exclusive partisan policy more than The Informer; but this paper also notes that until there arose a split and schism in the Texas Republican ranks over patronage distribution in this state, none of the leaders in the present revolt movement, except Captain John A. ("Jack") Elgin of San Antonio, Harry Beck of Dallas and one or two other white Republicans of Fort Worth, ever raised their voices in protest or sought to overthrow the Creager-Nolte combination.

The Informer holds no brief for the Creager-Nolte regime, nor has this paper anything in its journalistic heart against Congressman Wurzbach, moving spirit in the anti-Creager movement; for, while the congressman's friendly and apparently fair attitude on Negro participation in Republican affairs is well known, and while he has a host of colored friends in Texas (The Informer editor being one of them), some of his white political associates are rabid Negro haters; one of them boasting in his business advertisements that his place of business was free from "Mexicans, 'niggers,' cockroaches and dogs."

Still another anti-Hooverite is reported to have been a ring leader in a mob which lynched a colored youth in his city some years ago, and this patriot (?) is universally disliked by practically every Negro in his city, county and district. If Negroes had to elect him to public office, this same man would go down to defeat in a race for the office of official dog-catcher!

The colored Republicans of Texas should heed the call of the Creager-Nolte convention, attend and participate in the Republican precinct conventions on Saturday, May 5, 1928, where delegates will be elected to the county conventions, which are slated for Tuesday, May 8, 1928; at which convention delegates will be elected to the state convention, which will be held at Dallas, Tuesday, May 22, 1928.

If the delegates at the state convention favor sending an instructed delegation to Kansas City, they have that right under the law; and The Informer holds to the opinion that such action would not be unwise in the light of recent developments and alignments, and would not be out of line and harmony with similar action taken by other Southern states whose delegations have been instructed to vote for Mr. Hoover as long as his name is before the national convention.

Some contend that, in case of a split, it will be good politics for the contesting delegation to be uninstructed, in order that its chances of being seated by the contests and credentials committee might be enhanced; but the only two Southern states thus far electing contesting delegates to the national parley, have instructed all their delegates for Mr. Hoover; and the issue of legality and party regularity, rather than the candidate, will be the determining factor in seating contesting delegations, whether from Louisiana, Mississippi or Texas.

The Informer has previously held and holds now that neither the Republican national committeeman for Texas, nor the state central committee has the right to hog-tie the Republicans of Texas to any presidential candidate; but as Republican electors and American citizens they have a right to state their individual preference and work to the end of electing a delegation favorable to their candidate; provided, however, this is done honestly, fairly and squarely, and is not manipulated and accomplished by unfair and unrepublican methods.

While some are supporting Mr. Hoover because they say he will carry out the Coolidge policy and program, The Informer is supporting him because we believe he will be a real president and will execute the policy and program which Herbert C. Hoover thinks will be to the best interest of the country.

This independence of official action was shown recently when Mr. Hoover abolished racial segregation in the department of commerce of Washington, D. C., and in his administration of the rehabilitation program in the flood area of the Mississippi River. In both instances he did not follow the lead of some one else, but acted in an official manner which he thought in keeping and harmony with American ideals and institutions.

Most assuredly, if Mr. Hoover, in quest of the presidential nomination, can perform such official acts which require much moral courage, fortitude and resoluteness, the Negroes of Texas should not be averse to backing his candidacy to the limit, despite Mr. Hoover's state boosters.

If nominated and elected, Herbert C. Hoover will be president of all the people, and, as American citizens and Republican electors, let us help to make possible his nomination and election.

If to accomplish this desired end, it becomes necessary for us to urge the state convention at Dallas to send a delegation instructed for the secretary of commerce, then let us perform this act in the same manner which characterized the action of Mr. Hoover in performing such official acts as have been tremendously beneficial and helpful not only to the Negro race, but to the American nation and society in general.

Herbert C. Hoover is not a politician, but an eminent statesman and expert economist, whose grasp on public matters, both domestic and foreign, has no equal or counterpart on this hemisphere.

Whether in harmony or discord, peace or strife, The Informer is for Herbert C. Hoover for the presidential nomination by the Republican party, and for his election next autumn.

Republicans of Texas, without ragrd to color, are urged to go to the Republican precinct conventions on Saturday, May 5, 1928, and function for the best interests of the party, both state and national.

Political—1928

Party Affiliation.

THE NEGRO IN THE CAMPAIGN.

On June 21 a special committee of twenty-four commiteemen and committeewomen of the Republican National Committee met in the Willard Hotel, Washington, elected officers and mapped out preliminary campaign activities. Negro members were conspicuous by their absence, although Texas and other Democratic States were represented by their Lily White leaders. But the Negro National Committeeman has fulfilled his mission. The Kansas City Convention is a thing of the past. After directing the delegates from Dixie what part is to be played in fight for nomination of President the usefulness of the Negro Committeeman has apparently ended.

In fact, Perry W. Howard of Mississippi and Mrs. Mary C. Booze, his associate ,are the only two representatives of the race left on the Republican National Committee. Georgia failed to re-elect the redoubtable Benjamin Jefferson Davis, who succeeded to the place made vacant by the death of Henry Lincoln Johnson, and the convention adjourned before making a new committeeman. The National Committee will now fill the vacancy and it is expected that a white man will be chosen. The seating of the Kunz delegation from Louisiana is said to mark the passing of Walter L. Cohen, Comptroller of Customs at New Orleans, as a factor in party affairs, although he was given his seat as a district delegate in the convention. The Lily White delegation won out in the Texas contest and William M. McDonald, better known as Goose Neck Bill, announced that he was out of politics and would devote himself to his insurance business.

There will probably be a free for all contest for control of the campaign to be carried on among Negroes. Since the death of William C. Matthews of Massachusetts, who managed the Coolidge campaign, there has been much speculation as to who shall succeed him in this role. The necessity for any special Negro bureau is disputed by those who believe that Negroes must be appealed to in the same way as other voters on the general issues of the campaign. At the same time it is admitted that there is a necessity for the advice and cooperation of men who are in close touch with this group of voters in various sections, and who know how to enlist their interest and activity in the campaign. There exists a certain amount of opposition to the importation of Southern political managers to conduct any campaign work among colored voters.

If the contest is at all close, there are many Northern States where the Negro vote may prove a controlling factor.

THE NEED OF A THIRD PARTY

Now that the Republican national convention has selected as standard bearers two men who represent business and politics backed by a platform that offers no definite plan for the solution of the major problems of the masses of the people, and that the Democratic convention promises to be equally cut and dried in preserving conditions as they are, only under other candidates, it behooves the groups which have suffered and do suffer and to whom no relief is promised, to organize in their own interests.

Since the days of Andrew Jackson, the plain people have steadily lost direct control of the machinery of their government. Prior to the Civil War, the southern slaveocracy managed affairs in their own narrow and tyrannical interests. During that conflict and subsequent to it, the manufacturing interests grew into power through war contracts and the protection of the 14th Amendment which gave them federal recognition. Under the leadership of Mark Hanna and the presidency of William McKinley, who had made prosperity certain by the tariff bill which bore his name, corporations developed into the new super-government and fixed their power by shifting to the gold standard without making any provision for the creditors who became liable to repay in expensive money.

Coincident with these changes, the nation entered upon what has become an imperial policy, despite the wordy protests from its defenders. In the recent convention, delegates were provided for from the "territorial possessions of the United States."

Each of the changes in the control of our government has left open, it is true, opportunities for ruthless men to join the dominant and controlling groups, but each change has likewise shut out from participation and control more and more of the masses of the people.

Today, the interests of such basic and fundamental groups as labor, both skilled and unskilled, agriculture, the coal industry, and the disfranchised and exploited Negro, are either openly neglected or so previded for as to create no definite contract with the voters.

Business, however, knows both by its ability to direct and to control legislation through its organized power, and by the character and past experience of the candidates, that its interests will be protected and advanced. Of course it is short-sighted policy, because business depends upon the consuming ability of those unrepresented and unconsidered groups. But business has become so accustomed to buying both goods and services of all kinds, that it has come to think of everything, even its own prosperity, as purchasable, and every kind of service, even wisdom and justice, as at the command of its magic wand.

Each social group must first of all look after its own interest, is the lesson which past political history teaches, and the refusal of the dominating interests to even entertain the pleas of the neglected groups, makes the organization of a new party an act of simple protection.

Certainly, the evidence of, and repeated claims for, a prosperity which the masses do not enjoy, should arouse enlightened self-interest. Surely, the expenditure of the unthinkable sum of four billions for governmental purposes, the accumulation of almost a half billion dollars of surplus from unnecessary taxation always passed on to the ultimate consumer, and the ease with which legislation beneficial to dominant interests has been enacted while laws sought by lesser forces, even with greater numbers affected, invariably require so much hair splitting discussion—then being seldom sustained by the courts—ought to develop initiative and aggressive convictions in leaders capable of focussing the enthusiastic support of a constructive platform for a new American political party.

TAKE GEORGIA COMMITTEEMAN FIGHT TO D. C.

Sub-Committee Will Rule on Watson-Davis Scrap This Week

By The Associated Negro Press

The committeemanship of Georgia has been referred to a sub-committee of the Republican National committee for settlement. The sub-committee will meet in Washington this week. Until then it will not be known whether Ben Davis will retain his seat. The Georgia delegation in the Republican national convention was continually a center of interest. Ben Davis, opposed for re-election as national committeeman fought with his back to the wall as "Uncle" Joe Watson of Albany strove to take his crown away. Watson was backed by Roscoe Pickett, white state chairman, whom Ben had made, and Mrs. Georgia Williams, committeewoman whom Ben had sought to dethrone.

Davis, harried and hurt by the desertion of members of his delegation whom he had thought his friends presented a forlorn picture as it became apparent that his enemies had a majority of the state delegates votes stacked against him. Sentiment among the colored visitors and delegates from other sections was not especially favorable to him, because Mrs. Williams had been able to impress many that she had been treated unfairly when in the state convention several months ago; Mr. Davis had refused her re-endorsement and selected Watson's daughter to serve in her stead, Watson subsequently had his daughter withdraw, switched from Hoover to Lowden and it was reported received plentiful funds from Lowden to persuade members of the delegation to go against Davis.

Every time the Georgia delegation was polled there was a fight. Chairman Pickett would announce the vote. Davis would challenge it and the dlegation would be polled individually. When time came for election with Davis apparently losing, delegate Walden of Atlanta challenged Chairman Pickett's motion to poll the delegation. The administration forces stepped in when Congressman Fort of New Jersey moved that Pickett's resolution be tabled. Lily whites from every section realizing that if Pickett won it would mean white domination of Georgia ran to encourage Pickett and to counsel with him.

The steam roller triumphed, however, and the contest was referred to the national committee. Friends of Mrs. Williams and Mr. Davis are trying to compromise their differences before the meeting in Washington. If this is done both will be seated. Mrs. Williams stated after the meeting that her place was uncontested and she stood elected. Therefore, only Davis' place is uncertain. Perry Howard was re-elected unanimously.

"HOOVER WILL WIN," STATES PERRY HOWARD

Foresees Republican Victory at Polls

Washington, June 29.—The Hoover-Curtis ticket will sweep the country in November, that is the prediction of Perry W. Howard, Republican national committeeman for Mississippi, who returned from Kansas City last Tuesday night in order to be here for the meeting of the special committee of the national committee that conferred with Hoover and Curtis Thursday.

Mr. Howard described the Kansas City convention as one of the greatest in the history of the Republican party. "There has been much said," he declared, "that there was a Hoover machine and it was lily white. This I emphatically deny. I do not think one would call the Mississippi delegation, one-half of which was white, lily white. South Carolina, with one-half white, was seated. Robert R. Church, representing the Tenth congressional district of Tennessee, was recognized. The Florida delegation was not all white. Cohen and one other from Louisiana were seated.

To Aid Hoover

"From the point of law there was no merit in the contest from Texas brought by my friend, William McDonald, for the reason that the Texas laws, as emphasized by an opinion by the attorney general of that state, provide that all delegates shall be elected in a general state convention. The McDonald-Wurzbach delegation was elected in districts. The Hoover people played the game fairly and squarely.

"I shall take the stump and defend Mr. Hoover without equivocation, on the charge of lily-whiteism attributed to his friends. There has never been a stronger ticket than Hoover and Curtis. Mr. Hoover has taken a more forward step than any cabinet officer in abolishing segregation. He has been fair in all matters affecting all citizens, even in peace times as well as in war.

"Perhaps it is telling things out of school, but it will be of interest to know that this great mind heard the cry of Cohen and the word went from Washington to Kansas City that regardless of regularity Cohen personally should not be turned out of the convention.

Stood by "Machine"

"Our Mississippi organization was a Hoover organization. It was one of the first to indorse the secretary. We were standing with the Hoover line-up first, last and always. We have no apologies to make for our vote with the Hoover people in the contests. We feel that every case was decided upon the merits.

"Organization means organization. The Hoover management headed by Secretary of the Interior Work, Claudius H. Houston, Representative James W. Good, Judge Rush L. Holland and Horace Mann, with Ralph E. Williams as floor leader in the national committee, and Representative Franklin W. Fort as floor leader in the credentials committee, aided by the ablest woman that has appeared in politics, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, I think I can safely say, had the finest organization any candidate has had in many years.

"Chairman William M. Butler would not have stood for anything but a square deal, and he was on the job."

NEGROES PLEASED BY HOOVER CHOICE

Washington, June 21.—(AP)—Emphatic denial was made in a statement today by Republican National Committeeman Perry W. Howard, of Mississippi, to charges that there was a "Hoover lily-white machine" at the Kansas City convention.

Pointing out that the Mississippi delegation was "one-half white and one-half colored," as was that seated from South Carolina, and that negro delegates from other states were recognized, Howard himself a negro, declared that "the Hoover people played the game fairly and squarely." And "certainly kept faith with me in every particular."

Howard announced that he would take the stump and defend Mr. Hoover without equivocation, on the charge of lily-whitism attributed to his friends.

Mr. Hoover had taken a most forward step in abolishing race segregation, he declared, and "has been on the square in all matters affecting our group."

It was not generally known, he said, that Mr. Hoover "had heard the cry" of Walter L. Cohen, Louisiana negro republican leader, whose seat was contested, "and regardless of regularity his heart went out to him and a voice came from the nation's capital to Kansas City saying 'don't turn Cohen personally out of that convention.'"

ARMOND SCOTT HITS AT REPUBLICANS

D. C. Lawyer Addresses 2,500 Elks In Pittsburgh Memorial Session

J. C. INEXCUSABLE

Race Doesn't Owe All To G. O. P., He Says

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Jim Crow and segregation at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City were inexcusable, Armond W. Scott, D. C. attorney, told an audience of 2,500 Elks at the Elmore Theatre, Sunday night of last week, in their annual session of sorrow.

Said Mr. Scott,

"Even the members of the Republican National Committee were jim crowed and humiliated. If they did not feel humiliated, certainly the race throughout the country whom they are presumed to represent feel that sting.

"Leaders of the Republican party are seeking to make it a lily-white organization and to defeat and dethrone every outstanding Negro with guts and backbone who has the manhood to stand up for the rights of his race and to demand an equal part in the councils of the party.

"The Negro does not owe all he is to the Republican party but the Republican party owes that it is to the faithful and loyal Negro, because had it not been for the call of Abraham Lincoln for black volunteers the war of the rebellion would have ended in favor of the South and the Democratic party would have ever remained in control of the government."

"Woodrow Wilson," said Mr. Scott, "inaugurated the jim crow government departments in Washington and a Republican president has been willing to let them stand."

"It is up to the thinking Elks," Mr. Scott said, "to stop following political parties like cattle and sheep and to vote for men instead of measures; and for men only, whatever their political affiliation may be, who stand for equal justice and equal rights for all men and especially for an oppressed race which has never produced a rebel and never given birth to a traitor."

So-Called Christianity

Speaking of the so-called white Christianity in America, Scott declared that the nearest the black Christian can get to the white Christian sactuary is to list to preaching Sunday over the radio.

GA. G.O.P. CO'MITTEMAN CONTEST IS REVEIWED

Ben Davis' Fight Referred To Republican National Committee, Sub-Committee, This Week

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22.—(ANP)—The committeemanship of Georgia has been referred to a sub-committee of the Republic an National committee for settlement. The sub-committee is to meet in Washington Thursday, June 22. Until then it will not be known whether Ben Davis will retain his seat. The Georgia delegation in the Republican National convention was continually a center of interest. Ben Davis opposed for re-election as National committeeman fought with his back to the wall as "Uncle" Joe Watson of Albany strove to take his crown away. Watson was backed by Roscoe Pickett, white state chairman, whom Ben had made, and Mrs. Georgia Williams, committeewoman whom Ben had sought to dethrone.

Davis, harried and hurt by the desertion of members of his delegation whom he had thought his friends, presented a forlorn picture as it became apparent that his enemies had a majority of the state delegates votes stacked up against him. Sentiment among the colored visitors and delegates from other sections was not especially favorable to him, because Mrs. Williams had been able to impress many that she had been treated unfairly, when in the state convention several months ago. Mr. Davis has refused her re-endorsement and selected Watson's daughter to serve in her stead. Watson subsequently had his daughter withdraw, switched from Hoover to Lowden and it was reported received plentiful funds from Lowden to persuade members of the delegation to go against Davis.

Every time the Georgia delegation was polled there was a fight. Chairman Pickett would announce the vote. Davis would challenge it and the delegation would be polled individually. When time came for election with Davis, a pparently losing, Delegate Walden of Atlanta, challenged Chairman Pickett's motion to poll the delegation. The administration forces stepped in when Congress Fort of New Jersey moved that Pickett's resolution to be tabled. Lily whites from every section realizing that if Pickett won it would mean white domination of Georgia ran to encourage Pickett and to counsel with him.

The steam-roller triumphed, however and the contest was referred to the National committee. Friends of Mrs. Williams and Mr. Davis, are trying to compromise their differences before the meeting in Washington. If this is done both will be seated. Mr. Williams stated after the meeting that her place was uncontested and she stood elected. Therefore, only Davis' place is uncertain.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Macon, Ga., News
Sunday, September 2, 1928

Smith's Supporters Are Embarrassed as Negroes Form Clubs

First Organized at Valdosta; Others Planned in Various Georgia Cities

A state-wide movement to organize "Al Smith for President" clubs among negro voters has been undertaken, according to information obtained by The News. The first club has already been formed at Valdosta, Ga., and plans are on foot for the organization of others.

H. G. Hastings, of Atlanta, state Hoover campaign manager, and other Republican leaders, disclaim knowledge of or part in the movement.

The formation of such clubs, it is reported, proves exceedingly embarrassing to Georgia supporters of Governor Smith for president. Their principal argument to stop Democrats from bolting to the Republican nominee has been that "voting for Hoover will be voting with the negroes."

Considered as significant is the fact that in the Valdosta meeting, the negroes adopted resolutions strongly commending Governor Smith for his efforts to secure return of whiskey as a legalized drink.

More than one-half of the negro voters in Lowndes county signified their intention of voting for Smith. Dr. L. W. Williams, one of the leading negro physicians there, was named chairman of the club.

No definite date for the formation of such a club in Macon has been set, so far as can be learned. It is reported that a meeting may be held during the coming week, but local negro leaders profess ignorance of the whole movement. During the last 10 days negroes from Washington and New York have visited various cities in the state, including Macon, in the interests of the campaign.

Mobile, Ala., News-Item
Tuesday, August 28, 1928

NEGRO LAWYERS SECURE DELAY IN PROCEEDINGS

Extortionate Fees Laid to Attorneys Facing Disbarment Hearing.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Sweeping denial of charges of illegal practices in federal patronage dispensation in Mississippi was made here yesterday in an answer filed by Perry W. Howard, negro Republican national committeeman, to disbarment proceedings brought against him in Hinds county chancery court by the state bar association. In an answer to similar charges W. L. Mhoon, another negro Republican, denied one charge against him and offered to explain two others.

Howard's statement made a claim of exemption from any connection with the alleged abuses, while Mhoon, facing three specific charges, denied outright any connection with alleged payment for a postoffice appointment at Mendenhall and sought to explain a fund received from candidates for postoffices at Clinton and Philadelphia during 1924.

In telling of $650 he said was received from Philadelphia, Mhoon's statement claims it was a campaign contribution, received at the close of the campaign. It was returned to the giver, the statement said, because it came too late.

DELAY IS ORDERED

Disbarment proceedings against S. R. Redmonds, S. D. Redmond and W. L. Moon, negro members of the Jackson bar, and prominent Republicans, for alleged unprofessional conduct, were postponed 30 days, until September 27, when the fall term of chancery court began here today. Counsel for the petitioners asked for a continuance of 30 days when the charges may be taken up in vacation, swers filed on behalf of the respondent attorneys the court ordered that they be set for hearing for Thursday, September 27. Extortionate and unwarranted charges for professional services in cases sighted against the Redmonds and trading and bargaining in connection with federal appointments pending against the same attorneys and also against Moon formed the background of the disbarment proceedings. On Tuesday the divorce docket here will be taken up as the first item of procedure.

Caldwell and Co., Nashville, Tenn., bond buyers, purchased the $5,720,000 bond issue of the state of Mississippi, it was announced by the bond commission after a week's negotiations with the firm. The price paid by the Tennessee company was not announced. Insurance of the bonds was authorized by the 1928 legislature for permanent improvement at the state colleges and institutions and alloted as follows: $3,620,000 for permanent improvement at state colleges and institutions; $1,600,000 permanent improvement at the University of Mississippi, and $500,000 for the state's removal hospital commission. The total bonded indebtedness of the state as of May 28, 1928, was given as $17,595,250 with the assessed valuation for 1927 $744,104,320.

Ben Davis Attacks Gov. Smith and Bitterly Assails "Lily White" Democratic Deserters.

Ben Davis, negro Republican National Committeeman until July, will be succeeded sometime after November 6 by Ben Davis. Not content with vicious attacks on Gov. Smith and Southern Democrats, Ben Davis now assaults his new confreres, the Democrats who have deserted their party and joined the party of the carpetbaggers, the scalawags and the force bill.

The ENQUIRER-SUN sympathizes with Ben Davis in his plight. He faithfully delivered Georgia's Negro Republican delegates to Mr. Hoover, along with 122 other colored delegates. He has "carried on" in the most approved style of the Corrupt Old Party, trafficking in postmasters' jobs, as well as delivering delegates. Now Davis has been betrayed by Hoover and the Republicans, and the new mown Republicans, masquerading as Anti-Smith and anti-Catholic Democrats won't let the Negro Republican leader into the lily-white councils.

These "lily-white" former Democrats are spreading circulars relating to Gov. Smith's alleged appointment of Negroes to office. Ben Davis, attacking Gov. Smith, says precisely the opposite. Here are his words as they appeared in the Negro Republican paper, the Atlanta Independent:

Enquirer-Sun

"Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic Party, so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred as exemplified in Memphis, Texas, Georgia and Mississippi. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic Party.

Republican.

"Al Smith is no better than the Democratic Party. HIS RECORD DOES NOT DISCLOSE A SINGLE FAVOR THAT HE HAS DONE FOR NEGROES IN NEW YORK. He (the Negro) knows that the Democratic Party is his sworn enemy.

"As infamous and as wrong and cowardly as lily-whiteism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic Party against the American Negro."

The foregoing utterance may seem to be somewhat harsh and heated, but it is cold and kindly when compared to the attack made by Ben Davis on his white confreres, who are now converts to the party of Davis and Hoover. Asked to give a reason why the Atlanta Independent is 100 per cent. Republican, Ben Davis replies in a few paragraphs that should make some of his new colleagues think again before lining up with the Republicans—think twice as did Judge Maynard, a leading Baptist and prohibitionist, who declared for Hoover and then, after visualizing conditions logically, announced that he will vote for Gov. Smith.

Here is Ben Davis statement as it appeared in the Atlanta *Independent*s

We answer that the Independent is one hundred per cent. Republican because it cannot be bought by the democrats' money or be bulldozed out of the party by lily-white bastard republicans and commercialized Negro grafters, who would sell their wives and daughters into political slavery and economical ruin, for pelf and plunder. . . .

The Democratic party is anti-Negro and has been from its very incipiency. It was and is the party of slavery and opposed the adoption of the thirteenth amendment which abolished slavery. It opposed the fourteenth amendment which made us citizens and clothed us with the right to vote and hold property, instead of being property and sold like cattle. It opposed the fifteenth amendment which promised us protection at the ballot box.

It has disfranchised us in every state by ingeniously designed unconstitutional amendments to state constitutions, and nullified every decision of the Supreme Court of the United States declaring those amendments null and void.

In every democratic state in the Union the Negro has been jim-crowed on the train, segregated where he lives, discriminated against in business, disfranchised and denied equal protection of the law. In every democratic state the Negro is shut out of the democratic primary by force or court injunction. He is told everywhere that the democratic party is a white man's party and Negroes are not wanted. If the Negro World or any other Negro wants to support the democratic party in the light of this catalog of crime against the race, we'll content ourselves, to be one hundred per cent. Republican under Hoover-Curtis leadership.

In no state in the Union where the Republican party controls is there a jim-crow disfranchising law. In no Republican state is there any separation of the races on public carriers, or shutting the door of political opportunity in the Negro's face.

The Republican party enfranchised the Negro. It voted for and passed the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the federal constitution which prohibited slavery, made the Negro a free man, gave him the right to hold property instead of being a chattel, and placed the ballot in his hands to protect himself in the enjoyment of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

We are one hundred per cent. Republican because there is not one line of discriminating legislation on the books of any state in the Union placed there by the Republican Party, but on the contrary there is special legislation on the books of every democratic state in the Union outlawing the black man's rights and put on there by the democratic party over the protests and votes of Republicans.

It seems to us that if those Southerners who are deserting Democracy knew as much about the Republican party as Ben Davis does about the record of the Democratic party, there would be few Democrats who could bring themselves to vote for Hoover. For a vote for Hoover is not a vote fr the man, but is a bald lot indorsing the party of corruption and privilege.

Tulsa, Okla.

SEP 28 1928

COLORED VOTERS WILL ORGANIZE

Organization of the republican colored voters will be had at a meeting to be held tomorrow evening at the Mt Olive Colored Baptist church. This occasion will also be the opening of headquarters for the colored republicans.

Voters, both white and colored, are invited to the opening tomorrow evening and speeches will be in order. The Mid West colored quartett will furnish music for the occasion. Dr. R. A Simpson is national colored committeeman and Mrs. Forbus is mistress of the ceremonies tomorrow night.

Birmingham, Ala., News
Tuesday, October 2, 1928

A Strange "Circular": "The White Supremacy League"

It is highly significant that on the day when Dr. Work, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was rebuking Oliver D. Street, Republican national committeeman from Alabama, for Street's "circular" injecting the religious issue into the presidential campaign yet another "circular," apparently of Republican origin and Republican purpose, was brought to light.

This other "circular" is addressed to "the Negro voters of Cook County, Chicago, Illinois." Nothing quite like it has been heard of in the South since carpetbag-scalawag-Negro domination was abolished here by what the late Senator Vance of North Carolina liked to call "men with straight hair."

This "circular" is an appeal made by Negroes of Alabama to their blood-brothers of the North to unite with them in electing Mr. Hoover, for the reason that Mr. Hoover's election will strengthen prohibition, that prohibition will strengthen the Negro race, and that the strengthened Negro race will be permitted by Southern whites who favor prohibition to enter politics and vote with these "dry" Southern whites to keep the prohibition laws in force. "This is the first step," reason the signers of this appeal, "we have to take in redeeming our race from our present bondage. All other steps will surely follow, provided we can elect Mr. Hoover."

Then comes this thought-provoking statement:

> The level-headed leaders (of the Negro race) in Alabama agree that it is not wise to claim equality with the white race. But, looking ahead, Mr. Hoover's election will pave the way for that very thing. If this can be done (that is, if Hoover can be elected), I am sure that in four years all Negroes in Alabama will be permitted to vote. Our leaders agree that this will surely be the case.

In conclusion, this remarkable "circular" says:

> HOOVER, PROHIBITION, POLITICAL EQUALITY, AND ALL RIGHTS GIVEN BY THE FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT—THESE WILL BE OURS AS SURE AS THE NIGHT FOLLOWS THE DAY.

One of these circulars brought to light on Monday last is signed by Negroes from various towns of Alabama. One of these Negroes is Damon Lee, a merchant at Rosedale, a Birmingham suburb. Not a few other signers are Negroes well known in their communities.

If these Negroes have done this work of their own accord, they have acted unwisely. If they have been incited to do it by promises held out to them by Mr. Hoover's reported views on the race question, they are to be pitied. If they have been encouraged to take this step by leaders of the Republican party inside or outside this state, the fact needs to be recognized and reckoned with by white voters throughout the South. Whatever may be the genesis of this "circular" and whatever may be its purpose, this "circular," subscribed to as it is by not a few of Alabama's Negroes of importance, needs to be very carefully pondered by white voters of all parties.

Fortunately, on the eve of this development in the campaign, there has been organized in Alabama what is known as "The Women's White Supremacy League." It is the white women of the South who have the weightiest reason to insist upon "white supremacy." It was the white women of the South who suffered most keenly under "black supremacy." The answer to the "circular" addressed to Cook County Negroes in Illinois may be found in this newly-formed Women's White Supremacy League here in Alabama.

That league deserves to be heartily supported by every voter in Alabama who cherishes the ideals of the white man's civilization. It is to that league, and to some league membered by white MEN, that this state must look as its sure defense against machinations like those made clear by the dangerous appeal sent to Chicago Negroes by Negroes of the South to elect Mr. Hoover in the interest—ostensibly of prohibition—but really of political and social racial equality throughout the Southern states.

MAIL
Charleston, W. Va.
SEP 26 1928

FORM NEGRO CLUB

Formation of the Negro Republicans of Montgomery into a club the aims of which include "the election of the entire Republican ticket" was made known Wednesday.

At the first meeting of the club held Tuesday night in the Summer high school, Montgomery, officers were elected as follows:

S. E. Childs, president; Miss Bertha Deans, vice president; Mrs. M. M. Johnson, secretary; Mrs. Bessie Price, assistant secretary; Orlando Wade, treasurer and Rev. J. J. Turner, chaplain.

COLUMBUS, OHIO
Dispatch
SEP 13 1928

THE COLORED ELEMENT IN THE CAMPAIGN.

To the Editor of The Dispatch:

Sir: It is reported through the columns of negro newspapers that in all parts of the country negroes are organizing "Al Smith political clubs" for the purpose of promoting the candidacy and the election of Governor Al Smith to the presidency of the United States.

If such reports be true, let it be understood for the most part that the organizers and promoters of these "clubs" are those who have a mercenary, personal interest in local politics and belong to that group of negro politicians who will sell their political birthright for a mess of pottage.

No thoughtful and self-respecting negro can or will vote the Democratic ticket, for the good and sufficient reason that the Democratic party in its national council has never made any pronouncement recognizing the citizenship rights of the American negroes and its intention to protect them in the exercise of these rights when in power. No until such has been done, can any self-respecting negro be a Democrat

P. A. Nichols, P. E.

Xenia, Ohio.

SENTINEL
Orlando, Fla
SEP 16 1928

—When you go to vote for president think of this: The Republican party at ansas City adopted a plank in its platform approving the Dyar anti-lynching bill which would inflict a federal fine of $10,000 on any and every county in which a lynching is committed the fine to be paid to the family of the man lynched. This bill would cause innocent people to suffer by such heavy taxation and break up a small county like Lumpkin, should such a thing take place.—Dahlonega (Ga.) Nugget.

Washington Tribune-Banner
Monday, September [illegible]

NEGROES IN SOUTH RENEW DEMANDS FOR RECOGNITION

G. O. P. Is Unable to Keep Racial Issue Played Down.

NEGROES OF NORTH CAROLINA WAGE CAMPAIGN

Significance Attached to Praise of Simmons' Stand Against Al Smith By Negro G. O. P. Leaders of North Carolina

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—While the Republican natinal committee and other G. O. P. and Hoover agencies are reported as desirous of "playing down" the racial issue in the South, it was disclosed here today that negroes in the South are becoming more active in their demands for recognition at the polls and possibly in congress.

Some importance was attached here today to a statement given out by W. Lee Person, former colored member of the North Carolina legislature from Edgecomb county, congratulating the white United States senator, F. M. Simmons, upon his announced refusal to vote for Governor Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee. Person promised to cooperate in the "fusion movement,' so-called in North Carolina nowadays to bring about the defeat of Smith.

After the old "Red Shirt' days in North Carolina, when the Democrats, largely under the leadership of Simmons, ousted the Republicans and Populists this same Person thought it expedient to come to Washington and carry on. He is now contemplating going back to North Carolina and his statement put out under Republican auspices and in praise of the old "Red Shirter," United States Senator Simmons is one of the rather entertaining digressions in a hectic campaign.

Meanwhile there became available here today copies of the Washington Tribune, a negro newspaper, disclosing that Virginia negro voters have launched a movement to send some three of their race to the next national Congress. This paper, regarded as the spokesman of the negro race in the Capital, said in part in an issue just off the press:

"A movement that may result in three negroes being named as Republican candicates for Cngress in the Second, Ninth and Tenth districts was scented here today, when a group of political leaders held a caucus. While the men failed to divulge exact steps that would be taken, it was intimated they would eplain their plans to C. Bascom Slemp and other leaders high in national circles."

The delegation, composed of negroes from Richmond, Roanoke, Norfolk and Portsmouth called at the publication office of the negro Republican paper here after other conferences with white Republican leaders. C. Bascum Slemp, mentioned in the editoral is a former private secretary to President Coolidge was for man years Republican member from the Ninth Congressional district of Virginia and an allegel dispenser of Republican patronage and rounder-up of Republican delegates in the Southern states every four years.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Millen, Ga., News
Thursday, October 4, 1928

Negroes Attended Ga. Hoover Meeting

SAVANNAH, Ga. Oct. 4.—At an anti-Smith meeting scheduled here, at which Judge W. E. Covington was to speak, a group of negroes seeking entrance were informed by leading Republicans that they were not invited and while they would not be forcibly ejected they were not wanted.

Several of the negroes departed, while others stated to Sheriff Tanner that they wanted to remain and a number took seats in the negro section of the courtroom.

Great indignation is expressed by leaders of the Hoover forces, claiming that Democrats solicited the negro attendance. Leading negroes resent the attitude of the Republican or anti-Smith group in declining to permit them representation at the meeting.

Dawson, Ga., News
Tuesday, September 25, 1928

Persons and Simmons.

The following interesting observation is from the editorial columns of the Savannah Press: "W. Lee Persons, a North Carolina negro, long active as a republican, now employed in Washington, welcomes Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, into the republican ranks, urges the blacks to work with him and says 'if the republicans get control of North Carolina then Mr. Hoover in the white house will give us such help as will wipe out all laws in the south which keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man.'"

Simmons' attitude is both surprising and disgusting. For a man like this North Carolinian, who has for years been honored by the democratic party, to now forsake it and conspire with the republicans, including its negro adherents, is unthinkable. In yielding to his petty spites and prejudices he has played the part of childishness rather than statesmanship. He is to be pitied.

Richmond, Va., News-Leader
Friday, September 28, 1928

Under this inspiriting leadership, the Negroes were all registered and drilled in their allegiance to the Republican radicals. In October, 1867, when the election was held, the Republican radicals kept the polls open three days—in some of the Negro wards of Richmond four days—in order to insure the defeat of the white men who were trying to save the state.

The electorate had been limited in advance, by the reconstruction acts, which were described yesterday in these columns. With many white men disfranchised, the coalition between radical Republicans and Negroes could not be overcome. Of the 105 delegates to the convention, only thirty-five were conservative white men. Sixty-five radicals were elected, and five were without affiliation. The Republicans who were to control the convention included thirty-five Negroes and thirty of their white bosses. Only fourteen of the thirty were scallywag Virginians—among them a deserter from the Confederate army.

With JUDGE UNDERWOOD as its president, the convention organized itself in a leisurely manner and proceeded to draft a new constitution for Virginia, as one of the conditions of her readmission to the Union. GENERAL BENJAMIN F. BUTLER, commonly known as "BEAST" BUTLER, was received as an honored guest and made a speech to the convention, in which he urged that all Southern business men, as well as all former Confederate soldiers, should be denied the ballot for the future. He was rapturously applauded by the radicals.

The radical Republicans and their ignorant followers then proceeded with their wicked work. It was with the greatest difficulty that the conservatives kept out of the constitution a provision requiring that white children and Negroes be taught in the same schools. In order to provide more plunder, the radicals more than doubled the number of local officers who were to be maintained by an impoverished people.

Above all, however, the convention devoted itself to perfecting its plan for disfranchising the whites and keeping the radical Republicans in power. Proposals of the wildest sort for the disfranchisement of the whites were put forward by proud Republicans. One of them was that no Virginian who had voted for any candidate who favored the secession of Virginia in 1861 should be qualified to vote or to hold office. Finally, the Republicans agreed on a scheme of disfranchisement by which the ballot was denied to every man who had ever held any office—from that of constable or notary public to that of senator—and had subsequently rendered any service of any sort to the Confederacy. Moreover, no man could hold any office of any grade in Virginia, unless he would take an oath that he had never voluntarily aided the Confederacy in any way, or held any office under it.

Republican.

MAKING THE NEGRO A PAWN.

Into Secretary HOOVER'S speech on Saturday, especially directed to the South, were inserted several minor statements, or pledges, which did not attract much attention, though they deserve it. One of them was the following: "I believe in the merit "system of the civil service, and I "believe further that appointive of-"fices must be filled by those who "deserve the confidence and respect "of the communities they serve." This sounds harmless enough, but in Southern ears it can mean only one thing. Just now in the South the negro question is more violently debated than for years. And it is certain that this quiet utterance by Mr. HOOVER will be taken there as tantamount to a promise not to appoint colored men as postmasters, United States Marshals or Federal Collectors of Internal Revenue. It will be regarded as confirmation of the many reports that, if Mr. HOOVER is elected President, the Republican organization in the South will be virtually "lily white."

This is fully in line with a great deal of Republican campaigning now going on in the South. Strange as it may seem, an effort is made to show that the Democrats are more favorable to the political and social aspirations of the black man than are the Republicans. A full-page advertisement has been inserted in several Southern newspapers with the heading, "AL SMITH, the Negro Lover." It details some of the alleged favors shown by Governor SMITH to colored men in New York, and explains in large type that "AL "SMITH is the worst foe of White "Supremacy in public life in the "United States today." To us in the North this may seem fantastic. But it is a serious business in the South. It may be said that the whole is merely a political manoeuvre, designed for the coming election only, after which it will be dropped. But such movements, calculated as they are to renew and intensify racial animosities, create evils which live after them. The chief sufferers from them are only too likely to be the colored men themselves, whom it is thus sought to make use of insincerely by the campaigners of the two parties.

New York Times 10 8 28

Dublin, Ga., Press
Thursday, October 4, 1928

BEN DAVIS TIRES OF HIS LILY-WHITES

Ben Davis, the republican boss for Georgia, is evidently a partial convert to segregation. While still holding against social segregation as a nightmare, he is entirely fed up on the coalition with the discontented bunch that flopped over from the party of Jefferson to Davis.

Now, this combination was to Ben's own fixing. Early last summer he came out in an editorial advocating placing of white men only on the republican electoral ticket; said he wanted to see if the white voters were really in earnest when they said they would vote that ticket if negroes were left off. This accomplished the scheming republicans thought they had made a strategic political stroke and began to boast how they were going to carry Georgia for Hoover.

Well, the old republican machine, somewhat disjointed and squeaky, was loaded up with malcontents and soreheads, and started down the road looking for the money bags they had heard so much about. They corraled a few narrow-minded preachers, misguided women and all the ungrateful has-beens in the democratic party—in and out of the state—and began to whoop 'em up for the spineless candidate of the south's enemies.

Things rocked along very well for several months—until Ben Davis, the head and front of his party in Georgia became suspicious. It dawned on him that if he didn't get busy and do some vigorous kicking he would be betrayed by the same bullies that betrayed the democratic party. He saw visions of his being shorn not only of his power but of the emoluments of his position as well. Ben couldn't stand for this, so he issues a decree that lily-whites should get out of his back yard, and lose no time about it.

The democratic deserters took Ben at his word and called another meeting in Macon where, last week, they decided on another plan.

They decided to let Ben keep the name at the head of his ticket (a great concession) but that they would use the same electors and substitute for the republican ticket. "The Anti-Smith Democratic Ticket" as its head. Some foolish proposition. As we view it, the bunch that jumped over into, as it looked to them, the green pastures of the republican party, where the picking looked inviting, are as sheep without a shepherd. As we have before said, they don't know where they are going, but they are on their way.

In the issue of the Independent, Sept. 20th, Ben Davis, in an editorial, tells his new recruits a few very unpleasant things, and in his paper of last week he gave them what might be considered his solar-plexus. What Davis has to say concerning his lily-white associates follows, as copied from the Constitution:

Then, in the issue of September 27, in an editorial headed "Republican Half-Breeds a Menace to the Hoover -Curtis Ticket," Davis goes on record in terms which cannot be mistaken as to his true opinion of the "lily-white" faction of the party which he leads in this state.

"The greatest menace to republican success in November is the curse of lily-whitism" in the south. For forty years these ignoramuses have been arguing national leaders that if the party would eliminate the negro from the party councils they would break the solid south and have never made anybody believe their story except the lamented President Harding, who said before he died that he had been deceived by these crooks and set about to repudiate them, and correct the error that they had led him into."

"I welcome the accession of Senator Simmons to our rank. Conversion is better late then never. Long ago we were antagonists but we never struck below the belt. To-day I welcome him with open arms to the grand old party of God and Morality. After all of these years of defeat and disaster for the black man's party in the south I can see us again coming in our own. Not a great many of us remain alive who can recall the days when black men sat in the chair of state in the southern capitals. Those days have long been gone, but, bless God, I can see them returning. It is said that a honse divided against it self connot stand, and now I see the white people of the south dividing."

"I wish to use the newspapers of North Carolina to urge my beople to get behind Senator Simmons and support him. What is true in North Carolina may be true in other s uthern states. Just let us get control of the state machinery this vear andMr. Hoover in the white house will give us such help as will wipe out all the laws in the south which keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man. I am getting old, but before I die I would like to again see my race enjoying its just deserts. Then I will say like Simeon in tne Bible: "Now lettest thy servant depart in peace."

Yea, all of which sound just fine to the Hoovercrats, but then the Senator of North Carolina has awoke to the fact that his stomach is weak and he can not stand the place they have placed him in—the republican party He has boolted that also and says that he cannot possible vote a republican ticket.

Falkston, Ga., Herald
Friday, September 28, 1928

NEGRO OFFICE HOLDER SPEAKS HIS MIND.

W. Lee Person, a negro office-holder in Washington, delivers himself of the following statement, which has been published in the Ashville Citizen. Those of you that are thinking of deserting your party, read it and see what this negro thinks of your joining with the crusaders to "wipe out all the laws of the south which keep the black men from moving on the same plane with while men."

Bulletin
Huntsville, Ala.
SEP 5 1928

Smith Angling For Negro Vote

The following copyrighted article from the Country Editor Publishing Co., Inc., will shed some very brilliant illumination on this "negro question" the supporters of Gov. Al Smith have been trying to use to their own advantage.

The Democratic national campaign managers in New York are displaying considerable concern over the Tammany Hall issue and the reaction of normally Democratic voters in the South and West to Al Smith's alleged intimate association and friendship with the promoters and protectors of immorality in the Greater City. The Governor's support, as a legislator, of Tammany-protected vice appears now to be fairly well established. In fact during his entire career as Assemblyman it cannot be shown that he ever voted in favor of a single so-called reform measure. He has been at all times a dutiful and obedient son of Tammany and in his last speech in the Hall on the 4th of July of this year he expressed his ardent admiration for that corrupt political machine.

In order to allay the fears of the decent elements in other parts of the country, the Tammany leaders are being shunted into the background and are expected to remain there until election day. During the pre-convention campaign and at Houston, however, these same leaders were clothed with exclusive authority and ran things to suit themselves, nor are they losing any sleep at the present time over their temporary eclipse. In fact, they were in full agreement with the plan that during the election campaign Tammany should occupy the limelight as little as posisble so as to relieve the Governor of the taint of association with it. That this is only a meaningless gesture in the direction of expediency every well-informed person thoroughly understands. If the Governor is elected, Tammany will in no sense be a welcome guest at the White House. It will be the host and will welcome only those whom it particularly desires to favor. The Tiger knows how to reward its frineds and it has never hesitated to destroy its enemies

There should be food for thought in the present situation. Tammany has always been jealous of the power of the South in Democratic councils and has bitterly resented the minority role it has been forced to play in national politics. If it can elect its candidate, it will undoubtedly take advantage of this control of the Federal Administration to turn upon the South and rend it. In another four years it will have so entrenched its position that it will not need that solid block of electoral votes in order to keep its candidate in the White House. There are other sources of political power which Tammany knows only too well how to develop and the control of these will make the South no more necessary than any other part of the country. In 1932 Tammany will not be worrying over the electoral vote of Alabama or Mississippi. Long before that time, the power of the South in the councils of Democracy will be a thing of the past.

One important source of power which Tammany has ever been alert to cultivate lies in the constantly increasing numerical strength of the negro vote. In Harlem, where 150,000 negro residents of New York City have congregated, and in the black belts of other cities of the state, Tammany has for years been coddling the negro. Al Smith himself not only visits them during his campaigns but hands the mout a brand of soothing syrup which he specially reserves for that type of citizen.

The Harlef negroes are permitted to run a wide open town under the liberal eyes of their own black policement. Their favorite gambling games are not interfered with in the back-rooms of the speak-easies. Young bucks are allowed to loung on the street corners and offer obscene insults to any white woman who passes that way. Nor do they hesitate to make eyes at the more attractive specimens and to revile them with lewd remarks if they resent their approaches. It is not safe certainly not pleasant for a white woman to find herself in that neighborhood. Nothing, however, can be done about it since these young negro gallants boast of powerful friends in Tammany Hall to whom they can appeal for protection.

In the black and tan joints, which Tammany permits to run wide open, white prostitutes dance and get drunk with these same negroes, and later in the night entertain them in their private quarters. Sometimes within the same hour, these white women, havin ghad their fill of their dusky playmates, will accept the amorous attention of a white man, perhaps of respectable family, but too drunk to realize the depths of his degradation. Tammany has always looked with an indulgent eye on such diversions as these. In fact, only a fanatical reformer could object to such harmless pastimes. By these means, moreover, it hopes finally to annex the negro vote for Al Smith by paying a personal visit to Harlem and soft-soaping his audience in approved Tammany fashion. The following description of the affair was published in the New York Times of August 16th las:

"With more than 500 negro delegates from all over the country attending, the twenty-ninth annual convention of the National Negro Business League opened yesterday morning at the Mother Zion A. M. E. Church, 51 West 136th st.

"Mayor Walker welcomed the convention to this city at the evening session in the Abyssinian Baptist Church, 132 West 139th Street. The Mayor's only reference to national politics came when he paused for a moment towards the end of his address and then concluded with a smile:

" 'After the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, I won't say what is going to happen, but I can assure you now that I will be as welcome in the White House as you are here in New York City.'

They decided to let Ben keep the name at the head of his ticket (a great concession) but that they would use the same electors and substitute for the republican ticket. "The Anti-Smith Democratic Ticket" as its head. Some foolish proposition. As we view it, the bunch that jumped over into, as it looked to them, the green pastures of the republican party, where the picking looked inviting, are as sheep without a shepherd. As we have before said, they don't know where they are going, but they are on their way.

In the issue of the Independent, Sept. 20th, Ben Davis, in an editorial, tells his new recruits a few very unpleasant things, and in his paper of last week he gave them what might be considered his solar-plexus. What Davis has to say concerning his lily-white associates follows, as copied from the Constitution:

Then, in the issue of September 27, in an editorial headed "Republican Half-Breeds a Menace to the Hoover -Curtis Ticket," Davis goes on record in terms which cannot be mistaken as to his true opinion of the "lily-white" faction of the party which he leads in this state.

"The greatest menace to republican success in November is the curse of lily-whitism" in the south. For forty years these ignoramuses have been arguing national leaders that if the party would eliminate the negro from the party councils they would break the solid south and have never made anybody believe their story except the lamented President Harding, who said before he died that he had been deceived by these crooks and set about to repudiate them, and correct the error that they had led him into."

"I welcome the accession of Senator Simmons to our rank. Conversion is better late then never. Long ago we were antagonists but we never struck below the belt. To-day I welcome him with open arms to the grand old party of God and Morality. After all of these years of defeat and disaster for the black man's party in the south I can see us again coming in our own. Not a great many of us remain alive who can recall the days when black men sat in the chair of state in the southern capitals. Those days have long been gone, but, bless God, I can see them returning. It is said that a honse divided against it self connot stand, and now I see the white people of the south dividing."

"I wish to use the newspapers of North Carolina to urge my beople to get behind Senator Simmons and support him. What is true in North Carolina may be true in other s uthern states. Just let us get control of the state machinery this vear andMr. Hoover in the white house will give us such help as will wipe out all the laws in the south which keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man. I am getting old, but before I die I would like to again see my race enjoying its just deserts. Then I will say like Simeon in tne Bible: "Now lettest thy servant depart in peace."

Yea, all of which sound just fine to the Hoover rats, but then the Senator of North Carolina has awoke to the fact that his stomach is weak and he can not stand the place they have placed him in—the republican party He has boolted that also and says that he cannot possible vote a republican ticket.

Falkston, Ga., Herald
Friday, September 28, 1928

NEGRO OFFICE HOLDER SPEAKS HIS MIND.

W. Lee Person, a negro office-holder in Washington, delivers himself of the following statement, which has been published in the Ashville Citizen. Those of you that are thinking of deserting your party, read it and see what this negro thinks of your joining with the crusaders to "wipe out all the laws of the south which keep the black men from moving on the same plane with while men."

Bailey
Vidalia
Sept 5 1928

Smith Angling For Negro Vote

The following copyrighted article from Country Editor Publishing Co., Inc., will shed some very brilliant illumination on this "negro question" the supporters of Gov. Al Smith have been trying to use to their own advantage.

The Democratic national campaign managers in New York are displaying considerable concern over the Tammany Hall issue and the reaction of normally Democratic voters in the South and West to Al Smith's alleged intimate association and friendship with the promoters and protectors of immorality in the Greater City. The Governor's support, as a legislator, of Tammany-protected vice appears now to be fairly well established. In fact during his entire career as Assemblyman it cannot be shown that he ever voted in favor of a single so-called reform measure. He has been at all times a dutiful and obedient son of Tammany and in his last speech in the Hall on the 4th of July of this year he expressed his ardent admiration for that corrupt political machine.

In order to allay the fears of the decent elements in other parts of the country, the Tammany leaders are being shunted into the background and are expected to remain there until election day. During the pre-convention campaign and at Houston, however, these same leaders were clothed with exclusive authority and ran things to suit themselves, nor are they losing any sleep at the present time over their temporary eclipse. In fact, they were in full agreement with the plan that during the election campaign Tammany should occupy the limelight as little as posisble so as to relieve the Governor of the taint of association with it. That this is only a meaningless gesture in the direction of expediency every well-informed person thoroughly understands. If the Governor is elected, Tammany will in no sense be a welcome guest at the White House. It will be the host and will welcome only those whom it particularly desires to favor. The Tiger knows how to reward its frineds and it has never hesitated to destroy its enemies

There should be food for thought in the present situation. Tammany has always been jealous of the power of the South in Democratic councils and has bitterly resented the minority role it has been forced to play in national politics. If it can elect its candidate, it will undoubtedly take advantage of this control of the Federal Administration to turn upon the South and rend it. In another four years it will have so entrenched its position that it will not need that solid block of electoral votes in order to keep its candidate in the White House. There are other sources of political power which Tammany knows only too well how to develop and the control of these will make the South no more necessary than any other part of the country. In 1932 Tammany will not be worrying over the electoral vote of Alabama or Mississippi. Long before that time, the power of the South in the councils of Democracy will be a thing of the past.

One important source of power which Tammany has ever been alert to cultivate lies in the constantly increasing numerical strength of the negro vote. In Harlem, where 150,000 negro residents of New York City have congregated, and in the black belts of other cities of the state, Tammany has for years been coddling the negro. Al Smith himself not only visits them during his campaigns but hands the mout a brand of soothing syrup which he specially reserves for that type of citizen.

The Harlef negroes are permitted to run a wide open town under the liberal eyes of their own black policement. Their favorite gambling games are not interfered with in the back-rooms of the black-and-tan joints, which Tammany mates. will accept the allowed to lounge man, perhaps of respectable family, but too drunk to realize the depths of his degradation. Tammany offer obscene insults to such a white woman who passes with an indulgent eye on such that way. Nor do has always looked with a fanatical reformers. In fact, only these diversions as these. In fact, such harmless pastimes. By these could object to such a white woman hesitate to make eyes at the more attractive negro specimens and to revile them with lewd remarks or could object to such a white woman if they resent their approaches. It is not safe and means, moreover, it hopes finally to annex the negro certainly not pleasant for a white woman to find vote throughout the country once its present can-herself in that neighborhood. Nothing, however, candidate has become the occupant of the White be done about it since these young negro gallants House.

For years the Tammany mayors have recognized the black belt on election day. The boast of powerful friends in Tammany Hall to the power of the black belt who fills the office of mayor whom they can appeal for protection. present wise-cracked who is touring Europe and the United States has started off the campaign to enlist the present campaign when he is not touring Europe and the United States has started off the campaign to enlist the Al Smith by paying a personal visit

In the black and tan joints, which Tammany permits to run wide open, white prostitutes dance and get drunk with these same negroes, and later negro vote for Al Smith by paying a personal visit in the night entertain them in their private quarters. Sometimes within the same hour, these white women, havin ghad their fill of their dusky playmates, will accept the invitation of the affair was published in the New York Times of August 16th las:

"With more than 500 negro delegates from all over the country attending, the twenty-ninth annual convention of the National Negro Business League opened yesterday morning at the Mother Zion A. M. E. Church, 51 West 136th st.

"Mayor Walker welcomed the convention to this city at the evening session in the Abyssinian Baptist Church, 132 West 139th Street. The Mayor's only reference to national politics came when he paused for a moment towards the end of his address and then concluded with a smile:

" 'After the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, I won't say what is going to happen, but I can assure you now that I will be as welcome in the White House as you are here in New York City.'

Political—1928

Party Affiliation.

RASKOB CALLED PAPAL SERVANT IN K. K. K. LETTER

Mississippi Grand Dragon Lugs In Color Issue To Get Hoover Votes

VOTERS ADVISED PERRY HOWARD IS OUTSIDE

Electors Will Be 'Lily White' Says State Klan Head In Letter

NEW YORK.—The unholy alliance formed by the Ku Klux Klan and Lily-White Republicans and their endeavor to inject the Negro issue in the present presidential campaign become more apparent each day.

A letter from the Klan was recently received by Mrs. M. B. Dottery of Oklahoma, Miss., a white woman, in which she was urged to vote against Governor Smith primarily because of his friendly attitude toward the Negro. The letter was written by Fred E. Wankan, Grand Dragon of Mississippi, and was as follows:

The Letter

"Dear Mr. Dottery:

"We have Hoover, a Republican, who is dry, and Smitha Democrat who is wet. We have Hoover who is a Protestant, and Smith who is a Romanist. We have Smith who believes in social equality and intermarriage of blacks and whites, and Hoover who was the last head of the department in Washington to abolish segregation.

"Tammany Hall has a Negro division, and I am enclosing you copy of record appearing in the Negro Year Book. Smith's record on the Negro question is ten times blacker than that of Hoover's and, of course it is needless for me to say that I intend to vote for the Republican electors. They will be the lily-white electors, not the Perry Howard electors.

Raskob and Pope

"We have an unstanding American, who is a Protestant, who is managing Hoover's campaign, while John J. Raskob who has always been a Republican, who is dripping wet, a Roman Catholic, Private Chamberlain of the Pope's Lay Household who has been decorated several times by the Pope managing the so-called Democratic Party, but in fact the 'Tammany Clerical Party.'

"There is no comparison. It is a question of country, and I expect to stay with the country in opposition to the alien-controlled, Rome-ridden, Negro-loving, rum-selling Tammany gang. The Smith forces are going to seek to force us all to vote for Smith on the Negro question, and that little bubble will all be punctured and we won't hear much more of it after our campaign gets under way."

The Repl-

Mrs. Dottery's reply to the Grand Dragon of Mississippi follows:

"I am not nor ever have been a K. K. Was not old enough to belong to the old Order and do not want to belong to anything that works under a mask, anyway."

A motion to table the resolution was adopted. Among those at the conference whose talk was on behalf of Governor Smith's candidacy was Dr. Leon Reid of Richmond.

Memphis, Tenn. Commercial-Appl.
Thursday, September 13, 1928

NEGRO REPUBLICANS NEAR PARTING OF WAYS

Dissatisfaction Over Treatment Spreads Like Epidemic.

BOB CHURCH IS "MIFFED"

Threatened Defections From Ranks Are Bared in Some Pivotal States—Memphis Leader Didn't Get What He Wanted.

BY JOHN D. ERWIN,
Commercial Appeal Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The dissatisfaction manifested by many of the negro Republicans in Tennessee with their ticket and the management of party affairs nationally is being reflected in several other states, some of them pivotal in this contest.

Robert R. Church, Memphis negro leader, who has been in Washington for several days, has called on Chairman Work, but apparently has not received what he is looking for, whatever that may be. He has indicated to some of his friends that the Republican leaders may have to send for him when they want him again.

When Representative J. Will Taylor, patronage boss of the Republicans for Tennessee, was here he tried to smooth out certain difficulties that had arisen between Church and the national headquarters, but all is not harmony in that quarter as yet. Taylor is expected back here in a few days.

Million Negroes Concerned.

A million negro voters in the northern and border states are giving no end of concern to the Hoover campaign managers.

For the first time since they were given the vote, the colored brethren are divided. In the past they have been so regular in their Republicanism that it was unnecessary to give them any thought before the election or any substantial recognition afterward. This year all this has been materially changed.

Instead of "the party of Abraham Lincoln is good enough fo' me," the chant of the black folks in the present campaign is, "What has the Republican party ever done for me?"

Insurgent ideas, fanned into flame by leaders of their own race, have brought about a situation which is not only unprecedented in presidential policies, but to students of politics is among the most fascinating phenomena of the 1928 campaign. In some sections of the north the swing to Governor Smith is so strong that it appears probable the Democratic nominee will get the bulk of the negro vote.

Vote Against the Klan.

In other states the colored voters appear torn between their old allegiance and the opportunity offered them to vote against the Ku Klux Klan in casting a vote for Smith. The resultant confusion has given the organizers for both parties a problem with which they have never before been confronted.

Antagonism toward the klan and prohibition are recognized by all informed persons of both races as the underlying factors in the present political revolt.

Contributory causes are found also in resentment over white domination and failure to receive what leaders of the colored race regard as the rightful reward of their political regularity. Negro newspapers in many instances are either lukewarm in their Republicanism or openly preaching insurgency.

Others, possibly influenced by the discovery that their readers prefer the candidacy of Governor Smith to that of Secretary Hoover, are giving the two candidates equal play in the news columns where formerly the Republicans got all the better of it. The negro press in general—even where Republican in policy—is displaying a greater friendliness for the Smith candidacy than ever before in the case of a Democratic aspirant for the presidency.

Dozen States Affected.

Republican.

It is in a dozen states or less that the colored vote really counts. And there it counts so heavily that some statisticians insist President Coolidge was the first Republican presidential candidate to be elected without the aid of the negroes. The colored vote, up to a few years ago, was considered to constitute the balance of power without which the Republicans could not have carried New Jersey, Ohio and Indiana, and which might be considered the margin of safety for the G. O. P. even in New York.

In the border states and farther south their numbers run much higher—and the percentage of voters much lower.

Under the caption "The Rising Tide of Protest," the Washington Eagle, one of the negro newspapers published here, says editorially in summing up the political unrest among members of the colored race:

"The Republican party must view with alarm the unrest obtaining among the colored voters of the country. The break away from party alignment is due in many cases to the desire to register a protest against Hoover for the attitude of the leaders of the Republican party toward the negro under the past two administrations. Thinking negroes are tired of the humiliation they have suffered for eight long years under the Republican party."

There follows a long list of these "humiliations," as the editor sees them, concluding with this observation:

"This is the record of the party some misguided negroes still say is the ship and all else the sea. The Jolly Roger was a ship also, but the crew was manned by pirates."

Charlotte, N. C. News
Tuesday, September 11, 1928

Bulwinkle Raps G. O. P. And Upholds Al Smith

Democratic Candidate for Congress Appeals to Voters in Upper Mecklenburg—Pours Broadside Into Republican Record — McRae Also Praises Smith.

A large audience, much given to applause, turned out at Cornelius last night to hear Congressman A. L. Bulwinkle and John A. McRae and to support the claims of political leaders there that Upper Mecklenburg had made up its mind to "stay regular" in the Democratic campaign.

Major Bulwinkle charged his opponent, Charles A. Jonas, Republican candidate for Congress, with injecting the negro issue in the campaign and demanded that Southern Republican leaders clear their skirts of the "whispering" campaign of scurrility against Smith in the face of a repudiation on the part of their National Committee. His speech indicated that he was not sure they could do this. In any case he demanded of them an expression on the subject.

The Congressman continued his campaign much along the same lines of his "keynote" speech in Gastonia. He fired broadsides into Republican corruption, ridiculed their claims of national prosperity with millions of men out of employment and many Southern cotton mills on half time. Their record, he declared, failed to produce one definite piece of consrtuctive legislation for the people in the last seven and a half years. He pointed to an inconsistency in Kellogg's pact outlawing war and the administration's own war in Nicaragua.

The speaker stood firm in his staunch support of Smith, pointing to his record of honesty and efficiency in government. He deplored what he declared to be unfair tactics on the part of the opposition in spreading "whispers" about Smith and his religious beliefs and connections. He did not agree with Smith in his prohibition views, but declared that the South alone had enough votes in Congress to prevent a change in the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mr. McRae devoted his short talk to a discussion of Smith in politics and the personal characteristics which enabled him to be four times Governor of New York, a Republican State. He presented Smith as an honest, able and courageous politician whose strength has been recognized and approved by the people of his State regardless of their political connections.

The program lasted for two hours In the audience were some opposed to the Smith candidacy, including Jake F. Newell, who, so far, has borne the brunt of the North Carolina Republican speaking campaign. The audience, filling the school auditorium, listened to the addresses intently, with periodic heavy applause. Several of the Democratic nominees were present, including Walter Clark, for Senator; Joe Sherrill, for county commissioner; J. B. Sherrill, for representative, and Frank Barnett, for tax collector, and were introduced to the audience by County Chairman Hamilton C. Jones, who presided.

LEADERSHIP—THE NEGRO AND POLITICS

The acid test of leadership fitness is best shown by the behavior of a so-called leader in a crisis.

We hear much said of leadership. We read a good deal of what is purported to be leadership advice. We see so much display of what is called leadership. We think sometime that this muchly over-worked term has come to have any significance that might be placed on it for the convenience and designs of self-seeking men. It is easy to say "yes sir," "me too," "that's what I think," and turn on the pivot of expediency; get the glory of being next to the powers that be; mediate between authority and the poor devils down the way; color up chameleon-like to suit the sentiment of authority and be a medium through which virtue is supposed to pass out one way and information to pass in the other. It is easy to go to the front in little things where tatling counts, where suffering and thinking are negligible, where opposition is not expected, where taking a stand is unnecessary, where opinions are ready made and greased up to be swallowed whole with ease.

It is easy to be mouthy, to plan campaigns for other people to pursue, to buy with other people's money or credit to show off to advantage, to advise, even to execute and get some kind of results when protected against the withering fire of criticism by henchmen who do not find it necessary to believe in one in order to shield him. It is more or less easy to have influence when one is willing to pay the price for it. There is plenty of it on the market. There are friendships, too, that can be bought at the price of one's manhood, self-respect or the abandonment of one's principles. But leadership in the permanent sense, the effective sense, the glorious sense, the eternal sense, is a rare growth. It differs from the spectacular, the mouthy, the looking-two-ways, the influence-hunting, the "me-too" types. It comes to the top in adversity; it comes to the front in a crisis; it stands up and out in danger with courage. It is motivated by principles that keep it consistently and respectably pursuing an honorable course in an honorable way. It is never looking for any reward but that which comes from the pursuit of the public weal.

Reporter 9-29-28

If there is any reality in what we hear and read about the political crisis now impending, it must involve the fortunes of the Negro more seriously than any one else. The need for leadership is urgent now though no appreciable, tangible gains may be expected. Always betwixt the devil and the deep, blue sea in national politics the Negro's path is devious; the significance of any crisis brought on by the results of this campaign centers not in the attitude nor in the favors of him who wins but it depends on how the Negro behaves with respect to his permanent interests in those centers where his behavior will count in the final results. The responsibility for leadership becomes doubly woeful when it goes in the wrong direction, when it is buyable, salable, usable, culpable. It is the loss of leadership confidence that kills and the temporary loss of the cause which it represents that discourages. Both are hard to retrieve.

Leadership does not come by appointment. It does not come by bestowal. It does not live and endure on patronage nor favors. Whether or not it is a passive inheritance, it develops out of necessity and flowers in adversity. This mushroom leadership that springs up in areas of ease and absorbs influence for its growth, that buys and sells influence with tainted currency or intriguing friendships, operates sponge-like to absorb everything in its area for its own growth, and, in the advent of a crisis, it changes areas with a consumate, flopping artfulness to avoid the press that would prove its sponge-like qualities and deprive it of its soaked-in gains.

This flopping here and there to get in the line of eligibles or the path of the political current to be ready for political beneficience when it comes, this rush for the line where the outstretched palm is to be served with pork to feed the hungry political mow of the little henchmen chiefs down the line is an evidence of the damning quality of Negro political leadership—we mean damning to the Negro himself. It was this that first discredited Negro political efforts. It was this that made the Negro in politics a dangerous element in democratic government. It was this that motivated the birth of the Ku Klux Klan, the grandfather clauses and the spirit to prevent any Negro political affiliations. It is the frightful thing that put the sting and the poison in "white supremacy." There is no principle involved in the present political campaign on which the colored group can safely divide. There might be individual interests to be served; there might be a difference of opinions growing out of these interests; but men's opinions vary with their individual interests when their conduct is motivated by the desire for their own gain, and right there lies the hidden wedge in the political camp where avowed defections are threatened. Perhaps, the Democratic Party will welcome the Negro in those areas where it will count; perhaps, it will be a C. O. D. proposition; but, in those areas where it is spurned and could not count, it salts the painful sore about which these would-be defectionists have made the loudest and the bitterest complaint.

In view of the thoroughly known and avowed principles of the two big parties, it is yet too early to counsel a division of the Negro vote. The lesson of pooling the vote to advantage has not yet been learned and counseling a division of it is fatal to the paramount principle underlying any eventual permanent success.

The fortunes of the Negro in politics must come through a show of united voting strength and not by any cutting off of the nose to spite the face nor by passing a "sop" to a few as a reward for disconcerting the others.

Certainly, one cannot take seriously all the hysterical stuff coming from mad cap Southern Negrophobists. To read it all and think it to be seriously meant by sound-minded people would have a frightfully desperate maddening effect. But there is a meaning to it that will deepen in proportion as it grows apparent that any unity of political effort can be kept negligible in those quarters where effective political effort is possible.

If there is no standard to which one might rise and feel to have earned a just and square deal in the South and the eventual hope to get it, if there is no intention that the Negro should ever have justice, if this green-eyed alarm over the progress that the Negro has made and justly earned means that down in the white man's soul there is no justice, no sense of fair play, no intention to yield any more than the hand of God and the sword of circumstances wrings from him in time, what must be expected but the bitterness that must come from being fouled at every stage of the game and the hope to abandon the land of one's birth as early as the circumstances will permit? Why fume about the privileges that the Negro has in other states as though it were the greenest envy that he should have fair treatment anywhere on the face of the earth. The Negro has earned everything that he has ever got anywhere. No one has given him any unearned social and economic increment—not even any broadsides of sympathy. With hundreds of years of social and economic freedom and the wealth of the world, through unmolested and unchallenged grasping, at his feet; with the plundered substance of the weaker nations of the world in his possession and with his purse strings pulled tight on the value of 300 years of labor wrought by the black man, white man, "white supremacy" should be safe beyond the shame of any mention. The shame of it is that any such phrase might ever be seriously uttered with a threat except the feeling of race decadence has set in and competition is felt to be menacing in a big earth whose untouched fullness is the Lord's the world and they that dwell therein.

The Negro only wants common justice; he has never sought anything else, and, if he cannot be given that and at the same time have white supremacy maintained, the refusal of it is a disguised compliment and the mention of any unfair or any undemocratic means to maintain it otherwise than by fair play is the purest cowardice.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Dothan, Ala., Eagle
Wednesday, September 26, 1928

MR. MALONE HOLDS THE SACK IN A REPUBLICAN SNIPE HUNT

I.

Sometimes, when the subject matter is difficult, the business of editorial writing is hard. At other times and on other subjects the going is easier. But once in a great while a series of events spring from a happy condition and the editorial writes itself. It is then that the editor finds himself in possession of a lead pipe cinch, and wades into the discussion with gusto.

Such is our feeling as we begin this comment on a letter printed in yesterday's Eagle bearing the signature of Mr. Walace D. Malone, recent recruit to the Republican Party and secretary of what he terms the "Anti-Smith Campaign" in Houston County, in which he attempts to justify the motives of the bolters.

And so, humming a tune under our breath, we throw this unfortunate letter upon the table, and without pausing to apply the ether, proceed to operate.

II.

The first fallacy Mr. Malone commits is in the first paragragph:

> The first great and successful bolt that we know of was when George Washington, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and other American patriots bolted the British government of which they were part and parcel.

As any schoolboy knows, these pioneer statesmen were not bolters, but revolutionists. A revolutionist is one who over-throws the old order and establishes a new. He charges straight at the enemy with desperate purpose and blood in his eye. On the other hand, a bolter runs away, and in the case of the present bolters, they are running over to join the forces of the enemy, the Republican Party.

Washington and his fellows rebelled at England's tyranny and rank injustices. And when they rebelled they drafted a Constitution whose spirit and intent would never permit the people of this nation to qualify a candidate for public office on the ground of his religion. Yet many citizens of the Wiregrass would desert the party of their fathers and rush to the Republicans because Gov. Smith's religious belief differs from theirs. Not only would they bolt the Democratic Party, but also they would bolt the spirit of the Constitution of the United State and the Constitution of Alabama. The bill of rights in the Alabama Constitution clearly states: "No religious test shall be required as a qualification to any office or public trust * * * "

In referring to Thomas Jefferson, on whose principles the Democratic Party was founded, Mr. Malone neglects to point out that one of Jefferson's life-long doctrines was a belief in religious freedom, and that no man should be persecuted or penalized in any way because of his religious belief.

III.

Mr. Malone then leaves the heroes of the American revolution and uses the names of men whose memory will live as long as the memory of the War Between the States, claiming that they also were bolters:

> What heroes! Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Raphael Semmes, Alexander Stevens, the Morgans, Ben Hill and an innumerable host of others always including the soldier in the ranks.

Robert E. Lee was not in favor of the Southern States seceding from the Union, and neither was Jefferson Davis nor Alexander Stevens. They believed that the slavery disagreement should be settled by arbitration. But when the opening guns of battle were fired did these stalwart men bolt from their beloved South and join the forces of the enemy? They did not. They stayed with their own people and among their own kind and fought until the bitter end. Mr. Malone and his fellow-bolters may well adopt the loyalty to the South of Lee, Davis, Stevens and other Confederate leaders. These men fought when Yankee forces marched upon their homes. Today the South and her Party are threatened again, not by a physical enemy, but by the damnable Republicanism that was responsible for outrages upon our crushed people in Reconstruction Days. Has Mr. Malone forgotten that? It is the same Republican Party that would banish white supremacy in the South today if it could; it is the same Republican Party that has ignored the South since Grant's administration on down through the years until this hour; it is the same Republican Party that now desires to enact into law the Dyer Anti-Lynching bill, a measure that would tax every man and woman in any county wherein a lynching occurs, making the whole people pay for the crimes of a lawless few; it is the same Republican Party that has never liked nor sympathized with the people of the South. In short, IT IS THE SAME OLD COON WITH ANOTHER RING AROUND HIS TAIL. Yet Mr. Malone would have us join such an enemy!

Republican.

IV.

The local recruiting officer of the Republican Party continues:

> Then came 1896 when the many Democrats of the nation bolted W. J. Bryan and his free silver platform under the lead of that great Democrat, Grover Cleveland, whom the American people, North and South, today hold in the greatest admiration. How Alabama has honored her 1896 bolters! Sever of them have been elected Governors of the State, Congressmen, Judges, Law-makers, Delegates to National Conventions, Mayors, Committeemen. The Constitutional Convention of 1901, only five years later, was full of them.

In 1896 those Democrats who supported Palmer and Buckner did not bolt the Democratic Party, and Mr. Malone knows it. The Democratic Party split, each wing nominating a candidate. Neither faction joined the forces of the Republican, their common enemy. The bolters today are being urged to vote for Hoover, the Republican opponent to the Democratic nominee. They are being urged to go over to the enemy.

V.

Mr. Malone's next statement is this:

> What shall we say about these Alabamians who are now supporting Al Smith not because they believe in what he stands for but from political expediency for opportunity to run for future office. The English language scarcely contains words sufficiently strong to condemn them. What did men like Grover Cleveland, Thomas G. Jones, Wm. C. Oates, Jesse M. Carmichael, Wm. J. Samford, B. B. Comer, H. S. D. Mallory, Col. W. H. Burr, as gallant a Confederate officer as ever led his men into action, Judge A. Y. Malone and Editor W. T. Hall care for political expediency? They knew no such words when principle was at stake.

In mentioning the names of the late Judge A. Y. Malone and W. T. Hall, Mr. Malone is referring to his uncle and to this writer's father. We agree with him that neither man cared for political expediency. Both proved time and again the courage of their opinions, and the last time they proved it was in 1924, a few weeks before their deaths, when they were delegates to the Democratic Convention in New York. During those hectic days Alabama was intensely and violently pro-Klan. The voters of the State were under the hooded influence and were clamoring loudly for Senator Underwood's defeat. Yet A. Y. Malone and W. T. Hall with the other 22 delegates from Alabama ignored the Klan and voted until the last ballot "Twenty-four Votes For Underwood!" Underwood's denouncement of the Klan made him loom as a Presidential possibility, and Alabama's delegates proved their courage and loyalty by voting during the deadlock of three weary weks for Underwood.

Mr. Malone's curious attempt to make a point against political expediency by referring to these two delegates to the Convention in 1924, when their vote for the unpopular Underwood was an illustration of fearless loyalty to an Alabamian and to party principle, is a foolish thing, for it is perfect ammunition to destroy his own argument.

VI.

But no less foolish—and damaging to his own cause—is the very next paragraph of his letter:

> In America today no name is more odious than that of Benedict Arnold who sold himself to the British for political expediency.

We quite agree that Benedict Arnold was contemptible. He was a traitor. Arnold was holding high position under Gen. Washington when he bolted and went to the British, our enemy. This was dishonorable, yet what of the conduct of some of the Democratic nominees in Alabama who, while holding a party office, have deserted and are knifing our Presidential nominee in the back? Are they not traitors? What of the former Democrats who are doing all the damage they can to the Democratic Party for Anti-Saloon League money, or just common, ordinary, Republican money? Are they not, well—how would you describe them? Mr. Malone seems to think them noble.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Dothan, Ala., Eagle
Wednesday, September 26, 1928

MR. MALONE HOLDS THE SACK IN A REPUBLICAN SNIPE HUNT

I.

Sometimes, when the subject matter is difficult, the business of editorial writing is hard. At other times and on other subjects the going is easier. But once in a great while a series of events spring from a happy condition and the editorial writes itself. It is then that the editor finds himself in possession of a lead pipe cinch, and wades into the discussion with gusto.

Such is our feeling as we begin this comment on a letter printed in yesterday's Eagle bearing the signature of Mr. Walace D. Malone, recent recruit to the Republican Party and secretary of what he terms the "Anti-Smith Campaign" in Houston County, in which he attempts to justify the motives of the bolters.

And so, humming a tune under our breath, we throw this unfortunate letter upon the table, and without pausing to apply the ether, proceed to operate.

II.

The first fallacy Mr. Malone commits is in the first paragragph:

The first great and successful bolt that we know of was when George Washington, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and other American patriots bolted the British government of which they were part and parcel.

As any schoolboy knows, these pioneer statesmen were not bolters, but revolutionists. A revolutionist is one who over-throws the old order and establishes a new. He charges straight at the enemy with desperate purpose and blood in his eye. On the other hand, a bolter runs away, and in the case of the present bolters, they are running over to join the forces of the enemy, the Republican Party.

Washington and his fellows rebelled at England's tyranny and rank injustices. And when they rebelled they drafted a Constitution whose spirit and intent would never permit the people of this nation to qualify a candidate for public office on the ground of his religion. Yet many citizens of the Wiregrass would desert the party of their fathers and rush to the Republicans because Gov. Smith's religious belief differs from theirs. Not only would they bolt the Democratic Party, but also they would bolt the spirit of the Constitution of the United State and the Constitution of Alabama. The bill of rights in the Alabama Constitution clearly states: "No religious test shall be required as a qualification to any office or public trust * * * "

In referring to Thomas Jefferson, on whose principles the Democratic Party was founded, Mr. Malone neglects to point out that one of Jefferson's life-long doctrines was a belief in religious freedom, and that no man should be persecuted or penalized in any way because of his religious belief.

III.

Mr. Malone then leaves the heroes of the American revolution and uses the names of men whose memory will live as long as the memory of the War Between the States, claiming that they also were bolters:

What heroes! Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Raphael Semmes, Alexander Stevens, the Morgans, Ben Hill and an innumerable host of others always including the soldier in the ranks.

Robert E. Lee was not in favor of the Southern States seceding from the Union, and neither was Jefferson Davis nor Alexander Stevens. They believed that the slavery disagreement should be settled by arbitration. But when the opening guns of battle were fired did these stalwart men bolt from their beloved South and join the forces of the enemy? They did not. They stayed with their own people and among their own kind and fought until the bitter end. Mr. Malone and his fellow-bolters may well adopt the loyalty to the South of Lee, Davis, Stevens and other Confederate leaders. These men fought when Yankee forces marched upon their homes. Today the South and her ed upon their homes. Today the South and her ed upon their homes. Today the South and her ers. These men fought when Yankee forces marched

VII.

Mr. Malone refers to "Al Smith and his Negro Commissioner Morton." Gov. Smith did not appoint Morton . Mayor Hylan of New York appointed him, and when Jimmy Walker defeated Hylan in the last election, it was Al Smith who helped do it! Hylan was Smith's political enemy.

In response to calls from the South where the charge has been repeatedly made that Gov. Smith has made numerous Negro appointments in New York, the National Democratic Congressional committee has completed a careful check of his appointments. It was found that one Negro has received an appointment at the hands of Gov. Smith during his entire four terms as governor of New York. This Negro was appointed to the job of messenger boy at the capitol, and he received his appointment on the strength of an outstanding war record.

And Mr. Malone then becomes guileless enough to sneer at "Smith and his cohorts standing for Negro equality social and political, mixed schools and marriage between whites and blacks , the Pope to govern both in temporal thing and spiritual things," etc.

Smith does not believe in Negro equality, either socially or politically, any more than Grover Cleveland, Woodrow Wilson or Jimmy Cox believed in it.

No Negro has ever dined in the governor's mansion of New York since Smith has been the executive, but Alabamians well recall when a certain Negro dined in the White House with a Republican President.

Cleveland was a former governor of New York. Wilson was a former governor of New Jersey. Cox was a former governor of Ohio, and in each of these States Negroes attend the public schools with the whites and the races inter-marry. None of these men were held responsible, and none were charged with the responsibility when they became Democratic candidates except Smith. The whispering campaign being conducted against him is the rottenest, the vilest and at once the most idiotic that has ever been waged against a Presidential candidate. But it is reacting in his favor. The American people love fair play, and they are beginning to take sides with the persecuted Smith. They are learning that many of the Republican whispers are lies and they are distrusting everything the Republicans say.

As for the old wheeze about "Smith and his cohorts standing for the Pope to govern both in temporal and spiritual things," Smith has made himself as clear on that point as he has on the prohibition question. We direct Mr. Malone's attention to Gov. Smith's creed, which has been appearing daily on this page for several weeks. In it he states as plainly as the English language will permit: "I recognized no power in the institutions of my church to interfere with the operations of the law of the land. * * * I believe in the absolute separation of church and state." Under his administration this country would be as free from church dictatorship as it has since the administration of George Washington.

VIII.

If Mr. Malone is foolish enough to hurl "Nigger-lover" at Smith, we are happy to point out the following interesting facts:

1. In the Republican Convention at Kansas City sat 122 Negro delegates. Negro delegates are a part of every Republican Convention.

2. In the Democratic Convention at Houston was not one Negro delegates. Negro delegates never sit in Democratic Conventions.

3. Ben Davis, Negro National Republican Committeeman in Georgia belligerently charges that the Democratic Party is the white man's party, and we are glad to state that he is correct. It has always been the white man's party and it always will be.

4. Mrs. A. Y. Mlone, (Walace Malone's aunt) a Dothan citizen and president of the Alabama Woman's Federation of Clubs, was introduced to Mrs. Herbert Hoover at a reception by a Negro.

5. A Negro named Hawkins, delegate to the Republican Convention, made a speech seconding the nomination of Hoover at Kansas City.

6. The Republican Party has always stood for equality of the Negro; the Democratic Party never has and never will.

7. It was the Republican Party that attempted to humiliate the South with a wretched Force Bill, and it was the Democratic Party, with the aid of Tammany Hall Democrats, that defeated this attempt ot place federal bayonets around the ballot boxes of the South so the Negroes could be voted in wholesale numbers.

8. It was the Republican Party which sent carpet baggers throughout the South in Reconstruction days and elevated Negroes to official positions over the white man, and the odor of Negroes on judges' benches permeated the atmosphere of courtrooms from Virginia to Louisiana. White Democrats removed them, and they have been removed ever since.

IX.

We state in conclusion that, though Mr. Malone's name was fixed to this letter, we wonder if he really wrote it. If he did, then we are disappointed in his abilities, for the letter from beginning to end is weak, wthout logic and actually silly. It sounds more like a genuine, old-time dyed-in-the-wool Republican speaking under the signature of a recent deserter from the Democratic Party. The reason we believe this is twofold: (a) because the entire letter is blatant with the smug, self-righteous attitude that distinguishes all propaganda of seasoned Republicans, and (b) because every word vainly attempts to anoint the heads of the bolters and make them righteous, too.

But if Mr. Malone is the actual author of the letter, and will publicly admit it, we will publicly offer our sympathy!

And if, moreover, he is proud of his attempt to salve the bolters and induce them to join the enemy, then we heartily welcome other letters along the same line, provided they sparkle with the same type of absurdities.

One or two more of them, and Houston County will undergo an over-night landslide back to the party of its persecuted fathers and the party of eternal white supremacy.

JOURNAL

Jersey City, N. J.

OCT 2 1928

Grundy Speaks To Negro Voters

In a speech before the Hudson County Colored Men's Republican Club in the Colored Elks' Clubhouse on Ocean Avenue last Saturday evening J. Owen Grundy, head of the Young Men's Republican Speakers' Committee in Hudson County, stated that the revelations of the Case Committee have proved to the independent citizens of Jersey City what they had only surmised before. He said: "We must not only stand shoulder to shoulder in this national campaign, but we must pave the way for the great commission government election next May, when we intend to elect five representative men city commissioners over the hand-picked ticket of Mayor Frank Hague. We have faith that the people of Jersey City still want good government, and they have not forgotten that the man who gave it to them was Mark M. Fagan."

President Benjamin Dowden of Young Men's Republican Association, Frank B. Chapman, Republican nominee for Boulevard Commissioner, also made speeches Fred N. Carter presided as chairman in place of the president, James W. Roberson.

Nashville, Tenn., Banner
Tuesday, September 25, 1928

SEGREGATION ORDER PULLS NEGRO VOTE

So Says Publicity Sent Out by Associated Negro Press.

The Associated Negro Press, an organization in the interest of Negro publicity, sends out the following:

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 25.—In an interview with a representative of the Associated Negro Press this week Attorney Perry B. Jackson, Republican nominee for the state legislature (the only colored man nominated for the state legislature in the whole state), stated that he was unqualifiedly in favor of the election of Herbert Hoover for President of the United States. Jackson, who is active in civic, fraternal and religious life of this city, stated that in his opinion not less than ninety per cent of the colored people of Cuyahoga county and state of Ohio would support the Hoover ticket. He gave as his reasons not only that Herbert Hoover was by training and experience the better qualified of the two leading candidates for the high office of President, but that his broad and sympathetic understanding of human problems as exemplified in his stamping out segregation in his department in Washington as soon as it was called to his attention, according to Noval Thomas of Washington, D. C., had a practical and direct appeal to the colored voter.

Hoover Aid Is Plea Of Negro Baptist Speaker

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Selection of Kansas City, Mo., for the 1929 meeting of the National Negro Baptists Convention, Inc., and Charleston, S. C., for the Baptist Young Peoples Union Congress were made here late today tomorrow afternoon and night.

"The building of the American flag," an annual pageant given by 150 women and Nannie Burroughs's plea for Herbert Hoover in her address "The Moral and Economic Issues in the Hoover Campaign," held the interest of the delegates today.

Political-1928

Party Affiliation

Republican.

The American People Are Weary of Race Prejudice and Religious Bigotry

Within a fortnight the people will rebuke at the polls the campaign of race hatred, religious bigotry, and political intolerance conducted by the Democratic Party for the past three months.

The campaign has not been one of men and measures, but of race prejudice and political intolerance on the part of the Democratic Party. There has been no appeal in the South to the sober judgment of mankind but the one effort has been to make men hate and despise one another.

Early in the game, the Democratic Party repudiated the Houston platform and paramounted the race issue. It has been argued from every hill and housetop, that white supremacy superceded every other controversial question, and white men and women were called from the plow to strike one blow to lift black heels off white necks. Every Democratic daily, and Democratic office-holder, state and national, have been on the job every day telling the people, that America's is a white man's country, and the only way to prevent immediate Negro domination was to elect Al Smith; that a vote for Hoover was a vote for Negro domination; and a vote for Governor Smith was a vote for white supremacy.

In the North, the Democrats have been appealing to the Negro to vote the Democratic ticket on the ground that, Governor Smith was a friend to the Negro, believed in race and political equality, and would appoint Negroes to office nationally, if elected, just as Tammany Hall had done, and is doing in New York.

The Democrats charge that Hoover is a "nigger" lover, and if he is elected, as he certainly will be, he will africanize the government service. The Anti-Smith Democrats deny the charge, and counter charge that Mr. Smith and Tammany Hall have appointed more Negroes to office in New York than the Republicans have in the nation. They sight Ferd Morton, and his white stenographer, as a sample of Smith's Negro record. When the regular Democrats charge that Ben Davis will continue control under Hoover, the Antis come back by saying, if you vote for Smith instead of Hoover, so far as the Negro is concerned, it will be an aggrevated case of jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

So after all, so far as the Negro is concerned, the pdejudice of the Smith Democrats and the Antis are one and the same, and one hates the Negro with as much intensity as the other. The Anti-Smith Democrats are fighting Smith because he is dripping wet and a Catholic: and the Smith Democrats are fighting Hoover because he is a Quaker, and believes in race and political equality —he believes in equal opportunities for all men without regard to race or faith.

The Democrats are playing both ends against the middle, trying to catch votes "a'gwine and a'comin". Their policy is to hate Negroes in the South to get white votes, and love him in the North to get black votes.

Senator Harris, et al, are preaching religious bigotry by saying, he would rather vote for a wet Catholic than a dry Quaker; that the Quakers are slackers, and too proud to fight; love Negroes, and assisted Negroes to escape from slavery by the Underground Railroad; that patriotic Catholics bared their breasts to shot and steel and helped the South to throw off Negro rule. Therefore, vote for Al Smith and perpetuate white supremacy by minority rule and disfranchsiement.

Dry men and Christian leaders, like the Candlers, are compromising their consciences, and voting for the whiskey ring and Tammany Hall's unsavory record.

In the South, senators, congressmen, et al., who were elected on dry platforms have violated their instructions and compromised their consciences under the sullied influence of Tammany Hall, and the charm of race hatred and political intolerance.

The South raised the race issue, and Al Smith the religious issue. The most serious charge the Democrats bring against Mr. Hoover is, he is a Quaker, and loves humanity; that he serves people not races; that he is too big to be little enough to hate men because of their color or faith.

But, the people will have their day, soon, November the sixth; and then they will settle this question for always. The people will elect Hoover November 6th, 1928. They will stamp out religious bigotry, race hatred and political intolerance. Men ought to love one another, and not hate. Every indication points to the election of Hoover and Curtis. The stars in their very course reflect the good tidings, and foreshadow four more years of good government and prosperity under Herbert Hoover.

The Negro is peacefully pursuing the even tenor of his way, knowing that in finality justice comes to all men, though it may be delayed, and not arrive until the bigots, race haters, and intolerants fall out among themselves.

To the election of Mr. Hoover, the Negro will contribute his quota, as he has done in every election, Raskob, money, and a few race traitors to the contrary notwithstanding.

Pass Christian, Miss., Tarpon
Saturday, November 3, 1928

NEGROES SHOULD CONSTITUTE REPUBLICAN PARTY

If we are to have a Republican party in Mississippi it is best for all concerned that such a party consist of the black and tan elements only—the Perry Howard; Mary Booze, Redman et als, remain in control of it. Let it be a real Republican party from a Southern standpoint of view—composed entirely of negroes; as with that kind of Republican party in Mississippi, we have had no trouble. It has been only when the negroes are led, or rather misled, by scalawag white men and encouraged by this stripe of humanity, to seek political and social equality, that trouble existed, and will exist again under like circumstances, leaving the poor, deluded negroes to bear the evil results that a recertain to follow, such misguidance, while those renegrades who lead them into such havoc, will make thier escapes, while escaping is good.

A large percentage of the best negroes of our state feel kindly towards the white people, who in turn feel kindly towards them. This class of negroes do not seek political or social equality. They ask only to be protected in their legal rights and given opportunity to earn an honest livelihood. They do not seek office nor social relationship. They do not advocate the marrying of their daughters into the white race, nor the white girls into their race. But under the guidance of renegrade white leaders the more ambitious and insolent of the colored race soon desire, for social equality to follow political partnership and when white men and white women aid and assist this class of negroes to rise politically, they should not feel offended if their creatures seeks the hand of their daughters in marriage and become their social equals.

The Perry Howard faction has been content to enjoy the honor following the distinction of being at the head of the Republican party in the State. No trouble or friction has arisen under his leadership, and so long as the negroes of the state wish to keep up an organization, it is best that all negroes stick together and let all white people, who are true to the memory of their forefathers and to their blood, stand together for white supremacy in this hour of peril.

TO COLORED VOTERS

Afro-American
11-3-28
Baltimore Md.

"NOW GIT!"

THIS IS THE PROOF OF THE ABOVE

WHAT HERBERT C. HOOVER SAID TO IRVINE LENROOT: "You tell Mr. Willis (T. J. Willis, a Mississippi Lily-White) and others representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated, the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We're going to have a white Republican party in the South."

WHAT OSCAR DEPRIEST SAID IN A PUBLIC STATEMENT: "My indictment is but a part of a nefarious scheme hatched through the erstwhile oligarchy of pseudo-Republicans, which waged a battle in the spring of 1927 against William Hale Thompson, when hundreds of men and women were promiscuously thrown in jail, all of which aimed at our leadership. The charges against me are unwarranted and without foundation, in fact, "I will fight this and any other attempt to destroy my leadership and embarrass my people. I will not withdraw as a regular Republican candidate for Congress, and I will not run from any fight put up against me. You can say for me that Oscar DePriest is no coward. "Recent events have brought the dethronement of such men as S. D. McGill, of Florida; Walter Cohen of Louisiana, Ben Davis, of Georgia; Bill McDonald, of Texas, Charles Calloway of Kansas City; Robert R. Church of Tennessee; Perry Howard of Mississippi, and now the same is attempted on me in Chicago."

By Authority Smith for President Colored League.

Opelika, Ala., News
Saturday, October 20, 1928

NEGRO RIDICULES SOUTHERN HOOVER SUPPORTERS

Never in the history of the country has the negro so forced himself to the front as in the present presidential campaign, and his self-assertiveness and critical attitude toward the Southern white men has been made bold by his reliance upon Herbert Hoover to place him in positions higher than any he has heretofore dreamed, in the event the Republican negro party succeeds at the polls in November.

In the present mix-up in the South, in which some heretofore loyal Democrats threaten to go over to the Republicans and aid the negro in making his equality dreams true, the members of that race in the north play no favorites. They are down on the Southern white man, no difference if those supporting Mr. Hoover are aiding him (the negro) to realize his aims. After reciting how the South purified its balot by eliminating the illiterate, vicious negro vote, The Pittsburg Courier, a negro newspaper, pays its respects to Southern white men and women, Smithites and Hooverites alike, as follows:

"But, if man proposes, God disposes. And, as Bobby Burns said, "the best laid plans of mice and men often go awry." If the Southern Nordics are anti-Negro, it must not be forgotten that they are also anti-Catholic and anti-liquor (insofar as the Negro is concerned.) They want no Catholics in charge of the government of the country and they will brook no interference with their efforts to keep liquor from the lower class, i.e., the Negroes. Hence the revulsion of our white friends in Dixie when Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York was nominated at Houston, shortly after a Negro resident of that town had been lynched.

"So the more frantical descendents of the defenders of the Lost Cause, rebelled against the choice of their party. They swore that they would not vote for Smith. Anti-Smith, Hoover Democrats began to make their voices heard. Rather than vote for Smith the Catholic and Wet, they would vote for Hoover, the Quaker and Dry.

"But alas! the revolutionists find their hands tied. The very regulations they adopted or permitted to be adopted to keep the Negroes away from the polls and out of the sectional political life, now rise up to hamper them! Tens of thousands of Southern whites who would fain cast a ballot for Mr. Hoover and thereby rebuke the Wet-Catholics, find their way to the ballot box barred. Because the political life in the South has centered around the Democratic primaries from which the black brethren were effectually barred by the aforesaid regulations and restrictions, only a handful of whites have ever participated in general elections or qualified to do so. Thousands of them have not paid their poll taxes or have lost their receipts if they have paid them. Thousands who cannot read or write but yearn to vote against Governor Smith will find the Democratic machine politicians as firmly lined up against them as they ever against the Negroes.

"So the anti-Smith Southern whites are up a tree. They are all dressed up with no place to go. The little Tammanies in each Southern district will not permit them to vote because they cannot meet the requirements. What irony. What a boomerang! And what a big laugh for the long-suffering Negro!"

Makes no difference if the statement in the negro paper about thousands of Southern white men being disqualified is untrue, nevertheless it shows the attitude of the negro in the North toward Southern white supporters of Mr. Hoover recruited from the democratic party.

Political - 1928.
Party Affiliation.

Republican.

LILYWHITE REPUBLICANS IN SADDLE AT KANSAS CITY CONVENTION, HUMILIATING NEGRO DELEGATES

(By Wire to The Eagle.)

Kansas City, Mo., June 14.—The historic G. O. P. in National convention assembled is being directed by General Jim Crow who sits enthroned and directs the proceedings of the party that was brought into existence on the question of human slavery and gained its power and prestige since its formation because it freed a race. Never since the enfranchisement of the Negro has he been treated with such scant consideration as was shown him at this convention. Segregated in the convention hall, not allowed to stop at any but jim-crow hotels, subjected to petty discriminations on all sides, the brother was indeed in a sad predicament. Even newspapermen like Claude Barnet, Melvin Chisum and others of the leaders in newspaperdom were given nothing but discriminatory treatment.

Of course Walter Cohen, the old warrior from Louisiana, was humiliated by having his delegates stolen from him, and Kuntz, the white cracker whom Cohen placed in position of trust in the G. O. P. in Louisiana, was allowed to be seated with his (Kuntz's) delegation.

It looks at the present time as though John R. Hawkins, president of the Prudential Bank of Washington, would second the nomination of Hoover whose nomination seems assured. This is done to try to mollify the colored men and women who are in attendance at the convention as many of them have been loud in their expressions of disgust at the treatment accorded them.

There was considerable amusement apparent when Senator Moses made his speech as permanent chairman of the convention. Moses grew red in the face when he spoke of the nullifying of the amendments and the 4,000,000 voters who were deprived of a vote in the solid South. It was recalled that this same Mr. Moses was in the United States Senate last January when Senator Swanson, of Virginia, laid all over the 14th and 15th amendments and the only Senator to attack the position of Senator Swanson was Senator William Cabel Bruce, of Maryland, a Democrat. Why did not the militant Senator Moses take the floor of the Senate and breathe vengeance and slaghter at that time? There is no enthusiasm on the part of the colored voter for the doings of this convention. They are grim in their acceptance of the shabby treatment accorded them and are almost ready for anything.

Old man Work, the gruff and discourteous Secretary of the Interior, Ogden Mills the bull dozer of the Treasury Department and others of the segregationists are sitting high in the councils of the Hoover outfit. They belong to the lily white stripe below the Mason and Dixon line. Hoover carrying such ballast with him through the campaign will find that there will be thousands of Negroes who will not vote for him because of his managers and counsellors.

A number of leading men and women of the race are here. Perry Howard, Benj. J. Davis, National committeemen from Mississippi and Georgia, respectively; Robert R. Church, Tennessee; J. Finley Wilson, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks; Charles H. Colburn, Wilmington, Del; Judge Edw. W. Henry, Philadelphia; Dr. S. D. Redmond, Jackson, Miss.; Edward P. Booze and Mrs. Booze of Mound Bayou, Miss.; Dr. John R. Hawkins and Dr. W. H. Jernigan, of Washington, D. C.; Walter Cohen, New Orleans, La.; Caesar Blake, Imperial Potentate of the Shrine and Col. E. L. Patton, of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. George S. Williams, Savannah, Ga., together with a host of others.

It was remarked by some of the leaders that four years ago Link Johnson, Charlie Cottrill, Gilchrist Stewart (the little Corporal), and William Clarence Matthews were at the Cleveland gathering of the G. O. P. Each one of these leaders ha sbeen called by the hand of the grim reaper. Each was a tower of strength and each is greatly missed.

After Hoover, what? The name of Al Smith is frequently heard in a favorable way by some of the dissatisfied colored Republicans.

normalcy by the appearance of their names in the newspaper under the sanction of merit; therefore let us not forget the medium of our glorification. At the regular meeting of Columbia Lodge on June 4, the election produced the following delegates to the Grand Lodge session at Chicago, August, 1928. Brothers Herbert E. Jones, John F. Ross, Alphonso E. Williams, Ulysses Creecy, Samuel Stewart, George B. Hunt, Stacy V. McNeil, Thomsa Shipley, Albert Lancaster, Charles Barker, William Joyce, Thomas Holland, William H. Davis, Aaron J. Gaskins, Ernest Johnson, Thomas L. Jones, Isaac Young, Alexander Jackson, Sylvester F. Epps, John F. Sneed, John M. Marshall, Edward Campbell, Benjamin F. Chase and Peter A. Lomax.

Daughter Sarah Turner expresses her hearty appreciation and gratitude for the cooperation and support of her many friends during the popularity contest, enabling her to emerge the winner.

GEORGIA'S G. O. P. DELEGATION JOKE

Votes Will Go for Hoover With No Chance of Secretary Carrying State in November.

BY SAM W. SMALL,
Special Staff Correspondent.

En Route to Kansas City, June 8. (Special.)—The Georgia interest in what may happen in the Kansas City convention is acute only as it may have national effects. What the Georgia "black-and-tan" republican delegates may do is of negligible consequence to the state at large. The republican outfit, for it is not a real party—in Georgia is dominated by the negroes. It is represented on the national committee by Ben J. Davis, negro editor, who succeeded Johnson, another negro, who was a federal office-holder in Washington.

The delegation that is figuring now at Kansas City is a largely hand-picked one. It was framed up by Ben Davis after he had been "sugared" by Rush Holland, the Hoover scout to round up Southern delegates, with some $2,500 in current California cash. The delegates, "having a lively hunger" "for favors to come," will be found sitting pretty on the foremost bandwagon. In fact, I feel pretty sure that Hoover will corral the last hoof of them.

In 1924 Coolidge got 30,300 votes in Georgia. The county returns seem to indicate that fully half of those votes were cast by white voters, but no one acquainted with the politics of the state can imagine that the Georgia delegation at Kansas City, led by Ben Davis, represents as many as a tenth of those white republican votes.

It is the spectacle of such a delegation as that which illustrates to thinking persons why it is not possible to set up in Georgia a reputable, formidable, fighting section of the national republican party.

It is the spectacle of such a delegation as that which illustrates to thinking persons why it is not possible to set up in Georgia a reputable, formidable, fighting section of the national republican party.

When the senate committee comes to Georgia and other southern states this summer to investigate the office-trading that goes on under republican administrations, the true farcical and corrupt practices of these irresponsible office-mongering southern republicans will be put into sworn records for the first time in many years. It will stifle the nostrils of honest people everywhere.

Adds to Hoover Boom.

The republican national committee, operating under strong administration influence, has been adding materially to the Hoover boom by deciding to seat almost all of his contested delegates. That series of actions has equally decimated the claims of the anti-Hoover allies.

In consequence, as my tabulated figures stand, Hoover is now where he must depend upon Secretary Mellon's Pennsylvania 'chain-gang" delegation to put him through; and with that he can go through on the first ballot. It is with Mellon as with Coolidge. No one can speak for him but himself, and no one can say now what is in the back of his head.

In the circumstances as they now appear, it would be the normal and wise thing, if Hoover's nomination is to be made, to have the operation over with as promptly as possible.

The party leaders on the administration side wish earnestly to avoid prolonged balloting and the chance of a dead-locked convention. They are determined to prevent any need for another midnight caucus and 2 a. m. hotel room compromise, as in Chicago in 1920. The Harding blunder, that bred a pack of public crimes, must not be repeated.

The party is debating at the crossroads and its responsible leaders know they must be as wise as serpents and as pacific as doves in deciding their course ahead.

A singular feature of the pending situation is the way so great a host of persons, even including convention delegates, are balancing from one foot to the other while waiting anxiously for "something more from Coolidge!" The president has been strangely unable to get the public to take his words at full value. He has spoken several times in terms that, in the case of any other man, would have been promptly accepted as final. It is his hope that he will not have to speak again, but if his "fool friends" make it necessary he is prepared to do so in "thoughts that breathe and words that burn" and leave them sitting stunned where he dumps them.

May Ballot Thursday.

It is quite probable that actual balloting will not begin before Thursday, as organization work will consume Tuesday, and committee work occupy most of Wednesday, with the possible discussion and adoption of the platform. At an rate, it is figured by foremost leaders that the candidates will have been named and the convention adjourned before Friday night.

These calculations, however, may all be smashed if the anti-Hoover allies get together and stick together in a strenuous fight over a farm relief plank for the paltform, and find themselves formidable enough to bar the nomination of Hoover and compel a compromise nomination. Those possibilities must await the swinging of the conventon into action.

Senator Norris is not the only republican leader who is protesting the power given to southern rottenborough delegates to determine the candidates which the real republicans elsewhere must support and elect. The logical injustice of the case is apparent, but a remedy is not so visibble. The democrats are in a like box and have been for sixty years—their nominations are always dictated by delegates from states that seldom, if ever, furnish any actual electoral votes. It is just as anomalous for the democratic delegates from Maine, Vermont, Connecticut and Pennsylvania to determine democratic nominations as it is for the non-productive republican chattel delegates from Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, and Mississippi to determine republican nominations.

SELECTION OF NEGRO LEADER OF PARAMOUNT INTEREST TO G. O. P. DELEGATES

Special to the Bee (ANP).

KANSAS CITY, Mo. June 13—(Convention Hall)—The national Republican convention opened this morning in the mammoth three-galleried oval-shaped convention hall holding ten thousand persons, with about half a hundred Negro delegates and scores of Negro visitors adding a touch of color to the subdued, almost sombre decorations which denoted that the organization had assembled for what seems certain to be a plan and business-like national convention. Senator Simon D. Fess, of Ohio, in delivering the keynote speech to the convention made the following racial reference: "The hold of the man who sits in the White House upon the people of America today without regard to sex, race, creed or color, is the result of an administration under which we have enjoyed the greatest era of prosperity and happiness ever given any nation." He continued, "We shall withdraw from Haiti as we have withdrawn from San Domingo as soon as we shall have finished the task of establishing a stable government and developing her resources so as to make the country self-sustaining."

The chief discussion among the colored contingent includes the treffic fight made on Ben Davis for committeeman by Joe Watson of Georgia, backed by Mrs. George Williams. It is reported that Davis has a majority of two votes. The basis of the fight is that there are only three colored jobs in the state—committeeman, secretary of state committee, and assistant secretary of state committee—and that Davis holds all of them. The action of Ben Davis and Mrs. George Williams, Georgia committeeman in giving proxies to white members of the national committee in Cohen contest, who thereupon voted against Cohen, defeating him by four votes was explained by Davis who said that he has no apology to make for the vote. He states that in Florida and Texas cases he voted because of the racial issue involved but that in the Cohen case, Cohen was opposed to Hoover for whom he was pledged and that the case was so poorly presented that it could not have won.

The selection of the Negro leader, the usual custom in presidential nomination years, is of paramount interest. Of the three most likely candidates for the Honor, J. Finley Wilson, Tom Fleming and Homer Phillips, Phillips seems to be the most universal choice. At the citizen's banquet given at the Street Hotel on Monday evening, C. H. Calloway, presiding, Bishop W. T. Vernor, Judge Henry of Philadelphia, Judge Wm. C. Hueston of Gary, and John R. Hawkins, were among those who spoke. Homer Phillips, Hoover leader in charge of headquarters here, the last speaker, declared that he wanted no job and made a plea for united action on racial program politically, received an ovation after his remarks.

LILY WHITE G. O. P. CONVENTION

From all reports received from the G. O. P. convention held at Kansas City, it is clearly evident as we go to press, that Herbert Hoover will be the next Republican nominee for the Presidency. It is also plain that the convention will leave many scars that must needs be healed before next November if that gentleman hopes to be elected. Not only are the Corn Belt farmres dissatisfied but rumblings heard from the convention indicate that the colored people are far from being satisfied with the treatment given their delegates. The lily-whites seemed to be in the saddle directing the affairs of the convention. Veteran Republican leaders like Walter Cohen were given short shrift when their contests were considered before the credentials committee and before the convention. No effort was made to prevent the segregation and the humiliation of the colored delegates who attended the convention. Colored newspapermen were not given any consideration at the press tables. The idea of proscription was carried to the utmost limit.

The Republican party now seems to be controlled by men bent on the humiliation of the colored members of that party. How long they will stand for this humiliation and general proscription no one knows. We do know, however, that the air is full of talk of revolt against the gang now in control of the G.O.P.

It will take more than soft words to turn away the wrath of the brother in this year of our Lord 1928.

Weather-Wise Politicians See Omens Portending Outcome of Republicans' Fight For Presidential Nomination

The Age's Political Expert Declares That Attitude of Leaders of Southern Delegates Is Indicative of What 'Bosses' Have In Mind

By RIENZI B. LEMUS

Washington, D. C.—"As Maine goes in September so goes the Nation in November." Such is an age-old political axiom. Hence, "Watch Maine in September." It is just as axiomatic that the way indicated by the Republican leader-politicians is the route of the Southern Negro delegations when voting time comes in the Republican National Convention. Therefore, to get on a line on whom the bosses want for President, or at least don't want, keep both eyes on leaders of Southern delegates.

It was so away back in 1896; it was so last December when the National Committee met here to select the city for the National Convention. As long as there was no official opposition to San Francisco the four Negro Members of the National Committee voted for the Metropolis by the Golden Gate. But the moment that Chairman Butler decided on Kansas City, all of the Negro committee members, except Mrs. Booze, Mississippi, swung to and stuck to the City on the Kaw.

Showing The Way.

In the yesteryear of '96 the people wanted Thomas B. Reed to get the nomination. The politicians decided on McKinley. The Negroes were for McKinley! In 1908, President Roosevelt, firmly in the saddle, determined on Taft as his legatee. Frank Hitchcock, subsequently Taft's Postmaster, scoured the woods of "Bam" on Taft's account. The Negroes were for Taft. He got the nomination and election.

When 1912 rolled around, the "Emperor Theodore" felt the dynastic urge and decided to take back the throne. He had defied the "old gods." Reckoning without his hosts—of down home—he raved. But the hosts were with the "old gods" and Taft; so Taft got the place—and the air, in November. In 1920 the Negroes were with the "old gods," whose beneficence was shed upon the late lamented Harding, and in 1924 they stuck to the "old gods" and Coolidge—after the "Senatorial cabal" had been sidetracked by overnight shift of the National Convention from Chicago to Cleveland.

A Hectic Campaign.

Perhaps, of all pre-Presidential campaigns, this of 1928 is the most hectic for the sign seekers; and the mysterious Coolidge has been as tight on showing the brothers a sign as were the Canadian priests on the callous demands of Sir Gilbert Parker's "Charlie Steele." This, in all probability accounts for the admission of doubt of their ability to deliver delegates to Hoover after taking his money, made to the Senate campaign-expense investigating committee by National Committeemen Howard of Mississippi and Davis of Georgia.

As late as Christmas of last year and as early as February of this year, National Committeeman Perry Howard, Mississippi, was giving interviews to the daily press which were all Coolidge—Coolidge must be drafted. Then he swung over to Hoover. And he testified that he has received over $4,000 from the Hoover people, with another thousand still due, to carry on among his delegates for the cause of the Commerce Secretary.

But in March, subsequent to receipt of some of the money, Mr. Howard was quoted in the Washington Post as accusing the Hoover people of financing the lily-white fight to unhorse him. And he is doubtful of his ability to deliver for Hoover at Kansas City. He has evidently got the sign; the "old gods" want none o' Hoover."

Georgia Is Doubtful.

National Committeeman Ben J. Davis succeeded to the mantle of the late Henry Lincoln Johnson who died in 1925. Until his recent appearance before the Senate "snoopers" an since January Mr. Davis has been "sure Hoover." He testified to the "snoopers" that he got $2,200 from the Hoover folks, but is threatened with a revolt among his delegates who accuse him of getting money and not "whacking" up among them, Consequently, Mr. Davis doesn't seem to think he can deliver for Hoover at Kansas City—the "old gods" want none of the Commerce Secretary.

In 1908, when there was a rush for arriving delegations at the Chicago Convention, the late Henry Lincoln Johnson took the Georgia delegation there "intact" on a special train. The train was in a wreck just out of Cincinnati, and many of the delegates required hospitalization upon arrival at Chicago. Of course, they were hospitaled together. This kept away delegate hustlers for other candidates for the nomination for President. And, by a peculiar coincidence, the only Georgian who voted for Roosevelt was the present National Committeeman, Mr. Davis. Of course, that was twenty years ago. Mr. Johnson got the sign early. Evidently Mr. Davis was late getting it twenty years afterwards.

So from this wobbling of the Southern leaders those who bet get a good tip, namely, that Hoover is not the darling of the "old gods." It is believed by many that if and when a deadlock comes the politicians will spring Coolidge

Political - 1928.
Party Affiliation.

ME AND MY SHADOW

Hoover asked by Colored Baltimore Leader where he stands on K. K. K.

Dr. Rhetta, leading Colored physician, who questions Hoover, has the support of all the Colored organizations in Baltimore to represent the Colored People on the City School Board.

Republican

NEGRO PUTS HOOVER ON GRILL ON KLAN

Dr. B. M. Rhetta Says In Letter His Race Desires Question Settled

WANTS SILENCE BROKEN

Physician Asserts Colored People Cannot Go to Polls "Arm in Arm" With Foes

Declaring Negroes cannot go to the polls "arm in arm with the Ku Klux Klan," Dr. B. M. Rhetta, Negro physician of Baltimore, has addressed an open letter to Herbert Hoover, calling on him to take a definite stand upon the klan question.

Dr. Rhetta is president of the Alumni Association of Howard Unifersity, president of the board of trustees of the Washington Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a member of the present grand jury and was recently indorsed for membership on the Board of School Commissioners.

Asks Statement of Hoover

In his letter to Mr. Hoover he said:

"We have voted the Republican ticket for all of these many years, but before we decide how our ballots shall be cast on November 6 we call upon Mr. Herbert Hoover to definitely take a stand with reference to the Ku Klux Klan."

"It has been very clearly and persistently stated that Mr. Hoover has gone out for and gotten the backing and support of this notorious organization. In the face of all this Mr. Hoover has remained silent. We most sincerely hope that Mr. Hoover will neither by silence nor by expression indorse this klan support, for we cannot go to the polls arm in arm with the K. K. K."

After touching briefly on the history and purpose of the klan, Dr. Rhetta continues:

"The whole record of the klan is one of the lowest type of hatred. In the beginning it was hatred of Negroes. It has since broadened its scope to hatred of Jews, Catholics and all foreign-born people. Regardless of all else, we definitely announce that we cannot go to the polls to vote for anyone who is trading with the K. K. K.

"Experience shows that a Democrat will do as much, or as little, for our people as a Republican, or he will enforce as much, or as little, of the Eighteenth Amendment. Experience flattens all of such issues and it is this same experience, going back to the days of slavery, that makes it impossible for us to work arm in arm with the klan."

"Before deciding how our vote shall be cast on the 6th of November, we call upon Mr. Hoover to break his silence on this purported klan support of his candidacy."

HOOVER IS ATTACKED

Mr. Herbert Hoover's acceptance of support from the Ku Klux Klan and his campaign in the South to make the party lily white leave us no other alternative. We are leaving before we are kicked out.

Mr. Hoover, without waiting for election, has eliminated every Negro leader of the party in the Southern States: Mr. Benjamin Davis, Georgia; Mr. Perry Howard, Mississippi; Mr. Emil Kuntz, Louisiana, and Mr. Robert Church, Tennessee, have been removed from office or limited in authority.

In Chicago, Mr. Oscar DePriest, only Republican candidate for Congress in the nation, was indicted by a grand jury in the final fifteen minutes of its term, after Mr. DePriest had been given his choice of indictment or quitting the campaign.

Race politicians everywhere have felt Mr. Hoover's blighting presence. Even the National Colored Advisory Committee in its magnificent Barr Building headquarters is a sham and an illusion. Mr. John R. Hawkins is head in name only. Mr. Walter Brown, a white man, was the first head, and the present director is Mr. Ray Benjamin, also a white person.

If Mr. Hoover is elected the Negro as a political factor fades from the picture. Mr. Hoover has staked his future on his ability to kick the Negro out of the party and put in his place lily white dry recruits from the South.

That is his contribution to the history of the Republican party and November 6th will tell if he can get away with it.

The nation has had seven and a half years of G. O. P. rule. Republican majorities dominate Congress. Every thinkable proscription which has ever obtained in Federal departments obtains today, even to segregation and the requirement of photographs on civil service applications. Mr. Hoover promises to carry out Mr. Coolidge's policies.

If there is any hope of change and improvement the nation must turn to Governor Smith, three times chief magistrate of polygot New York, a state where all races are thrown into a melting pot, where color isn't a first consideration.

Governor Smith's ability to put national issues in language which the man on the street can understand contrasts solidly with Mr. Hoover's silence or his moments of eloquent generalities.

New York's Governor is a crusader like Theodore Roosevelt and Grover Cleveland, the former a Republican, the latter a Democrat, both one-time Governors of New York, both eminent Presidents.

Mr. Roosevelt disregarded conventions and asked Mr. Booker T. Washington to lunch. Cleveland disregarded the views of Dixie and appointed C. H. J. Taylor, a Minister to Bolivia. No colored person had ever before been appointed as United States representative abroad except to Haiti and Liberia. The Senate turned down Cleveland's nomination, but later confirmed Taylor as Register of the Treasury, to which the President nominated him.

It's because the AFRO sees in Governor Smith a worthy successor to Cleveland and Roosevelt that it advocates his election November 6.

More than all of this, Governor Smith is conducting a campaign to make the country safe for tolerance. If a Catholic can be President, perhaps a Jew may also aspire, and a Negro may at least be a full-fledged citizen.

Backed La Follette in 1924

In 1924 the Afro supported the Presidential candidacy of La Follette, progressive. In 1920 and in all previous national elections it supported the Republican nominee.

MRS. BOOZE FIGURES IN CONTEST

Question of Whether Hoover Danced with Republican Committee Woman Here Raised

DENIES CHARGE

JACKSON, Miss.—The question whether Herbert Hoover, Republican Presidential candidate, danced with Mrs. Mary C. Booze, National Republican Committeewoman from this state while she was attending a political meeting in Washington, D.C., was raised by Governor Theodore Bilbo in a speech here this week.

The Republicans stepped into the political trap when George Akerson, assistant to Mr. Hoover, in a telegram to the governor declared that the charge was the most indecent of the campaign.

Must 'Fess Up

Bilbo in another telegram to Mr. Hoover says the following:

"Now, I do not desire to be unfair to you in the slightest degree, but I want to ask you if you think it would be offensive to you or indecent, infamous or disgraceful for you to come in contact with or dance with a woman of the Negro race?

"If, according to your ideas of social equality, you do not think it indecent to have it said of you that you danced with Mary Booze, then why am I being denounced for repeating the story that you had done so?"

Mrs. Booze Speaks

Mrs. Booze makes the following statement:

"As for the statement that I danced with Mr. Hoover, that is ridiculous. As a matter of fact, I am upwards of 50 years of age, a consistent member of the Methodist church and do not dance. I have no idea whether Mr. Hoover dances or not."

LILY WHITES IN MISSISSIPPI IN SYMPATHY WITH HOOVER

Hattiesburg, Miss., Oct. 24.—Herbert C. Hoover is entirely sympathetic with the South on the race question and in full accord with the policy to eliminate all Negroes from leadership, asserts T. J. Willis, one of the leading exponents of lily-whiteism.

In support of this claim, Willis says that at the Kansas City convention former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin, gave him the following message from the Republican Presidential nominee:

"You tell Mr. Willis and others representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated, the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We are going to have a white Republican party in the South."

Here is Willis' version of what happened at Kansas City with Mr. Hoover in the background: "When Perry Howard and his delegates arrived in Kansas City they were lined up with Mr. Butler of Massachusetts and Hilles of New York, who were leaders in the party opposing the nomination of Mr. Hoover. Butler controlled the entire delegation from his State, while Hilles had half of New York's votes in his pocket; but Perry Howard and his gang had not been seated and we were up there to fight the recognition and prepared to cast our full strength for Hoover.

"Mr. Hoover stayed in his office at Washington, being personally represented in Kansas City by former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin. Learning of the fight between white and black factions of the party from Southern States, Hoover was apprised of the fact by a personal friend.

"Hoover is entirely in sympathy with the South on the race question, since he has lived in California where the Orient has caused so much embarrassment. He understands the situation down here. He called Mr. Lenroot in Kansas City and told him to bring utmost pressure to bear on the credential committee for the recognition and seating of the white delegates from the Southern States.

"But Lenroot, his personal manager at the convention, advised against the fight, saying that the nomination was already assured in spite of the Butler-Hilles opposition, and if the race issue were forced at that time it would result in unnecessary embarrassments.

"This was Hoover's answer: 'In that case you tell Mr. Willis and others representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated, the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We are going to have a white Republican party in the South.'

"And that is exactly what has happened. Here is Mississippi Perry Howard and his gang are the same as out. He and his leaders have been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury and the white faction's Presidential electors are to be on the ballot. That means that after Nov. 6 the Negro faction here will be repudiated by the Republicans themselves in this State. It will mean that party affairs will have passed into the hands of reputable white men.

"When Mrs. Willebrandt heard from the lips of Lamont Rowland and other Southern men * * * that the situation described actually existed, she said she would immediately begin prosecution of Howard. I could not tell that when I came back from the convention, for it was a Department of Justice secret that, if recounted, would have made me liable to the charge of contempt of court.

"All this background is given to prove that the Republican party today has changed its attitude. It believes that there are a large number of citizens in the South who would vote the Republican ticket if the party in their section is controlled by white men, and the party now intends to give them that privilege.

"Regeneration of the Republican party South of the Mason-Dixon line is one of the most significant phases of the current Republican election," according to Willis.

Editorial in Daily Discusses Splitting of Negro Politics

The following editorial from The Kansas City Journal-Post is a comment on the efforts of both parties in bidding for the Negro vote in the coming election:

FIGHT FOR NEGRO VOTES

A study of the Negro press reveals that there is a determined effort to divide the votes of the Negroes in states where they are allowed to vote and have their votes counted, between the parties in this campaign.

The nomination of Joseph McLeMore, a Negro, as democratic candidate for congress from the Twelfth district of Missouri, all within the city of St. Louis, is being used both there and in the Negro centers in doubtful states to persuade the Negroes that the democratic party has taken up their cause. In addition to this, the Negro press devotes much space to the arrest of several prominent Negroes on charges of sale of patronage in southern states and to the indictment of DePriest, the Negro republican nominee for congress in the old Madden district of Chicago, on charges of election frauds in connection with the last primary. Fears of Ku Kluxers are also being played upon. In addition to these issues, an active drive is on among such of the Negroes as are opposed to prohibition.

The efforts to show special friendliness for Negroes on the part of Governor Smith have received a setback, through the issue of a formal statement by the democratic national committee, evidently designed to help hold the democratic party line unwavering in the Solid South. The apparent purpose of the denial was to dispose of a story that Governor Smith once had a Negro stenographer. The denial went much further, however. It said:

"Governor Smith does not have, and never has had, a Negro stenographer, and in the employment of Negroes by the state of New York under his administration this has been done only to fill such jobs as they are given in the south, to wit: porters, janitors, charwomen, etc."

The Crisis, a Negro paper of wide circulation, says the statement is true; that the governor has twice vetoed bills that would have given Negroes a magistrate of their own race in their own town, Harlem; that he has never given a Negro a major position; that he has seldom been willing to receive a Negro delegation and that it is doubtful if he has personally met a half dozen of the 150,000 Negroes of his state all his career.

DIRE CONSEQUENCES FEARED.

Shaw, Miss.

To The Commercial Appeal:

Your editorial anent the "Dyer bill" last week was very fine indeed. You made it plain that Mr. Hoover would be in duty bound to sign said bill if passed, for the Republican platform is pledged to favor passage of the bill. Now if this bill is made a law (if Mr. Hoover is elected) we may expect dire consequences here in our southland. The Republicans must have had things "cut and dried" as regards this bill, for their platform pledges its passage. So with Republican success we may look for the bill to become law. Then what about the force bill? This, too, bids fair to become law. The cutting down of our representation in Congress is another piece of deviltry designed to strip our electorate and put it on a par with the "Figi Islanders." Ah! Mr. Two-by-four Bolter, are you going to abet these three pieces of deviltry above mentioned, that are solely aimed at our own dear southland?

We now have the best chance ever to put our party in power in a few days. If we do not go over the top this time, we won't have another chance in 100 years to come. Let us put our beloved Joe Robinson over the top, and our own beloved Pat Harrison, too. Also, other potential stalwarts of our own southland. Ah, Mr. Bolter, on Nov. 6 remember the Dyer bill, the force bill, the cutting down of our representation in Congress. If Governor Smith is elected, he would rather have his right arm severed than push these things on our southland. Al's heart and soul are for our southland, as well as for the north, east and west. Think well over it, Mr. Bolter, and support our party following the lead of our own beloved John Sharp Williams and all of our stalwarts. "Let's go." Stand by "The Old Ship"—Democracy.

JOSEPH CINEGARER.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

"WHATEVER IS, IS RIGHT"

ELECTION IS OVER and Mr. Hoover has won overwhelmingly.

This paper supported Governor Smith because we felt his election would be the best thing for the Negro and the Nation.

While Working for Mr. Smith we carried a prayer in our heart, always, for the best interests of the Nation and the Negro. If Mr. Hoover's election is the answer to that prayer, we are satisfied. We are not saying our prayer was answered—but he has been elected and we yield to the majority.

Frankly we tremble for our Race—we hope our fears are unfounded.

EAGLE

Dothan, Ala

OCT 13 1928

THE "ANTI-SMITH CAMPAIGN BOOK"

I.

There are being circulated by the hundreds in Dothan and this section pamphlets bearing the name, "Anti-Smith Democratic Campaign Book."

Hugh Locke of Birmingham, who was removed from the State Democratic Executive Committee for the excellent reason that he turned Republican, is responsible for the printing and distribution of these pamphlets.

From cover to cover they reek with the vilest slander that has ever been directed against a national political figure. This pamphlet is not a "campaign book." It is merely the re-hashed accumulation of lies and appeals to prejudice that have been going the rounds since this campaign opened, and the stench from it is sickening to the nostrils of fair-minded and informed men.

Tammany is one of the chief cries of the pamphlet. Tammany is nothing more than a political organization, and as it is over one hundred years old it must have more good points than bad, or it could not have survived. All political organizations have sinned at one time or another, and doubtless Tammany has been ruled by corrupt politicians in the past. But one thing intelligent men would like to know is this: Why are the Republicans forced to go back twenty-five years to uncover some of Tammany's sins? And what have they to say about the recent set of thieves in Harding's administration? What about the notorious Ohio Gang? During its entire existence Tammany could not possibly have committed the crimes that have been committed by crooked Republicans in the last eight years.

II.

The pamphlet charges that Smith believes in social equality of the Negro, and points out that white and black children are indiscriminately mixed in the public schools of New York. But Hugh Locke neglects to add that whites and blacks attended the same schools in New York when Grover Cleveland was governor of the State; whites and blacks attended the same schools in New Jersey when Woodrow Wilson was governor; in Ohio when James Cox was governor, and that today they attend the same schools in Iowa, where Hoover was born and in California where he now lives. Negroes and whites attend the same schools, eat in the same restaurants, sleep in the same hotels, ride in the same railroad coaches and live in the same residential districts in every State in the Union that is normally Republican. The governors of these States are not held responsible, no more than the Democrats held Cox and Wilson responsible for these conditions in Ohio and in New Jersey when they ran for the Presidency.

III.

What does Ben Davis, Negro editor of the Atlanta Independent, think of Smith's attitude toward the Negro? The readers of The Eagle know what he thinks, for we have printed his editorials.

What does W. E. Du Bois, Negro editor of The Crisis, a Negro monthly, think of Smith's attitude toward the Negro? Let him say for himself. Here is part of an article he wrote last week for The Nation:

> A number of enthusiastic colored folk and friends of colored people put before the advisers of Governor Smith several possible statements which he might make to show that at least he was not an enemy of the American Negro. He refused to say a single word. He refused to let even indirectly anything go out from his headquarters which should seem to represent him as friendly to black men. Negro Democratic headquarters were indeed established but they were not allowed to have offices in the regular Democratic headquarters but were given a small "Jim Crow" annex where they exist without real authority, without explicit recognition, and without the slightest initiative.
>
> On the other hand, explicit and repeated anti-Negro propaganda is being sent out by Democratic headquarters. When the Klan accused Governor Smith of having as his private stenographer "a Negro wench," Democratic headquarters at Washington on September 8 sent out the following release:
>
> > Governor Smith does not have, and never has had, a Negro stenographer, and in the employment of Negroes by the State of New York under his administration this has been done only to fill such jobs as they are given in the South, to-wit: porters, janitors, charwomen, etc.

The interesting thing about this statement is that it is perfectly true. In all of Governor Smith's long career, he has sedulously avoided recognizing Negroes in any way. He has twice vetoed bills which would have given a colored magistrate to Harlem. He has never given a Negro any major appointment. He has seldom been willing to receive a Negro delegation and it is doubtful if he has met personally in all his career a half-dozen of the 150,000 Negroes of his State.

IV.

Hugh Locke further states in his pamphlet of lies that "Gov. Smith is the greatest hand to appoint Negroes that the United States has ever produced."

During his entire four terms as Governor of New York, Smith has appointed only one Negro to office. He was given a job as messenger boy at the Capitol because of his heroism in the world war. Smith has appointed no other Negroes to office, and Locke knows it.

The pamphlet reprints the Associated Press dispatch of Sept. 6, which stated that Jack Johnson would tour the South for Smith. Naturally, the pamphlet did not add that John J. Raskob informed Johnson his services were not needed, and that Johnson got mad and is now a strong Hoover man. However, that is the fact. We wonder if Locke has heard about it? But no strong imagination is required to imagine that he has.

It is indeed the rottenest, dirtiest, filthiest campaign that has ever been waged against a good man; a man whose record is the most constructive and successful of any governor of any State in the Union.

Smith is being persecuted by bigots who do not like his religious beliefs and who are cloaking their hatred behind the silly cries of "Tammany," and "Negro-Lover."

It is a shameful thing. Men cannot descend much lower.

Birmingham Courier

M. E. BISHOP SPEAKS UP FOR G. O. P.

9/22/28

Talk Of Negro Going Democratic More Imaginary Than Real," Says Bishop C. H. Phillips.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.—"All this talk of the Negro going Democratic is more imaginary than real There is not enough real disaffection among Negro Republicans to be noticed."

This is the opinion of Bishop C. H. Phillips of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. Bishop Phillips stopped in Washington while en route to his home at Cleveland, O., after holding conferences in Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia and three states of the southwest. The C. M. E. Church has a membership of 350,000.

"Among all the groups of our people with which I have had contact," Bishop Phillips continued, "the Hoover sentiment predominates. I do not hesitate to predict a 75 per cent vote for the Hoover-Curtis ticket."

"Negroes are naturally Republicans unless some one has tampered with them. Careful thinking colored men and women realize that if Smith is elected, his actions in the White House will be influenced by Southern Democratic sentiment of which they already know too much. Too, they know that if Smith should want to do something for the Negro, he would naturally give first consideration to the attitude of his party."

Harlem Elects 3 G. O. P. to Assembly

Horace W. Palmer Defeats Democrat for State Senate.

All candidates on the Republican ticket polled a heavy vote in the Negro districts of Harlem and succeeded in re-electing Abraham Grenthal in the Ninteenth, John Remer in the Twenty-first and Oscar J. Smith in the Twenty-second.

In addition to electing the four Assemblymen, Horace W. Palmer, Republican, defeated A. Spencer Feld, the present Democratic state senator in the Twentieth District.

E. A. Johnson, candidate for Congress, made a brilliant run in the Twenty-first Congressional District, but early this morning his election was still in doubt. The vote then stood as follows: Weller, 26,321; Johnson, 22,313.

The Vote in the 13th A. D.

Full returns from the Fourteenth through the Nineteenth Election Districts of the Thirteenth Assembly District showed the following results in the votes cast for the President and Governor: Hoover, 9,085; Smith, 11,653; Roosevelt, 12,536; Ottinger, 8,361.

With the exreption of the Sixteenth Election District of this same Assembly District, from which the returns could not be gotten last night, the votes were cast as follows: Weller, 7,619; Johnson, 4,534; O'Brien, 11,524; Murphy, 7,987; Nugent, 11,643; Schoonmaker, 7,955.

The Vote in the 19th A. D.

In the Nineteenth Assembly District there are twenty-eight election districts, Nos. 8 through 28 being entirely Negro voters.

The vote cast and counted in all but five of the election districts for President and Governor follows: Hoover, 6,948; Smith, 5,507; Ottinger, 6,406; Roosevelt, 4,966.

On the other hand, although at 11:45 P. M. 18 of the 28 election districts had not reported on E. A. Johnson yet, his vote in ten of the election districts showed a total of 3,561 as against Weller's 1,385.

In this Assembly District Murphy received 4,681 votes; O'Brien, without a report from the Eighth Election District, 4,018; Grenthal, with the exception of the vote from the Eighth Election District, 8,166; Isaacs, 5,762.

The Vote in the 21st A. D.

It must be noted that in the Twenty-first Assembly District the white voters were loyal to Johnson giving him a larger vote than that gven to any other candidate on the ticket.

Tabulation of the total votes in this district follows: Hoover, 11,004; Smith, 7,974; Roosevelt, 8,205; Ottinger, 10,662; Johnson, 11,532; Weller, 7,162; Reamer, 10,341; Grossman, 7,783; Palmer, 10,588; Feld 7,713.

In the Twenty-ninth Election District few whites voted for Hoover and Weller, while in the Sixth Election district, which is a Negro district, the same voting trend existed

The Vote in the 22d A. D.

In the Twenty-second Assembly District Smith polled 12,692 votes; Hover, 9,916; Ottinger, 10,227; Roosevelt, 11,846; Houghton, 9,431; Copeland, 1,826; E. A. Johnson 7,147; Weller, 11,540.

This district elected Oscar J Smith, Republican, to the Assembly giving his Democratic opponent Joseph A. Gavagan, only 2,827 votes. A. Spencer Feld, Democratic candidate for State Senator, received 11,965 votes while his opponent, Horace W. Palmer, received 9,303 votes.

GOOSE NECKED BILL INSISTS HOOVER SPEAK

Texas G. O. P. Leader Says His Aides In South Are K. K. K. And Lily Whites

OPEN LETTER SENT TO JOHN HAWKINS

Ku Klux Klan Will Rule If Hoover Wins Says McDonald

FORT WORTH, TEXAS. —Hoover must be defeated or the Ku Klux bootleggers, lily whites, segregators, perjurers, and grafters will rule the nation.

This is the view of William H (Goose Necked Bill) McDonald, president of the Fraernal Bank & Trust Co., here, and a life-long G. O. P. leader in this state. McDonald was a member of the Texas delegation which was ousted by Hoover at Kansas City, in favor of the lily-whites.

McDonald's letter was addressed to John R. Hawkins, chairman of the National Republican Jim-Crow Committee.

It said:

What They Say

"They tell us that if Hoover is defeated and Al Smith is elected President, the Pope of Rome and Tammany Hall will run the Nation and the Constitution of the United States will be nullified.

"These questions are smoke screens. They are political propaganda and a hallucination of evil minded persons

Without Warning

Without any warning the roof collapsed and let its load of humanity down among lawn mowers and parts of dismantled mowers.

While none of the people on the shed were seriously injured hundreds of lives were endangred when the commotion caused a panic and stampede on the roof of the shower bath houses surrounding the pool, where 800 people had gathered to witness the ceremonies.

The part of the roof wihch caved in covered a shed some 75 feet long by 12 feet wide. It was built of 3-4 inch planks supported by 2 by 4 beams and covered with tar paper.

Considerable damage to hedges, bushes and flowers surrounding the pool was also done by attempts of the large crowd to get near enough to see the baptizing.

Parade Preceeds

The baptizing was preceeded by a monster parade in which around 700 persons formed at the tent on Baker street, where the revival services had been held, and marched out Baker, to Druid Hill avenue, thence to Whitelock through McCulloh, Brooks Lane and Madison avenue to the park entrance. By the time the procession reached the park, it had increased to 3,000.

Marse S. Calloway led the parade in his automobile carrying a purple banner with the words "Shiloh Baptist Church." Then followed three thousand men, woemn and children singing "Lead Me to the Water to be Baptized."

Candidates for baptism brought up the rear. The men wore black gowns while the women and children wore white cross caps and hats. Handkerchiefs, linen and bath towels served as head coverings. The youngest candidate seemed to be 10 years of age while the oldest was around 60.

Police Call

By the time the procession had reached the pool, the crowd had become so congested that 20 police present were unable to open a lane through which the converts and officials could reach the pool. Reserves were called out from the Northern Police station before order was restored and a 16-minute sermon was preached by the Rev. C. P. Dixon. Every inch of available space inside the pool inclosure was packed and the crowd around the place extended back to the children's playground.

Many Climbed Trees

Following the short sermon, the Rev. W. W. Allen and Rev. C. P. Dixon began the rites of baptizing, the Rev. Mr. Allen emersing the men while the women were emersed by the evangelist.

Some Faint

Amid crys af "amen" and massed singing 86 men and 36 women were baptized. Several times during the at the stime it prohibits Negro labor of the United States from going into Mexico. Will he continue or void all such agreements if elected President? What Negro knows Mr. Hoover's mind upon this question? And don't you thing Negroes should know before they vote to continue the Coolidge policies? We know know where Slemp and Creager stand on this agreement, but where does Mr. Hoover stand?

Segregation

"5.—Segregation of Government employees is reprehensible, shocking to the righteous judgment of a great Nation and contrary to the policies of a just Government. The Departments at Washington, D. C., are honey-combed and dominated with the humiliating and degrading policy of separating Government employees during hours of labor, because of color. Will Mr. Hoover continue this policy or void it, if elected President? Do you know, and as our leader, don't you think you ought to tell us before you advise us to vote for Mr. Hoover? We know where Slemp and Creager stand on this question. Does Hoover agree with them?

Jim-Crow Cars

"6.—We recognize the fact that the Inter-State Commerce Commission is a potent factor in our government, clothed with power to control the common Rail Road carriers of our Country. If elected President, will Mr. Hoover, throug.. this powerful Governmental Agency, urge that all common carriers provide and render equal service, commensurate with the tariff charged to black men and women who must sometimes use these carriers? Will the Negro leaders who are abusing all of us who have the courage to stand up and ask questions, s ak out and tell us what Mr Hoover has told them he would do and how he would approach these questions if elected? We want to know.

Peonage

"7.—Peonage is a species of slavery outlawed by the Constitution and statute laws of the land, whether brought about because of debts, mutual obligations, or trumped up charges of crime. It cannot be defended in morals, equity of law. Will Mr. Hoover, if elected President, use the Department of Justice to stamp out peonage wherever it may now exist in the United States. Don't you think that as a leader you ought to inform us with respect to Mr. Hoover's stand on this question?

Lynching

"8.—Lynching is a crime for which no excuse or justificaton man be advanced. The laws of all the States provide ample punishment for all persons who possess moronic dispositions. Will Mr. Hoover, if elected President, sanction legislation to the end that the wicked practice of lynching, burning, and mobbing of human beings be stopped? Who knows the mind of Mr. Hoover on this question? And is it impertinent to seek information with regards to his position and what governmental policies affecting our rights as citizens will be put in operation, if he is elected President?

Paramount Issues

I know that the issue of farm relief and prohibition are featured and stressed in this campaign as the leading issues, but over and above these issues, like Mt. Washington towers over other mountains, is the issue of political equality, human rights and liberties, the protection before the law, of every American Citizen, black and white alike. Witty statements, like "the Republican Party is the ship: all else is the sea," ridicule, and reciting the records of the records of the Republican Party from 1856 to 1876, will not dovetail with the record of the Republican Party from 1920 to 1928. Millions of your oppressed race will bless the day that you were appointed to lead them, if you shoulder the task of having Mr. Hoover define his stand upon these vital questions."

Jersey man
Morristown
N. J.

OCT 12 1928

COLORED VOTERS REGISTER HERE

Inter-City Hoover Club Is Active

Having enrolled a large majority of the colored voters in its membership, the Inter-City Hoover Club with headquarters at 22 Spring street, is planning to take an active part in the campaign from now until the polls close on election day. The registration book of the club has been open for several weeks and at the present time most of the colored voters, it is said, have added their signatures to it and have indicated that they will support the Republican ticket from Mr. Hoover for President to the last candidate on the list.

The club's rooms are open daily from eight in the morning until ten o'clock at night for the convenience of the public. Posters, buttons, auto tags and other Republican material have been obtained and being distributed from the club.

R. W. Hill of Salem street, Dover is president of the organization with Harry McDuffy of Evergreen avenue, as secretary and J. Irving Stryker as treasurer.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

RECORD
COLUMBIA, S. C.

NOV 4 1928

Republican

THE "ONE-QUART-CANNON" EXPLODES

Since the "Anti-Al Smith Democratic Legion" made its first sorry appearance in several South Carolina counties as "Hoover Democratic clubs," it has never been able to command the service of a reputable spokesman or of any but the most obscure speakers. At its first public performance in the Richland county court-house last August, the star performer was one Beckett, from Beaufort county, who had cast off his thin Democratic veneer to become one of Joe Tolbert's Republican electors. His Republican antecedents being completely exposed on that occasion by The Record, he ceased to be headlined by the Hoovercrats.

Since then, the "great men" of the Republican movement in South Carolina have been Adams, the political Klansman, who came to Columbia seeking a new field for his ambitions, after having been decisively defeated in Charleston in his Klan-supported race for Congress; and Hisey, of Charleston, Secretary of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, who has succeeded, in spite of the State Councilor of the Order, in definitely tying the Junior Order up with the Klan and the Anti-Catholic party in this State. These are the ornaments of the Hoovercratic party in this commonwealth.

But, at last, in the waning days of this campaign, these diligent workers in the Republican vineyard succeeded in hooking one of the "big noises" of the Republican party in the person of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the legislative board of the Republican Anti-Saloon League, and of the advisory council of the Republican Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, of the Methodist Church, North. Picture, if you can, against the gaudy background of "The Little Green House in K. Street," a Republican board of temperance and public morals.

Our good Methodist friends, of whom we have many, will accept our assurance that, in what we say about James Cannon, Jr., we employ the title of bishop merely to identify him, and not to connect him with their church. We never think of him as a churchman; since the days of long ago when earned he the well merited contempt of every reputable newspaper man in Virginia as "One-Quart-Cannon,". we have never thought of him as anything higher than an Anti- Saloon League politician.

Well, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., spoke Friday night in the klavern of the Ku Klux Klan, under the auspices of the Republican organization that masquerades in the name of the "Anti-Al Smith Democratic Legion," which is merely a name behind which the Ku Klux Klan, and certain elements in the Junior Order, led by Hisey and a Protestant preacher in Spartanburg county, conceal their bigotry. We wish the Junior Order well of its alliance with the Klan. We predict, after this campaign is over, whatever may be the result, the Junior Order will wish it had never laid down in the same bed with the Klan.

James Cannon, Jr., "One-Quart-Cannon," spoke in the Klavern of the Ku Klux Klan last Friday night, to an audience of about two hundred and fifty persons, many of them Al Smith Democrats who went to see just what sort of a phenomenon this man is who has been denounced time and again, in the past few weeks, by that eminent Virginian, Senator Carter Glass. He was introduced by Ben Adams, the Klansman; he was not introduced by any prominent member of the Methodist church. Glory be for that! We fancy he is the first bishop ever to visit Columbia whose church ignored him and left all the honors of entertainment to the Ku Klux Klan.

On one side of the stage from which he spoke was a panel in which was a picture of that illustrious 100 per cent. American, patron and friend of D. C. Stephenson, rapist and murderer, of Indiana, Imperial Wizard Hiram W. Evans. On the other side was the effigy of our own dearly beloved Grand Dragon, "Silent Ab Hill," of Spartanburg.

The cartoons that thrilled the audience that gathered in the first "secret meeting" of the "Hoover Democrats," the one depicting Al Smith kissing a Negro wench, and the other showing him kneeling and kissing the toe of the Pope, which so enraptured the soul of the aesthetic Ben Adams—were not in evidence. We think we rather took the cream off the humor of those rare productions of the "Rembrant of the Klan" when we brought them into the cold light of publicity. Most any man would be ashamed to repeat such a vulgarity.

Well, in such surroundings, "One-Quart-Cannon" thundered his challenge to the Democracy of South Carolina. So far as we have been able to appraise the reverberations of his gunning, the reverend Cannon was something of a dud. He converted nobody; he did not even serve to bolster up the rapidly falling fortunes of the Klan, which, regardless of the results of the approaching election, shall not be tolerated in this State very long.

What did "One-Quart-Cannon" say? We can only touch the high spots.

He said: "I believe in State's rights—in State sovereignty." He believes in nothing of the kind. He believes in the sovereignty of the Republican Anti-Saloon League.

He said that the convention at Houston was controlled by Tammany, and that all other delegates were "nothing but pawns." The statement was false and he knew it when he made it. Governor Smith would have been nominated on the first ballot if the New York delegation had not voted.

He said: "I won't support a man who is not the nominee of the party. I don't think the party has a nominee—the party is without a leader." What party was he talking about? We admit that the Republican party, which he is supporting, has not a leader.

He said that Governor Smith had said that the South was narrow, provincial, and "would vote for the Democratic nominee if that nominee were a hound dog." When and where did Smith say that? In default of the citation, we denounce the statement as a malicious and contemptible falsehood.

He denounced John Raskob because he voted four years ago for Calvin Coolidge. But did he tell his audience that Raskob voted in 1912 and 1916 for Woodrow Wilson? Of course he didn't. Every time Jim Cannon speaks, John Wesley turns over in his grave and groans to think that such a man as he can be a bishop of the Methodist church.

He said Alfred E. Smith had been elected four times Governor of New York, and asked, "By English-speaking people?" "Nay, but by the overwhelming majority of the side-walks of New York." We denounce that as a falsehood, unworthy, not of a bishop, but of just an ordinary, ignorant Ku Kluxer.

He said that Governor Smith had bolted the platform on immigration. He has done nothing of the kind. Cannon knows he has not; he makes his appeal to the ignorant.

He tried to arouse the racial hatred of his audience by picturing Governor Smith as a man who favored race equality. What opinion can men have of a man who wears the robes of a bishop of the church of Jesus Christ going around the country in a political campaign pulling rotten stuff like that to arouse the rabble, when he knows that it has been refuted time and again by indisputable evidence?

He made at least half a dozen other false statements. And he said:

> Of course we are in politics. I'd be ashamed of myself if I was not in politics.

We cannot conceive of any situation in which Jim Cannon would be ashamed of himself. But we agree that he is in politics. He has been in politics all his life. He got his job as bishop through politics and he keeps it through politics. He would not, otherwise, have dragged his robes in the filthy mire of the Ku Klux Klan by coming to South Carolina and associating himself with the "Anti-Al Smith Democratic Legion" led by Adams and Hisey. For the honor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, we hope he will never show his face down here again.

"Never Let the Same Bee Sting You Twice"

Political — 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

RECORD
HACKENSACK, N. J.
MAY 9 1928

URGES HIS RACE TO AID BLACK'S FIGHT

Albert Jacksen Makes Appeal to Colored Voters.

Albert Jacksen, one of the leaders of the colored race in south Bergen, has written a letter to this newspaper making an appeal to the colored voters throughout the county to support Charles F. Black for state senator.

Mr. Jacksen is the purchasing agent for one of south Bergen's largest industries and has a fine reputation among both the white race and his own people for his intelligence and fairness.

His letter follows:

Editor Evening Record:

"Dear Sir:—Through the columns of your valued newspaper I wish to make an appeal to the negro voters of Bergen county for the support of Charles F. Black, candidate for the nomination for state senator, together with the entire Charles F. Black ticket.

"Although I have favored and supported Charles F. Black in his campaign for state senator, I have always considered the merits of the opposition and have tried to be fair in any statement I have made.

"But, when I became aware of the fact that the opposition were resorting to coercion and were trying to keep our race from being presented with the true status of Mr. Black's ability and accomplishments which makes him fitted for the office he is running for, I found it necessary to not only support Mr. Black but to also fight the opposition and I hope you will bear with me in any article presented to you and give it due and careful study.

"I am very sorry to advise you that during my visits about the county I found that some of our race leaders are allowing the Chandless group to finance the cost of having political meetings and when these meetings are called and have been assembled together they endeavor to gag the speech and efforts of any race leader who tries to present the principles of the Charles F. Black group to you for just and due consideration.

"Just think of having such a disgraceful condition existing among a group of intelligent and self-respecting negro citizens. Let us band together and stop this practice of allowing unscrupulous politicians to finance our meetings and indirectly buy our votes.

"Therefore, before you cast your vote on primary day, if you will get all the information you can relative to the merits of Charles F. Black and compare them with the merits of Mr. Chandless I know that there will be no doubt in your mind that Mr. Black is the man we want as our next state senator, for it is strictly due to the fight he waged to retain the open primaries that we have the privilege of voting on May 15 for the candidacies who are our choice.

"I have found Mr. Black to be personally a fine gentleman who does his own thinking and I call the attention of the negro voters of Bergen county to his fine record of independence while a member of the assembly and the many fights he has made for clean politics as opposed to the corrupt methods of the machine politicians who through money attempt to buy the support of our people for Mr. Chandless.

"I ask all negro voters to come out on primary day and repudiate the tactics of these machine politicians by helping to nominate Mr. Black and the candidates running on his ticket.

"ALBERT JACKSEN."

NEWS
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

MAY 1 8 1928

THE COST OF SLATES

Sooner or later the slate, used so extensively in recent political campaigns, will have to receive official consideration. An unsuccessful candidate for the legislature has filed his statement of expenses showing that he spent $65 to have his name listed on six different slates. According to his sworn assertion he paid $25 to be placed on the slate of one of the league tickets; $10 each for listing on a slate distributed to colored voters, one intended for farmers and one prepared for the Klan; and $5 each for a "G. O. P." slate and a factory labor slate.

The corrupt practices act permits candidates to spend money for advertising and for many other purposes classed as legitimate, but it places restrictions on the collection of money by unauthorized persons or committees thus:

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to solicit from any political committee or member thereof or any treasurer, subtreasurer or political agent or candidate any contribution or donation, or to solicit advertising or money or things of value for advertising purposes from any such political committee or member thereof, treasurer, sub treasurer, political agent or candidate.

Whether that section applies to slates is something the courts may be called on to determine. The presumption with reference to slates is that they are prepared by groups or organizations. Presumably the slate makers are sufficiently interested in their work to pay their own expenses. It would appear from the statement filed by the candidate in this case that he had to pay to be listed. There might be a situation where a candidate favoring the same legislation sought by various slate makers would decline to contribute toward defraying the expense of making the slates but the slaters hardly would be justified in omitting his name, and there might be other cases where any person who desired to make a little money for himself could prepare a slate and sell places on it to the highest bidders. Back of every slate — if there is any justification for them — should be the evident sincerity of those who prepare them. If a candidate's position on a slate depends on his ability or willingness to pay, the motives of the slate makers become open to suspicion.

SUN
BALTIMORE, MD.

JUL 1 3 1928

Orta Be A Law

Even a politician sometimes flouts tradition and gags at political scandal, and it seems the Federal patronage mess uncovered among the white and colored brethren of the G. O. P. in Georgia is causing no end of stomach trouble. Jobs down there are on the auction block, with Ben Davis, Negro National Committeeman, the head man making the sales talk, and this, the Senate investigating committee agrees, is not nice. What to do, what to do? Should the politicians themselves put clothespins over their noses, go down into Georgia and clean their own stables? A logical and proper suggestion, but Senator Brookhart, presiding at the investigation, has a neater idea. "The purpose of this committee," Senator Brookhart is quoted, "is to demand a law to stop such practices."

Now, there is a solution worthy of the most sagacious statesmanship. When an evil arises, sock it with a law; when men are inclined to dishonesty and would make a plaything of fair-dealing, admonish them with a statute. The fact that this method of reforming the scalawags does not always work should not deter Senator Brookhart and his fellow-members of the More Laws Association to try, try again. Who knows but that the millennium, after all, is not just around the corner?

Now that Senator Brookhart is about to take his pen in hand there are a few other matters which pester us and which need, nay demand, his particular brand of deep-thinking. The summer is too rainy for the vacationists and week-enders; hay fever is making existence for some of us an affliction; the growth of the saloon is a Menace to the rising generation; some of our children, drat 'em, insist upon eating green apples. . . . The Senator is right; there orta be a law.

HOOVER-SMITH BACKERS CLASH AT BAPT. MEET

Presidential Fight Superceedes Denominational Issues At Louisville

DR. L. K. WILLIAMS AGAIN HEADS BODY

Chicago Pastor Charges Steam Roller Methods At Spirited Meeting

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The Hoover-Smith campaign superceded expected denominational controversies at the annual session of the National Baptist Convention, Incorporated, here last week when resolutions endorsing both presidential candidates were introduced.

Sun
Baltimore
9-5-28

Hoover Endorsed

At a spirited meeting Friday night, the Rev. T. O. Fuller, of Memphis, Tenn., introduced a resolution endorsing the Republican party and Herbert Hoover. Several impassioned speeches made by backers of Al Smith were refused recognition on the floor, it is said.

On Saturday afternoon, however, when Dr. L. K. Williams, who openly favored the Hoover resolution, vacated the chair and took a walk, a resolution endorsing Smith was introduced by the Rev. L. K. Bolton, of Topeka, Kans., and the Rev. R. C. Barbour, of Galveston, Texas. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Resolutions and this action was not discovered by the administration forces until Sunday morning when it appeared in the daily papers. President Williams ordered an investigation which disclosed the fact that the reporter for the paper in which the article appeared was present when the resolution was introduced.

Dr. Williams Reelected

One of the most exciting hours of the convention came during the election of Dr. L. K. Williams to succeed himself as president. As is the usual custom, Dr. Williams was reelected by acclamation.

Before the vote was taken, however, the Rev. H. B. Hawkins, of Trinity Baptist Church, Chicago, arose and openly opposed Dr. Williams for reelection. The Rev. Mr. Hawkins charged steam roller tactics.

Immediately cries of "throw him out," came from the administration forces. A number of Kentuckyians present, however, warned that it would be a foolish act to touch a son of old Kentucky while on her soil.

$800,000 Collected

Reports of the auditors showed that there has been collected from all sources during the fiscal year, the sum of $800,000. More than 5,000 delegates representing, it is said, 3,500,000 Baptist communicants, attended the sessions.

Although Miss Nannie H. Burroughs was present at the men's meeting on Monday, ready for the annual controversy over the control of the National Training School for Girls and Women, this fight did not materialize.

The next session of the convention will be held in Kansas City, in the same hall in which Mr. Hoover was nominated for president.

From Baltimore: Dr. Junius Gray, Mrs. Lula Scott Richardson, Dr. D. G. Mack, Dr. W. J. Winston, Dr. S. J. Phillips, Dr. J. H. Greene, Dr. A. J. Greene, Rev. Arthur Payne, Rev. Beale Elliott and Rev. R. M. Anderson.

Dr. Gray was made executive secretary of the Evangelism Dept. for Maryland.

Both Candidates Carrying Water

This presidential race is so close that Candidate Herbert Hoover and Candidate Alfred Smith are seeking votes from every available source.

Mr. Smith needs the solid south, but he desires also Negro voters in northern states.

Mr. Hoover wants those same Negro votes, but to carry Virginia he must depend on the dry white democrats and in Alabama, he's depending on the notorious Negro hater, Senator Heflin and the Ku Klux.

The result of this failure of normal party lines is that the candidates are carrying considerable water on both shoulders, in the effort to find some neutral position that will please everybody.

Mr. Smith's Tammany crowd had to submit at Houston to separate seating for colored people in a cage enclosed by chicken wire.

The Democratic National Committee issued a statement Monday that Governor Smith has appointed Negroes of New York only "to such jobs as they are given in the south, to wit: porters, janitors, charwomen."

Personally Mr. Smith doesn't like such tactics, but he has to put up with them or lose the south.

Mr. Hoover is in the same dilemna. Upon his order, segregation of government clerks was abolished in the Department of Commerce. Just two weeks ago, however, a letter was sent out from the department to an influential lily-white woman in Virginia declaring that Mr. Hoover had not abolished segregation.

Whether Mr. Smith will listen to the Southern democrats if elected president, and whether Mr. Hoover would permit the lily-whites and the Ku Klux to be his advisers is a matter of speculation.

The fact remains that both of them are playing politics with the Negro vote.

Changing Politics

A lifelong white democrat who expects to vote for Hoover asked the AFRO-AMERICAN Thursday if it isn't true that the "big street" colored people" are for Hoover and the "little street" colored folk for Smith.

He was surprised at the estimate of 30 to 40 percent of the Negro vote for Smith, and more startled still to learn that you can't tell how people will vote by what street they live on.

Here is a life-long democrat turning republican because he's dry or anti Catholic or Ku Klux. At the same time some life-long colored republican is turning democrat because he is wet, pro-Catholic and Anti-Klan.

Smith appeals to many thotful colored folk as the champion of tolerance.

Dr. James A. Wright, pastor of Talcott Street Congregational Church told the AFRO Tuesday:—"I shall vote for Smith, because I am eager to demonstrate that denominational lines do not matter. No people have suffered more than we have from prejudice and intolerance. We have never had a Catholic president because of his religion. We have never had colored people in certain offices because of their color. Election of Smith would be a great victory for national toleration.

No matter who wins the presidency, it will be a great day in America when you can't tell a man and woman's politics by their color or their religion.

ORGANIZE NEGRO VOTERS' LEAGUE AT SPRINGFIELD

Special to the Argus

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 12 — At a meeting called by Rev. S. R. Wilson at the Washington avenue Baptist church, last night a Negro Voter's League was organized. The organization is said to be independent in politics and will endeavor to look after the welfare of the Negro in all his civic as well as political rights.

"We're not organizing to fight the republican administration and neither do we propose to run under the democratic banner," declared the Rev. S. R. Wilson, neither do we have intentions of putting against the Negro Republican club in Springfield. We're simply banding together to fight for rights and principals which have been promised us under republican administration yet which we have failed to get. It may be that we'll vote a wholly democratic ticket, however, it is more likely that it'll be a split issue.

"We propose for the man whom we believe will do something for the Negro citizenry, disregarding the banners under which he runs. I, myself will vote for Herbert C. Hoover, but my choice both in the county and state offices will not bear out the republican ticket.

Officers of the organization elected last night include: The Reverend Mr. Wilson, president; Mrs. Minta Alvis, vice president; Mrs. Maysie Beasley, secretary; Mrs. Frances Boxley, treasurer.

Committeeman and Committeewoman appointed for the various wards include: Miss Roberta Thomas, Louis N. Smith, T. E. Mitchell, J. R. Gilliam, Mrs. Frances Boxley, J. F. Trout and Mrs. Beattie Skinner.

BOTH PARTY PLATFORMS MENTION NEGRO WELFARE

Republicans More Liberal in Their Promises. Both Pledge Adequate Support of Lincoln University

Each Commit Their Respective Parties to Separation of the Negro and White Boys at Boonville

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 11—The convening here of the platform conventions of the two major political parties today, brought a few race men and women to the Capitol City. Their interest seemed to be centered largely on what would be said in the parties' platforms which might be interpreted as affecting their welfare. It was thought that both parties would say on this subject, therefore, the group got together and agreed upon some things to be presented. Among the things agreed upon were schools and education for every child regardless of race, better support for Lincoln University, a vocational school in southeast Missouri, separation of the colored and white boys at Boonville, etc.

The republicans adopted all and more than was suggested by representatives of the colored group, while the democrats adopted most of it.

The following is the language used in the two platforms which is interpreted for the benefit of the Negroes

What Republicans Said

The educational interests of the state are inseparably interwoven with all of its industrial affairs, and especially with its agricultural development. We believe the education of the youth is the best investment the state can make and pledge ourselves to a more complete development of our educational system so that every Missouri boy and girl shall have an equal chance for an education. These facilities are also pledged to the Negro children of the state, including that of standard university courses in Lincoln University.

Our party stands, as it has always stood, for equal opportunities, regardless of race, and against racial intolerance.

We favor the establishment of a vocational school in Southeast Missouri for the training of Negro youths and the development of the State Demonstration Farm in Chariton County.

We favor a separate institution for colored boys confined at the Missouri Reformatory at Boonville and adequate appropriations for the establishment of a home for feebleminded colored people of the state, and a Negro industrial commission.

We pledge our support to the necessary measures to insure sanitary and humane conditions for Negroes confined in the State Penitentiary.

It is the fundamental duty of the state to protect the life, liberty and property of its citizens. To this end we pledge the enforcement of present laws, and the enactment of such additional laws as may be necessary to provide fair and speedy trial, and at the same time insure certainty and finality in the apprehension, trial and punishment of criminals and the suppression of crime.

What Democrats Said

The colored citizenship of our state and nation has been for many years the object of political betrayal on the part of the leaders and officials of the Republican party. The vote of the colored citizen has been appealed to every two years by means of empty campaign promises which are forgotten of ignored immediately following the election, and their interests have not been and are not guarded, but have been exploited by Republican leaders.

Lincoln University has been used as a political pawn during the past and present administrations. Colored leaders are not recipients of their share of benefits from the State Labor Department. The health, industrial and economic interests of the colored people of the state have not had the attention to which they are entitled.

The Democratic party has ever been and is now the friend of the colored race, and pledges the most wholesome and adequate provisions for the welfare of its citizenship.

We condemn the present and past injurious activities of Republican leaders affecting Lincoln University and promise that the affairs of the institution shall be administered solely for the advantage of its students.

Dr. William J. Thompkins of Kansas City, Joseph L. McLemore of St. Louis and James McMinn of St. Louis appeared before the Democratic Platform Committee.

St Louisans Attending

Among those attending the convention from St. Louis were: Walthall M. Moore, Freeman L. Martin, both candidates for the legislature. A. W. Lloyd and Mrs. Willie P. Allen, both members of the Republican State Committee, Judge Crittenden E. Clark, Mrs. Alma A. Clark, J. E. Mitchell, Mrs. J. L. McLemore, Dr. C. M. Powell, Langston Harrison, Wm. A. Morant, Homer G. Phillips and Page Brown.

Both Candidates Carrying Water

This presidential race is so close that Candidate Herbert Hoover and Candidate Alfred Smith are seeking votes from every available source.

Mr. Smith needs the solid south, but he desires also Negro voters in northern states.

Mr. Hoover wants those same Negro votes, but to carry Virginia he must depend on the dry white democrats and in Alabama, he's depending on the notorious Negro hater, Senator Heflin and the Ku Klux.

The result of this failure of normal party lines is that the candidates are carrying considerable water on both shoulders, in the effort to find some neutral position that will please everybody.

Mr. Smith's Tammany crowd had to submit at Houston to separate seating for colored people in a cage enclosed by chicken wire.

The Democratic National Committee issued a statement Monday that Governor Smith has appointed Negroes of New York only "to such jobs as they are given in the south, to wit: porters, janitors, charwomen."

Personally Mr. Smith doesn't like such tactics, but he has to put up with them or lose the south.

Mr. Hoover is in the same dilemna. Upon his order, segregation of government clerks was abolished in the Department of Commerce. Just two weeks ago, however, a letter was sent out from the department to an influential lily-white woman in Virginia declaring that Mr. Hoover had not abolished segregation.

Whether Mr. Smith will listen to the Southern democrats if elected president, and whether Mr. Hoover would permit the lily-whites and the Ku Klux to be his advisers is a matter of speculation.

The fact remains that both of them are playing politics with the Negro vote.

Changing Politics

A lifelong white democrat who expects to vote for Hoover asked the AFRO-AMERICAN Thursday if it isn't true that the "big street colored people" are for Hoover and the "little street" colored folk for Smith.

He was surprised at the estimate of 30 to 40 percent of the Negro vote for Smith, and more startled still to learn that you can't tell how people will vote by what street they live on.

Here is a life-long democrat turning republican because he's dry or anti Catholic or Ku Klux. At the same time some life-long colored republican is turning democrat because he is wet, pro-Catholic and Anti-Klan.

Smith appeals to many thotful colored folk as the champion of tolerance.

Dr. James A. Wright, pastor of Talcott Street Congregational Church told the AFRO Tuesday:—"I shall vote for Smith, because I am eager to demonstrate that denominational lines do not matter. No people have suffered more than we have from prejudice and intolerance. We have never had a Catholic president because of his religion. We have never had colored people in certain offices because of their color. Election of Smith would be a great victory for national toleration.

No matter who wins the presidency, it will be a great day in America when you can't tell a man and woman's politics by their color or their religion.

ORGANIZE NEGRO VOTERS' LEAGUE AT SPRINGFIELD

Special to the Argus

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 12 — At a meeting called by Rev. S. R. Wilson at the Washington avenue Baptist church, last night, a Negro Voter's League was organized. The organization is said to be independent in politics and will endeavor to look after the welfare of the Negro in all his civic as well as political rights.

"We're not organizing to fight the republican administration and neither do we propose to run under the democratic banner," declared the Rev. S. R. Wilson, neither do we have intentions of putting against the Negro Republican club in Springfield. We're simply banding together to fight for rights and principals which have been promised us under republican administration yet which we have failed to get. It may be that we'll vote a wholly democratic ticket, however, it is more likely that it'll be a split issue.

"We propose for the man whom we believe will do something for the Negro citizenry, disregarding the banners under which he runs. I, myself will vote for Herbert C. Hoover, but my choice both in the county and state offices will not bear out the republican ticket.

Officers of the organization elected last night include: The Reverend Mr. Wilson, president; Mrs. Minta Alvis, vice president; Mrs. Maysie Beasley, secretary; Mrs. Frances Boxley, treasurer.

Committeeman and Committeewoman appointed for the various wards include: Miss Roberta Thomas, Louis N. Smith, T. E. Mitchell, J. R. Gilliam, Mrs. Frances Boxley, J. F. Trout and Mrs. Beattie Skinner.

BOTH PARTY PLATFORMS MENTION NEGRO WELFARE

Republicans More Liberal in Their Promises. Both Pledge Adequate Support of Lincoln University

Each Commit Their Respective Parties to Separation of the Negro and White Boys at Boonville

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 11—The convening here of the platform conventions of the two major political parties today, brought a few race men and women to the Capitol City. Their interest seemed to be centered largely on what would be said in the parties' platforms which might be interpreted as affecting their welfare. It was thought that both parties would say on this subject, therefore, the group got together and agreed upon some things to be presented. Among the things agreed upon were schools and education for every child regardless of race, better support for Lincoln University, a vocational school in southeast Missouri, separation of the colored and white boys at Boonville, etc.

The republicans adopted all and more than was suggested by representatives of the colored group, while the democrats adopted most of it.

The following is the language used in the two platforms which is interpreted for the benefit of the Negroes

What Republicans Said

The educational interests of the state are inseparably interwoven with all of its industrial affairs, and especially with its agricultural development. We believe the education of the youth is the best investment the state can make and pledge ourselves to a more complete development of our educational system so that every Missouri boy and girl shall have an equal chance for an education. These facilities are also pledged to the Negro children of the state, including that of standard university courses in Lincoln University.

Our party stands, as it has always stood, for equal opportunities, regardless of race, and against racial intolerance.

We favor the establishment of a vocational school in Southeast Missouri for the training of Negro youths and the development of the State Demonstration Farm in Chariton County.

We favor a separate institution for colored boys confined at the Missouri Reformatory at Boonville and adequate appropriations for the establishment of a home for feebleminded colored people of the state, and a Negro industrial commission.

We pledge our support to the necessary measures to insure sanitary and humane conditions for Negroes confined in the State Penitentiary.

It is the fundamental duty of the state to protect the life, liberty and property of its citizens. To this end we pledge the enforcement of present laws, and the enactment of such additional laws as may be necessary to provide fair and speedy trial, and at the same time insure certainty and finality in the apprehension, trial and punishment of criminals and the suppression of crime.

What Democrats Said

The colored citizenship of our state and nation has been for many years the object of political betrayal on the part of the leaders and officials of the Republican party. The vote of the colored citizen has been appealed to every two years by means of empty campaign promises which are forgotten of ignored immediately following the election, and their interests have not been and are not guarded, but have been exploited by Republican leaders.

Lincoln University has been used as a political pawn during the past and present administrations. Colored leaders are not recipients of their share of benefits from the State Labor Department. The health, industrial and economic interests of the colored people of the state have not had the attention to which they are entitled.

The Democratic party has ever been and is now the friend of the colored race, and pledges the most wholesome and adequate provisions for the welfare of its citizenship.

We condemn the present and past injurious activities of Republican leaders affecting Lincoln University and promise that the affairs of the institution shall be administered solely for the advantage of its students.

Dr. William J. Thompkins of Kansas City, Joseph L. McLemore of St. Louis and James McMinn of St. Louis appeared before the Democratic Platform Committee.

St Louisans Attending

Among those attending the convention from St. Louis were: Walthall M. Moore, Freeman L. Martin, both candidates for the legislature. A. W. Lloyd and Mrs. Willie P. Allen, both members of the Republican State Committee, Judge Crittenden E. Clark, Mrs. Alma A. Clark, J. E. Mitchell, Mrs. J. L. McLemore, Dr. C. M. Powell, Langston Harrison, Wm. A. Morant, Homer G. Phillips and Page Brown.

Political - 1928

Republican.

Party Affiliation.

CONDUCT OF CAMPAIGN.

In emphasizing the importance of electing the Republican national ticket this fall, The Age proposes simply to discuss the issues involved as they affect the race, without dealing with religious differences, or personal attacks on the character of any of the candidates. The fact that the Democratic candidate is a follower of the Catholic faith, or that the Republican standard bearer belongs to the Society of Friends, otherwise known as Quakers, has no bearing on the matter of their fitness for the presidency. The presidential office has been held by men of varied religious affiliations, ranging from the Disciples of Christ to the Protestant Episcopal Church, but in no case has their religion affected their political policies.

Nor should the matter of social position or training count for or against a candidate, the correctness of his speech or the purity of his pronunciation being a detail of early training and environment. The important matters that should count in making a choice between two such well equipped candidates for high office as Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith are their outstanding characteristics in dealing with the problems that most nearly concern the Negro as a citizen in the American Republic. We believe that as individuals both candidates are equally free from color prejudice or bias on account of race or previous condition. But the Republican has the advantage of denoting this in his acts, officially and otherwise. The Democratic candidate could not act in this wise if he wanted to, because he has to defer to the intolerance of the South, which dominates the party of which he is the candidate.

During the four terms that Mr. Smith has been Governor of New York State, he has steadily refrained from exhibiting any recognition of the group of Negro voters as a part of the population, although many of them have been counted among his enthusiastic admirers. This admiration has been based on no special reasons, so far as we have been able to discover, but has grown out of dissatisfaction with such Republican executives as Nathan Miller, and encouraged by the popular delusion that the election of Smith would bring about a relaxing of the enforcement of prohibition. So far as that is concerned, neither candidate can do much in that regard. Prohibition was brought about in spite of the opposition of one President, and only the action of Congress can mitigate its rigors. To repeal the constitutional amendment itself, if the experiment has proved a failure, would require the favorable vote of the legislatures of three-fourths of the States.

With a Republican administration in power, headed by an executive of the character and courage of Mr. Hoover, we could confidently look for larger representation in public office and a wiping out of all those discriminations in the departments, based on race or color. The result would be a perceptible gain in public respect and in bringing about that equality of citizenship that the party embodied in its first princples. Only a man of high character and undaunted courage can be counted upon to bring about a radical change of this kind. Even if Governor Smith had the desire to do this, he would be hampered in his efforts by the dominance of the South in his party. And in case of a vacancy, the Negro-hating former Governor of Arkansas would become President.

A sober and exhaustive review of the situation justifies the conclusion that the safest course to pursue this fall is to vote the Republican ticket for Hoover and Curtis. It is time for all our groups in various parts of the country to get together on this proposition and work towards that end.

EDITORIAL

A DUTY THAT ALL RACE-LOVING ORGANS SHOULD PERFORM

Never before since the Colored People of the United States were legally granted the rights of a full-fledged franchised citizen, have the Colored People been called upon to act more wisely than now. The condition of the races has been so managed, that a close analysis will show that all other races that have made this country their home, in some way or manner, have obtained a more equitable recognition in the official management of this government than the Negro Race. The Southern Christian Recorder is not a political organ, and this fact may be accounted for as to why Prof. John R. Hawkins' great speech, made in seconding the nomination of Mr. Hoover for President of the United States, failed to send The Southern Christian Recorder a copy for publication, as he, Prof. Hawkins, or his representative, seemed to have sent copies to other papers; but we took pleasure in our endorsement of what Prof. Hawkins said in his speech, and yet believed that his remarks, so far as they went, were very good and appropriate, so far as the time given him to express himself would admit.

The suggestions that we offer are to every fair-minded colored man, that he should think the matter over personally, and look into conditions as they are and reach a conclusion as to whether Prof. Hawkins' leadership is warranted in this particular crisis. I really think that we will agree that all of his advices in the matter will prove facts, and axiomatically confirm by an impartial retrospection of the past historical facts, that will justify the advices outlined by Prof. Hawkins. However, we must remember that we have some heavy obstacles to overcome, some of which are so interwoven with different issues in both parties, that will cause one who has not considered the multitude of arguments founded upon viewpoints that mean consideration, that will cause any one who has not considered the different phases personally, may waver and throw his influence against his best interest. We must remember again in making up our determination, to cast our votes in the right direction, that there are men who claim to be with us, but will prove against us.

Take for instance: In the Republican Party is a faction that is known to be named Lily White Republicans, the meaning of which, we all know, and must have our eyes open. I notice one among other reasons that Prof. Hawkins was strong for Mr. Hoover, was his attitude toward all of the people, and not in a certain color or race. This feature of Mr. Hoover's acceptance speech was explained nicely by Prof. Hawkins, when he said that Mr. Hoover's policy included a declaration to be president of all the people, regardless of race or color. In the Democratic Party, we note there are two strong factions, one known as "fair-dealings to all," and the other, that the white man must keep the Negro in the background. Then again, we find two other pertinent factions strongly operating in both Parties, one for, and the other against Catholicism, and mixed with this issue, are two of the most dangerous things that ever happened to this country, and they're prohibition and its abolition.

But as a race, we have our choice as to where we stand, and believe that if Mr. Hoover be elected, all of these matters will be properly adjusted. Another important matter that all intelligent people have agreed to, must be observed if success is obtained in everything; this object has its foundation in what is known and repeated in one of the greatest maxioms known in the world, "Together we stand, divided we fall."

If the Colored People ever expect to get their due proportion of representation in the governmental department of this world, their efforts for it must be concentrated, and not laid off in fractions by those who are opposed to us. If we find that we have a leader who is able mentally and intentionally God-fearing guidance, and historically to be the leader we need, we should flock to him and give him our strongest support. What we need is a man who has proved to be a successful leader; we should rally to his calls, follow his direction, and we will be more apt to succeed than if we, for some personal reason, oppose that man. We, ourselves, will be practically committing suicide, as well as a general impediment to the best interest of the race. We should not hesitate to follow our best leaders, among whom, we may find some minor objection, but in a matter of this kind, all such should be eliminated from our minds, and pulled strongly on following the leader such as Prof. Hawkins has proved to be. We emphasize this point from a personal reason, and that is, in some things we have condemned publicly, some actions in which we did not a- but we have discovered since that our objections to the thing were not founded upon the right conclusion, so much so, that we have been glad to find that these objections were not as we thought, but as a whole, we are sorry that we raised the objection, and have made apologies to him, and proposed to publish our apology, but he did not agree to it; but we are now able to say he accepted our apology, and explanations, and now, if either one of us did err, we are now able to sing, "All of our sins," in this direction, "are washed away." That is, from a personal declaration, and that for ourselves and every minor member of my family, (if I had one) is concerned. In conclusion, and all things considered, a better man could not have been found in The United States of America, to advise the Race as to the best policy to pursue in this strategic election. John R. Hawkins is the man.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

CONDUCT OF CAMPAIGN.

In emphasizing the importance of electing the Republican national ticket this fall, The Age proposes simply to discuss the issues involved as they affect the race. without dealing with religious differences, or personal attacks on the character of any of the candidates. The fact that the Democratic candidate is a follower of the Catholic faith, or that the Republican standard bearer belongs to the Society of Friends, otherwise known as Quakers, has no bearing on the matter of their fitness for the presidency. The presidential office has been held by men of varied religious affiliations, ranging from the Disciples of Christ to the Protestant Episcopal Church, but in no case has their religion affected their political policies.

Nor should the matter of social position or training count for or against a candidate, the correctness of his speech or the purity of his pronunciation being a detail of early training and environment. The important matters that should count in making a choice between two such well equipped candidates for high office as Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith are their outstanding characteristics in dealing with the problems that most nearly concern the Negro as a citizen in the American Republic. We believe that as individuals both candidates are equally free from color prejudice or bias on account of race or previous condition. But the Republican has the advantage of denoting this in his acts, officially and otherwise. The Democratic candidate could not act in this wise if he wanted to, because he has to defer to the intolerance of the South, which dominates the party of which he is the candidate.

During the four terms that Mr. Smith has been Governor of New York State, he has steadily refrained from exhibiting any recognition of the group of Negro voters as a part of the population, although many of them have been counted among his enthusiastic admirers. This admiration has been based on no special reasons, so far as we have been able to discover, but has grown out of dissatisfaction with such Republican executives as Nathan Miller, and encouraged by the popular delusion that the election of Smith would bring about a relaxing of the enforcement of prohibition. So far as that is concerned, neither candidate can do much in that regard. Prohibition was brought about in spite of the opposition of one President, and only the action of Congress can mitigate its rigors. To repeal the constitutional amendment itself, if the experiment has proved a failure, would require the favorable vote of the legislatures of three-fourths of the States.

With a Republican administration in power, headed by an executive of the character and courage of Mr. Hoover, we could confidently look for larger representation in public office and a wiping out of all those discriminations in the departments, based on race or color. The result would be a perceptible gain in public respect and in bringing about that equality of citizenship that the party embodied in its first princples. Only a man of high character and undaunted courage can be counted upon to bring about a radical change of this kind. Even if Governor Smith had the desire to do this, he would be hampered in his efforts by the dominance of the South in his party. And in case of a vacancy, the Negro-hating former Governor of Arkansas would become President.

A sober and exhaustive review of the situation justifies the conclusion that the safest course to pursue this fall is to vote the Republican ticket for Hoover and Curtis. It is time for all our groups in various parts of the country to get together on this proposition and work towards that end.

EDITORIAL

A DUTY THAT ALL RACE-LOVING ORGANS SHOULD PERFORM

Never before since the Colored People of the United States were legally granted the rights of a full-fledged franchised citizen, have the Colored People been called upon to act more wisely than now. The condition of the races has been so managed, that a close analysis will show that all other races that have made this country their home, in some way or manner, have obtained a more equitable recognition in the official management of this government than the Negro Race. The Southern Christian Recorder is not a political organ, and this fact may be accounted for, as to why Prof. John R. Hawkins' great speech, made in seconding the nomination of Mr. Hoover for President of the United States, failed to send The Southern Christian Recorder a copy for publication, as he, Prof. Hawkins, or his representative, seemed to have sent copies to other papers; but we took pleasure in our endorsement of what Prof. Hawkins said in his speech, and yet believed that his remarks, so far as they went, were very good and appropriate, so far as the time given him to express himself would admit.

The suggestions that we offer are to every fair-minded colored man, that he should think the matter over personally, and look into conditions as they are and reach a conclusion as to whether Prof. Hawkins' leadership is warranted in this particular crisis. I really think that we will agree that all of his advices in the matter will prove facts, and axiomatically confirm by an impartial retrospection of the past historical facts, that will justify the advices outlined by Prof. Hawkins. However, we must remember that we have some heavy obstacles to overcome, some of which are so interwoven with different issues in both parties, that will cause one who has not considered the multitude of arguments founded upon viewpoints that mean consideration, that will cause any one who has not considered the different phases personally, may waver and throw his influence against his best interest. We must remember again in making up our determination, to cast our votes in the right direction, that there are men who claim to be with us, but will prove against us.

Take for instance: In the Republican Party is a faction that is known to be named Lily White Republicans, the meaning of which, we all know, and must have our eyes open. I notice one among other reasons that Prof. Hawkins was strong for Mr. Hoover, was his attitude toward all of the people, and not in a certain color or race. This feature of Mr. Hoover's acceptance speech was explained nicely by Prof. Hawkins, when he said that Mr. Hoover's policy included a declaration to be president of all the people, regardless of race or color. In the Democratic Party, we note there are two strong factions, one known as "fair-dealings to all," and the other, that the white man must keep the Negro in the background. Then again, we find two other pertinent factions strongly operating in both Parties, one for, and the other against Catholicism, and mixed with this issue, are two of the most dangerous things that ever happened to this country, and they're prohibition and its abolition.

But as a race, we have our choice as to where we stand, and believe that if Mr. Hoover be elected, all of these matters will be properly adjusted. Another important matter that all intelligent people have agreed to, must be observed if success is obtained in everything; this object has its foundation in what is known and repeated in one of the greatest maxioms known in the world, "Together we stand, divided we fall."

If the Colored People ever expect to get their due proportion of representation in the governmental department of this world, their efforts for it must be concentrated, and not laid off in fractions by those who are opposed to us. If we find that we have a leader who is able mentally and intentionally God-fearing guidance, and historically to be the leader we need, we should flock to him and give him our strongest support. What we need is a man who has proved to be a successful leader; we should rally to his calls, follow his direction, and we will be more apt to succeed than if we, for some personal reason, oppose that man. We, ourselves, will be practically committing suicide, as well as a general impediment to the best interest of the race. We should not hesitate to follow our best leaders, among whom, we may find some minor objection, but in a matter of this kind, all such should be eliminated from our minds, and pulled strongly on following the leader such as Prof. Hawkins has proved to be. We emphasize this point from a personal reason, and that is, in some things we have condemned publicly, some actions in which we did not agree, but we have discovered since that our objections to the thing were not founded upon the right conclusion, so much so, that we have been glad to find that these objections were not as we thought, but as a whole, we are sorry that we raised the objection, and have made apologies to him, and proposed to publish our apology, but now able to say he accepted our apology, and explanations, and now, if either one of us did err, we are now able to sing, "All of our sins," in this direction, "are washed away." That is, from a personal declaration, and that for ourselves and every minor member of my family, (if I had one) is concerned. In conclusion, and all things considered, a better man could not have been found in The United States of America, to advise the Race as to the best policy to pursue in this strategic election. John R. Hawkins is the man.

Vote for White Supremacy, W. G. Brantley Urges South In Scoring Republican Rule

Former Georgia Congressman Declares There Is No Division Among Good Citizens on Prohibition Issue.

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Washington, August 11.—(Special.) Democrats of Georgia must choose, in the presidential race between the party that sought to overthrow and for a time succeeded in overthrowing, white supremacy in the south, and the party that defended white supremacy, restored it and has since maintained it, according to a statement made public by W. G. Brantley, of Brunswick, former congressman from the Seventh Georgia district, who now maintains law offices in Washington, D. C.

In a comprehensive and illuminating statement which covers every phase of the present situation in Georgia, Mr. Brantley declares that there is no division among good citizens of this country on the prohibition issue, as all good citizens "believe in temperance, morality, in law and order and in the enforcement of the constitution." He states, however, that there is an effort being made in "certain quarters" to convince the people of Georgia and of the south that there is now existing an issue between the forces of temperance and intemperance, the forces of morality and immorality and between those who stand for law and order and those who do not.

No Such Issues Impend.

"No such issues impend as those described," he said.

Mr. Brantley then discusses at length his reasons for this conclusion. He also discusses republican corruption in office and touches on the injection of the religious issue in connection with the religion of Governor Al Smith, the democratic nominee. In regard to Governor Smith's religion, Mr. Brantley declares that the governor has ever been surrounded by advisors of his own choosing with far more of them being Protestants than Catholics. He states that Governor Smith has "ever been the friend of public schools. He stated that in all the governor's appointments and recomendations" there has never been a taint of sectarianism.

Brantley's Statement.

The statement of Mr. Brantley, in part, is as follows:

"Strenuous efforts, almost frantic and hysterical in character, are being made in certain quarters to convince the people of Georgia and of the south that there now impends a great issue between the forces of temperance and intemperance, of morality and immorality, and between those who stand for law and order and the enforcement of the constitution and those who do not.

"These efforts are coupled with an appeal to our people to vote for Herbert Hoover and to give the republican party another four years lease of power as the only way by which these great issues may be settled on the side of right.

"All good citizens believe in temperance, in morality, in law and order and in the enforcement of the constitution and there is no division among them on these questions. It would be a sad commentary on good citizenship if there were.

"No such issues impend as those described. They exist only in the imagination of certain new converts to republicanism, who hope thereby to make other converts. If they actually existed, no appeal would be necessary, for the overwhelming majority of the people of the south would be found on the right side of them and there can be but one right side to such issues. Not many of our people, however, would in my opinion, find it necessary, desirable or consistent to place themselves in the ranks of the republican party in order to be on the right side.

Moral Questions.

"Temperance, sobriety and morality are moral questions. They should be and for ages have been urged upon our people by the moral forces of the world. They are great and noble ends for which we should all strive and no division of sentiment exists among right thinking people over the desirability of their attainment. Division does exist, however, as to the best and most effective means for their attainment.

"There are those who believe that our present prohibition laws are but one of many means proposed for their attainment, and that in their present form these laws have failed of their purpose and for that reason some change or modification of them should be made in the further effort to attain the great ends sought. They contend experience has shown that these laws not only have not eliminated whisky, drunkenness and debauchery, but to these things have added bootlegging, the most demoralizing and corrupting of all crimes, increased the use of intoxicants by our young people, brought about an increase of crime generally, a gradual breaking down of the moral fiber of the nation, and a general laxness in the observance of all law. They point out that with all our boasting of prohibition as the real and certain cure for crime, the American nation is today the most lawless of all the civilized earth.

"Conceding to every one the right to his view, the point I would make and stress is that no justification exists for the most ardent and zealous democratic prohibitionist in the south to desert to the republican party because of the prohibition question. A moment's quiet reflection will disclose to anyone that this is so.

Under No Pledge.

"The facts are that the republican party is no more of a prohibitionist party than is the democratic party. It is under no pledge directly or indirectly to maintain the continued existence of the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act. Its candidate has aligned himself with those who believe that our prohibition laws are but a proposed menas to an end and have not become sacrosanct, for he refers to them as an "experiment." The republican party has been in control of our government practically throughout the life of the Volstead act and has failed to enforce it. The open and flagrant violation of this law is known of all men. Because of it changes or modifications of the act to make it more enforceable are being urged. No basis in reason exists for continuing the republican party in power on the theory that it may reform and hereafter enforce the law. It has been tried and found wanting in this as in other regards. On the question of enforcement which is the only one as regards prohibition that exists, the country couldn't possibly be in any worse condition under Governor Smith than it is today.

"So far as the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act are concerned no president, no matter who he is, can change, alter or repeal them. They are here to stay just so long as the people of the United States want them to stay. Few people, so far as I know, expect the amendment to be repealed and as for the Volstead act only the congress can change it. Our people have a choice in the election of the congress and so long as they continue to elect representatives and senators who favor it, they will continue to have it regardless of who may live in the white house.

"We must choose between the party that sought to overthrow and for a time succeeded in overthrowing, white supremacy in the south, and the party that defended, restored and has since maintained it. The horrible results reached in the south during reconstruction days, when a faction of white men affiliated with the negroes politically to overthrow the dominant white majority, are personally known to some who are still living and are known to us all as a matter of history.

Saturnalia of Corruption.

"During the past eight years of republican rule we have witnessed the greatest saturnalia of corruption in government in all our history. We have seen the public domain stolen, our war veterans robbed, peculations everywhere and bribery rampant. This corruption has not stopped with minor and insignificant officials, but has invaded the cabinet of the president himself. We have witnessed the humiliating spectacle of a former attorney general, the chief law officer of our government, publicly charged with and tried for the offense of accepting a bribe. We have witnessed another former cabinet member on trial for the same crime. We have seen other high officials and many minor ones of the republican administration forced out of office and some of them into the penitentiary. We have witnessed stupendous proceedings to recover property of the people which through the connivance of trusted officials had been stolen from them. We have witnessed one of the beneficiaries of this corruption dividing his ill-gotten gains with the chairman of the national republican party and we have seen that chairman accepting such money in order to perpetuate the republican party in power and at the same time resorting to subterfuge and deceit, in order to hide from the people the iniquitous thing he had done.

"I have recently had sent me, from Georgia, a hand-circular, which I am told received wide distribution in the town from which it came. The heading to it reads: 'To murder Protestants! To destroy American government! Is the oath binding Roman Catholics!'

Pity for Misguided.

"For the misguided, misinformed and unpatriotic person or persons responsible for this circular, I have the profoundest pity. It states a charge several times made through a long series of years and as many times refuted and shown to be utterly false. It has been one or more times exposed and denounced as false by a committee of responsible officials in the Masonic fraternity.

"Throughout the history of the world, as our reading discloses, many dark crimes have been committed in the name of religion and these crimes have by no means been limited to the Catholics. In the enlightened and civilized age in which we live, we have passed away from such things and in addition have learned religious tolerance. Our forefathers learned it long ago, for in founding our government they not only proclaimed religious liberty and the separation of church and state, but they wrote into our constitution the provision that 'no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.'

"It is inconceivable to me that any intelligent, patriotic citizen of our country would seek directly or indirectly to nullify this wise provision.

"So far as my reading and personal observation go there is nothing in the history of our country that would justify its nullification. According to recent figures, there are more than 18,000,000 Roman Catholics in the United States and to hold that no one of this great body of citizens is eligible to hold office would be monstrous

"Throughout the life of our republic many Catholics have held high office, and, so far as my knowledge goes, no one of them has ever been charged with betraying the trust reposed in him because of any religious influence, and the record of Governor Smith has made as governor of New York guarantees that if called to the presidency no such charge during his administration of that great office can ever justly be brought against him.

"As governor he has ever been surrounded by his own choosing with far more Protestant than Catholic advisers. He has ever been the friend of the public school. In all his appointments and recommendations there has never been found a taint of sectarianism, nor has it ever been charged against him. He has ever been guided by his oath of office and in his appointments to office has insisted upon applying fitness as the standard.

"The advance he has bade from an humble origin and obscurity to his present position of eminence demonstrates the real worth of the man, his honesty, courage, high character and ability, and makes a career that not only has been, but will continue to be an inspiration to the youth of our land."

Political - 1928

Republican.

Party Affiliation.

Would End Handshaking And Kissing in Campaign

CATSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 10.—A crusade for a "sanitary election campaign," in which kissing and handshaking shall be eliminated as campaign adjuncts, is advocated by the Catskill Examiner.

The newspaper urges that when Hoover announced recently that he did not intend to kiss babies for publication, he unconsciously called attention to the arrival of a new order in politics. "It had been hitherto supposed," says the editor, "that women voters could be enticed by an invitation to line up for hours waiting for the handshake of a prominent official."

Modern hygiene, according to the advocates of the new crusade, has risen up to shield the babies from indiscriminate kissing, political or otherwise. The same principles, they hold, should be applied to miscellaneous handshaking. Health authorities who have been interviewed say that the handshaking custom should be abandoned, as many harmful organisms can be transferred from hand to hand. According to one eminent doctor, "there is a real risk to health unless precautions of cleanliness are taken in passing voters down a campaign reception line."

"EQUAL OPPORTUNITY"

Strange indeed, how a catch phrase, full of light but devoid of substance can carry men beyond the confines of reason and sound judgment.

Herbert Hoover, in the course of his "Essay on Acceptance" gave forth the glittering generality that he believed all men should have an equal opportunity. The poor deluded Negro answered, "Amen—thank God, a Daniel come to judgment." Now suppose Hoover does believe that as an abstract proposition, is that any promise or indication that if elected, he will do anything in his great office to give the Negro an equal opportunity? If he knows of a great Negro lawyer will be give him an equal opportunity to serve as Attorney General or Justice of the Supreme Court. Will he give any Negro statesman an equal opportunity to be Ambassador to the Court of St. James? Will he give any Negro an equal opportunity to b eappointed to the Postmastership of any first class city? Not on your life. Now, what does he mean? He simply means to give every Negro an equal opportunity to vote the Republican ticket—to support the Ku Klux Klan and to march in the parade after victory. How gullible is the average Negro. Tom Heflin will tell any bunch of cheese head Negroes: "I think you are entitled to all the rights of any American citizen."

Yet, he is resolved in his soul and conscience to do his utmost to prevent the exercise of such rights. Thomas Jefferson said, all men have certain inalienable rights—among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," yet he robbed men of life, liberty and happiness, and riveted upon their weary limbs the wicked chains of slavery.

Coolidge said: "I am opposed to lynching," yet he did nothing to get any legislation to stop it. Vardaman, Tillman and Blian all declared the Negro entitled to his rights, yet they moved heaven and earth to obstruct their exercise.

Negro preachers and editors all over the land have bitten like trouts at Hoover's bait of "equal opportunity." Perry Howard was for Hoover. Did he get an equal opportunity with other dealers in appointments? Bob Church was for Hoover. Does Bob figure he is getting an equal opportunity?

When Hoover's aides sent Mrs. Hildebrand down South to cut Ben Davis' throat, did Ben feel he was getting an "equal opportunity?"

When Pennsylvania allowed Tom Heflin to address the K. K. K. and array all the bigoted fanatics against other fellow-mortals, was that an equal opportunity for the Jew, the Catholic, and the Negro?

Oh, my brother in black, don't hold the flattering unction to your soul that Mr. Hoover means anything by his great catch phrase of equal opportunity. If you have nerve and brains your opportunity is at hand. God grant you the wisdom to improve it.

JOURNAL
Dothan, Ala.
AUG 30 1928

THE NEGRO QUESTION

From present appearances the race question promises to play a more important part in the presidential campaign than it has in many years. That the question is liable to prove a serious handicap to political ambitions may yet be proven before the votes are counted. Neither political party is honest in it's open statements in regard to the negro which colored voters are now learning for themselves.

Leaders of the Republican padty have claimed to be the friends of the Negro, yet very little has been done to secure for the colored race the ambitions they hold. On the other hand the Democratic party has been held together very largely by the prejudice of the race question: Up in New York a large body of Negro voters are friendly to the Democratic nominee and are openily supporting his candidacy.

Now Democratic campaign managers know that unless Governor Smith can carry New York he stands no show whatever of winning his election. This body of negro voters in New York must not be driven away from his suppirt by appeals from Demicratic headquarters to Southern Democrats to vote for Al in order to prevent "Nigger Domination." Therefore headquarters must keep quiet and depend on Southern leaders in southern states to play on race prejudice.

There is no sense or reason in attempting to evade the negro question in a presidential campaign. We may wish to avoid it or to make it appear as trivial but the fact remains that the vote of the colored electorate is a serious menace to either political party and may have great influence in the outcome of the election.

When dealing with this question it is better to secure the negro viewpoint if possible and learn what may be expected from this direction. The following, taken from the editorial columns of The Christian Record the official organ of the African Methodist Church says:

> "When it comes to the Negro we are normally Republican. While the Negroes have been steadily growing restive under the Republican party the majority still feels that, in the language of Fred Douglass, "the Republican party is the ship; all else is the sea" Though the boat rocks why jump into the sea?
>
> "The recent actions of the Republican convention with regard to Negroes, in Kansas City, has not added to the confidence of the race in the party. The growing disposition of the Lily White Republicans to treat Negroes just as the Democrats treat them in the South is opening the eyes of many Negroes. The refusal of the Republican party to make any attempt to enforce the 14th and 15th amendments, while it vociferously calls for the 18th amendment, is not adding to the prestige of the party in the minds of thoughtful Negroes. In 1912, led by Bishop Walters, Negroes tried to make a revolt against the Republicans. The result is generally known and was not encouraging. Woodrow Wilson was a Southerner and an aristocrat, and while he could have done a great many things he looked upon the Negroes' complaints as trivial. He was unwilling to give the Negro a square deal. His Southern instincts showed themselves, and although Mr. Wilson had the greatest opportunity since Abraham Lincoln, he failed to use it. Possibly had the War not intervened he might have done differently.
>
> "It will be interesting to note how the Negro electorate will take Al Smith who has a record of fair treatment to Negroes; who has touched Negroes in politics all of his life and does not appear to be afraid of them. It will be interesting to see how the Negroes who handle his campaign will be able to organize the disgruntled sentiment of the hundreds of thousands of Negroes in the border doubtful states.
>
> "The fight is on. At least it will be interesting."

Just whether the colored vote will be delivered to the Republicans who have always been favored by them or whether there will be sufficient colored "bolters" to Smith to assure his victory in New York is now a question causing leaders considerable concern. Those inclined to consider the colored vote of little consequense may be surprised at the attempts of political leaders of both parties to gain the negro support.

The success of the Democratic nominee may depend on the eastern negro vote while the hope of the Republicans is that this normal negro support may be prevented from "bolting" the ranks of the regulars. In either event the result of the presidential election may be changed by the result of the efforts to swing the colored electorate into line.

With what appears to be a balance of power in the most doubtful state in which victory lays the negro question assumes proportions which furnishes a problem of increasing importance.

NEW YORK
EVE. TELEGRAM

SEP 7 1928

COLORED VOTE TO PLAY PART IN CAMPAIGN

Negroes Can Turn Election by Ballots in the Doubtful Border States.

POLITICIANS KEPT BUSY

Democrats Are Attempting to Steal Away Support in Northern Territory.

By LUDWELL DENNY,
New York Telegram Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Negro voters can turn the national election in doubtful border States. Hence the politicians are scurrying about trying to devise ways and means to make the colored vote safe for Hoover or Smith, as the case may be.

Republicans have reason to fear a revolt at the polls in some Northern cities, where negroes in the past have voted with almost automatic regularity for G. O. P. candidates. These changed conditions are said to be due to younger radicals of the race, who are preaching to their fellows that the Republican party has long exploited them by taking their votes without doing anything in return to justify the boasts of "Lincoln's party."

Quick to take advantage of this discontent, Democrats are going out for the first time with an almost nationwide organization to catch these racial ballots.

Three Fronts in Fight for Colored Vote.

According to the campaign strategists on both sides, there are three fronts in this battle:—Industrial centres of the North such as New York, Chicago and Indianapolis; border States, including Missouri and its St. Louis colored belt, and, of less importance because of so-called disenfranchising laws, certain Southern States such as North Carolina, where election returns may conceivably be close.

The Republican and Democratic problem in the industrial areas of the North is both political and economic. To meet racial discontent this year, they find they must pledge not only adequate political representation, but also protection for the welfare of the negro workers who are becoming "class conscious."

Unfortunately for the politicians, however, they find that the very propaganda required to capture the negro vote is the kind that will lose white votes in the doubtful border and Southern States.

In the North, Republicans are trying to sell their ticket on the basis of being the traditional party of the negro, committed to championing his equality of rights. But with Hoover trying to crash the border States and lead the G. O. P. into the solid South for the first time, Republicans find their worst obstacle the Democratic warning to beware of the "negro's party."

This situation is becoming no less embarrassing to the Democrats. In the North they want the valuable negro voters to forget that the party in Congress is dominated by Southern whites. In the South they want the whites to forget the Democratic appeal being made to colored voters above the Mason-Dixon line.

Smith's Forces Are Working in Harlem.

Smith's aids are working Harlem, the New York city belt. Organizations include Colored Democracy, led by F. Q. Morton, a negro municipal employe, and the Smith for President Colored League, under the National Democratic Committee, said to be active in many States.

In Chicago Republicans hope to hold the colored vote by allowing a negro to succeed the late Martin B. Madden in Congress. Direct political representation by a negro Congressman is generally recognized by politicians to be the most effective manner of "keeping the colored vote in line," provided this end can not be achieved "less expensively."

Not to be outdone in this, the Democrats have broken precedent by backing a negro for the Congressional seat from the Twelfth Missouri District in St. Louis. This young man is Joseph L. McLemore, formerly an employe at the national Capitol. He is running against Representative L. G. Dyer, author of the anti-lynching bill and popularly known as "the negroes' best friend in Washington."

ADVERTISER
ELMIRA, N. Y.

SEP 5 1928

COLORED FOLKS ORGANIZE CLUB

Charles D. Williams was elected president of the Colored Hoover and Curtis Club of Chemung County at its organization meeting at Republican headquarters Tuesday night.

Other officers chosen were: David Campbell, vice president; Miss Jennie Gibson, secretary; Mrs. Anna Johnson, treasurer.

Asaph B. Hall, secretary and acting chairman of the Republican county committee, and James Armstrong made addresses in which they praised the Republican national ticket and urged intensive campaign work on the part of members of the new club.

Other meetings are being held, at which it is planned to have prominent speakers.

DEMOCRAT
JOHNSTOWN, PA.

SEP 8 - 1928

Fear Lily White Movement

Southern Negroes Worked up Over Effort of White Republicans to Reconstruct G. O. P. in Dixie

In a special to the New York Herald Tribune from Jackson, Miss., Carter Field says that that state has little worth while Republican history. It was virtually untouched by the "new Republican" movement in the south which began in Texas some eight years ago. This amounted to something in Texas and Arkansas, and while not so strong in Louisiana as those states, it did make some headway, but in Mississippi it ran up against a stone wall due to the adroitness of the negro Republican leader, Perry Howard.

Aid to Howard Charged.

Incidentally it has frequently been charged that the Democratic leaders in the state found it to their interest to throw a little patronage in Perry Howard's way and used other means to encourage his continuance in power. Their motives have been variously described, sometimes rather unpleasantly, as notably by W. D. Jamieson, former member of the house and assistant treasurer of the Democratic national committee, in his publication called The Windowseat, but the underlying thought on their part was obviously that they could continue to dominate the state and hold all the local offices without a struggle, under the one-party system, as long as the local Republican party was controlled by negroes.

At any rate Howard remained dominant right up to the time of the Kansas City convention. A contest was staged against him there, but the national committee felt obliged to decide in Howard's favor. This was rather interesting in view of the fact that Hoover managers were absolutely in the saddle at the time, but Howard was smarter than Walter Cohen, over in Louisiana. He had his credentials all ship-shape and there was nothing to do but seat him.

It so happened that the contesting delegation was for Mr. Hoover and Howard was regarded as anti-Hoover, but Howard made a desperate effort to keep his organization afloat by earning the gratitude of the Hoover managers.

Howard's Eclipse Seen.

While some of the anti-Hoover leaders were still claiming that they had him "stopped," Howard issued a statement that his delegation had caucused and bound itself to vote for Hoover as long as his name was before the convention. Shortly after the convention adjourned, however, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt of the department of justice began to get after Howard on alleged sales of patronage and the general impression now is that Howard is through politically.

Some of Howard's negro lieutenants resent the prosecution of Howard very bitterly. They regard it as a persecution and insist that the real object is to do what has been done in Texas and Louisiana and create a lily white party. They do not discuss the moral issue involved, waving that aside with the comment that compelling men appointed to federal office to contribute to campaign funds heavily at the time of their appointment has been the accepted method of obtaining the sinews of war for campaigns for these many years. They call attention rather bitterly to the fact that there has been no prosecution of men generally believed to have done the same thing in states where the Republican leadership is white.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican

Asheville, N. C., Citizen
Sunday, September 9, 1928

Negroes Seek Right To Vote Democratic

HOUSTON, Texas, (AP)—After 58 years of allegiance to the republican party, many negro voters in Texas are promising feastly to the Democrats if they are allowed to cast ballots in the democratic primary elections.

So eager are the negroes to obtain a vote in the primaries that they have instituted suits which, their attorneys say, will be carried to the United States supreme court if necessary.

Texas laws leave to the political parties the power to fix qualifications of elections. The state democratic executive elections. The state democratic executive committee has made color one of the qualifications, specifying that a pledge, to appear at the head of ballots in the primary, read: "I am a white democrat and pledge myself to support the nominees of this primary."

In Texas the election of a republican to any state or local office is unusual. With the democratic primaries tantamount to general elections, negroes assert they are deprived of a privilege granted by the fifteenth amendment to the constitution.

In the face of previous court decisions holding that primray elections cannot be limited, negroes have applied in several Texas cities for injunctions to prevent election officials from barring them at the democratic primaries.

Judge J. C. Hutcheson of the United States district court at Houston refused an injunction on the grounds that affairs of political parties are not the business of the courts. An appeal to the United States circuit court at New Orleans now is being prepared.

Roanoke, Ala., Leader
Wednesday, August 29, 1928

DEMOCRATS NOMINATED A NEGRO IN MISSOURI

We have before us The Chicago Tribune of date August 12, 1928, and we find in that newspaper the picture of the "Honorable" Joseph L. McLemore, of St. Louis, said to be the first negro nominated for Congress by the Democrats. The picture reveals the thick lips, the flat nose and the kinky hair characteristics of the negro race. This Democratic nigger will oppose L. C. Dyer, Republican representative from the Twelfth Missouri district.

The Democratic party under its new Tammany leadership is asking Southern white men to take a long step away from "the faith of our fathers" when we are called upon to endorse Democratic niggers for seats in congress against Republican white men.

The candidacy of the "Honorable" Mr. McLemore, a negro, and the nominee of the Democratic party in the Twelfth Missouri district, is respectfully referred to "Plain Bill" Brandon, Hon. Hugh Mallory, and Col. Samford for such comment as they deem pertinent in the premises.—Abbeville Herald.

An Open Letter To Negro Ministers of Georgia

TO COLORED PROTESTANT MINISTERS OF GEORGIA:

It is being argued by Al Smith's following that the preacher has no place in politics; that he ought to stay out of government affairs, and let Tammany Hall and the devil run the country.

The preacher has a place in the national equation everywhere the power of God can make men better. If the lawyer, doctor, teacher and farmer have a place in politics, why shouldn't the preacher talk for, and support those principles of government that he believes are best and most beneficial to man?

The white clergy in the South has risen up in righteous indignation against the foes of clean government and righteousness, in spite of those who protest in the spirit of evil doing.

The paramount question in this campaign is morality, and the Church being the world's greatest moral force cannot sit idly by, and see the devil take all the people to perdition without protesting.

We are a Christian nation, and the fundamental principle upon which our Government rests, is faith in God. When the Republic was formed by the Colonies, the Colonists sought the Church for its form of government, and why at this late day, should those who represent the genius and spirit of our institution be denied a voice in the selection of those who are to rule over them?

But, the object of this letter is to awaken Negro preachers to answer the Macedonian call; to sound the tocsin day in the day out; to tell him he has a place in the political life of his country, and he should join his white brother in arousing the public conscience against rum, race hatred, and the devil.

We have been listening with anxious ears and a bleeding heart to see Negro ministers join his white brother in the slogan, "Away with whisky and the immoral forces that debauch our bodies and destroy our souls." Have the Negro preachers no moral sensibilities? The white pulpit is warning its people of the impending dangers threatening the very life of our people. Won't the colored preacher warn his race? Won't you say just a word? Won't you hold the light so high, we will not stumble? Are you blind to the evil of the liquor traffic?

You have a place in the politics of our country. Take the church out of politics, and the world will forget God, and return to savagery and heathenism.

Let the colored preacher rise, and prove that he is a real leader of men, in all things that are righteous, and that his place is wherever he can serve God and humanity, all the Al Smiths, Joe Robinsons, Cole Bleases, and Pat Harrisons to the contrary, notwithstanding. J. B. Davis.

Whiteville, N. C., Reporter
Thursday, September 6, 1928

NEGRO NOMINEE SAYS RACE WILL SUPPORT GOV. SMITH

McLemore, Running In St. Louis Colored District, Is First Of His People Put Up By Democrats For Congress

By Ralph Coghlan
Of the Staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch

St. Louis, Aug. 21. (Special)—Joseph L. McLemore, a 32-year-old Negro lawyer, claims to be the first member of his race to be nominated for Congress on a Democratic ticket. McLemore won his nomination for Congress in the Twelfth Congressional district from E. G. Hancock, a former police sergeant, by a vote of 2,712 to 1.475.

The Twelfth district lies within the boundaries of St. Louis and has a heavy Negro population. Leonidas Carstarphen Dyer, Republican candidate, was unopposed.

He Was War Veteran

Dyer and his Negro opponent are not unknown to each other. After McLemore returned from the war he attended Howard University in Washington. Upon recommendation of Frank L. Williams, superintendent of Summer High School, a Negro institution of St. Louis, Dyer got McLemore a job as an elevator operator in the Capitol.

Dyer thus helped to an education the man who will be his opponent in the November election.

Dyer Long In Congress

Dyer has represented the district in Congress for many years. He was first elected to the Sixty-second Congress. He received a certificate of election to the Sixty-third, but was unseated, to use the language of the Congressional Directory, "through a partisan contest instituted by the Democratic candidate."

Dyer was re-elected to the Sixty fourth Congress and has represented the district ever since, beating his Democratic opponents with east. In the last election he received 14,494 to his opponent's 9,120.

McLemore believes he has a strong chance of ending Dyer's long tenure. He says sixty-five per cent of the vote in the district is Negro. He believes he will get three-fourths of it on the basis of racial loyalty, which, when added to a part of the white Democratic vote, will send him to Washington.

"Most of the Democratic vote is white," says McLemore. "In the past the Negroes here have been voting the Republican ticket, but this year Al Smith is a big drawing power among the Negroes and many of those who formerly supported the Republican ticket are going to vote the Democratic ticket straight—from Smith on down.

"The trouble is the Negro has been to strong a Republican. As a result the Republicans count the Negro vote ahead of time and they don't do anything for him. In New York City the Negroes vote Democratic and consequently the Negro gets recognition there with an occasional office."

Dyer's analysis of his district is at variance with McLemore's. Dyer, who has been very successful in polling the Negro vote in the past, claims it represents only a third of the total.

Since the fact that McLemore is a Negro was not brought out strongly before the primary election, one veteran St. Louis politician, casting about for an explanation of his victory, thinks the prefix "etc" in McLemore had something to do with it. There are many Irish Democrats in the Twelfth district.

McLemore was born in Louisiana. "I was 12 years old before I got any formal schooling," he says. "My mother was a cook for white families. My father had died when I was 7 years old.

"With the consent of my mother I left home and went to Galveston, Texas, and worked for a barber there. His wife inspired me to seek education.

"I managed to get into Fisk University. Then I heard about Summer High School in St. Louis and without funds I came here. I got a job and lived at the Y. M. C. A. Then I volunteered and went to war.

University Graduate

"When I returned from war I was admitted to Howard, studied law and completed my law studies at New York University. I started practicing law here six years ago. I was too busy getting a foothold to think of politics. This is the first time I've been in it actively."

McLemore's wife if the daughter of the man who gave an impetus to his career, Principal Williams of the Negro high school. It was Williams who took the penniless boy into the high school and who later recommended him to Congressman Dyer for employment in the Capitol.—(ADV.)—The Evening Sun, Baltimore, Tuesday, August, 21, 1928.

PORTLAND, ME.

Press

SEP 1 1928

The Negro Vote

New Bedford Standard

Political writers have been giving some space to the vote of the Negroes in states where they are allowed to vote. The facts entering into the situation are many and confusing. It is said, for example, that Mr. Hoover's action in putting an end to the segregation of Negro workers in the Department of Commerce should win him Negro support, but against this it is asserted that in some of the southern states the Hoover workers are making overtures to white Democrats who have never been friendly to the Negroes. At the same time, southern Democrats who are trying to hold the whites in line for Smith are also unfriendly to the blacks, and have used as one of their arguments against Hoover the consideration he has shown Negroes in his department. Argument along that line is in a circle, and one comes out by the same door at which one entered. On Smith's behalf it is being said that nowhere are Negroes more prosperous than in Harlem. Harlem is in New York City, New York City is in New York state, and Smith is the governor thereof. Still another matter that is considered as likely to affect the Negro vote is the prosecution of Negro Republican politicians in southern states for selling jobs. When all is said and done, it is possible that these things will be ignored at election, and that northern Negroes will be influenced in their votes by much the same considerations as influence the whites.

CONSTITUTION

ATLANTA, GA.

SEP 5 1928

HARRIS ATTACKS G. O. P. AT MADISON

Madison, Ga., September 4.—(Special.)—Senator William J. Harris addressed a large audience in the Morgan county court house today. Senator Harris gave an account of his stewardship as the senior senator for the nine and a half years he has served Georgia in the United States senate.

He referred to the republican party, under the administrations of Harding and Coolidge, and said that never before in American history had there been so much incompetency, corruption and graft and that Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, was one of the richest men in the United States and that his fortune had been built upon the distillation of whiskey and beer and that William S. Vare, recently elected by the republicans of Pennsylvania to a seat in the senate, had but one plank in his platform, and that was the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Senator Harris said that Hoover owed his nomination directly to Mellon and Vare and asked how anybody who wanted to see a strict and legal enforcement of the prohibition laws could reasonably expect Hoover to do it.

The speaker told his audience that he worked harder than anybody, with the exception of Senator Simmons, of North Carclina, and Senator Heflin, of Alabama, to prevent the nomination of Governor Smith at Houston, believing that there were other candidates who would better represent the views of the southern people on the prohibition question than Governor Smith, but that he honestly believed that when Smith, if elected, held up his hand and took a solemn oath to support the constitution and all amendments thereto, that his record as governor of the state of New York would be a guarantee of his sincerity. And that in any event Smith would come nearer enforcing the law than Hoover.

The senator called the attention of his hearers to the fact that Senator Morris Shepard, of Texas, the author of the eighteenth amendment; Volstead, Josephus Daniels, Carter Glass, Dan Moody, Pat Harrison, Walter George and many others of the outstanding prohibitionists of the country had declared in behalf of Smith.

He said that Hoover, in the contest with Senator Willis, of Ohio, for the support of the Ohio delegates at the Kansas City convention, made a play for the negro vote of Ohio by abrogating the segregation order in the department of commerce whereby the whites and negroes were thrown into intimate contact. He told a story of a southern white woman who came to him in tears saying she could no longer hold her position in the commerce department and retain her self respect.

Senator Harris said it was hard to understand where Hoover stood on anything. That when serving under Wilson as food administrator he approved the veto of the Volstead act. That a few months ago he considered it as a mere experiment. That now he had swallowed it. That under Wilson he was pro-League of Nations, under Harding and Coolidge anti-League of Nations. That just a few years ago the people of this country didn't know whether he was a republican or a democrat and that he had trained in both stables.

The speaker touched on the Dyer anti-lynch law plank in the republican platform which, if put into effect, would make a county pay $10,000 if a crowd of hoodlums and lawbreakers came from another county and violated this proposed law. He also spoke of the iniquitous Lodge force bill that the opposite party tried to saddle upon the south a few years ago and said that the republican party was, had always been, and always would be the enemy of the south.

The senator was introduced by ex-Senator Albert G. Foster in a brilliant five-minute speech.

5 ORGANIZATIONS LIST RECEIPTS IN CAMPAIGN

Republican Senatorial Committee and Smith Colored League Report Expenditures.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12 (AP).—The financial report of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, filed today with the Clerk of the House, disclosed receipts of $19,974 and disbursements of $16,853 for the period from June 10 to Sept. 1.

Another financial statement received was that of the Smith-for-President Colored League, with headquarters in New York City. William Gaston, Treasurer, reported that $15,500 had been received, $15,000 of which came from the Democratic National Committee. Disbursements by this organization during August totaled $4,443.

A contribution of $10 and no disbursements were reported by the Campaign Committee of the Varney-Edgerton prohibition ticket by George L. Pennock of Lansdowne, Pa., the Treasurer. Pennock also attached an affidavit showing that he had advanced $150 in connection with traveling expenses for two delegates to the National Prohibition Executive Committee meeting recently held in Chicago.

Louis F. Powell of Richmond, Va., reported that the Anti-Saloon League Committee of that State had received $1,141 and disbursed $1,139. The West Virginia Anti-Saloon League Campaign Committee accounting, made by F. A. Thomas of Charleston, showed receipts of $796 and disbursements of $658.

Courier

SEP 6 1928

LOUISVILLE, KY.

A COLORED VOTER TO COLORED VOTERS.

To the Editor of The Courier-Journal.

There has never been a time, since the emancipation of the Negro race, when it was more vitally necessary for the colored voter to lift up his head, stop, look and listen.

The present conditions confronting the American people today are unprecedented in the history of our American Government. Both of the dominant political parties have headed their respective tickets with men of the highest possible attainments. The only difference between Hoover and Smith is in the personality of the two men. In consideration of the prevailing conditions confronting us, the ability to meet, and effect a satisfactory solution, the personality of Al Smith is far superior to that of Hoover.

We know what Hoover will be, from what Coolidge has been, for he will simply be a duplication of Coolidgism. We have had enough of Coolidge.

In this campaign, the Negro voters will constitute the balance of power in all the border States; hence it is more necessary that they act wisely in the consideration of these two men.

As is usually the case during heated political discussions, many things are said or propagated that when closely investigated will be found to be political buncombe. At this stage of the campaign, much is being said about the religion of Al Smith and his wet tendencies. Of course this is designed by the shrewd politicians to decoy and mislead the less informed voter.

It is amazing how densely ignorant some people seem to be in the midst of a political campaign, on such little matters, and they are not all colored people, either.

There are several reasons why the colored vote should go to Al Smith at this time. First, because he is hated and maligned by one of the most wicked and menacing institutions in America today, namely, the Ku Klux Klan. This infamous organization is traditionally and historically opposed to the Negro race. There has never been a time, since the War Between the States, when the Negro has had a better chance to destroy that notorious un-American movement than at this time. It can be done by electing a man at the head of our Nation who has the moral courage and the backbone to completely destroy and annihilate it.

It is generally known that the Republican party is klan-ridden from North to South and East to West. We have no stronger evidence of the truthfulness of this statement than what it has done and is doing in the State of Indiana, and what it is trying to do in Kentucky and other States throughout the United States. It is only a question of time when its baneful influence will inoculate the entire body politic of our American Nation. Nine-tenths of its victims will be Negroes.

There are those who pretend to believe that the election of Al Smith to the Presidency of the United States would mean the return of the saloon, when, as a matter of fact, if such an event was possible, the prohibition question could not be worse than what it is at the present time. Our greatest asset as a result of the functioning of the liquor law, for the last ten years, is a large number of hypocritical preachers and professional bootleg doctors.

It is remarkably strange that some of our so-called religious leaders have not found it advisable to go into hysterics over the failure to enforce the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, as well as the Eighteenth Amendment.

As a race we are not concerned about Al Smith's politics, religion or his nationality. What we need now, is a man with a record of splendid achievements and executive ability, with convictions and the courage to enforce them.

As the late Woodrow Wilson once said, "This country is not against the German people, but against Germany." In voting for Al Smith, we are not voting for his profession or religion, but for his personality. We need not necessarily call ourselves Democrats or Republicans. What we should be concerned about is the man, Al Smith. A COLORED VOTER.

Louisville.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

PROGRESS

Charlottesville, Va

SEP 7 1928

NEGRO VOTERS FAIL TO PLEDGE TO HOOVER

NEWPORT NEWS—By defeating a resolution pledging to their support to Herbert Hoover the Republican nominee and voting "to encourage the spirit of inquiry" as to the issues and candidates, the Independent Negro Voters' League, in session at Bay Shore bespoke their independence of the Republican party in the coming presidential election.

BROOKLYN STANDARD UNION

SEP 11 1928

MILLION NEGRO VOTERS WORRY HOOVER CHIEFS

Colored Population Resents Indifference of Republican Party in Past

SWING TO SMITH SEEN

Klan and Liquor Issues Are Factors That Cause Leaning to Democratic Bandwagon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—A million negro voters in the Northern and border States are giving no end of concern to the Hoover campaign managers.

For the first time since they were given the vote, the colored brethren are divided. In the past they have been so regular in their Republicanism that it was unnecessary to give them any thought before the election or any substantial recognition afterward. This year all this is changed.

Instead of "The party of Abraham Lincoln is good enough fo' me," the chant of the colored folks in the present campaign is: "What has the Republican Party ever done for us?"

See Smith Get Bulk.

Insurgent ideas, fanned into flame by leaders of their own race, have brought about a situation which is not only unprecedented in Presidential politics, but to students of politics s among the most fascinating phenomena of the 1928 campaign. In some sections the swing to Gov. Smith is so strong that it appears probable the Democratic nominee will get the bulk of the negro vote. In other States the colored voters appear torn between their old allegiance, dating back to the Civil War, and the opportunity offered them to vote against the Ku Klux Klan in casting a vote for Smith. The resultant confusion has given the organizers for both parties a problem with which they have never before been confronted.

In addition to the Klan issue, there is the liquor issue. The negroes who "want their gin"—and Prohibition has never had the appeal for the blacks it has for the white population.

Although there are approximately 11,000,000 negroes in the United States, about 3,000,000 of this number live in the Northern or border States, excluding Virginia—in short, in the States where they are accustomed to vote. It is estimated that half are of voting age, and that except in Tennessee, the percentage of voters runs high, due to the fact the negroes in the cities are usually well organized.

Of the 3,000,000 voters who live outside the States of the Solid South, approximately 1,400,000 are found in the five border States of Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Missouri, and a corresponding number in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Kansas.

More Swing to Democrats.

It is in a dozen States or less, therefore, that the colored vote really counts. And there it counts so heavily that some statisticians insist President Coolidge was the first Republican Presidential candidate to be elected without the aid of the negroes. The colored vote, up to a few years ago, was considered to constitute a balance of power without which the Republicans could not have carried New Jersey Ohio and Indiana.

Under the circumstances, to find the negroes of the North swinging to Smith in numbers never before imagined possible is disturbing to the complacency of the Republicans and correspondingly welcome to the Democrats, who are making the most of it.

Only in New York City in past years have Democratic leaders ever been successful in organizing the negroes in effective numbers. There the methods of Tammany have succeeded where other efforts failed. This year, however, the swing to Smith is spontaneous—sufficiently so to force a revision of earlier election estimates in several States.

Under the caption, "The Rising Tide of Protest," the Washington "Eagle," one of the negro newspapers published here, says editorially in summing up the political unrest among members of the colored race:

"The Republican Party must view with alarms the unrest obtaining among the colored voters of the country. The break away from party alignment is due in many cases to the desire to register a protest against Hoover for the attitude of the leaders of the Republican Party toward the negro under the past two administrations. . . . Thinking negroes are tired of the humiliation they have suffered for eight long years under the Republican Party."

NEW YORK AMERICAN

SEP 9 1928

G. O. P. STARTS DRIVE TO HOLD COLORED VOTE

Stirred by Reports of Heavy Drift to Smith, Work Opens Counter-Move Campaign

By ARTHUR HACHTEN.
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Stirred by reports of a heavy drift of negro votes to Governor Smith, Republican chieftains today applied high pressure methods to curb this migration and hold the bulk of the colored vote for Hoover in the Presidential race.

Democratic leaders were reported driving wedges in the Republican colored vote, especially in the larger Northern cities. Defections to Smith were reported in Ohio.

WORK ORDERS DRIVE.

The G. O. P. in past Presidential elections has counted the colored vote as safe for its nominee. Orders went down the line today from Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican National Committee, to make counter moves to offset the Democratic inroads.

He announced appointment of Harry E. Davis, of Cleveland, as a member of the executive committee of nine of the colored voters' division to help in the Hoover-Curtis campaign.

Davis, college graduate and former member of the Ohio General Assembly, is a director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Word was passed from Republican national headquarters here today to Hoover-Curtis forces in New York State to drive for a huge Republican registration there.

G. O. P. REGISTRATION HEAVY.

Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York iCty, reported to Hoover and Work that the Republican registration in the Empir State exceeds by 200,000 the Democratic registration. He predicted Hoover will carry New York by at last 100,000 mapority.

Hoover was guest at a farewell dinner by about eight hundred employes of the Commerce Department here tonight in appreciation of his seven years as Secretary.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Walter H. Brown, on behalf of 2,200 employes of the department, presented to the Presidential nominee a grandfather's clock. It was sent to Hoover's home, and a book containing autographs of the 2,200 contributors was handed to him tonight

RECORDER

Milledgeville, Ga

AUG 30 1928

NEGROES AND WHITES THROWN TOGETHER BY ORDER OF MR. HOOVER

(Walton Tribune)

The editor of The Tribune had a long talk with United States Senator Walter F. George during a railroad journey last week and was greatly impressed by his earnest support of the national democratic nominees as well as with his splendid grasp of national problems as a whole.

Senator George talked informingly of Hoover's act in throwing together the whites and blacks employed in his department and stated that Hoover himself was directly responsible for this shameless condition of affairs.

After Hoover got in the race for president he was visited by some negro politicians from Ohio and told that unless he abolished the order segregating the races he was likely to lose the negro vote of that state.

The order was abolished almost immediately afterwards. The day after it went into effect Senator George was visited by a poor little white woman from Alabama who broke down and cried when she told him that she had been put to work right beside a burly negro man. The woman had to work somewhere, and there was nowhere else for her to go. Visits of white women from Georgia and other states followed, but of course there was nothing that the Senator could do.

There has been some attempt to deny that Hoover has made any chnages in his department affecting the two races, but the facts above set out are vouched for by Senator George, who personally knows the situation as it exists, and will be substantiated by every member of congress from Georgia at Washington.

The whites and blacks were thrown together and are still working together, and at Hoover's order. And to make the situation worse, the republican candidate did not issue his order throwing them together until he was threatened by the negro politicians from Ohio.

As we understand it, the mixing of the races occurred in the census department, a section of the department of commerce, which is administered by Mr. Hoover.

New Orleans, La., States
Sunday, September 2, 1928

MUST HOLD ON TO NEGRO LEADERS

Republicans Unable To Get Rid of Them In South

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1.—Ridding many of the Southern states of negro Republican leadership has been found virtually impossible and will not be attempted by the G. O. P., it was learned today.

A system entrenched in fifty years cannot be rooted out within a single campaign, even if the Republican high command could agree that it was desirable. There is a sharp division among Republican leaders as how to handle the situation.

One group believes that former Secretary Hoover to achieve victory must carry at least two of the ten old Confederate states, "secession states" as they used to be referred to by the Republican orators. They would have him root out the negroes who they insist have earned their living in the past largely by trafficking in federal jobs and national convention delegates, and go after the white votes.

Midsummer Night's Dream

The other group thinks the whole Southern business insofar as the obtaining a single electoral vote for Hoover and Curtis is concerned is a midsummer night's dream. This group, a rather hard-headed one, thinks that the principal result of a campaign in the South would be to increase the popular vote without increasing the electoral vote. In support of their position their point out that the ten Confederate states, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina Texas and Virginia have a total population of 25,415,000 and yet in 1924 they cast fewer votes for Coolidge than he received in the one state of Iowa.

This second group thinks that, admitting there is strong opposition in the South to Governor Smith, the ground that would have to be made up to carry any of the Southern states is too great in a campaign where every dollar than can be raised and every bit of work that can be done is needed to save normally Republican territory.

Klan Leading Fight

Another danger is that were the negroes ousted the white Republican party in several of the states would begin its career under the dominance of Ku Klux Klan sentiment and influence, due to the fact that the Klan in many places is leading the movement against Smith. Such a condition might result in many of the negroes in states where their votes are needed for Republican success, remaining away from the polls. The Republican leaders do not believe many negroes will vote the Democratic ticket. The presence of the Southern Senator Robinson on the Democratic ticket is regarded as a sufficient guarantee against that. But if the Northern negro voters stayed away from the polls in large numbers the result might be fatal.

Another reason why it is impossible to jar the negro leaders loose in the Southern states where they are in power is the fact that most of them were pre-convention supporters of Mr. Hoover. Of the sixty negro delegates to the Republican National convention at Kansas City, just one, Walter Cohen, of Louisiana, was anti-Hoover. It was the negro delegates lined up by Perry Howard of Mississippi and Ben C. Davis of Georgia which formed the nucleus around which the Hoover strength grew.

Therefore, for the present at least, the negroes are not to be displaced. In Mississippi since the Kansas City convention Perry W. Howard, who managed the Hoover pre-convention activities among negroes, both in the North and South, has been indicted for alleged sale of federal jobs. Howard claims a frame-up against him by elements desiring "lily whitism." His associate on the national committee from Mississippi, however, Mrs. Mary C. Booze, a negress, is on the committee working to get out the negro vote for the Republican ticket.

In Georgia

Ben C. Davis, the Georgia negro leader, is back in full command in that state. He has recently placed in the field a full slate of white electors, including two former Democrats who were delegates to the Democratic National Convention at Houston. Davis, through his paper, "The Independent," is whooping it up for the Republican ticket. In his latest issue he prints the following editorial:

"Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic party, so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred as exemplified in Memphis, Georgia, Mississippi and Texas. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic party.

"Al Smith is no better than the Democratic party. His record does not disclose a single favor that he has done for the negroes in New York. He (the negro) knows the Democratic party is his sworn enemy.

"As infamous and as wrong and as cowardly as lily whitism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic party against the American negro."

COLUMBUS, O.
Citizen
SEP 5 1928

COLORED VOTES.

Editor of Citizen:

ALL this talk about the colored voters deserting the Republican party in November is hot air. The colored votes for Al Smith will be few and far between.

Why should we bite the hand that feeds us? If it had not been for the Republican party we would not have the right to vote. And this November we will exercise that right by voting for Hoover.

COLORED VOTER.

Macon, Ga., News
Sunday, September 2, 1928

Pot and Kettle

For several weeks past our esteemed contemporary, The Macon Telegraph, has been suffering from a Ben Davis complex. Just as "all is yellow to the jaundiced eye," so everything connected with Hoover and the cause he represents has, in the eye of our contemporary, taken on the sable hue of Ben Davis.

Lacking in any sound reasons to advance as an apology for its support of the Tammany candidate, whose record—to use The Telegraph's own words of April 26, 1927— "BELIES HIS BELIEF IN THE RIGID ENFORCEMENT OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT," and who therefore, in the opinion of our contemporary, would be false to his oath if he were elected, The Telegraph has constantly harped on Ben Davis, in an appeal to race prejudice, and has indicated that the men and women who voted for Hoover would, in some occult way, be defiled by asociation with Ben Davis.

On August, 31, in a weird editorial whose more solid qualities consisted of nine semi-colons and a bed-time story, our contemporary worked itself up to the point of declaring that the "head of the Republican ticket" was actually "nominated by Ben Davis."

From the beginning our contemporary has been strangely silent as to the position enjoyed by Ferdinand Q. Morton, the negro member of the New York Civil Service Commission, who has a white secretary and many other white persons immediately under him, and who is one of Tammany's chief lieutenants in keeping the negroes of Harlem lined up for the Tiger and its cubs, such as Al Smith.

Our contemporary has been strangely silent as to the candidacy of one Joseph L. McLemore, Jr., a negro, who has been nominated by the Democrats of the Twelfth district of Missouri (the district being a part of St. Louis), for representative in Congress. The magazine, Time, of August 20, says "he is the first negro in a border state or Southern state to be nominated for Congress by the Democratic party," and adds:

"Last week he optimistically predicted that he would be elected to Congress, said that three-fourths of the voters of his St. Louis district are negroes. His opponent, Representative Leonidas Carstarphen Dyer, white, Republican, denied that more than one-third of the voters are negroes. A bitter battle loomed.

"There have been 19 negro representatives and two negro senators, most of them members of the Reconstruction Congresses and men of little education. In Northern cities, Republicans have made profitable political use of negroes. Democrats, cramped by party tradition, have only recently allied themselves with negroes (particularly in New York City)."

Has none of this come to the attention of our morning contemporary? If so, why this continued horror of Hoover because he and Ben Davis belong to the same party?

And who is this Leonidas Carstarphen Dyer, who is being opposed by a negro Democrat. He is the gentleman with hoofs and horns who introduced the Dyer anti-lynching bill, so frequently held up to frighten Democratic children into remaining "regular."

Does our contemporary imagine that if Dyer is defeated by the negro Democrat in Missouri, the colored representative will press any less vigorously for the antilynching bill that Dyer himself fostered?

The magazine, Time, is well aware of the use the Tammany organization makes of the negroes in New York. They outnumber Ben Davis by nearly 499,000, but even Time is stirred by the unusual circumstance that the Democrats of a border state have nominated a negro for Congress.

But we will bring the situation closer home. A dispatch to The Macon News on Sunday announced that the supporters of the Tammany candidate have just organized the negroes of Valdosta into the Al Smith-for-President League. Rather an awkward name, but a still more awkward fact. The head of the local organization claims that the League will be able to win for the Tammany candidate at least half of the negro voters of that community.

Can one Ben Davis on the side of Hoover defile the opponents of Al Smith more than a whole league of Ben Davises in Lowndes county can defile those who are supporting the Tammany candidate?

Now that the movement has started in Valdosta we may expect to hear of other units of the Al Smith-for-President Colored League in Georgia cities.

And poor Ben Davis, robbed of his solitary eminence as a source of contamination, will look as lonely as Marius among the ruins of Carthage.

But in his loneliness he will have the satisfaction, which the opponents of the Tammany candidate will have, of not voting for a candidate, who, in the opinion of The Macon Telegraph, has a record "WHICH BELIES HIS BELIEF IN THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT."

New Orleans, La., States
Sunday, September 2, 1928

MUST HOLD ON TO NEGRO LEADERS

Republicans Unable To Get Rid of Them In South

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1.—Ridding many of the Southern states of negro Republican leadership has been found virtually impossible and will not be attempted by the G. O. P., it was learned today.

A system entrenched in fifty years cannot be rooted out within a single campaign, even if the Republican high command could agree that it was desirable. There is a sharp division among Republican leaders as how to handle the situation.

One group believes that former Secretary Hoover to achieve victory must carry at least two of the ten old Confederate states, "secession states" as they used to be referred to by the Republican orators. They would have him root out the negroes who they insist have earned their living in the past largely by trafficking in federal jobs and national convention delegates, and go after the white votes.

Midsummer Night's Dream

The other group thinks the whole Southern business insofar as the obtaining a single electoral vote for Hoover and Curtis is concerned is a midsummer night's dream. This group, a rather hard-headed one, thinks that the principal result of a campaign in the South would be to increase the popular vote without increasing the electoral vote. In support of their position their point out that the ten Confederate states, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina Texas and Virginia have a total population of 25,415,000 and yet in 1924 they cast fewer votes for Coolidge than he received in the one state of Iowa.

This second group thinks that, admitting there is strong opposition in the South to Governor Smith, the ground that would have to be made up to carry any of the Southern states is too great in a campaign where every dollar than can be raised and every bit of work that can be done is needed to save normally Republican territory.

Klan Leading Fight

Another danger is that were the negroes ousted the white Republican party in several of the states would begin its career under the dominance of Ku Klux Klan sentiment and influence, due to the fact that the Klan in many places is leading the movement against Smith. Such a condition might result in many of the negroes in states where their votes are needed for Republican success, remaining away from the polls. The Republican leaders do not believe many negroes will vote the Democratic ticket. The presence of the Southern Senator Robinson on the Democratic ticket is regarded as a sufficient guarantee against that. But if the Northern negro voters stayed away from the polls in large numbers the result might be fatal.

Another reason why it is impossible to jar the negro leaders loose in the Southern states where they are in power is the fact that most of them were pre-convention supporters of Mr. Hoover. Of the sixty negro delegates to the Republican National convention at Kansas City, just one, Walter Cohen, of Louisiana, was anti-Hoover. It was the negro delegates lined up by Perry Howard of Mississippi and Ben C. Davis of Georgia which formed the nucleus around which the Hoover strength grew.

Therefore, for the present at least, the negroes are not to be displaced. In Mississippi since the Kansas City convention Perry W. Howard, who managed the Hoover pre-convention activities among negroes, both in the North and South, has been indicted for alleged sale of federal jobs. Howard claims a frame-up against him by elements desiring "lily whitism." His associate on the national committee from Mississippi, however, Mrs. Mary C. Booze, a negress, is on the committee working to get out the negro vote for the Republican ticket.

In Georgia

Ben C. Davis, the Georgia negro leader, is back in full command in that state. He has recently placed in the field a full slate of white electors, including two former Democrats who were delegates to the Democratic National Convention at Houston. Davis, through his paper, "The Independent," is whooping it up for the Republican ticket. In his latest issue he prints the following editorial:

"Sometimes we may vote for a Democrat because of the man, but we can never vote for the Democratic party, so long as it stands for ignorance, meanness and race hatred as exemplified in Memphis, Georgia, Mississippi and Texas. A vote for Al Smith is not a vote for the man, but a vote for the Democratic party.

"Al Smith is no better than the Democratic party. His record does not disclose a single favor that he has done for the negroes in New York. He (the negro) knows the Democratic party is his sworn enemy.

"As infamous and as wrong and as cowardly as lily whitism is, it is no worse than the robbery and outlawry of the Democratic party against the American negro."

COLUMBUS, O.

Citizen
SEP 5 1928

COLORED VOTES.

Editor of Citizen:

ALL this talk about the colored voters deserting the Republican party in November is hot air. The colored votes for Al Smith will be few and far between.

Why should we bite the hand that feeds us? If it had not been for the Republican party we would not have the right to vote. And this November we will exercise that right by voting for Hoover.

COLORED VOTER.

Macon Ga., News
Sunday, September 2, 1928

Pot and Kettle

For several weeks past our esteemed contemporary, The Macon Telegraph, has been suffering from a Ben Davis complex. Just as "all is yellow to the jaundiced eye," so everything connected with Hoover and the cause he represents has, in the eye of our contemporary, taken on the sable hue of Ben Davis.

Lacking in any sound reasons to advance as an apology for its support of the Tammany candidate, whose record—to use The Telegraph's own words of April 26, 1927— "BELIES HIS BELIEF IN THE RIGID ENFORCEMENT OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT," and who therefore, in the opinion of our contemporary, would be false to his oath if he were elected, The Telegraph has constantly harped on Ben Davis, in an appeal to race prejudice, and has indicated that the men and women who voted for Hoover would, in some occult way, be defiled by asociation with Ben Davis.

On August, 31, in a weird editorial whose more solid qualities consisted of nine semi-colons and a bed-time story, our contemporary worked itself up to the point of declaring that the "head of the Republican ticket" was actually "nominated by Ben Davis."

From the beginning our contemporary has been strangely silent as to the position enjoyed by Ferdinand Q. Morton, the negro member of the New York Civil Service Commission, who has a white secretary and many other white persons immediately under him, and who is one of Tammany's chief lieutenants in keeping the negroes of Harlem lined up for the Tiger and its cubs, such as Al Smith.

Our contemporary has been strangely silent as to the candidacy of one Joseph L. McLemore, Jr., a negro, who has been nominated by the Democrats of the Twelfth district of Missouri (the district being a part of St. Louis), for representative in Congress. The magazine, Time, of August 20, says "he is the first negro in a border state or Southern state to be nominated for Congress by the Democratic party," and adds:

"Last week he optimistically predicted that he would be elected to Congress, said that three-fourths of the voters of his St. Louis district are negroes. His opponent, Representative Leonidas Carstarphen Dyer, white, Republican, denied that more than one-third of the voters are negroes. A bitter battle loomed.

"There have been 19 negro representatives and two negro senators, most of them members of the Reconstruction Congresses and men of little education. In Northern cities, Republicans have made profitable political use of negroes. Democrats, cramped by party tradition, have only recently allied themselves with negroes (particularly in New York City)."

Has none of this come to the attention of our morning contemporary? If so, why this continued horror of Hoover because he and Ben Davis belong to the same party?

And who is this Leonidas Carstarphen Dyer, who is being opposed by a negro Democrat. He is the gentleman with hoofs and horns who introduced the Dyer anti-lynching bill, so frequently held up to frighten Democratic children into remaining "regular."

Does our contemporary imagine that if Dyer is defeated by the negro Democrat in Missouri, the colored representative will press any less vigorously for the antilynching bill that Dyer himself fostered?

The magazine, Time, is well aware of the use the Tammany organization makes of the negroes in New York. They outnumber Ben Davis by nearly 499,000, but even Time is stirred by the unusual circumstance that the Democrats of a border state have nominated a negro for Congress.

But we will bring the situation closer home. A dispatch to The Macon News on Sunday announced that the supporters of the Tammany candidate have just organized the negroes of Valdosta into the Al Smith-for-President League. Rather an awkward name, but a still more awkward fact. The head of the local organization claims that the League will be able to win for the Tammany candidate at least half of the negro voters of that community.

Can one Ben Davis on the side of Hoover defile the opponents of Al Smith more than a whole league of Ben Davises in Lowndes county can defile those who are supporting the Tammany candidate?

Now that the movement has started in Valdosta we may expect to hear of other units of the Al Smith-for-President Colored League in Georgia cities.

And poor Ben Davis, robbed of his solitary eminence as a source of contamination, will look as lonely as Marius among the ruins of Carthage.

But in his loneliness he will have the satisfaction, which the opponents of the Tammany candidate will have, of knowing that many candidate as a whole will have, of not voting for a candidate, who, in the opinion of The Macon Telegraph, has a record "WHICH BELIES HIS BELIEF IN THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT."

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IS DEAD --NEVAL THOMAS

Party Which Abolished Slavery Silent On Peonage And Segregation

NO LIMIT TO THEM BRAZEN EFFONTERY

Grandson Of General Grant As Bad As Descendent Of General Lee

By NEVAL THOMAS
President Washington (D. C.) Branch N. A. A. C. P.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—True The real Republican Party was the greatest political agency in the history of our government, and one of the greatest in the history of the world, but, IT IS DEAD.

I refuse to allow a crowd of oppressors who are opposed to everything Republican masquerade in its sacred name. This aggregation now parading in its name stands for everything that Republicanism condemned and destroyed. They are in solemn compact with the Bourbon South in their wicked schemes against the Negro.

The Republican Party destroyed slavery. Today, the so-called Republican group is silent upon peonage, and the Department of Justice with its industrious feminine Crusader, is still. The Republican Party destroyed the Ku Klux under the mighty Grant; while this modern aggregation has embraced it, given it enfranchisement, a welcome home, and ridden to power through its support.

The Republican Party enfranchised the Negro, and made proper use of the army sending detachments to the polls of the South to prevent the Rebels from polluting the springs of government; while its illegitimate heir not only smiles at the infamous violation of our Constitution, but refuses to obey its plain mandates by reducing Southern representation and has even given the all-powerful Federal Judiciary to the Southern view. The Republicans passed The Civil Rights Bill, containing the learning of Charles Sumner, Roscoe Conkling, Benjamin Butler, and Robert Brown Elliott; yet a modern Republican Supreme Court stuck down this precious safe-guard, and doomed 12 millions of black Americans to insult, and every other kind of obstruction, from their cradles to their graves.

Color Caste

The Republican party opposed every kind of color caste, while the present-day group fosters it, even beyond the efforts of our ancient enemies. For instance, Secretary Work extended segregation to the Pension office where Woodrow Wilson had failed, and tried rough tactics upon our committee when we went to lodge our protests. In the six heated conferences we had with him he finally yielded the Pension Office, making his administration equal to that of the Democrats, but stubbornly, and with a loud voice, refused to yield the General Land Office. In color discrimination these modern Republicans have outdone the Democrats.

Picture Requirement

The picture requirement still remains in the Civil Service, and our poor young people who appear for appointments are sent back home by these impostors who claim to love the name of Lincoln. Our constant appeals are of no avail.

There is no limit to the brazen enmity of this modern Republicanism. It will not even defend us from mob law, and America's veneer of civilization from destruction; for it torpedoed the Dyer Anti-Lynching Bill with a shameless farce enacted with the wicked South. Prominent Republican leaders like Senator Borah, and the powerful chairman of the judiciary of the Senator opposed it, and the superb manipulator of the Senate made an agreement that discussion cease until after the fall election. The guillible element of Negroes under the leadership of Negroes who were to be rewarded for misleading, rallied again to the support of the party, and the party then told them that it could do nothing with the Dyer Bill, and that it stood helpless before the groans of black men dying at the stake.

Col. Grant 3rd—Segregation

Yes, Republicanism is dead. No one in national public life will stand for its noble ideals, or hold any reverence for party traditions. Col. U. S. Grant, 3rd, may as well have come from heathen Mississippi or Georgia, and may as well have descended from Jefferson Davis, for he has no understanding of the nobility and statecraft of his great sire. Segregation is his theme.

Ogden Mills Loud

Ogden Mills, head of the largest bureau of the government, the general of sixty-seven thousand toilers, makes it hard upon Negro clerks. Not one is in executive position, there are only a few clerks, and they are segregated, and kept in low salary grades. And worse, he gets angry and loud in voice, every time we go to see him.

Abandoned by those we have loved trusted, and kept in power where they have made their billions, what other course is open to thinking black men but to go to his former foe and sue for peace?

Republican

PRESS

Newport News Va.

OCT 30 1928

REPUBLICAN PARTY NOT WHAT IT USED TO BE NEGRO SAYS

G. O. P. No Longer Party of Lincoln and Grant, is Not Coalition Intolerant Elements Negro Editor Says.

That the Republican party of 1928 is not the Republican party of Lincoln and Grant, but that it is now a coalition of the Ku Klux Klan and certain other intolerant elements that are not friendly toward the negro, and not conducive to the progress and development of the state of Virginia, was the charge made last night by P. B. Young, editor of the Norfolk Journal, one of the most widely quoted negro papers, before a meeting of the Independent League of Negro voters of Newport News, held in the Dixie theatre. The meeting was attended by approximately 1,000 negroes who are members of the league, it was stated.

In addition to the address made by the negro editor a program of entertainment was offered, including selections by the Newport News Jazz Quartet, invocation by Rev. J. M. Rollins, musical selections by the Newport News band, the introduction of the chairman, by W. R. Walker, colored attorney; remarks by the chairman, Dr. P. A. Scott; introduction of the speaker by H. C. Midgett, colored attorney; response to the address by J. Thomas Newsome, colored attorney, and general remarks by Captain G. A. Holland of the Hampton Normal and Industrial Institute.

During the course of his address the colored editor from Norfolk said that he is campaigning for Alfred E. Smith, governor of New York and Democratic party candidate for the presidency of the United States. He was of the opinion that "the Republican party is no longer the party of Lincoln and Grant, but that they have formed a coalition of the Ku Klux Klan and certain other intolerant elements that are not friendly toward the negro, and not conducive to the progress and development of the state of Virginia." He advised the negroes of Newport News to "cast your votes for the Democratic nominees, representing the best element of the white population of Virginia and in support of their progressive program and the election of Governor Smith for President and for the full Democratic ticket."

Captain Holland, formerly of the 9th U. S. Army Cavalry, endorsed the independent negro movement and said that there is no other course for the negro to follow than to find relief elsewhere than in the Republican party as it is now constituted.

Resolutions were passed to the effect that a committee of 40 should be appointed to look after the direction of the movement and to assist the colored people in casting their vote with intelligence on the day of election. This committee will inform voters of the stand taken by the Independent League of Negro voters. Committee shall decide also of not another meeting is before election.

The Debt Of Gratitude

IT is almost pathetic reasoning that impels a Negro of the present generation to feel that he is morally bound to perpetuate his fealty to the Republican party as an act of gratitude, in the face of unmistakable signs, plainly observable to the honest intellect, that the party is studiously and purposefully carrying out a divorcement of the Negro. Though there may be those of our group who still feel that the debt of gratitude has not yet been paid, it is certain that the party is no longer concerned about collecting upon it, and certainly has ceased to make any claims that would be calculated to hold a debtor in perpetuity. It is a plain and bold affront to the intellectual independence of the Negro of the present to hold out to him as a bid for support of the Republican party nothing more than its ancient and original principles which the party itself has abandoned, rather than to have him to seek to subject present-day issues to a penetrating analysis and honest appraisal with a possible view of adjustment to his immediate requirements. It is evidence of mental slothfulness for anyone to vote or act in any way upon tradition without thought of whether that tradition still conscientiously manifests and conforms itself to the needs of the hour.

The truth is, it is impossible for any intelligent and discerning person who has borne conviction that the Republican party was the party of tolerance and liberalism to escape a feeling of chagrin over the strange bedfellows it has lately acquired. Those who have held to the conviction that in the Republican party were wound up their largest measure of political and civil freedom of the past, present and future, cannot be less than mortified over the spectacle of the party of their first love consorting with forces plainly recognizeable as being persistently and maliciously opposed to an extension to them of political and civil freedom. There is none so stupid as not to perceive that the forces of organized sectarian and racial hate, illiberalism and bigotry are overwhelmingly lined up with the Republicans in this campaign, and those of us of even scant sophistication recognize these forces as being one and the same which press the iron heel of proscription and denial upon submerged groups. Surely, no political campaign in all history ever presented a more pathetic spectacle than what we witness today in those who have followed the party for its original liberalism and tolerance finding themselves confronted with the confounding proposition of fighting its cause in battle line with a motley crowd of repressors and haters of open enmity.

If there are some who maintain the hope that the Republican party might possibly be redeemed to its state of pristine tolerance and fundamental political and social conscience with the help of their continued loyalty, in spite of its thorough infestation with lily-whiteism on one hand and organized illiberalism and hate on the other, they are optimists of the first order. Viewing the company the party has lately kept, it requires desperate thinking for one to pin his future political and civil hope solely upon continued allegiance to it. And when the party accepted or actually corraled this strange company, it inferentially handed the Negro his passport to other political havens, peradventure, he might find them. And if there are some who feel that we could be accused of or even given credit for deserting the party we should recast our political allegiance, let them be reminded that it is impossible to desert that which has already deserted them.

HOOVER ELECTED

The campaign is over and maybe, we will soon get back to normalcy. It has been a campaign unusually interesting to us as we have watched those of our race while they "played the game". We are anxious to see if we were playing the game in the same old way. We are anxious to see if we are moving along in the same old rut which was made by our forebears a half or a quarter of a century ago, or were there amongst us those who have the courage to strike out into the new paths for better or for worse.

To-be-sure, we are pleased with the election of Herbert Hoover as President of the United States. We share the belief with those who say that he is the better man for the place to which he has been elected, but we have no quarrel with those who voted for and supported Gov. Smith. It was their right and privilege and as such, we do not question their sincerity.

Of course, we have heard so many good and pleasing things said about and by candidates for public office, until we hardly know which is which. But some-how, the words of Herbert Hoover concerning equality of opportunity still resound in our consciousness. We are trying with all our souls to accept them for their face value.

Mr. Hoover repeated his statement on that subject in his St. Louis speech recently. He enlarged upon his previous statement. He impressed us as being sincere. We hope he was.

We herewith quote from part of his speech that appealed to us which was as follows:—

> "If we should maintain America as the land of opportunity where every boy or girl has the chance to climb to that position to which ability and character entitle him or her we shall need to be increasingly on guard. If I could drive the full meaning and importance of maintain equality of opportunity into the very conscious ness of the American people I should feel I had made some contribution to American life. It is the most precious of our possessions that the windows of every home shall look out upon unlimited hope. Equality of opportunity is the right of every American, rich or poor, foreign or native born, without respect to race or religion."

WE HOPE HE MEANS EVERY WORD OF IT.

VOTE STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN TICKET

After comparing the records of the two major political parties both in Texas and the country, in their attitude towards the Negro race, The Informer realizes that the colored voter is in somewhat of a dilemma to decide which party should receive his support and vote; but, if we can be pardoned for considering both parties as evils, wisdom and prudence suggest or dictate that we choose the lesser of the twin evils.

The Informer is also cognizant of the fact that the Republican party of today, particularly in Southern states where the "lily-white" faction is in charge of partisan affairs, is not what it used to be, and that there is scant, if any, difference, in many respects, between the Dixie Democrats and Republicans; but when one weighs the issue on all sides and looks at it from an unbiased angle, he will find it exceedingly difficult and embarrassing to swallow the Negro-hating species of Democratic leadership now infecting and infesting the South.

While this paper has been an ardent supporter and backer of Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, it has not been enthusiastic over the state, district and county ticket of the same party, due to the fact that the Republican leaders in this state have virtually bartered away their partisan birthright for a mere mess of political pottage of a very doubtful nature; and thus no full tickets were placed in the field and no campaign has been conducted to line up the voters back of the party candidates "from president to constable."

However, the Republicans of Texas should march to the polls next Tuesday, November 6, and roll up a large vote for all of the candidates on the ticket, and thus keep the party in the category of a major political party in this state.

Any political party, which polls less than 100,000 votes for its gubernatorial candidate, is considered a minor political party, and can hold conventions and manipulate partisan affairs at the wishes and behest of designing and scheming party leaders; but where political parties cast more than 100,000 votes for their nominee for governor, the law requiring the holding of primary elections is mandatory upon such political parties under the civil statutes of Texas.

There are enough colored Republicans in Texas to roll up sufficient vote for the Republican gubernatorial candidate to keep the party in the "major" class, and no Republican should remain away from the polls next Tuesday and fail to register his ballot for the Republican presidential electors and the straight Republican ticket.

PRESIDENT HOOVER.

The Presidential Campaign is over. Hon. Herbert Hoover has been overwhelmingly elected President by the great majority of American voters. In fact, he has been given the greatest electoral vote ever accorded in American history. He has done too what for many years has been the dream of the Republican Party—broken the "Solid South." At this writing, Mr Hoover seems to have carried the following Southern States: Tennessee North Carolina, Virginia, Texas and Florida. There is no doubt about Virginia and Florida. The indications are that the electoral votes for Mr. Hoover will be 444.

The campaign has been a nasty one; full of abuse, racial prejudice and other mean passions. Many hard and mean things have been said about Mr. Hoover, especially in his decent treatment of Negroes. This however, did not seem to meet the approval of the fair minded American people, who believe that every American citizen is entitled to decent treatment. But colored citizens are expecting no special treatment from Mr. Hoover as President nor are they asking for special favors. All they ask and expect is the treatment of them as worthy citizens and not as slaves.

Governor Smith personally is recognized as a fine upstanding American who has wrought well in his sphere. Had he been elected, no doubt he would have made an excellent president. However, the country does not believe in the policies and practices of his party—certainly the practices of a large wing of his party.

After March 4th next, it will be President Herbert C. Hoover and Vice-President Charles C. Curtis. May the broad Americanism which has characterized Mr. Hoover be with him thoughout a successful administration.

Gloster, Miss., Record
Friday, November 2, 1928

Whites Not Willing to Affiliate With Negroes Should Stay out G.O.P., says Booze

Dear Mr. Editor:—

I am glad that Eugene Booze come straight out in his letter telling Mr. Crosby that he wasn't needed in the G. O. P., or wanted. Said he welcomed all good men in the party, but wanted them to understand that they would have to consult the negroes about any change and there wouldn't be any change if they didn't want to associate with the negroes.

Bitter pill, but 'tis true.

Several in our town seem to think they would like to associate with the negroes in politics, and the great Democratic Party wants that kind in the G. O. P. It's up to them only to get in.

The Crow race is going to hand out the "pie" for the Federal jobs in Mississippi as long as the G. O. P. is in power, and you Lilly Whites that want something, you must go to the leaders, who are Howard, Booze and Redmond. There are others in the ring but no need of naming them.

I give you the closing paragraphs of Booze's letter to Crosby, read it and digest it:

"The Democratic party in Mississippi and the south has been regarded and is in fact the exclusive party of the white man, but it is the negroe's belief that no native born southern white man, except a person who is seeking his own preferemnt, objects to the negro's participation in the Republican party, and he feels that if a white person voluntarily forsekes the Democratic party and desires to unite with and become a member of the Republican party, he should not resent the fact that upon his entrance therein he finds the negro actively participating in its activities. It is our view that if the white man is unwilling to participate in the Republican party along with us, he should remain in the Democratic party. In other words, if he desires an exclusive white man's party he should either join or remain in the Democratic party.

"We welcome all people of every race and creed and of every color into the councils of the Republican party, but we solemnly protest against any person entering the councils of the Republican party and attempting to bar negroes from participation therein, due to no other reason than that they are negroes.

"If Mr. Crosby and Mr. Rowlands and other members of the so-called "Lilly White" Republican party in Mississippi, feel that they can't become members of the Republican party without barring the negro from membership therein, and denying him the privilege of exercising right of franchise, then it is our view that they should continue their membership in the Democratic party as it has existed since its foundation.

"We do not concede that there is any such thing as a 'Lilly White' Republican party either in Mississippi or elsewhere in the United States. To do so would be to admit that the mistake, and would constitute an insult to the meomry of Abraham apostles of justice and freedon.

mission and teaching of the Republican party since its foundation was a Lincoln and all of the other great —Anti-Hoover Democrat.

Political- 1928

Party Affiliation

Candidate for Governor and Roosevelt Address Mass Meeting at Abyssinian

Theodore Roosevelt Quotes Alabama Congressman, Who Said "Vote for Smith Is Vote for White Supremacy"

Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Republican candidate for Governor, began his campaign in New York Monday with five addresses, including an appearance at a Republican mass meeting at Abyssinian Baptist Church, 138th street near Seventh avenue, where he recounted his achievements while in office since 1926 and urged the election of Presidential Candidate Herbert Hoover. Alderman John Clifford Hawkins, who presided, introduced him to the large audience.

Theodore Roosevelt, who also addressed the meeting, called Al Smith the most expensive Governor the state has ever had, and branded both him and his party as enemies of the Negro. He quoted Congressman Oliver from Alabama, who said, "You cannot vote against Al Smith without voting against white supremacy." Mr. Roosevelt said that Smith was like the chameleon that changes its color according to its environment.

Mr. Ottinger stated that he was instrumental in drafting the Civil Rights law in this state, which makes it a misdemanor to discriminate in public places; and that he also fought for the protection of the colored Elks.

Among his other outstanding achievements, Mr. Ottinger mentions his fight against the loan sharks who charged from 250 to 1,000 per cent interest on loans to working people. The sharks persecuted their victims in such a manner, he said, that they were driven out of their jobs and were afraid to testify against their oppressors. "This condition might exist in darkest Russia, but it must not exist in America," he shouted.

He reminded his audience that it was Charles Evans Hughes, a Republican, who was the author of the Workman's Compensation law, and that it was a Republican administration which interpreted the 48 hour law to give the worker a half holiday on Saturday. "When I took office we were 1,000 cases behind," he said, referring to cases that had come up under the Workman's Compensation law, "and within a few months they were all brought up to date."

Mr. Ottinger also told of his fight against the "bucket shop," a stock broker's game wherein millions of dollars were swindled from the people who were induced to buy worthless securities. Over $500,000,000 was lost in this manner, he said, and during his term of office $300,000,000 was saved by the prosecution of these swindlers.

"This country has never enjoyed greater prosperity than it has under the administration of Calvin Coolidge. There are 450,000 Government employees and 52,000 of them are Negroes. The Democrats may try to salve you with a few jobs, but you know who your friends really are."

The Attorney General described Hoover as a man with a great heart and a great brain. He called him "the Secretary for Prosperity" and quoted Hoover as saying "I am going to abolish poverty in America."

He accused the Democrats of being in favor of "free trade," or "competitive tariff," that "would place American workers in direct competition with the underfed and underpaid workers of Europe."

He warned the Negro not to be misled by the Democrats but to remember "those who are with you." The Attorney General closed his address with a plea for the election of Edward A. Johnson, candidate for Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt exposed the inconsistencies within the Democratic party and its platform which, he said, "places them on all sides of all questions at all times." He quoted liberally from Smith's campaign speeches to prove that Smith contradicts himself on public and national questions. In the words of the Bible, Smith might truthfully say, "The words of mine own mouth hath condemned me," Mr. Roosevelt said.

He declared that the Democratic party is as bitter against the Negro today as in the days of slavery. The Republican party, on the other hand, has written into its platform a renewal of its determination to pass an anti-lynching law, he said. He stated further that Hoover in his acceptance speech specifically stressed equality of opportunity without regard to color. On the other hand the Democrats have issued anti-Negro propaganada.

Mr. Roosevelt is a member of the committee which each year awards the Springarn Medal for the most outstanding achievement by a Negro He is not running for any politica office. He declared that he was campaigning for Hoover because he believed that, if elected President Hoover would be of the greatest benefit to the nation's posterity.

Edgar M. Gray delivered a bitter tirade upon the Democratic party. He said that confidence is now placed in parties and not in individuals and that it is stupid for any man to believe that an individual, a Presidential candidate, can change or reform his party overnight.

John W. Remer, candidate for assemblyman from the Twenty-first assembly district, told the audience that the battle at the polls will not be won by talk but by votes.

Other speakers who were scheduled to speak included Alanson B. Houghton, candidate for United States Senator; Charles C. Lockwood, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor; Horace W. Palmer, candidate for State Senator from the Twentieth senatorial district; Robert S. Conklin, leader of the Twenty-first district; and Oscar Waters, one-time Republican, then Democrat and now Republican again.

A mass meeting for political discussion was held the same night in the auditorium of the West 135th Street Branch Public Library, 103 West 135th street, where Assistant District Attorney Thomas B. Dyett, Democrat, and Alderman Fred R. Moore, Republican, attacked and indicted each other's party; and Richard B. Moore, Communist, attacked, indicted and denounced both parties.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

Press

OCT 9 1928

PARTIES PLAY FOR NEGRO VOTE

Republican

May Hold Balance of Power in Several States.

By RAY TUCKER
Scripps-Howard Staff Writer.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Governor Smith's invasion of the border states on the heels of Herbert Hoover's trip to Tennessee has centered attention on a group of voters who furnish a disturbing and incalculable element in the presidential campaign—the Negro vote.

In Tennessee and Kentucky as well as other states, including possibly Illinois, their vote may prove decisive. The present concern over their position is felt chiefly by the Republicans, who have had the support of the Negro voters in the past. But this year there are claims that a good part of it will go to Smith, as it has in New York for many years.

Should a large part of this group in Tennessee and Kentucky vote for the Democratic nominee, it would enhance his chance of carrying those states. The number of Negroes there who can vote is greater than the majorities by which the G. O. P. has carried them in 1924 and 1928.

300,000 IN OHIO.

The same element has a large voting population in the four middle western states Smith will visit—Missouri, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. Their total is put at 300,000 in Ohio alone, and perhaps more in Illinois.

In northeastern territory, too, the Negroes have great influence, notably in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It is no secret that the Democrats expect to corral some of these hitherto Republican votes, while the Republicans are working equally hard to keep them in line.

A threatened rebellion against Hoover on the ground that he sponsored the recent "Lily White" movemen in the south has been suppressed. Representatives of the race met at Chicago late in August with intentions of putting up a candidate of their own merely to punish the two major parties, but nothing came of it except speeches and resolutions denouncing political neglect of the Negro.

The two Negro leaders credited with stifling the movement are Roscoe Simmons of Chicago and "Bob" Church of Memphis.

Smith is said to have won many Negro voters to his standard during his recent campaigns in New York. His wet views, together with the Tammany organization's defense of the five-cent fare, appealed to the Negro population.

A. M. E.'s Endorse G. O. P. Candidate

Chicago Daily Tribune
9/22/28

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 20.—The Illinois Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church of the Fourth Episcopal District went on record Thursday afternoon at its session here as favoring the program of the Republican party, especially in reference to prohibition. Bishop A. J. Carey, civil service commissioner for the City of Chicago, is the presiding officer of the Fourth District.

Atlanta, Ga., Journal
Monday, October 15, 1928

Republican Dyer Speaks Out: South Is Fairly Warned

AT last the cat is out of the bag, and the Hoovercrats have their reward.

No less a figure in Republican councils than Leonidas Carstarphen Dyer, congressman of the Twelfth Missouri district and author of the notorious bill bearing his name, a bill confessedly designed to humiliate the South, predicts as follows:

"On November the sixth, that great engineer-politician, Hoover, with the votes of the prohibitionists and those swayed because of the religious question in the South, will drive such a thick wedge through the heart of the 'Solid South' and their 'White Supremacy' slogan that it will blow up their whole unconstitutional program. After the Solid South has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next president, that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the South, who have for sixty years violated and prevented the enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments. Then congress will enact enforcement laws that give millions of negroes their constitutional rights as citizens, and place them on equality with all other races. My anti-lynching bill, intended to enforce the Fourteenth amendment, was passed by the Republicans of the House of Representatives by a vote of two to one. In the Senate it had the support of the Republican members, but Southern Democratic senators took advantage of the despotic Senate rules to stage a filibuster that prevented its coming to a vote. Had these rules been changed, as advocated by Vice President Dawes, the Dyer anti-lynching bill would now be a law. The passage of my bill would have been followed by the passage of still another law designed to enforce the Fifteenth amendment also, and thus the negro in the south would have come into the full rights guaranteed him by the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments."

Such, then, is to be the crowning glory of "that great engineer-politician" for whom the Political Saints in Georgia are exhorting us to desert the Democratic party. The question so properly asked the other evening by Senator Glass, of Virginia, as to just what notable piece of engineering Mr. Hoover ever had done, has been answered sooner than we expected—not as regards the past, it is true, but interestingly enough concerning the years to come. We know, Senator Glass observed, that De Lesseps built the Suez canal, and General Goethals built the Panama canal; that Eades carried out the great Mississippi projects; that Cooper achieved wonderful things at Keokuk, at Muscle Shoals and at the Ontario electric plant of Niagara; "but nothing is known of the unidentified work of Herbert Hoover." Well, Congressman Dyer has enlightened us on that point. The great engineering work of Mr. Hoover, according to his well-known, his all too well-known Republican brother from Missouri, lies futureward, and will consist in driving "such a thick wedge through the heart of the 'Solid South' and their 'White Supremacy' slogan that it will blow up their whole unconstitutional program."

The Hoovercrats are to be congratulated. At least, those who are not so hopelessly deceived by slanders upon Governor Smith and not so utterly obsessed by "religious" hate as to lock their minds against all truth, are to be congratulated. For the character of the political cause they are supporting and the kind of political company they are keeping has been revealed to them, thank heaven, before it is too late!

The author of the Dyer bill is to be commended for putting them so fairly on notice. Their Democratic friends and neighbors from time to time have suggested the dangers of rending the Solid South, but only to be scorned as alarmists and denounced as allies of Tammany. What was a mere layman of the old-fashioned Jeffersonian school that he should be counseling the Political Saints or remonstrating with the "Political Pulpiteers?" What was a mere Democrat that he should talk of duty and peril, of Southern rights and Southern loyalty to a Hoovercrat? But when Congressman Dyer himself speaks as he has done our friends needs must listen. And if they reflect they can but tremble at thought of the precipice on which they have been blindly playing.

SENATOR MOSES DENIES REMARK CHARGED TO HIM

New York.—(ANP)—Senator Geo. H. Moses, in an interview granted colored newspaper men Wednesday morning, declared that the statement attributed to him referring to positions held by colored men in New York is false.

Mr. Moses said: "At the time of the luncheon, I was heckled by a Southern woman who said that the Republican party was noted for its attitude of respect to the colored citizen, in which the policy of the party was to place colored men and women in positions where they could have supervision over white people, naming Charles W. Anderson, of New York, as an example of this policy on the part of my party."

Then Mr. Moses stated he told the woman, she could have no fault to find nor criticism to offer, for in her own party in the city of New York, Tammany had given just such a position to a member of the democracy, who happens to be a colored man. "I had no idea at the time that the members of the press who were present could fail to see the look of contempt on my face for the lady who was asking such a question and at the same time indicating thereby that she was opposed to the most elemental characteristic of our party—that of a square deal to all, regardless of color," he added.

PROTESTING VICIOUS POLITICS.

Characterizing the present struggle for a majority of the votes as "The Dirtiest Political Campaign," The Nation, the liberal weekly edited by Oswald Garrison Villard, said that the nearer the end of the campaign comes, the worse it appears. The Nation hopes that out of the evils witnessed in this display of intolerance will come a realization of the gravity of denying free speech, free assembly and justice in the courts. It claims that they are all tied together, including lynching, the Ku Klux Klan and the denial to Communists of the right of peaceful meeting.

So far has the indecency of political warfare gone in the treatment of the Negro, as has been pointed out in the columns of The Age, that it finally provoked a solemn protest on the part of the heads of various racial organizations, which took the form of an Appeal to America, which appeared in many of the daily papers last week. The specific nature of the protest was against the permitting by political leaders in this campaign of public and repeated asssertions on the platform, in the press and by word of mouth, "that color and race constitute in themselves an imputation of guilt and crime."

It instanced that it had been said by partisans of the leading candidates in various parts of the country:

1. That Negro voters should not be appealed to, or their support welcomed by the advocates of just causes.
2. That colored persons should not hold public office, no matter what their character may be nor how well they do their work nor how completely they satisfy their constituents.
3. That the contact of white people and black people in government, in business, and in daily life, in common effort and cooperation, calls for explanation and apology.
4. That the honesty and integrity of party organization depend on the complete removal of all Negroes from voice and authority.
5. That the appointment of a public officia is an act which concerns only white citizens, and that colored citizens should have neither voice nor consideration in such appointments

The protest went on to say that the signers did not believe that the majority of the white people North or South believe in the necessity or the truth of the assertions current in this campaign, but it was the absence of any sense of their unfairness and their complacent acceptance that constituted the grave danger of taking these arguments at their face value. The protest called for a public repudiation of this campaign of racial hatred and a recognition of the essential humanity of the millions of Americans who happen to be dark-skinned.

Of all the dirty work perpetrated in "the dirtiest political campaign," the vicious propaganda promulgated about the Negro, as a pawn in the game, has been the most poisonous, in that it resorted to the inciting of racial animosities that were being supplanted by more harmonious relations. The protest is justified by the facts.

It should awaken the sense of justice of the American people to the unfairness of the tactics employed in this campaign.

NEWS
RICHMOND, VA.
OCT 9 1928

HOW CAN THE SOUTH FORGET THOSE DARK INDIGNITIES?

Editor The News Leader:

Sir.—It surpasses my comprehension how any Southern man or woman can, for a moment, contemplate voting the Republican ticket, or for any nominee of the Republican party. Have the Southern people forgotten that it was this same Republican party that put shackles on Jefferson Davis, not as a necessary precautionary measure (he was than an old, sick and feeble man) but to humiliate and insult the Southern people, whose great representative he was? It was this same Republican party, after the Southern armies had surrendered in good faith and were scattered, the Southern people prostrate and disarmed, subjected them to the humiliation of provisional government, the despotism of military government, and the rapacity of reconstruction government. It was this same Republican party that disfranchised the white people and enfranchised the Negroes, and with United States bayonets maintained and defended the domination of scallawags, Negroes and carpetbaggers, in the Southern states, for eight years, and that it was the great Democratic party, with the assistance of Tammany Hall, that rescued the South from those almost unbearable burdens. This same Republican party, the arch enemy of Southern civilization, white supremacy and of all that the South reveres and holds sacred, has nominated Mr. Hoover for president of the United States. Mr. Hoover is a fitting representative of the Republican party. He believes in and advocates Negro political and social equality (see Congressional Record, April 10, 1928).

The chairman of the national Republican convention which nominated Mr. Hoover was Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, who on more than one occasion has denounced the Southern people as a bunch of traitors and has said that Jefferson Davis and Robert E. Lee should have been hung for treason.

Just after the war between the states, General Howell Cobb, of Georgia, said that a generation or two would replace the loss of life and the destruction of property, but that after the failure of the Southern states to establish their independence, the results of the war were to be deplored, because it is the teachings of history that the descendants of the conquered abandon the principles and tenets of their heroic and patriotic fathers and adopt the tenets and principles of the conquerors. I cannot believe that this prediction of General Cobb's will be verified in 1928.

While we should view with charity and patient pity those ministers of the gospel who think they are serving God by misrepresenting and slandering their fellow-man, and should extend a helping hand to lift them up to a higher and nobler conception of the obligations of their sacred office, still it is well for our people to inform themselves as to what section of the Union these revered gentlemen come from, and what their political antecedents and affiliations have been.

JOHN S. BEARD.

Pensacola, Fla.

designed to enforce the Fifteenth amendment also, and thus the negro in the south would have come into the full rights guaranteed him by the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments."

Such, then, is to be the crowning glory of "that great engineer-politician" for whom the Political Saints in Georgia are exhorting us to desert the Democratic party. The question so properly asked the other evening by Senator Glass, of Virginia, as to just what notable piece of engineering Mr. Hoover ever had done, has been answered sooner than we expected—not as regards the past, it is true, but interestingly enough concerning the years to come. We know, Senator Glass observed, that De Lesseps built the Suez canal, and General Goethals built the Panama canal; that Eades carried out the great Mississippi projects; that Cooper achieved wonderful things at Keokuk, at Muscle Shoals and at the Ontario electric plant of Niagara; "but nothing is known of the unidentified work of Herbert Hoover." Well, Congressman Dyer has enlightened us on that point. The great engineering work of Mr. Hoover, according to his well-known, his all too well-known Republican brother from Missouri, lies futureward, and will consist in driving "such a thick wedge through the heart of the 'Solid South' and their 'White Supremacy' slogan that it will blow up their whole unconstitutional program."

The Hoovercrats are to be congratulated. At least, those who are not so hopelessly deceived by slanders upon Governor Smith and not so utterly obsessed by "religious" hate as to lock their minds against all truth, are to be congratulated. For the character of the political cause they are supporting and the kind of political company they are keeping has been revealed to them, thank heaven, before it is too late!

The author of the Dyer bill is to be commended for putting them so fairly on notice. Their Democratic friends and neighbors from time to time have suggested the dangers of rending the Solid South, but only to be scorned as alarmists and denounced as allies of Tammany. What was a mere layman of the old-fashioned Jeffersonian school that he should be counseling the Political Saints or remonstrating with the "Political Pulpiteers?" What was a mere Democrat that he should talk of duty and peril, of Southern rights and Southern loyalty to a Hoovercrat? But when Congressman Dyer himself speaks as he has done our friends needs must listen. And if they reflect they can but tremble at thought of the precipice on which they have been blindly playing.

SENATOR MOSES DENIES REMARK CHARGED TO HIM

New York.—(ANP)—Senator Geo. H. Moses, in an interview granted colored newspaper men Wednesday morning, declared that the statement attributed to him referring to positions held by colored men in New York is false.

Mr. Moses said: "At the time of the luncheon, I was heckled by a Southern woman who said that the Republican party was noted for its attitude of respect to the colored citizen, in which the policy of the party was to place colored men and women in positions where they could have supervision over white people, naming Charles W. Anderson, of New York, as an example of this policy on the part of my party."

Then Mr. Moses stated he told the woman, she could have no fault to find nor criticism to offer, for in her own party in the city of New York, Tammany had given just such a position to a member of the democracy, who happens to be a colored man. "I had no idea at the time that the members of the press who were present could fail to see the look of contempt on my face for the lady who was asking such a question and at the same time indicating thereby that she was opposed to the most elemental characteristic of our party—that of a square deal to all, regardless of color," he added.

PROTESTING VICIOUS POLITICS.

Characterizing the present struggle for a majority of the votes as "The Dirtiest Political Campaign," The Nation, the liberal weekly edited by Oswald Garrison Villard, said that the nearer the end of the campaign comes, the worse it appears. The Nation hopes that out of the evils witnessed in this display of intolerance will come a realization of the gravity of denying free speech, free assembly and justice in the courts. It claims that they are all tied together, including lynching, the Ku Klux Klan and the denial to Communists of the right of peaceful meeting.

So far has the indecency of political warfare gone in the treatment of the Negro, as has been pointed out in the columns of The Age, that it finally provoked a solemn protest on the part of the heads of various racial organizations, which took the form of an Appeal to America, which appeared in many of the daily papers last week. The specific nature of the protest was against the permitting by political leaders in this campaign of public and repeated asssertions on the platform, in the press and by word of mouth, "that color and race constitute in themselves an imputation of guilt and crime."

It instanced that it had been said by partisans of the leading candidates in various parts of the country:

1. That Negro voters should not be appealed to, or their support welcomed by the advocates of just causes.
2. That colored persons should not hold public office, no matter what their character may be nor how well they do their work nor how completely they satisfy their constituents.
3. That the contact of white people and black people in government, in business, and in daily life, in common effort and cooperation, calls for explanation and apology.
4. That the honesty and integrity of party organization depend on the complete removal of all Negroes from voice and authority.
5. That the appointment of a public officia is an act which concerns only white citizens, and that colored citizens should have neither voice nor consideration in such appointments

The protest went on to say that the signers did not believe that the majority of the white people North or South believe in the necessity or the truth of the assertions current in this campaign, but it was the absence of any sense of their unfairness and their complacent acceptance that onstituted the grave danger of taking these arguments at their face value. The protest called for a public repudiation of this campaign of racial hatred and a recognition of the essential humanity of the millions of Americans who happen to be dark-skinned.

Of all the dirty work perpetrated in "the dirtiest political campaign," the vicious propaganda promulgated about the Negro, as a pawn in the game, has been the most poisonous, in that it resorted to the inciting of racial animosities that were being supplanted by more harmonious relations. The protest is justified by the facts.

It should awaken the sense of justice of the American people to the unfairness of the tactics employed in this campaign.

NEWS
RICHMOND, VA.
OCT 9 1928

HOW CAN THE SOUTH FORGET THOSE DARK INDIGNITIES?

Editor The News Leader:

Sir.—It surpasses my comprehension how any Southern man or woman can, for a moment, contemplate voting the Republican ticket, or for any nominee of the Republican party. Have the Southern people forgotten that it was this same Republican party that put shackles on Jefferson Davis, not as a necessary precautionary measure (he was than an old, sick and feeble man) but to humiliate and insult the Southern people, whose great representative he was? It was this same Republican party, after the Southern armies had surrendered in good faith and were scattered, the Southern people prostrate and disarmed, subjected them to the humiliation of provisional government, the despotism of military government, and the rapacity of reconstruction government. It was this same Republican party that disfranchised the white people and enfranchised the Negroes, and with United States bayonets maintained and defended the domination of scallawags, Negroes and carpetbaggers, in the southern states, for eight years, and that it was the great Democratic party, with the assistance of Tammany Hall, that rescued the South from those almost unbearable burdens. This same Republican party, the arch enemy of Southern civilization, white supremacy and of all that the South reveres and holds sacred, has nominated Mr. Hoover for president of the United States. Mr. Hoover is a fitting representative of the Republican party. He believes in and advocates Negro political and social equality (see Congressional Record, April 10, 1928).

The chairman of the national Republican convention which nominated Mr. Hoover was Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, who on more than one occasion has denounced the Southern people as a bunch of traitors and has said that Jefferson Davis and Robert E. Lee should have been hung for treason.

Just after the war between the states, General Howell Cobb, of Georgia, said that a generation or two would replace the loss of life and the destruction of property, but that after the failure of the Southern states to establish their independence, the results of the war were to be deplored, because it is the teachings of history that the descendants of the conquered abandon the principles and tenets of their heroic and patriotic fathers and adopt the tenets and principles of the conquerors. I cannot believe that this prediction of General Cobb's will be verified in 1928.

While we should view with charity and patient pity those ministers of the gospel who think they are serving God by misrepresenting and slandering their fellow-man, and should extend a helping hand to lift them up to a higher and nobler conception of the obligations of their sacred office, still it is well for our people to inform themselves as to what section of the Union these revered gentlemen come from, and what their political antecedents and affiliations have been.

JOHN S. BEARD.

Pensacola, Fla.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

SOME SPECIOUS REASONING.

Following the lead of the Chicago Defender, the Baltimore Afro-American last week came out in advocacy of the election of Governor Alfred E. Smith as President of the United States. The reasons given by our Baltimore contemporary for this step are predicated on Mr. Hoover's acceptance of support from the ku klux klan and his campaign in the South to make the party lily white, which it said, "leave us no alternative. We are leaving before we are kicked out." It charges Mr. Hoover with having eliminated every Negro leader of the party in the Southern states and printed a cartoon on its firstpage, headed" Another Whispering Campaign," in which the candidate was depicted as a Cave Man grasping a club, with a clump of trees in the background bearing the several interrogations:

Where is Bob Church?
Where is Walter Cohen?
Where is Ben Davis?
Where is Perry Howard?

Over the head of the Cave Man is the enigmatic response "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Of course, it would deprive this cartoon of much of its point if the several questions were answered literally, to the effect that Mr. Church is in Memphis helping to carry Tennessee for the Republican ticket; that Walter Cohen is attending to his duties as Comtroller of Customs at New Orleans, and Ben Davis is making Republican speeches in the West, having spoken over a week ago in Cleveland. Perry Howard is probably preparing his defence to the indictment found against him by a Mississippi grand jury.

Several other members of the Negro press have pronounced for the Democratic ticket in their columns, even the conservative Norfolk Journal and Guide printing an editorial giving "Some Reasons for Supporting Smith." But the Norfolk editor does not see in Smith "panacea for any political or economic ills peculiar to our own group." It has the faith, however, "that as social justice is quickened", will the whole people be happy and prosperous, "and these conditions cannot prevail without our group, in common with all other grops, sharing the resplendent light."

While hardly sharing the anticipations of our Norfolk contemporary as to the benefits to be expected from the election of Governor Smith, judging from his display of intolerance when called upon to sign the bill for additional municipal judge in Harlem, he having twice vetoed the bill which might have brought about the election of a colored judge, we would point to his associate on the ticket. Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas is the candidate for Vice President, who would succeed to the Presidency in case of the disability of the head of the ticket. This is the man whose attitude toward the race is illustrated by an incident that took place when he was Governor of Arkansas and visited a Negro college at Pine Bluff. Upon his introduction by the late Prof. F. T. Vinegar, who was described as an orator of the first rank, the Governor rose and said to Prof. Vinegar: "I did not come here to be praised by Niggers, for I am not their friend." If you vote for Smith you at the same time vote for his associate on the ticket, who thus brutally proclaimed his animosity toward the race.

The papers who are supporting Smith for President have to swallow Robinson at the same time. The specious reasoning employed to justify their action will not stand the test of the facts of the situation However, they have apparently convinced themselves of the wisdom of their course even if they cannot convince their readers.

Republican.

AN INFAMOUS CANARD EXPOSED!

Not being satisfied with charges and counter charges against Hon. Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, regarding his alleged pro-Negro attitude and relations, a former governor of a Dixie state—Mississippi—is credited with having placed in circulation a baseless canard that Mr. Hoover, during a visit to Mound Bayou, Mississippi, attended a colored social function and danced with a colored woman!

According to this Southern fabrication, Mr. Hoover practiced "social equality" with the colored inhabitants of this exclusive Negro town, during one of his visits to the Mudcat State during the rehabilitation work subsequent to the Mississippi River flood; and therefore he is unfit to be president of the United States of America!

Isn't it funny how so many Smith-Democrats are denouncing and anathematizing members of their party for their intolerance in opposing the Gotham governor for president because of his Catholic religion, while these same denouncing Democrats are exhibiting a worse form of bigotry, intolerance and hatred against both Mr. Hoover and the Negro race without any justification or reason?

In branding and exposing this canard of the former Mississippi governor, Mr. Hoover's secretary issued a public statement in which he stated that Mr. Hoover only passed through Mound Bayou on his special train and that his train only stopped at the station about 15 minutes for the former secretary of commerce, who was director of Mississippi delta rehabilitation commission, to receive an expression of the gratitude of the colored citizens for his great work in helping suffering humanity during the worst disaster in the history of the "Father of Waters."

However, if we had to choose between the white man—Democrat, Republican or whatnot—who dances at a social function with a colored woman, and the one who maintains immoral and illicit relations with a colored woman or girl under the cover of darkness, resulting in mulatto offspring, we believe that we would prefer the dancing Nordic to the one who leaves visible signs of his cohabitation with some colored woman!

In this connection, since the "solid South" is both the Democratic stronghold and the land of countless thousands of quadroons, octoroons and other human products resulting from clandestine relations between white men and colored women and girls, it appears that thousands of white Dixie Democrats, who are perennially harping on the "Negro question" and deprecating "social equality" and the "intermingling of the two races," have not practiced and do not practice the doctrine which they preach and publicly profess to espouse.

Would these "pure, spotless and unblemished" Nordic Democrats of the Southland attempt to lead one to believe that all these "bright" and "light colored" Negroes are the descendants of black fathers and mothers; or, since Dixie Democrats are always accusing Northern Republicans of advocating and practicing "social equality," do they mean to infer or insinuate that the fathers of these numerous Southern mulattoes are Northern white men who have slipped into Dixieland, pulled off their "stunt," returned to their home and made it appear as if so many of our Southern Democrats of Nordic extraction are guilty of practicing "social equality" where it shows up in its worst and most shocking form?

Boasting of their "superiority," it is a sad commentary upon the South when some of its "leading" white citizens and pseudostatesmen resort to such tactics to inflame the minds of white Southerners against a presidential nominee of an opposing political party, and thereby endeavor to keep the "solid South" in solid ignorance so that the politicans can manipulate partisan affairs to their own fancy, liking and benefit!

Having maligned, misrepresented and mistreated the unfortunate and disadvantaged black race for so many years, and having almost converted the country to its way of thinking on the "Negro question" and treatment accorded the race, the South has become emboldened and is now trying to circulate damaging and spurious propaganda of the most pernicious species against one of the ablest and cleanest men in the public life of America.

These same Dixie demagogues are mute and seem to lose their faculty of speech when mention is made of the fact that their presidential candidate, Governor Alfred Emanuel Smith, has been openly accused of mixing and mingling with Gotham blacks on terms of absolute social and political equality; and no denial has ever come from any Dixie supporter and backer of Nominee Smith that their "ideal candidate" has attended, during his past political career in New York, black and tan cabarets in Harlem.

When a former chief executive of a Southern state will give credence to and circulate such baseless untruths and will handle veracity so parsimoniously, one can readily see why the "solid South" remains SOLID in more ways than one!

Yes, sir, between the white man who dances with a colored woman in the open and the white man who cohabits with a colored woman in the dark, give us the former every time! Selah!

Keep a Cool Head

ELECTION DAY is less than one week away. Judging from the character of the campaign which has preceded it, this day will be memorable in American political history. There will be more emotional voting than in any election since 1856, when the Republican party was born and men's passions ran hot and high on the subject of human slavery. Since the Civil War men have generally voted according to their economic interests; they have voted with their heads. This year millions of them are going to vote according to their prejudices. They may pretend to vote on the great questions of farm relief, hydro-electric power and the tariff; but they will really vote on Prohibition, religion and the political background of one of the candidates.

THIS IS TRUE of both great parties, for in this campaign the bigotry is not one-sided. If those who vote against a man because of his religion are to be called bigots, those who vote for him because of his religion are equally deserving of that name.

IN THE STORM of emotion every thoughtful citizen should be careful to vote with his head and not with his passions. It will not be an easy thing to do, especially for the Negro voter, who has more cause for resentment than any other part of the population. The Negro has been so betrayed and kicked about that it is not surprising to find him on the point of bolting from his traditional associations. The party which he has supported through thick and thin for sixty years, the party which is pledged to secure him his life, liberty, justice and manhood rights—that party has ignored him and even wronged him, playing into the hands of his enemies to gain their favor. Thus the Negro, more than any other race, has provocation for losing his head on Election Day, for yielding to blind rage against the party which has played him false.

FOR THAT VERY REASON the Negro has more need to keep a cool head than other voters. His false friends may deserve injury, but by revenging himself upon them he may injure himself even more. Granting all that the Republican party has done to him, and all that it has failed to do for him, it is still a safer haven for him than his avowed and active enemy, the national Democratic party. If the national Democratic ticket were headed by a square, fearless man like Grover Cleveland, there would be less to say on this score; but it is now headed by a man whose public life has been consistently anti-Negro and who is plainly afraid of the Negro's enemies.

THUS there is nothing for the Negro to do but vote the Republican ticket, state and national, from top to bottom.

THE SAME THING applies to Harlem, where many Negroes are disaffected because of internal conflicts over district leaderships. It applies to the Nineteenth District, with its rebellion against the leadership of Assemblyman Grenthal.

IN REGARD TO MR. GRENTHAL, The Amsterdam News supported the movement against him when it was a matter within the party. It supported Myles Paige, who opposed him in the primaries. It stood firmly behind the movement for a Negro leader in a Negro district. It was not against Mr. Grenthal himself, nor does it blame him or any leader for taking all available steps to defend and secure his leadership. His victory was won, not by any unfair tactics on his part, but by a group of Negroes who played traitor to the cause of Negro leadership. If they could be bought off, scared off, or promised off, the fault was theirs and not Grenthal's. Since Grenthal remains the leader and candidate by the act of the Negroes themselves, the Negro voters should support him as solidly on Election Day as the rest of the ticket.

NEGROES MUST LEARN that politics is not a game of give; it is a game of give and take. If they had registered in such numbers as they should, and as this paper begged them to, they could have sent Edward A. Johnson to Congress on a purely Negro vote. But they did not register in sufficient numbers for that and Johnson will have to depend partly on white support. If they want Grenthal to support Johnson it is up to them to support Grenthal. It is up to them to support John W. Remer for the Assembly in the Twenty-first district and Horace W. Palmer for the State Senate in the 20th Senatorial district, to support Ottinger, Houghton, Lockwood and Crowley, the entire state ticket.

ABOVE ALL, every Negro with a ballot should vote for Edward A. Johnson for Congress.

Negro Misleaders Collect Thirty Pieces of Silver

The Daily Worker 11-15-28

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 14.—The reason why the misleaders of the Negro masses supported one or other of the parties of the white oppressors and exploiters of the Negro workers was humiliatingly revealed in the reports just filed by the republican and democratic parties.

The republican report shows the following misleaders collecting their thirty pieces of silver for passing out republican bunk:

Robert L. Mays, Chicago, $50.00; A. H. Roberts, Chicago, $125; Roscoe Conkling Simmons, Chicago $125; Rienzi B. Lemus, Washington, $50; George W. Harris, New York, $125; Fred R. Moore, New York, $125; R. L. Vann, Pittsburgh, $125; Ernest T. Atwell, New York, $125; Miss Jeannette Carter, Washington, $50; W. H. C. Brown, New York, $70; Mrs. Amy Garvey, wife of Marcus Garvey, $35; William H. Davis, New York City, $800; William Monroe Trotter $250.

The democratic report shows this other bunch of Negro Judases as receiving their hand-out for betraying the Negro masses:

Bishop Reverdy C. Ransom of the African Methodist Episcopal Church about $5,000; Lester A. Walton, $150; Mizelle $125; Nelson $150.

Girl Savagely Beaten Up By White Police Cossack.

Trotter of the Guardian drew handouts from both parties, getting $200 from the democrats and $250 from the republicans. Calude A. Barnett of the Associated Negro Press, secretary of the publicity committee of the republican jim-crow division, got $150 from the democrats. Prattis of the same news service received $150.

Police terrorism against Negro workers in this city has reached such a pass that white officers of capitalist "law and order" no longer content themselves with beating up Negro workers on the streets but actually force themselves into the workers' homes to do their dirty work. Such was the astounding testimony of Miss Louise Jackson, soda fountain clerk, of 214 West 62nd Street, who offered a beaten bruised body and a blackened eye as evidence against officer William Fitzgerald, white, of 9A Precinct, in a hearing Friday before Inspector Bolan of the third division.

Charges of forcing entrance into a citizen's home without explaining his mission, brutality and intimidation were preferred by Miss Jackson and her employer, S. J. McCall, of the same address. They declare that Fitzgerald came to McCall's apartment last Tuesday morning demanding admission, that he refused to state his identity of his mission and when refused admission forced entrance through a window.

The Daily Worker 11-13-28

Challenged by McCall, he replied he was "coming in to smash your head." Alarmed, McCall hurriedly made his exit. The policeman finding McCall gone and coming across Miss Jackson sleeping in another room demanded of her the whereabouts of her landlord. Upon being unable to tell him, he struck her a heavy blow with his fist in her abdomen, she asserted. She protested and received a kick on the shins, and later a punch in the eye.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

BY JOHN B. HUDSON,

Commercial Appeal Staff Correspondent.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 24. — Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee for president, was asked today by Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo to say "from your own lips" whether or not Hoover had been done an injustice by the Mississippi governor when Bilbo repeated a "common rumor" that Hoover had danced with Mary Booze, Mound Bayou negress, Republican national committeewoman.

The Mississippi executive propounded a series of questions relating to Hoover's attitude toward social equality between the white and negro races, and told him that "you owe it to the American people to answer these questions before the election."

George Akerson, assistant to Hoover, started the row on its present national scale when he indignantly telegraphed Bilbo denouncing in bitter words a statement accredited to Bilbo in the latter's speech at a Democratic rally in Memphis last week, in which it was alleged that Hoover had danced with Mary Booze.

Republicans Now Explaining.

Since picking up the local rumor and spearding it across the continent, Republican campaign managers in the northern states have been trying to explain to the colored brethren in the doubtful states that Akerson was indignant because it was charged Hoover had attended a social function during the flood of 1927, and not because he was charged with dancing with a negro woman.

On Mississippi and other southern states however, the same campaign managers have been trying to make much of the "race purity'" of the Republican party, so recently taken on in the bitter fight being waged to woo the dissatisfied Democratic brethren into the Republican ranks.

Already harassed in the border and northern states by the Akerson boomerang, some of the local Republican leaders are trying to follow up the "political bust" of Akerson's by trying to get the national Republican chieftains to oust Perry Howard, negro Republican national committeeman, and Mary Booze, from the national organization, thereby adding to the pain and agony of party leaders in the north.

They are being met by horrid protests from the frightened leaders who declared that it would be fatal if they should remove the two negroes from the national committee. As it stands, and very likely will stand, Mississippians are witnessing the spectacle of the state campaign being in the hands of Lamont Rowlands of Picayune, wealthy lumberman, as chairman of the ways and means committee, and in supreme command, but at the same time seeing Howard and Mary left on the national committee, but shoved into the discard so far as local political strategy is concerned.

Now Democrats awaiting a reply from Hoover — andGovernor Bilbo has asked him bluntly in his reply to "not be as evasive and ambiguous as your position on so many other public questions in this campaign" have been.

Asks for a Show Down.

"Answer these questions frankly," wired Governor Bilbo. "Put your cards on the table. Republican office-seekers have 'buncoed' the negro voters long enough with sweet promises for political purposes.

"You say that Democrats favor tariff for revenue only. Judging by past performances, the Republican party is for the negro for offices only."

Howard, by the way, although still retained as national committeeman for the Republican party is under indictment in Federal court on a charge of alleged trafficking in Federal patronage. At the time of indictment he was active as assistant to the attorney general of the Unites States, but Attorney General Sargent "suspended" him from that office until his trial. The national committee took no action.

The Bilbo statement at Memphis, and the telegraphic retort by Aberson, has resulted in the Mississippi executive receiving thousands of telegrams and letters from all over the United States. Most of them are congratulatory, but some of them are couched in such foul language that they can not be printed.

The governor today took occassion to reply to one of the milder critics, one Major Emmett P. Smith of Montgomery, Ala., said to be chaplain at Kilby prison. Major Smith in his telegram demanded that Governor Bilbo give proof of his assertion that Hoover had danced with a negro woman, or be branded as a 'cheap purveyor of falsehood and prejudice." Smith described himself as being "an anti-Smith Democratic speaker, a Baptist, and a veteran of the World War; a native son of the south, and the son of a brave Confederate veteran."

In reply to this attack Governor Bilbo wired him calling his attention to the telegram he had just dispatched to Hoover. "This explanation, I am sure, will satisfy the American people and should satisfy yourself," said the governor.

"As to your challenge and incidental denunciation, I have no desire to take up my time with men of your type.

"After making some investigation as to you and your alleged record, I am not surprised at your activity in defense of Mr. Hoover when charged that he cut the light fantastic toe with Mary Booze 'a lady of color from Mound Bayou.'

"Your bolting the Democratic party, the white man's party of the south, in the hour of trial, is in keeping with your alleged conduct during the World War.

Telegram Is Given.

The telegram to Hoover follows:

"In reply to a telegram of the 19th inst., given to the press by your personal representative, Mr. George Akerson, and which telegram I presume meets with your approval, I desire to say that the statement that you had danced with Mary Booze in Washington was made by me on common rumore and I so stated in my speech in Memphis, Tenn.

"The rumor had been current in Mississippi for some time that Mary Booze stated after returning from a meeting of the Republican national committee in Washington that "she had danced with Mr. Hoover. This statement was repeated in a public speech in the city of Jackson by another party and it was upon this information that I made the statement in question in my speech in Memphis. Nothing was said about your dancing with Mary at Mound Bayou.

'I notice that you, through your secretary, brand the statement that you danced with Mary as the most indecent and unworthy statement in this whole bitter campaign and you state further that for any person to vote against you upon a representation of this kind would forever be a most infamous blot upon the record of the state of Mississippi.

"Now I do not desire to be unfair to you in the slightest degree, but I want to ask you if you think it would be offensive to you or indecent infamy or disgraceful for you to come in contact with or dance with a woman of the negro grace.

"If, according to your ideas of social equality, you do not think it indecent or infamous to have it said of you that you danced with Mary Booze, a member of the negro race, then why do you get exercised and all 'heated up' when it is said of you that you danced with Mary Booze?

Demands Frank Answer.

"Please answer these questions so the people can know from your own lips whether or not I have done you an injustice.

'You owe it to the people to answer these questions before the election, and I trust that your answer will not be as evasive and ambiguous as your position on so many other public questions in this campaign.

"Answer these questions frankly, put your cards on the table. Republican office seekers have 'buncoed' the negro voters lang enough with sweet promises for political purposes.

"You say that the Democrats favor tariff for revenue only. Judging by past performances the Republican party is for the negro for office only.

"The American people will wait anxiously for your full and frank reply."

WOULD PURIFY POLITICS BY ELIMINATING THE NEGRO

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 24—Speaking before a meeting of the Hillsborough County Republican Club at the Board of Trade auditorium, Dr. Paul Ernst, member of one of Virginia's oldest families, and an ardent supporter of Herbert Hoover for President, told his audience if he was elected he would lend his strength to purifying politics of the Republican party by the practically elimination of the Negro vote as a factor of that political organization.

G. O. P. IS LIKE "POTATO" SAYS KELLY MILLER

"Best Part Underground"— "Uncle Toms" Will Stand Pat

VOTE OF YOUNGER GENERATION FOR "AL"

Campaign Has Wholesomely Divided Negro Vote, He Says

By KELLY MILLER

WASHINGTON, D. C.— For the first time since reconstruction, the Negro goes to the polls next Tuesday emancipated from his emancipators.

He has thrown off the thralldom which has held him like a vise to the fortunes of the Grand Old Party. The old Negro may indeed feel bound by ties of eternal gratitude to the party of Lincoln and Sumner, but the young Negro does not. There is a limit beyond which gratitude ceases to be a virtue.

The American colonies stung into revolt by injustice and tyranny, quickly forgot the deep debt of gratitude which the struggling daughter in the wilderness owed to her generous and genial mother across the sea. No manly people can ever pledge its love and loyalty in perpetuity under change of time and circumstances. The present election is held in 1928, and not in 1872

Youth For Smith

The Negro who places his back to the future and his face to the past will continue to vote the Republican ticket to the end of time. The fleshpots of Egypt are always more enticing to the timid and the timorous than the dangers and vicissitudes of the untried desert.

I have just scanned in a widely circulated and influential Negro paper, a paid advertisement in two parallel columns, of the goodness of the Republican party and the badness of its Democratic rival. But these contrasted lists of good and evil refer to the things that are past and gone. There is not one absolute or relative word about future prospect and promise.

So far as the Negro is concerned the Republican party is like the potato, the best part is under ground.

10 Elections Won't Change G. O. P.

If the Negro, as a race supports the grand Old Party in the present election and in the next ten elections to come, there is no apparent likelihood that his political lot would be improved thereby.

The Negro acquired an initial momentum for the party of freedom and equality in the early days which it is admittedly difficult to reverse. Those past middle age, the over optimistic who somehow believe that the spirit of Abraham Lincoln will be reincarnated in the Grand Old Party, the timid and hesitant who rather endure the ills they have than risk those they know not of, those of the slavish Uncle Tom type of temperament, the cunning and crafty who hope to gather in the crumbs of favor which fall from the white master's table, wil adhere to the Republican standard, though the dry land turn to sea.

Progressives Revolt

On the other hand. the forward looking, the progressive, the radical the new Negro, the intelligentia will revolt against the Republican recreancy, and will risk whatever expediency which may promise change It must be conceded that the Democratic party does not hold out a promising prospect; but protest against a false friend often incidentally results in benefit to an avowed enemy. If the Negro, North or South expects to make any further political progress, he must by some means overcome the hostility of the Democratic party which effectively blocks his advancement whichever party is in national ascendency. It is abundantly demonstrated that this cannot be done by aligning either way without humiliation.

Hoover Tabooed Prohibition

I had hoped to rally the race around the standard of prohibition under the banner of Hoover. But the candidate himself sent down word that prohibition was not to be discussed. His influential wet supporters in the East forbade. The Grand Old Party of ancient idealism has harked back to the stand pat doctrine of Mark Hanna. It now proclaims the glad tidings of prosperity and the gospel of guts. None of these things appeal to a people smarting under a sence of moral wrong. You cannot cure the hurt of the soul by proffer of a full dinner pail.

Race Vote

So far as I can ascertain by careful analysis of the situation, the Negro next Tuesday will split his vote in something like two equal parts

Both parties are appealing to him for support, openly in the North and furtively in the South. Both Work and Rascob are operating whispering galleries among Southern Negroes It is a campaign of easy speaking Southern Negroes will be well distributed between the two contending parties.

The most active campaign among them in either camp is conducted under the leadership of "Goose Neck Bill' of Texas, the old time Republican war horse for Governor Smith It seems that both chairmen are letting loose rival inducements of a substantial kind in the Negro field

Papers Anti-Hoover

Orators of equal fame and prominence are working for Hoover and Smith. The Negro newspapers of widest circulation and influence are either friendly to Smith or at least unfriendly to Hoover. The general sentiment of the Negro press, as between the two candidates, is practically a stale mate. No Negro reproaches his brother for voting this way or that. Whatever also may happen, this campaign has hopelessly and as I believe, wholesomely divided the Negro vote.

Can't Tell Party By Color

Hereafter, no one will be able to tell, the colored man's political affiliation by his race. This, I hope, will attone for all of the humiliation which the Negro is forced to suffer at the hands the of both parties. More Negroes will cast their ballot next Tuesday than at any time since reconstruction. Each voter must decide for himself.

There will be something like two million Negro voters, but no Negro vote.

HOOVER SUPPORTERS FAVOR BOTH SIDES

Nominee Pictured As Wet To Wets, Dry To Drys, Pro And Anti-Farm Relief

By RUSSELL KENT
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—Critics of Herbert Hoover claim that through his own statements or the statements of his principal spokesmen he has been on every side of every question in this campaign.

11-4-28

Hoover has been pictured in wet districts as a wet and in dry districts as a dry. Senator Brookhart, his principal spokesman in the corn belt, has been telling that he is an advocate of the McNary-Haugen bill, which went out, until Hoover called McNary-Haugenism socialistic.

Some of Hoover's newspaper supporters were telling that Hoover's position on Muscle Shoals was just exactly opposite to what Hoover made it plain it was in Madison Square Garden.

At the very outset of his campaign Hoover changed his Los Angeles speech on Boulder Dam. He made two statements on Muscle Shoals, after some of his Tennessee supporters said that his omission of it in the Elizabethton speech made a statement necessary. The first statement displeased the Coolidgeites and the second was to please Mr. Coolidge, it is charged.

Nominee Too Silent

One of the principal faults with the Hoover campaign, it appears to many, is that the nominee does not talk enough and his spokesmen talk too much. The statement of Gov. McMullen that Hoover would call a special session on farm relief is a case in point. Hoover's managers denied he intended to call such a session. That greatly embarrassed the Hoover campaign in the West. Finally, after numerous conferences, Hoover himself issued a statement that he would call a special session, if Congress at the session beginning in December and ending March 3, did not do something about it.

Some of the Democrats have been suggesting that a joint debate be arranged between Charles Evans Hughes and William E. Borah, the two principal Hoover spokesmen. Hughes has been declaring that prohibition is not an issue in this campaign and that Smith could do nothing about it if elected. Borah has been declaring that it is the principal issue and therefore drys must vote against Smith.

Democrats say that never before has a political party on the eve on the election changed its main issue as the Republicans did, abandoning the tariff for "State Socialism" as their issue.

Some of the Democrats have been chiding Mr. Hoover to name his "crime-breeding big cities."

Opinions "Mixed"

Speaking to a rural audience at Elizabethton Hoover told his audience that he "resented the sneers at Main Street. For I have known that in the cottages that lay behind the street rested the strength of our national character. Many of our most difficult problems in national life have come because of the extraordinary growth of our great cities. History shows that crowded cities too often breed injustice and crime, misery and suffering."

But, Mr. Hoover, addressing a city audience at Madison Square Garden said of New York City:

"Your city has been an outstanding beneficiary of this great progress and of these safeguarded principles. With its suburbs it has, during the last seven and a half years, grown by over a million and a half of people until it has become the largest metropolitan district of al lthe world. Here you have made abundant opportunity not only for the youth of the land but for the immigrant from foreign shores. This city is the commercial center of the United States. It is the commercial agent of the American people. It is a great organism of specialized skill and leadership in finance, industry and commerce, which reaches every spot in our country. Its progress and its beauty are the pride of the whole American people. It leads our nation in its benevolences to charity, to education and scientific research. It is the center of art, music, literature and drama. It has come to have a more potent voice than any other city in the United States."

WHAT THE NEGROES OF LOUISVILLE AND KENTUCKY HAVE DONE FOR THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

Dr. Joseph L. Joshnson, of Columbus, Ohio, former Minister to Liberia, gave out the following statement today with reference to the movement which has express approval of Herbert Hoover regarding the regeneration of the Republican party in the South on a white basis, as one of the principal reforms he expects to carry out if elected to the presidency. Dr. Johnson said:

"The Republican party in the South, particularly in the States of Kentucky and Tennessee, never had a Republican victory except for the colored vote in these states. Since the war of the Rebellion the Republicans have carried Kentucky several times for President, and have elected four Republican governors. Each time it was accomplished by the colored vote, which if it had been given to the side would have turned the election the other way In Tennessee, the Republicans have carried that state for president once, and they have elected the Governor several times, besides numerous members of Congress ,and other local officers. In Louisville, Kentucky, it is a well known fact that but for the colored vote this city would be Democratic overwhelmingly.

"Now in return for all this loyal service, these loyal soldiers of the Republican party who have helped them win all their victories, are to be put aside like a faithful wife who is put aside for some trivial reason and another wife taken up. This has been discovered in time for the colored people to resent such treatment as this. Their votes are counted upon to deliver the States of Kentucky and Tennessee to Hoover, an then they are to be dumped bodily and receive no consideration whatever at the hands of the party they have sustained for half a century. I can imagine the Methodist and Baptist preachers of the colored people in the South reading this news with great pleasure, and I can imagine how enthusiastically they will preach to their congregations to vote for Hoover, who after all is nothing but a renegade Democrat

"The Democratic party in the South owes nothing to the colored vote because they have never given their votes to the Democratic party, but the Republican party, who has always received its vote, now proves its base ingratitude by allying itself with the movement to exclude the colored people from any participation in the councils of the Republican party.

"I was surprised when I read this account which appeared in the Chicago Daily Tribune of Wednesday, October 3rd, the leading Republican newspaper of the midwest, in the article of Arthur Sears Henning, who is the leading writer on that newspaper and who always speaks by the card whenever he writes. Among other things he says:

"The plan to bulid a white Republican party in the south received the approval of Hoover early in the campaign, according to somewhat varying versions obtained from Southern Republicanl leaders. Some say that the program was mapped out prior to the Kansas City Convention for the delivery of certain Negro delegates from the South, but promised rival "lily white" delegations to recognize them in the party reorganization after the convention.

"According to another version, the project did not actually take form until shortly before Hoover's acceptance speech, when a number of Southern white Republicans headed by Col. Jennings C. Wise of Richmond, Va., visited the candidate at Palo Alto. They explained to Hoover the opportunity of annexing that Anti-Smith Democrats permanently to the Republican party if he would authorize the elimination of the Negro and the reorganization of the Southern G. O. P. as a white man's institution.

"They particularly sought declaration in Hoover's acceptance speech which could be used in the south to convince the bolting Democrats that the Republican party henceforth is to be the party of white supremacy no less than the Democratic party."

"All this goes to show that the Republican party managers in the National Committee are perfectly willing to throw overboard the colored votes in the south, forgetting that if the colored vote was removed from the Republican column in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, and ever so many states in the North, they would have absolutely no show whatever.

What do you think the colored people of the North are going to say when they hear that the Republican party and its candidate for President have deliberately entered into a scheme to cast the colored voters overboard in the Southland? I miss my guess if hundreds of thousands of them do not resent this, not only in the South but in the North by casting their votes with the Democratic party headed by Governer Alfred E Smith.

TATE JOURNAL
COLUMBUS, O.

W 4 1928

COLORED VOTERS REVOLT.

Editor Ohio State Journal:

Wrangling in Republican state headquarters over state and national candidates has sprung confidential leaks which concede Martin L Davey's election by 50,000. Davey has a united organization back of him, the first time the Democrats have been thoroughly united for four years, and he is immeasurably stronger than Donahey was two years ago. Cooper will lose 20,000 votes in Cleveland on account of the primary scandal and more than that number in Cincinnati on account of his unpopularity with the colored voters.

The colored voters are in open revolt for the first time in history and realize they have been held in political slavery by the Republican party for 60 years and they intend this year to exercise an intelligent determination which the Constitution grants them. They also realize that the Ku Klux Klan, their deadly enemy, is in complete control of the Republican party.

A COLORED VOTER.
Columbus, Nov. 1.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation.

NEW YORK WORLD

OCT 9 1928

Moses Raises Racial Issue In Speech to Women Here

Eastern G. O. P. Manager Objects to a Negro Civil Service Official Dictating to White Woman

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Eastern manager of the Republican National Committee, closed a speech yesterday at the campaign school of the Women's National Republican Club, No. 8 East 37th Street, with a reference to a Negro official in New York dictating "to a white stenographer of the female sex."

Senator Moses referred to Ferdinand Q. Morton, Negro Civil Service Commissioner of New York, a Democrat, appointed from Harlem.

About two weeks ago the same matter was brought to public attention in a photograph of Commissioner Morton dictating to a white stenographer, published on the first page of the Fellowship Forum, anti-Catholic publication.

After his speech, in which Senator Moses criticized the Democratic stand on tariff, and Gov. Smith's attitude on Prohibition and his affiliation with Tammany, he opened the floor to questions.

One of the women in his audience asked about reports that Herbert Hoover had placed Negroes over white men doing work on the Mississippi flood relief, and about another report that the Republican nominee had made promises to Virginia Negroes for their support.

"I don't know that any such condition exists," replied Senator Moses, "but if any promises have been made, they will be kept."

Senator Raises Racial Issue

"I do know this, however," continued the Senator, "that in Washington there is no colored Civil Service Commissioner who dictates to a white stenographer of the female sex, such as I understand is done right here in New York."

Some of the audience applauded, but about half of the women received it in silence.

Many Republican leaders frankly disliked the Senator's remark. They took the stand that it was unnecessary and could serve only to create bitterness and misunderstanding.

It was pointed out by these same men, however, that the Republicans as a party should not be placed in such a position, since Negro recognition is given by the party in New York City as elsewhere.

Duplicate Case in U. S. Service

One such case, Republican leaders pointed out, could be found in the United States District Attorney's office, where Huburt Delany, Negro, is an Assistant District Attorney. No discrimination has ever been made against Mr. Delany in allotting white men and women of the office force for his assistance.

The incident was all the more regretted by prominent Republicans because it came from one of Mr. Hoover's highest campaign officers. They insisted that the Senator only meant to draw a comparison, in which he wished to show that "Democrats and Republicans alike both acknowledge the place of the Negro to serve in public office."

In the main speech Senator Moses said that the Democrats are "but recent converts to high tariff and represent only a party which has copied the Republican Party through expediency."

In his criticism of Tammany, Senator Moses said Gov. Smith would not escape the background of the Democratic organization.

Commenting on the defense of Gov. Smith that Tammany "must be all right because it has existed so many years," the Senator said:

"So have the Black Hand and the Mafia, and perhaps by the same methods."

News
Griffin, Ga.

SEP 29 1928

Republican.

EVEN DEMOCRATS WILL DEFEND WHITE REPUBLICANS AGAINST THESE ATTACKS.

Ben Davis, negro Republican leader in Georgia, who has been removed from office as executive committeeman has published editorials in his newspaper—The Atlanta Independent—that will make the blood of every white man in Georgia boil.

Davis in an attack on the "lily white" wing of the party refers to them as "bastard Republicans" and "commercialized negro grafters."

Davis says that the Republican party in the south has been kept alive by the negroes and that the "lily-white" element has always been a menace to the party.

Such charges as these infuriate even a White Loyal Democrat, who believes that many of the persons in Georgia, who have deserted the Democratic party and are going to vote the Republican ticket this year are in earnest in their views and are good citizens. For such people as these to be flayed by a negro politician who has been handling patronage in Georgia for many years and who has waxed fat at the Republican trough, is too much.

The Republican party, if it has a spark of manhood will repudiate, instantly, these editorials of Ben Davis.

Part of the editorial of Ben Davis is reproduced. It goes to show what sort of cattle the Hoover Democrats of Georgia are going to be forced to team up with in the coming election.

Davis says:

"The great menace to republican success in November is the curse of "lily-whiteism" in the south. For forty years these ignoramuses have been arguing to the national republican leaders that if the party would eliminate the negro from the party councils they would break the solid south, but have never made anybody believed their story except the lamented President Harding, who said before he died that he had been deceived by these crooks and set about to repudiate them, and correct the error that they had led him into."

Continuing in the same vein, the editorial further reiterates:

"The negroes despise the lily-whites and the lily-whites hate them unqualifiedly.

"The lily-whites vote in the democratic party primaries and want to hold all of the offices under every republican administration and control the party machinery in the south. All the trouble in the south today is traceable to lily-white treachery, perfidy and ignorance.

"The first step of the half-breeds, after they come into control, instead of working to elect the ticket, is to drive the negro out of the party. They never think of electing the ticket, but of eliminating the negro. They'll tell any lie, commit perjury or stoop to any depths to play their game.

"While we do believe that Mr. Hoover is a party to, or has guilty knowledge of this diabolical scheme to disfranchise the negro; plotted by the lily-whites and executed by his agents, we have many reasons to conclude that the scheme is being encouraged by men higher up in his war councils.

"In Georgia the regular organization surrendered everything to a white committee which has turned out to be a dyed-in-the-wool lily-white outfit, which is carrying more scurrilous matter about the negro than the democrats are carrying. Charles Adamson, king of the lily-whites, is sending out a letter soliciting funds and assuring those who will give, as an inducement, that the party will never have another negro national committeeman. This animal is at the head of our electoral ticket and was placed here by 'nigger' votes. He is only a sample of the lily-whites who are doing more to defeat the republican ticket than elect it. But Mr. Adamson has never been anything more than an ignorant piece of self-conceit without influence outside his own factory. If we hear any more of him, the 'niggers' who put him on the ticket will take him off. Just such men as he are responsible for the northern negro's attitude towards Mr. Hoover.

"The one effort of the lily-white organization is to eliminate the negro, discredit the organization that created it with a view of regular organization was controlling the 'pie counter' after the election. speaker, Mr. Hoover would lose white votes.

"The head of this lily-white organization "Who believes that Mr. Hoover loves humanity, expressed the view the other day that it stand for this abominable rot and at the miliate the race. white speakers took part in the meeting in same time appeal for negro votes through- not races any further than races make hu- Clinch county at which the secretary of the out the country? No, Mr. Hoover is too manity."

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation.

NEW YORK WORLD

OCT 9 1928

Moses Raises Racial Issue In Speech to Women Here

Eastern G. O. P. Manager Objects to a Negro Civil Service Official Dictating to White Woman

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Eastern manager of the Republican National Committee, closed a speech yesterday at the campaign school of the Women's National Republican Club, No. 8 East 37th Street, with a reference to a Negro official in New York dictating "to a white stenographer of the female sex."

Senator Moses referred to Ferdinand Q. Morton, Negro Civil Service Commissioner of New York, a Democrat, appointed from Harlem.

About two weeks ago the same matter was brought to public attention in a photograph of Commissioner Morton dictating to a white stenographer, published on the first page of the Fellowship Forum, anti-Catholic publication.

After his speech, in which Senator Moses criticized the Democratic stand on tariff, and Gov. Smith's attitude on Prohibition and his affiliation with Tammany, he opened the floor to questions.

One of the women in his audience asked about reports that Herbert Hoover had placed Negroes over white men doing work on the Mississippi flood relief, and about another report that the Republican nominee had made promises to Virginia Negroes for their support.

"I don't know that any such condition exists," replied Senator Moses, "but if any promises have been made, they will be kept."

Senator Raises Racial Issue

"I do know this, however," continued the Senator, "that in Washington there is no colored Civil Service Commissioner who dictates to a white stenographer of the female sex, such as I understand is done right here in New York."

Some of the audience applauded, but about half of the women received it in silence.

Many Republican leaders frankly disliked the Senator's remark. They took the stand that it was unnecessary and could serve only to create bitterness and misunderstanding.

It was pointed out by these same men, however, that the Republicans as a party should not be placed in such a position, since Negro recognition is given by the party in New York City as elsewhere.

Duplicate Case in U. S. Service

One such case, Republican leaders pointed out, could be found in the United States District Attorney's office, where Huburt Delany, Negro, is an Assistant District Attorney. No discrimination has ever been made against Mr. Delany in allotting white men and women of the office force for his assistance.

The incident was all the more regretted by prominent Republicans because it came from one of Mr. Hoover's highest campaign officers. They insisted that the Senator only meant to draw a comparison, in which he wished to show that "Democrats and Republicans alike both acknowledge the place of the Negro to serve in public office."

In the main speech Senator Moses said that the Democrats are "but recent converts to high tariff and represent only a party which has copied the Republican Party through expediency."

In his criticism of Tammany, Senator Moses said Gov. Smith would not escape the background of the Democratic organization.

Commenting on the defense of Gov. Smith that Tammany "must be all right because it has existed so many years," the Senator said:

"So have the Black Hand and the Mafia, and perhaps by the same methods."

Griffin, Ga

SEP 29 1928

republican.

EVEN DEMOCRATS WILL DEFEND WHITE REPUBLICANS AGAINST THESE ATTACKS.

Ben Davis, negro Republican leader in Georgia, who has been removed from office as executive committeeman has published editorials in his newspaper—The Atlanta Independent—that will make the blood of every white man in Georgia boil.

Davis in an attack on the "lily white" wing of the party refers to them as "bastard Republicans" and "commercialized negro grafters."

Davis says that the Republican party in the south has been kept alive by the negroes and that the "lily-white" element has always been a menace to the party.

Such charges as these infuriate even a White Loyal Democrat, who believes that many of the persons in Georgia, who have deserted the Democratic party and are going to vote the Republican ticket this year are in earnest in their views and are good citizens. For such people as these to be flayed by a negro politician who has been handling patronage in Georgia for many years and who has waxed fat at the Republican trough, is too much.

The Republican party, if it has a spark of manhood will repudiate, instantly, these editorials of Ben Davis.

Part of the editorial of Ben Davis is reproduced. It goes to show what sort of cattle the Hoover Democrats of Georgia are going to be forced to team up with in the coming election.

Davis says:

"The great menace to republican success in November is the curse of "lily-whiteism" in the south. For forty years these ignoramuses have been arguing to the national republican leaders that if the party would eliminate the negro from the party councils they would break the solid south, but have never made anybody believed their story except the lamented President Harding, who said before he died that he had been deceived by these crooks and set about to repudiate them, and correct the error that they had led him into."

Continuing in the same vein, the editorial further reiterates:

"The negroes despise the lily-whites and the lily-whites hate them unqualifiedly.

"The lily-whites vote in the democratic party primaries and want to hold all of the offices under every republican administration and control the party machinery in the south. All the trouble in the south today is traceable to lily-white treachery, perfidy and ignorance.

"The first step of the half-breeds, after they come into control, instead of working to elect the ticket, is to drive the negro out of the party. They never think of electing the ticket, but of eliminating the negro. They'll tell any lie, commit perjury or stoop to any depths to play their game.

"While we do believe that Mr. Hoover is a party to, or has guilty knowledge of this diabolical scheme to disfranchise the negro; plotted by the lily-whites and executed by his agents, we have many reasons to conclude that the scheme is being encouraged by men higher up in his war councils.

"In Georgia the regular organization surrendered everything to a white committee which has turned out to be a dyed-in-the-wool lily-white outfit, which is carrying more scurrilous matter about the negro than the democrats are carrying. Charles Adamson, king of the lily-whites, is sending out a letter soliciting funds and assuring those who will give, as an inducement, that the party will never have another negro national committeeman. This animal is at the head of our electoral ticket and was placed here by 'nigger' votes. He is only a sample of the lily-whites who are doing more to defeat the republican ticket than elect it. But Mr. Adamson has never been anything more than an ignorant piece of self-conceit without influence outside his own factory. If we hear any more of him, the 'niggers' who put him on the ticket will take him off. Just such men as he are responsible for the northern negro's attitude towards Mr. Hoover.

"The one effort of the lily-white organization is to eliminate the negro, discredit the organization that created it with a view of regular organization was to be the principal controlling the 'pie counter' after the election. big to have any part in this conspiracy to humiliate the race. Hoover loves humanity, speaker, Mr. Hoover would lose white votes.

"The head of this lily-white organization "Who believes that Mr. Hoover would not races any further than races make humanity." expressed the view the other day that it stand for this abominable rot and at the white speakers took part in the meeting in same time appeal for negro votes throughout the country? No, Mr. Hoover is too Clinch county at which the secretary of the

Davis in another editorial says:

"The Independent is 100 per cent republican because it cannot be bought by the democrats' money or be bulldozed out of the party by lily-white bastard republicans and commercialized negro grafters, who would sell their wives and daughters into political slavery and economical ruin, for pelf and plunder.

"We are republicans and offer no apology for our faith. The Independent has the same right to go along with the republican organization that the World has to trail the democratic party outside of the ranks, with the hope of receiving a few crumbs from the hands of Heflin. Blease and Pat Harrison. We are not going to get out of the ship into the sea. We are republicans and no man inside the party, black or white, can make us forsake its principles because of real or imaginary grievances. Let come what may, our houses and we are going to fight it out aboard the republican ship."

Surely Ben Davis has sounded the death knell of the Republican party in Georgia. Georgia white people who were intending to support Hoover and Curtis cannot swallow this.

The Telegraph
October 4, 1928

Parsons and Davis

Early in this campaign, when Mrs. Marvin Williams made her appeal to the Negro women of the W. C. T. U., to register and vote for Hoover, The Telegraph said that it would be the worst thing that could happen to the Negro would be to drag him into the campaign. He has been dragged in and has been made an issue and, because there are such Negroes as Ben Davis and Lee Parsons of North Carolina, he is getting the worst of it, as he always does when white men bring him into their own fights.

Ben Davis' part in the Georgia campaign has been of no aid to Mr. Hoover, nor has it been of consolation to those who are associated with Mrs. Marvin Williams on the Hoover electoral ticket in the state. The objection to Davis' participation in Republican politics in Georgia is not based primarily in the fact that he is a Negro, but because he is the sort of man he is. The Senate committee developed that he and his gang were levying an actual charge for federal patronage offices in Georgia of 5 per cent of the salary of the office holder. Besides that, Davis has become emboldened or infuriated in this campaign and has stigmatized the white people who regularly vote the Republican ticket by calling them "lily-white bastards." It does the good Negro much harm when a member of his race is put in position where he can levy tribute on white women who solicit jobs because their finances compel it and where he can go about the state profanely stigmatizing white people. The reaction against Davis is not the primary thing; the reaction against his race is important. Davis has no esteemed position to lose; many members of his race do have the esteem of their white friends.

In North Carolina, much the same situation has been brought about by W. Lee Parsons, who, during the Reconstruction days, was elected to the North Carolina legislature. He later ran for congress, but was defeated in the famous fight that Senator Simmons, now a bolter, led against Negro domination in North Carolina. Parsons has been holding a federal job in Washington the past several years, while retaining the leadership of North Carolina Negroes. He shows the result of his elevation to a position of importance in a letter to the Asheville Citizen, regarding Senator Simmons' announcement that he would support the Republican party. Parsons says:

> I welcome the accession of Senator Simmons to our ranks. Conversion is better late than never. Long ago we were antagonists, but we never struck below the belt. Today I welcome him with open arms to the grand old party of God and morality. After all these years of defeat and disaster for the black man's party in the South I can see us again coming into our own. Not a great many of us remain alive, who can recall the days when black men sat in the chairs of state in the Southern capitols. Those days have long been gone, but, bless God, I can see them returning. It is said that a house divided against itself cannot stand, and now we see the white people of the South dividing.
>
> I wish to use the newspapers of North Carolina to urge my people to get behind Senator Simmons and support him. What is true in North Carolina may be true in other Southern states. Just let us get control of the state machinery this time and Mr. Hoover in the White House will give us such help as will wipe out all the laws in the South which will keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man.

After welcoming Senator Simmons "to our party," he tells the Negroes what a Republican victory will mean. It will "wipe out all the laws in the South which will keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man."

He thanks God that he can see such a division among Democrats as will enable the black man's party to "again come into its own."

He recalls the days of the reconstruction era, "when black men sat in the chairs of state in the Southern capitols," and sees these days restored.

Intelligent people know well enough, of course, that there is no danger of the return of those days when governmental posts in the South were held by the Negro; nor is there any probability that the white and black man will move upon the same planes in the South, until those planes be civil justice and mutual courtesy. The harm that Parsons does is that by his misinterpretation of the aims of his race and of the feeling of his race, he is harming the race. Intelligent Negroes and intelligent white people long ago realized that there can be no miscegenation, no breaking down of social barriers and that the development of the races must be parallel and not unilateral. Yet, such wild statements as Parsons has made leaves with a considerable element of white Southerners the old bogey fear of "black heels on white necks." Such a feeling is not best for the development and amicable relations of the two races.

The Telegraph has not said and does not now say that the Negro ought to vote. The intelligent Negro, as well as the intelligent white man, ought to be allowed the privilege of suffrage. But, for their own good, Negroes ought not to be dragged in and ought not to project themselves into fights between white men. In one case, Davis has been dragged in by Mrs. Williams' plea to his followers in the state and in the other, Parsons has injected the Negro of North Carolina into the fight there.

NEW YORK TIMES

OCT 8 1928

MAKING THE NEGRO A PAWN.

Into Secretary HOOVER'S speech on Saturday, especially directed to the South, were inserted several minor statements, or pledges, which did not attract much attention, though they deserve it. One of them was the following: "I believe in the merit "system of the civil service, and I "believe further that appointive of-"fices must be filled by those who "deserve the confidence and respect "of the communities they serve." This sounds harmless enough, but in Southern ears it can mean only one thing. Just now in the South the negro question is more violently debated than for years. And it is certain that this quiet utterance by Mr. HOOVER will be taken there as tantamount to a promise not to appoint colored men as postmasters, United States Marshals or Federal Collectors of Internal Revenue. It will be regarded as confirmation of the many reports that, if Mr. HOOVER is elected President, the Republican organization in the South will be virtually "lily white."

This is fully in line with a great deal of Republican campaigning now going on in the South. Strange as it may seem, an effort is made to show that the Democrats are more favorable to the political and social aspirations of the black man than are the Republicans. A full-page advertisement has been inserted in several Southern newspapers with the heading, "AL SMITH, the Negro Lover." It details some of the alleged favors shown by Governor SMITH to colored men in New York, and explains in large type that "AL "SMITH is the worst foe of White "Supremacy in public life in the "United States today." To us in the North this may seem fantastic. But it is a serious business in the South. It may be said that the whole is merely a political manoeuvre, designed for the coming election only, after which it will be dropped. But such movements, calculated as they are to renew and intensify racial animosities, create evils which live after them. The chief sufferers from them are only too likely to be the colored men themselves, whom it is thus sought to make use of insincerely by the campaigners of the two parties.

COUNCIL BLUFFS

IOWA

OCT 3 1928

G. O. P. NEGROES MEET

Enrollment In Hoover-Curtis Club Now Exceeds 100.

At the second meeting of the Hoover-Curtis club, Negro division, held Tuesday night at the Calvary Baptist church, thirty-five new members were added to the local organization to bring the total enrollment well over the 100 mark, according to Mrs. Christine Althouse, 2538 Fourth avenue, chairman.

An open discussion of the subject, "Why I am a Republican," was entered by many of the members. Short addresses were also delivered by several local republican Negroes on various phases of the political situation.

The next meeting of the group will be held Monday, Oct. 8, at the Tabernacle Baptist church. "What the Republican Party Has Meant to the Negro," will be the subject of discussion.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

THE NEGRO AND THE BALLOT

The present political campaign presents a situation that becomes intreasingly complicated as the election approaches. Controversies over Catholicism, prohibition, Tammany Hall, farm relief, the tariff, control of water power, and many other questions, with their accompanying slander and reviling, have resulted in such unprecedented party bolting in all sections of the country as to make the outcome of the election extremely doubtful.

Independent

Every day one reads a new forecast of the result of the election. In one he is told that nineteen states will surely go Republican and eleven Democratic; whereas eighteen, including New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Missouri, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Kentucky, and Tennessee, are doubtful. In another, twelve states are listed as surely Republican, seven as Democratic and twenty-nine as doubtful. In a third forecast, the doubtful list is still longer. Nearly every day releases from Republican headquarters predict victory for the Republicans in certain hitherto doubtful states; while releases from Democratic headquarters do likewise for the Democrats.

In all this confusion no one is more greatly preplexed than the Negro. The Republican party's indifference to him is responsible for his extensive bolting in this campaign. On the other hand, the hatred the South has shown toward him for so many years makes him shudder at seeking protection within the Democratic fold. Both Hoover and Smith have not dared to mention him either in their platforms or in their speeches. He is nonplussed. It is not unreasonable to suppose, therefore, that such a state of mind will tend to create indifference to the ballot on his part. Nothing could be more disastrous at this time.

It has been estimated that there are about six million Negroes in issues in this campaign. He should make a thorough investigation of the past public record of each candidate; should study his speeches in the present campaign; and above all should seek to determine his fitness to handle successfully all the intricate problems, national and international, that come within the scope of his office.

Apart from problems more or less domestic, there are serious international problems that will confront the new President, and that will demand wise leadership. There are the Kellogg peace treaty, the World Court, military disarmament, immigration, conditions in the Latin-American countries, our relations with Soviet Russia, and many other serious problems the proper disposition of which is just as vital to the Negro as to any other group in this country. It is necessary, therefore, that he should exercise his right to vote, and by all means should be guided by reason and intelligence in making his decision. To be indifferent or to heed the appeal of sentiment would be tragic.—Washington Sun.

WATSON "ICED" AT NEGRO MEET

Given Cold Welcome by Negro Republicans

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—There was little applause when senator James Watson of Indiana, was introduced at a political meeting here. The Negro audience did not welcome him as enthusiastically as the republican party officials were led to expect, and to the contrary gave him the well known cold shoulder. Watson whose affiliation with the K. K. Klux Klan is known throughout the country, although he sat on the speaker's platform during the entire meeting, did not speak because of a "sore throat." He was scheduled to make the principal address of the evening When introduced, he made a bow and sat down without saying a word.

The republican leaders are reported to have said that they surmised that the senator's withdrawal "may have been" due to anti-Watson sentiment among the Negroes.

Republican.

G O P GUILTY OF DASTARD CRIME, KELLY MILLER

Howard Publicist And Professor Writes Hoover 4,685 Word Open Letter

HOOVER IS COMPARED WITH T'DDY ROOSEVELT

Dean Miller Reminds That Only Al Smith Has Condemned Klan

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Kelly Miller sent Presidential Candidate Herbert Hoover a 4685 page open letter this week entitled the "Negro at the Cross Roads."

In it Mr. Hoover is taken to task for his lily-white program and his silence on the Ku Klux Klan.

"I have met with the feeling of colored voters," said Dr. Miller, "to which I think you are entitled."

Some of the striking paragraphs of the letter are:

Would Bolt Party

"If Charles Sumner, Thaddeus Stevens and the galaxy of brilliant Republican statesmen who incorporated the three Civil War amendments into the Constitution were living they would in all probability bolt the Grand Old Party as it faces up today.

Coolidge Harding

Both Presidents Harding and Coolidge refused to appoint a Negro minister to the Negro Republic of Haiti, a precedent set by President Grant and followed by Republican Presidents till the time of Taft.

G. O. P. Raped Haiti

"Haiti, our little black sister of the West Indies, has been raped of her virtue of self-sovereignty. A similar assault seems to be planned upon Liberia. Of course, material advantage and substantial reward have been presented in extenuation. Alluring gifts usually preceed seduction.

U. S. Worse Than Gambling House

"The last two Republican administrations have permitted the manipulation of the Civil Service machinery so as to cheat the Negro competitor to follow them. Usually it is a cross between an excuse and an apology.

Comparison With Roosevelt

"In order to carry out your evident purpose to split the solid South, it may have been necessary to remove Negroes from the chief places in state organizations. Theodore Roosevelt declared this to be his policy in building up a Progressive party in the South in 1912. But he had the courage and candor of his policy. He stated frankly that he would place white men at the head of the table, but not merely because they were white, but under the existing conditions, they were better instruments with which to carry out his purpose. At the same time he made room for colored men to find their places at the table according to their ability, weight and worth. His policy was as far from yours as night from day.

Howard, Davis, Church Cases

"After telling how Perry Howard (Miss), Robt. R. Church (Tenn.), Walter Cohen (La.), and Benj. Davis (Ga.), have been discredited and pushed aside by Hoover for lily-whites, Dr. Miller says.

"Files of the Congressional records will show that the Hon. Bascom Slemp, national committeeman from Virginia, was charged with documentary evidence, with the same type of offense for which the Mississippi national committeeman was indicted, and yet Mr. Slemp became private secretary to President Coolidge, and is now functioning as high priest in your campaign management, with out of his just dues. When a loya and patriotic American citizen is invited to open competition for a position and wins over other competitors and is then deprived of the promisec reward by tricky contrivances and cunning devices, he is justified in accusing the government of sharp practice which would not be tolerated in a first class gambling house.

Smith Condemned Klan

"During the present campaign Governor Smith, your agile adversary has condemned the Klan with his accustomed frankness and courage but up to date neither you, nor Mr Work, nor any other orthodox Republican of high party rank has opened his prudent lips.

The Old Klan

"The Ku Klux Klan sprung up after the Civil War for the express purpose of denying the Negro the full measure of his right as an American citizen. The Republican party o that day destroyed that evil and wicked order. The rejuvenated Klan began its operations in the South and in the Democratic party, but was driven body and baggage from that party by deliberate action at Madison Square Garden four years ago. It then sought and found hospitality in the Republican party. The basis of operation shifted to the West and North. It has gained all but complete control of the Republican politics in several western states, notably in Indiana, where it now has two governors—one in the penitentiary and one out.

Many Vote for Smith

"Many, many Negroes will vote the Democratic ticket, as a vindictive protest against the apostacy of the Republican party. A slap in the face by the hand of a friend inflicts a deeper hurt than a like blow, from the hand of an avowed enemy. The Negro is human and will be actuated by human motives.

Apologists Can't Find Agument

"I have been amazed and amused to notice your Negro adherents floundering around for firm grounds upon which to base their support; and upon which they can persuade others

Seattle, Wash. Enterprise Sept. 13 1928

John R. Hawkins In Chicago To Settle Discontent

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 12—(Special)—G. O. P. leaders here pooh, poohed the idea that Western chiefs have set next Wednesday for a strike if their demands are not met.

The Washington Post, in a special dispatch from Chicago, Tuesday, declared:

"After marking time for three weeks, colored Republican headquarters chiefs were ready to quit today. A general walkout of the Western division is threatened next Wednesday unless there are far-reaching developments by that time.

Phillips' Hands Tied.

"Homer G. Phillips, of St. Louis, who was defeated by John R. Hawkins, of Washington, to head the Negro Republican organization there, has discovered that his hands are tied as field organizer of the Western division. Organizers he commissioned are to be scrapped and their places filled by men in Washington.

"State Senator Odelbert Roberts, in charge of Negro headquarters here, brought back the revised organization when he returned recently from Washington. This revision, it is said, does not meet the approval of Roscoe Simmons nor of C. C. Calloway, chairman and vice-chairman of the speakers' bureau. These men, together with Arthur W. Mitchell, of Washington, and Mrs. Lethia Fleming, of Cleveland, feel keenly Senator Roberts' lack of national political experience as well as his inability to arrange satisfactory compensations.

Budget Too Small.

"They believed his $2,000 weekly budget here is much too small and resent the fact that the office personnel has been drawn entirely from the Windy City. But most of all, they resent their station here as ornaments on a $6 daily stipend without instructions or schedule.

"Senator Roberts is closely aligned with major political interests here, and Negro Republican organization heads say he is about to freeze out the Tuskegee influence which Phillips and his co-workers represent. A showdown has been asked for in midweek.

Independents at Work.

Meanwhile, with the Elk convention adjourned, much organization activity has been noted in the Negro voters' political leagues opposed to voteless leadership. The league has the appearance of being amply supplied with campaign funds which can be traced to purely Negro sources."

How Trouble Started.

Trouble started several weeks ago when R. R. Church, Tennessee leader, Armond Scott and Finley Wilson of Washington, declined to serve on the colored G. O. P. advisory committee as at present constituted.

Church and Roscoe Simmons took their complaints to Herbert Hoover himself, and are reported to have had the understanding that the situation would be remedied as far as it concerns the organization in the West.

It is this revision which is reported as still unsatisfactory to Simmons and Church and Homer Phillips, chief of the Western bureau.

Hawkins in Chicago.

Claude A. Barnett, chief of the Associated Negro Press, and secretary of the G. O. P. publicity committee, declared that he did not consider the threatened Chicago walkout as worthy of serious notice.

Dr. John R. Hawkins, head of the colored Republican campaign committee, is in Chicago, he said, straightening out the tangle.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Times
Sunday, September 23, 1928

ORATORY MARKS THIRD DISTRICT G. O. P. POWWOW

Silas Williams Nominated for Congress Race.

SPEAKERS SEE VICTORY PERCHED ON BANNER

Dr. W. A. Thompson, Negro Leader, Sounds Keynote of Campaign — Judge Jennings Raps Democracy.

Attorney Silas Williams was named republican nominee for congress from the Third congressional district at the district convention, held yesterday morning in the courthouse auditorium.

Dr. W. A. Thompson, prominent local negro republican leader, placed his stamp of approval on the proceedings of the convention and called attention to the fact that the republicans of the Third ward in Chicago have nominated William Harrison, negro, as the candidate for congress. According to Dr. Thompson, Harris is running as an "anti-ring candidate" against Oscar DePriest, a white republican, for the office in Illinois.

After briefly referring to the spirit manifested by republicans during the national convention held at Kansas City last summer, where he served as one of the alternates from this congressional district, Dr. Thompson predicted the election of Herbert Hoover, the republican candidate for president, Silas Williams and William Harrison. The speaker said that he had attended Rogers Williams college, in Nashville, and later the University of Chicago, with William Harrison.

Referring to Harrison, Dr. Thompson said, in part:

"Yes, it is a fact, as the democrats have charged, that the republicans of Illinois have nominated a negro for congress. He is a brilliant man, one of the leading attorneys of Chicago. When he goes to congress we know we will all be glad that we have put no pettifogging politician, no man who will bow to the gallery, in office."

Dr. Thompson revealed that a campaign for funds for the negro aspirant for congress in Chicago has been in progress among republicans for some time.

Concerning the presidential campaign, Dr. Thompson said, in part:

"The leaders of my race never want to see this fair land reeling and rocking and swimming in alcoholic beverages." He predicted that Kentucky, Alabama and Georgia will all "go republican," and said there is no reason why Tennessee will not do likewise, provided the republican politicians of both races lend their best efforts to the cause.

Williams Nominated By J. H. Anderson.

United States Commissioner J. H. Anderson, in nominating Attorney Williams, also made brief references to the negroes and the republicans. In northern Georgia the republicans are very active, he said, and Senator Hardwick recently was "sent to urge the democrats not to forsake the democratic party merely because Smith had been nominated."

"He had told those people that the republican party was a negro party," the speaker said, in part. "I replied to him by saying that in Smith's own state of New York, in New York City, there are 300 negro school teachers and 200 negro policemen. They also chided us because in Chicago, in a negro district, the republicans have nominated a negro for congress. I replied that in St. Louis the democrats have nominated a negro on the democratic ticket.

"The republican party in not a sectional party, nor is it a racial party. I would not object to a colored man voting for the democratic party if he considered its principles were right. But I say to the colored man: 'Politics are not a matter of the color of your skin; they are a matter of principle.'"

The convention was opened with the singing of "America," led by Attorney John Ray, chairman of the Hamilton county republican executive committee. After Attorney John H. Early led in prayer, Gen. A. J. Fletcher, of Bradley county, was elected permanent chairman and Parks High, of Polk county, permanent secretary.

After taking the figurative gavel, Gen. Fletcher expressed himself in part, as follows:

"What we want to do is to show these democrats that we mean business. There are enough God-fearing democrats in this county and state to successfully help us carry this state for Herbert Hoover." He characterized Hoover as "one of the greatest men alive on the face of the earth today."

Every republican present was named a delegate to the convention, on a motion that effect by Attorney P. H. Thach. Attorney Foster V. Brown moved that the usual "committee on resolutions" be dispensed with "because the world knows already what we stand for," he said. The motion was passed.

Commissioner Anderson announced that the honor of nominating the candidate for congress from the Third congressional district had been conferred on him.

"The committee also said that I might indulge in a few 'whispers'," commented Commissioner Anderson. "They have said that this is a 'whispering campaign.' It has been my pleasure to have heard several republicans supporting our candidate for president, but I have also heard democrats appealing for the support of Hoover.

"This is a remarkable campaign, ladies and gentlemen. Those of us who are in middle life and past middle life have never before seen democratic campaign orators going before the south and asking them to support a republican candidate."

The speaker described his impressions of the national republican convention, which he attended. He then centered on the democratic national convention, held in Houston, Tex.:

"Three minutes after the democratic convention at Houston was over, what occurred? The presidential nominee who had been named by that convention sent a telegram repudiating the platform of his party. So we have the spectacle of a democratic candidate for president running, not on a platform, but on a telegram. * * *

"Some people may say that it is too late for us to nominate a candidate for congress, but this is not true. As the son of a Confederate veteran, I rise to nominate the son of another Confederate veteran as the republican candidate for congress from the Third congressional district."

Attorney Williams will "stand for the present immigration laws," according to Commissioner Anderson. Concerning prohibition, the speaker said:

Declares Williams Stands With "Drys."

"He (Williams) will not align himself, when he comes to consider prohibition, with those who long for the time to return in America when one could put his foot on a rail and blow off the froth. * * * He will stand with Hoover, for upholding the Eighteenth amendment, and the laws pursuant thereto * * *

"The man nominated by the opposition (Congressman Sam D. McReynolds, who is seeking re-election on the democratic ticket) is my personal friend, but what has he done in Washington by which he has a right to ask to be sent back? He has done—practically nothing!"

The nomination of Attorney Williams was seconded by Judge Sam Brown, of McMinn county, and passed by acclamation.

Postmaster Willard Springfield, who recently declined the nomination for congress, then expressed himself, in part, as follows:

"During the Aug. 2 primary the republicans of this district nominated me for congress. I want to say that I appreciate the honor they conferred on me, but there were some conditions and circumstances under which I could not accept. It pained me to make the statement that I could not accept that nomination, because I knew it would disappoint my friends. But some of my strong personal friends contended that I should remain in my present post as postmaster."

In closing, Postmaster Springfield warmly eulogized Attorney Williams, and predicted that the latter will be elected.

Attorney Williams was escorted to the platform by Attorneys Foster V. Brown and P. H. Thach.

"I accept this nomination with the idea of winning the election," said Attorney Williams, in part. "I believe that Herbert Hoover will be elected president of the United States and that he will carry Tennessee and the Third congressional district by an overwhelming majority.

"I have made no promises to anyone for this nomination. I am no one's candidate, except the candidate of the republican party of the Third congressional district. However, I am going to make a promise now, that in every speech I make during my campaign, the burden of my song will be the preeminency of Herbert Hoover for the presidency of the United States. If I am elected, I will give just as much consideration and weight to the requests of the most humble person in my district as to the requests of the most powerful person."

Williams Challenges Judge McReynolds.

Attorney Williams stated that he was born in South Carolina, "born and raised a democrat, the son of a Confederate soldier." He came to Tennessee a democrat, he said, and in 1920 he cast his first vote for a republican, Warren G. Harding, former president of the United States.

"I am 'dry' in principle and in practice, and for Hoover," he said. He declared that he is "behind Hoover" on the latter's stand for "restricted immigration" and for "a high, protective tariff." "I believe American prosperity—and there really is prosperity, it is no myth—is due to republican administrations and prohibition."

In conclusion, Attorney Williams demanded answers to questions concerning Congressman McReynolds' stand on "certain questions."

"Does my honored opponent (McReynolds) indorse Smith's stand on immigration?" he asked. "Does he indorse Smith's stand on the proposed plan to put the states back in the liquor business? If Smith and my honored opponent are elected, and Smith carries out his proposal to amend the prohibition and immigration laws, will Congressman McReynolds give Smith his support or oppose him? I believe that the public has a right to have these questions answered."

Jennings Speaks And "Wise Cracks."

Judge John Jennings, of Knoxville, former chancellor, was introduced by Attorney Sam J. McAllester, referee in bankruptcy.

Judge Jennings, in a rather lengthy speech, interspersed with numerous "wise cracks" at the expense of the democrats, made remarks such as the following:

"When a man like Raskob leaves our party, it is to the party's credit."

"Talk about intolerance! Who is intolerant? Don't Smith 'fuss' with somebody almost every time he makes a speech?"

"Concerning this 'whispering campaign': We have heard from the 'whispering pines of Maine' that grew into a roar of 90,000 republican majority."

"Smith proposes that the 'alcoholic content' be raised to 'Tammany per cent.' He seems to think that enlargement of the alcoholic content is the supreme issue of this campaign."

"This is the first time in history that Tammany Hall has been strong enough to go into a democratic convention and swallow it body, soul and britches."

"The republican party has been in power in this country for fifty-two years out of the past sixty-eight years."

Attorney Williams will formally open his campaign Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Bradley county courthouse in Cleveland. He is expected to discuss the current issues of the national campaign, together with his claims for the office to which he is aspiring. He is planning other speaking engagements, among them being an address at Birchwood next Friday night. The dates of other engagements have not been definitely assigned as yet, but will be released next week.

LaGrange, Ga., Graphic
Friday, September 7, 1928

Speaking of bolters, the colored voters seem to be deserting the republican party and swearing allegience to the leaders of Tammany. The reason for this change of heart is explained by this and similar instances as described in the New York Times of August 16. "With more than 500 negro delegates from all over the country attending, the twenty-ninth annual convention of the National Negro Business League opened yesterday morning at the Mother Zion A. M. E. Church, 151 West 136th street. Mayor Walker welcomed the convention to the city at the evening session in the Abyssinian Baptist church, 132 West 138th street. The Mayor's only reference to national politics came when he paused for a moment towards the end of his address and then concluded with a smile: 'After the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November—I won't say what is going to happen—but I can assure you now that you will be as welcome in the White House as you are here in New York City.' The Mayor's remarks were cheered until he left to go to another engagement."

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican.

Declares Republicans in Washington Permit No Negro Commissioner to Dictate to White Female Stenographers, as Is Done in New York City

The color issue was boldly raised here Monday, this time by one high in the ranks of the Hoover campaign forces, when Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Eastern manager of the Republican National Committee, slammed a broadside at the Democrats for permitting a Negro civil service commissioner to dictate to a "white stenographer of the female sex." He hurled his scathing criticism out before 500 members of the Women's National Republican Club.

Senator Moses, a New Englander, who is not conversant with the political intricacies of New York, was following the lead of the Ku Klux Klan organ, the Fellowship Forum, which published a picture of Ferdinand Q. Morton, Democrat, civil service commissioner, dictating to a white stenographer. His reference was made of the same man.

One woman asked if it were true that Herbert Hoover had placed Negro officials over white men during the Mississippi flood relief. Another wanted to know whether the Presidential candidate had made promises to the colored Virginians for their support.

Moses Didn't Know

"I don't know that any such condition exists," he replied, "but if any promises have been made, they will be kept."

Continuing, he declared: "I do know, however, that in Washington there is no colored civil service commissioner who dictates to a white stenographer of the female sex, such as I understand is done right here in New York."

Party Regrets Rashness

Regret that the color issue should be raised by one of the highest campaign officers flowed freely through Republican circles. The Senator only meant, it was insisted, to draw a comparison showing that Democrats and Republicans alike acknowledge the place of the Negro to serve in public office. Meanwhile, the campaign forces await the wave of protest expected to come from the Negro constituency.

Leaders Disagree

Applauded by half of his audience, a sector of equal size received his tirade in silence. Leaders of the Republicans openly disagreed with the remarks, which they contend can only serve to arouse bitterness and possibly create a breach between white and colored Republicans.

It was pointed out, also, that the senator was unwise in choosing his subject, for recognition is given colored Republicans in New York as elsewhere. There are Assistant District Attorneys Hubert Delaney and Richard Baltimore in the United States Attorney's office; Charles W. Anderson, Collector of Internal Revenue, post office superintendents and other officials holding appointive offices without engendering the least friction and no discrimination is made in assigning white workers to assist them.

The bombshell of Moses came after a speech in which he ridiculed the Democrats for their tardy espousal of the tariff. Concluding, he submitted to questioning.

HOOPING FOR HOOVER

THE LOUISVILLE LEADER, that is the organ of the Hoover ite "Sham pain" in Kentucky, had an article from a note Baptist minister, which contained these shocking and appalling assertions:

"Five Million Masons Will Vote For Hoover."

If that many Masons will vote against a man on account of his religious belief they ought to burn up their regalia, wreck every temple and disband to meet no more 'til we are all called before the judgment seat of God. To vote according to that prediction is to trample upon the rights of an humble and honest citizen and to soil with the hoof of brutal bigotry the roses and violets of constitutional liberty.

The Catholics, of all religious sects, were the first to make a motion for freedom of conscience in the new world and are the last to receive its benefits.

Again it says, "Ten million members of the Ku Klux Klan will vote for Hoover." That must be very comforting to the Negro to learn that the Grand Dragon, D. C. Stephenson, now serving a life term in the penitentiary for murder, will be released through the Klan's influence and that "Imperial Lizzard," H. W. Evans, will be a member of Hoover's cabinet. This band of pirates that has spread terror into the hearts of poor, defenseless Negroes by hanging, burning, branding and whipping them, is to direct the destinies of this Republic. A vote for Hoover is a vote for the Klan.

Further it says, "Colored Americans, en bloc, will vote for Hoover." That is to say that Negroes are so blind as to lick the boot that kicks them and though the Republican party has spurned him from its door, as a strange cur, yet will he return, wagging his tail and barking to get in. We deny that ALL Negroes will vote for Hoover. To do so would justify his disfranchisement, for nothing could better demonstrate his unfitness for the ballot than a lack of intelligence to discriminate between good and evil.

Says the writer, "The bootlegger will support Hoover upon the ground that, should Governor Smith be elected, their business will end, and that means the return of the saloons.

That must be very edifying to these christian moralists to know they have the active aid and co-operation of bootleggers in their efforts to save us from the Catholics.

It is also good news to us that Smith's election means the "return of the saloons." That is beyond the mildest dream of the wettest wet. That out-jonahs—Jonah.

The article concludes with this piece of folly:

"The people are going to elect Hoover because they believe in America for Americans and are opposed to any entrangling alliances with Pope, King or other foreign ruler."

Pray tell us, how can any President get us into entangling alliance? It is more like Hoover has already gotten the Republican party into an alliance offensive and defensive with Ku Klux Klan and its rule is certainly foreign to American ideals, to our constitutions and laws and to the genius of all our institutions. Negroes who are caught with such chaff do not deserve to be considered within the pale of human brotherhood. They are mere Ishmaelites on Earth with their hands against every man and every man's hand against them.

A vote for Hoover is a vote for the political prostitutes in the Ku Klux Klan. It is an endorsement of every outrage committed against Negroes, while on the other hand a vote for Smith is a vote for the death of race prejudice, religious intolerance and the end of the most infamous and remorseless brand of assassins that ever scuttled a ship or cut a throat.

Vote for Smith.

Birmingham, Ala., News
Tuesday, September 4, 1928

NEGRO G. O. P. HEAD IN STATE AWAITS STREET'S ORDERS

Montgomery County Chairman Holds Plans In Check; Democrats Busy

While the negro chairman of the Republican executive committee of Montgomery County announced he was awaiting further instructions from Oliver D. Street, Republican national committeeman from Alabama, before perfecting his Republican machine in Montgomery County, the white Democratic organization of Alabama was swinging into action Tuesday in every section of the state.

Action of an anti-Smith speaker at a mass meeting in Birmingham Monday night in holding up the clipping of a letter from C. L. Robins and claiming it denied stories about threats on Mr. Robins' life in Jasper several nights ago, was denounced as false Tuesday by Mr. Robins in a telephone conversation with The News.

"My letter protested only the report that I had a sawed-off shotgun, which was erroneous. I only felt that the shotgun part only held me in the light of a thug, and the loyal Democrats of Walker County are not thugs.

Favors Old Party

"I am for the Democratic ticket from top to bottom, and so is Walker County. They (meaning the foes of Democracy) had better stay away, for they cannot intimidate us. I pledge myself not only to support the party, but to work for an overwhelming victory in November."

The report that Mr. Robins had a sawed-off shotgun was made prematurely by the reporter covering the story for The Age-Herald on authority of county officers there. The report was made to him late at night, just before The Age-Herald went to press, and he was told that the county officials were sending Mr. Robins a sawed-off shotgun for his protection, following the threats against his life. Mr. Robins, who lives in a sparsely settled section of the town, was called from his home at midnight last Wednesday by three armed men and told "to lay off" politics and that "somebody is going to get killed."

The Democratic nominee for president was lauded as the greatest friend of labor since Woodrow Wilson in an address of William L. Harrison, Alabama labor chieftain, in a Labor Day address at Anniston.

R. H. Harris, negro chairman of the Montgomery County Republican executive committee, stated he was waiting for his regular advices from Street and from C. B. Kennamer, United States district attorney, before perfecting the Republican machine in Montgomery County.

M. C. Jackson is secretary of the Montgomery County Republican executive committee, of which the negro is chairman. Other members are Maj. E. E. Winters, J. P. Knabe C. W. Lee and V. H. Tulane.

And while Republicans of the state awaited the perfection of their machine, guided by Mr. Street, Democrats were swinging into line with a series of rallies in every section of the state over the week-end and through Labor Day.

Crowds Greet Miller

Judge B. M. Miller, the first Alabama jurist to administer jail sentences for prohibition violators, was principal speaker at a gigantic Labor Day rally at Centerville, in Bibb County. Judge Miller was greeted with a packed courthouse of Bibb County citizens. His address was an appeal to the Democrats of Bibb County to continue their unwavering championship of the ideals of Democracy and turn the general elections in November into a landslide of Alabama votes for the Democratic party, with the greatest majorities ever given a Democratic candidate.

The friendship of Gov. Smith for labor, demonstrated during his four terms as chief executive of New York, was recounted by W. L. Harrison in an address before a Labor Day meeting at Anniston. Mr. Harrison has served for five terms as head of the Alabama Federation of Labor. He is a former city commissioner of Birmingham and a member of the Alabama Tax Commission. In his address, Mr. Harrison said:

"I make this declaration of my own responsibility without fear of successful contradiction and of my own personal experience and knowledge in labor affairs, that there was more progressive remedial labor legislation enacted in Congress and more direct relief given labor under the administration of the late Democratic president, Woodrow Wilson, than under all the Republican administrations combined, certainly the last two, Harding and Coolidge, administrations.

Smith Aids Labor

"I make the further declaration that more genuine progressive, social and remedial legislation of interest and benefit to labor has been placed upon the statute books of the state of New York by the present Democratic standard-bearer while governor of that state than by any other governor of any state in this union. These statements are facts and will be borne out by the records.

The laboring men and women of this state, and indeed this nation, value the worth of the ballot to them and will reflect long and ponder seriously these records before being diverted or shaken by any 'isms' or schisms in doing their duty to themselves, their families and the labor cause when casting their votes."

Mr. Harrison reviewed the history of Labor Day in the United States and the progress of the labor movement under such leadership as that of the late Samuel Gompers and of William Green, now president of the American Federation of Labor. He emphasized the peaceful procedure and lawful methods that have characterized the labor movement in the United States as contrasted with that in Europe.

Huntsville Plans Rally

Preparations for a vast Democratic rally in Huntsville Tuesday night, under auspices of the Madison County Democratic Club, have been completed. Judge Leon McCord will deliver the principal address, discussing the issues of the campaign. The meeting will be held in the Madison County Courthouse.

From Meadville, Miss., came the report of a second meeting of the Franklin County Democratic Executive Committee, rescinding its action of several days ago in which it attacked by resolution the Democratic nominee.

The meeting in Meadville was called by Chairman P. H. Gaugh following an indignation meeting of citizens of the county who condemned previous action of the executive committee. The meeting was called and the action rescinded.

Dallas Voters Signed

Every voter in Dallas County is now being signed by the County Democratic Club in order to get to the polls the greatest list of Democratic voters in the November elections this county has ever seen. Milton Wood, Selma city councilman, is in charge of the membership committee, and Mrs. Bowie Smith, as chairman, is directing registration of the women.

Judge W. W. Brandon, former governor of Alabama and chief of the speakers bureau of the campaign in the state, is perfecting rapidly an organization of orators over the state and declares every voter in Alabama will have an opportunity to hear the truth about the campaign before November. He predicts a landslide for Democracy.

"I have been agreeably surprised with the number willing to go on the stump for Democracy during this campaign, contributing their time and money to a campaign of education," he said. "I trust that all voters in the state will attend these meetings, and they may be assured that the speeches will be free from abuse and ridicule.

Campaign On High Plane

"We are pitching this campaign on a high plane and we will not stoop below our original intent—to demonstrate clearly and honestly the already established fact that Democracy is the South's salvation, morally and materially.

"I hope all Alabamians will read the statement of Chairman Oliver in Sunday's issue of The Birmingham News. That presents clearly and fully the issues in the campaign."

Among the widely known Alabamians who are listed on the vast speaking program for Democracy in Alabama are Congressman Oliver, Congressman Bankhead, Congressman McDuffie, Congressman Allgood, Congressman Almon, J. H. Bankhead, G. T. McElderry, Judge Bernard Harwood, Judge C. E. McCall, Congressman Lister Hill, Maj. Frank W. Dixon, Judge James Rice, Judge B. M. Miller, J. M. Foster, Judge Fleetwood Rice, Thomas Espy, Judge Leon McCord, Judge Walter B. Jones, and a great many others from all sections of the state, according to Judge Brandon.

DR. ROBINSON RAN 3RD

GOOD SHOWING MADE BY "BENNIE" for Governor's Council Nomination IN REPUBLICAN DISTRICT — ROBERT TALYOR NOMINATED — BULLOCK ON STATE COMMITTEE — BURRILL AND HAMLIN FOR LEGISLATURE

Dr. Benjamin E. Robinson did not win the Republican nomination for the Governor's Council in the 3rd district, which is Republican, but he ran third in a field of 5, all white but himself, being led by Mrs. Andrews and Philip Ammidon. Mrs. Andrews is already in the Council and won on her appeal as the only woman. Robert J. Taylor had no opponent for nomination to the Governor's Council in the 4th district which is democratic.

DR. BENJ. E. ROBINSON
Lost, But Made Good Run

Minor F. Hamlin won the Republican nomination for the Legislature from the 1st Middlesex district in Cambridge, and Rollins Burrill from the 9th Suffolk in Boston, both of which are democratic. In Ward 9 Matthew Bullock defeated Mrs. Harriet C. Hall for Republican State Committee. It is said the Charles C. Seales slate won for Ward Committee.

Greenwood, Miss., Commonwealth
Thursday, September 20, 1928

WHERE DO YOU STAND

The Republican party is planning to wage a great battle to carry Mississippi for Herbert Hoover.

That seems evident from the announcement that Lamont Rowlands, Picayune capitalist, had been appointed chairman of the Republican campaign in Mississippi.

Lamont Rowlands is a fine gentleman, but the Republican party is the Republican party, and the selection of Mr. Rowlands does not cleanse the party of its taint.

The issue in Mississippi is still black against white. The campaign question is white supremacy or negro domination. The addition of a few white men to the party councils in Mississippi does not change the alternatives before the voters in November.

The Republican party is still the party of the negro. Perry Howard, although under indictment by a federal court, is still the Republican national committeeman. Mary Booze, of Mound Bayou, is still the national committeewoman from Mississippi, and her picture is still being displayed in a group of Republican national committeewomen meeting to discuss the campaign.

Negroes in Leflore county are still the representatives of the regular wing of the Republican party, and the so-called Lily-White group of Republicans took care to send a group of negroes with their contesting delegation to the Kansas City convention.

There is no argument that can change these facts. There is no white wash that can change the leopard's spots, nor paint out of the Republican party its sixty-eight years of black championship.

Where does the white voter in Mississippi stand? There is no middle ground in this campaign. The voter is either for Smith or for Hoover. Either Democrat or Republican.

WEST VIRGINIAN
FAIRMONT, W. VA.
SEP 7 - 1928

COLORED VOTERS FORM CLUB AT RACHEL

MANNINGTON Sept. 7.—A political club has been formed in this neighborhood for colored voters, with headquarters at Rachel. At the opening meeting there were 50 members to enroll. The next meeting will be held September. 8, when more voters are expected to join. The officers elected at the first meeting are Charles Boyd, president; John Horn, vice president; J. P. Davis, treasurer; Thomas Moore, secretary; James Moore, corresponding secretary. This organization will occupy headquarters and will hold regular meetings until after the approaching presidential election.

Political — 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican

SOME ANGLES TO THE ELECTION

With the presidential election sufficiently out of the way to view it dispassionately and unbiasedly, some of the factors contributing to the unprecendented triumph of President-elect Herbert Clark Hoover and Vice President-elect Charles Curtis, and the overwhelming defeat of Governor Alfred Emanuel Smith and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, can be scrutinized and analyzed.

Despite the fact that he polled the largest popular vote of any presidential candidate in the history of America, excepting his Republican opponent, Governor Smith failed to carry the "solid South," and his showing in the electoral college—87 votes as against 444 for Mr. Hoover—is the most sorrowful showing ever made by any Democratic presidential nominee.

Governor Smith's failure to carry the erstwhile "solid South" is largely attributed to the religious and liquor issue, with the former as the real issue and the latter as the alleged issue.

Had Governor Smith been a Protestant and as wet as the liquid waves of the Atlantic Ocean, we seriously doubt whether the Democratic South would have landed such a solar plexus wallop upon the political anatomy of this distingushed American.

As between Smith and Catholicism and Hoover and his "chocolate drops," multiplied thousands of Southern Democrats, by their vote of November 6, 1928, stated that they preferred the latter to the former; and this notwithstanding all manner and types of appeals to racial prejudice and sectional acrimony by Dixie demagogues and professional politicians.

11-17-28

As The Informer has often contended in its editorial columns, this country is normally Republican, and this was convincingly demonstrated in the recent presidential election, when, with Governor Smith breaking the record for all time in popular vote for the losing or winning presidential candidate, Mr. Hoover received an even larger popular vote and 84 per cent of the electoral votes.

As popular votes do not elect presidents, Governor Smith was simply out of luck, but his defeat and downfall is due to his party affiliations.

Houston Texas

Thousands, yea, millions of Americans forgot party lines and voted for the Gotham governor because they admired the man, while not giving a snap of their finger about his party; and we presume Smith supporters of the Democratic household can truthfully say the same thing about some of the Hoover supporters in the South and other sections of the country.

The opposition to Governor Smith because of his religious views made millions of votes for him, while the hostility of the klan drove millions more to his standards.

Whether we wish to admit it or not, The Informer holds to the view that the liquor question played a very small part in the presidential campaign—not enough to have changed the final outcome of the election; for had the border and Southern states, which gave their electoral vote to Mr. Hoover, gone for Governor Smith, the Republican nominee would have been elected just the same.

Democratic leaders are "pointing with pride" to Governor Smith's staggering popular vote, and contending that it signifies that their party is very much alive and if properly reorganized their presidential nominee will be elected in 1932.

One statement can be truthfully made about the Democratic party: It is the most forward-looking party in America, for before the votes are counted, tabulated and announced every quadrennium, the party leaders are issuing optimistic statements concerning their chances of winning the presidency in the next quadrennial election.

Why such a forward-looking political organization can not elect a president of this country is the difference between these leaders' feigned optimism and the determination of the majority of American electors that they prefer the Republican to the Democratic chief executive of the nation.

As long as the Democratic party practices and preaches one gospel in one section of the country and another in another section; as long as its main strength is derived from people who boast that they have no respect or regard for the constitution of their country, and regard it as a "mere scrap of paper;" as long as the Democratic leaders must trot out the perennial "Negro issue" to drive their adherents into the party fold and keep them there by waving the bloody flag of reconstruction days and thereby reviving the sectional issue; as long as the party fails to represent the highest ideals of Americanism and democracy, its presidential candidates, like Cox, Davis and Smith, will be led as sheep to their political slaughter and extermination.

The American electorate chose Mr. Hoover because they considered him and his party superior to Governor Smith and his mongrel partisan organization.

"SOLID SOUTH" AND THE NEGRO.

The Republican Party for once in its history has made inroads into the heretofore "Solid South." While the Southern people were thinking kindly of the Republican Party, the colored brother was flirting with the Democratic Party. Just as more Southern whites supported the National Republican Nominee than at any time since the party has been in existence so have more Negroes given their support to the National Democratic Nominee than at any time since the privilege of voting has been theirs.

Jacksonville Fla.

Columbia, S.C.

Heretofore, the Southern whites have looked upon the Republican Party as the devil incarnate and at the same time the Negroes have regarded the Democratic Party as all that is mean and unfair—something to be shunned as one would a pestilence. However, it seems that both have at last learned something.

11-17-28

There is no more reason for all Southern whites to be Democrats than there is for all Negroes to be Republicans. The last National election marks an era in the political thought of the nation. There can be no doubt that this country has taken a step forward, the old reactionaries to the contrary notwithstanding. Let it be hoped that the future years will see no backward steps, as revolutionary as things seem in the late election.

THE SOUTH AND THE NEGRO

In the campaign which ended with the triumphant election of Hoover for President including the victory the breaking of the Solid South the Negro passed through the bitterest campaign that has been waged since the ballot was placed in his hands. Never before in a Presidential campaign, has the cry of "Negro Domination" and "White Supremacy" been raised with such venom and bitterness for the purpose of arousing racial hatred against the Negro.

Herald Communications

.. Disfranchised for thirty-five years and absolutely eliminated from State and local politics and possessing emancipation from his present condition of semi-political only a convention status in the Republican party during and civil servitude.

Presidential Campaigns he was nevertheless made the The first and greatest need of the Negro in the South chief issue in the campaign in the South. 11-17-28 is justice and equal opportunity. This can only be fully

And yet Hoover won five great states of that section. secured through possession of the ballot and with the ad-

It was a bloodless revolution achieved with the ballot. It vent of the two party system in the South the ballot will means a new birth, a new day for the South; it means a be attained. The attainment of the ballot with justice and New South.

Baltimore, Md.

It means a new day for the Negro of the South. It equal opportunity that will follow is worth any price or means that the old party skeletons held together only for sacrifice that may be needed to secure it.

the purpose of herding delegates to be bartered in exchange for patronage will be destroyed and the building up of an aggressive, militant, strong Republican party organization in each State that will attract to it voters of both races and bring to the Negro political relief and

Political — 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican

SOME ANGLES TO THE ELECTION

With the presidential election sufficiently out of the way to view it dispassionately and unbiasedly, some of the factors contributing to the unprecendented triumph of President-elect Herbert Clark Hoover and Vice President-elect Charles Curtis, and the overwhelming defeat of Governor Alfred Emanuel Smith and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, can be scrutinized and analyzed.

Despite the fact that he polled the largest popular vote of any presidential candidate in the history of America, excepting his Republican opponent, Governor Smith failed to carry the "solid South," and his showing in the electoral college—87 votes as against 444 for Mr. Hoover—is the most sorrowful showing ever made by any Democratic presidential nominee.

Governor Smith's failure to carry the erstwhile "solid South" is largely attributed to the religious and liquor issue, with the former as the real issue and the latter as the alleged issue.

Had Governor Smith been a Protestant and as wet as the liquid waves of the Atlantic Ocean, we seriously doubt whether the Democratic South would have landed such a solar plexus wallop upon the political anatomy of this distingushed American.

As between Smith and Catholicism and Hoover and his "chocolate drops," multiplied thousands of Southern Democrats, by their vote of November 6, 1928, stated that they preferred the latter to the former; and this notwithstanding all manner and types of appeals to racial prejudice and sectional acrimony by Dixie demagogues and professional politicians.

11-17-28

As The Informer has often contended in its editorial columns, this country is normally Republican, and this was convincingly demonstrated in the recent presidential election, when, with Governor Smith breaking the record for all time in popular vote for the losing or winning presidential candidate, Mr. Hoover received an even larger popular vote and 84 per cent of the electoral votes.

As popular votes do not elect presidents, Governor Smith was simply out of luck, but his defeat and downfall is due to his party affiliations.

Houston Informer

Thousands, yea, millions of Americans forgot party lines and voted for the Gotham governor because they admired the man, while not giving a snap of their finger about his party; and we presume Smith supporters of the Democratic household can truthfully say the same thing about some of the Hoover supporters in the South and other sections of the country.

The opposition to Governor Smith because of his religious views made millions of votes for him, while the hostility of the klan drove millions more to his standards.

Whether we wish to admit it or not, The Informer holds to the view that the liquor question played a very small part in the presidential campaign—not enough to have changed the final outcome of the election; for had the border and Southern states, which gave their electoral vote to Mr. Hoover, gone for Governor Smith, the Republican nominee would have been elected just the same.

Democratic leaders are "pointing with pride" to Governor Smith's staggering popular vote, and contending that it signifies that their party is very much alive and if properly reorganized their presidential nominee will be elected in 1932.

One statement can be truthfully made about the Democratic party: It is the most forward-looking party in America, for before the votes are counted, tabulated and announced every quadrennium, the party leaders are issuing optimistic statements concerning their chances of winning the presidency in the next quadrennial election.

Why such a forward-looking political organization can not elect a president of this country is the difference between these leaders' feigned optimism and the determination of the majority of American electors that they prefer the Republican to the Democratic chief executive of the nation.

As long as the Democratic party practices and preaches one gospel in one section of the country and another in another section; as long as its main strength is derived from people who boast that they have no respect or regard for the constitution of their country, and regard it as a "mere scrap of paper;" as long as the Democratic leaders must trot out the perennial "Negro issue" to drive their adherents into the party fold and keep them there by waving the bloody flag of reconstruction days and thereby reviving the sectional issue; as long as the party fails to represent the highest ideals of Americanism and democracy, its presidential candidates, like Cox, Davis and Smith, will be led as sheep to their political slaughter and extermination.

The American electorate chose Mr. Hoover because they considered him and his party superior to Governor Smith and his mongrel partisan organization.

"SOLID SOUTH" AND THE NEGRO.

The Republican Party for once in its history has made inroads into the heretofore "Solid South." While the Southern people were thinking kindly of the Republican Party, the colored brother was flirting with the Democratic Party. Just as more Southern whites supported the National Republican Nominee than at any time since the party has been in existence so have more Negroes given their support to the National Democratic Nominee than at any time since the privilege of voting has been theirs.

Columbia, S.C.

Heretofore, the Southern whites have looked upon the Republican Party as the devil incarnate and at the same time the Negroes have regarded the Democratic Party as all that is mean and unfair—something to be shunned as one would a pestilence. However, it seems that both have at last learned something.

11-17-28

There is no more reason for all Southern whites to be Democrats than there is for all Negroes to be Republicans. The last National election marks an era in the political thought of the nation. There can be no doubt that this country has taken a step forward, the old reactionaries to the contrary notwithstanding. Let it be hoped that the future years will see no backward steps, as revolutionary as things seem in the late election.

THE SOUTH AND THE NEGRO

In the campaign which ended with the triumphant election of Hoover for President including the victory the breaking of the Solid South the Negro passed through the bitterest campaign that has been waged since the ballot was placed in his hands. Never before in a Presidential campaign, has the cry of "Negro Domination" and "White Supremacy" been raised with such venom and bitterness for the purpose of arousing racial hatred against the Negro.

Herald Commonwealth

.. Disfranchised for thirty-five years and absolutely eliminated from State and local politics and possessing only a convention status in the Republican party during Presidential Campaigns he was nevertheless made the chief issue in the campaign in the South. 11-17-28

And yet Hoover won five great states of that section. It was a bloodless revolution achieved with the ballot. It means a new birth, a new day for the South; it means a New South.

Baltimore, Md.

It means a new day for the Negro of the South. It means that the old party skeletons held together only for the purpose of herding delegates to be bartered in exchange for patronage will be destroyed and the building up of an aggressive, militant, strong Republican party organization in each State that will attract to it voters of both races and bring to the Negro political relief and emancipation from his present condition of semi-political and civil servitude.

The first and greatest need of the Negro in the South is justice and equal opportunity. This can only be fully secured through possession of the ballot and with the advent of the two party system in the South the ballot will be attained. The attainment of the ballot with justice and equal opportunity that will follow is worth any price or sacrifice that may be needed to secure it.

THE BID FOR THE SOUTH

11/17/28

EVER since the Harding campaign in 1920 the Republican party has been wooing the Solid South. In that campaign Tennessee and Kentucky deserted the Donkey for the Elephant and, encouraged by the turn of affairs, President Harding went to Birmingham and delivered his famous speech, in which he emphasized, to the delight of the white South, that there were "fundamental and inescapable differences" between the two races. But that gesture and considerations in the matter of patronage did not win the Solid South for Coolidge in 1924. There were tens of thousands of white people in the South who secretly wanted to vote the Republican ticket and believed that the old one-party system down there was injurious to the section. But to be a Republican is, or has been, next door to being a Negro in the South, and few Southern whites could afford to brook social ostracism, even though they looked longingly at Republican patronage.

And then came the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith as the Democratic candidate for President. A Catholic, a Tammany leader and an avowed Wet, his candidacy offended a substantial majority of Protestant and Dry members of his party. The Republicans could have asked for nothing better as a lever to break the grip of the Democratic party on the Solid South. Election day came and passed, and Governor Smith was swamped under a wave of Republican votes, as politically informed persons had prophesied. But no one seemed to thoroughly appreciate, until after the ballots had been cast and counted, the extent of the Democratic defection in the South. Not only did the Republicans carry West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, as was expected, but they carried Texas, Oklahoma, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and Florida as well. The Republicans were amazed and the Democratic chiefs could hardly believe it.

Of course a great deal of this Democratic defection must be discounted in any attempt to estimate the actual political temper of the ex-Confederate States. It must be remembered that religious prejudices had a great deal to do with the decision of erstwhile Dixie Democrats to vote for Herbert Hoover. Again, while the South is just as wringing Wet as the rest of the country, it is politically and avowedly Dry. So the substantial defection of party members because of Governor Smith's Wetness was to be expected. But when these transient tempers are discounted, the astounding fact remains that all of the South except the most backward and savage sections has broken with political tradition.

The Republican party will not be slow to follow up its advantage. The first step, even before the campaign began, was the tacit agreement of those at the helm of the G. O. P. that the Lily White factions in the Southern States would be rid of Negro domination as the first step toward attaining respectability. With the Republican party in the South definitely a white man's party, so far as leadership is concerned, there would be greatly increased possibilities of splitting the solid Democratic vote and building up a two-party system. This first step was followed by intensive propaganda, both above and below board, and finally by Mr. Hoover's carefully prepared speech at Elizabethtown, Tenn. Now those familiar with G. O. P. strategy are saying that the cabinet of Mr. Hoover will contain at least one Southerner, and possibly two, while a great deal of patronage will be doled out to those who organized the Anti-Smith movement and succeeded beyond their wildest dreams. It is almost certain that all of the Republican National Committeemen will hereafter be white men, South as well as North, and that the Southern Negro politicians will have to relinquish their dominant position in party councils and control. With unequaled powers of dispensing patronage, the chances of the Republican party breaking permanently into the Solid South are very, very good.

But what of the Negro? Will the change help or hinder his political emancipation in the South? These questions are uppermost in the minds of intelligent Negroes in every part of the nation. The tendency is toward pessimism, but we do not believe that such an attitude is justified. The political power that Negro leaders in the South have bartered in the past quarter century has been largely non-existent. So far as the bulk of Negroes was concerned, it meant nothing. The Negroes were all theoretically Republicans, overwhelmingly disfranchised and thus helpless, while the whites were all Democrats with full voting power, and thus overwhelmingly dominant. To all intents and purposes there was but one political party in the South, and that one was "For white Only." There was no desire or bid for the vote of the Negro citizen, and consequently no one in the South made any effort to get him enfranchised. When there are real political contests in the South the Negro citizen will get consideration, and not until then. Since there can be no real political contests unless there are two parties, it seems obvious that the present trend is for the better, even though certain individual Negroes lose position and prestige. We must consider the good of the greatest number and we believe that will be best served as a result of the present G. O. P. tactics. Many Southern Democratic leaders realize this "danger" impending and that explains their fanatical aversion to any encroachments of the Republicans in what they deem their exclusive preserves.

Finally, the economic factors which are at the bottom of all human activities must be taken into consideration. The South is no longer overwhelmingly agricultural. Where up until twenty or thirty years ago there was but the one dominant economic interest, there are now two and possibly three. In addition to the Southern agriculturists, there are now the increasingly powerful factory and commercial classes. The inevitable differences between country and town have arisen and are growing stronger. This growing economic diversity of the South renders a one-party system obsolescent and ineffective, and marks its doom in the not-far-distant future. The results of the recent election are merely straws indicating the direction of the political wind in Dixie. The 1930 and 1932 elections will quite likely show a continuance of the trend. The Negro has nothing to lose by it and a great deal to gain.

20,000 VOTED IN OLD DOMINION

(By J. WARREN WHITTEN)

ROANOKE, Va.—C. Tiffany Tolliver, G. O. P. chairman of Colored Voters' Division estimated that 20,000 voted for Hoover in this state.

Virginia, tired of Glass and Byrd, will never go back to the Democratic column, he said.

Congratulations were extended by Arthur Froe, D. C. Recorder of Deeds, R. H. Angell, chairman of Va. State Republican Executive Committee; Bascum Slemp and W. B. F. Crowell, National Speakers' Bureau.

Florida To See Advent Of Republican Primaries

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Nov. 8—(AP)—Florida not only left the "solid South," by giving its six electoral votes to Herbert Hoover but also became a two-party State under the state law as a result of last Tuesday's general election.

William J. Howey, Republican candidate for governor, was defeated by Doyle E. Carlton, Democratic nominee, but he succeeded in polling sufficient votes to bring his party into legal recognition in this state and there will be a Republican primary two years hence for the first time in history.

The Florida primary law recognizes any political party that polls 30 per cent of the total vote cast for governor in a general election. On the basis of unofficial returns from 1,000 of the state's 1,263 precincts, Howey counted 85,149 votes to Carlton's 124,717 and was maintaining more than the legal requirement under the primary law, as belated returns were received. Tonight, however, Howey conceded victory to Carlton.

JOURNAL

Lincoln, Neb.

OCT 23 1928

MRS. MYRTLE COOK TALKS

National Speaker Guest of Colored Women's Hoover Club.

Mrs. Myrtle Foster Cook of Kansas City, speaking under the auspices of the republican national committee, will address members of the Lincoln Hoover-Curtis Colored Women's club at the Masonic hall Wednesday night. Mrs. Jennie Edwards is president of the local Hoover organization and Mrs. Lula B. Alexander, secretary. The meeting will be open to the public.

This organization has a large membership and a few nights ago a large gathering turned out to hear Attorney S. A. J. Watkins of Chicago who spoke on national issues. Rev. John Adams presided. Nine Hooverite girls gave a gymnastic exhibition and the Hoover-Curtis quartet sang.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

SOUTH SENT BAKER HUGE SLUSH FUND

See Effort To Divide Vote In Publicity Given To Harrison Candidacy

BY SIDNEY GRAHAM

While Joseph L. McLemore of St. Louis went down to defeat by 7,000 votes to Congressman L. C. Dyer in the 12th Missouri district, and Edward A. Johnson the hope of Harlem, was beaten by a somewhat smaller majority by Congressman R. H. Weller of the 21st New York district, Oscar DePriest, the fighting Illinoisian, for almost a score of years a leader in the politics of the City of Chicago, saved the day for the black man in America and in a whirlwind finish rode to a well earned victory over his Democratic opponent, Harry A. Baker, for congressman from the 1st district of Illinois.

Overcomes Early Lead

Overcoming an early lead piled up by the Democrat in the predominately Caucasian precincts of the district, DePriest amassed a total of about 24,000 votes to 20,000 for his opponent when the final count, taking in the heavily populated colored precincts on the south side, was announced. First reports showed the colored candidate trailing by several thousand votes, and the daily papers announced that the last hope of the black race to be represented in congress was gone, and Baker, the Caucasian, would be the next congressman from the First district. By early Wednesday afternoon, however, DePriest had registered such overwhelming gains in the colored wards that his election was conceded.

Little is known of the Democratic candidate Baker. He was hardly heard of until a few weeks before the election. Reports are that he is a teamster and an obscure politician. His unexpected showing was a surprise to almost everybody, for advance notices indicated that DePriest would win by a 2 to 1 majorit.y

Chicago

Taking a perspective of the entire contest, however, there are visible evidences of a carefully laid plot on the part of the enemies of the black race to keep a colored man out of the United States congress. Baker was kept in the background, it will be remembered, while efforts were made to split the colored vote by pushing the candidacy of William H. Harrison against DePriest. Fearing that if Baker were injected too much in the fray, colored people would become alarmed over the danger of losing their chance to put any representative of their race at all in congress, and would thereupon concentrate their whole power upon one candidate, it was made to appear throughout the campaign that the contest was between DePriest and Harrison, while the Caucasians both Democratic and Republican, worked silently and feverishly to concentrate their strength on Baker.

Rumor Slush Fund

The thoroughness with which those opposed to a black man in congress worked is best evidenced by the large vote which Baker received. It is rumored that three weeks before the election a fund of $10,000 was sent to Baker from the south to aid him in "keeping the nigger out of congress." A most remarkable feature about the fight carried on in his behalf was the utter secrecy of it, which was preserved up to the very day of the election.

And the well laid plans of the opposition almost worked out exactly as intended. If Harrison had received 10,000 votes instead of 5,000, Baker would have won. If Harrison had not been running, on the other hand, and DePriest had received the votes he lost through the ignorance of some of his supporters on the proper way to split a ticket, he would have approached the 2 to 1 majority he was expected to gain. That shows just how significent the Harrison candidacy was and might have been. The danger of the independent candidacy in splitting the colored vote pointed out by Major John R. Lynch and other political wiseacres almost materialized.

Will Continue Fight

But Oscar DePriest, always a fighter, and known as such ever since he first became prominent in politics, came out victorious over the combined opposition, that from the whites and that from his own people. The same spirit which made him the first colored alderman in Chicago has made him the first colored congressman in history from a northern state. Unquestionably the greatest and most important black man in the world today, he stands ready to continue fighting, and promises to give to the First Illinois district the best representation that he is capable of giving. He goes to the halls of the national capitol as a representative of the whole people, and not as a colored man, and though he will not hesitate to safeguard the interests of his own race when they are opposed by those who do not understand them, or are openly hostide to them, he will not forget that America is the great melting pot, and that he is primarily a representative of American citizenry in general.

Republican.

DISPATCH

Norfolk, Va.

OCT 25 1928

A WARNING TO THE SOUTH

Representative L. C. Dyer, of Missouri, one of the Republican leaders of Congress and author of the anti-lynching bill killed in the Senate, is more frank than some others of his party and its allies, who are seeking to break the Democratic hold on the Solid South.

Speaking in Missouri, a state with Democratic leanings, and urging the election of Secretary Hoover, Representative Dyer made this notable comment:

> After the solid South has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next President, that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the South, who have for sixty years violated and prevented the enforcement of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.
>
> Then Congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of Negroes their constitutional rights as citizens and place them on an equality with all other races.

Here is another example of the duplicity of the Republican national campaign. In the wet states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Mr. Hoover is declared by Republican newspapers like the New York Herald-Tribune to be the only hope of modifying or changing the present prohibition law; in the South, the allies of the Republican party close their eyes to the record of the Harding and Coolidge administrations of failure to enforce the Volstead act and are calling for support of Mr. Hoover as the only hope of maintaining the eighteenth amendment.

Representative Dyer, whose bill sought to give the Federal government the power to invade the sovereign rights of the states, explodes any possible theory that the Republican party is the friend of the South, and represents that Mr. Hoover is simply awaiting his inauguration on March 4 to place the Federal government in control of the election laws of Virginia and other Southern states, at the point of the bayonet, as was done in Reconstruction days.

It is not necessary to raise the Negro question in commenting on Mr. Dyer's prediction. The issue is far deeper, and again brings to the fore the danger of the general policy of the present movement to wean the white voters from their traditional allegiance by the raising of the religious and prohibition questions.

If Representative Dyer was not speaking by the book, it is clearly for the Republican national leadership to disavow his assertions. But how can that be done? Dyer was able to force his anti-lynching bill through a Republican House of Representatives, but a Democratic filibuster ended its chances of passage in the Senate. His measure was to pave the way for another force bill, seeking to compel the states to surrender control of the elective franchise to the administration and party in power at Washington, and thus perpetuate for all time the rule of the Republican party.

If Republicans could be whipped into line for the anti-lynching bill without support of the White House, what will happen if Mr. Hoover, pledged as Dyer has proclaimed him to be, should be elected and is called upon to make good the promises of his supporters.

HOOVER FOR PRESIDENT

We are for Hoover for president. Because neither party or candidate discusses what lies closest to Negroes' hearts, we make our choice as though we were white. Out of a campaign characterized more by whispers, and evasions and personalities than by light on the issues, Hoover emerges, the one strong man fitted to lead the nation through this transition period in industry.

If we were given a free choice, we would always make a candidate's attitude toward the 14th and 15th amendments the basis of our decision. Both parties are talking a lot about the prohibition amendment but not a word from either about the two amendments which protect Negroes' rights. As it is we live, and to live we must work. So we treat the campaign from the dollar and cent angle, because we are denied the chance to view it as a high-minded American. Hoover's industrial leadership will extend prosperity to all parts of the country, and some of it will trickle down to the low level on which prejudice makes the Negro worker live.

We are for Hoover for president because he alone is sound on the question of immigration. This country cannot have good business and all its labor at work, if the labor supply is to be disturbed by foreign workers pouring across the borders.

We are for Hoover for president because he would keep the immigration laws as they are. He is clear cut in his utterances about them. He will not do any experimenting. America for American labor, says Hoover. That suits us. We know too well that the Negro is the first one displaced when changes come, and the last one hired when work picks up. We more than other workers need stable business conditions. We dare not risk business hazards in addition to the labor handicaps we already suffer.

We are for Herbert Hoover in spite of his fool friends,—Moses of New Hampshire, Evans of Georgia and Heflin of Alabama. There is no way for us to like what they have done. Neither do we like to see Negroes used by the Southern regular democrats to frighten their recalcitrants back into the party.

Herbert Hoover has had ideal training to take the nation's helm at this time. Wilson served his purpose in softening the rigors of war. Coolidge brought us economy. Hoover will put us to work.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

SOUTH SENT BAKER HUGE SLUSH FUND

See Effort To Divide Vote In Publicity Given To Harrison Candidacy

BY SIDNEY GRAHAM

While Joseph L. McLemore of St. Louis went down to defeat by 7,000 votes to Congressman L. C. Dyer in the 12th Missouri district, and Edward A. Johnson the hope of Harlem, was beaten by a somewhat smaller majority by Congressman R. H. Weller of the 21st New York district, Oscar DePriest, the fighting Illinoisian, for almost a score of years a leader in the politics of the City of Chicago, saved the day for the black man in America and in a whirlwind finish rode to a well earned victory over his Democratic opponent, Harry A. Baker, for congressman from the 1st district of Illinois.

Overcomes Early Lead

Overcoming an early lead piled up by the Democrat in the predominately Caucasian precincts of the district, DePriest amassed a total of about 24,000 votes to 20,000 for his opponent when the final count, taking in the heavily populated colored precincts on the south side, was announced. First reports showed the colored candidate trailing by several thousand votes, and the daily papers announced that the last hope of the black race to be represented in congress was gone, and Baker, the Caucasian, would be the next congressman from the First district. By early Wednesday afternoon, however, DePriest had registered such overwhelming gains in the colored wards that his election was conceded.

Little is known of the Democratic candidate Baker. He was hardly heard of until a few weeks before the election. Reports are that he is a teamster and an obscure politician. His unexpected showing was a surprise to almost everybody, for advance notices indicated that DePriest would win by a 2 to 1 majority.

Chicago

Taking a perspective of the entire contest, however, there are visible evidences of a carefully laid plot on the part of the enemies of the black race to keep a colored man out of the United States congress. Baker was kept in the background, it will be remembered, while efforts were made to split the colored vote by pushing the candidacy of William H. Harrison against DePriest. Fearing that if Baker were injected too much in the fray, colored people would become alarmed over the danger of losing their chance to put any representative of their race at all in congress, and would thereupon concentrate their whole power upon one candidate, it was made to appear throughout the campaign that the contest was between DePriest and Harrison, while the Caucasians both Democratic and Republican, worked silently and feverishly to concentrate their strength on Baker.

Rumor Slush Fund

The thoroughness with which those opposed to a black man in congress worked is best evidenced by the large vote which Baker received. It is rumored that three weeks before the election a fund of $10,000 was sent to Baker from the south to aid him in "keeping the nigger out of congress." A most remarkable feature about the fight carried on in his behalf was the utter secrecy of it, which was preserved up to the very day of the election.

And the well laid plans of the opposition almost worked out exactly as intended. If Harrison had received 10,000 votes instead of 5,000, Baker would have won. If Harrison had not been running, on the other hand, and DePriest had received the votes he lost through the ignorance of some of his supporters on the proper way to split a ticket, he would have approached the 2 to 1 majority he was expected to gain. That shows just how significent the Harrison candidacy was and might have been. The danger of the independent candidacy in splitting the colored vote pointed out by Major John R. Lynch and other political wiseacres almost materialized.

Will Continue Fight

But Oscar DePriest, always a fighter, and known as such ever since he first became prominent in politics, came out victorious over the combined opposition, that from the whites and that from his own people. The same spirit which made him the first colored alderman in Chicago has made him the first colored congressman in history from a northern state. Unquestionably the greatest and most important black man in the world today, he stands ready to continue fighting, and promises to give to the First Illinois district the best representation that he is capable of giving. He goes to the halls of the national capitol as a representative of the whole people, and not as a colored man, and though he will not hesitate to safeguard the interests of his own race when they are opposed by those who do not understand them, or are openly hostide to them, he will not forget that America is the great melting pot, and that he is primarily a representative of American citizenry in general.

Republican.

DISPATCH

Norfolk, Va.

OCT 25 1928

A WARNING TO THE SOUTH

Representative L. C. Dyer, of Missouri, one of the Republican leaders of Congress and author of the anti-lynching bill killed in the Senate, is more frank than some others of his party and its allies, who are seeking to break the Democratic hold on the Solid South.

Speaking in Missouri, a state with Democratic leanings, and urging the election of Secretary Hoover, Representative Dyer made this notable comment:

> After the solid South has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next President, that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the South, who have for sixty years violated and prevented the enforcement of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.
>
> Then Congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of Negroes their constitutional rights as citizens and place them on an equality with all other races.

Here is another example of the duplicity of the Republican national campaign. In the wet states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Mr. Hoover is declared by Republican newspapers like the New York Herald-Tribune to be the only hope of modifying or changing the present prohibition law; in the South, the allies of the Republican party close their eyes to the record of the Harding and Coolidge administrations of failure to enforce the Volstead act and are calling for support of Mr. Hoover as the only hope of maintaining the eighteenth amendment.

Representative Dyer, whose bill sought to give the Federal government the power to invade the sovereign rights of the states, explodes any possible theory that the Republican party is the friend of the South, and represents that Mr. Hoover is simply awaiting his inauguration on March 4 to place the Federal government in control of the election laws of Virginia and other Southern states, at the point of the bayonet, as was done in Reconstruction days.

It is not necessary to raise the Negro question in commenting on Mr. Dyer's prediction. The issue is far deeper, and again brings to the fore the danger of the general policy of the present movement to wean the white voters from their traditional allegiance by the raising of the religious and prohibition questions.

If Representative Dyer was not speaking by the book, it is clearly for the Republican national leadership to disavow his assertions. But how can that be done? Dyer was able to force his anti-lynching bill through a Republican House of Representatives, but a Democratic filibuster ended its chances of passage in the Senate. His measure was to pave the way for another force bill, seeking to compel the states to surrender control of the elective franchise to the administration and party in power at Washington, and thus perpetuate for all time the rule of the Republican party.

If Republicans could be whipped into line for the anti-lynching bill without support of the White House, what will happen if Mr. Hoover, pledged as Dyer has proclaimed him to be, should be elected and is called upon to make good the promises of his supporters.

HOOVER FOR PRESIDENT

We are for Hoover for president. Because neither party or candidate discusses what lies closest to Negroes' hearts, we make our choice as though we were white. Out of a campaign characterized more by whispers, and evasions and personalities than by light on the issues, Hoover emerges, the one strong man fitted to lead the nation through this transition period in industry.

If we were given a free choice, we would always make a candidate's attitude toward the 14th and 15th amendments the basis of our decision. Both parties are talking a lot about the prohibition amendment but not a word from either about the two amendments which protect Negroes' rights. As it is we live, and to live we must work. So we treat the campaign from the dollar and cents angle, because we are denied the chance to view it as a high-minded American. Hoover's industrial leadership will extend prosperity to all parts of the country, and some of it will trickle down to the low level on which prejudice makes the Negro worker live.

We are for Hoover for president because he alone is sound on the question of immigration. This country cannot have good business and all its labor at work, if the labor supply is to be disturbed by foreign workers pouring across the borders.

We are for Hoover for president because he would keep the immigration laws as they are. He is clear cut in his utterances about them. He will not do any experimenting. America suffer.

We are for Herbert Hoover in spite of his fool friends,—Moses of New Hampshire, Evans of Georgia and Heflin of Alabama. There is no way placed when changes come, and the last one hired when work picks up. We more than other workers need for us to like what they have done. Neither do we like to see Negroes used by the Southern regular democrats to frighten their recalcitrants back into the party.

Herbert Hoover has had ideal training to take the nation's helm at this time. Wilson served his purpose in softening the rigors of war. Coolidge brought us economy. Hoover will put us to work.

REASONS FOR POLITICAL FAITH

—o—

To the Editor of The Call:

I with thousands of others of our group have been challenged for an explanation why we are supporting the democratic ticket.

I am an American citizen unbound by tradition, it is my privilege to cast my lot as I personally see fit. I read not only the daily papers but a mconstantly perusing the papers of the great Negro newspapers. I am well posted on what is really taking place in this country.

I have brains enough to know when I am insulted and have grit enough to resent it. Fat promises that are never fulfilled are not worth anything to me. I know my friends by their deeds, not promises. I have swore allegiance to God and this government and to no party. As for the freedom I enjoy, it was given me by God's help and my father fighting under the rain of shot and shell in the Civil War.

If I really owe anything to the G. O. P. I have doubly paid it. There are many million Negroes in the south and hundreds of thousands of them are highly educated and prosperous. Have you ever stopped to think where all of this came from and is yet coming? If an inventory could be taken in Kansas City of those giving employment to our group that three-fourths of them are democrats and in the want ad column of those with ads reading for white only, three-fourths of them are republicans.

Please don't preach starvation to me. I remember well the soup houses, but truthfully how many Negroes do you know who really had to go to them?

Dear brother, do not call us liars or traitors because YOU have played the part of Rip Van Winkle. Now don't you know what it is all about about? It is indeed a pity in this enlightened age there are so many of our group who really don't know U. S. history. Do you know the republican party was in power at emancipation and have been practically every since and that nothing has been done by them worthy of note for the education and maintainence of those they set free. It was left to the errand of mercy and that was the democrat southern white man and is yet there.

If I were sent from heaven to earth to find the white man or woman whose souls are as pure as the dew of heaven, I would go directly to the south in the democratic party to get them. If to go the opposite I would go to Washington and get a lily-white republican.

If Senator Heflin were leading the fight for Al. Smith's election I would not support him. When a candidate whispers promises to a colored congregation and does not live up to it, it is only that congregation who know it. But when he has grit enough to stand out and let his voice be heard to the four corners of this nation, I have nerve enough to follow that man.

Now then, read your own Negro papers as well as you do others, thereby enlightening yourself and then you will be in a position to advise and criticize.

Yours,
S. M. Nelson, 2203 Park Ave.
Kansas City, Mo.

REV. NOAH W. WILLIAMS GIVES POLITICAL VIEWS

Pastor of St. Paul A. M. E. Church Says He Will Never Support the Ku Klux Klan

To begin with, I wish to state that I am not a Democrat nor have I ever, up to this time, voted the Democratic ticket. I was under the shadow of the monument of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Illinois; the mortal remains of my father and mother sleep in Oak Ridge Cemetery where Lincoln's Monument is located; I was in the Spanish-American War and saw service in Cuba and was a first lieutenant and chaplain in the World War and saw service in France; I am pastor of the mother church of the African Methodist Episcopal churches west of the Mississippi River with a membership of nearly three thousand. So I feel that I should say a word in this political crisis and especially so since a body of my officers waited on me and asked for a statement.

This is a political campaign that revolves around personalities rather than around political parties. It is Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith rather than the Republican or Democratic parties. Many Republicans of all races and of national standing are supporting Alfred E. Smith for president. Many democrats especially in the South are supporting Hoover.

The determining factors in this campaign are Prohibition, Religion and Race. The Ku Klux Klan, the Anti-Saloon League and the religious fanatics are supporting Hoover and fighting Smith because he is a Catholic and because he believes the prohibition laws have failed in their purpose and because he is reputed to have said that he believes in the equality of all races. Now any one of the most elementary intelligence who reads the daily and weekly papers knows this to be true.

In short, my word of advice is this: If you believe the 18th Amendment to the Constitution and the Volstead Act have failed and should be amended to give each state the right to determine as to the manufacture and sale of drinks without the saloon; if you believe that this would do away with the bootlegger and whisky that makes one blind and crazy and sends many to premature graves then you should vote for Smith. But if you believe our prohibition laws are succeeding and should remain as they are then you should vote for Hoover.

If you believe that you should stand with the Ku Klux Klan and fight Gov. Smith because he is a Catholic and believes in changing the prohibition laws and because the Klan says he believes in the equality of Races and treats the Negroes in New York as he does other American Citizens, then you should vote for Hoover with the Klan.

If you are living back in the sixties and think Lincoln, Grant and others are still alive and running on the Republican ticket then you should vote that ticket and support those worthies. But if you believe that the crowd now running and clamoring so loudly about what was done for us back in the sixties were not even born in Lincoln's day, but merely using a party name to deceive, as if the Negro is still ignorant, then you like any other citizen should vote for whom you please.

If you thing the colored people are better off politically if they split their vote and make friends with both political parties, then do that. If you would like to see a member of our race in Congress, then vote for Joseph L. McLemore, who is clean, honest and educated. If you want to vote for Smith for president but not the whole democratic ticket or Hoover but not the whole Republican ticket, then do that. Be your own political boss regardless to the howling of the paid politicians. The ballot is secret so do as you please but be sure to go to the polls and vote and do not fall out with members of your Race because they may differ with you politically for all the white candidates will be good friends the day after the election.

Vote for whom you believe in your own heart is really the straightest, bravest, fairest and ablest man for president of the United States and for the other national, state and city offices. For myself, I shall never be found fighting on the side with the Ku Klux Klan and I would support any Negro for Congress, I care not on what ticket he may be, if he is clean in his living, educated and honest.

—NOAH W. WILLIAMS

OKLAHOMAN
OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.

OCT 21 1928

Smith, Hoover and The Negro

TO THE EDITOR:

It would seem that even a democratic newspaper built up by the patronage of southern white people would wish its patrons to know the truth about this matter. I have been to a good deal of pains to get the truth, and am here offering it to your readers, leaving them to vote as they please.

There can be no doubt that the Smith-Tammany organization controls New York City. Here are the facts there relative to the negro:

They have 200 negroes and many police sergeants of the police force of New York. They have fifty negro school teachers in New York, the greater part of whom are teaching schools that have not a negro pupil. One of their negro principals, at First and second avenue, until he recently voluntarily resigned and went on a pension, reigned for some time over a school with all white teachers and white pupils. New York municipal law does not compel any of this: it is done because the Smith-Tammany control wants it done.

The Smith-Tammany civil service commissioner for New York, Ferdinan Q. Morton is a negro, with a $10,000 job, passing upon applications of white men.

In one of his races for governor, the New York papers reported one of Smith's speeches to the negroes that would have satisfied the blackest radical in the south. Never once has he raised his voice on the other side.

The New York state legislature of 1913 was democratic by two-thirds in both houses. Smith was speaker, Wagner was president of the senate, floor leader in each house a Smith-Tammany man — Tammany and Smith decidely in the saddle. Senator Carswell, now one of the supreme judges of New York state, introduced a bill to abolish the marriage of negroes and whites. This bill never got out of the committee—Smith's committee.

But this same legislature did pass a bill and Smith signed it, making it unlawful for anybody to intimate by any written or printed notice that a negro would not me welcome in a public place, such as hotels, theaters, rail cars.

Smith comes out of Tammany with its thousands of negro members, its scores of negroes with white wives, its "exclusive" negro clubs, its negro political busses.

Even now the Smith democrats are operating Smith negro clubs, and they have three negro nominees for congress, runing on the democratic ticket. I have this to say, that the negroes have been voting sixty-four years, voting republican tickets; during forty-eight of those years we have had republican presidents; we are further from negro supremacy than we ever were, and there is not a particle of danger that we shall ever have it, no matter who is president, but the Smith-democrats are taking one road that of all roads will make us trouble with the negroes. In this election the "nigger" ticket is the Smith ticket, for—

On the other hand, all this talk that has been handed you about Hoover and the negro is pure political bunk. Hoover's department of commerce is being operated so far as negro employes are concerned, under precisely the rule Woodrow Wilson laid down for all departments during the war and the ring politicians who have tried to make a howl about it know this. Moreover, when Hoover was nominated there were three negro national committeemen. While the Smith men were nominating their three negroes to run for congress, Hoover and his men removed every one of the committeemen. Hoover is a white man. He will be just to the negro, but there is not one scintilla of evidence in his whole record that he wants to set negroes over whites and the truth is nobody really believes he does.

JAMES A. ANDERSON,
Forest City, Ark.

NEWS-LEADER
RICHMOND, VA.

NOV 6 1928

TWO NEGRO G. O. P. ELECTION JUDGES

Brunswick Clerk Says Law Requires One Republican, So Gains Named.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Va., Nov. 6.—(Special to The News Leader.)—Two Negro Republicans are serving as election judges in Brunswick county.

Bob Gains, Negro, Republican, is serving today as an election judge in Phipps precinct, Powelton township, along with J. H. Phillips and F. W. Carpenter, whites, who represent the Democratic party as judges.

W. E. Elmore, clerk of the court of Brunswick county, today stated that Gains was appointed by A. F. Rollins, a Democrat, chairman of the election board of Brunswick county, for the reason that there are no white Republicans available for the appointment in Phipps precinct. The law requires two Democrats and one Republican precinct judge. Gains has been serving as an election judge for several years, and another Negro Republican is an election judge in Tillman precinct.

At 11 A. M. today, there had been about 200 votes cast at Lawrenceville, the county seat of Brunswick county, and of this number Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic standard-bearer, is reported to have polled 190 votes. There are between 500 and 600 registered voters at Lawrenceville, and Mr. Elmore estimates that Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, will poll about 25 votes.

EV
WILMI

OCT 13

Colored G. O. P. Women Meet.

Mrs. Carrie M. S. Pipes, who has been active in the interest of the Republican ticket and who has been an organizer of Hoover-Curtis clubs in this city, kept open house for colored women at 926 French street, and met many women voters of the section. Mrs. Pipes was aided by the women of the Sixth Ward at a Hoover luncheon served during the evening. Souvenirs and campaign literature were distributed.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

NEW YORK TIMES

MAY 30 1928

NEGRO CHIEFS TELL OF HOOVER FUNDS

Georgian and Mississippian Leave Doubt on How Delegates Will Vote.

EDITOR'S MEMORY HAZY

Atlanta Man Kept No Records of Donations — Mississippi Outlay $11,800.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—It costs money to run the negro Republican machines south of the Potomac, and after the money is spent it is not always safe to count on the delegates, even in States where there is no opposition to a candidate and in which friends of that candidate supplied most of the cash, according to testimony today before the Senate campaign fund investigating committee. Ben Davis, negro Republican National Committeeman from Georgia, and Perry W. Howard, negro Committeeman from Mississippi, told of their activities during the pre-convention campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination at Kansas City.

Davis, who still looks and talks like an old-time Southern "darky," was a puzzle to the committee. He was not able to say just how he had expended the money turned over to him by Rush Holland, who had charge of Georgia for the Hoover organization. He keeps no books, has no records and was able to produce just one receipt that had nothing to do with the candidacy of Mr. Hoover. He is now for the renomination of Mr. Coolidge, although he said Mr. Hoover was his second choice.

On the other hand, Howard, highly intelligent, polite and frank, made a favorable impression. He said that obligations incurred by his organization, mainly in the furtherance of the Hoover campaign, amounted to about $11,800. Of this amount, $4,000 was supplied by Holland and another $1,000 is still to be paid, he said. As for this final $1,000, he was, he added, feeling "a little threadbare" as to his chances of getting it.

Both Uncertain About Hoover.

Howard, like Davis, did not impress the committee as being unduly enthusiastic for the nomination of Mr. Hoover. Howard explained that a brand new Republican Party has come into existence in Mississippi since the great flood of 1927 and that the directing head of the new organization, which is white, is L. O. Crosby, one of the leading lumbermen of the South, who was Mr. Hoover's chief of operations in Mississippi at the time of the flood.

Howard declared that he was waiting to see if he is "being played with" or has been "double-crossed" before he takes a definite stand on the Republican nomination. The delegation he is heading, which was largely financed by Holland, he insisted, is not instructed for Mr. Hoover but uninstructed.

Davis was the first witness. He said all the delegates from his State have been elected and that he heads the delegation. From the start he had difficulty recalling the financial features of the pre-convention campaign in Georgia, where, he said, there has been "no contest whatever."

He said he got, "all in all, $2,200" from Mr. Holland, of which $200 was expense money. Both payments, Davis said, were in cash and both were made before the Georgia Republican State Convention, which was held March 3 last.

"Have you any momoranda dealing with those transactions?" asked Senator Steiwer.

"No," Davis answered.

The witness declared that he got "a little" money in the State, much of which was used to "reimburse myself."

He explained that he had made many trips to Washington and had visited various districts in Georgia and that the "reimbursement" was mainly to cover his expenses on those trips.

Recalls Other Contributions.

Pressed by Senator Bratton to recall other contributions to the Georgia campaign, Davis said that he had received $725 from J. H. Watson, another Georgia negro politician, and $200 from a loyal party man named Flanders.

Asked if there was any chance of Georgia going Republican, Davis made the audience laugh when he answered that though he lived twenty-five or even forty years longer he never expected to see a district in Georgia go Republican.

Davis was asked if the money given him by Holland had not been mainly used to pay the expenses of the delegates to the State convention. He replied that that was probably how it was used.

Howard, an Assistant Attorney General, followed Davis. He said that he had been connected with the Department of Justice since May, 1921.

At the start he told the committee of activities of Mr. Crosby, the Picayune (Miss.) lumberman, to organize a white Republican Party in the State. He referred to Mr. Crosby as Hoover's closest friend in the State. He was worried to such an extent by the entrance of Mr. Crosby into the political arena that he sought a conference with Walter F. Brown, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who told him, he said, Holland was in charge of Mississippi and, at Brown's suggestion, Howard and Crosby were brought together.

"Mr. Brown said to me," continued Howard, "that he had turned Mississippi and other Southern States over to Mr. Holland and that Mr. Holland and myself were to talk over the situation. He said he guessed Mr. Holland and I could get along together."

Mr. Brown told him, he added, that his faction was in for "quite a fight with these Crosby people." He admitted that was so. Subsequently, he testified, Holland turned over to him $2,000 and thereafter in Washington for expenses, $200 weekly. Of the latter, $2,000 is paid and $1,000 is still due, he said.

Gave Note for Bank Loan.

The expenses in Mississippi had been quite heavy, said Howard, and at one time he and a man named McLellan had borrowed $2,500 and given the bank a joint note.

There were other bank loans amounting to about $800. The present deficit of the committee he estimated at about $5,300, which with the money expended brings the total cost of the campaign to about $11,800.

"Are you still collecting $200 a week from Holland?" asked Senator Steiwer.

"No, sir, we closed up last week. They told me the Hoover headquarters were closing and that my support ended with that. I will close so far as the Hoover office is concerned, but, so far as Kansas City is concerned, I am going to make a fight against the Crosby delegation."

"Are your delegates instructed?" Senator Bratton asked.

"No, sir, they are uninstructed."

"Are they free to vote according to their consciences?"

"Yes, sir."

"How about yourself?"

"Unless it be shown that there has been no straddling with the other crowd, that I have not been double-crossed or played with, I will vote with him (Mr. Hoover)."

The committee will hold an executive session tomorrow. The next public hearing may be in Ohio Thursday or Friday. That will be decided tomorrow.

New G. O. P. Committee.

Republican.

KANSAS CITY, June 15.—(AP)—The membership of the Republican national committee, with the Georgia and Wisconsin selections still in doubt, follows:

Alabama—Oliver D. Street and Mrs. Birdie H. Kennamer.

Arizona—Hiram S. Corbett and Mrs. Barrett E. Marks.

Arkansas — Wallace Townsend, Mrs. A. C. Remmel.

California—W. H. Crocker, Mrs. O. P. Clark.

Colorado—Clarence C. Hamlin, Mrs. John E. Millman.

Connecticut—J. Henry Roraback, Miss Katherine Byrne.

Delaware—T. Coleman Dupont, Ethel B. Warner.

Florida—Glen B. Skipper, Mrs. Clara C. Grace.

Georgia—Committeeman referred to committee; Mrs. George S. Williams.

Idaho — John Thomas, Miss Gladys Terhune.

Illinois—Roy O. West, Mrs. Bertha Bauer.

Indiana—M. Bert Thurman, Miss Dorothy Cunningham.

Iowa—Charles A. Rawson, Martha McClure.

Kansas—D. W. Mulvane, Mrs. R. R. Bittman.

Kentucky—J. Matt Chilton, Mrs. Alvin T. Hert.

Louisiana—Emile Kuntz, Mrs. Roberta Grimmet.

Maine—Joseph W. Simpson, Mrs. Guy P. Gannett.

Maryland—William P. Jackson, Mrs. W. Gladden Lowndes.

Massachusetts—Louis K. Liggett, Pauline Revere Thayer.

Michigan—James M. Davidson, Miss Bina West.

Minnesota—C. H. Macsnzie, Mrs. Manley D. Fosseen.

Mississippi—Perry M. Howard, ary C. Booze.

Missouri—E. B. Clements, Mrs. Grace S. Burlingham.

Montana—O. M. Lanstrum, Mrs. George E. Berry.

Nebraska—C. A. McCloud, Miss Viola T. Cameron.

Nevada—George Wingfield, Mrs. Mary Franzman.

New Hampshire—Albert H. Hislops, Mrs. Nellie D. Parker.

New Jersey—Daniel E. Pomery, Mrs. W. Reginald Baker.

New Mexico—Ed Sargent, Mrs. W. C. Reid.

New York—Charles D. Hilles, Pauline M. Sabine.

North Carolina — Charles A. Jones, Mrs. Queen Bess Kennen.

North Dakota—F. J. Graham, Mrs. Minnie D. Craig.

Ohio—Maurice Maschke, Mrs. Hugh Clark.

Oklahoma—W. S. Skelly, Mrs. R. D. Rood.

Oregon—Ralph E. Williams, Mrs. E. C. Giltner.

Pennsylvania—W. W. Atterbury, Mrs. Worthington Scranton.

Rhode Island—Frederick S. Pack, Mrs. Charles A. Steedman.

South Carolina—Joseph W. Tolbert, Mrs. Blanche Redfern.

South Dakota—William E. Milligan, Mrs. Mabel Newman.

Tennessee—J. Will Taylor, Mrs. Beulah O. Hughes.

Texas—R. B. Creager, Mrs. J. C. Griswold.

Utah—Harold P. Fabrian, Mrs. Jannette A. Hyde.

Vermont—Earle Kinsley, Mrs. George Orvis.

Virginia—C. Bascom Slemp, Mrs. M. M. Caldwell.

Washington—R. W. Condon, Mrs. John Lewis Hughes.

West Virginia—Walter S. Hallanon, Mrs. Ellis A. Yost.

Wisconsin—Referred to committee.

Wyoming—Patrick Sullivan, Mrs. B. B. Brooks.

Alaska—J. D. Wickersham (acting), Mrs. Forest J. Hunt.

District of Columbia—Edward J. Colladay, Mrs. Virginia White Speel.

Hawaii—James P. Winnie, Princess David Kawananakoa.

Philippines—C. M. Cotterman, Mrs. E. Finley Johnson.

Porto Rico—Harry F. Besosa, Marta Robert De Romen.

THE NEGRO AND PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEES

With the opening of the Republican National Convention next week in Kansas City, all thoughts naturally center on who the Republican presidential nominee will be. With the nomination of Governor Al Smith of New York by the Democrats three weeks hence, practically conceded by all but Tom Heflin, the Republicans offer for the moment the only political question for the Negro. When the G. O.P. nominee is trotted out, this question will practically be answered.

It is an admitted fact now that Al Smith has a popular appeal to a large number of Negro voters. This liking for Governor Smith is generally actuated by two things. First: the Negro is naturally sympathetic for any person who is apparently being persecuted. The attack on Governor Smith because of his religion, has won for him many friends among Negroes because they could sympathize with him in his hours of unjust persecution.

Second: The last eight years of Republican rule in the White House has not been exactly to the liking of thousands of Negroes throughout the land. To many of these, their political condition cannot be much worse under any circumstances, and therefore, as a protest against the indifference of the Republicans to these conditions, they are willing to support a progressive Democrat rather than support any more Republicans of the Harding-Coolidge type. To this group, a vote for Al Smith is a kick in the slats of the "Elephant."

The so-called wetness of Al Smith does not particularly appeal to the Negro voters. Whatever the Negro's views are on the liquor question, they have not as yet begun to affect his selection of presidential candidates. Those who like liquor, know that, no matter who wins, they will be able to at least get the "run of the still," so why worry over a little thing like that when there are so many economic question to be settled?

While there may be little outward manifestation in the way of loud protests there is an inward revolt brewing in the breasts of the Negroes of this country against the intolerable segregation that prevails everywhere, and all that is needed now to flame this intense feeling into an open insurrection against the Republicans, is a militant leader. Senator Cole Blease and Senator Thomas J. Heflin's verbosity during the closing weeks of the senate on the Negro question has simply added fuel to the flames.

Whether this intense feeling will break through in the form of an open revolt during the coming campaign, all depends on the candidates selected and the campaign methods used. If circumstances operate to produce the necessary leadership, this revolt will become a reality this summer.

As the Negro now faces the Republican convention, there stands only one candidate who has done anything to merit the race's support and that man is Herbert Hoover. Two acts of Herbert Hoover set him out pre-eminently in the eyes of the Negro.

First: The absolutely fair and impartial handling of the thousands of Negro flood sufferers in the Mississippi valley last year. Every Negro who worked in the flood district had nothing but praise for Mr. Hoover. Hundreds of incidents have been told of how he (Hoover) personally stopped prejudiced Southerners from exploiting the poor unfortunate refugees in the camps and even during the reconstruction.

Second: When the matter of segregation in the Department of Commerce over which Mr. Hoover presides was brought to his attention, and he was told how objectionable this was to Negroes, despite the fact that he was then an active candidate for the presidential nomination, and apparently knowing how such a move would affect the Southerners, he made an investigation and within a week after the matter had been called to his attention, he issued an order abolishing all forms of racial segregation and this furnished plenty of amunition for Blease and Heflin and others to hurl against him. Nevertheless, despite these vile attacks made against him, Mr. Hoover has not flinched or retracted one bit. He evidently believes he has done what is right and is willing to stand by his decision.

Mr. Hoover is the only member of Mr. Coolidge's cabinet who has had the strength of character to abolish segregation. It is more than Mr. Coolidge himself was willing to do, for he has been importuned many times during his administration to issue the necessary executive order abolishing segregation, but he has refused. In fact, segregation has been extended a great deal under the Coolidge administration. Secretary Andrew Mellon of the Treasury refused to issue any order when the matter was brought to his attention. But Hoover? When he was shown that the practice was un-American, un-Christian and against the spirit of American justice, he did not hesitate to abolish this vicious practice.

The masses of Negroes have been quick to realize that in Mr. Hoover, the race has apparently a real friend. He did not give them empty promises, but actually produced the desired results.

There is no other active or receptive candidate for the Republican nomination who can measure up to the pre-convention achievements of Mr. Hoover in so far as the Negro is concerned. Because of these facts, no other nominee could be sure of the Negro's vote next November.

While Al Smith appeals to many Negroes, there is a fear that, whatever his views on the Negro question may be personally, he cannot override the views of the majority of his party leaders who hail from the South. It is recalled that the late Woodrow Wilson held out hopes to Negroes, but when he reached the White House, he found the weight of his advisers more than he could overcome.

On the other hand, Grover Cleveland—who was from New York, as is Al Smith—did not yield to the Vardamans and Tillmans of his time.

Whether Al Smith if elected would be a Cleveland or a Wilson is a question. However, if Hoover be the Republican nominee, there is every reason to believe that the great majority of Negro voters will be willing to give the old party another trial under his leadership.

Hence as between Smith and Hoover, the Negroes will vote overwhelmingly for Hoover. Owing to the large numbers of Negroes now registered in the Middle West and East, this vote is formidable, and must be reckoned with by the candidates. It is in these very sections, too, where Al Smith is supposed to be popular.

As the Negro faces the conventions Herbert Hoover looms as his preference.

THE CONSTITUTION, WHITE AND BLACK, WET AND DRY, AT KANSAS CITY.

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt as chairman of the credentials committee presented the majority report on contested delegates to the Republican convention and after a roll call over the Hoover delegates from Texas the report was adopted. Mrs. Willebrandt is an assistant federal attorney general assigned to the enforcement of the Volstead act. The contested delegates were from the southern states of restricted suffrage. Many of them were Negroes.

These Negroes, while in Kansas City, are citizens. They are citizens for an hour. They vote to nominate a Republican candidate for President of the United States, although there are only 1,089 citizens of the United States with this momentous authority. When the Negroes go home they will cease to be citizens with political privileges. If any of them are allowed to vote in the election it will be by courtesy or indulgence. Some of them may feel that it is reasonably safe to do so.

They are in the Republican convention because they are supposed in the American political system to represent some millions of Republican votes, nearly all of them black. These millions of votes will not be cast. The United States constitution offers them a guaranty, but they will not seek to use it. It proclaims for them a right which they will not seek to exercise. The constitution does not assure them any political rights in the convention, but there they are recognized because their votes are important to political manipulation and in any close contest might decide a nomination. What is assured them under the constitution later in the election will be nullified by the dominant, recognized, and prevailing white sentiment in the states in which they live. The fact that they do not vote at home might decide a close election against the party in the convention of which they are represented.

While Mrs. Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition, was presenting the report which seated these disfranchised Negroes in a Republican convention, Senator Borah, as a defender of the constitution, was drawing the Anti-Saloon league resolution for prohibition enforcement for adoption by the resolutions committee. Mr. Borah, in support of the constitution, has made the eighteenth amendment the chief issue in the convention. In his resolution he declared the constitution to be "sacredly obligated upon all." Mrs. Willebrandt's temporary citizens, invested for the period of a moth's life with the political privileges of American citizenship, would vote for this with more fervor than even Mr. Borah and his fellow supporters of the eighteenth amendment. And for that fervor they would have full cause, but in it no hope, because Mr. Borah's words do not mean anything to them, are not intended to mean anything to them, and will have not the slightest effect on their future lives under the American constitution in their own states.

Mr. Borah, proceeding further in support of such part of the constitution as may be found in the eighteenth amendment, wrote that the Republican party reaffirmed the attitude of the American people toward the constitution as declared by Abraham Lincoln, preserving it "as our forefathers made it, inviolate."

Mr. Borah, whose supporters in this respect control the convention, is invited to contemplate in honesty and candor the spectacle presented by Mrs. Willebrandt with the credentials committee report and by himself with the resolutions committee report and then reaffirm anything. What does he mean to these black men, permitted for an hour to vote to nominate a President but not permitted to elect him, by "sacredly obligated upon all"? Does he or can he mean anything?

Has the attorney general's office, of which Mrs. Willebrandt, enforcing prohibition, is a representative, ever lifted a finger to protect even the civil rights of these people in the south, or has the United States senate, of which Mr. Borah is a member, ever made a motion, in his connection with it, to enforce, respect, or hold sacred the articles of the constitution conferring the rights recognized by the convention in Kansas City and nowhere else?

Mr. Borah is invited to explain his own words, references and statements, and show cause why they should not be regarded as deceitful, fraudulent, and trifling. He is invited to indicate wherein they are not hypocritical and mendacious. He is invited to explain what he means by "the constitution of the United States as our forefathers made it." Did our forefathers put a village ordinance for the regulation of habit in this body of organic law, and if so, where is it? Did they indicate in any fashion that they would have tolerated such a use of fundamental law or have regarded it as at any time within the purposes of the document? They did as late as our fathers' time use it for the extension of freedom and of the principles of representative government. Have Mr. Borah and his associates in Volstead ever revealed any respect for these extensions or any regard for their enforcement? If so, these words of respect and regard might be repeated as a parting gift to the black delegates before they go home.

The whole situation is quite the reverse. Offense after offense against the principles of the forefathers are piled upon the constitution by the fanaticism of Volsteadism. It is riddled and shot through by the proponents of the eighteenth amendment who are as indifferent as Mr. Borah to what really destroys the republican form of representative government intended to preserve for American citizens a country in which political equality, personal freedom, and individual liberty may be enjoyed under a constitution and laws fit to protect them and enforced as such.

Mr. Borah is a man of eloquence when he rebukes the citizens opposed to the eighteenth amendment, to this departure from the constitution "as our forefathers made it." The reply to Volstead in this respect is that the opponents of the federal constitution have the spirit and the fundamental intent of the constitution with them and that Volstead has not.

These opponents refuse to take Mr. Borah at his valuation, to regard the riddled document he calls the constitution as the true constitution or to regard themselves as defaulters in the principles intended to govern this nation.

ward manifestation in the way of loud protests there is an inward revolt brewing in the breasts of the Negroes of this country against the intolerable segregation that prevails everywhere, and all that is needed now to flame this intense feeling into an open insurrection against the Republicans, is a militant leader. Senator Cole Blease and Senator Thomas J. Heflin's verbosity during the closing weeks of the senate on the Negro question has simply added fuel to the flames.

Whether this intense feeling will break through in the form of an open revolt during the coming campaign, all depends on the candidates selected and the campaign methods used. If circumstances operate to produce the necessary leadership, this revolt will become a reality this summer.

As the Negro now faces the Republican convention, there stands only one candidate who has done anything to merit the race's support and that man is Herbert Hoover. Two acts of Herbert Hoover set him out pre-eminently in the eyes of the Negro.

First: The absolutely fair and impartial handling of the thousands of Negro flood sufferers in the Mississippi valley last year. Every Negro who worked in the flood district had nothing but praise for Mr. Hoover. Hundreds of incidents have been told of how he (Hoover) personally stopped prejudiced Southerners from exploiting the poor unfortunate refugees in the camps and even during the reconstruction.

Second: When the matter of segregation in the Department of Commerce over which Mr. Hoover presides was brought to his attention, and he was told how objectionable this was to Negroes, despite the fact that he was then an active candidate for the presidential nomination, and apparently knowing how such a move would affect the Southerners, he made an investigation and within a week after the matter had been called to his attention, he issued an order abolishing all forms of racial segregation and this furnished plenty of amunition for Blease and Heflin and others to hurl against him. Nevertheless, despite these vile attacks made against him, Mr. Hoover has not flinched or retracted one bit. He evidently believes he has done what is right and is willing to stand by his decision.

Mr. Hoover is the only member of Mr. Coolidge's cabinet who has had the strength of character to abolish segregation. It is more than Mr. Coolidge himself was willing to do, for he has been importuned many times during his administration to issue the necessary executive order abolishing segregation, but he has refused. In fact, segregation has been extended a great deal under the Coolidge administration. Secretary Andrew Mellon of the Treasury refused to issue any order when the matter was brought to his attention. But Hoover? When he was shown that the practice was un-American, un-Christian and against the spirit of American justice, he did not hesitate to abolish this vicious practice.

The masses of Negroes have been quick to realize that in Mr. Hoover, the race has apparently a real friend. He did not give them empty promises, but actually produced the desired results.

There is no other active or receptive candidate for the Republican nomination who can measure up to the pre-convention achievements of Mr. Hoover in so far as the Negro is concerned. Because of these facts, no other nominee could be sure of the Negro's vote next November.

While Al Smith appeals to many Negroes, there is a fear that, whatever his views on the Negro question may be personally, he cannot override the views of the majority of his party leaders who hail from the South. It is recalled that the late Woodrow Wilson held out hopes to Negroes, but when he reached the White House, he found the weight of his advisers more than he could overcome.

On the other hand, Grover Cleveland—who was from New York, as is Al Smith—did not yield to the Vardamans and Tillmans of his time.

Whether Al Smith if elected would be a Cleveland or a Wilson is a question. However, if Hoover be the Republican nominee, there is every reason to believe that the great majority of Negro voters will be willing to give the old party another trial under his leadership.

Hence as between Smith and Hoover, the Negroes will vote overwhelmingly for Hoover. Owing to the large numbers of Negroes now registered in the Middle West and East, this vote is formidable, and must be reckoned with by the candidates. It is in these very sections, too, where Al Smith is supposed to be popular.

As the Negro faces the conventions Herbert Hoover looms as his preference.

THE CONSTITUTION, WHITE AND BLACK, WET AND DRY, AT KANSAS CITY.

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt as chairman of the credentials committee presented the majority report on contested delegates to the Republican convention and after a roll call over the Hoover delegates from Texas the report was adopted. Mrs. Willebrandt is an assistant federal attorney general assigned to the enforcement of the Volstead act. The contested delegates were from the southern states of restricted suffrage. Many of them were Negroes.

These Negroes, while in Kansas City, are citizens. They are citizens for an hour. They vote to nominate a Republican candidate for President of the United States, although there are only 1,089 citizens of the United States with this momentous authority. When the Negroes go home they will cease to be citizens with political privileges. If any of them are allowed to vote in the election it will be by courtesy or indulgence. Some of them may feel that it is reasonably safe to do so.

They are in the Republican convention because they are supposed in the American political system to represent some millions of Republican votes, nearly all of them black. These millions of votes will not be cast. The United States constitution offers them a guaranty, but they will not seek to use it. It proclaims for them a right which they will not seek to exercise. The constitution does not assure them any political rights in the convention, but there they are recognized because their votes are important to political manipulation and in any close contest might decide a nomination. What is assured them under the constitution later in the election will be nullified by the dominant, recognized, and prevailing white sentiment in the states in which they live. The fact that they do not vote at home might decide a close election against the party in the convention of which they are represented.

While Mrs. Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition, was presenting the report which seated these disfranchised Negroes in a Republican convention, Senator Borah, as a defender of the constitution, was drawing the Anti-Saloon league resolution for prohibition enforcement for adoption by the resolutions committee. Mr. Borah, in support of the constitution, has made the eighteenth amendment the chief issue in the convention. In his resolution he declared the constitution to be "sacredly obligated upon all." Mrs. Willebrandt's temporary citizens, invested for the period of a moth's life with the political privileges of American citizenship, would vote for this with more fervor than even Mr. Borah and his fellow supporters of the eighteenth amendment. And for that fervor they would have full cause, but in it no hope, because Mr. Borah's words do not mean anything to them, are not intended to mean anything to them, and will have not the slightest effect on their future lives under the American constitution in their own states.

Mr. Borah, proceeding further in support of such part of the constitution as may be found in the eighteenth amendment, wrote that the Republican party reaffirmed the attitude of the American people toward the constitution as declared by Abraham Lincoln, preserving it "as our forefathers made it, inviolate."

Mr. Borah, whose supporters in this respect control the convention, is invited to contemplate in honesty and candor the spectacle presented by Mrs. Willebrandt with the credentials committee report and by himself with the resolutions committee report and then reaffirm anything. What does he mean to these black men, permitted for an hour to vote to nominate a President but not permitted to elect him, by "sacredly obligated upon all"? Does he or can he mean anything?

Has the attorney general's office, of which Mrs. Willebrandt, enforcing prohibition, is a representative, ever lifted a finger to protect even the civil rights of these people in the south, or has the United States senate, of which Mr. Borah is a member, ever made a motion, in his connection with it, to enforce, respect, or hold sacred the articles of the constitution conferring the rights recognized by the convention in Kansas City and nowhere else?

Mr. Borah is invited to explain his own words, references and statements, and show cause why they should not be regarded as deceitful, fraudulent, and trifling. He is invited to indicate wherein they are not hypocritical and mendacious. He is invited to explain what he means by "the constitution of the United States as our forefathers made it." Did our forefathers put a village ordinance for the regulation of habit in this body of organic law, and if so, where is it? Did they indicate in any fashion that they would have tolerated such a use of fundamental law or have regarded it as at any time within the purposes of the document? They did as late as our fathers' time use it for the extension of freedom and of the principles of representative government. Have Mr. Borah and his associates in Volstead ever revealed any respect for these extensions or any regard for their enforcement? If so, these words of respect and regard might be repeated as a parting gift to the black delegates before they go home.

The whole situation is quite the reverse. Offense after offense against the principles of the forefathers are piled upon the constitution by the fanaticism of Volsteadism. It is riddled and shot through by the proponents of the eighteenth amendment who are as indifferent as Mr. Borah to what really destroys the republican form of representative government intended to preserve for American citizens a country in which political equality, personal freedom, and individual liberty may be enjoyed under a constitution and laws fit to protect them and enforced as such.

Mr. Borah is a man of eloquence when he rebukes the citizens opposed to the eighteenth amendment, to this departure from the constitution "as our forefathers made it." The reply to Volstead in this respect is that the opponents of the federal constitution have the spirit and the fundamental intent of the constitution with them and that Volstead has not.

These opponents refuse to take Mr. Borah at his valuation, to regard the riddled document he calls the constitution as the true constitution or to regard themselves as defaulters in the principles intended to govern this nation.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

COHEN'S BATTLE TAKES NEW TURN; SUITS ARE FILED

New Orleans, La.—(ANP)—The factional fight between Republicans in New Orleans for control of the Republican state central committee developed another angle when Walter Cohen and others filed suit in the civil district court against M. F. Dastugue, et al, asking the court to give control of the committee to the Cohen faction and to restrain perpetually the Dastugue faction from interfering with the Cohen committeemen.

....The suit alleges that the Cohen committeemen were legally elected members of the Republican state central committee and that the notification of their election was filed with the secretary of state. It is charged, however, that Dastugue and his committee claim to have been likewise elected and that the Dastugue committeemen obtained injunctions from the civil court preventing the Cohen committee from exercising the functions of office. The suit closes with a prayer that the Cohen candidates be declared the proper and only Republican committeemen, and that they be permitted to exercise office without interference.

WILL FIGHT LILY WHITES TO FINISH SAYS HOWARD; MAY DESERT HOOVER

A fight to the finish between "lily whites" and colored Republicans was indicated by Perry W. Howard, Republican national committeeman for Mississippi, upon his return here from Jackson, Miss., last Monday.

Mr. Howard believes that a coalition of renegade Democrats and "lily-white" Republicans are making a concerted effort to eliminate the colored Republican from party councils.

This movement, as he views it, is not confined to the states of Georgia and Mississippi but comprises the whole South. It is being aided and abetted, he thinks, by a class of northern Republicans who believe that the Negro should remain a follower in the ranks of the Republican party.

The question of supporting candidates for the Republican nomination is inconsequential at this time, Mr. Howard has decided. He believes that stubborn resistance should be made to the efforts of the "lily-whites" to eliminate the Negro from the councils of the Republican party.

"The present, concerted 'lily-white' movement," Mr. Howard said, "is the most stupendous and inimicable movement of its kind ever attempted by those who feel that the Negro should not be permitted to exercise his political rights untrammelled and to participate in the councils of the Republican party.

The Whole South

"It is not confined to any two or three southern states, but embraces the whole South and seems to have the approval of a few northerners high in the councils of the Republican party. In fact, it is a coalition between renegade Democrats and 'lily-white' Republicans, who pretend that they want two militant political parties in the South as a camouflage to gain control of Federal patronage.

"Efforts have been made to brow-beat, intimidate and even buy me to lay down as the party leader in my state. I have stood steadfast and shall carry the fight of the regular Republican organization in my state to the Supreme Court of my state where I am confident we will win."

In Jackson, Miss., last Saturday the Republican state committee met and issued a call for a state convention to be held there on April 18 for the purpose of selecting delegates to the Republican national convention in Kansas City, Mo., June 12.

Second State Call

This is the second call issued for a state convention. The first call was for a convention to have been held on March 14. George W. Sheldon, former governor of Nebraska, and ten other "lily-whites" obtained an injunction from Chancellor T. Price Dale at Hattiesburg, Miss., on the ground that the call did not conform strictly with the Mississippi primary laws.

The Howard organization took an appeal to the State Supreme Court. Last Saturday the question of advancing the appeal for an immediate hearing was argued in the Supreme Court. Monday the court decided to hear arguments in the case on April 23.

Incidentally, the leading counsel for the Howard organization is J. Morgan Stevens, former member of the Supreme Court and now law partner of W. Calvin Wells, chairman of the Democratic State Commitee.

Judge Stevens contends that Chancellor Dale erred in granting the injunction. He declares that the court had no jurisdiction under the law, the things complained of being party affairs.

Dangerous Precedent

"If eleven white men can enjoin the Republican party," says Judge Stevens, "then eleven Negroes can enjoin the whole Democratic party, under the law." The injunction, he states, sets up a very dangerous precedent for the South.

The Howard organization is recognized by Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican national committee as the only regular Republican party in Mississippi. Mr. Howard has a letter from Chairman Butler to that effect.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, who is a leading candidate for the Republican nomination, seems to be playing politics with both the Howard organization and the "lily-white" group.

The "lily-whites" are said to be spending money in Mississippi freely. L. O. Crosby, a lumberman of Picayune, Miss., is said to be putting up this money for the "lily-whites." Crosby is a Democrat and an ardent supporter of Secretary Hoover. He met Hoover when the Secretary was in Mississippi on flood relief.

Crosby Makes Offer

In his zeal to contribute to the nomination of Secretary Hoover, Mr. Crosby is said to have intimated that he would even patch up the differences between Mr. Howard and the "lily-whites." Mr. Howard was advised of the olive branch offer extended by Mr. Crosby. A conference took place in New Orleans, La., between the two. Crosby, it developed, wanted Howard to give him his place on the Republican national committee.

That is the version that Mr. Howard's associates are telling in Mississippi, and the feud between Howard and Crosby is more pronounced than ever. The effect is that the regular Republicans are declaring that if the "liy-whites" are for Hoover, they will be for Lowden or some other candidate.

ALL DELEGATES GIVEN THE SAME TREATMENT

—o—

Threat to Move Convention Secured Change of Local Custom

—o—

In 1896 the Republican national convention was held in St. Louis, Mo. St. Louis, being a Missouri city, would have about the same customs in treating and housing Negroes as Kansas City. It is interesting, therefore, to know what happened in St. Louis in regard to Negroes at the time of the convention in 1896. At that time there were two Negro national committeemen, Wright Cuney and Madison Vance.

Equality For All

The committee representing St Louis invited the national convention, appearing before the national committee, of which Mark Hanna was the head. Hanna stated to the committee that he would not even consider going to St. Louis unless conditions for all delegates would be the same as would be received in any northern city. Their local committee accepted the conditions and the national convention decided to go to St. Louis. There was no debate nor prolonged discussion.

According to the agreement Mr Vance and Mr. Cuney wired to the Southern hotel of St. Louis for accommodations, sent their money, had their requests acknowledged by wire and were sent receipts for their rooms. A few days before the national convention, in accordance with its customs, the national committeemen, Messrs. Vance and Cuney, went to the Southern hotel, and showed the receipts for their rooms.

Guests Complain

The clerk on duty called the bell boy and had them ushered to their rooms. After going to them the two gentlemen happened to pass out into the hall where they were seen by other guests of the hotel, who called the manager. The manager went to Messrs. Vance and Cuney went to the hotel had no rooms—no accommodations whatever for Negroes. "We will help you find a place among your own people," he said. Mr Vance went to Hanna.

Hanna assembled the national committee at once and had his secretary call in the local committee who had invited them to come to St. Louis. Upon the meeting of the national committee and the local committee Mr. Hanna invited Mr. Cuney to take the floor and state the first business. Mr. Cuney related the treatment he had received in other cities. Mr. Hanna asked Mr. Vance if his experience was the same and was told it was.

Local Customs for Negroes

Then the spokesman of the local committee said there were certain local customs which were usually observed in St. Louis, that they had no bad intentions toward the Republicans and the convention, but they had local customs in their treatment of Negroes. Mr. Hanna turned to the national committee and said:

"But I have certain definite memories of the promises made by St. Louis at the time they invited the national convention and I ask these two national committeemen and the rest of you national committeemen if your memory is not the same. You said that St. Louis would entertain this national convention in exactly the same manner they would be entertained in any northern city, and that there was a definite assurance that there would be no discrimination."

"Will Move Convention"

Mr. Hanna thereupon said to the local committee "You can control this local situation. You must control this local situation or I will move the convention. I will give you until six o'clock tonight to have these local hotels change their ruling and accept Negro delegates to the convention as they accept others or we will adjourn on Wednesday morning. The national convention will meet in Chicago I have $500,000 with which to pay the cost of moving the convention. You have until six o'clock to make your conditions here conform to your promises."

The convention met in St. Louis Wright Cuney and Madison Vance were housed in the Southern hotel and other Negro delegates were housed wherever accommodations for their states had been secured without discrimination, without antagonism, and without friction.

COHEN AND HIGGINS QUIT POSTS ON COMMITTEE

J. Stuart Thompson of Lake Charles Elected Chairman.

B. V. Baranco, Baton Rouge Elected Secretary.

Call issued for State Convention in New Orleans, April 19.

Last Wednesday under a call signed by Mrs. Jane Perrin, Vice Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee held a meeting issuing a call for a Republican State Convention to be held on April 19 1928 at L'Union Hall, 928 N. Rampart Street 12 o'clock Noon for the purpose of electing four (4) Delegates at-large and four (4) alternate Delegates at-large to the Republican National Convention to be held in Kansas City on June 12, 1928.

Th Committee at its meeting elected J. Stuart Thomson, Lake Charles, Louisiana, as its Chairman, and Mr. B. V. Baranco of Baton Rouge, La. as its Secretary. Mr. Jane Perrin was elected Vice Chairman.

President Coolidge's administration was endorsed, and an Executive Committee was authorized to be appointed by the Chairman, empowered to fill all vacancies on the Committee.

The most notable incident of the meeting was the absence of "Cap" Cohen. "Caps" resignation as chairman and secretary respectively were sent in by Jas. L. Higgins and W. L. Cohen. Injunctions had previously been secured them by the Lily White faction of the Republican Party.

The following is the call issued by the new Chairman for the State Convention.

New Orleans Louisiana.
March 28, 1928.

TO The Republican Electors Of The State Of Louisiana:—

In pursuance with the call of the Republican National Committee issued under date of December 7, 1927, a convention of the Republicans of the State of Louisiana is called to meet in the City of New Orleans, Louisiana, on Thursday April 19, 1928 at the L'Union Francaise Hall, 928 N. Rampart Street at 12 o'clock noon for the purpose of electing four (4) Delegates At-Large and four Alternate Delegates At-Large to the Republican National Convention which will convene in Kansas City Mo. on June 12, 19298.

Delegates for said State Convention shall be elected under the auspices of three (3) supervisors of election for each Parish in the State and three (3) for each ward in the Parish of Orleans. The said supervisors to be appointed by the Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. The said Delegates shall be elected by mass meetings, provided, that on petition of Fifteen (15) duly qualified Republicans of a Parish or a ward of the Parish of Oreanls, a Primary Election will be called, same to be under the supervision of said supervisors.

The appointment of Delegates to said Convention shall be one (1) Delegate for every one hundred (100) votes, and one Delegate for every fraction of fifty (50) votes or more than was cast for Calvin Coolidge in 1924. Where less than one hundred (100) votes was polled as provided in this call, such Parish shall be entitled to one (1) vote in the Convention.

The said Delegates shall be elected on or before April 15, 1928, and the Credentials shall be forwarded to the Secretary of the State Central Committee on or before April 17 1928. The Credentials of the Delegates so elected shall be signed by the Chairman and Secretary of the Mass Meeting, or if by a Primary election, by a majority of Commissioners conducting said election.

The Chairman of the State Central Committee shall appoint a Committee of five (5) on arangement to make all necessary preparations for the holding of the State Convention, and the selection of the Temporary officers therof. In the event for any reason that any member of said Committee of arrangement, cannot serve, the Chairman of the State Central Committee shall appoint some other member of the State Central Committee to the vacancy caused thereby.

Any information desired will be furnished by communicating with the Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, J. S. Stuart Thomsan, P. O. Box 536, Lake Charles, La. or to B. V. Baranco Secretary, P. O. Box 585 Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

(Signed) J. Stuart Thomson, Ch'mn.
(Signed) B. V. Baranco, Secretary.

NEWS
CHICAGO, ILL.

MAR 13 1928

NEGROES ORGANIZE POLITICAL LEAGUE

"Bunked Long Enough," Says Leader of Move to Better Conditions.

Believing that "the Negro has been bunked long enough," a group of young business and professional men of Chicago has launched the Young Colored Men's Political league, whose officers today announce its program.

"Decent colored people," said T. W. Champion, twenty years ago a Pullman porter, now a real estate man living at 5326 South Park way, "feel that conditions have become deplorable. They deeply resent the statement ascribed to a police commissioner that the Negroes voted for open gambling. For my part, I voted for Thompson because the race issue was injected into the campaign.

"The Negro has been bunked long [illegible] said Mr. Champion. "I fail [illegible] that Thompson has fulfilled to [illegible] appreciable degree his legitimate promises to the Negro, in the way of improving conditions, employing Negroes, for instance. I don't see that there has been any change for the better. On the contrary, I am reliably informed that thousands of dollars are being taken out of the Negro colony in rake-offs for protection of policy and kindred rackets.

Outsider Has No Chance.

"The spread of policy among women and children as well as fathers of family is taking money needed for the necessities of life, in a game which according to experts gives the outsider only one chance against 17,000 to win.

"Meanwhile in the face of widespread unemployment I am unaware that the administration has taken even the steps toward amelioration that were resorted to during the previous administration, when the unemployment was much less severe.

"The time has come when the Negro must declare his political independence of four-flushing politicians who either promise without performing, or give recognition only to the Negroes who do no credit to their people.

"We shall make recommendations to the Negro voter based on the qualifications of candidates, and irrespective of alliances, factions or even parties. We decided not to call ourselves 'republicans' because that stuff is passe, and because we may decide to indorse a democrat.

Resent Popular Idea.

"The Negro resents the idea that any politician can deliver his vote."

The officers of the new organization, besides Champion, are A. L. Jackson, vice-president; Dr. J. A. Feaman, second vice-president; Herman K. Barnett, executive secretary; Macon H. Huggins, recording secretary; Joyce Jacobs, assistant secretary; F. W. Harsh Jr., treasurer; Dr. Carl Roberts, chairman of the executive board. A. L. Jackson and Barnett said that Mr. Champion's statement represented a rising sentiment among the Chicago negroes.

The association announced the following endorsements:

William L. Dawson for congress from the first district.

William H. Haynes for legislature from the fifth senatorial district.

James B. Cashin and Harry M. Porter, for municipal judges.

Endorsement of Dr. Richard A. Williams for ward committeeman against Oscar De Priest will be recommended to the executive board, Mr. Champion added. He said that the indorsements [illegible] the basis of affilia[illegible] [illegible]on with any polit[illegible] [illegible] the basis of indi[illegible] office as weighed [illegible] the [illegible] body.

SECONDED HOOVER'S NOMINATION

Dr. John R. Hawkins, delegate-at-large from the District of Columbia to the Republican National Convention, who served on the imporant committee on rules and order of business, and was selected to make a speech seconding the nomination of Herbert Hoover.

Dr. John R. Hawkins, Whitefield McKinlay and the Rev. H. Jernagin were in the delegation that left here last Saturday afternoon for Kansas City to attend the Republican national convention. Dr. Hawkins is one of the two delegates from the District of Columbia. The Rev. Jernagin is his alternate. Mr. McKinlay is a former collector of customs of the port of Georgetown, District of Columbia. He was very active in politics during the Roosevelt and Taft administrations.

CONVENTION OKEYS RULING OF COMMITTEE

Appeal Is Buried by Heavy Vote Favoring the Lily Whites

The so-called regular Republican delegates from the Southern states which lost their fight for seats last week before the national committee, were crushed under the Hoover machine Wednesday when they took their cases on appeal to the credentials committee.

The credentials committee reported in favor of the "regular" delegates in Florida, Louisiana and Texas, the states where the contest was most bitter.

A minority report submitted to the convention, recommending the seating of the "regular" delegates from Louisiana and the faction containing William McDonald of Texas, was voted down by the convention, 659½ to 399½.

This indicates the strength of the Hoover vote on the floor and makes certain the secretary of commerce will be nominated on the first ballot late Thursday.

Political-1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

Bitter Factional Controversy Tears State Party Asunder

'Lily-Whites" Instruct Delegation For Herbert Hoover—Boost Creager For Vice-President—"Black and Tans" Send Uninstructed Delegates—Endorse Congressman Wurzbach and Condemn National Committeeman Creager—Few Blacks In "Regular" Convention—None Selected As Delegates or Alternates—"Insurgents" Honor Negro Republicans—Contest Goes To Kansas City Parley

(By Staff Correspondent)

Convention Hall, Dallas, Texas, May 22, 1928.—One of the most riotous and tumultous gatherings ever held in this city, or perhaps this state during recent years by the Texas Republicans, was staged here today at the City Hall auditorium, when bedlam broke loose during the viva voce vote on the submission of the majority and minority reports on the temporary roll of the convention; the former being submitted by the Creager-Nolte bloc, and the latter being introduced by the Wurzbach-Littleton-McDonald faction, with Captain John E. Elgin of San Antonio, former Texas ranger and picturesque, pioneer Texas Republican, offering the minority report which offered the name of C. C. Littleton of Fort Worth as temporary chairman of the convention. The majority report recommended Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls as temporary chairman.

5-26-28

When Captain Elgin insisted that his motion, adopting the minority report, had carried by acclamation, he immediately recognized C. C. Littleton as chairman, at which point R. B. Creager of Brownsville, national committeeman from Texas, and Eugene Nolte of Seguin, state chairman, called police officers, who were patrolling both the interior and exterior of the convention hall, to the rostrum to eject Captain Elgin, Littleton and Harry Beck of Dallas from the convention hall. Their ejections were followed by the withdrawal of the Wurzbach forces, who mobilized their forces in the corridors of the convention hall and perfected their temporary organization.

The situation grew both dramatic and tense when the rift, which had been expected, came; for the manner in which the Creager-Nolte combine had decided the contests on the previous day, and the hopeless fight waged by Littleton and Elgin, members of the Creager-Nolte executive committee (the captain employing a proxy), against what they termed as the "high-handed manner in seating the Creager hand picked delegates," presaged the renewal of hostilities Tuesday and a split in the convention.

After the Wurzbach forces had withdrawn from the convention hall, their leaders having been ejected by police officers, Creager attacked Wurzbach's political history and stated that the congressman was guilty of duplicity and double dealing in purporting to support Herbert Hoover for the presidential nomination by the Republicans on one hand and then trying to array certain racial groups against Hoover on the other hand.

In his scathing denunciation of Wurzbach, Creager stated that the Seguin Republican was not fit to represent Texas in the congress of the United States, and the Creager adherents rent the convention hall with vociferous applause. The national committeeman also charged that C. C. Litleton and F. E. Scobey, two of the moving spirits in the Wurzbach camp, were two of the most bitter foes of the Negro race in Texas, and that no man in the Texas Republican party has ever been as vehement and vitriolic against the colored race as Littleton, an erstwhile Democrat. Creager added that he was not opposed to Negroes participating in Republican affairs, but that he stood "unquestionably for white leadership."

Two Delegations Chosen

The racial attitude of the two conventions was reflected in the election of delegates and alternates, both from the state-at-large and congressional districts, by the opposing and contending factions. The Creager regime elected 26 white delegates and 26 white alternates, despite the fact that some of the leading colored Hoover supporters of the state were seated as regular delegates in the Creager parley.

Contending that their convention was a genuine old-fashioned Republican powwow, the Wurzbach-Littleton group elected 3 white delegates-at-large and 1 colored; 3 alternates and one colored; between twelve and fifteen colored delegates and alternates (elected by their respective congressional conventions on May 10, 1928, according to the leaders of the anti-Hoover movement) to represent their faction at the National Republican Convention, which meets at Kansas City, Mo., June 12, 1928.

Since Texas will have a contest before the contests committee of the national organization, it will be necessary for the case to be presented and argued before said committee during the week of June 4, 1928.

Few Blacks At Creager Meet

There were very few colored delegates and alternates in the Creager convention, the following counties having Negroes on their delegations: Bowie, Bexar, Galveston and Harris; Bexar withdrawing when the rift occurred.

Because of the fact that Texas Negroes, in a large measure, are favorable to the Hoover candidacy, and due to the fact that some of the leading Negroes in Texas had been very active in behalf of the commerce secretary's nomination, it was quite a blow to the "faithful brethren" when not a solitary member of their race was listed even as an alternate; and when no white Republican in the convention would object to the election of a delegation on which there were no colored Republicans.

The Wurzbach forces were jubilant with this action on the part of the Creager regime, claiming that it will strengthen their case before the contests and credentials committees at Kansaa City, next month, in proving that the Creager party organization is "lily-white" and hostile to colored Republicans.

Two Dominant Figures

While R. B. Creager was the dominant figure at the "regular" convention, William Madison ("Gooseneck Bill") McDonald, Ft. Worth banker, fraternalist and politician, wielded the sceptre at the "insurgent" parley.

The "big four" chosen by the Creager convention were R. B. Creager of Brownsville, Eugene Nolte of Seguin, Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls and T. P. Lee of Houston. The Wurzbach forces chose Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin, C. C. Littleton of Ft Worth, W. P. Gage of Dallas, and William M. McDonald of Ft. Worth. Dr. J. T. Walton, San Antonio physician, was elected as one of the four alternates from the Wurzmach convention.

Political observers will watch with interest the outcome of the Texas contest at Kansas City, which will determine, in no small measure, the future growth and expansion of the party in Texas. A white Democrat who, apparently, had been keeping up with the fight between these two factions, remarked that "Creager and Nolte have the party machinery, but Harry Wurzbach and 'Bill' McDonald control the votes of the real Republicans of Texas; and I can't see how the national organization can afford to ignore a delegation headed by the lone Republican from the banner Democratic state in the United States."

Oldest Delegate At 10 G. O. P. Meets

KANSAS CITY—E. S. Richardson of Marshallville, Ga., delegate from the third congressional district, makes a claim [illegible] consistent convention-goer.

Richardson, now 66 years old, has been attending Republican national conventions since 1884. He has missed only [illegible] 1904—when he was elected delegate but found it necessary to remain at home..

Negro Political Boss Is Admitted To Meet

KANSAS CITY, June 12.—(AP)—R. R. (Bob) Church, Memphis negro politician, credited with being boss of the negro vote in Tennessee, tonight retained his place as the only negro on the Volunteer state delegation, but only after a brisk fight before the credentials committee of the Republican national convention.

The committee voted unanimously to seat him after an effort had been made to declare the seat vacant and to seat no delegate.

Politics Unlikely To Succeed Where Methodists Fail

KANSAS CITY, (By Carl Murphy) —It is fairly certain that delegates to the Republican National Convention meeting here next month will fall before this city's jim-crow policy in hotels.

This means that colored members of northern delegations will be separated from their white brethren who will have reservations in hotels. Colored folk will be shunted to private residences.

The Honorable Perry Howard, recently discovered to be on the Hoover pavroll, was here recently and "fixed everything up." How well he performed, delegates will find out when they reach this city. My guess is that politics will not be able to succeed where religion has failed. Religion certainly failed during the M. E. General Conference.

Our two bishops were promised quarters with other prelates in the large hotels. These tavern keepers refused to accommodate them. One of them was sent subsequently to an apartment hotel which turned out to be a "sporting house". Naturally, he left and sought residence with a private family.

Delegates with whom I have talked not only resent the outrage, but declare that another convention will come to Kansas City over their dead bodies, so to speak.

Kansas is a border state like Maryland. The General Conference gave the city a shock when delegates of all races sat together in meetings and ate together in the Convention Hall without the world's coming to an end.

One white member of the local committee is quoted as saying, "We must not treat visiting colored folk better than we do our own local people, lest the latter become insulted".

Therefore housing of delegates was placed in the hands of whites who knew nothing about colored people. The result was that a mother with five children living in a two-room house was assigned two delegates, and scores of local people with fine residences were not asked to assist.

That comfortable homes were found for delegates was not to the credit of the white committee in charge, but it was due to the energy of thoughtful Kansas City colored folk, who insisted that the rooming list for delegates be revised and supervised.

These same people will likely come to the aid of the G. O. P. when it is evident that the copperhead hotels are going to do to the politicians what they have already done to the pastors and prelates.

Birmingham, Ala., Post
Wednesday, May 16, 1928

State G. O. P. Upholds Rule To Bar Negro Invasion

25-Delegate Issue Fought Out In Committee Meeting; Delegates Announced And Five Counties Admitted

UPHOLDING its ruling that counties with less than 25 Republican votes can not be represented at state conventions, the Alabama Republican executive committee at its meeting yesterday at the Tutwiler hotel today maintained a bar against invasion of the party in Alabama by the negro race.

Several committeemen, including Charles Robinson, assistant United States district attorney, declared that if the committee broke its 25-delegate ruling, "it would open the gates wide to numbers of negroes in the various counties that have less than the required number of votes."

The negro issue was introduced when five counties presented requests for representation in the state Republican conventions. The counties, Hale, Greene, Choctaw, Monroe and Clark were represented by delegations armed with admittance requests on the grounds that "if Al Smith is nominated by the Democratic party, the Democrats in counties that have less than 25 Republican votes will vote from 200 to 500 strong for the Republican nominee."

With only one of Alabama's 15 Republican delegates uninstructed to vote for the nomination of Herbert Hoover, Alabama's support of Hoover was made certain today as the Republican convention opened at the Jefferson theater.

The announcement of election of the following delegates was made: Douglas Smith, Wedowee; J. A. Bingham, Talladega; John Morton, Tuscaloosa; Vester Walker, Tuscumbia; Frank Bachard, Foley; C. M. Sartain, Jasper; C. B. Kennamer, Guntersville; B. L. Noojin, Gadsden; J. R. Dawsey, Ashford, and T. J. Kennamer, Birmingham.

Of these delegates all were instructed to vote for Hoover at the Republican national convention, to be held in Kansas City, June 12, except Sartain, whom it was understood would carry the Jasper vote to Lowden.

Hoover Winner As Delegation Is Seated By Meet

Slate Of Delegates From Florida Favoring Secretary Victorious

Bean Forces Lose

Skipper Group Makes Victory Complete

KANSAS CITY, MO., June 4.—(AP)—Bowling over opposition without a setback, Herbert Hoover picked up 11 votes in the Republican convention today as the national committee, sitting as a jury, got down to the hearing of contests involving nearly 70 delegates from Southern states.

Not only did the committee place on the temporary convention roll all of the nine Hoover pledged delegates from Florida and two from Florida whose credentials had been challenged, but it paved the way for dethroning George W. Bean, national committeeman for 16 years and the federal patronage "boss" in Florida.

Bean who led a losing fight for an instructed slate of delegates intends to appeal to the convention credentials committee. In the past it rarely has overruled the decisions of the national committee and for this reason there is confidence in the Hoover camp that today's rulings would stand.

Skipper Likely Winner

As the Florida delegation will select their new national committeeman, it appeared certain tonight that, barring a reversal, Bean would lose his post and that Glen H. Skipper of Miami, who led the fight against him and who himself landed a place as a district delegate pledged to Hoover, would take over the party reins in the state.

Setting out to referee before the end of the week all of the factional disputes, which as usual have cropped up in the South, the national committee first took up those from Florida, postponing for a day or two judgment in the important controversies centering around the entire delegations from Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas. In each of these three states, one set of contestees has been lined up for Hoover, with the opposition slates classed generally as pro-Lowden or pro-Dawes.

The Florida disputes aired and decided today involved all of the delegation from that state except the lone convention representative from the Third District. The other contest disposed of during the day which had attracted less attention, affected the two convention seats from the first Kentucky district.

Here again Hoover scored a victory. The delegates instructed for him recognized, giving him a solid delegation of 29 from the Blue Grass state. No one appeared to press the claims of two rival slates and the Hoover pair obtained a quick decision, without a committee roll call.

Butler Votes With Bean

In the votes on the Florida contests, taken behind closed doors, Chairman Butler, the former Massachusetts senator and close friend of President Coolidge, voted with Bean, who never has been looked on as friendly to Hoover's candidacy. So did Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman from New York, who favors Coolidge's renomination and has not given up hope that it can be accomplished.

While Butler is expected to take a hand in any movement to keep Mr. Coolidge in the White House, he has indicated that on the first convention ballot at least he would go along with other Bay State delegates who think they should rally to the commerce secretary's support because he carried in state in the April preferential primary. Some members of the national committee were inclined to attach importance to Butler's stand today as an indication of which way the political wind was blowing, but others, including Hoover's supporters, minimized it.

As it got under way with the contests, after attending to a few preliminaries, the committee alloted time to opposing counsel in each contest for arguments in the open. Decisions were reached in executive sessions after each series of arguments had been concluded, but after two showings of strength by the Hoover forces roll calls were dispensed with and the question was decided by oral voting.

New Tales of Disorder

Some new tales of disorder "stacked" state conventions and strong arm methods were unfolded to the committee members as the opposing Republican factions from Florida clashed. The Hooverites insisted that the state was tired of Bean and wanted a new political deal; Bean's band came back with the charge that Skipper, who for years had been challenging him, had gained control of party conventions by high handed methods and had no legitimate standing in party councils.

Bean throughout the hearings sat behind the attorneys espousing his cause, while across the hearing room was former Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin, and others carrying on the fight on behalf of Hoover's followers.

In the room, which was cleared of spectators, every time the committee was to decide who's who on the contested delegate list, sat James W. Good, the Hoover campaign manager. When the day's work was done he smiled broadly and remarked:

"It couldn't have been otherwise. It couldn't have been better. It's just what will happen in all the contests."

At the helm for the Hoover faction when votes was to be taken, was Ralph Williams of Oregon, who like Hilles is a vice-chairman of the committee.

More than 20 of the 106 committee members were not present or represented by proxies, the vote on the seating of the Hoover pledged "big four" from Florida being 46 to 37, the count of recognizing the two Skipper delegates from the first Florida district was 51 to 33, while in the case of the others there was no record vote.

RACE LOST ON PLATFORM

SIXTY DELEGATES IN ATTENDANCE AT NATIONAL REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION — NORTHERN STATES SEND MORE THAN EVER — UNITED ON ENFORCEMENT OF AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION BUT WERE IGNORED

Kansas City, Mo., June 11, 1928.—Fifty delegates and ten alternates are the race representation in the Republican National Convention here.

Never before have so many states north of the Mason-Dixon line been represented.

The number by States is:

Arkansas, 3; Georgia, 11; Illinois, 2; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 5; Maryland, 3; Michigan, 1; Mississippi, 8; Missouri, 3; New Jersey, 1; Ohio, 1; Oklahoma, 1; South Carolina, 6; Tennessee, 1; and West Virginia 2—total 50.

Alternates: Iowa, 1; Maryland, 3; Massachusetts, 1; Michigan, 1; New York, 2; and Pennsylvania, 2—total 10.

"If the Republican Party writes into its platform a declaration for enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, it must include the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments," is the slogan of leaders here.

S. D. Redmond, delegate selected for the Mississippi member of the Committee on Platform and Resolutions, said he would insist on pledging the Republicans to a more vigorous enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.

"Why should there be any discrimination?" said he. "It is well known to Senator Borah and other prominent party men that these are being ignored. Every colored delegate here should resent any plan to favor the Eighteenth over the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments."

Thoroughly aroused over this matter, the delegates were busy today calling on their friends from other States, urging them to stand by them in their efforts to get justice.

Political – 1928

Party Affiliation.

Republican.

"BOB" CHURCH DOES LAUNCH BIG OFFENSIVE

Memphis Whites Making Frantic Effort To Head Off Leader's Control

DEFEATED CANDIDATES TRUMP UP CHARGES

G. Tom Taylor, White, Says Church Wanted $1,000 Of Salary

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Riled, it is charged, because of his ascendency in Republican leadership in Tennessee, Memphis white foes of Robert R. Church have launched the most intensive offensive against the Shelby County leader in the history of local politics.

For more than a week the Memphis Commercial Appeal and the Evening Appeal, opposition papers to the present City Adminstration, have been out to get his scalp and have used large headlines charging him with making demands upon candidates for money.

Make Charges

G. Tom Taylor, who was appointed acting postmaster on Church's endorsement, and who was recently rejected by the Senate, says he "lost his job because he refused to give Church $1,000 out of his salary."

George H. Poole, also candidate for acting postmaster says "he didn't get the job because he would not agree to give $2,800 that he claims Church said he spent in moving Seches, former postmaster, and would not agree to have colored special delivery carriers and colored clerks in the Memphis office."

'Malicious and False"

Church characterized the statements of Taylor and Poole, as "malicious and false" and stated further that there was not a person in Tennessee who did not know why Tom Taylor lost his job, and that George Poole was not considered because he had taken the examination and could not make the eligible grade, that the Postoffice Department would not appoint a man acting Postmaster who had taken the examination and failed".

Postmaster General Harry S. New, when informed of the charges stated to the press, "That he had known Bob Church for years and believed in his integrity, that while he did not like to prejudice such things, that he did not believe there was any truth in the charges. I have heard charges like these before and everytime they have been investigated were found untrue."

Church said that he "welcomed a thorough and searching investigation by the Department and had requested it".

Congressman J. Will Taylor, Republican National Committeeman from Tennessee, and patronage referee, branded as an "infamous canard" the allegations.

Bank Crash Looms

Efforts to link the name of Church with the recent failure of the Solvent and Fraternal Bank and Trust Company, have also been made, it is said.

Searching the records it was found that a note for $4.000 was made by Church in 1925. Although the records show that the note was paid at maturity, Church's friends say, large headlines in the daily papers said, "Link Church's Name In Negro Bank Crash".

In reply Church stated, "I have never had any questionable transaction with any bank, and everybody knows that I was not connected in any way with the defunct Fraternal Solvent Bank. If I had a note there in 1925, it was certainly paid when due as records of the bank will show."

NEGROES ASLEEP ON OPP'TUNITIES IN POLITICS

By William O. Walker

"A politician thinks of the next election; a statesman, of the next generation."—James Freeman Clarke.

Unfortunately few Negroes in Washington can be classed in the first category, and none at all in the last. The sleeping giant was never more strikingly illustrated than among the Negroes in this city—the capital of the nation when it comes to politics.

At present, in every state where Negroes reside, they are planning for the election of delegates to the coming national convention of the Republican party, which, as all know, is yet the party of the bulk of Negro voters. In some places, delegates have already been selected and slates made up. However, in Washington, the Negro is sleeping, unmindful of the privilege and right that is his as well as other citizens' to elect two delegates and alternates from the District of Columbia to this coming convention.

The Republican National Committee has already issued the call under which delegates are to be elected. This call specifically specifies how these various elections are to be held. As to the qualifications of those eligible to participate in the election of these delegates, the call states:

"The voters of the several states and of Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands and the District of Columbia who are in accord with the principles of the Republican Party, believe in its declaration of policies, and are in sympathy with its aims and purposes, are invited to unite under this call in the selection of delegates to said convention."

As to the delegates, the call states:

"Delegates and alternates to the National Convention shall be duly qualified voters of their respective states and territories and in the case of the District of Columbia, residents therein."

Under these rules, every Negro, male and female, over 21 years of age, and who professes himself or herself to be "in accord with the principles of the Republican Party" are eligible.

There are over 20,000 Negroes in the city of Washington eligible to participate in the election of the delegates from the District.

Since 1912, there has been a gradual but determined effort to ease the Negro out of the party councils in this city. In 1912, the delegates were elected by a city-wide referendum. Polling places were distributed all over the city and the citizens went to them during the hours of voting and cast their ballots for their respective candidates.

In 1916, the so-called bosses attempted to put into effect a system whereby their control and power would not be jeopardized. A convention was held in the old Ebbitt House on F Street, and admittance was by card only. Of course the bosses saw to it that only their henchmen were given cards. The result was, the whole affair was cut and dried. However, so repugnant was this procedure to a great number who believed in fair play, that a rump convention and a contesting set of delegates were sent to the convention which convened in St. Louis, Mo. When the contest came up before the credentials committee at the convention, both sides being irregular, all the delegates from the District of Columbia were thrown out.

In 1920, the so-called convention was completely boss controlled. In 1924, the selection was also cut and dried long before the faithful few assembled in a room on New York Avenue for the arduous task.

According to the call issued by the Republican National Committee, due notice of the primary election as well as of the general election is to be made in newspapers of general circulation, at least fifteen days before the voting. All meetings are also to be held in public places.

So far no mention of the primary elections or general elections have been made by Mr. Edward F. Colladay who is National Committeeman for the District. The practice in the past has been to hold unadvertised, private meetings in private homes or unannounced meetings in public halls or schools. To these meetings only a few of the faithful are invited.

A determined effort is being made this year to have the election of delegates from the District made in strict accordance to the call. A petition was presented last December to the National Republican Committee signed by Aaron Bradshaw, J. Finley Wilson, Robert F. Miller and Benjamin L. Gaskins.

This petition asked the National Committee to appoint a sub-committee of three to carry out the fair election of gelegates in the District. The election of these National convention delegates is the only form of franchise exercised by the citizens of Washington.

If the 20,000 Negroes eligible to participate in this election would turn out and cast their votes, the status of the Negro in this city would be greatly bettered.

Under the present practice, all appointments in the District Government are made on recommendation of division chiefs. These chiefs get their orders from those who control the Republiian Party in the District. No civil service examinatons are required. Notwithstanding this, fewer than twenty-five Negro clerks hold positions in the District building. On the other hand hundreds of whites from Maryland and Virginia hold these positions and are paid out of the pockets of the tax payers of the District.

While these whites occupy these lucreative positions, hundreds of graduates of Dunbar, Armstrong, Niner Normal and Howard University whose parents are tax payers here, are denied positions. The only remedy to this is for the Negroes of the District to take a more active part in the Republican politics of this city. If they cast their votes for the election of their own delegates to the general convention, they can then elect men who will give recognition in the dispensing of the patronage here.

Despite the fact that about half of the membership of the Republican party here is made up of Negroes, they do not get sufficient recognition in patronage to call it anything at all. The only Negro holding a job of any prestige under the District Government, is Attorney Thos. L. Jones, who is an Assistant District Attorney with a salary less than $3,000 a year.

The plan in the past has been to name one Negro a delegate and one an alternate to the National Convention. Other than this, no further recognition is given. A determined effort is being made to revive the interest of the 20,000 Negro voters here in politics and get them to go out and better their condition by the proper use of the ballot.

OUR PARTISAN POSITION EXPLAINED

Some of the colored citizens are engaging in surmises and reaching conclusions regarding our political or partisan stand in the Republican situation in Harris County and Texas, particularly as it relates to the regular organization headed in this county by R. B. Morris, county chairman.

Informer

It will be recalled that this editor was a candidate against Mr. Morris in 1926 for the office of county chairman or chairman of the Republican executive committee of Harris County; and that a district judge refused to issue a mandatory writ compelling the Republican executive committee of Harris County to place this editor's name on the official ballot as a candidate for said elective office. The result of that fight is well known to most residents of this city and section.

4-29-28

It will also be borne in mind that, starting back in 1920, this editor has always been aligned with the Republican faction fighting the regular Republican organization, both in this county and state; not that we had anything personal against the leaders of the recognized organization, but because we differed as to partisan policy, program and procedure.

Houston, Texas

After looking over the field of presidential prospects, this editor and paper chose to support Herbert C. Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination, and it so happened that several of the leaders in the regular Republican organization in this city and county were and are also favorable to Mr. Hoover's candidacy.

When The Informer came out for Mr. Hoover, certain local Hoover supporters of the white race sought a conference with this editor, and discussed at length the political situation, particularly interracially, in this city and county.

At this and subsequent conferences, we had our white conferees to understand that we wanted no financial remuneration, as such, for our support of Mr. Hoover's candidacy; that we favored the present secretary of commerce for the presidential nomination in 1919, and would continue to support and back Mr. Hoover even if our warring factions could not get together on terms of peace and declare a partisan and political armistice.

At these parleys we contended that the Negroes of Houston and Harris County, as well as Texas, did not want to dominate the Republican party or any other partisan organization; but that the black man insists upon free political activity and full partisan participation and representation; and that upon this basis—partisan participation and representation—we would bury the hatchet and line up with the regular organization in this county and district, particularly; but we also made it quite plain to local Republican leaders that, while we were willing to support Mr. Hoover and attempt to work out a harmony program for the best interests of the party in this section and state, we could not swallow, without protest, the kind of political concoction and partisan dope which R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for Texas and titular head of the party in this state, has been dispensing to the colored Republicans of Texas during his administration.

In our editorial endorsement of Mr. Hoover several weeks ago, we sought to make our position in this matter quite clear and plain; and later this writer was one of the moving spirits in a statewide conference, held at Dallas under auspices of the Independent Colored Voters' League of Texas, where a program was outlined seeking to unify and solidify the belligerent Republican factions in Texas on the same basis as effected in Harris County.

WE HAVE NOT "SOLD OUT" THE RACE NOR OUR CAUSE TO ANY PERSON, GROUP OR CLIQUE, AND NO ONE HAS SOUGHT TO "BUY" US!

It is simply a case of politics making strange bedfellows, so to speak, for, as stated before, both this editor and the regular Republican organization found themselves supporting and working for the presidential nomination of the same distinguished American—Herbert C. Hoover—and all of us felt that Mr. Hoover's cause could be considerably advanced and enhanced in this section, and even the state, if all of his supporters worked in harmony and as a unit, rather than as separate and distinct units.

We believe that the majority of colored citizens of Texas, whether they agree with and are willing to line up with the Creager-Nolte regime or not, are not unfavorable to Mr. Hoover's candidacy; for candor and frankness, rather than political expediency, compel unbiased and unprejudiced Texans of color to admit that Mr. Hoover is eminently fitted for the highest position within the gift of the American electorate, and that there is not another man being mentioned for the presidential nomination, by either of the major parties, who has the qualifications to the marked degree as possessed by Mr. Hoover.

We have stated before, and wish to repeat it here, that all citizens wishing to participate in the Republican precinct conventions on Saturday, May 5, 1928, must respond to the official call issued by the regular Republican organization, despite the propaganda and ill advice of some of the anti-Creager and anti-Hoover forces in this state.

Nothing can be gained by remaining outside the organization and fighting, but much can be gained by getting inside the organization and seeking to effect such reforms.

Another thing: No organization, political, religious, civic or whatnot, can thrive and grow and maintain its hold upon its constituents, if said organization is constantly and continually in an internal wrangle and factional controversy; and even the Republican party of Texas is no exception to this general rule.

Briefly stated, The Informer's position is epitomized in this slogan: HOOVER—HARMONY—HAPPINESS!

Leaders' Absence Causes Comment

Pittsburg Courier
Pittsburg, Pa.
6/16/28

(By Special Correspondent)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 14.—Well, we're here!

This is the Republican national convention, all right. We know it because the papers say so, and we see here all the party bosses, little and big ones—all mixed up here trying to pick a candidate to ride the G. O. P. elephant to victory next fall.

The white hotels are filled with busy ones—some wise and some otherwise. All kinds of talk is going on, but few facts are being stated. There is a decided anti-Hoover atmosphere here. Everyone was waiting for Mr. Mellon from Pennsylvania. Well, Mr. Mellon came, but he was out of sight about as soon as he landed, and nobody knows what he is thinking or what he is going to do. If he does one thing, then something will happen, and if he does something else, something else will happen. That is about all we hear here, in spite of all the buzzing among the hungry ones.

Of course, Hoover is going to either be nominated or defeated. The same may be said of Lowden, or even Mr. Dawes. This is just a simple statement, but it means nothing. The "dark horse" talk is the same we heard at Cleveland and Chicago. But "dark horses" have to have oats to get started in a race like this is going to be.

All the "white folks" are here as usual. They ought to be here, but where are the "brethren"? The absence of certain Negro leaders is really significant. It is the comment everywhere. Where is this one, and where is that one? "Not here this year," is the answer. "That's funny," say the little fellows, who always like to swear in with the big ones before the candidate is selected. Then comes the chorus: "I was for him all the time." But there is something lacking. There is a blank space here. It means something, and we do not know what that something can be.

It is known that the Negroes who can do things politically are not here. Of course, the delegates are here. But the "vote getters" are not here. Delegates may nominate, but the leaders who get the voters interested are not here. Something is being "cooked up" somewhere as sure as life. All around town the talk will not down.

About Friday we expect to see the fur begin to fly; maybe before Friday. At any rate, the absence of certain Negroes is certainly funny this year at the Republican national convention.

Political-1928

Party Affiliation.

EVERY EVENING
WILMINGTON, DEL.

MAY 1 8 1928

NEW STATUS OF THE AMERICAN NEGRO

An Era of Independent Political Action Seems Impending.

The editorial entitled "The Negro Looms Again in G. O. P. Affairs," which appeared in Every Evening Monday, April 30, was praised at the meeting of the West Side Playground and Community Association, at the Gilbert Presbyterian Church, Seventh and du Pont streets, on Wednesday night.

Attorney John W. Bird of this city, who practices law in Chester; Rev. William R. Rutledge, pastor of Gilbert Church, and Patrick W. Turner spoke of the editorial. "The Negro's political status is being taken seriously," said Mr. Bird. "It is a well-known fact that there would be many different tales told in the Republican party should the masses of Negroes vote elsewhere in certain states and cities."

Rev. Mr. Rutledge stated that the new Negro is more independent in political thinking, as well as otherwise, and that he will no longer be a slave to any one party, but will vote weighing the merits of the individual candidates and considering the issues at stake more seriously than ever before.

The meeting was well attended. Final reports on the recent Better Homes Campaign, which the association sponsored among Negroes of this city, were made. Mrs. Marie L. Jones, president of the association, who presided, stated that Secretary of Commerce Hoover was so pleased with the results of the campaign that he had asked her to head the effort again in 1929.

A social hour followed the meeting.

THE TRUTH WILL STAND

Ashburn, Ga., May 21, 1928.

Hon. B. J. Davis,
National Committeeman for Georgia.

Dear Brother: I just want to say a few words concerning our party in the state. We have a fine party and some good men and women, and we have some who do not stand by their word, and don't care what becomes of the party in the state, just so they throw Ben Davis. It seems to me that any man or woman who knows of the great handicap the party was under and B. J. Davis worked it out and got it safe, all men should be safe in the party, and along comes some persons who do nothing, who say nothing for the party until B. J. Davis taught them and started them out, and now they think they know more about the work than any other man. Just enough to tear up the party. I was one of the committee who voted for and helped elect B. J. Davis and Mrs. King, and I will furnish affidavits proving that all members voted solidly with me. I will go to the convention and prove it. All I can say to you is just go ahead. God will fight your battles and bring you out safely

Mr. Davis, I am with you. If you go up or down, Mr. Davis, I always have been with you and will continue with you. Mr. Davis, you watch the man who comes to your home and stays with you; he will not always do to trust. With this I thank you so much. I am,

Yours respectfully,
R. L. MARTIN.

Atlanta Ga
5-24-28

TIMES
ST. LOUIS, MO
MAY 2 9 1928

REGISTRATION OF NEGROES PROBLEM FOR G. O. P. HERE

Additional Names on Poll Books Might Hurt Judge Caulifield.

By A. G. BENESCH.

The decline here in the last seven years in the registered vote is being studied by leaders of both parties with a view of determining the advantages as well as disadvantages of placing thousands of additional names on the registration books for the August primary. Publicly the party heads insist they are anxious for the heaviest possible vote, but privately some of them see the danger of a heavy registration.

This is particularly true in Republican ranks, although such a statement probably will meet with stout denial by the more influential leaders. It is true, because of the negro situation, which gives promise of causing much uneasiness, not only in the coming primary but also in the November election campaign.

At this time it is estimated that there are possibly 12,000 to 18,000 unregistered negro voters, who, with the 30,000 already on the books, constitute a force that will have to be reckoned with, not only by Republicans but also by the Democrats. Ordinarily the negro vote is at least 85 per cent Republican in St. Louis, and it is one one of the important reasons why St. Louis has always been able to pile up its overwhelming G. O. P. majority.

Seek Vote for Caulfield.

Naturally the Republican organization wants that vote, especially if it will "perform" as it has performed in other elections, but the question right now is whether the organization can afford to bring out a big registration in advance of the primary in view of what may happen at that time.

It is no secret that the leaders here are committed to Judge Henry S. Caulfield in his race for the Republican nomination for Governor and that they have turned "thumbs down" on the candidacy of Lieut. Gov. Phil A. Bennett, who, it appears, is his chief opponent. The backers of Caulfield are cognizant of the fact that they must carry St. Louis for their candidate if he is to win and they are anxious to give him the Republican vote here but the big question they face now is whether they shall lend themselves to a move to get the negroes on the books in the coming primary.

If the leaders were sure that the negro vote would be for Caulfield they would have the books loaded down with legitimate registrants but there is some reason to believe that the negro may not "stay hitched" in this campaign. The negroes are not opposed to Judge Caulfield personally. They believe he is a high type of citizen who would make a good Governor, but they are extremely hesitant about jumping on the judge's bandwagon due it appears principally to the fact that Caulfield has the backing of the State administration.

Back in 1924 Baker was popular with the negroes in St. Louis and in the election campaign received a rousing reception when he addressed a large gathering of negroes in the Sixth Ward, presided over by Robert Scott, committeeman. A delegation waited on Baker at that time and submitted a list of questions to him touching on the welfare of the members of their race.

Grievance of Negroes.

Baker's answers at the time were so satisfactory that the negroes gave him a tremendous vote in St. Louis, the lead in the Sixth Ward being in excess of 4000. Gov. Baker won the election by 5872 votes, and the St. Louis negroes naturally take their share of credit for the victory. Four years of the Baker administration has convinced the negro that the Governor has not kept his word, J. E. Mitchell, editor of the Argus says.

The removal of Dr. N. B. Young as head of the Lincoln Institute at Jefferson City by a board of regents named by Gov. Baker has caused much criticism among the negroes and is being advanced as one of the reasons why some of these cannot support any candidate having the backing of the present State administration. The alleged brutal treatment of negroes under arrest is also used as an argument why State candidates with the Baker support should be defeated. tional convention, is among those urging Bennett's nomination.

Another matter of concern to the Republican leaders is the report that many of the negroes, particularly out-State, feel friendly to Al Smith's presidential candidacy, because of the fact that Ferdinand Martin was named a member of the Civil Service Commission in New York, and also because Tammany Hall has seen fit to create a separate organization for the negroes in that city and has given them considerable recognition. Martin visited Missouri several months ago and had a number of conferences with negro leaders.

It is dificult to believe that the negro vote in St. Louis would go to a Democratic candidate, but the Republican registration plans may move slowly if there is a possibility of the negro voting the Democratic ticket in St. Louis next November.

Sylacauga, Ala., News
Thursday, April 5, 1928

Hoover's Negro Order Is Scored

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Vigorous criticism of Secretary Hoover for his order scattering negro clerks of the census bureau thru all brances of that office so as to work alongside white clerks was voiced Monday by Representative Lamar Jeffers of the fourth district of Alabama, in discussing the order, which has resulted in hundreds of telephone calls of protest to members of congress.

"Judging from published accounts of this order, Secretary Hoover made this change to enhance the chances for the election of a negro in Ohio as a delegate for him at the Kansas City republican convention," said Mr. Jeffers. "This is the kind of politics that is of the worst possible character.

"Conditions at the census bureau were peaceful. The negroes were working in one section to themselves. Now, just so Hoover may have a chance to get a single delegate from Ohio these conditions are upset and the negroes are scattered throughout the entire census bureau to work side by side with white clerks. The salaries of the negro clerks are not increased, they give no more service to the government than they did before, but the desire of a negro candidate for a delegate up in Ohio to enhance his chances to go to the convention and vote for Hoover has resulted in this political order by Secretary Hoover which embarasses hundreds of white clerks in the census bureau. It is a disgraceful exhibition of what a man will do to attempt to realize a political ambition."

REPORTER
LaGrange Ga
MAY 17 1928

Hoover's Gift to Davis

Unless we misjudge southern sentiment, the testimony given before the senate campaign funds committee by Rush Holland, Hoover agent, that he gave $2,200 to Ben Davis, negro republican committeeman of Georgia, in addition to giving sums to other negro politicians in other states in the south, will effectively block whatever hope there may have been of a southern bolt to Hoover in case he is nominated.

There has been a good deal of talk of southerners bolting the democratic ticket in the event of Al Smith's nomination and voting for Hoover, who in more than one instance has shown himself to be a friend of the people of the south as well as of the people of every other section of the country. But the revelation of gifts by Hoover to the negro organizations in the south indicates that Hoover doesn't want any support from the negro republican factions. We do not make these remarks in a disapproving way. The chances are about perfect that Hoover would not have gained enough support from southern democrats, anyway, to have made any showing; and the natural thing for him to do, if he him for this action, but never were going to spend any money in the south, would be to spend it with any support for him from the republican factions, which hap- crats of the south.

pened to be negro factions, where he was assured of support.

It would be difficult to censure

Political-1928

Party Affiliation.

EVERY EVENING
WILMINGTON, DEL.

MAY 1 8 1928

NEW STATUS OF THE AMERICAN NEGRO

An Era of Independent Political Action Seems Impending.

The editorial entitled "The Negro Looms Again in G. O. P. Affairs," which appeared in Every Evening Monday, April 30, was praised at the meeting of the West Side Playground and Community Association, at the Gilbert Presbyterian Church, Seventh and du Pont streets, on Wednesday night.

Attorney John W. Bird of this city, who practices law in Chester; Rev. William R. Rutledge, pastor of Gilbert Church, and Patrick W. Turner spoke of the editorial. "The Negro's political status is being taken seriously," said Mr. Bird. "It is a well-known fact that there would be many different tales told in the Republican party should the masses of Negroes vote elsewhere in certain states and cities."

Rev. Mr. Rutledge stated that the new Negro is more independent in political thinking, as well as otherwise, and that he will no longer be a slave to any one party, but will vote weighing the merits of the individual candidates and considering the issues at stake more seriously than ever before.

The meeting was well attended. Final reports on the recent Better Homes Campaign, which the association sponsored among Negroes of this city, were made. Mrs. Marie L. Jones, president of the association, who presided, stated that Secretary of Commerce Hoover was so pleased with the results of the campaign that he had asked her to head the effort again in 1929.

A social hour followed the meeting.

THE TRUTH WILL STAND

Ashburn, Ga., May 21, 1928.

Hon. B. J. Davis,
National Committeeman for Georgia.

Dear Brother: I just want to say a few words concerning our party in the state. We have a fine party and some good men and women, and we have some who do not stand by their word, and don't care what becomes of the party in the state, just so they throw Ben Davis. It seems to me that any man or woman who knows the great handicap the party was under and B. J. Davis worked it out and got it safe, all men can see safe in the party, and along comes some persons who do nothing, who say nothing for the party until B. J. Davis taught them and started them out, and now they think they know more about the work than any other man. Just enough to tear up the party. I was one of the committee who voted for and helped elect B. J. Davis and Mrs. King, and I will furnish affidavits proving that all members voted solidly with me. I will go to the convention and prove it. All I can say to you is just go ahead. God will fight your battles and bring you out safely

Mr. Davis, I am with you. If you go up or down, Mr. Davis, I always have been with you and will continue with you. Mr. Davis, you watch the man who comes to your home and stays with you; he will not always do to trust. With this I thank you so much. I am,

Yours respectfully,
R. L. MARTIN.

Independent Atlanta Ga

5-27-28

TIMES
ST. LOUIS, MO.
MAY 2 9 1928

REGISTRATION OF NEGROES PROBLEM FOR G. O. P. HERE

Additional Names on Poll Books Might Hurt Judge Caulifield.

By A. G. BENESCH.

The decline here in the last seven years in the registered vote is being studied by leaders of both parties with a view of determining the advantages as well as disadvantages of placing thousands of additional names on the registration books for the August primary. Publicly the party heads insist they are anxious for the heaviest possible vote, but privately some of them see the danger of a heavy registration.

This is particularly true in Republican ranks, although such a statement probably will meet with stout denial by the more influential leaders. tI is true, because of the negro situation, which gives promise of causing much uneasiness, not only in the coming primary but also in the November election campaign.

At this time it is estimated that there are possibly 12,000 to 18,000 unregistered negro voters, who, with the 30,000 already on the books, constitute a force that will have to ge reckoned with, not only by Republicans but also by the Democrats. Ordinarily the negro vote is at least 85 per cent Republican in St. Iouis, and it is one one of the important reasons why St. Louis has always been able to pile up its overwhelming G. O. P. majority.

Seek Vote for Caulfield.

Naturally the Republican organization wants that vote, especially if it will "perform" as it has performed in other elections, but the question right now is whether the organization can afford to bring out a big registration in advance of the primary in view of what may happen at that time.

It is no secret that the leaders here are committed to Judge Henry S. Caulfield in his race for the Republican nomination for Governor and that they have turned "thumbs down" on the candidacy of Lieut. Gov. Phil A. Bennett, who, it appears, is his chief opponent. The backers of Caulfield are cognizant of the fact that they must carry St. Louis for their candidate if he i. to win and they are anxious o give him the Republican vote here but the big question they face now is whether they shall lend them selves to a move to get the negroe on the books in the coming primary.

If the leaders were sure that th negro vote would be for Caulfiel they would have the books loade down with legitimate registrants but there is some reason to believe that the negro may not "stay hitched" in this campaign. The negroe are not opposed to Judge Caulfiel personally. They believe he is a high type of citizen who woul make a good Governor, but the are extremely hesitant about jump ing on the judge's bandwagon du it appears principally to the fac that Caulfield has the backing o the State administration.

Back in 1924 Baker was popula with the negroes in St. Louis an in the election campaign receive a rousing reception when he ad dressed a large gathering of ne groes in the Sixth Ward, preside over by Robert Scott, committee man. A delegation waited o Baker at that time and submitted a list of questions to him touching on the welfare of the members of their race.

Grievance of Negroes.

Baker's answers at the time were so satisfactory that the negroes gave him a tremendous vote in St. Louis, the lead in the Sixth Ward being in excess of 4000. Gov. Baker won the election by 5872 votes. and the St. Louis negroes naturally take their share of credit for the victory. Four years of the Baker administration has convinced the negro that the Governor has not kept his word, J. E. Mitchell, editor of the Argus says.

The removal of Dr. N. B. Young as head of the Lincoln Institute at Jefferson City by a board of regents named by Gov. Baker has caused much criticism among the negroes and is being advanced as one of the reasons why some of these cannot support any candidate having the backing of the present State administration. The alleged brutal treatment of negroes under arrest is also used as an argument why State candidates with the Baker support should be defeated. tional convention, is among those urging Bennett's nomination.

Another matter of concern to the Republican leaders is the report that many of the negroes, particularly out-State, feel friendly to Al Smith's presidential candidacy, because of the fact that Ferdinand Martin was named a member of the Civil Service Commission in New York, and also because Tammany Hall has seen fit to create a separate organization for the negroes in that city and has given them considerable recognition. Martin visited Missouri several months ago and had a number of conferences with negro leaders.

It is dificult to believe that the negro vote in St. Louis would go to a Democratic candidate, but the Republican registration plans may move slowly if there is a possibility of the negro voting the Democratic ticket in St. Louis next November.

Sylacauga, Ala., News
Thursday, April 5, 1928

Hoover's Negro Order Is Scored

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Vigorous criticism of Secretary Hoover for his order scattering negro clerks of the census bureau thru all brances of that office so as to work alongside white clerks was voiced Monday by Representative Lamar Jeffers of the fourth district of Alabama, in discussing the order, which has resulted in hundreds of telephone calls of protest to members of congress.

"Judging from published accounts of this order, Secretary Hoover made this change to enhance the chances for the election of a negro in Ohio as a delegate for him at the Kansas City republican convention," said Mr. Jeffers. "This is the kind of politics that is of the worst possible character.

"Conditions at the census bureau were peaceful. The negroes were working in one section to themselves. Now, just so Hoover may have a chance to get a single delegate from Ohio these conditions are upset and the negroes are scattered throughout the entire census bureau to work side by side with white clerks. The salaries of the negro clerks are not increased, they give no more service to the government than they did before, but the desire of a negro candidate for a delegate up in Ohio to enhance his chances to go to the convention and vote for Hoover has resulted in this political order by Secretary Hoover which embarasses hundreds of white clerks in the census bureau. It is a disgraceful exhibition of what a man will do to attempt to r[illegible] political ambition."

REPORTER
La Grange Ga
MAY 1 1928

Hoover's Gift to Davis

Unless we misjudge southern sentiment, the testimony given before the senate campaign funds committee by Rush Holland, Hoover agent, that he gave $2,200 to Ben Davis, negro republican committeeman of Georgia, in addition to giving sums to other negro politicians in other states in the south, will effectively block whatever hope there may have been of a southern bolt to Hoover in case he is nominated.

There has been a good deal of talk of southerners bolting the democratic ticket in the event of Al Smith's nomination and voting for Hoover, who in more than one instance has shown himself to be a friend of the people of the south as well as of the people of every other section of the country. But the revelation of gifts by Hoover to the negro organizations in the south indicates that Hoover doesn't want any support except from the negro republican factions.

We do not make these remarks in a disapproving way. The chances are about perfect that Hoover would not have gained enough support from southern democrats, anyway, to have made any showing; and the natural thing for him to do, if he were going to spend any money in the south, would be to spend it with the republican factions, which happened to be negro factions, where he was assured of support.

It would be difficult to censure him for this action, but never less it will minimize the chances for any support for him from the democrats of the south.

Party Regularity the Issue

Party integrity is the issue and not the personality of Davis or Watson. Party regularity is greater than any man or set of men and must be preserved at any cost, or we will have no party.

Our government is a government by parties and our system of majority rule must be preserved or we will have no government. Our government in form is representative and the representatives chosen by the governed must reflect the views of the people, and not their own selfish ends. When representatives become greater than the people who created them they should be recalled.

The late state convention, assembled in Atlanta, chose a National Committeeman and Committeewoman and instructed their chosen representatives to nominate them and vote for them at Kansas City June 12, 1928, and these chosen representatives have no discretion except to carry out the expressed will of the convention. If they feel that they can not in good conscience carry out their instructions as honest men they should decline and let the constituted authority of the party select others who will carry out the views of the people who elected them. They have no right to set themselves up in place of the convention's choice, and undertake by cunning design or otherwise to defeat the will of the people.

The question of National Committeeman is no longer a question between Ben Davis and Joe Watson, but one of party honesty and authority. Will the people allow one man, for selfish and ulterior reasons, defeat the will of the convention?

This question was settled at Cleveland in 1924, when the irregular organization, headed by Mr. Phillips, was displaced by the regular organization headed by the lamented Henry Lincoln Johnson.

Under every rule of party regularity, Mr. Watson's fight is against the party organization. Mr. Davis is the incident and party authority is the target. The issue is: Is Joe Watson bigger than the Party? He, himself, nominated Davis for National Committeeman and voted to instruct himself to vote for him. A fight on the Party's nominee is a fight on the organization.

Let's forget Davis, and see what Mr. Watson is fighting for, and for whom he is fighting—he is fighting the party, and fighting for a place for himself. He is not fighting for party integrity, but fighting for a job for Uncle Joe. He confesses that if Mr. Davis had agreed to give him the secretaryship, at $250 per month, there would have been no fight. He is not fighting boss rule or incompetency, but fighting for a job. What he wants is a job for Joe and nothing less and he is so anxious to get a job for himself, he has ordered his daughter to get out of his way, so he will have a clear field to violate his instructions.

His fight is so much a fight on the party organization that he is driving over the state seeking to disrupt the party by advising the delegates not to attend a meeting called by the National Committeeman for the purpose of arranging for the trip to Kansas City. So determined is he to cause party strife that one of his allies has been to a white man and asked him to see if he could get the Central of Georgia Railroad to carry the Watson bolters, as they did not want to go the official route with the organization. It is the insurgents in the party that block party success at Washington. It was lilywhiteism that wrecked the party in 1921 in Georgia, and dear old Uncle Joe is working hand in glove with some of the same men who did so much to drive the Negro out of the party in 1912, 1922 and 1923, and who were put out themselves at Cleveland in 1924. It is the same old lily white crowd inside the organization using one or two Negroes to kill off the race in politics.

The $6,000 fund and other big money Uncle Joe is telling the delegates the National Committeeman handled is a malicious falsehood, manufactured by Brother Watson and he knows it. Why doesn't he tell how much money he got and what he did with it? It was reported that he was to be sent a large sum of money to handle the State Convention. If he got it, what did he do with it?

So this is a fight on the organization engineered by a few lily whites through two or three Negroes who are looking for something for themselves.

Let us save the Party. Let us maintain harmony and let those who can not abide by party instructions get out of the party, join the Democrats or be independent. It would have been far more manly for Mr. Watson to run against Mr. Davis for National Committeeman before the Convention than to embarrass his daughter by forcing her out of the race so he could bolt the party at the behest of the lily whites, who hate him in common with all other Negroes.

What has come over Uncle Joe and who is paying expenses or promising him money to pay the delegates' expenses to Kansas City, if they support him? God correct my old friend.

REPORTER

MAY 1928

Hoover's Gift to Davis

Unless we misjudge southern sentiment, the testimony given before the senate campaign funds committee by Rush Holland, Hoover agent, that he gave $2,200 to Ben Davis, negro republican committeeman of Georgia, in addition to giving sums to other negro politicians in other states in the south, will effectively block whatever hope there may have been of a southern bolt to Hoover in case he is nominated.

There has been a good deal of talk of southerners bolting the democratic ticket in the event of Al Smith's nomination and voting for Hoover, who in more than one instance has shown himself to be a friend of the people of the south as well as of the people of every other section of the country. But the revelation of gifts by Hoover to the negro organizations in the south indicates that Hoover doesn't want any support except from the negro republican factions.

We do not make these remarks in a disapproving way. The chances are about perfect that Hoover would not have gained enough support from southern democrats, anyway to have made any showing; and the natural thing for him to do, if he were going to spend any money in the south, would be to spend it with the republican factions, which happened to be negro factions, where he was assured of support.

It would be difficult to censure him for this action, but nevertheless it will minimize the chances for any support for him from the democrats of the south.

PERRY HOWARD WHIPS FACTION IN COURT FIGHT

Jackson, Miss.—(ANP)—Efforts to restrain Perry W. Howard and his associates from holding a primary, on the part of George L. Sheldon and his group of "lily-whites," went for naught here a few days ago, when the supreme court reversed and remanded the injunction case from Forrest County in which Chancellor Dale had enjoined Attorney Howard's faction.

Judge Smith, delivering the opinion of the court, declared that he concurred in the feeling that the courts had no jurisdiction to interfere in the procedure of political party machinery under the primary election laws, even where the rights of the members of the party may be infringed upon.

While there are rumors here that the Sheldon faction, which has also elected delegates, will contest the right of Attorney Howard's delegates for seats at the National G. O. P. Convention, it is the belief here that Howard will again emerge victorious.

THE POLITICAL AFTERMATH ON AUBURN AVENUE

By Jesse O. Thomas

Negroes of Atlanta did not participate in the recent "white primary," which was conducted for the purpose of nominating certain officials; the Supreme Court's decision relative to the status of a "white primary" to the contrary notwithstanding. Since they did not take part before or during the primary, some of the results thereof have made them most active vocally since.

At the dedicatory exercises of the Carrie Steele Orphanage, Captain A. T. Walden, master of ceremony, in presenting Mr. Hansell, chief of construction, stated that if Negroes had a chance to participate in the primary they would reelect him to his present office. His fairness and interest manifested in connection with the building of this orphanage earned the gratitude and confidence of Negroes. There was much regret expressed because of his failure to be renominated by the primary. Quite a different feeling was expressed with regard to the city electrician. Some years ago an attempt was made to make Auburn Avenue "A Great White Way." Property owners all along the street on either side signified their desire to have the "white lights" by agreeing to pay for them themselves. A committee headed by Heman Perry is alleged to have waited on the city electrician for the purpose of getting his o. k. It is said that he advised the committee that as long as he was city electrician "it would never happen." Several Negroes have applied for examination and license to operate a moving picture machine. Word reached Auburn Avenue that the city electrician's attitude toward licensed Negro electricians was the same as expressed toward "The Great White Way." When word came that the city electrician had been defeated there was no wailing nor gnashing of teeth on the avenue. They are not sure of what the attitude of his successor will be toward them, but they are reasonably sure that it can not be any more anti-social.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation

Republican.

Our State Convention

Last week we predicted a harmonious State Convention. So far as lay in our ability, we guaranteed a peaceful, quiet gathering of Republicans, where the roll would be called every time it was demanded, or asked for; that every delegate, it mattered not how humble he was, would have a hearing and the opportunity to state his position on every question coming before the Convention. The harmony and good will prevailing throughout the session was far beyond our most sanguine expectations. There was not one instance of show of temper; no insulting remarks were uttered by any delegate; no delegate sought to hurt the feelings of the other; and, in fact, there was but little differences in opinion. As we remember, from looking upon the Convention, we do not recall more than two nays being cast against any question, or motion coming before the Convention. The Convention was practically unanimous on every question.

On the question of electing delegates, they were chosen unanimously. On the committee's report on the permanent organization for the next two years, there were only two dissenting votes. On the election of National Committeeman, the Convention was unanimous. There was no objection, whatever, to the report of the Committee on Credentials. Just as the committee reported, the Convention accepted the roll unanimously.

There was a little difference between two gentlemen on the Committee on Platform and Resolutions on the tariff plank, but this was a difference without distinction. It proved to be one of the most friendly bouts among those who differed, and was in the best of spirit.

The convention was largely attended, and but few absentees were among the 232 delegates entitled to seats in the Convention. There was a larger number of alternates than in any previous convention. The number of white voters was much larger than in any Republican Convention that we have attended in several years. Out of the 232 delegates there were 89 white delegates, and they did not come from the mountain counties, as usual, but a good sprinkling of them were from every section of the state, and they showed a degree of intelligence and progress that does not usually characterize the white men who attend our meetings.

The Republicans of Georgia can congratulate themselves for the character of men who attended the Convention, and for the peace and harmony which prevailed. No question of race or religion was raised; it was simply the spirit of republicanism controlling the deliberations of the Convention.

The result was happy and nobody left the Convention dissatisfied or displeased. Even those who were unseated, or denied seats, left in good humor, for the reason, they had had their day in court and the opportunity to express themselves. In fact, we never saw a better convention.

As a rule, on Presidential years there is great confusion, much excitement, and feeling runs high among the delegates, in supporting their preferences for President. But, in this Convention there were no evidences of selfishness, or of the tricks of gone by days. There was nobody from outside the state to push the interests of their preference. There wer no outside influences attempting to control the Convention, or elect delegates favorable to any particular candidate. The people were left free and unmolested to act as their consciences dictated, without ulterior influence, or the hope of selfish reward. They acted freely of their own volition, with the consciousness that they were doing their duty, and licensed their chosen representatives largely to vote as would best serve the interest of the party and good government at Kansas City.

Did Colored Chicagoans Boo "Bill" Thompson and Roscoe?

Associated Press Said They Did

Windy City Race Papers Silent--Why?

According to an Associated Press dispatch published below, taken from the Louisville Times. Colored voters ih Chicago, determined to run a Colored man for Congress, booed and hissed Mayor Thompson and Col. Roscoe Conkling Simmons when they tried to advocate a white man over the Colored canidate.

Mayor Thompson is called the "Negro's friend," because he has dared appoint Colored men of ability to jobs and positions thought to be for whites only. 3-17-28

Col. Simmons, formerly of Louisville, is an important wheel in Thompson's machine, and has a hi-fa-lu-tin job of $5000 a year himself. Both are popular with Colored Chicago, but, according to the following dispatch, not popular enough to stifle the race pride of a number of Colored people who prefer a Negro representative to a white one, however fine he might be. The News has tried to learn the facts about this matter, because it is somtehing new under the sun for Negroes to boo and hiss men who are advocating a white man over a Negro.

In Louisville, last fall, white speakers in Negro churches and meetings denounced Negro men who had proven all their lives to be race lovers and interested in the uplift of their race—but these white were not booed or hissed, applauded.

So Negroes hissing white men, Colored too, who merely advocate a white man over a Negro, is too good

But The News could learn nothing from Colored sources. The Associated Negro Press was silent, the Chicago Defender, which claims to be for the Negro above all else, doesn't say a word. Why. This is the Associated Press dispatch, read it and weep—or Laugh:

Chicago, March 12 (AP)—Indications that Congressman Martin B. Madden, Republican chairman of the House Finance Committee, faces a stiff fight for re-election were given last night at a Negro political rally when Mayor Thompson, speaking in his behalf, was booed and hissed into silence.

The Mayor addressed a meeting in the First Congregational District, four-fifths of the population of which is Negro, urging the support of the Governor Small-Thompson faction candidates in the State election. Maddden is opposed by William L. Dawson, Negro.

As Thompson urged Madden's re-election he was greeted by stamping of feet, hisses and booes from the 2,500 persons in the hall. The din increased until the Mayor was obliged to stop. It was several minutes before he could continue.

Roscoe Simmons, party worker, followed the Mayor and he, too, was howled down when he mentioned Madden's candidacy.

Thompson precipitated the hubbub when, after calling attention to Madden's record, he said: "A Negro might go to Congress and after serving there for twenty years might become chairman of the powerful Finance Committee—perhaps he might—perhaps."

Simmons said that Negroes had supported white men like Lincoln and that there was no reason to oppose Madden because he is white.

Mrs. Fayerweather Again G. O. P. Delegate

At a perfunctory meeting which lasted 15 minutes, Mrs. Louise M. Fayerweather, vice-president of the Kings County Colored Republican organization, was elected an alternate delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention in Kansas City, opening June 12. Seven delegates were chosen and seven alternates-at-large were chosen. The committee met in Manhattan.

Mrs. Fayerweather was honored with this position four years ago. She is a former treasurer of the Empire State Federation of Women's Clubs and has given much of her time and money to civic and charitable causes.

HUFSTETLER IS ELECTED DELEGATE IN THE SEVENTH

F. P. Rodgers, Jr., of Marietta, Is Elected as Alternate in Stormy District Meeting Held at Rome, Go., Saturday.

By C. E. WILLIAMS, Secy.

The biggest surprises to date in Georgia Republican circles, in the present campaign for delegates to Republican National Convention, which meets at Kansas City, Mo.,

June 12, next, came Saturday, March 10, at Rome, Ga., when a combination of seven white and ten colored Republican members of the Seventh Congressional District Convention overthrew the faction headed by United States Marshal L. H. Crawford—defeated him for delegate to the Kansas City Convention and elected Mr. A. T. Atwater chairman of the District Executive Committee.

The majority of the delegates expressed their disapproval of the method used by U. S. Marshal L. H. Crawford in his efforts to control party affairs in the Seventh District, especially his constant meddling with recommendations for appointments made by various county organizations. Sentiment is against office holders controlling party affairs in this district.

Mr. R. P. Hufstetler, of Murray County, was elected delegate to represent the Seventh Congressional District in next National Republican Convention at Kansas City Mr. Hufstetler is a member of the present Georgia Legislature; he is serving his second term and has made an excellent record. He is a lifelong Republican.

Mr. F. P. Rogers, Jr., of Cobb County, the well-known business man, was elected alternate.

Mr. A. T. Atwater, editor of the Rome Enterprise, was elected chairman of the Seventh Congressional District Executive Committee. Mr. C. E. Williams, of Marietta, Cobb County, was elected secretary of the Seventh Congressional District Executive Committee.

Resolutions: lauding the achievements of the Coolidge administration; instructed for Secretary Herbert Hoover; commending the leadership of Hon. B. J. Davis, National Committeeman, and approving the action of state convention in electing Mrs. Sarah King, of Albany, Ga., as National Committeewoman, were adopted by the convention.

The following is the line-up by counties of the contending forces:

Crawford

Bartow	3
Chatooga	1
Floyd	1
Haralson	4
Paulding	1
Walker	2
Whitfield	2
Dade (not represented.)
Gordon (one absent.)
Total	14

Hufstetler-Atwater

Catoosa	1
Chatooga	1
Cobb	2
Floyd	2
Gordon	1
Murray	3
Paulding	1
Polk	3
Walker	2
Whitfield	1
Total	17

Lemon Faction Wins Out At State Meeting

Scott-Daniels Crowd Ousted As the Regular Chatham County Organization

NEW COMMITTEEWOMEN

Proceedings Show B. J. Davis Comitteeman, in Complete Control of State

After a sharp fight before the credentials committee of the State Republican Convention, held at Atlanta in the Fulton County courthouse, Saturday, March 3rd, the delegates headed by J. G. Lemon were seated as the regular delegation from Chatham county. There was not a [illegible] vote in the committee.

The contest which had been carried up from Chatham county from the split in the county convention of February 4th, when the Fields-Lemon faction contended that had not been accorded a fair deal in the regular convention proceedings. The efforts to participate in the convention by the Lemon-Fields faction was ignored, followed by a person asault-upon Fields, floor leader, by Dr. B. W. S. Daniels, following which the Fields adherents proceeded to hold the convention, in their place, on the courthouse floor, electing J. G. Lemon, county chairman; J. M. Ferrechee, vice-chairman; Duncan Pringle, secretary; and Henry Sage, treasurer. A large county executive committee and delegates to the Atlanta convention were also elected.

The State convention was composed of abot 250 delegates from all over the state of Georgia, representing the most prominent business and professional men of the race, besides some reprsentative white men in the Republican organization. The proceedings were entriely orderly and showed Benjamin J. Davis, National Committeeman, to be fully in control of the party in Georgia. He was roundly applauded for his untiring energy and his marvelous skill, and the delegates to the National Convention were instructed to vote for him "first, last and always."

Things did not go so well with the National Committeewoman. Mrs. George S. Williams, for she was defeated by Mrs. Sara Watson King of Albany in a one-sided contest, in which Mrs. King received the full support of the committee on permanent organization and the state organization.

The new county organization plans to prosecute a campaign and registration and general progress for the party in Chatham.

NEWS
CHICAGO, ILL.

MAR 26 1928

CHARGE LASH IN NEGRO POLITICS

Dawson for Congress Leaders Say Whip Is Used by Crowe Faction.

Thompson-Crowe forces are using "the political slave driver's lash" to terrorize man and woman voters in the Negro districts on the south side, it is asserted in resolutions adopted by the Women's Dawson for Congress club at its meeting place, 3517 Indiana avenue.

The club is active espousing the cause of a Negro congressman against Congressman Martin B. Madden in the 1st district and is working for the nomination by the republicans of William L. Dawson. The women also are spreading their energies into an attack all along the line on the Thompson-Crowe machine in the Negro section.

Text of Resolutions.

The resolutions recite:

"Organized as we are to prevent the election of the vice lords who dominate our 'black belt,' we are indeed grateful for the help we are receiving from The Daily News in letting the world know that the decent, law-abiding citizens of our section are not in favor of a wide-open town; that we are united in our determination to end it by doing our bit to help drive the grafters in the state and county out of power on April 10 by voting the Deneen ticket from top to bottom. That we will also use our votes to put a black man in congress and a negro woman in the Kansas City republican national convention; that we are pledged to elect high class, Christian men as ward committeemen of the 2d and 3d wards.

"The political slave driver's lash is being used in our district to terrorize man and woman voters. This is being done by employes of the Thompson-Crowe forces. Money is being poured out like water to buy and bribe voters, lies, threats and intimidations of every kind are uttered every night to confuse and bewilder the new and timid voter. On top of all this, our race newspapers are silent, and refuse to help in this war for civic, righteous and political emancipation."

Yates Issues Statement.

Richard Yates, candidate for reelection as congressman at large, has issued a statement to the republicans of Illinois, in which he says:

"I am again a candidate for congressman-at-large. For ten years you have conferred that high honor upon me. You know that in it all I have kept the faith.

"My record is an open book. Every pledge, express or implied, I have ever given has been fully redeemed. I have never let the sun go down, upon any unanswered letter, or appeal from any soldier, any widow, any farmer, any wage earner, any business man or any other citizen, suffering from any injustice or delay. I have given my vote and voice to every bill for woman suffrage, for temperance, for farm relief, and for flood control—and always for economy and tax reduction.

"Through it all I have voted for 'America First.'

"In other words, while I am not for war, I am for suffcient army and navy to furnish adequate defense, and to protect Americans everywhere.

"I am anxious to be again one of those two nominees; if nominated I will devote all possible effort to the campaign; if not nominated I will work and speak for the two nominated, day and night."

Dinner for Rathbone.

A dinner in honor of Congressman at Large Henry R. Rathbone will be given tomorrow evening at the Hamilton club by members of the club and their friends. Robert M. McMurdy, former president of the Illinois State Bar association, is chairman of the committee in charge Alexander Fyfe, former chairman of the Cook county republican central committee and commissioner of Lincoln park, is in charge of table arrangements. Congressman Rathbone was president of the club in 1916-1917, during the Hughes-Wilson presidential campaign and at the time the country entered the world war.

Olson Indorses Juul.

The candidacy of Representative Roy Juul in the 31st district has been indorsed by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court in the following letter:

"I have learned that you intend to stand for re-election, and I am glad to hear it. I want to congratulate you upon the record you have made in the legislature. I noticed the Legislative Voters' league said that you were:

"'An industrious and well equipped member who gave proof of possessing decided legislative ability and courage; he took an unusually active part in the work of the house for a first-termer, both in committee and on the floor; voted independently and made an excellent record.'

"I think this statement of the Legislative Voters' league is the opinion of all who know you personally, and know of your work in the legislature. I hope the citizens of the 31st district will learn of this excellent work and will return you to the legislature.'

Berry Wins Support.

Henry P. Berry has been indorsed by the 32d ward regular democratic organization for the democratic nomination for state representative in the 23d district, according to an announcement by Joseph F. Higgins, ward committeeman. Berry was born in the 32d ward and is a graduate of St. Viator's college near Kankakee. He has been secretary to Ald. Joseph H. Smith of the 32d ward for ten years.

Political - 1928

Republican.

Party Affiliation.

Alleged 'Bossism' Of Republican Leaders In 19th and 21st A. D.'s Stirring Negro Voters To Wrath

New York, N. Y.

Feb. 25, 1928.

Charge Grenthal With Attempt To Sacrifice Alderman Moore In Last Election and Are Resolved To Establish Negro Leaders

Announcements in the daily papers that Assemblyman Abraham Grenthal and Robert Conklin, Republican leaders in the 19th and 21st Assembly Districts, respectively, had agreed upon naming the Rev. Richard M. Bolden as delegate to the Republican National Convention, has aroused considerable speculation among Negro members of the County Committee from those districts, who declare that they have not been consulted in the matter of selecting the delegate.

The Rev. Mr. Bodlen, chief pastor of First Emmanuel Church, 105 West 130th street, one of the best known Negro ministers in Harlem and once a candidate for the Assembly, is not objected to person- [illegible] bers of the Com- [illegible] ng [illegible] refuse submit to [illegible] ination [illegible] atter of dis [illegible] ion of [illegible] ronage.

Grenthal the "Boss."

Members of the County Committee declare that the naming of Mr. Bolden is being done by Leader Grenthal alone, as Conklin thinks his district is quiet and satisfied and he has agreed to let Grenthal have the settling of the matter.

And this has stirred the colored voters of the 19th to indignation, as a tabulated survey of the vote cast in the last elecion shows plainly that the election of Fred R. Moore to the Board of Alder- las, Mrs. Harriet Cater, Miss Omelia McDermotte, Jack Carter Geo. Greenley, G. H. Hicks, Miss Evelyn Lancy, Miss Addie Taitt Miss Ethel Strickland, Jack Dabney, Dr. Girod Peckens, Richard Moore, Mrs. Blanche Conaway Miss Carmen Nunez son, Democrat, for Aldermanic Board, were practically the same.

Knifed By Whites.

It is generally believed that this was a result of trading between the white captains in those districts, on the basis of a vote for Masterson winning a vote for Grenthal, and vice versa. Another report, well authenticated, is that in at least one instance a colored man was put on a weekly stipend by a Republican and sent into these districts to tell the Republican voters that Moore did not have a chance and it would be useless to vote for him.

To lend weight to this charge, the voting in the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 7th, 8th, 11th, 12th, 14th, 17th and 19th election districts in which Masterson had a majority over Moore, showed that Grenthal had practically the same majority over Hall, his Negro Democratic opponent for the Assembly. And in the 18th and 24th election districts, where the Negro vote is of larger proportion, Masterson's was vote cut down more nearly to a parity with Moore's.

Comparing The Vote.

As a result, in the districts of the 19th Assembly District incorporated in the Aldermanic district, Grenthal's majority over Hall was 2,135, while the Moore plurality was only 470. This represented the vote in thirty districts, located in the 19th Assembly District. But, by comparison, from eight Aldermanic election districts, located in the 13th Assembly District, the plurality for Moore was 845, nearly twice as much, giving him a total majority of 1,315.

Another comparison shows that in the thirty-two election districts of the 19th Assembly District, and in the eight districts from the 13th, the vote for Municipal Court Judges was more evenly balanced. Judges Davies and Crane, Republicans, were given 4,739 and 4,730 respectively, in the 19th, and 1,442 and 1,344 in the 13th, as against 3,928 and 3,849 in the 19th, and 768 and 770 in the 13th, for their Democratic opponents, Lewis and Sullivan.

This indicates clearly that while the white Republicans split their ballots to defeat the Negro Republican, the same vote was cast intact for the white Republicans. And, on the other hand, that Negro Republicans in their election districts, were loyal and true to the party ticket, notwithstanding that the Democratic candidate for the Assembly was a Negro, Attorney George E. Hall.

Neglects Negro Alderman.

It is remarked that since the election, Leader Grenthal appears to have neglected consulting Alderman Moore put his foot down derman Moore. One reason given is that Alderman Moore put his foot down on the canvassing of his district by political workers for the selling of tickets and advertising space in consideration of special favors desired or to be gotten. The Alderman insisted that taking care of the interest of his clients did not involve requiring them to contribute to this or that proposition, under practical compulsion, but the leader, it is said, though there was no reason why it should not be done.

Under the previous party leader, party patronage was fairly evenly distributed, including the employing of a colored girl as secretary to the Asemblyman. Under the present leadership, the Assemblyman's secretary is a white girl.

Negro Republicans will make a determined fight for Negro leadership

Littleton Issues Open Challenge To Republican 'Boss'

Fort Worth, Texas.—A statewide mass meeting of Republican voters in San Antonio, to test the sentiment on whether the Texas delegation to the National Republican Convention should be instructed or uninstructed, was proposed today by C. C. Littleton, chairman of the Republican state committee, with headquarters here.

Littleton, Texas

The proposal of Littleton is an open challenge to the forces of R. B. Creager of Brownsville, who are attempting to send a delegation to Kansas City instructed for Herbert Hoover as Republican nominee for the presidency. While Littleton is not fighting the nomination of Hoover, he is contending that the Texas delegation should go to the convention unhampered by strings of instructions.

3-13-28

In his challenge Littleton declares he firmly believes that the majority of Texas Republicans favor an uninstructed delegation, and he asserts that if the proposed statewide mass meeting votes conclusively that it favors instruction for Hoover, he is willing to bow to its edict and work for the nomination of the secretary of commerce. On the other hand, Littleton asks that, should the meeting vote for an uninstructed delegation, Creager and his faction adhere to the wishes of the majority.

Such a plan, in the opinion of Littleton, would bring harmony to the party in this state, and would make for a greater and stronger Republican party.

ARKANSAS BLACKS HOLD STATE MEET; FORM G. O. P. BODY

Little Rock, Ark.—(ANP)—The Arkansas State Republican Club was organized here Tuesday by Scipio A. Jones when more than five hundred representatives from 45 counties gathered at the Mosaic temple.

The organization has been declared "one with which anyone who believes in the principles of the Republican party can affiliate. It grew out of the feeling that Negroes were being excluded from taking any active part in the workings of the party in the state. Lily-whiteism was assailed by every speaker and the organization went on record as opposing the candidacy of Attorney Wallace Townsend for the federal judgeship of the Eastern District of Arkansas.

Norfolk Journal and Guide 3-10-28

It was brought out at the meeting, that if the lily-whites refuse to give the colored Republicans recognition, the state club plans to send delegates to the national convention and there demand recognition.

The organization was addressed by Oscar DePriest, Chicago, Alderman T. J. Fleming, Cleveland, Grand Exalted Ruler J. Finley Wilson, Washington, D. C., and Dr. J. T. Hill. Hot Springs.

PERRY HOWARD TAKES CHARGE OF G. O. P. FIGHT

Goes To Mississippi To Lead In Battle Against "Lily Whites"

Special to Journal and Guide

Washington, D. C., March 6—Perry W. Howard, Republican national committee for Mississippi, left for Jackson, Mississippi, Monday night, to assume active charge of the fight against "lily whites" in Mississippi where court action is pending against the regular Republican organization, of which he is the head.

Norfolk Journal and Guide 3-10-28

Jackson, Miss, March 6—A motion to dissolve a temporary injunction restraining the Republican state executive committee from holding conventions on grounds of irregularity is scheduled for hearing before Chancellor T. Price Dale in Hattiesburg on March 8.

This temporary injunction was granted February 25, upon the motion of a group of 'lily whites' headed by former Governor George L. Sheldon of Nebraska, who is now a resident of this state. The defendants were given notice of the court action.

Chancellor Dale refused to modify the injunction to allow the holding of beat and county conventions on March 1 and 3 when Judge J. Morgan Stevens and District Attorney J. H. Howie, of Jackson, and United States Attorney John H. Cook, of Clarksdale, representing the defendants, appeared before him. Bond of the complainants was raised from $1,000 to $10,000 by agreement.

The defendants filed their answer to the bill last Friday, denying the charges of the "lily whites."

Defendants' Answer

In their answer the defendants made the counter charge "that the real conspirators in this case are the complainants themselves, who pretend at present to be in sympathy with the tenets and doctrines of the Republican party and who have conspired together to obtain, if possible, control of the party machinery and to dominate and control the committees, state and county, of the Republican party and to destroy the only legally constituted Republican party of Mississippi by planning to ask a state court of Mississippi for injunctive relief in this cause and by obtaining from the presiding chancellor of this court an injunction without notice to any of these defendants at at a time when they knew that these defendants could not possibly give five days' notice to dissolve said injunction before March 1, 1928, the time when, under perfectly lawful notice and call, beat conventions were to be held to elect delegates to county convention on March 3."

Gazette

LITTLE ROCK

ARKANSAS

FEB 26 1928

Negro Mass Meeting.—A mass meeting of negroes will be held at the Mosaic temple auditorium at noon tomorrow, it was announced by Scipio A. Jones, Little Rock, negro attorney and leader of the negro Republicans of the state. Leading negroes from various parts of the state will attend. Several nationally known politicians, who are now at Hot Springs, have been invited to address the meeting and to help in formulating a program for the organization of negro Republicans for the presidential election. Among them are Oscar DePriest, former alderman of Chicago; Louis Anderson, alderman of Chicago; John R. Hawkins, president of the Prudential bank, Washington, D. C.; Thomas J. Fleming, Cleveland attorney and member of the City Council; Charles Jackson, negro politician of Chicago.

Chancellor Rules Against Howard's Secret Caucuses

Hattiesburg, Miss.—(ANP)—Perry Howard, Republican leader in Mississippi, has been restrained for "alleged unlawful manipulation of the state Republican party in Mississippi" by Chancellor Dale. The chancellor ruled "that courts of equity have no right to intervene with actions of political parties when the question involved rests on party rule or custom, but in the present case, where an alleged violation of the statutes is involved, the court may lend its power to prevent such violations."

The case is without precedent in Mississippi, but it is said that Chancellor Dale's ruling is upheld in three of four other states. Perry Howard, assistant United States attorney-general, is chairman of the Republican state committee now in power in Mississippi, and the opposing faction alleges, in an affidavit on which the restraining order is based, that the "Howard group is violating the law by holding secret caucuses and naming delegates to the county and state conventions without properly advertising the dates for elections."

ADVERTISER

Forsyth Ga

MAR 1 1928

COLORED REPUBLICANS HOLD MEETING IN MACON

The negro republicans of the Sixth congressional district held a meeting in Macon Thursday, February 23. According to reports by local delegates the meeting was not without a few stormy features, but differences of opinion soon gave way to harmony. A feature which was stressed at the convention was that the party as represented there was advocating a principle irrespective of party lines. It was the consensus of opinion that the best men should be supported for office regardless of their affiliation and that right should come before that which was merely political.

Delegates to the national convention in Kansas City were elected as follows: Julius Wright, Sol Clements, with Prof. Geo. Drake of Thomaston as alternate. Dr. A. M. Wilkinson of Griffin was elected district chairman and Walter Reed of Macon secretary.

TAMPA FLA., TRIBUNE.

MAR 7 1928

Fraudulent Election of Georgia Delegate Charged

ATLANTA, March 6.—(A.P.)—Charges that proceedings which elected the fifth district Republican delegate and his alternate to the national Republican convention Saturday were fraudulent, will be heard in Fulton superior court here March 10, under a restraining order issued today.

Frank A. Doughman, well known Atlanta lawyer charged in a petition for injunction before Judge V. B. Moore, that his objection to allegedly illegal tactics by a fifth district faction was overruled from the chair of the fifth district convention.

He declared that the fifth district meeting, which followed the regular state convention session here was illegally called in that certain votes were arbitrarily excluded and that the usual proceedings of calling the meeting by courthouse notices was not complied with.

He named A. T. Walden and William Driskell, negro chairman and secretary respectively of the district convention as defendants.

Winston-Salem Sentinel and Herald
Friday, March 30, 1928

NORTHERN AGENTS TO PUSH MEMPHIS PROBE

Washington, March 27.—Unprejudiced agents of the Department of Justice from northern districts will conduct the investigation into charges that Bon Church, negro Republican leader in Tennessee, sought to obtain $2,400 from G. H. Poole for appointment as postmaster in Memphis.

Believing that agents from southern districts may be unable to conduct an unbiased inquiry because of racial prejudice or political affiliations, the Justice department is preparing to send outside agents into the field for a thorough investigation.

Additional data on the case was furnished the Department of Justice today by the Postoffice department, but offiicals of each department declined to disclose the nature of the new material.

The Justice department does not contemplate any move in the case until the bureau investigation is complete.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
Tuesday, March 27, 1928

In Tennessee, Too

The Commercial-Appeal of Saturday tells of charges made in connection with the postmastership at Memphis that read very much like the charges that were made two years ago in connection with postmasterships in Georgia. G. Tom Taylor, acting postmaster at the Memphis office until March 8, when the new postmaster was named, said that Bob Church, the Negro Republican boss of Memphis, had demanded $1,000 of his salary each year in return for the appointment.

George H. Poole, former United States commissioner, who was a candidate for the office, said that Church had demanded $2,800 from him for the office and in addition had demanded the right to dominate the office once it had been filled.

One of the sub-headings in the Commercial-Appeal's story says, somewhat sardonically, "Expect Washington to Act." We Georgians have no desire to tell Memphians anything so shocking as that there is no St. Nicholas, but it might not be harmful to disillusion them about Washington acting in postmastership scandals. Washington had all the opportunity it wanted to act upon in Virginia and in Georgia and it has been as quiet about it as Mr. Mellon was about the $50,000 of Sinclair Liberty bonds tendered to him.

In Georgia, postmasterships were sold right and left. The postoffice department or the department of justice sent men down here to gather the information and they secured any number of affidavits. The Telegraph printed the contents of those affidavits and nobody disputed their truth. The explanation was made that the cases could not be prosecuted because the "gifts" were campaign contributions. Technically, perhaps, they were, but actually they were nothing less than barter and sale of postoffices.

In Virginia, Bascom Slemp engaged in the same sort of practice. Slemp's letter to a Republican leader advising him not to promise an applicant anything until he had "contributed" $100 to the Republican campaign fund was produced in the senate. It indicated more clearly than anything else that the Republican leaders of the South hold the sale of postoffices to be one of the legitimate grafts arising from tenure of power.

Florence, S. C., News Review
Wednesday, March 28, 1928

AFFIDAVITS SAY NEGRO OFFERED TO SELL OFFICE

Church Of Tenn. Charged With Attempt To Trade Postmastership

WASHINGTON, March 26. (AP)—Agents of the department of justice have been ordered into the field to investigate charges that Bob Church, negro Republican of Tennessee, offered to sell the Memphis postmastership to G. H. Poole for $2,400.

The charges were borne in affidavits from Poole submitted today to Postmaster General New by I. J. Harwood, Republican leader of West Tennessee. The postmaster general immediately forwarded them to the department of justice with a request for action.

Before the day was out, Attorney General Sargent ordered special investigators to make a thorough inquiry into the charges with the view to prosecution if the facts warranted.

Postmaster General New expressed surprise at the charges, declaring that never before had there been any reason to suspect Church's motives in recommending postmasters. Church was described as a Yale graduate with independent means through inheritance from his father who was a real estate operator.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

The Solid South Broken--Rift Upon the Rock of Race Prejudice

The solidity of the South has been based upon race prejudice and political intolerance and not on exact justice and humanity among men, for 60 years, on race hatred and not love of humanity. The South today is as much devoted to race hatred and political intolerance as it was to slavery in 1856, when the Republican party was organized for the avowed purpose of abolishing slavery under God. God raised up Lincoln to emancipate his people from chattle slavery, and he has called Herbert Hoover from the plow to free the South from moral cowardice and intellectual slavery; from race prejudice and political intolerance.

The campaign which just ended, in the most glorious victory of the people without regard to politics is a solemn warning to the South that it must agree with every other section of the country to a race and political policy which preaches and practices absolute freedom of speech, press, religion and the right to vote for all men without regard to color or faith. The South must agree to and practice absolute economic and political equality for all the people without regard to race or color.

The day of race hatred and intolerance has passed, and the political switch of North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Texas, Oklahoma and Kentucky is an unmistakable sign of the times. The breaking of the Solid South ushers in a new and progressive era and the Reactionary South had as well set its sail to catch the passing breeze.

In our home state the Democratic campaign was pitched solely upon the ground of Negro elimination, and the Anti-Smith Democrats pitched their campaign upon the ground of obscuring the Negro politically and argued to Mr. Mann that if the Negro were obscured they would carry Georgia for Hoover. The Negro, out of his love for the Republican party and his faith in Herbert Hoover, agreed to actual obscurity to give the lily-whites and the Anti-Smith Democrats the opportunity to put over their program.

Their campaign was a program of abuse and denunciation of the Negro, with every evidence that there was a strong effort being made to keep the Negro from voting for Hoover, in spite of the fact that they were pretending to carry the state for Hoover.

The Democrats were telling the people, if Hoover were elected, "Black Ben Davis" and "Yaller Mamie Williams" would be the bosses and control the situation.

The Anti-Smith Democrats and lily-whites to counteract Democratic propaganda were telling the people that Mr. Hoover and southern Manager Mann had proposed to reorganize the South on a lily-white basis if elected, and had promised that Georgia would never be afflicted with another Negro National Committeeman and National Committeewoman; that they were in sympathy with the South; but in spite of all these falsehoods and misrepresentations the Solid South was broken and the work of the demagogue race hater and political intolerant was given a deathly blow from which it will never recover.

Mr. Hoover carried six Southern states and in the language of The Georgian, broke the Solid South and liberated the people from political slavery and intolerance.

In accordance with God's plan Hoover carried 40 states and Al Smith 8; Smith carrying six Southern states—Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina; and two Eastern States, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Smith received 87 electoral votes, the smallest number ever given any Democratic candidate for president; Hoover took 444 electoral votes, the largest number ever given any presidential candidate in the history of the nation.

Four years ago Davis carried Georgia by 92,000 votes, Al Smith carried the state by 30,000; Hoover reduced Davis' Democratic majority by 60,000 votes. Coolidge carried eight counties in 1924, but Hoover carried 45 in 1928; Coolidge recieved 32,000 popular votes in 1924, but Hoover reecived 97,000 popular votes in 1928. This great commotion means something in God's way. Hoover will prove a Lincoln with the courage to do his duty without fear or favor.

There will be no white or black Republicans, he will appoint men and women to office who deserve to be appointed, whether they are accorded their place in the public mind by the people to be served or not. Hoover hates race prejudice and loves merit. He is too big to be little and hasn't any patience with those who discriminate on the grounds of color. The Negroes of this country voted for him in every state, almost unanimously because they knew according to his record that he was too big of heart, of soul, and of intellect to discriminate in favor of, or against any people in the discharge of his public duties. He is a Republican and is proud of his party and will direct its destinies under God.

NEWS

Griffin Ga

OCT 15 1928

"HOOVER WILL 'BLOW UP' SOUTH AND END WHITE SUPREMACY," SAYS CONGRESSMAN DYER.

Here you are in plain language. No person qualified to vote can fail to understand what it means. You do not have to read between the lines. It's as plain as the nose on your face.

Congressman L. C. Dyer, of the 12th district of Missouri, author of the Dyer anti-lynching bill is the man who said it.

Read it all you "Hoovercrats." And remember it is not a Democratic man making the charge. Remember it is not a "liquorized" press making the statement.

No, it's old man Dyer himself.

Here's the news story from St. Louis:

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 13.—That Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee for president, will blow the "solid south" to pieces in the November election is confidently asserted by Congressman L. C. Dyer of the 12th Missouri district, author of the famous Dyer anti-lynching bill, which has been passed by the Republican house of representatives and defeated by a Democratic filibuster in the United States senate.

"It is just as logical and reasonable for congress to enact laws for the enforcement of the 14th and 15th amendments as it is for congress to pass the Volstead act for the enforcement of the prohibition amendment," said Dyer.

"My anti-lynching bill intended to enforce the 14th amendment was passed by the Republicans of the house of representatives by a vote of two-to-one. In the senate it had the support of the Republican members, but the southern Democratic senators took advantage of the despotic senate rules to stage a filibuster that prevented its coming to a vote. Had these rules been changed as advocated by Vice President Dawes, the Dyer anti-lynching bill would now be a law.

"The passage of my bill would have been followed by the passage of still another law designed to enforce the 15th amendment also, and thus the negro in the south would have come into the full rights guaranteed him by the 14th and 15th amendments.

"On November 6 that great engineer-politician, Hoover, with the vote of the prohibitionists and those swayed because of the religious question in the south, will drive such a thick wedge through the heart of the 'solid south' and their 'white supreacy' slogan that it will blow up their whole unconstitutional program. After the south has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next president, that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the south who have for 60 years violated and prevented the enforcement of the 14th and 15th amendments. Then congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of negroes their constiutional rights as citizens, and place them on an equality with all other races."

That makes our blood run cold.

And when we stop and realize that some of our good friends, good citizens of Spalding County, good neighbors and law abiding citizens are willing toaid and abet Hoover in his attempt to "blow up" the South, we feel all the keener.

——"Invest In And Around Griffin"——

Negro Voter Discuss Political Situation

Four hundred Negro voters of Norfolk, meeting last night at the Dunbar School, were instructed regarding the use of the ballot in the approaching election and urged to take a more active interest in both municipal and national affairs.

The speakers were D. W. Byrd, E. S. Peters, P. B. Young, editor of the Journal and Guide, and George W. Walker, of Portsmouth, all colored. Young spoke in behalf of Governor Smith's candidacy, while Walker supported Herbert Hoover. The crowd was equally divided on the two candidates, judging from the applause that greeted the speakers. The meeting was presided over by C. C. Dogan, colored, who called the meeting.

What the People Think

ANSWERS S. B. WILKINS

To the Editor of The Call:

In your issue of October 19, S. B. Wilkins has an article advocating the voting for Smith in preference to Hoover, which I do not object to, but when it come to going back to Lincoln and further for reasons for doing so, is, I think, unnecessary, and also unjust to the memory of Lincoln. My memory does not quite reach back to Lincoln, I was born the day the presidential electors elected Abraham Lincoln the first time.

The first time my father ever left Vermont was in 1856 to help make Kansas a free state, the next time he left that state was in response to Lincoln's call for volunteers, two of his brothers-in-law, his brother, eight cousins and two-thirds of the fathers of my schoolmates and other childhood associates also enlisted so that I believe I got pretty accurate knowledge of the Civil War and its causes.

Thirty-four years of my life has been spent south of the Mason and Dixon line, but never until I read this article did I ever hear on either side of this line anything approaching the sentiment "Lincoln didn't care a hoot whether you are a slave or not."

When Lincoln saw a scene like the one in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" where Elisa is sold on the auction block, and said, "If I ever get a chance to hit that institution I will hit it hard." do you expect to convince many that he didn't care a hoot? If he didn't care why did he write this to his friend, Mr. Speed: "How can any one who abhors the oppression of Negroes be in favor of degrading classes of white people? Our progress in degeneracy appears to be pretty rapid. As a nation we began by declaring 'all men are created equal!' We now practically read, 'All men are created equal except Negroes'. When the Know-Nothings get control, it will read 'All men are created equal except Negroes and foreigners and Catholics'." Why, if he didn't care a hoot, did he say "I don't want to see any one a slave but if we must have it I would like to see it tried on those who are in favor of making some one else a slave"?

I think it is generally understood without dispute, that the Battle of Gettysburg was the turning point of the war. and to one that has heard it described as vividly and often as I have by those that fought there, will have no doubt that the failure of Pickett's charge was the turning point of that battle, and when Pickett's men were breaking Meade's line in many places the 13th Vermont, (my father's regiment) which had returned from capturing a battery on little Round Top, together with the 16th Vermont and a New York regiment who had returned from similar deeds were hurled on Pickett's rear and a few moments later his men were in full retreat and Lee's hope of leading a victorious army into Washington was then and there forever crushed.

Now, Mr. Wilkins, just tell the world that the man what ordered that charge on Pickett's rear and saved the day at Gettysburg and made the proclamation of emancipation a great deal more "than a scrap of paper" was General Winfield S. Hancock, democratic candidate for president in 1880, for I think it would be more effective than trying to make us think that John Quincy Adams and John Hancock were Democrats, as used in a partisan sense of today.

As to Lincoln and his party on the slavery question Lincoln had, as he said, taken a he hated slavery it was his duty to save the solemn oath to save the Union and much as Union even if he had to endure slavery, in fact with the slave states independent there was no possibility of interference. With Wall street bleeding the nation with the exception clause on the greenbacks, with the hotheads clamoring for war with England, with the border states who were liable to rebel with the states already in revolt Lincoln had no alternative but caution on the slavery question to save the Union. If the republican party was not organized because its adherents were dissatisfied with the Whigs on the slavery question, will Mr. Wilkins tell us what was the cause of its birth?

If the south had not felt that the republicans would eventually destroy slavery by emigrating to slave states as they did to Kansas, or by some other process, why did they rebel?

S. C. Stoddard, 1400 Wood avenue,
Kansas City, Kansas.

BILL McDONALD WRITES THE CALL

Lunenburg, N. C., Exchange
Thursday, October 25, 1928

DYER PROMISES NEGRO FULL VOTE

Missouri Republican Congressman Predicts End of White Supremacy

Extracts of a campaign speech delivered on September 23 in his home district in St. Louis, in which Congressman L. C. Dyer, republican, promises the Negro full suffrage and predicts the end of Southern white supremacy with the election of Hoover are being distributed by Democratic State headquarters.

The quoted extracts follows:

"There are powerful and influential people who are ready to demand of Congress at an early session, laws, with ample appropriations that will make these two amendments (giving the Negro equal suffrage) effective. Just as the people who through Congress placed them into the Constitution, as they did the Eighteenth Amendment. My faith is such that I believe we will see the day, and that not very far off when the Federal Government will, by virtue of Congressional acts, place enforcement officers in the Southern States charged with enforcing these two amendments and give the Negroes their rights as citizens, as guaranteed by the Constitution. President Coolidge in one of his messages recommended that the Federal Government take charge of elections in these states.

"On November 6 that great engineer-politician, Hoover, with the votes of the prohibitionists and those swayed because of the religious question in the South, will drive such a thick wedge through the heart of the Solid South and their white supremacy slogan that it will flow up their whole unconstitutional program.

"After the Solid South has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next President, that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the South who have for sixty years violated and prevented the enforcement of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments. Then Congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of Negroes their constitutional rights as citizens and place them on an equality with other races."

THE SOLID SOUTH BROKEN.

VIEWED purely from the material standpoint, the breaking of the Solid South politically in the present election will be of enormous value to this section. It will give increased confidence to the business peoples of other sections of the country, for the very solidarity of the South in politics has to some extent retarded Southern development, great as it has been. This development can be, and will be, far greater than in the past.

Diversification of thought and of political activity is a blessing to every state, considered merely from the material viewpoint; but measured from the higher standpoint of the benefit to humanity, the broadening of the thought of the people, the decision of Virginia and North Carolina, Florida, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas in favor of Hoover and Curtis, will be of profound significance and of tremendous value not only to the South itself, but to the entire country.

the 14th amendment was passed by the Republicans of the house of representatives by a vote of two-to-one. In the senate it had the support of the Republican members, but the southern Democratic senators took advantage of the despotic senate rules to stage a filibuster that prevented its coming to a vote. Had these rules been changed as advocated by Vice President Dawes, the Dyer anti-lynching bill would now be a law.

"The passage of my bill would have been followed by the passage of still another law designed to enforce the 15th amendment also, and thus the negro in the south would have come into the full rights guaranteed him by the 14th and 15th amendments.

"On November 6 that great engineer-politician, Hoover, with the vote of the prohibitionists and those swayed because of the religious question in the south, will drive such a thick wedge through the heart of the 'solid south' and their 'white supreacy' slogan that it will blow up their whole unconstitutional program. After the south has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next president, that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the south who have for 60 years violated and prevented the enforcement of the 14th and 15th amendments. Then congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of negroes their constiutional rights as citizens, and place them on an equality with all other races."

That makes our blood run cold.

And when we stop and realize that some of our good friends, good citizens of Spalding County, good neighbors and law abiding citizens are willing toaid and abet Hoover in his attempt to "blow up" the South, we feel all the keener.

——"Invest In And Around Griffin"——

Negro Voter Discuss Political Situation

Four hundred Negro voters of Norfolk, meeting last night at the Dunbar School, were instructed regarding the use of the ballot in the approaching election and urged to take a more active interest in both municipal and national affairs.

The speakers were D. W. Byrd, E. S. Peters, P. B. Young, editor of the Journal and Guide, and George W. Walker, of Portsmouth, all colored. Young spoke in behalf of Governor Smith's candidacy, while Walker supported Herbert Hoover. The crowd was equally divided on the two candidates, judging from the applause that greeted the speakers. The meeting was presided over by C. C. Dogan, colored, who called the meeting.

What the People Think

ANSWERS S. B. WILKINS

To the Editor of The Call:

In your issue of October 19, S. B. Wilkins has an article advocating the voting for Smith in preference to Hoover, which I do not object to, but when it come to going back to Lincoln and further for reasons for doing so, is, I think, unnecessary, and also unjust to the memory of Lincoln. My memory does not quite reach back to Lincoln, I was born the day the presidential electors elected Abraham Lincoln the first time.

The first time my father ever left Vermont was in 1856 to help make Kansas a free state, the next time he left that state war in response to Lincoln's call for volunteers, two of his brothers-in-law, his brother, eight cousins and two-thirds of the fathers of my schoolmates and other childhood associates also enlisted so that I believe I got pretty accurate knowledge of the Civil War and its causes.

Thirty-four years of my life has been spent south of the Mason and Dixon line, but never until I read this article did I ever hear on either side of this line anything approaching the sentiment "Lincoln didn't care a hoot whether you are a slave or not."

When Lincoln saw a scene like the one in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" where Elisa is sold on the auction block, and said, 'If I ever get a chance to hit that institution I will hit it hard." do you expect to convince many that he didn't care a hoot? If he didn't care why did he write this to his friend, Mr. Speed: "How can any one who abhors the oppression of Negroes be in favor of degrading classes of white people? Our progress in degeneracy appears to be pretty rapid. As a nation we began by declaring 'all men are created equal!' We now practically read, 'All men are created equal except Negroes'. When the Know-Nothings get control, it will read 'All men are created equal except Negroes and foreigners and Catholics'." Why, if he didn't care a hoot, did he say "I don't want to see any one a slave but if we must have it I would like to see it tried on those who are in favor of making some one else a slave"?

I think it is generally understood without dispute, that the Battle of Gettysburg was the turning point of the war, and to one that has heard it described as vividly and often as I have by those that fought there, will have no doubt that the failure of Pickett's charge was the turning point of that battle, and when Pickett's men were breaking Meade's line in many places the 13th Vermont, (my father's regiment) which had returned from capturing a battery on little Round Top, together with the 16th Vermont and a New York regiment who had returned from similar deeds were hurled on Pickett's rear and a few moments later his men were in full retreat and Lee's hope of leading a victorious army into Washington was then and there forever crushed.

Now, Mr. Wilkins, just tell the world that the man what ordered that charge on Pickett's rear and saved the day at Gettysburg and made the proclamation of emancipation a great deal more "than a scrap of paper" was General Winfield S. Hancock, democratic candidate for president in 1880, for I think it would be more effective than trying to make us think that John Quincy Adams and John Hancock were Democrats, as used in a partisan sense of today.

As to Lincoln and his party on the slavery question Lincoln had, as he said, taken a he hated slavery it was his duty to save the solemn oath to save the Union and much as Union even if he had to endure slavery, in fact with the slave states independent there was no possibility of interference. With Wall street bleeding the nation with the exception clause on the greenbacks, with the hotheads clamoring for war with England, with the border states who were liable to rebel with the states already in revolt Lincoln had no alternative but caution on the slavery question to save the Union. If the republican party was not organized because its adherents were dissatisfied with the Whigs on the slavery question. will Mr. Wilkins tell us what was the cause of its birth?

If the south had not felt that the republicans would eventually destroy slavery by emigrating to slave states as they did to Kansas, or by some other process, why did they rebel?

S. C. Stoddard, 1400 Wood avenue,
Kansas City, Kansas.

BILL McDONALD WRITES THE CALL

Laurinburg, N. C., Exchange
Thursday, October 25, 1928

DYER PROMISES NEGRO FULL VOTE

Missouri Republican Congressman Predicts End of White Supremacy

Extracts of a campaign speech delivered on September 23 in his home district in St. Louis, in which Congressman L. C. Dyer, republican, promises the Negro full suffrange and predicts the end of Southern white supremacy with the election of Hoover are being distributed by Democratic State headquarters.

The quoted extracts follows:

"There are powerful and influential people who are ready to demand of Congress at an early session, laws, with ample appropriations that will make these two amendments (giving the Negro equal suffrage) effective. Just as the people who through Congress placed them into the Constitution, as they did the Eighteenth Amendment. My faith is such that I believe we will see the day, and that not very far off when the Federal Government will, by virtue of Congressional acts, place enforcement officers in the Southern States charged with enforcing these two amendments and give the Negroes their rights as citizens, as guaranteed by the Constitution. President Coolidge in one of his messages recommended that the Federal Government take charge of elections in these states.

"On November 6 that great engineer-politician, Hoover, with the votes of the prohibitionists and those swayed because of the religious question in the South, will drive such a thick wedge through the heart of the Solid South and their white supremacy slogan that it will flow up their whole unconstitutional program.

"After the Solid South has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next President, that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the South who have for sixty years violated and prevented the enforcement of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments. Then Congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of Negroes their constitutional rights as citizens and place them on an equality with other races."

THE SOLID SOUTH BROKEN.

VIEWED purely from the material standpoint, the breaking of the Solid South politically in the present election will be of enormous value to this section. It will give increased confidence to the business people of other sections of the country, for the very solidarity of the South in politics has to some extent retarded Southern development, great as it has been. This development can be, and will be, far greater than in the past.

Diversification of thought and of political activity is a blessing to every state, considered merely from the material viewpoint; but measured from the higher standpoint of the benefit to humanity, the broadening of the thought of the people, the decision of Virginia and North Carolina, Florida, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas in favor of Hoover and Curtis, will be of profound significance and of tremendous value not only to the South itself, but to the entire country.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican

COME OUT INTO THE LIGHT

THE Negro Republican political leaders of Chicago owe their elevation to their positions to Repuublican voters, most of them colored. This should make it binding upon them to support Republican candidates that are fit and worthy whether regular or independent. They owe their allegiance to the Republican party and its candidates.

Chicago Ill.

In the present political campaign, national local, there are leaders in both the major parties feel that they cannot endorse the standard bearers of their respective parties, and they have publicly renounced their own parties and crossed over.

It is an open secret in Chicago that some of the Negro Republican leaders are covertly working for Democratic nominees and against the nominees of their own party. A leader has as much right to change his choice and vote as has the ordinary voter; but first he should resign as a leader and come out into the open and declare himself to his followers as well as the public.

Colored Democrats deserve credit for declaring themselves Democrats in the market place, in the highways and byways. They don't pussyfoot about it. If it is true, as reported, that some of our leaders are secretly flirting with the Democrats, working for the defeat of their own candidates themselves, they should be made to forfeit the support of loyal Republicans, be cast out of the councils of that party or be catapulated into the camp of local democracy, where it is doubtful if they would be received, being considered unworthy of trust.

Everything in the present political campaign is being done in the open and above board. The people will not permit issues of the campaign to be suppressed; neither will they long tolerate the duplicity of their leaders.

By ther acts of holding with the hare and running with the hounds, they have weaned some staunch voters from their cause and wrought havoc with the simple faith of the public.

The large decrease in registration of voters in the 2nd, 3rd and 4th wards, strongholds of Republicanism in Chicago, is directly traceable and attributable to the loss of respect of the voters for some of their leaders and loss of confidence in their integrity.

If such disloyal leaders refuse to come out into the open voluntarilly, they should be forced out into the open and out of leadership.

CAMPAIGN DEFECTIONS.

One of the curious features of this rather remarkable campaign is the importance that has attached to the Negro vote in most of the Northern states. The fact that a colored weekly, published in Chicago, advised its readers to vote against the Republican ticket, was considered of sufficient moment to justify nearly two columns of explanation and comment by Richard V. Oulahan in the New York Times. The fact that the Chicago Defender gave such advice is not of itself so significant, as its readers will remember that less than two years ago it devoted much space to supporting Smith for Governor. But Mr. Oulahan reports a frank admission on the part of Republicans, that Governor Smith would get many Negro votes, not only in Chicago but throughout the country, in states where they are able to cast a ballot.

The Defender's defection from the Republican ticket was artfully justified in a two-column editorial, which reviews the sins of omission and commission committed by the party in its treatment of the race during the past fifty years, and the fact that those who still support the ticket find themselves in such company as the Ku Klux Klan and Tom Heflin. It concluded with the simple statement: "If we have outlived our usefulness to the Republican party, there is a possibility that we can be of the same service to the opposite party. At any rate this is the only political move which we have not tried." Singularly enough, the arguments used to impress Negro voters with the wisdom of supporting Smith are the same articles published in the organ of the Ku Klux Klan, the Fellowship Forum, with the original purpose of driving white Southerners to the support of Hoover. This is a case of dealing with double-edged tools.

This defection of the Defender does not seem to worry the responsible political and religious leaders of the race in Chicago. The regular Republican organizations of the race in the several wards are supporting the national ticket with their usual enthusiasm. Many of the church organizations have passed resolutions endorsing Hoover, including both Baptists and Methodists. The business men of the race are generally supporting Hoover and the bulk of the Negro vote is expected to be cast for the Republican ticket. It is, however, admitted that there is more Democratic sentiment voiced among Negroes in Chicago than ever before. This is accounted for by the appeal made by the personality of Smith and his program to a certain class of voters. Then the Democratic leaders have authorized the expenditure of campaign funds for the purpose of securing Negro votes. This has stirred up action among the professional politicians of the race, who are doing their best to earn some of this money. Thus, as a correspondent says, Democratic money is talking in Chicago.

The judgment of those political observers who are conversant with the situation, as to what will happen on election day, is that more Negroes will vote for Smith than have voted for Democratic candidates in former years. But it is not expected that he will get a majority, or near a majority, of the vote of this group. The same forces that are at work in Chicago have been spreading some Democratic propaganda in New York, but for some reason it has been more of an under cover job. There has been the fear of alienating Smith's Southern supporters by too open an appeal to the Negro voters of New York. The local sentiment in favor of the municipal administration and Smith's stand for the modification of prohibition enforcement have been relied upon to yield him support among Negro voters. But it was evidently easier to make votes for him in Chicago than in New York.

While the Negro vote in New York may afford to divide on state and municipal candidates, it has reached the conclusion that, in national affairs, the best policy at the present time is to vote a straight Republican ticket.

A Battle Cry That Is Losing Its Efficacy

IT is a very happy circumstance that the Republicans have resorted to the use of the race question in this campaign. In doing so they reasoned, no doubt, that they were "fighting fire with fire." There is no doubt that the responsible ones in both parties have made themselves generally ridiculous in their attempts to be serious at the business of winning votes by waving a red rag at an artificial bull. The bogey has lost its legs and has none to stand upon. By throwing it back into the teeth of the Democrats, however, the Republicans are giving them a dose of their own medicine. It tastes very badly to the Democrats and we find them getting sick at the stomach. Among those of the high command there is a decided disposition to soft-pedal the old bugaboo.

So it is a good thing—for the race question—that the Republicans are playing upon it. We believe that it is going to mean the death of the thing as a serious political issue. When both parties take identical positions on the tariff there will be no tariff issue; when both parties take identical positions on immigration there will be no immigration issue. Now that they have taken identical positions on the race question there is no argument between them. It would be a very sensible thing if they would recognize this at the present stage of the campaign and give the voters a rest from their harangues on the race question, or something enlighening upon the real issues, which are the tariff and farm relief.

On the latter the Republican candidate is talking in orthodox Republican fashion, while the Democratic candidate is proposing non-partisan measures, taking the two most vital questions before the American people out of the realm of partisanry, which sounds like good politics.

There are people, of course, who loudly insist that prohibition is the main issue of the campaign. In fact Bishop Cannon, Dr. Barton and their followers insist that it is the only issue. But there are equally as many who believe that prohibition is only a smoke screen to obscure what is in reality a holy war. Religious bigotry is only a transient factor in American politics, while racial bigotry has been a permanent one. The spread of it to the Republican party reveals it in its true light of falsehood and deception and spells for it disaster as a vote-winning battle cry.

RAINEY, THOMAS FLAY G. O. P. AT MEETING HERE

Local Smith Followers Pack

Elks Auditorium As Invectives Fly

VOTE FOR G. O. P. IS VOTE FOR THE K. K. K.

Moorfield Story And John Brown Cited As Race's Staunch Friends

Branding the Republican party as a dead carcas, as having deserted the principles upon which it rose to power, and with having sold its interest in the Negro for a mess of southern pottage, Julian D. Rainey, Neval Thomas, Ex-Mayor Howard W. Jackson and others urged a packed audience of Smith followers to make sure that he rolled up an unprecedented majority in Baltimore city next month.

The meeting, which fairly sparkled with strong invective and cutting thrusts, was one of the most enthusiastic gatherings ever held here.

Reviews History

Paying his respects to the republicans, whom he said had kicked the Negro out of the fold at the behest of Colonel Wise of Virginia, Mr. Rainey proceeded to shatter the two main arguments made, he said, by Negro apologists for the shame of the republican party.

The difference between the reaction of a white democrat and a white republican was merely geographic, he said. A democratic Smith from New York was more liberal than a lily-white republican from Mississippi. The argument that the South would be in the saddle if Smith is elected is as much of a fallacy as to say that man like Moorfield Storey would not thunder out against human wrong because he was a democrat.

In official appointments, he said the Negro fared much better under the only two democratic presidents Cleveland and Wilson, than they have under Coolidge, Taft or Harding.

Under Hoover, he declared, there is nothing to hope, because in fact with the South he has definitely committed himself to a policy which will completely eliminate the Negro. The process of elimination began at Kansas City and in the wake has followed Perry Howard, Walter Cohen, Benjamin Davis and Robert R. Church.

Fight Intolerance

The one issue above all others he says, is the fight against intolerance. A vote for the republican party this year means a vote for all the ku klux klan, and the religious bigots stand for, and the Negro cannot afford, scourged as they have been by intolerance, to help crucify Al Smith on a cross of religious bigotry.

Old War Horse

Neval Thomas was introduced as the "Old War Horse". His first utterance bore the appellation, for from beginning to end of his speech he hurled invective after invective against what he termed the worst enemy a people can have, a party turned traitor.

He reviewed his fight against segregation in the White House urging a "revolt from the treason of an infamous party." The Negro cannot lose," he said, "for we are already lying crushed and outraged as American citizens. We can only take the method of any defeated army which has been betrayed, turn our backs on our false enemies and sue the opponents for peace.

"We can at last afford to take a gambler's chance; for any gambler will take a chance on a game in which he knows he cannot lose."

Ex-Mayor Jackson

Among the other speakers were: Judge Paul Johannsen, Ex-Mayor Howard W. Jackson and William Curran, all of whom pledged their efforts towards making the democratic party one whom the Baltimore voters would not be sorry they supported.

One of the features of the meeting was an ovation given Thomas R. Smith, when Judge Johannsen recalled a friendship, which he said dated back 16 years.

"Governor Bilbo Story The Bunk"—Mrs. Booze

MOUND BAYOU, Miss., Oct. 25.—The charge made by Governor Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi that Herbert Hoover, Republican candidate for President, danced with Mrs. Mary Booze, National Committeewoman from Mississippi, was indignantly denied by Mrs. Booze here this week. Mrs. Booze, who is highly respected in church and fraternal circles, does not dance at all, according to her statement. While Mrs. Booze is not "beneath" dancing with anybody, it only shows the insidiousness of Democratic propaganda that such an appeal was made to race prejudice by the supporters of Al Smith. Her statement reads: "As for the statement that I danced with Mr. Hoover, that is ridiculous. As a matter of fact, I am upwards of 50 years of age, a consistent member of the Methodist church and do not dance. I have no idea whether Mr. Hoover dances or not."

BOLTERS FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

To The Commercial Appeal:

I am among the number of those who have been called bigots, fanatics and idiots and believe I am voicing the thought of all who have been thus classified when I say it doesn't hurt because we realize a standard of right that is worth bearing all such epithets and more.

We are not abashed because the Pro-Smiths say we are acting dishonorably for we are upholding that standard of honor which held the allegiance of our most intelligent and patriotic forbears, so precious to us that we will not forsake it simply for the glory of being affiliated with those who have no respect for it.

If I were opposed to prohibition I could not lose my sense of refinement to the extent that I would support a man who would express himself as looking to a day "when we can put a foot on the rail and blow off the froth." If we cannot look to the inmates of the White House as examples in refinement and wholesome influence we are indeed in a bad way. It is no wonder that Upshaw and other Hoover speakers cannot address the people on account of egg slinging and uproars. It seems to be the trend of these tolerant (?) politicians to show us what to expect if they win on November 6.

Intolerant fanatics that we are we haven't come to that yet. We haven't yet reached the point to believe that liberty, real liberty means license to wreck hearts and homes, fill prisons and send souls to perdition. If law against intoxicating drink is wrong so is law against murder and all other evils. Discipline is necessary to growth of individual character and in no less degree to national character.

Alfred E. Smith bolted the Democratic platform, bolted the usage of the Democratic partyt by selecting a Republican campaign manager who stated that he accepted the position in order to "help rid the country of he damnable affliction of prohibition." Another refined gentleman that! Both of them Bolters! "O Consistency, verily thou art a jewel!"

Some avow that Mr. Hoover is for social equality with the negro. Well, maybe we can tie him, but that one string would be easier tied than those several needed for Al. Yes, and verily it is an open secret that this same string will be needed should the Democratic nominee win. So there!

Yes, we are Bolters from the projects that do not make for righteousness and prosperity and we are proud of it.

MRS. BIRDIE L. JOLLY.

OVERLOOKING FERTILE TERRITORY

There is an old adage which runs, "Politics makes strange bedfellows;" but, judging from the trend of the present presidential campaign, particularly in Texas, it appears as if politics makes some politicans stage some strange stunts.

For the past several weeks, both the Dallas Express and The Informer have been urging Republican party leaders of the nation and Texas to organize the 100,000 or more qualified Negro electors in this state, who, under normal circumstances, usually vote for the Republican presidential electors.

However, strange things are happening politically this year in all sections of the republic, and "bolters" and "defectionists" have the staid party leaders literally up in the air.

According to the straw vote poll now being conducted nationally by the Literary Digest, the pre-election balloting shows that the Hoover-Curtis ticket is rather strong in Texas; and, if the forces supporting the Republican nominees were thoroughly organized and functioning in all sections of the state and among all groups and blocs favorable to their national standard-bearers, the political complexion of the Lone Star State might undergo a radical change at the general election on Tuesday, November 6, 1928.

Thus far little, if any, organization work has been done among the Republicans of Texas, and the party leaders, both of the state and nation, seem to be under the impression that no campaign or organization is needed to poll a record-breaking, record-making vote for the Republican presidential and vice-presidential candidates.

Apparently, the Republican leaders in the state are not anxious for such activity and organization, while the national party leaders do not seem to regard Texas even as a debatable state—not to the extent that the game is worth the ammunition; and thus they are firing all their shots in other sections of the country while thousands of voters, who could even yet be lined up for the Hoover-Curtis ticket, are permitted to run wild in the political forests—probably into the Smith fold.

If the Smith-Robinson ticket should carry Texas by a bare 75,000 or 80,000 majority; and, if the carrying of Texaxs should insure the election of the Democratic presidential ticket, The Informer wonders how the Republican leaders of the state and nation would feel as a result of their political hindsight playing second fiddle to their foresight!

The Informer does not pose as a political prophet or seer, but this paper—being conversant with the Hoover sentiment in this state and knowing the Democratic strength in previous presidential campaigns and elections—ventures the assertion that the Hoover-Curtis ticket would be victorious at the general election in "Democratic Texas," if the Republican leaders were amenable to advice from those who are more interested in party success and growth than in the distribution of federal patronage.

As for the Colored Voters' Division, headed by John R. Hawkins of Washington, D. C., its functions seem to be limited, circumscribed and proscribed; and the race appendage to the Republican national committee appears to be national in name rather than in scope and activity.

Even its power to operate among the colored electors in the several states seems to be curtailed, if in reality the division ever had any such authority and power; and howls are going up from other sections of the country in criticism of the bungling and do-nothing policy of the colored national party leaders.

Believe it or not (and this is our last editorial dissertation on this phase of the presidential campaign), Texas is mighty fertile territory for the Hoover-Curtis cause, and we fear that the Republican party leaders have overlooked or are overlooking a good bet in the Texas situation.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation

YOUR SACRED DUTY.

Next Tuesday, November 6th, is the day on which all citizens of the United States who are qualified to vote will march to the polls for the purpose of selecting the president who will have charge of the nation's affairs for the next four years following March 4th.

Without doubt the problems that will confront our nation, under the administration of who ever is elected, are of greater import than those of any time in recent years. The voters, during the strenuous campaign that is just coming to a close, have been confronted with more confusing arguments on all sides than have characterized any previous national election.

After all has been said and done by the candidates and campaign leaders, the situation reverts to the masses made up of the voters themselves, and every man and woman who is armed with the necessary credentials to exercise his or her franchise is placed on a common level, each having equal power to cast a ballot for the candidate whom they feel will serve the interests of the country in the most efficient and effective manner.

Regardless as to what may be said of the qualifications of the two standard bearers of the major political parties, this publication, after due consideration and ample thought, feels constrained to advise the group which it represents to vote for and support the candidacy of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis, republican nominees for president and vice-president respectively. There is little doubt but that these two men, who have rendered such unselfish and worthwhile service, will prove the choice of a large majority of the voters, and when the final count is made next Tuesday night will have been chosen the nation's chief executives.

Our parting word to our readers in this, the last issue before the election, is to refuse to become confused with the many immaterial and unfair arguments advanced by those espousing the cause of Herbert Hoover's opponent. Mr. Hoover's record during the last score of years is an open book, and nothing can be truthfully said that would prove derogatory to him to the extent that he would be disqualified to hold the high office of president. His cause is being advocated by honest, earnest and successful men and women of both racial groups who have the interests of our citizenship at heart, and the masses cannot go wrong by voting for him.

Consider the exercise of your franchise a sacred duty. To mark the ballot properly requires some thought and study. Those who have any doubt as to their ability to vote properly for the candidate of their choice should immediately apply for instruction, with a view of preparing themselves. Then on Tuesday, November 6th, march to the polls in as earnest and determined a manner as is possible, refusing to allow interference on the part of any who may be inclined to dictate to or confuse you, and cast your ballot.

Republican.

Letters To The Editor

Please be brief. We reserve the right to cut lettres more than 300 words long.

JUDGE TAYLOE, HOOVER AND THE WHITE RACE IN THE SOUTH

Editor The Advertiser:

Yesterday was set apart as the day on which there was to be uttered prayer

For Hoover And Prohibition

Forgotten was the fact that the utterance of such a prayer carried with it the unuttered prayer

For Hoover And Race Equality

If Hoover has any conviction on any subject for which he is willing to stand; if he be true to any utterance he has so far made in his lifetime; if he deems binding upon him the traditions of the party with which he has aligned himself, he will stand, not for the party of Lincoln, but the party of his fellow radicals, Thad Stevens, negroophiles, haters and baiters of the Southern whites.

Why should he deny a visit to the negro woman Booze while in Mississippi? Was she not a member of the National Republican organization? Was she not a desirable agent to him in corraling the negro delegates from the state? Why deny the dancing with her daughter.

Were not both events the proper thing for any member of the party that is yet devoted to the racial equality of Thad Stevens and his gang of radicals?

Well, well, the Episcopal bishop of Tennessee has the thing down pat. He was asked for whom he would vote in the coming presidential election. His reply was:

"I shall vote for Gov. Smith, of course."

And then he was asked, "Why?"

His answer: "I am a white man."

That is all the argument a Southern white man or woman should need or heed.

And that is all of that.

I am going to argue the objections to the governor; others have done that ever so effectively. They are but camouflage to cover hostility to the Democratic party and treachery to the cause of white supremacy in the South. No one can vote a Democratic ticket in this state unless he votes for Gov. Smith. The other ticket is Republican and the voter must cast his ballot under a Republican sign and a Republican motto. To this your column's testify when they print a sample ticket. The hand of white man or woman should palsy before it could deposit such a ticket in the ballot box.

I am not trying to voice race hatred. All my life the negro has been my familiar and is such today. The thing I wish to voice is that he is unfit to rule the whites and has no desire so to do. A vote for Hoover but gives him the idea that he is fit to rule the whites and to instill into him the desire to enter into a conflict that will do his cause no good and will rapidly drive from his side the whites who now vote for Hoover and racial equality.

What is the matter? Our neighbors Mississippi and Georgia will vote heavily for the party. Yet they are subject to like conditions under which this states seems to labor. Are Alabamians in less danger? Are they more afraid? Are they more devoted to prohibition? Have they less regard for racial integrity? Or what? Why not follow the lead of the neighbor states? Why not stand with them as did the heroes of sixty one? Or those other heroes who drove out the carpetbagger and the scalawag in seventy four?

W. H. TAYLOE.

Uniontown, Alabama.

DEMANDS FAIR TREATMENT.

Gillett, Ark.

To The Commercial Appeal:

I have been reading your paper for some time, and had almost come to the conclusion that you were trying to deal fair in the political campaign nationally. But after reading your editorial, page six, of the issue of Oct. 5, under the title "Smith and the South," I am again inclined to believe that you are dominated by the same feeling, motive and political element that have control over all papers supporting Al Smith.

Is it your purpose to mislead your readers? Or are you unable because of the power on the throne to speak your honest convictions?

Your argument in this editorial is common place and wholly unfit from every common sense standpoint, and far short of the dignity that should be shown in any paper of the class which The Commercial Appeal holds.

You say, without giving any reason whatever, that there is no reason Al Smith should not be supported by everybody, and you endeavor to force Smith upon the people by stating things that you know to be untrue. You have resorted, in this editorial, to the tactics of the little county politician; you yell "nigger" every time an honorable Republican dares to cross your track. Have you forgotten that your ex-mayor, a sure shot Democrat, votes 6,000 niggers for the advancement of honest Democracy?

You know, if you have not forgotten, that Al. Smith believes in race equality. He not alone believes in it, but he practices it; yes, he has a "civil service commissioner in New York by the name of Morton, who is drawing a salary of $7,500 per year, and has one or more white girls as secretary or stenographers. Yes it is allright to yell nigger at the Republicans, but you cannot do so and hold your job when Al is involved; you just cannot, can you?

Now, why not tell the people that a person's religion does not under any circumstances enter into one's qualifications for holding office, and that under the constitution any one has the right to condemn the religion of any office seeker, because free speech and free press shall not be abridged.

Why not allow every person in politics, in religion and in fact everything the same right you demand.

H. L. KAMPMAN.

HISTORY OF REPUBLICANS.

West, Miss.

To The Commercial Appeal:

This is the history of "blunders" made by the Republican party.

1. The founding of the United States Bank in the early years of the nation. Jackson succeeded that almost bankrupted the young republic. Andrew Jackson, a Democrat, abolished it.

2. The forcing of the nation into the Civil War by its (The Republican party's) attitude towards slavery. The Republicans wished to make the slaves away from their southern masters without paying them anything. Of course slavery was wrong, but it was also wrong to bankrupt the south.

3. The treatment of the south after the Civil War when "niggers" and white trash together misruled the flower of the nation's aristocracy and white women were raped and white men murdered by negroes at the instigation of their white masters.

4. The credit mobilier, a national scandal. Cabinet officers gave government land to railroad men in return for valuable considerations, mostly money and bonds. This happened in Grant's administration.

5. The "Big Stick" policy, a ruthless running over of little nations by the United States. This was continued in the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

6. The Teapot Dome scandal, in which cabinet officers sold valuable oil lands for next to nothing in return for bribes.

7. The humbling of the south by placing negro political bosses over it. This was done by every Republican administration since the Civil War.

8. Mr. Hoover's abolition of the segregation order in the Department of Commerce forcing, by so doing, whites and negroes to work side by side.

9. The evasion of the flood control and farm relief issues by the Republican party.

10. The criminal libels circulated against Governor Smith, at least not condemned by the Republican party.

Very truly yours,

R. ARTHUR ALEXANDER.

A DIVERSITY OF OPINION.

The discussion of Presidential candidates and the issues embraced in party platforms has been so wide and inclusive, that it has extended into at least two of the monthly magazines devoted to racial interests. In the Crisis for November it took the form of a symposium on the question, "How Shall We Vote?" John R. Hawkins, chairman of the Colored Voters division of the National Republican Campaign committee, told why he was for Hoover. Among other reasons given was because "his experience in ministering to war sufferers and flood sufferers have revealed his broad sympathies for all mankind." Mr. Hoover's record in the matter of Mississippi Flood Relief was mentioned as a testimonial of "his willingness to administer any high office without discrimination and with even-handed justice."

Ferdinand Q. Morton, Civil Service

Commissioner of New York City, insisted that the election of Governor Smith would be a fine victory for the cause of tolerance and fair play in America, and every American who suffers from the effects of religious bigotry and racial hatreds would be a beneficiary. As a logical result, he claimed that "the Negro could not be denied participation in these benefits." He maintained that colored voters should give their ballots to Governor Smith, if for no other reason, than to establish the fact that they are politically independent and regard the ballot "as our own property and not the property of the Republican party."

Dr. W. E. DuBois, editor of the Crisis, announced that he was going to vote for Norman Thomas and the Socialist ticket, for the former because he is a fine upstanding man who has not been afraid to champion the unpopular cause and because he recognizes the Negro as part of the laboring class. Reading the platform of the Socialist party and comparing it with the other two parties, Dr. DuBois pronounced it the only platform "that has common sense or justice, reason or hope, written into it. It dares to mention Negro disfranchisement as a prime cause of reaction, fraud and privilege, and it is right."

Opportunity, the monthly magazine published by the National Urban League also has a discussion of "The Negro and His Ballot," in which Clarence Darrow leads off by saying that personally he is very strong for Al Smith. He cannot say honestly that he sees any difference between the two parties so far as the question of equal opportunity for the colored race is concerned, and the only thing he is at all sure of is that the Negroes ought to vote independently and divide their votes. William H. Lewis, once a famous football star and a former Asssistant Atttorney General of the United States, is personally strong for Mr. Hoover, because he believes that upon vital issues to the race, "Mr. Hoover will be far more friendly, sympathetic, have a keener understanding of what is fair and just to the colored voter; and moreover the courage of his convictions."

For the Socialist party, Norman Thomas wrote asking cooperation in the common cause of ridding the world of poverty, tyranny and war. He said further "Specifically we have pledged ourselves to the Dyer anti-lynching bill. Generally we pledge ourselves to one justice for colored and white; to one test for the right to vote and hold office; namely, the test of personal fitness." He asks for support, "believing that a socialism which cannot conquer a distinctive race prejudice is no true socialism and that true socialism is the only road to a solution of our social ills."

In this diversity of opinion as to the course to be pursued by the colored voters in this campaign, there appears to be but one practical solution. In such states as New York, where these colored voters have allied themselves with the Republican party on national issues, they should support the candidates so long as they deserve that support. It is to be remembered that beside the election of President and Vice President, there are a Senator and Representatives in Congress to be chosen, as well as Governor and other state officers, including state Senators and Assemblymen. A Republican President will need a Republican Congress to put through his measures and a Republican Governor should have a Republican Legislature behind him.

As a practical measure of assuring the best government possible under the present system of party government, our voters will do well to support the Republican candidates for the various offices.

Bob Church

[Memphis Commercial-Appeal]

The attempt of the Press-Scimitar and a little group of willful white Republicans to eliminate Bob Church from direction of the Hoover campaign is one of our local political absurdities.

If Church does not direct the campaign in Memphis, it will be because he is engaged in political matters of more consequence.

If Church does not personally conduct the Hoover campaign in Shelby county it will be conducted by one of his lieutenants.

It is surprising that anyone should question his authority. He won over the lily white faction in the August primary.

He and his faction were recognized in Kansas City. His delegation was seated in the temporary organization. He won the contest before the credentials committee.

No federal appointment is made in Memphis and Shelby county under a Republican administration without his indorsement.

Federal officeholders and applicants for federal favor not only admit his authority, but seek his favor.

His part in Republican affairs was recognized by appointment on the committee that notified Hoover of his nomination.

The present controversy smacks of ingratitude. Church is a Republican year in and year out. He is high in the councils of his party.

It is rank hypocrisy to ask him to efface himself to make way for Democratic recruits who find the color line an obstacle to complete conversion to Republicanism.

Church is modest and unassuming. He never projects himself into the spotlight of local politics. His work is done in his Beale St. office in Memphis and in the White House in Washington.

He might consent to the appointment of a titular leader locally, but he would not surrender his power and prestige with the national Republican organization. There is no call on him to do so.

The lily white Republicans and the lily pure Democrats who support Hoover might as well make up their minds that there is no such thing as a Jim Crow Republican organization.

The demand that Church and other Negro Republicans make way for disaffected Democrats who want to ride with the Republican party for this trip only is a striking bit of audacity.

It is one of the traditions of the South that the Democratic party is the white man's party and the Republican party is the Negro party. It is not only a tradition of the past, but a fact of the present.

We have insisted that white persons only should vote in a Democratic primary in Tennessee. We have insisted on the right of the Negro to vote in a Republican primary and as he pleases in a general election.

To exclude the Negro from the Republican party to make place for white Klansmen would deprive him of his natural party affiliation and of the right of franchise.

We believe in being fair and honest in politics as in other things. Subterfuge and deception are reprehensible.

Church is the head of the Republican party in this county. He ranks higher than J. Will Taylor in the state.

His influence in the Republican party is more extensive in the South than any man, white or black.

Why muddy the water? Why attempt to deceive anybody? If the Republican party continues in control, Church will continue to be head of the party in Tennessee.

HEFLIN TURNS REPUBLICAN

At Dothan Heflin at last made up his mind to take the plunge into the chilly Republican waters. He definitely declared that he would vote against the Democratic nominees, Smith and Robinson. He defied the Democrats to read him out of the party and to remove him from committees in Congress. We have no doubt that in due time the Democrats will purge their ranks of such deserters as Heflin. We have even less doubt that in 1932 the self-respecting Democracy of Alabama will turn thumbs down on this faithless, ungrateful beneficiary of Democratic prestige and power. There must be at least 100 Democrats in Alabama any one of whom could beat Heflin for the United States Senate.

Heflin's Dothan speech contains nothing new. It is the same filth he has been peddling for two years or more, and is more offensive now only because of its age.

It is a depressing spectacle to see a United States Senator from Alabama making a speech containing so much of sheer falsehood, slander and half-truth as Heflin's Dothan speech. Heflin misrepresented Smith's viewpoint and record on the race question. He slandered Smith's church and bore false witness against it repeatedly. He vilified and misrepresented that great Southern Democrat, (and Methodist) Senator Joe Robinson, of Arkansas.

We doubt if in the history of this Republic a United States Senator has ever before made such a conscienceless attack upon the nominees of a great party and upon a branch of the Christian church as Heflin made upon Smith and Robinson and upon the Catholic church at Dothan. There is no decency in his speech. There is no evidence whatever of intellectual honor in the man who made it. A self-respecting Alabamian who has ordinary intelligence must feel ashamed and humiliated at the sheer exhibitionism of this mendacious demagogue.

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation

Republican.

THE JOURNAL ACCEPTS THE CORRECTION OF W. J. SHAW

The Journal is grateful to Mr. W. J. Shaw, who was secretary of the credential committee, for the correction with reference to the seating of the contesting delegates from counties other than Chatham in the convention March 3rd. The report was given us as geing correct or otherwise would not have been published. We have no desire to color anything for we believe that any business instituted on false-hood and corrupt practices will finally perish. We prefer defeat with honor than victory ill-achieved. The other eleven contests had no bearing on Chatham County and every one who is familiar with the circumstances and facts knows that the contest of the Lemon faction was premeditated and forecordinated, and that it was decreed that the Pettie faction should not be seated.

It would be astounding to many Savannahians if the Independent would publish the list of affiants in the Lemon contest with as much gratification as it seemed to get in making an unwarranted and unrighteous attack on Dr. J. A. Lindsay because he signed an affidavit which was substantiated by a great many of the leading men and women of Chatham, including the sheriff, who had no interest in the affair, other than to give the plain facts. We can not agree that a case is decided always on the preponderance of witnesses. It often happens that the character of the witnesses determines the verdict and then, in some instances, the judge maybe partial or the jury maybe packed. Delegates are elected by a majority of the qualified voters participating in a convention or mass meeting, and not a long list of fictitious names and affidavits of people who were not present. The Republicans of Chatham know that the Pettie delegates defeated the Lemon bunch by more than ten to one in the county convention held at the Chatham County Courthouse Feb. 4th, even though they were turned down in Atlanta, and all that may be said or done will not hide the truth, but the more it is stirred, the brighter it shines.

Savannah Morning News 3-31-28

Savannah Morning News 3-29-28

Atlanta Ga

BLIND WITH PREJUDICE

(The Savannah Journal)

The Atlanta Constitution, one of the leading dailies of the South, carried an editorial Monday of this week under the caption "A Doubtful Asset." In this editorial it took the occasion to warn Secretary Hoover not to count too confidently upon the pledges of support proffered by the Southern Republican delegates to the Kansas City convention, and cited several instances occurring half a century ago where some of the delegates "flopped" for a monetary consideration. The Constitution depends upon the support of the public for its existence and should have a higher regard for the feelings of those subscribers who are excluded from the party of its choice, and for other reasons choose to be Republicans, than to heap such coarse insults upon them as was done in this ludicrous article. It forgets the fact that many of the delegates of 1876 and 1880 were probably fresh from the yoke of slavery where they had been placed on the "mahket" so often until it had become a part of their nature to see themselves sold to the highest bidder. Since they had the opportunity of getting the "thrill" of doing some selling, why should they be ridiculed for simply practicing what they had been taught by their democratic slave masters?

But many changes have come about during the past fifty years. We now have the automobile, radio, aeroplane, a Lindbergh, a Tuskegee and even Tiger Flowers, one of the cleanest prize-fighters of history, who was also a Republican, has come and gone since the "eightiest." In these advancing times, it is but natural that the Republican delegates from the South would imbibe some of the progressive and enlightened spirit of this modern age and prove very unlike their predecessors in culture, intellectual attainments and independence. We are now living in a new era; we have passed through the bitter struggle of the World War where many of our "Southern delegates" led companies of soldiers on the battle fields of France for the defense of America and world democracy, and they have not only a higher educational standard, but have a broader conception of American ideals and feel a greater responsibility of American citizenship, and therefore are not to be traded and purchased by the highest bidder. They are capable of discerning the wheat from the chaff and will stand by their party and the men who are best qualified to serve the interest of all the people without regard to color, race or creed.

If the Constitution would only take the time to make a little investigation and was fair in the comparison of the Republican delegates from Georgia to the National Convention, it would find that on a whole they will not fall far behind the delegates coming from any other party when it comes to patriotism, respectability and real worth to their respective communities and sections. The four delegates from the state at large are B. J. Davis, national committeeman; J. H. Watson, fraternal leader; G. F. Flanders, one of the most prominent white men of Emanuel County, and T. N. Hendrix, another white man of wealth and influence. In the districts there are such outstanding characters as Dr. E. J. Turner, of Columbus; Professor H. A. Hunt Fort Valley; Dr. R. C. Williams, Augusta; B. F. Cofer, Albany; Colonel Sol C. Clemons, Macon, and still others who are dependable and possess unblemished qualities of integrity. This is the class that the Constitution brands—"on de mahket." They represent the leaders in their chosen professions and are men of wealth, influence and reputation, and will not be traded like dumb driven cattle at Kansas City. We hope the Constitution will wipe the scales of prejudice from its eyes in order to get a clear vision of the ability and standing of the Republican delegates from Georgia for 1928 and forget the dead past of 1876. Note the wonderful changes since the days of Blaine and Harrison. Look about and see the little village of Marthasville transformed into a thronging and populous city with magnificent skyscrapers, mammoth factories and stalwart department stores; beautiful paved boulevards and viaducts, and hills bedecked with colleges and universities. Go into the country and observe sandy deserts converted into pleasuresome highways; wild forests developed into prolific and profitable orchards and the one-crop system revolutionized into productive diversified farming. These and scores of other changes have come about in the past half century, and the world is beginning to think and act in terms of interracial fellowship and universal brotherhood, and it is shameful that this leading daily is so narrow and has such an obscured vision that it finds enjoyment in looking backwards into the records of the dead past for no other purpose than to humiliate its Republican brothers of the South. "Ah," said Rivarol, "no one considers how much pain any man of taste has to suffer before he inflicts any." The editor of the Constitution being a man of exquisite taste, must have suffered much pain in writing this burlesque.

But, "there are none so blind as those who will not see."

RECORD

Columbia S.C.

APR 3 1928

Negroes Crack Whip To G. O. P.

H. E. C. Bryant, veteran Washington correspondent says negro politicians throughout the North are abusing the Republican leaders on complaint that the Republican chiefs are "trying to eliminate the black man from party counsels." In other words they assert the "lily-white" movement is being fostered in the North as well as in the South.

Southern people who have had the negro politician with them now and then for many years would be pleased to hear some of the Northern, Western and Eastern republicans tell of the trials they are having with the "new voters from Dixie." In almost every State north of the Mason-Dixon line negroes are running for delegates to the republican national convention. Every year they are demanding more and more, and threatening to bolt the party if demands are denied.

Negro Leaders Demand Statement Of Hoover's Attitude; May Support Smith

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Special to The Advertiser.—Negro leaders are not satisfied with the attitude of Secretary Hoover toward their protest against segregation. They want to know how he stands on the lily-white movement now in progress in the South.

"Segregation of colored employes in the census bureau of the Commerce Department has been abolished," declared Louis R. Lautier. "Colored clerks last Thursday were scattered throughout the bureau. Advertiser

"Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, who is a leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, is believed to be responsible for the order doing away with segregation in the census bureau." 4-8-28

Lautier then asserts that current reports say that staunch supporters of the candidacy of Mr. Hoover "are aiding financially and otherwise the movement to establish a lily-white Republican party in the South." Montgomery

"As yet," he added, "there has been no denial by the management of the Hoover candidacy that Secretary Hoover and his friends are aiding the lily-white movement."

The same negroes who insisted on the change in the situation in the census bureau, today made demands on Secretary Mellon and Under Secretary Mills, of the Treasury Department. They threaten to quit the Republican party, and support Gov. Smith, of New York, if he is nominated by the Democrats.

"In a letter to Mr. Mills, officers of the National Equal Right League, the Civil Liberties Bureau of the Elks and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People of Washington request action on their complaint, against segregation in the Treasury Department, filed some time ago.

"We have the honor of asking you for the results of your investigations in your vast department and your future policy dealing with your colored employes," said the communication, signed by Neval H. Thomas, Archibald S. Pinkett, Robert J. Nelson and Thomas A. Johnson.

"It has been three months since we first called on you. Since then we have had two lengthy interviews with you, and paid five additional visits to see you without success. In the meantime, we have had no word from you as to your disposition of the case.

"We, therefore, respectfully ask that you make us reply, belated, if you please —to our complaints."

The Washington Tribune, negro paper, today, said:

"Until Mr. Mellon acts upon this condition, which is so distasteful, cramping and objectionable to the colored citizens of this country, men and women whose loyalty and devotion are unquestioned—we shall be forced to believe that Mr. Hoover says action is not sincere, but a mere bait to catch the unwary voter.

"It is not without meaning that the children and youth of our group, showing of news reels in a local theater, recently applauded uproariously every display of the portrait of Gov. Al Smith of New York."

Contest For Congress Waxes Pretty Warm In Windy City District

Chicago, Ill.—(ANP)—The fight for Republican candidate for the U. S. house of representatives from the first congressional district of Illinois, has simmered down to a race between Martin B. Madden, present incumbent, and Attorney William L. Dawson, a prominent young colored attorney.

Congressman Madden has the support of the regular Republican organization, which is headed by William Hale Thompson, Robert E. Crowe, Len Small, Homer Galpin and Bishop A. J. Carey. Attorney Dawson is backed by the Deneen wing of the Republican party and the Progressive Republican Club, headed by Dr. S. W. Smith and Dr. R. A. Williams, prominent Southside physician. Inquirer

At present it is impossible to forecast the winner and both sides assert that victory will be theirs on April 11, the morning following the election. Attorney Dawson has made a vigorous fight and has secured the endorsement of the Baptists Ministers' Association, of which Dr. L. K. Williams is president. The race issue is the chief plank in the platform and is creating widespread sentiment in favor of a Negro for congress. 4-7-28

While leaders of the other faction have expressed the desire to see a Negro sent from the district at "some time," they do not feel that the honor should be gained at the sacrifice of friend such as Congressman Madden has been to the Negroes, not only of the district which he represents, but of the country at large. It is upon the record made in his twenty-four years in the house of representatives that the congressman is seeking re-election, and that only. One of the outstanding accomplishments which has been played up by his supporters is the support he has given Howard University and Freedmen's Hospital.

Speakers point out that when Martin B. Madden went to congress Howard was receiving an annual appropriation of some $37,000; now it is almost a half million dollars. They further declare that his support is needed to pass the bill which has been introduced to make Howard an integral part of the government in order that Southern Democrats will not be able to drop the appropriation on a "point of order." Dawson's supporters say the group has waited long enough to place a Negro in congress and have raised the slogan "Negroes for Negroes." P. W. Chavers and Chandler Owen are also candidates.

Anyway, it is a real race and the result can only be determined on April 11. The last week will see one of the most determined fights for votes in the history of Chicago, and the whole country is awaiting the outcome.

Nashville, Ga., Herald
Thursday, March 22, 1928

State Republicans Elect Delegates To Convention

Atlanta.—Georgia Republicans in convention here instructed a delegation to the national convention to vote for nomination of President Coolidge should he be willing to accept the nomination in the event a draft movement is started.

The instructions were backed by a resolution putting the Georgia organization on record as favoring Herbert Hoover in case President Coolidge is unwilling to accept the nomination.

Four delegates at large to the Kansas City gathering were named by the convention. The other 12 of Georgia's quota of 16 delegates are being chosen by the congressional district organizations.

The four delegates named today were: Ben J. Davis, Negro, Atlanta, Republican national committeeman, Albany; G. F. Flanders, Swainesboro, and T. N. Hendrix, Edison.

Two changes were made in the Republican state central committee, J. T. Rose, Atlanta, replacing A. S. Anderson, Atlanta, as vice chairman, while Sara D. King, Negress, Albany, was named national committeewoman to succeed George S. Williams Savannah. Members re-elected to the committee are: Roscoe Pickett, Jasper, chairman; BenJ. Davis, Negro, Atlanto, secretary and national committeeman, and John W. Martin, Atlanta, treasurer.

Alternates elected for the four delegates at large to the national gathering were: W. P. Harris, Negro, Athens; C. W. Pidcock, Moultrie; Henry C. Davis, Macon and Sara King, Negress, Albany.

Following the state convention, delegates from the fifth congressional district reconvened in a meeting begun earlier in the day, selecting begun as the district's delegate to Kansas City, C. W. Hager, Atlanta, U. S. district attorney for the northern Georgia district. A. T. Walden, Atlanta, was named alternate. The convention adopted a resolution similar to that of the state gathering, favoring President Coolidge and secondly, Herbert Hoover.

Delegates already selected by district organizations, as listed by convention officials, were as follows:

First district B. W. S. Daniels, Savannah, and William James, Statesboro (contest); second district, B. F. Cofer, Albany; fourth district, E. J. Turner, Columbus; sixth district, Sol. C. Clemons, Macon, and J. J. Wright, Forsyth (one-half) vote each); eighth district W. H. Harris, Athens; tenth district, E. W. Brinkins Woodbine twelfth district, H. A. Hunt, For Valley.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation.

Republican.

BROOKLYN EAGLE

APR 14 1928

HOOVER AND THE NEGRO VOTE.

If the men who are earnestly and conscientiously striving by wholly proper methods to promote the move for the nomination of Herbert Hoover for President are truly grateful for real aid, they should present gold medals to Senator Blease of South Carolina and Senator Heflin of Alabama. The fight in Ohio for delegates is a hot one. The negro vote in Ohio is a heavy one, and race-consciousness is much in evidence.

So when the Senators from two of the Cotton States bitterly attack the Secretary of Commerce for stopping the segregation of colored employees in his department, for putting whites and blacks on precisely the same footing, for establishing race equality among salary drawers, Mr. Hoover has a right to chuckle. They are helping him along finely.

As for the intimation that no candidate who treats the negroes fairly can break the "Solid South," we imagine that has few terrors for Hoover. He is no star chaser. He doesn't expect to break the "Solid South," if he is the nominee. He does expect, with the assistance of big business and little business, to hold most of the great manufacturing States of the North; and his equality office rules will not lose him a single white vote in these States and may help him to win a colored vote that will be useful in any close election. Mr. Hoover should thank the two perniciously vocal Senators for their opportune assistance.

PERRY HOWARD SAYS BRIBE WAS OFFERED

'Lily Whites' Offered Him Money To "Lay Down" As Committeeman

Appeal American Baltimore

STATE SUPREME CT. HEARING APRIL 23

3-31-28

"Lily Blacks" May Be Compelled To Switch From Hoover To Lowden

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Efforts have been made to brow-beat, intimidate and even buy me to lay down as the party leader in my state."

Thus spoke Perry W. Howard, Republican national committeeman for Mississippi, upon his return here from Jackson, Miss., last Monday.

"I have stood steadfast," said Mr. Howard, "and shall carry the fight of the regular Republican organization in my state to the Supreme Court of my state where I am confident we will win."

Perry W. Howard

In Jackson, Miss., last Saturday the Republican state committee met and issued a call for a state convention to be held there on April 13 for the purpose of selecting delegates to the Republican national convention in Kansas City, Mo., June 12.

Second Call

This is the second call issued for a state convention. The first call was for a convention to have been held on March 14. George W. Sheldon, former governor of Nebraska, and ten other "lily-whites" obtained an injunction from Chancellor T. Price Dale, at Hattiesburg, Miss., on the ground that the call did not conform strictly with the Mississippi primary laws.

Hearing April 23.

The Howard organization took an appeal to the State Supreme Court. Last Saturday the question of advancing the appeal for an immediate hearing was argued in the Supreme Court. Monday the court decided to hear arguments in the case on April 23.

Incidentally, the leading counsel for the Howard organization is J. Morgan Stevens, former member of the Supreme Court and now law partner of W. Calvin Wells, chairman of the Democratic State committee.

Judge Stevens contends that Chancellor Dale erred in granting the injunction. He declares that the court had no jurisdiction under the law, the things complained of being party affairs.

Dangerous Precedent

"If eleven white men can enjoin the Republican party," says Judge Stevens, "then eleven Negroes can enjoin the whole Democratic party, under the law." The injunction, he states, sets up a very dangerous precedent for the south.

The Howard organization is recognized by Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican national committee as the only regular Republican party in Mississipi. Mr. Howard has a letter from Chairman Butler to that effect.

Hoover Involved

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, who is a leading candidate for the Republican nomination, seems to be playing politics with both the Howard organization and the 'lily-white" group.

The "lily-whites" are said to be spending money in Mississippi freely. L. O. Crosby, lumberman of Picayune, Miss., is said to be putting up this money for the "lily-whites". Crosby is a Democrat and an ardent supporter of Secretary Hoover. He met Hoover when the Secretary was in Mississippi on flood relief.

Crosby Wants Howard's Place

In his zeal to contribute to his nomination of Secretary Hoover, Mr. Crosby is said to have intimated that he would even patch up the differences between Mr. Howard and the "lily-whites". Mr. Howard was advised of the olive branch offer extended by Mr. Crosby. A conference took place in New Orleans, La., between the two. Crosby, it developed, wanted Howard to give him his place on the Republican national committee.

Switch To Smoker

That is the version that Mr. Howard's associates are telling in Mississippi, and the feud between Howard and Crosby is more pronounced than ever. The effect is that the regular Republicans are declaring that if the "lily-whites" are for Hoover, they will be for Lowden or some other candidate.

OLD "MISS" TURNS BACK ON HOOVER

G. O. P. Meets Despite Injunction, Delegation Uninstructed

HOWARD IN SADDLE

States' Twelve Votes May Go To Lowden

JACKSON, Miss. — Having found a loop-hole in the injunction restraining them from meeting, the Republican organization, headed by Perry W. Howard, national committeeman for Mississippi, held its state convention here on April 18 and elected a "black and tan" delegation to the Republican national convention which meets in Kansas City, Mo., June 12. Six of the twelve delegates elected are colored.

Appeal American

Contrary to expectations, the convention failed to instruct its delegates to vote for Secretary Herbert Hoover for the Republican nomination for President.

Hoover, who is said to be on friendly terms with the "lily whites" in this state, must reject the 'lily white' support and declare his approval of the "black and tan" Republicans. Otherwise Mississippi's twelve delegates may support former Governor Frank O. Lowden. 4-21-28

The convention instructed its delegates to vote for the reelection of Perry W. Howard as national committeeman and Mrs. Mary C. Booze, of Mound Bayou, as national committeewoman. Baltimore Md.

Resolutions were adopted praising the administration of President Coolidge and the handling of party affairs by the national commiteeman and national committeewoman.

Mr. Howard addressed the convention at length. He attacked the "lily whites" for attempting to set up in Mississippi a white Republican party. He predicted the return of the Republican party to power, notwithstanding the Teapot Dome Scandal.

Judges For Howard

JACKSON, Miss. — The question of whether an equity court has jurisdiction over a political controversy raised in the Republican political fight in this state was argued in the Supreme Court here, Monday.

Two of the three judges on the bench indicated that Chancellor T. Price Dale, of Hattiesburg, should never have issued the injunction restraining the Perry W. Howard group from holding their convention here March 14.

HOOVER STILL LOOKS GOOD TO US

The recent courageous and patriotic action taken by Secretary of Commerce Herbert C. Hoover, in abolishing racial segregation and discrimination from his department at Washington, D. C., merely bears out what The Informer has stated in these columns heretofore regarding Mr. Hoover's Americanism, Republicanism and patriotism. Informer 4-21-28

Despite that fact that charges have already been made that Mr. Hoover was merely "playing politics" in the issuance of this edict putting an end to this evil system and pernicious practice, why did not some of his predecessors play this same game and do, years ago, what Mr. Hoover has done recently?

Despite the fact that racial segregation in several of the governmental departments at Washingon, has been repeatedly called to the attention of President Calvin Coolidge; Hon. William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, and other national party leaders, both in and out of congress, Mr. Hoover was the first one to act decisively and courageously.

In its support of Mr. Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination, The Informer has always regarded the commerce secretary as a man possessed with an independent mind; courageous, fearless, able, honest, just and efficient.

The country needs a president who is not a politician, but statesman and economist—a man with the courage of his convictions—and no man in America fits this bill better than Herbert C. Hoover.

In his administration of affairs in the flood area of the Mississippi River, Mr. Hoover showed that he believed in justice and fairness to all American citizens, and it is a matter of record that his official acts in this situation virtually wrought the second emancipation for thousands of Negro peons in the delta section—black men and women who had been held in abject bondage and serfdom on the large plantations of the affected region.

It required much moral courage and fortitude to issue an order abolishing a practice which had been in vogue in this and other governmental departments since the Taft administration; for while the Wilson administration sought to perpetuate this species of racial segregation, it had its birth during the Taft regime; and four American presidents—Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge—placed their official stamp of approval upon this evil and pernicious practice by refusing to issue an edict calling for its abolition.

Despite the fact that President Coolidge has publicly declared that he does not "choose" to run for president in 1928, which indicates that he has definitely decided to retire from public office and will not need the votes nor influence of certain political elements; and; notwithstanding Mr. Coolidge's assurance to various colored delegations that he would put an end to racial segregation in the various departments and bureaus of the government at the national capital, up to the present hour the chief executive not only has not issued such presidential proclamation or order, but he has not even said one word against this species of segregation and discrimination.

Let's be willing to give Mr. Hoover credit for his big act, whether he is our choice for presidential candidate or not; for no man ought to be so narrow and prejudiced that he can not accord the proper tribute to a man who performs a distinct and signal service, even though he might differ with said man on many issues and matters.

Despite what others say and write in their opposition to Mr. Hoover's nomination, the secretary of commerce still looks good to The Informer, and this paper is still contending for his nomination and election as Republican presidential candidate.

4/21/28 THE ANNOYING MR. BLEASE

THE other day Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, candidate for Presidential nomination on the Republican ticket, abolished segregation of Negro clerks in his department. That was a good move calculated to make Mr. Hoover more popular with the million or more Negroes in the United States who can cast a ballot without fear of lynching. Now comes the annoying Senator Blease, elected to his office by a handful of people in South Carolina (because the bulk of the electorate down there is disfranchised), complaining against this action. The Senator screams out the alarming news that Mr. Hoover's order "forced white girls to use the same accommodations as Negro employes" and that this tragic action would "destroy all chance the Secretary may have ever entertained of breaking the 'Solid South.'" "If the policy started by Mr. Hoover is kept up," the fiery South Carolinian predicts, "those who have been dreaming a happy thought of a respectable Republican party in the South might as well wake up."

Ah! the delightful Senator Blease. We are beginning to realize now what his mission is in the United States Senate. It is, we are compelled to believe, the upholding of white supremacy and the spread of jim crowism. To Senator Blease an American must be what is called white before he can be classed as a citizen. Coming from a benighted area where Negroes are only a notch removed from serfdom, deprived of all political rights and privileges, and whose sweat coins millions for their exploiters, Mr. Blease naturally wishes to extend this sort of thing over the length and breadth of the land. To that end he has labored assiduously since his election. At all times he is ready to annoy every public man who is trying to do the fair and right thing.

While we hold no particular brief for Mr. Hoover as a Presidential candidate, we believe that the support he will get for his ending of segregation in his department will far outweigh any opposition engendered by the ranting of Senator Blease to arouse home and national Ku Klux sentiment. When it comes to votes we think those of the Negroes in the more civilized areas of the country will far outnumber the handful in South Carolina and neighboring states who are permitted to vote.

NEGRO POALITICAL LEADER CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTING TO SELL POSTMASTERSHIP AT MEMPHIS

Telegram to The New York Age

Washington, D. C.—A political bomb was exploded here Wednesday when G. H. Poole, a white man of Memphis, Tenn., made the charge that Robert R. Church, nationally known Republican politician, offered to sell Poole the postmastership of Memphis for a consideration of $2,400 in an affidavit filed with Postmaster General New by I. J. Harwood, Republican leader of Western Tennessee.

The Postmaster General immediately forwarded the charges to Attorney General Sargent with a request for action.

No one here or elsewhere who knows Mr. Church, believes for an instant that the sensational charges will be found to be of the least merit or will be in any way substantiated by the Department of Justice investigation, which Mr. Church, himself, most urgently demands.

The Church candidate for the $8,000 postmastership at Memphis was nominated by President Coolidge nearly a year ago. The nomination was only recently withdrawn after the Senate either refused or threatened to refuse confirmation.

HOOVER STILL LOOKS GOOD TO US

The recent courageous and patriotic action taken by Secretary of Commerce Herbert C. Hoover, in abolishing racial segregation and discrimination from his department at Washington, D. C., merely bears out what The Informer has stated in these columns heretofore regarding Mr. Hoover's Americanism, Republicanism and patriotism. Informer 4-21-28

Despite that fact that charges have already been made that Mr. Hoover was merely "playing politics" in the issuance of this edict putting an end to this evil system and pernicious practice, why did not some of his predecessors play this same game and do, years ago, what Mr. Hoover has done recently?

Despite the fact that racial segregation in several of the governmental departments at Washingon, has been repeatedly called to the attention of President Calvin Coolidge; Hon. William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, and other national party leaders, both in and out of congress, Mr. Hoover was the first one to act decisively and courageously.

In its support of Mr. Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination, The Informer has always regarded the commerce secretary as a man possessed with an independent mind; courageous, fearless, able, honest, just and efficient.

The country needs a president who is not a politician, but statesman and economist—a man with the courage of his convictions—and no man in America fits this bill better than Herbert C. Hoover.

In his administration of affairs in the flood area of the Mississippi River, Mr. Hoover showed that he believed in justice and fairness to all American citizens, and it is a matter of record that his official acts in this situation virtually wrought the second emancipation for thousands of Negro peons in the delta section—black men and women who had been held in abject bondage and serfdom on the large plantations of the affected region.

It required much moral courage and fortitude to issue an order abolishing a practice which had been in vogue in this and other governmental departments since the Taft administration; for while the Wilson administration sought to perpetuate this species of racial segregation, it had its birth during the Taft regime; and four American presidents—Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge—placed their official stamp of approval upon this evil and pernicious practice by refusing to issue an edict calling for its abolition.

Despite the fact that President Coolidge has publicly declared that he does not "choose" to run for president in 1928, which indicates that he has definitely decided to retire from public office and will not need the votes nor influence of certain political elements; and; notwithstanding Mr. Coolidge's assurance to various colored delegations that he would put an end to racial segregation in the various departments and bureaus of the government at the national capital, up to the present hour the chief executive not only has not issued such presidential proclamation or order, but he has not even said one word against this species of segregation and discrimination.

Let's be willing to give Mr. Hoover credit for his big act, whether he is our choice for presidential candidate or not; for no man ought to be so narrow and prejudiced that he can not accord the proper tribute to a man who performs a distinct and signal service, even though he might differ with said man on many issues and matters.

Despite what others say and write in their opposition to Mr. Hoover's nomination, the secretary of commerce still looks good to The Informer, and this paper is still contending for his nomination and election as Republican presidential candidate.

4/21/28 Pittsburg Courier

THE ANNOYING MR. BLEASE

THE other day Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, candidate for Presidential nomination on the Republican ticket, abolished segregation of Negro clerks in his department. That was a good move calculated to make Mr. Hoover more popular with the million or more Negroes in the United States who can cast a ballot without fear of lynching. Now comes the annoying Senator Blease, elected to his office by a handful of people in South Carolina (because the bulk of the electorate down there is disfranchised), complaining against this action. The Senator screams out the alarming news that Mr. Hoover's order "forced white girls to use the same accommodations as Negro employes" and that this tragic action would "destroy all chance the Secretary may have ever entertained of breaking the 'Solid South.'" "If the policy started by Mr. Hoover is kept up," the fiery South Carolinian predicts, "those who have been dreaming a happy thought of a respectable Republican party in the South might as well wake up."

Ah! the delightful Senator Blease. We are beginning to realize now what his mission is in the United States Senate. It is, we are compelled to believe, the upholding of white supremacy and the spread of jim crowism. To Senator Blease an American must be what is called white before he can be classed as a citizen. Coming from a benighted area where Negroes are only a notch removed from serfdom, deprived of all political rights and privileges, and whose sweat coins millions for their exploiters, Mr. Blease naturally wishes to extend this sort of thing over the length and breadth of the land. To that end he has labored assiduously since his election. At all times he is ready to annoy every public man who is trying to do the fair and right thing.

While we hold no particular brief for Mr. Hoover as a Presidential candidate, we believe that the support he will get for his ending of segregation in his department will far outweigh any opposition engendered by the ranting of Senator Blease to arouse home and national Ku Klux sentiment. When it comes to votes we think those of the Negroes in the more civilized areas of the country will far outnumber the handful in South Carolina and neighboring states who are permitted to vote.

NEGRO POALITICAL LEADER CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTING TO SELL POSTMASTERSHIP AT MEMPHIS

Telegram to The New York Age

Washington, D. C.—A political bomb was exploded here Wednesday when G. H. Poole, a white man of Memphis, Tenn., made the charge that Robert R. Church, nationally known Republican politician, offered to sell Poole the postmastership of Memphis for a consideration of $2,400 in an affidavit filed with Postmaster General New by I. J. Harwood, Republican leader of Western Tennessee.

The Postmaster General immediately forwarded the charges to Attorney General Sargent with a request for action.

No one here or elsewhere, who knows Mr. Church, believes for an instant that the sensational charges will be found to be of the least merit or will be in any way substantiated by the Department of Justice investigation, which Mr. Church, himself, most urgently demands.

The Church candidate for the $8,000 postmastership at Memphis nominated by President Coolidge nearly a year ago. The nomination was only recently withdrawn after the Senate either refused or threatened to refuse confirmation.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation

Jasper, Ala., Eagle
Wednesday, October 24, 1928

WHO STARTED NEGRO PROPAGANDA?

The presidential campaign of 1928 is drawing to a close, and a thousand things have been said during this campaign that would have been better left unsaid. Never before in the history of America has there been so much mud-slinging, false propaganda or so many appeals to prejudice. During the past few weeks the Anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans throughout Alabama have been protesting against the "negro propaganda" that has ben circulated by the Democrats. At this juncture it would not be amiss to ask who started the negro equality propaganda in this campaign. It was the Anti-Smith Democrats themselves. Read their first advertisements and recall their early speeches.

Early in September, 1928, Rev. L. D. Patterson delivered an address at the court house here and organized the Anti-Smith Democrats in Walker county. He attacked Gov. Smith for his alleged attitude toward the negro.

He said a high government official had told him that he had seen Gov. Smith eating and drinking with a negro man and that the negro slapped the governor on the shoulder and said: "We are going to put you over this time you old — — —." He also said a high government official had told him that he had seen Gov. Smith dancing with a negro woman.

Following Rev. Patterson's speech, The Eagle said editorially: "When one circulates scandal, he ought to give his authority for it and name his witnesses, if any." The Eagle then respectfully requested Rev. Patterson to divulge the name of the high government official quoted, and prominent members of the First Methodist Church here wrote Patterson asking him to give the name of the high government official and their letters were ignored as was The Eagle's editorial. Patterson's was the first negro propaganda heard in Jasper in this campaign. Later on came Hugh Locke and other speakers and they not only raised the negro equality question in their speeches but used it in their paid political advertisements throughout the state. stressing the alleged negro equality attitude of Smith.

Yet it is undenied that Herbert Hoover says he favors enforcing the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution. It goes undenied that the negro, Hawkins, who seconded Hoover's nomination at Kansas City hailed him as a second Lincoln who would restore the negro his political rights. There are still left in Alabama enough followers of George Houston and John T. Morgan to fight this battle out to the finish.

The Southern people do not hate the negro. Their attitude toward him is prompted by that God-given instinct of race preservation. Present conditions are better for the white race, better for the black.

EAGLE
Dothan, Ala
OCT 8 1928

'Republican Half-Breeds Are A Menace to the Hoover-Curtis Ticket"

(Front page editorial from the Atlanta Independent, Negro weekly newspaper edited by Ben Davis, Negro National Republican Committeeman of Georgia.)

The greatest menace to Republican success in November, is the curse of lilly-whitism in the south. For forty years these ignoramuses have been arguing to the National Republican leaders, that if the party would eliminate the Negro from the party councils, they would break the solid south, but have never made anybody believe their story except the lamented President Harding, who said before he died, that he had been deceived by these crooks and set about to repudiate them, and correct the error that they had led him into.

The same propaganda is being fed to the leaders now by the same aggregation of half-breeds with the same degree of success, and the colored electors are holding Mr. Hoover responsible for the calamity; and as a consequence, the republican ticket is suffering in the north for the want of Negro support.

The Negroes despise the lily whites and the lily-whites hate them unqualifiedly.

The lily-whites vote in the Democratic party primaries and want to hold all of the offices under every Republican administration and control and the party machinery in the south. All the trouble in the south today, is traceable to lily-white treachery, perfidity and ignorance.

The first step of the half-breeds, after they come into control, instead of working to elect the ticket, is to drive the Negro out out of the party. They never think of elevating the ticket but of eliminating the Negro. They'll tell any lie, commit perjury or stoop to any depths to play their game.

While we do not believe that Mr. Hoover is a party to, or has guilty knowledge of this diabolical scheme to disfranchise the Negro; plotted by the lily-whites and executed by his agents, we have many reasons to conclude that the scheme is being encouraged by men high up in his war councils.

What Mr. Hoover wants, to win the election, is votes, and not races, votes count election day and not color. The lily-whites would rather see Hoover defeated than to know that the Negro had a hand in the work of success.

In Georgia the regular organization surrendered every thing to a white committee which has turned out to be a dyed in the wool lily-white outfit, which is carrying more scurrilous matter about the Negro than the Democrats are carrying. Chas. Adamson, King of the lily-whites, is sending out a letter soliciting funds and assuring those who will give, as an inducement, that the party will never have another Negro National Committeeman. This animal is at the head of our electoral ticket and was placed there by "nigger" votes. He is only a sample of the lily-whites who are doing more to defeat the Republican ticket than to elect it. But Mr. Adamson has never been anything more than an ignorant piece of self-conceit without influence out side of his factory. If we hear any more of him, the "niggers" who put him on the ticket will take him off. Just such men as he are responsible for the northern Negro's attitude towards Mr. Hoover.

The one effort of the lily-white organization, is to eliminate the Negro, discredit the organization that created it with a view of controlling the "pie counter" after the election.

This organization is doing precisely nothing. It has not called on the organization for a list of the county and district organizations, but has contented to make itself a one man organization in order to claim credit for the work of the anti-Smith Democrats and the regular organization.

It is not the function of a campaign committee to put out an electoral ticket but of the party organization, and these half-breeds has as well understand it once and for all times.

The head of this lily-white organization expressed the view the other day that if white speakers took part in the meeting in Clinch County at which the Secretary of the regular organization was to be the principal speaker, Mr. Hoover would lose white votes.

Who believes that Mr. Hoover would stand for this abominable rot and at the same time appealing for Negro votes throughout the country. No, Mr. Hoover is too big to have any part in this conspiracy to humiliate the race. Hoover loves humanity, not races any further than races make up humanity.

Political - 1928
Party Affiliation

Jasper, Ala., Eagle
Wednesday, October 24, 1928

WHO STARTED NEGRO PROPAGANDA?

The presidential campaign of 1928 is drawing to a close, and a thousand things have been said during this campaign that would have been better left unsaid. Never before in the history of America has there been so much mud-slinging, false propaganda or so many appeals to prejudice. During the past few weeks the Anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans throughout Alabama have been protesting against the "negro propaganda" that has ben circulated by the Democrats. At this juncture it would not be amiss to ask who started the negro equality propaganda in this campaign. It was the Anti-Smith Democrats themselves. Read their first advertisements and recall their early speeches.

Early in September, 1928, Rev. L. D. Patterson delivered an address at the court house here and organized the Anti-Smith Democrats in Walker county. He attacked Gov. Smith for his alleged attitude toward the negro.

He said a high government official had told him that he had seen Gov. Smith eating and drinking with a negro man and that the negro slapped the governor on the shoulder and said: "We are going to put you over this time you old — — —." He also said a high government official had told him that he had seen Gov. Smith dancing with a negro woman.

Following Rev. Patterson's speech, The Eagle said editorially: "When one circulates scandal, he ought to give his authority for it and name his witnesses, if any." The Eagle then respectfully requested Rev. Patterson to divulge the name of the high government official quoted, and prominent members of the First Methodist Church here wrote Patterson asking him to give the name of the high government official and their letters were ignored as was The Eagle's editorial. Patterson's was the first negro propaganda heard in Jasper in this campaign. Later on came Hugh Locke and other speakers and they not only raised the negro equality question in their speeches but used it in their paid political advertisements throughout the state. stressing the alleged negro equality attitude of Smith.

Yet it is undenied that Herbert Hoover says he favors enforcing the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution. It goes undenied that the negro, Hawkins, who seconded Hoover's nomination at Kansas City hailed him as a second Lincoln who would restore the negro his political rights. There are still left in Alabama enough followers of George Houston and John T. Morgan to fight this battle out to the finish.

The Southern people do not hate the negro. Their attitude toward him is prompted by that God-given instinct of race preservation. Present conditions are better for the white race, better for the black.

EAGLE
Dothan, Ala.
OCT 8 1928

'Republican Half-Breeds Are A Menace to the Hoover-Curtis Ticket"

(Front page editorial from the Atlanta Independent, Negro weekly newspaper edited by Ben Davis, Negro National Republican Committeeman of Georgia.)

The greatest menace to Republican success in November, is the curse of lilly-whitism in the south. For forty years these ignoramuses have been arguing to the National Republican leaders, that if the party would eliminate the Negro from the party councils, they would break the solid south, but have never made anybody believe their story except the lamented President Harding, who said before he died, that he had been deceived by these crooks and set about to repudiate them, and correct the error that they had led him into.

The same propaganda is being fed to the leaders now by the same aggregation of half-breeds with the same degree of success, and the colored electors are holding Mr. Hoover responsible for the calamity; and as a consequence, the republican ticket is suffering in the north for the want of Negro support.

The Negroes despise the lily whites and the lily-whites hate them unqualifiedly.

The lily-whites vote in the Democratic party primaries and want to hold all of the offices under every Republican administration and control and the party machinery in the south. All the trouble in the south today, is traceable to lily-white treachery, perfidity and ignorance.

The first step of the half-breeds, after they come into control, instead of working to elect the ticket, is to drive the Negro out out of the party. They never think of elevating the ticket but of eliminating the Negro. They'll tell any lie, commit perjury or stoop to any depths to play their game.

While we do not believe that Mr. Hoover is a party to, or has guilty knowledge of this diabolical scheme to disfranchise the Negro; plotted by the lily-whites and executed by his agents, we have many reasons to conclude that the scheme is being encouraged by men high up in his war councils.

What Mr. Hoover wants, to win the election, is votes, and not races, votes count election day and not color. The lily-whites would rather see Hoover defeated than to know that the Negro had a hand in the work of success.

In Georgia the regular organization surrendered every thing to a white committee which has turned out to be a dyed in the wool lily-white outfit, which is carrying more scurrilous matter about the Negro than the Democrats are carrying. Chas. Adamson, King of the lily-whites, is sending out a letter soliciting funds and assuring those who will give, as an inducement, that the party will never have another Negro National Committeeman. This animal is at the head of our electoral ticket and was placed there by "nigger" votes. He is only a sample of the lily-whites who are doing more to defeat the Republican ticket than to elect it. But Mr. Adamson has never been anything more than an ignorant piece of self-conceit without influence out side of his factory. If we hear any more of him, the "niggers" who put him on the ticket will take him off. Just such men as he are responsible for the northern Negro's attitude towards Mr. Hoover.

The one effort of the lily-white organization, is to eliminate the Negro, discredit the organization that created it with a view of controlling the "pie counter" after the election.

This organization is doing precisely nothing. It has not called on the organization for a list of the county and district organizations, but has contented to make itself a one man organization in order to claim credit for the work of the anti-Smith Democrats and the regular organization.

It is not the function of a campaign committee to put out an electoral ticket but of the party organization, and these half-breeds has as well understand it once and for all times.

The head of this lily-white organization expressed the view the other day that if white speakers took part in the meeting in Clinch County at which the Secretary of the regular organization was to be the principal speaker, Mr. Hoover would lose white votes.

Who believes that Mr. Hoover would stand for this abominable rot and at the same time appealing for Negro votes is too big to have any pacy to humiliate the race. Hoover loves humanity, not races any further than races votes.

No, Mr. Hoover part in this conspiring to make up humanity.

REPUBLICAN WARD IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

Lest it be forgotten, there was one ward in this State that was carried by the Republicans—Ward 7 of Columbia. Mr. Hoover beat Governor Smith by 10 votes. This Ward is in the eastern section of Columbia and is the center of a large colored population, some of the leading Negroes of the City and State having their homes there. In 1920 this same Ward was carried by President Harding. Maybe, in the future, Ward 7 will not occupy this unique position in South Carolina. No doubt there will be many Wards and precincts that will give a Republican majority. But, anyway, there is at present one Republican bailiwick in Democratic South Carolina.

BOB CHURCH RUMOR BURSTS LIKE BUBBLE UNDER SWEEP OF SCOTT FACTS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.—When requested today to comment on Mr. Robert R. Church's article released to colored newspapers, Doctor Emmett J. Scott, a member of the Executive Committee of Nine, Colored Voters' Division, Republican National Committee, consented only to say:—

"What a beautiful thing is a man of straw! He can be set up and he can be knocked down with impunity, and with blatant fury. Courage is indeed a wonderful thing, but it is not courage but cowardice when one seeks to launch an attack against a man of straw instead of against the foeman with whom one would rather not have controversy, and from whom one prefers to flee in fear and trembling.

Says Church Fears Vann

"Mr. Robert L. Vann, Editor and Publisher of the Pittsburgh Courier, and Chairman of the Publicity Committee, Colored Voters' Division, Republican National Committee, informed mutual friends of Mr. Church before his article appeared that he (Mr. Vann), not only wrote but took full responsibility for the article which appeared in The Courier, describing Mr. Church's acrobatic activities during the campaign years 1920, 1924 and 1928.

Mr. Church's Courage

"If it pleases Mr. Church to throw his shining lance in my direction instead of in the direction of the man who knew of, and described his acrobatic activities during the campaign years referred to, and who has exposed them to the mirthful gaze of the public, I am well content with the exhibition he makes of his 'courage' and his self-sufficiency.

"Mr. Church says he is trying to help Mr. Hoover's cause and that of the Republican Party. His actions, however, suggest that he is laboring under hallucinations of super personal grandeur and self-exaltation in his all-too-apparent attempt to destroy party harmony. He can not demonstrate his loyalty to the Republican Party or to Mr. Hoover, however, by seeking to destroy the influence of John R. Hawkins and those who have been designated by Dr. Work, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, to represent him in the management of the Colored Voters' Division.

"For myself, I can only say: I did not contribute in any way whatsoever a single line, a single sentence, a single paragraph, or a single suggestion to the article Mr. Robert R. Church of Memphis, Tennessee, says he is 'informed' I wrote, and which he knows I did not write."

J. M. HARRISON, LEADING LAWYER, SCORES REPUBLICAN PARTY, TELLS REASONS FOR OPPOSING HOOVER

J. M. Harrison of this city, one of the leading colored members of the Virginia bar, and one of the first colored men in the State of Virginia to take a stand for Governor Smith, in a statement made public this week, scored the Republican party as present constituted, and outlined ten forceful reasons for his opposition to Hoover.

"I do not see how any thoughtful and self-respecting Negro can vote for the Republican party as present constituted," Mr. Harrison stated. "The base ingratitude shown him after over half a century of blind and loyal devotion is without parallel in history, and I for one will do everything in my power to repudiate it," Attorney Harrison continued.

"Not contented with disgracing, ignoring and humiliating the leading Negroes, which was deliberately designed, it has joined an alliance with the most unAmerican and race hating group in America—the ku klux klan," Mr. Harrison went on. Continuing he said, "This organization of hooded violence has been repudiated and driven out by the best element of Southern people, and to the everlasting shame of the party of Lincoln has found hospitable asylum in its political household. It is said that in every evil there is some good, and I verily believe the action of the Grand Old Party is the salvation of the Negro, for in my opinion there could be nothing to cause him to break his political allegiance of so many years, except the treatment he has received in the house of his friends.

"The Negroes of Virginia at least live among a more tolerant class of people, and while the Dyer anti-lynching bill has been practically asphyxiated in Congress, the recent Democratic legislature of Virginia under the leadership of its progressive young governor, Harry F. Byrd, not only passed an anti-lynching bill but adjourned in honor of Lincoln's birthday. The Negroes of today represent self-determination and in a large measure are rallying to the support of Governor Smith. I believe the following reasons are logical ones for the thinking people of my group to consider and approve, and then support Smith, for it will prove that we have become independent and politically emancipated:

Ten Reasons Why I Am Against Hoover

1. I am against Hoover because he represents a party guilty of the basest political ingratitude known to the history of this country.

2. I am against Hoover because he has permitted the lily whites to ostracise, humiliate and disgrace the outstanding Negro leaders in the South.

3. I am against Hoover because in the partnership with the ku klux klan, he has accepted its support well aware of its religious intolerance bigotry and race prejudice.

J. M. HARRISON

4. I am against Hoover because he has not taken a decisive stand as to what his intentions are with reference to our group; his silence can only be interpreted as his being afraid to offend the lily whites and the klan.

5. I am against Hoover because the prosperity of which he boasts is only superficial; there are over 3,000,000 people out of work (bootleggers not included).

6. I am against Hoover because I believe this to be the phychological moment for the Negro to emancipate himself from political slavery.

7. I am against Hoover because the Republican Party in its greed for power has forgotten the Negro's loyalty, and for political expediency has joined hands with the ku klux klan, generally known as our bitterest enemy.

8. I am against Hoover because he has shown a marked tendency to use "weasel words' and is "pussyfooting" in a campaign that calls for a broad and uncompromising stand against the unAmerican propaganda circulated by the Republican Party.

9. I am against Hoover because the "Me too Boss, hat in hand Negro opportunists and adventurers" are willing and ready to sell our political birthrights for the proverbial "mess of pottage."

10. I am against Hoover because he has apparently lost the common touch, and is not in sympathy with the common people, and further, because the voice may be the voice of Hoover, but the hands are the hands of the lily whites and klan

INDIANS ON ROSTRUM, NEGROES IN BALCONY WHEN CURTIS SPEAKS

RALEIGH, N. C.—Describing the scene in the city auditorium when Senator Charles Curtis, Republican vice-presidential candidate, entered to address a political meeting here the other night, one of the daily papers stated:

"Much Enthusiasm"

"When Curtis entered the auditorium the crowd rose and shouted while he was piloted to the platform by ushers and local Republican dignitaries. On the right of the stage was a group of Croton Indians from Robeson county. The senator, who is part Indian himself, marched straight toward them and shook their hands. For a moment a silence dropped over the crowd like a wet blanket. They thought the dark skinned Indians were Negroes, that Curtis had pulled a political faux pas. But soon the word passed out and the cheers broke out again. There were about 50 Negroes present but they were sitting in the upper balcony."

Political-1928

Party Affiliation

JUDGE EVINS CALLS FOR A UNITED FRONT

Makes Eloquent Appeal For Reason And Consideration By Alabama Democrats

One hundred representative citizens of Alabama who met recently in the Tutwiler Hotel in Birmingham heard Judge Robert B. Evins, of Birmingham, make what is considered the ablest statement of the present political situation in the state that has been presented.

The following strong appeal to the reason of those Democrats who ally themselves with the Republican party, through what Judge Evins believes to be mistaken obligations of citizenship or conscience is made for their open minded and serious consideration.

In the present campaign many good citizens, formerly consistent believers in and supporters of the Democratic party feel, for various reasons, that they are under an obligation of citizenship or of conscience, to break the bonds that have hitherto united them with that party and are now lending their aid to the election of the national Republican ticket.

These gentlemen and ladies too, could not thus ally themselves with the hereditary political enemy of the Southern people if they took into consideration the conseuences which will most surely follow the repudiation of the Democratic ticket in this campaign by any one of the States which constitute the solid South.

Recognizing their undoubted right to think and vote as they please, but believing that their interest in the prosperity, the happiness and the general welfare of our people is not less than that of those of us who feel the support of the Democratic national ticket to be a matter of the plainest self interest and of the highest patriotic duty I am setting forth the reasons which, regardless of any and every other consideration that does or could, exist, makes it, so far as I am concerned an imperative duty to support, with every force and power at my command, the national ticket of the Democratic party I hope that every white man and white woman in this State, to whose attention this expression may come, will, for their own sake as well as mine, give it their open minded and serious consideration.

I was born and, for many years, I lived in the heart of the Black Belt of Alabama, at Marion and at Greensboro. In common with most men of similar environment I have a sincere interest in and smyathy for the negro as a race and as an individual. I rejoice in their advancement in material prosperity, in education and in morals. But I know that no possible misfortune could befall us, or them, that could compare, in its evil consequences to the inevitable results of their recrudesence in the political life of the state. Nothing could be so quickly and so certainly productive of business chaos, legislative debauch, social disorder, poltical anarchy, racial hatred, misgovernment, violence and bloodshed, as to make them again a factor in the politics of this state.

Such a condition in this state must not be permitted to arise if any sacrifice that can be made will be effective to prevent it. It is, as I think I shall conclusively show, the condition that will arise if Mr. Hoover is elected with the aid of any of the states that make up the solid South.

I lay it down as a fact, as to which there can be no debate as to which there can be no difference of opinion, that white supremacy, complete and unchallenged, is the one political condition absolutely necessary to the happiness, the prosperity and the social order of our state. As long as that exists we can adjust ourselves to any political environment or condition, no matter how distasteful it may be. But without the undisputed supremacy of the white race in political affairs our situation becomes intolerable.

Whites Endangered.

It can not be doubted from the danger signals that flash from the utterances of both black and white Republicans, including Mr. Hoover himself that if the Republican national ticket is elected with the aid of Alabama, or a state like it, that the Hoover administration will not pass into history before it has accomplished the enactment of Federal legislation that will effectually destroy white supremacy in the South.

It may be thought by some that the suffrage provisions of our state constitution, which have protected us in this respect since 1901 will be a sufficient shield. No error could be more fatal. Our Constitution does protect us in the present state of Federal legislation on this subject, but, if legislation which Congress has a plain right to enact, under certain circumstances should be adopted our state Constitution would be wholly ineffective to protect us from the consequences. The qualifications for suffrage, laid down by our constitution are an imperishable monument to the legal ability and patriotic devotion of that great lawyer, Judge Thomas Wilkes Coleman, of Eutaw, who is their author. They have been approved by the Supreme Court of the United States and they take us to the very limit to which the State may go in view of the restrictions imposed on the state by the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. But, in the application of these qualifications, a Republican Congress can claim, whether justifiably so or not, that there is a fraudulent discrimination against the negro which requires Congressional action to make the Fifteenth Amendment effective. It can claim that the boards of registrars, (created by the legislature of Alabama, and filled by the appointment by the governor of Alabama), register white men and women who dot not meet the Constitutional requirements, and refuse to register negro men and women who do meet the Constitutional requirements, and it can declare that while our Constitutional provisions as to the registration of voters, are fair on their face, they are grossly unfair in their administration. On the basis of such a declaration, which a partisan majority can make whether it is a fact or not, Congress can pass a law providing that the registration of voters shall be made by a board of registrars appointed not by our governor, but by a Republican president. Such a law would be sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States Mr. Hoover in president, would appoint the members of those boards. Can you doubt that the man who is hailed by the negroes as a reincarnated Lincoln, would appoint on those boards members of the negro race and when we, our wives, daughters and mothers go to register, their right to do will be passed on by a board constituted in part or in whole of negroes? How, it may be asked, will Democrats who support Mr. Hoover be pleased with this monstrous offspring of the unnatural political marriage they are contracting?

This is what can be done. Why has it not been done before and what reason have we to expect that it will be done now in the event that we in the South become responsible for Mr. Hoover's election.

It has not been done before because, from the end of the Civil War to this good day the Northern and Eastern Democracy, including Tammany whom some seem to think it is a mark of social distinction to repudiate, have been our firm and loyal friends and allies Who was it that signed the bail bond which released Jefferson Davis from a Federal prison and the handcuffs which a vindictive and ungenerous enemy had placed upon him? They were members of Tammany Hall. Who was it that volunteered, without compensation, to defend him? It was Charles O'Conor, one of the greatest lawyers this country ever produced, and a member of Tammany Hall. Who was responsible for the removal of Federal soldiers stationed in the South for 12 long years after Appomattox, to support with Federal bayonets the rule of the negro and the carpet bagger over the white people of this state? It was Abram S. Hewitt a member of Congress from New York a member of Tammany Hall.

Mr. J. J. Willett, of Anniston, in a recent letter to the press relates the circumstances. In 1878 Mr. Hewitt offered an amendment to the general appropriation bill providing that none of the money appropriated for the army should be used in maintaining the Army of Occupation in the South. The House adopted the amendment; the Senate refused to concur in it. Mr. Hewitt refused to withdraw it and Congres was forced to adjourn without having provided money for any department of the government. President Hayes was forced to call Congress in extra session to pass an appropriation bill. Every pressure was brought to bear on Mr. Hewitt but he stood firm and refused to allow the bill to pass without the provision he had inserted and because money had to be provided for running the government, it was passed with that provision in it, and the federal soldiers had to be withdrawn from the South for lack of money to keep them here. It is a matter of history that a member of Tammany Hall was the leader and the effective agent in restoring us here in the South to the status of a free and self-governing people.

The Force Bill

For the last 50 years we have dealt with this problem in our own way only because we have always had the unflincing and loyal support of the northern and eastern democracy. When Henry Cabot Lodge in 1890, introduced his bill to provide for the federal supervision of elections, known as "The Force Bill," intending thereby to again make us subject politically to the negro and his ally, the northern Republican, every solitary one of the 11 members of Tammany Hall in the House of Representatives led by Roswell P. Flower, afterwards governor of New York, voted and fought against it.

Our salvation has been our political alliance with the northern and eastern Democracy, including Tammany. Can we now afford to break that alliance? Are we any more able now of our own strength to defeat this sort of legislation than we have been in the past? Have we any less need of friends than we have had in the past? Clearly not. As you will see, from what follows, days of trial are still ahead. If we repudiate our friends in the North and East, if we fight the candidate whom these ancient and loyal friends of ours have nominated, if we estrange them, and declare them to be unfit for us to associate with politically, with what grace, or, if we had the effrontery to do so, with what hope of success could we ask their aid when the next assault is made upon us?

What are the warnings that we have plainly before us that an effort will be made to pass this legislation They are on every hand, they are so plain and menacing that no man or woman of this state can afford to treat them lightly.

Consider first the attitude of the negroes themselves. Mr. Hoover is their debtor, and he and they both recognize it.

In the Republican convention Mr. Hoover was very actively supported by the negro delegates, of whom there were more than a hundred. He had endeared himslf to them a short time before by abolishing in th Census Department an order, made during Mr. Wilson's term, separating the white and colored employes in that department. The result is that since that time, to this very day, the two races are huddled together, sit together and are compelled to use the same rest rooms and lavatories. From this these negroes draw the conclusion and it would seem that they draw it correctly, that Mr. Hoover, having already as far as he can, established social and political equality, will go as much farther in that direction, if he is elected president, as his great powers as president will permit. So, he was their candidate in the Republican convention. A negro known as Professor John R. Hawkins, seconded Mr. Hoover's nomination. In his speech he said that two great races settled and built up this country—the Pilgrim Fathers who landed at Plymouth Rock and the negroes who landed at Jamestown and clearly implied that in his opinion they, that is, the northern white man and the southern negro were entitled to govern it. He excluded the white man in the South from any part whatever in the past building or future government of this country—and the Republican convention of whites and blacks applauded him to the echo. Does the fact that these sentiments were endorsed by that convention and further endorsed by the Republican national campaign committee, by the designation of Hawkins as chairman of a very important sub- committee mean anything? Can any Alabama citizen become aware of it and contemplate Mr. Hoover's election without the greatest apprehensions? Will not the preconvention policy shown in the abolition of the segregation order be followed up after election, and the debt of gratitude to Hawkins and other negro supporters be paid in full? But this, though sufficient is but the beginning. The Atlanta Independent is a newspaper published in Atlanta by Ben Davis, negro member of the National Republican Executive committee from Georgia. In the Sept. 6 issue of this paper is an editorial with the caption, "What Sort of a President Will Hoover Make." The following excerpts from this editorial are highly significant:

> "The paramount question in the mind of the average negro American, who thinks is, What Kind of President Will Herbert Hoover make if elected in November? And this question as thought out and applied in their minds is not what kind of president will he make, in the general acceptance of the term and office, but what kind of president will he make in the enforcement of the constitutional rights of every American citizen without regard to faith or color; or whether under Mr. Hoover as president, so far as lie in his power, under the constitution, will the negro enjoy an equality of economic and political opportunities in common with all other Americans without reservation or molestation in every state in the Union.
>
> This question is paramount in the mind of the colored group, because the written record of the party shows that the group has been losing its force and indispensability in both the economic and political life of the nation since 1900; and the hour for answering the question affirmatively is at hand; and mandatory. And we believe the nomination and election of Herbert Hoover is the favorable answer to our rightful inquiry and equitable demand.
>
> We have reached the period in the national life when the spirit of Abraham Lincoln returns in the person of Herbert Hoover, carnate, and repeats that the nation cannot long endure, half in economic and political slavery and half free. In Mr. Hoover the man and the crisis have met, and his election means the gradual suppression of the forces that oppress and persecute human beings because of color and race. The feeding of the world, and contact with all the people of the earth have made Herbert Hoover too big to discriminate against one race for another, because of faith or color.
>
> When his attention was called to segregation in his department, he said, "let me investigate." He investigated; he discovered the truth. He never thought of race, color, nor politics, but of people, human beings, serving the government in common. He acted, and there is no segregation in his department.

In his speech of acceptance he declared for equal opportunity for every American. He made no promise to any race, or group, but to all people. He condemned economic discrimination when he said, "The basis of enduring prosperity is a job for every man at a living wage, vouchsafed by adequate protection to American labor and industry." He declared for the enforcement of the Constitution, and all of its amendments. And, if elected, appropriate legislation will be recommended for the enforcement of the 13th, 14th, 15th and 18th amendments.

Cincinnatus has been called from the plow to lead the Republican party back to the moorings where Abe Lincoln and Fred Douglass launched it."

Quoting Hoover

The author of this editorial, Ben Davis, is, as stated, the negro member of the Republican National Campaign Committee from Georgia. He was an active and very valuable supporter of Mr. Hoover in his campaign for the nomination and contributed largely to his nomination. When he says, positively, "And if elected president, appropriate legislation will be recommended for the enforcement of the 13th, 14th, 15th and 18th amendments," (the 15th being the negro voting amendment), can you doubt that he makes that assertion on the assurance of Mr. Hoover himself? He states positively what Mr. Hoover will do. To be able to make that statement he must have the promise of Mr. Hoover.

In the issue of this paper for Sept. 27, there is a front page editorial, discussing the Republican organization in Georgia, containing the following:

"In Georgia the regular organization surrendered everything to a white committee which has turned out to be a dyed in the wool lily-white outfit, which is carrying more scurrilous matter about the negro than the Democrats are carrying. Charles Adamson, king of the lily whites, in sending out a letter soliciting funds and assuring those who will give, as an inducement, that the party will never have another negro national committeeman. This animal is at the head of our electoral ticket and was placed there by 'nigger's' votes. He is only a sample of the lily whites who are doing more to defeat the Republican ticket than to elect it. But Mr. Adamson has never been anything more than an ignorant piece of self-conceit without influence outside of his factory. If we hear any more of him, the 'niggers' who put him on the ticket will take him off."

Observe the spirit of this. He refers to Mr. Adamson as "This animal," and says that if Mr. Adamson is so presumptuous as to let anything more be heard from him he will be punished. What sort of a state do you suppose Alabama would be to live in with a hundred thousand colored voters led by such insolence and arrogance as this. As further reflecting the expectations of the negro politicians, and of the spirit with which they anticipate their political enthronement in the South, the following from The Nashville Banner of recent date is interesting:

"One of the leading negro politicians of North Carolina, and well known throughout the South to members of his race, is W. Lee Persons. Some 30 years ago, during the period when Republicans and Populists fused in North Carolina, he was a member of the State Legislature. He later ran for Congress, but was defeated by outraged whites. He has since been holding a government position in Washington.

"Emboldened by recent happenings, he has emerged and is making an appeal to Southern negroes." Below is given in full, an open letter from him published in The Asheville Citizens. Read it closely:

"I welcome the accession of Senator Simmons to our ranks. Conversion is better late than never. Long ago we were antagonists, but we never struck below the belt. Today I welcome him with open arms to the grand old party of God and morality. After all these years of defeat and disaster for the black man's party in the South I can see us again coming into our own. Not a great many of us remain alive who can recall the days when black men sat in the chairs of state in the Southern capitols. Those days have long been gone, but bless God, I can see them returning. It is said that a house divided against itself cannot stand, and now I see the white people of the South dividing.

"I wish to use the newspaper of North Carolina to urge my people to get behind Senator Simmons and support him. What is true in North Carolina may be true in other Southern states. Just let us get control of the state machinery this time and Mr. Hoover in the White House will give us such help as will wipe out all the laws in the South which will keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man."

After welcoming Senator Simmons "to our party," he tells the negroes what a Republican victory will mean. It will "wipe out all the laws in the South which will keep the black man from moving on the same plane as the white man.

He recalls the days of the Reconstruction era "when black men sat in the chairs of state in the Southern capitols," and sees these days restored.

And what is true in North Carolina may be true in other Southern states. The assurance is based upon the election of Herbert Hoover to the presidency, Hoover whom the Negro Associated Press, published in Cleveland, Ohio, is urging Southern negroes to support for the reason that 'his broad and sympathetic understanding of human problems, as exemplified in his stamping out of segregation in his department in Washington as soon as it was called to his attention.'

This race issue has not originated with Democrats. It is made by Republicans. That Negroes everywhere are being given to understand that a national equality is being widely broadcast and has not been checked by one word from the Republican candidate for president.

The issue of white or black will hold the South again solid, as it should.

We do not know what Mr. Hoover has told these people privately, though from the assurance and arrogance of their attitude we may well assume that he has given them specific promises that the powers of the presidency will be invoked to restore them to political dominance in the South. But, his private expressions could not go much further than what he said in his speech of acceptance. He was discussing the 18th Amenrment and that suggested to his mind the 15th Amendment. This is what he said:

"Changes in the Constitution can and must be brought about only by the straightforward methods provided in the Constitution itself. There are those who do not believe in the purpose of several provisions of the Constitution."

There are but four provisions of the Constitution that are claimed to be ineffective through non-enforcement. One of them is the 18th, the prohibition amendment and the other three are the 13th, 14th and 15th relating to the civil and political rights of the negro. Of these last three the 15th is the one that it is most frequently said the Southern people have nullified. It is the amendment dealing with the right of the negro to vote. So that when Mr. Hoover said there were those who did not believe in the purpose of several provisions of the Constitution, he could have had reference not only to the 18th Amendment, but to the 13th, 14th and 15th as well. What his words meant was this:

"There are those" (the Southern people) "who do not believe in the purposes of several provisions of the Constitution" (the 13th, 14th and 15th).

He continues: "No one denies their right to seek to amend it. They are not subject to criticism for asserting that right."

That is he says we must submit to the same political domination we suffered under from 1865 to 1874 unless we can amend the Constitution, but that we must not relieve ourselves in any other way, because, he continues

"The Republican party does deny the right of any one to seek to destroy the purposes of the Constitution by indirection."

What Is Pledged.

Here it is in black and white. He charges that we do not believe in the purposes of the 15th Amendment, which is to place the negroes on a plane of political equality with us, and he is right. He charges that we have destroyed these "purposes" and we have done so carefully to this point, and he declares that the Republican party denies us this right and pledges himself to the enforcement of all provisions of the Constitution.

Can he fail, or refuse, if he is elected to carry out this pledge? Can we aid in his election when he has thus openly and positively committed himself to a course that can result only in our destruction? Is Davis wrong. Is Persons wrong, is Hawkins wrong, when they describe him as another Lincoln who will give them political domination as Lincoln gave them physical freedom?

If a plain and specific declaration of the intent of the Republican party to pass legislation to make the purposes of the 15th Amendment effective, that is, to put the negro on a plane of political equality with us, is thought to be lacking after a consideration of what I have already said, it is furnished in the following statement published in the newspapers on Oct. 4 and credited to Mr. Dyer, a Republican congressman from Missouri. Mr. Dyer is the man who has been trying for several years to pass a bill making the community in which lynching occurs, liable in damages therefor. His bill is still pending, and its passage is made a plank of the present Republican platform. A vote for Mr. Hoover, it may be said, in passing, is a vote endorsing that bill.

The newspaper account of Mr. Dyer's statement is as follows:

"Revival of the Dyer anti-lynching bill which would permit sending Federal officers into counties and states at the discretion of the U. S. District attorney is predicted by the author of that famous measure, Representative L. C. Dyer, of the Twelfth Missouri Congressional District, who, as quoted in an interview published in the Arkansas Gazette, of Little Rock, also has been talking about enforcement acts for the 14th and 15th amendments.

The Dyer bill, which was frankly aimed to permit the use of Federal strength in the South, passed the House in 1923, but was killed in the Senate after a three-day filibuster which was conducted by Democratic members under the leadership of Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama.

Congressman Dyer, who is one of the prominent supporters of Herbert Hoover, predicted that the Republican presidential nominee will blow the solid South to pieces in November," according to the interview in the Arkansas Gazette.

"'It is just as logical for Congress to enact laws for the rigid enforcement of these two amendments as to have the Volstead act for the enforcement of the 18th Amendment," Dyer was quoted as having said. "'The Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments have provisions for enforcement laws just the same as has the Eighteenth Amendment.

"'My anti-lynching bill, intended for the enforcement of the 14th Amendment, passed the House by a vote of two to one. It went to the Senate and had the support of a majority of the senators, but the Southern Democratic senators took advantage of the filibuster and prevented its coming to a vote in the Senate. Had the despotic rules of the Senate been changed as Vice President Dawes demanded and worked for, giving the Senate fair and sane rules to work under, it would have been an easier matter to have had my anti-lynching bill become law.

"'The passage of this bill, would have led to the enactment of a law for the enforcement of the 15th Amendment also and would have given the negro his full rights as guaranteed by those Constitutional Amendments.

"'As it is now, those amendments amount to only the scraps of paper they are printed upon and they remain scraps of paper at the hands of the Southern senators, whose constituents yell the loudest about nullification at anyone who dares question the wisdom of the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act. I am opposed to prohibition and would vote to repeal the 18th Amendment.

"'Until that is done, however, I am in favor of enforcing the prohibition amendment as best we can by providing funds and the necessary machinery. I have so voted heretofore and will continue to do so while I am a member of Congress as long as the 18th Amendment stands. I could not do otherwise and be consistent in my contentment of the 14th and 15th Amendments as that for the enforcement of the 18th Amendment.

"'Perhaps the world has never witnessed such inconsistency as that exhibited by the people of the Southern States in demanding and bringing about the nullification of the 14th and 15th Amendments by their state Legislatures and at the same time demanding the enforcement of the 18th Amendment. It is simply amazing. No amendment to the Constitution means anything unless there is an enforcement act and sufficient funds appropriated for enforcement. There are powerful and influential people who are ready to demand of Congress at an early session laws with ample appropriations that will make these two amendments just as effective as the 18th Amendment.

"'My faith is such that I believe we will see the day and that not very far off, when the Federal government will, by virtue of Congressional acts, place enforcement officers in the Southern states charged with enforcing these two amendments and give the negroes their rights as citizens as guaranteed by the Constitution. President Coolidge, in one of his messages, recommended that the Federal government take charge of election in the states.

"'It will be seen that my views on prohibition are not in accord with those of Herbert Hoover, but Mr. Hoover's stand on prohibition has captured the imagination of the ardent Democratic drys of the South to such an extent that they have forgotten their Democracy and have declared for Hoover and Curtis. And they cannot sidestep. Hoover has their votes bagged. Who was it who mistakenly said that Herbert Hoover is not a good politician?

"'On Nov. 6 that great engineer-politician, Hoover, with the votes of the prohibitionists and those swayed because of the religious question in the South, will drive such a thick wedge through the heart of the Solid South and their 'white supremacy' slogan that it will blow up their whole unconstitutional program. After the 'Solid South' has been blown to pieces by Engineer Hoover, our next president, that will be the finish of the nullificationists of the South, who have for 60 years violated and prevented the enforcement of the 14th and 15th Amendments. Then Congress will enact enforcement laws that will give millions of negroes their Constitutional rights as citizens and place them on an equality with all other races.'"

These express declarations clearly discloses the Republican purpose. How is it possible for Alabama Democrats to aid in bringing it to pass?

In similar vein, but from another point of view, an editorial utterance from the Birmingham Truth, a negro newspaper published in Birmingham, expressing its reasons for opposing the Democratic ticket, is pertinent. The following paragraph is printed in heavy type:

"Al Smith has not even waited until he reached the White House to bend the knee to the South. When he took office for his second term he bended one knee; In his refusal to appoint a negro to the colonelcy of the 369th national guard regiment, because it "threatened" to make whose enlisted personnel is entirely colored; in his refusal to look into the matter of the Wills-Dempsey bill because it possible for a negro to be elected his refusal to appoint negroes even fight; in his refusal to sign the court of his own political faith to public

Political - 1928

Party Affiliation.

TRIBUNE
CHICAGO, ILL.
OCT 15 1928

WATSON SITS SILENT THROUGH COLORED RALLY

Comes Here to Address Negroes, but Doesn't.

Billed as the headliner at a colored Republican rally in the Eighth Regiment armory, United States Senator James Watson of Indiana sat on the platform for three hours yesterday before he was finally introduced to the audience. Then, after receiving scattering applause, he sat down without uttering a word.

Why the program was changed so that the principal speaker should be sandwiched in between two colored spellbinders with a perfunctory introduction was not explained to the crowd. Negro leaders, however, said they surmised that anti-Watson sentiment, which was manifest among many members of the audience, inspired by the Indiana senator's alleged affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan, prompted his withdrawal from the program.

Heckling Threat Overheard.

It was pointed out in support of this theory that during the meeting there were whispered conferences between Senator Watson and State Senator Adelbert Roberts, Negro chairman of the meeting.

Illustrative of the sort of sentiment which is said to have been responsible for the change in the program is this dialogue between two Negroes who were standing in the entrance to the armory.

"When is Senator Watson going to speak?" the first Negro inquired.

"Well, he better not talk here if he knows the time, the place, and the girl. We'll burn him up. He's K. K. K."

Senator Watson Explains.

After the meeting Senator Watson was approached for an explanation.

"O," he said, "I came here as a guest of Col. Roscoe Simmons. I was sent by the national committee. I had a bad throat and couldn't talk here."

"Did you expect to give an address when you arrived at the meeting?" he was asked.

"You bet," he answered, "I wanted to give them this," he added, setting his jaw forward in the pose of an orator discussing the issues of the campaign. "I spoke in Dayton last night and will speak again tomorrow night. One night's rest will be enough for my throat. Hoover will win. It's a cinch."

Candidates Scarce at Meeting.

Another feature of the meeting which aroused comment was the absence of all except one of the Republican state candidates, all of whom were on the program. Otis F. Glenn, candidate for United States senator, appeared and made a brief address at the end of the fourth hour of the meeting, after nearly half of the audience had departed.

The orators devoted most of their time to urging support of the Republican ticket for the protection and advancement of the Negro race.

In order to conteract the effect of yesterday's Republican Negro mass-meeting a Democratic rally is scheduled for tonight. It is to be held in the Wendell Phillips High school. The speakers will be three New York Negro leaders, Bishop Reverdy C. Ransom of the A. M. E. church, Ferdinand Q. Morton, and Willam A. Wallace.

G. F. PEABODY PRAISES STAND OF DEFENDER

The following telegram praising the fearless stand of The Chicago Defender in one of the most important presidential elections the country has ever anticipated, was received from George Foster Peabody, millionaire financier and philanthropist, who is known for the keen interest he displays in all matters pertaining to human relations and adjustment. The telegram, dated from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., reads:

Chicago Def.

Robert S. Abbott, Editor Chciago Defender: Bravo for your statesmanlike courage in advising your people to stop being chattels for Republican bosses when the party is angling for Lily White support, led by Bascom Slemp, the nominee's choice. I deeply sympathize with the profound difficulty for them to vote the Democratic ticket, but their freedoom to count as citizens depends on their making their vote tell as a matter of judgment and conscience, and not to be bought. Smith is a very human man and humble at heart, truly pious in his religion and if elected by the West and Northwest we may begin to break the Solid South domination of our party. It would be the end of Negro hope if Republican white primary is established in the South by Ku Klux Klan bigotry. I was impressed by Ferdinand K. Morton's presentation in the Crisis. Dr. Dubois, I thought, again failed to try to help your people out of the slough. Socialism cannot get anywhere in this country. You got on the right track for the ultimate realization of the power of workers who think for themselves. I hope Indiana will listen to you as well as Illinois.

POST
WASHINGTON, D. C.

OCT 14 1928

NEGRO G. O. P. BOSS STIRS UP TENNESSEE

Democrats Play Both Sides Against Middle in Republican Strife.

HARMONY IS PROFESSED

By CARLISLE BARGERON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 13.—The Democrats are having a merry time here over the efforts of the Hoover Republicans and Democrats to bury "Bob" Church, for years the negro Republican boss of this, Shelby, County. Church's supremacy has been unquestioned over the years, and with Representative J. Will Taylor, of the Second District, has been the Republican dispenser of patronage.

Now the Hoover management, with longing eyes at this and other Democratic States, would like to keep him in the background, at least. There are Democrats who say quite frankly that had Church been displaced before or at Kansas City they would be fighting for a lost cause in this State. They insist that even if Church should be eliminated now it would be too late, and the more the Hooverites try to do it the more trouble they create in their own camp.

The race issue is perhaps the Democrats' greatest asset in this troublous period. Their great rallying cry is that the Republican party is the party of the negro. Church and his leadership are held up as the exemplification of the charge.

Like Democratic Propaganda.

A story that one hears so often as to lead to the belief that it is a well-calculated piece of Democratic propaganda runs like this:

"Two negroes meeting on the street got to discussing politics. 'Who yuh goin' vote fer?' asked one. "Mistah Hoovah, but I understand the white folks have a candidate, too."

Senator McKellar, recently renominated in a bitter Democratic primary thunders away with the race issue everywhere he goes, and he is speaking all over the State. Mr. Hoover's now famous anti-segregation order is shouted from the housetops, and undoubtedly has its effect.

The paradox of it all is that the Democrats have sent negro leaders into the State to make capital among the negro Republicans of the manner in which Church has been treated. Dr. J. H. Tompkins, negro leader of Kansas City, came into the State and organized negro organizations at both Memphis and Nashville. Hoover has turned his back on the colored race, the negroes are being told, and not only is Church's treatment cited but that of Perry Howard, of Mississippi, and Ben Davis, of Georgia.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt went into Mississippi, it will be recalled, just after the Kansas City convention and had Howard and other negro leaders indicted for bartering in Federal appointments. Davis is yet to be reappointed national committeeman from Georgia, a post he had held up to Kansas City since the death of Henry Lincoln Johnson.

Charge by Democrats.

The negro Democratic workers are charging that the Republicans are deliberately withholding action in the Georgia case until after the election when a white man will be appointed. The way they tell of Howard's treatment is a caution. Not only did the Washington high command set out to prosecute him, it is charged, but a white woman was sent into the State to make sure that Howard would not have a chance.

This play of the Democrats for the colored vote does not react in the white Democratic ranks or publicly conflict with the charge that the Republican party is the party of the colored man, and this is true simply because it does not get into the newspapers.

It would be interesting to know Church's real feelings toward the Hoover cause, but regardless of how loyal he is he admittedly finds it hard to combat the arguments of the Democratic negro workers.

Here is what Church says for publication:

"Congressman J. W. Taylor is the head of the Republican organization for the State of Tennessee, and I think sending into the State of Congressman Evans, of California, under the direction of Col. Mann did ten times more harm among the organization than any other one agency. I understand that both Col. Mann and Mr. Evans will have nothing further to do in this State, and we are now getting our organization in shape to function normally. If Mr. Taylor and his organization is let alone the prospects are excellent for Mr. Hoover."

Taylor and Church Ignored.

It should be told just what has happened down here that called for this statement from Church. Early in the campaign Evans came here from California and proceeded to take charge of things, wholly ignoring Representative Taylor and Church. Just who was responsible for bringing in Evans was not fully developed, but it was assumed that Claudius C. Huston, of Chattanooga, who has long coveted Taylor's rule, had quite a bit to do with it.

From the outset of Hoover's ascendency in Republican things, Huston has been in the saddle in this State. He put Horace M. Mann in touch with Hoover, and Mann has become the Southern Republican manager. Matters have gone from bad to worse for Taylor and Church, who are sticking together. It was on Mann's advice that Hoover spoke at Elizabethton instead of at Knoxville, where Taylor wanted him to speak. Taylor was conspicuous at the Elizabethton ceremonies by his almost total absence. Taylor, like Church, still insists that everything is harmonious in the Republican ranks, and there is the suggestion in Church's statement that Tennessee has now been taken from under Mann's jurisdiction. It may be that peace has been made. If it has not, Church and Taylor can be expected to stand together.

Newspaper Has Fun.

The Memphis Commercial-Appeal, Smith supporter, has made high glee out of all this. In one editorial it asks why Church should be ignored "Why, he has always been the Republican arbiter here, the newspaper declares, gleefully. "Is there one who really believes that he is going to step aside for the new order of things now?" Then, whenever there is another turn of the wheel and it looks as though Church and Taylor are on top again, it holds up Church as the personication of the Republican party in the South.

At present Taylor and Church appear to have swung back to recognition. Mann, it is said, is to have no more to do with the Tennessee fight. Mr Hoover did not intend to slight Taylor at Elizabethtown, according to word from Hoover headquarters at Washington But it has been up and down like that with the Huston and Taylor factions a daggers' points all during the campaign It will probably continue that way.

Commercial Appeal 10-28

BIG FIGHT LOOMS FOR REPUBLICAN 'FAVORS'

Bob Church Still to Be Reckoned With.

WELLFORD HAS CLAIMS

Hoover "Non-Partisan" Leader May Contest Negro's Hold On Country, But He Will Encourage Opposition in Ranks.

Having accomplished the task of defeating the Democratic party, Republicans and Hooverrats in Memphis yesterday were preparing to choose sides for the real battle that is to come.

While Walker L. Wellford, chairman of Hoover "Non-Partisan" headquarters here is said to be stirred up over the turn of affairs that brought Tennessee into the Republican columns, regular organization leaders are prepared to dispute with Mr. Wellford any claims he may possess to party leadership here.

Commercial Appeal

Mr. Wellford has two figures to reckon with when Herbert Hoover moves into the White House in March for a four-year stay. One is Robert R. (Bob) Church, chieftain of the "Black-and-Tan" forces; the other Herbert L. Harper, defeated candidate for Congress.

Church Big Figure.

Bob Church, the negro, is still a big figure to reckon with in Republican circles, despite all claims of "Hoovercrats" to the contrary.

Mr. Harper's claims are purely claims of custom and will probably not seriously be considered. Up the country, in all recognized Republican circles, the party candidate such as Mr. Harper, whether he is defeated or victorious, is generally recognized as a factor in all patronage matters.

But Church is still on most friendly terms with the leading Republican senators and congressmen up the country. During the Coolidge administration he was a frequent visitor to the White House where he was always cordially received.

That he will continue to be well received is taken for granted by his followers here. That he is still "in the saddle" they do not for a moment doubt.

Worked With Negroes.

Church did considerable campaign work among his race up the country and was amply financed in his campaign for Mr. Hoover. He carried a page ad in the Chicago Defender asking negroes to stand by Mr. Hoover and the party in which they had friends.

Chuch's continuation as chieftain here will depend on two things. One is J. WiWIWi Taylor, national committeeman from Tennessee, and his influence with the new administration.

Church has always worked faithfully for J. Will. J. Will is said to have worked faithfully for Mr. Hoover. The colored man's own Second District came through Tuesday with a tremendous vote for Hoover. He is said to have been influential in the rest of East Tennessee.

Whether Paul Kruesi of Chattanooga can gain sufficient support within the party to succeed J. Will Taylor is a matter of grave doubt. Whether he will try or not has not been determined.

But, whatever the turn of events, there's going to be a big fight there.

Good Arguments.

There will be many good arguments to present on both sides when the battle really begins.

Wellford and his forces will probably contend that the negro vote in Memphis for Hoover this year was comparatively small.

Church will probably insist there was very little money sent here for organization work among the negroes. His followers will also contend that a greater part of the Hoover vote in Shelby was not Republican at all, but anti-Catholic, a [illegible] that was not accorded the oth[illegible] publican candidates.

[illegible]ellford, E. M. Kinney, John Farley and others practically ignored Harper in his race. Some have admitted they didn't vote for him themselves.

Wellford did not co-operate heartily with Harper because he did not care to have that candidate obtain a large enough vote to be a serious contender for favors of patronage, it is claimed.

Wellford supporters say many other things. Bob Church looks like the best bet at present.

HOOVER IN ACCORD WITH POLICY TO ELIMINATE RACE INFLUENCE

Hattiesburg Miss., Oct. 24—Herbert C. Hoover is entirely sympathetic with the South on the race question and in full accord with the policy to eliminate all Negroes from leadership, asserts T. J. Willis, one of the leading exponents of lily-whitism.

In support of this claim, Willis says that at the Kansas City Convention former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin, gave him the following message from the Republican Presidential nominee:

"You tell Mr. Willis and other representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated, the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We are going to have a white Republican party in the South."

Willis' Statement

Here is Willis' version of what happened at Kansas City with Mr. Hoover in the background: "When Perry Howard and his delegates arrived in Kansas City they were lined up with Mr. Butler of Massachusetts and Hilles of New York, who were leaders in the party opposing the nomination of Mr. Hoover. Butler controlled the entire delegation from his State while Hilles had half of New York's vote in his pocket; but Perry Howard and his gang had not been seated and we were up there to fight the recognition and prepared to cast our full strength for Hoover.

"Mr. Hoover stayed in his office in Washington, being personally represented in Kansas City by former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin. Learning of the fight between white and black factions of the party from Southern states, Hoover was apprised of the fact by a personal friend.

Hoovers's Views On Race

"Hoover is entirely in sympathy with the South on the race question since he has lived in California where the Orient has caused so much embarrassment. He understands the situation down here. He called Mr Lenroot in Kansas City and told him to bring utmost pressure to bear on the Credential Committee for the recognition and seating of the white delegates from the Southern states.

"But Lenroot, his personal manager at the convention, advised against the fight, saying that the nomination was already assured in spite of the Butler-Hilles opposition, and if the race issue were forced at that time it would result in unnecessary embarrassments.

"This was Hoover's answer: 'In that case you tell Mr. Willis and others representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated, the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We are going to have a white Republican party in the South.'

"And that is exactly what has happened. Here in Mississippi Perry Howard and his gang are the same as out. He and his leaders have been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury and the white faction's Presidential electors are to be on the ballot. That means that after November 6, the Negro faction here will be repudiated by the Republicans themselves in this State. It will mean that party affairs will have passed into the hands of reputable white men.

"When Mrs. Willebrandt heard from the lips of Lamon Rowland and other Southern men.....that the situation described actually existed, she said she would immediately begin prosecution of Howard. I could not tell that when I came back from the convention for it was a Department of Justice secret that, if recounted, would have made me liable to the charge of contempt of court.

"All this background is given to prove that the Republican party today has changed its attitude. It believes that there are a large number of citizens in the South who would vote the Republican ticket if the party in their section is controlled by white men, and the party now intends to give them that privilege."

Regeneration of the Republican party South of the Mason-Dixon Line is one of the most significant phases of the current Republican election, according to Willis.

THE ULTIMATE INSULT

The ultimate insult has been given to Presidential Candidate Hoover. He has been accused to calling upon and dancing with a colored woman!

Governor Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, is responsible for this latest horror of a bitter campaign. Gov. Bilbo says he was not the author of the story; that he merely repeated the statement that was made at a public rally in Jackson, Miss., some days ago. But whether the author of the story or not, he gave it wide publicity, and drew upon his head the solemn and bitter wrath of one, George Akerson, assistant to the presidential candidate. Mr. Akerson's wrath was Jovean. He declared that the statement of the Governor was "unqualifiedly false," and characterized it further as the most indecent and unworthy statement in the whole of a bitter campaign."

The Republican campaign managers in their attempts to dent the solid south have circulated a similar report about Presidential Candidate Smith, alleging that he dances with colored women in New York City—a statement which brought forth no such bitter denial from the Democratic National headquarters, as has come from the Republican headquarters. Denial there was, but nothing so scatching, so insulting, so vehement as this which has come for the defense of Mr. Hoover. But here we have Mr. Akerson solemnly alleging that he was with Mr. Hoover EVERY HOUR (manifestly a physical impossibility) of the four months that he was in the flood area, and that the only contact he had with colored people was when they presented him with a memorial thanking for his aid to them in the work of reconstruction. Mr. Akerson alternately weeps and gnashes his teeth in the face of this atrocity—that his master could be accused of such an unspeakable, such a dastardly crime against decency.

We do not believe that Mr. Hoover called on the colored lady, nor that he danced with her. He does not look like a dancing man; there is no particular reason for his socializing with the Mound Bayouites, and the thought is enough to provoke the risibles of anyone with a grain of humor. Left to itself it would have died the natural death of all jokes. But Mr. Akerson exalts it to a crime of lese majeste; to a breaking of the decalogue, to the sin against the Holy Ghost.

And in so doing he hurls the vilest of insults in the face of every Negro in the United States. He wipes mud in their teeth, and he utterly destroys whatever lingering belief in the decency of the Republican party might have been left in the mind of the Negro. It is safe to assert that there is not a colored woman in the United States who would want to dance with Mr. Hoover, or would feel herself honored in so doing. But every woman of color feels her soul flame into a white heat of insulted rage at the characterization by Mr. Akerson, as "an indecent and unworthy statement."

The Republican party has fallen over itself repudiating the Negro in speaking to the south. It injected the race question into the campaign from the first, by spreading the propaganda in the south of Gov. Smith's affiliation with the Negro of New York; of Ferdinand Q. Morton's white stenographer, and considerable more such bitterness. It has out-Bourboned the Bourbons in flaunting the bloody shirt, and stirred up sectional hatred where sectional hatred had died down. It has grabbed frantically at every possible crevice to try to break into the solidity of the South. And now in a last wild stand against a possible loss of a doubtful gain, it shrieks insult and bilge at the Negro over the shoulders of the Governor of Mississippi.

"That any person in Mississippi should be led to vote for or against Mr. Hoover upon a representation of this kind would forever be a most infamous blot on the record of the State of Mississippi," continues Mr. Akerson.

And we paraphrase that statement by saying that any Negro who would vote for Mr. Hoover after this gratuitous insult to the womenkind of the race is unworthy of the trusting faith of a sister, the loyal love of a wife, or the tender-self-sacrificing devotion of a mother.

claims he may possess to party leadership here.

Mr. Wellford has two figures to reckon with when Herbert Hoover moves into the White House in March for a four-year stay. One is Robert R. (Bob) Church, chieftain of the "Black-and-Tan" forces; the other Herbert L. Harper, defeated candidate for Congress.

Church Big Figure.

Bob Church, the negro, is still a big figure to reckon with in Republican circles, despite all claims of "Hoovercrats" to the contrary.

Mr. Harper's claims are purely claims of custom and will probably not seriously be considered. Up the country, in all recognized Republican circles, the party candidate such as Mr. Harper, whether he is defeated or victorious, is generally recognized as a factor in all patronage matters.

But Church is still on most friendly terms with the leading Republican senators and congressmen up the country. During the Coolidge administration he was a frequent visitor to the White House where he was always cordially received.

That he will continue to be well received is taken for granted by his followers here. That he is still "in the saddle" they do not for a moment doubt.

Worked With Negroes.

Church did considerable campaign work among his race up the country and was amply financed in his campaign for Mr. Hoover. He carried a page ad in the Chicago Defender asking negroes to stand by Mr. Hoover and the party in which they had friends.

Chuch's continuation as chieftain here will depend on two things. One is J. WiWlWl Taylor, national committeeman from Tennessee, and his influence with the new administration.

Church has always worked faithfully for J. Will. J. Will is said to have worked faithfully for Mr. Hoover in congressman's own Second District came through Tuesday with a tremendous vote for Hoover. He is said to have been influential in the rest of East Tennessee.

Whether Paul Kruesi of Chattanooga can gain sufficient support within the party to succeed J. Will Taylor is a matter of grave doubt. Whether he will try or not has not been determined.

But, whatever the turn of events, there's going to be a big fight there.

Good Arguments.

There will be many good arguments to present on both sides when the battle really begins.

Wellford and his forces will probably contend that the negro vote in Memphis for Hoover this year was comparatively small.

Church will probably insist there was very little money sent here for organization work among the negroes. His followers will also contend that a greater part of the Hoover vote in Shelby was not Republican at all, but anti-Catholic, a that was not accorded the other Republican candidates.

Wellford, E. M. Kinney, John Farley and others practically ignored Harper in his race. Some have admitted they didn't vote for him themselves.

Wellford did not co-operate heartily with Harper because he did not care to have that candidate obtain a large enough vote to be a serious contender for favors of patronage, it is claimed.

Wellford supporters say many other things. Bob Church looks like the best bet at present.

HOOVER IN ACCORD WITH POLICY TO ELIMINATE RACE INFLUENCE

Hattiesburg Miss., Oct. 24—Herbert Hoover is entirely sympathetic with the South on the race question and in full accord with the policy to eliminate all Negroes from leadership, asserts T. J. Willis, one of the leading exponents of lily-whitism.

In support of this claim, Willis says that at the Kansas City Convention former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin, gave him the following message from the Republican Presidential nominee:

"You tell Mr. Willis and other representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated, the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We are going to have a white Republican party in the South."

Willis' Statement

Here is Willis' version of what happened at Kansas City with Mr. Hoover in the background: "When Perry Howard and his delegates arrived in Kansas City they were lined up with Mr. Butler of Massachusetts and Hilles of New York, who were leaders in the party opposing the nomination of Mr. Hoover. Butler controlled the entire delegation from his State while Hilles had half of New York's vote in his pocket; but Perry Howard and his gang had not been seated and we were up there to fight the recognition and prepared to cast our full strength for Hoover.

"Mr. Hoover stayed in his office in Washington, being personally represented in Kansas City by former Senator Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin. Learning of the fight between white and black factions of the party from Southern states, Hoover was apprised of the fact by a personal friend.

Hoovers's Views On Race

"Hoover is entirely in sympathy with the South on the race question since he has lived in California where the Orient has caused so much embarrassment. He understands the situation down here. He called Mr Lenroot in Kansas City and told him to bring utmost pressure to bear on the Credential Committee for the recognition and seating of the white delegates from the Southern states.

"But Lenroot, his personal manager at the convention, advised against the fight, saying that the nomination was already assured in spite of the Butler-Hilles opposition, and if the race issue were forced at that time it would result in unnecessary embarrassments.

"This was Hoover's answer: 'In that case you tell Mr. Willis and others representing the white groups that after my nomination, if I am nominated, the Negro leaders will be replaced by white men. We are going to have a white Republican party in the South.'

"And that is exactly what has happened. Here in Mississippi Perry Howard and his gang are the same as out. He and his leaders have been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury and the white faction's Presidential electors are to be on the ballot. That means that after November 6, the Negro faction here will be repudiated by the Republicans themselves in this State. It will mean that party affairs will have passed into the hands of reputable white men.

"When Mrs. Willebrandt heard from the lips of Lamon Rowland and other Southern men.....that the situation described actually existed, she said she would immediately begin prosecution of Howard. I could not tell that when I came back from the convention for it was a Department of Justice secret that, if recounted, would have made me liable to the charge of contempt of court.

"All this background is given to prove that the Republican party today has changed its attitude. It believes that there are a large number of citizens in the South who would vote the Republican ticket if the party in their section is controlled by white men, and the party now intends to give them that privilege."

Regeneration of the Republican party South of the Mason-Dixon Line is one of the most significant phases of the current Republican election, according to Willis.

THE ULTIMATE INSULT

The ultimate insult has been given to Presidential Candidate Hoover. He has been accused to calling upon and dancing with a colored woman!

Governor Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, is responsible for this latest horror of a bitter campaign. Gov. Bilbo says he was not the author of the story; that he merely repeated the statement that was made at a public rally in Jackson, Miss., some days ago. But whether the author of the story or not, he gave it wide publicity, and drew upon his head the solemn and bitter wrath of one, George Akerson, assistant to the presidential candidate. Mr. Akerson's wrath was Jovean. He declared that the statement of the Governor was "unqualifiedly false," and characterized it further as the most indecent and unworthy statement in the whole of a bitter campaign."

The Republican campaign managers in their attempts to dent the solid south have circulated a similar report about Presidential Candidate Smith, alleging that he dances with colored women in New York City—a statement which brought forth no such bitter denial from the Democratic National headquarters, as has come from the Republican headquarters. Denial there was, but nothing so scatching, so insulting, so vehement as this which has come for the defense of Mr. Hoover. But here we have Mr. Akerson solemnly alleging that he was with Mr. Hoover EVERY HOUR (manifestly a physical impossibility) of the four months that he was in the flood area, and that the only contact he had with colored people was when they presented him with a memorial thanking for his aid to them in the work of reconstruction. Mr. Akerson alternately weeps and gnashes his teeth in the face of this atrocity—that his master could be accused of such an unspeakable, such a dastardly crime against decency.

We do not believe that Mr. Hoover called on the colored lady, nor that he danced with her. He does not look like a dancing man; there is no particular reason for his socializing with the Mound Bayouites, and the thought is enough to provoke the risibles of anyone with a grain of humor. Left to itself it would have died the natural death of all jokes. But Mr. Akerson exalts it to a crime of lese majeste; to a breaking of the decalogue, to the sin against the Holy Ghost.

And in so doing he hurls the vilest of insults in the face of every Negro in the United States. He wipes mud in their teeth, and he utterly destroys whatever lingering belief in the decency of the Republican party might have been left in the mind of the Negro. It is safe to assert that there is not a colored woman in the United States who would want to dance with Mr. Hoover, or would feel herself honored in so doing. But every woman of color feels her soul flame into a white heat of insulted rage at the characterization by Mr. Akerson, as "an indecent and unworthy statement."

The Republican party has fallen over itself repudiating the Negro in speaking to the south. It injected the race question into the campaign from the first, by spreading the propaganda in the south of Gov. Smith's affiliation with the Negro of New York; of Ferdinand Q. Morton's white stenographer, and considerable more such bitterness. It has out-Bourboned the Bourbons in flaunting the bloody shirt, and stirred up sectional hatred where sectional hatred had died down. It has grabbed frantically at every possible crevice to try to break into the solidity of the South. And now in a last wild stand against a possible loss of a doubtful gain, it shrieks insult and bilge at the Negro over the shoulders of the Governor of Mississippi.

"That any person in Mississippi should be led to vote for or against Mr. Hoover upon a representation of this kind would forever be a most infamous blot on the record of the State of Mississippi," continues Mr. Akerson.

And we paraphrase that statement by saying that any Negro who would vote for Mr. Hoover after this gratuitous insult to the womenkind of the race is unworthy of the trusting faith of a sister, the loyal love of a wife, or the tender-self-sacrificing devotion of a mother.

Political - 1928.

Suffrage.

New Poll List Shows 13,000 Voters In County

Montgomery County, in round figures, has 13,000 voters on the new poll lists, which have just been completed, as against 10,000 in the old one, it was announced yesterday by Paul B. Fuller, election clerk. Officials in preparing the new lists, struck about 1,200 names from the old one. They were of persons deceased or removed from the city.

SOUTHERN REPRESENTATION.

In instructing a grand jury which might be called on to investigate events surrounding the recent Illinois primary election, Federal Judge Wilkerson brought to the jury's attention section 19 of the federal code, which makes it an offense for two or more persons to conspire to injure, threaten, or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise of any right or privilege guaranteed him by the constitution or laws of the United States.

Remarking upon Judge Wilkerson's charge to the jury, Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts inquired why federal judges in the south had not invoked this section of the federal code in order to insure Negroes their franchise rights.

Representative Tinkham has pending a resolution for an investigation by the census committee of disfranchisement of Negroes in southern states. He has little hope, he says, of getting his resolution to a vote. But he promises to keep on and, failing to get action on his resolution, will attempt to reach the question when the reapportionment bill comes up by demanding amendments to cut southern representation in accordance with the constitution.

It is the attitude of the people in most states where the right to vote is not abridged by laws technically within the constitution, but actually affecting only the Negro, that the southern states have their own peculiar problem, and a serious one, and should be permitted to work it out in their own way.

The south has reiterated its defense that its discriminatory laws are within the letter, though admittedly without the spirit, of the constitution. The Supreme court decisions have been most complaisant to the southern contention, and there the matter rests, so far as political rights are concerned.

But there it ought not to rest; the north has a right to insist, in so far as it affects the representation of the south at Washington, where laws are made with the assistance of southern congressmen for the nation as a whole.

Section 2 of the fourteenth amendment declares in substance that the representation of any state denying the vote to a certain proportion of its otherwise qualified electorate shall be reduced in that same proportion.

The fourteen southern states now have 129 representatives in congress. Were the fourteenth amendment enforced and their representation reduced in the same ratio that the franchise right is abridged, they would be entitled to only 65 representatives.

The right of the southern states to an unconstitutional representation is one that does affect the other states. Let the south, if it has to, settle its own internal problems of race as it will by force of laws governing only its own people. But concerning the representation of the south in the settlement of national questions the states where the vote is not abridged on account of race have an interest and, now aroused, have a right to raise the point and ask the south's intentions.

Alabama.

Official Count In May Primary Made By Pettus

Less Than 175,000 Votes Polled In Contests, Results Show

List Is Complete

Highest Vote Cast In Bonner-Gardner Race

By ATTICUS MULLIN

Less than 175,000 votes were polled in the primary of May 8, according to the official count as made by Chairman Edmond Pettus, of the State Democratic Executive Committee and made public here Monday. The highest vote was in the Bonner-Gardner race, closely followed by the vote in the Brown-Moore and Norman-White races.

The official vote for delegate at large shows the following:

Montgomery Advertiser.

	1st.	2nd.
Ayers	115,700	1,916
Bowie	35,392	1,449
Burr	110,320	2,767
Carmichael	138,957	1,594
Duggar	28,830	10,917
Faulk	69,635	10,663
Finklea	14,291	15,063
Gibson	24,088	9,703
Gunter	50,054	1,819
Henderson	45,778	1,730
Nihart	30,237	1,443
Weakley	42,257	13,478
Williams	45,123	2,038
White	24,726	9,425

Associate Justice Lucien D. Gardner defeated Senator J. M. Bonner for renomination by a vote of more than two to one. It was in the Gardner-Bonner race that the highest vote was polled, the total being 173,969. The vote in this race was:

5-22-28

Bonner	57,894
Gardner	116,075

The second highest vote of the election was polled in the Brown-Moore race for Democratic national committeeman. Mr. Brown defeated Mr. Moore by approximately 22,000 majority. The vote in this race was:

Montgomery Ala.

Brown	98,540
Moore	74,766

The third largest vote in the primary was polled in the Norman-White race for president of the Alabama Public Service Commission. In this race the incumbent, Mr. White, defeated Mr. Norman by two and one-half to one. The vote was:

Norman	49,032
White	122,746

Vote In Districts

Johnson and Eddington were easy winners for delegate from the First Congressional District. The vote in this district was Johnson 13,475; Eddington 13,349; McAleer 7,476; McDowell (deceased) 760; Towle 6,456.

Powell and Kendrick handily defeated Dent and Coker in the Second Congressional District. The vote was: Coker 9,674; Dent 11,075; Kendrick 17,606; Powell 19,278.

In the Third Congressional District Sollie and Comer were the winners, Sollie leading the ticket by a heavy majority. The vote was Comer 9,420; Harper 7,586; Peacock 8,081; Sollie 15,278.

Comer and Cooper were winners for delegates in the Fourth District without opposition.

In the Fifth District, Holly and Graves were elected delegates to Houston. The vote was: Barfield 6,668; Cockrell 9,422; Graves 9,756; Holly 10,482.

In the sixth district the winners for delegates to Houston were Foster and Seale. The vote was Foster 9,745; Mitchell 5,712; Seale 7,223.

In the Seventh Congressional District, Chestnutt and Wadsworth were winners for delegates to Houston. The vote in this race was Chestnutt 11,401; King 4,008; Lusk 6,944; Wadsworth 13,303.

Benson and Reeder were delegate winners in the Eighth Congressional District. The vote was Benson 15,934; Jackson 4,531; Reeder 14,672; Richardson 4,946; Wall 5,654.

Perdue and Dawson were winners for delegate in the Ninth District. The vote in this county was Sallie Cooper 2,073; Dawson 12,247; Joiner 1,658; McCullough 7,180; Perdue 14,464; Perkins 1,819; Pratt 7,447; Smiley 2,063; Perry 9,284; Vines 6,107.

In the Tenth Congressional District the winners for delegate were Childers and Earnest Fite. The vote in the district was Childers 5,311; Cobb 3,443; Douglass 3,849; E. Fite 5,541; Hollies 2,309; Kuykendall 4,467 and O'Rear 3,017.

The count was completed Monday by Chairman Pettus with the assistance of expert accountants. The state committee will meet at the capitol at noon on Thursday when the count will be checked and certified to the secretary of state.

SUPPOSE THEY DO BOLT?

Editor The Advertiser:

There were but 163,263 votes cast in Alabama in the Presidential election of 1924. Alabama can cast 400,000 ballots and then vote a smaller percentage of her eligible voters than most States.

Advertiser

In the last election West Virginia polled 76.98 per cent of her eligible vote. Alabama polled 13.88 per cent, but if we eliminate the negro altogether (even if Mr. Herbert Clark Hoover is opposed to this elimination) we then polled less than 25 per cent of our eligible vote.) There were twenty-one States in the last Presidential election casting more than 60 per cent of their eligible vote. If this happened in Alabama we would poll 400,000 votes and with this number of people exercising the franchise we could allow the Republicans 100,000 more votes than they polled in 1924 and then have a majority of 96,000 Democratic votes, or a majority much larger than the total Republican vote in the last election.

8-9-28

If Delaware, Kentucky, Missouri, Nevada, North Dakota, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, South Dakota, Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming can poll more than 60 per cent of their eligible vote, there is no reason why the call of Democracy should not bring out a proportionate vote in this State.

Montgomery Ala.

If we take all the Republicans, white, black and ginger-cake, and add to them the color-blind Democrats, the Cannon Democrats, the Hoovercrats, the Anti-Saloon League and others who for good or poor reasons do not care to enlist under the Democratic banner, there is still reason to worry.

Men and women, old and young, good and bad, active or indifferent, will remember the carpet-bagger, the scalawag and the horde of mongrel aliens who swooped down upon the South after the War Between the States, remembering those dark days they will refuse to follow the flag of a color-blind leader. Their vision will clear up each day as they approach the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. They will think of Jeff Davis, Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Morgan, Pettus, Houston and white supremacy and they will contrast these with Sherman, Thaddeus Stevens, Beast Butler, Judge Busted and the men who dominated the South when the Federal bayonet stood guard over the election boxes in Alabama.

Bishop Cannon can well afford to support Hoover while he sits on an advisory board composed of himself, four Republican United States Senators and six Republican Congressmen. He can well afford to advise the South to destroy Democracy while his organization is supported by Republican dollars.

In New York, Pennsylvania and the Central West the campaign may be decided on such issues as a change of the prohibition laws, or the tariff or farm relief, but here in the South where a white man can take no chances the Anglo-Saxon American will do what the Anglo-Saxon has done for a thousand years—he will maintain white supremacy and no agitator will cause him to forget that the South has ONE GREAT PERMANENT PROBLEM.

Ask the people of Clarksdale and Greenville, Miss., what they think of Herbert Hoover since his conference with the "colored brethren" during the flood troubles last year.

—A SON OF A CONFEDERATE VETERAN.
Montgomery, Ala.

DOZEN NEGROES JAILED

SELMA, ALA., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Twelve negroes have been committed to the Dallas County jail for failure to either pay their road tax or work their allotted time on the county roads, according to Sheriff R. F. Hamden. They will be brought to court next week.

ONLY 419 RACE VOTERS ON BOOK IN BIRMINGHAM

352 Men And 67 Women Are Registered Up To Date

LEGAL QUALIFICATIONS DISFRANCHISE MANY

Poll Tax, Land Ownership, "Understanding" Clause Are Worked

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., (Special)—Only 419 colored persons, 67 women and 352 men, registered as voters in this city July.

Some 15,559 white females and 37,267 white males registered the same day.

November 3 and 3 are two additional registration days provided before the presidential election.

Birmingham has 85,230 colored population and 147,000 white. Every third person in Birmingham is colored, but only one out of every 100 voters is colored.

Legal qualifications, by means of which whites maneuver to disfranchise colored persons include: two years' residence in State one year in county and three months in precinct; the ability to read and understand the Constitution or, as an alternative, to own 40 acres of land assessed at $300 for taxes, on which taxes must be paid. Also every voter, male and female, must $1.50 poll taxes up to the age of 45. Women must have paid poll taxes from 1920. No re-registration is required biennially if taxes are paid. Registration is with the county registrar.

Voting By Mail

Absent voters can write the county judge of probate for absent-voter ballots and instructions 5 to 30 days before election if they are registered, but otherwise legally qualified, absent voters can register by mail by writing county board of registrars, stating the facts and apply for registration affidavit and instructions to be executed before a notary. Thus registered by mail the absentee can also vote by mail.

First Negro Casts Vote In Houston In Many Years

DOTHAN, ALA., Nov. 8.—(Special.)—Bob Knox, the first negro to vote in Houston County in many years, cast his ballot for Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, at Jellico, Tuesday. Bob registered in the year 1901, the records show.

Several other negroes in this county are eligible to vote, but the Jellico negro is the only one taking advantage of this right Tuesday, in so far as can be learned.

The Jellico box accorded Smith but six votes, while Hoover was given 58 the tabulations show.

NEGROES SHOULD REGISTER

The announcement that the registration books for the voters of Jefferson County will be open to register voters in the next few days comes at a time when it seems to be propitious. There are no issues at stake and no reason for depriving Negroes of this opportunity may appear. It ought to be needless to urge the necessity of all Negroes registering who can qualify.

The importance of having the ballot is by far the greatest civic privilege that comes to a citizen. It does not provide the only means of participating in the government but it provides the best means for this. We might also say that it is not the only means of making citizenshjp count but it is the best means of making it effective. There is a large number of Negroes both young women and young men, who can qualify and who should have their names put on the registration book. There must arise issues that vitally affect the conditions under which we live and the disposition of these issues must depend on the voter.

We anticipate that the opposition to registering colored people will be nothing like so great as it has been.

This opposition must decrease as the number of qualified Negro voters increases and a sentiment for just and fair dealing grows. We must think of the Negro voter as a necessity. The only way to grow into a full fledged functioning citizenship is through the power of the ballot. This opportunity should not be neglected. Too long already have the Negroes of Birmingham and Jefferson County failed to recognize the importance of making a persistent effort to be registered. There are qualifications that must be met and there are thousands of unregistered persons who can meet them. It is a duty they owe themselves and the group with which they are identified as well as a duty they owe to their country.

We urge that our people watch for the announcement of the time and place of registration and register themselves to become qualified voters without longer delay.

Democracy Impossible, Says DuBois, Until Disenfranchisement Is Halted

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A declaration that democratic government in America is out of the question until the country faces what he described as the problem of negro disenfranchisement in the South was made today by Dr. W. E. B. Dubois, editor of the Crisis,, before the national interracial conference.

"Until the liberal white South has the courage to stand up for democracy, regardless of race, there will be no solution of the negro problem and no solution of the problem of popular government in America," he said.

"A disfranchised working class in modern civilization is worse than helpless," he added. "It is a menace, not simply to itself, but to every other group in the community. It will be diseased; it will be criminal; it will be ignorant; it will be the plaything of mobs and it will be insulted by caste restrictions."

Dubois said the political power in the South "is vested in the hands of a clique of professional politicians, white and black and there is nothing that has been done in dirty politics by Tammany in New York, by Thompson in Chicago, by Vare in Pennsylvania, that you cannot find duplicated by the political oligarchies which rule the Southern South."

"Nor is this all," he continued. "Because of the rotten boroughs of the South, real democratic government is impossible in the North. The democratic party cannot become a liberal body because the bulk of its support depends upon disfranchisement, mass and race hate in the South."

Statistics purporting to show the negro a greater criminal than the whites are grossly inaccurate and have not been authenticated, said Thorsten Sellin, of the University of Pennsylvania. This inaccuracy is largely the result, he added, of discrimination against the negro by courts and their inability to pay fines and their resultant imprisonment.

The conference, called by 16 national organizations dealing with racial problems to interchange information on the negro's relations with the white race concluded its three-day session tonight.

Political - 1928

Arkansas.

Suffrage

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 2 —(ANP)—The second step to secure full rights of citizenship for Negroes in the State of Arkansas was taken on Wednesday, when Negro Democratic leaders of Little Rock launched a campaign to restrain Democratic party officials from barring Negroes in any primary in Arkansas.

The colored members of the attorneys, Booker and Booker, obtained a temporary order November 27, enabling Negroes who could qualify, as Democrats, to vote in the recent city primary. Permission had been given in the Chancery court, where the litigation is pending, to include H. L. Compere, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee and H. L. Lambert, secretary, according to the amendment filed Wednesday.

With the leaders of the state committee as defendants, the suit is expected to definitely establish the status of the Negroes who have allied themselves with the Democratic party. Booker and Booker, attorneys, have expressed the opinion that the case will terminate in a victory for Negro citizens and point out that the voting of Negroes in the recent primary resulted in none of the dire calamities so frequently predicted by those desiring to bar the Negroes from exercising their franchise.

GAZETTE
LITTLE ROCK, ARK

1 9 1928

Democratic State Leaders Sued by Negroes Seeking Vote.

A move to restrain Democratic party officials from barring negroes at any primary in Arkansas was made yesterday by negroes who obtained a temporary order November 27 enabling members of their race who could qualify as Democrats to vote in the recent city primary.

Permission had been given them by Chancery Court, where the litigation is pending, to include E. L. Compere chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee and H. L. Lambert, it secretary, as defendants, an amendment filed yesterday to the original petition, recited. When brought in November, the suit named only the judge and clerks in the city primary as defendants.

With the state committee leaders as defendants, the suit is expected to settle definitely the status of the negroes who regard themselves as Democrats through having supported candidates of that party in the past. The negroes now ask that the restraining order be extended in scope to give them access at the Democratic polls throughout Arkansas, and that the Democratic officers be enjoined permanently from enforcing the party rule limiting participation in primaries to white persons.

THE NEGRO'S RIGHT TO VOTE

(Kansas City Call)

The following editorial is from the Little Rock Democrat, a daily paper in Arkansas and we could not have expressed the sentiment better in The Call.

Holding that the Democratic party rule in Arkansas denying Negroes the right to vote in a Democratic primary is in conflict with a ruling of the United States Supreme Court, Circuit Judge Richard Mann of the Second Division, acting for Chancellor Dodge, has granted an injunction against enforcing that rule.

The party rule in question declares that "the Democratic party of Arkansas shall consist of all eligible and legally qualified white electors, both male and female, who have openly declared their allegiance to the principles and policies of the Democratic party as set forth in the platform in the last preceding Democratic national and state conventions, who have supported the Democratic nominees at the last preceding elections and who are in sympathy with the Democratic party in the next succeeding election."

Judge Mann's ruling was based upon a Supreme Court decision in a Texas case in which it was held that a party rule denying Negroes the right to vote in a primary violated the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. This amendment says:

"All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States."

The Negro petitioners for the restraining order further cited the Fifteenth amendment to the Constitution which declares that "the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."

These are the facts which make up conditions as they exist. The Democratic State Central Committee will meet December 7. Whether that body will fight the ruling remains to be seen. As the situation stands today the Negro enjoys equal rights of citizenship in Arkansas.

BROOKLYN STANDARD UNION

NOV 27 1928

Negroes Get Suffrage

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 2 (U. P.)—For the first time in the history of this State a court has held that negroes are entitled to cast ballots in the Democratic party. The ruling resulted yesterday from a petition filed in the Pulaski County Chancery Court by Dr. J. M. Robinson and nine other negroes asking the court to restrain election officials from denying negroes the right to participate in primary elections.

VOTERS AWAIT BALLOT FIGHT IN ARKANSAS

U. S. High Court May Decide Question

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 7.—Many white Democrats, aroused over the decision of a local court giving all qualified citizens the right to vote in a Democratic primary election, are debating whether the Democratic state central committee will resist the attack on its rules when a meeting of the committee is held here Friday. Officials of the Democratic city organization are awaiting the outcome of the conference of representatives of the state party organization.

Attorneys for the citizens heretofore barred from the Democratic primary elections declare they were ready to take their case to the Arkansas supreme court and the United States supreme court if necessary to fix the status of citizens who vote the Democratic ticket in general elections.

Judge Mann, in the absence of Chancelor Dodge, issued a temporary order restraining the election officials from denying ballots to citizens who qualified at the city primary as Democrats in respectis other than that of race. At the hearing the attorneys representing the applicants for the injunction cited the decision of the United States supreme court in March, 1927, holding invalid a Texas statute prohibiting citizens from participating in Democratic primaries.

Several attorneys have taken the position that the Democratic party has authority to exclude these citizens by rules, as has been the custom in Arkansas in the past. The Arkansas supreme court has held that where there is no law to the contrary a political party may establish its own requirements, it was pointed out. It was conceded that an Arkansas statute barring these citizens from the Democratic primaries would be void under the 14th amendment, the United States supreme court having so decided in the Texas case, but some of the attorneys contended there was nothing to prevent the party from adopting rules limiting its membership as it should see fit.

Aftr the issuance of the court order Monday, it is alleged, only eigh citizens voted. Their ballots wer counted separately. A hearing o the petition for an order is to be hel before Chancelor Dodge to determin whether the injunction is to be dis solved or made permanent.

TRIBUNE
CHICAGO, ILL.

SEP 2 6 1928

FAILURE TO PAY POLL TAX CUTS ARKANSAS VOTE

Ballot System Keeps the State Solid.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Smith, Ark., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The plain mechanics of politics, the voting system, has a lot to do with the solidity of the solid south, and here in Arkansas, as in some other states, the cross currents of Volsteadism, church, and flood control are sucked into a whirlpool with restricted suffrage, poll tax and white supremacy.

Much of the intolerance talk in the churches and much of the dry shouts from the moonshine districts in the hills won't be registered in votes in November for the simple reason that the shouters have neglected to pay their poll taxes of a dollar a head, without which no one is entitled to vote. At the same time, a reaction is setting in against the political pulpiteers.

Pulpit Tirades Bound Back.

Prominent laymen and pillars of Methodism and of the Baptist church are arising to denounce preachers who try to deliver their congregations in politics.

The rebukes emanate from within the religious fold, and in Arkansas one finds a well defined current of criticism among Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians against efforts such as those of Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt assistant attorney general of the United States, to promote the church war in Ohio.

The Rev. John Roach Straton of New York, who ducked Al Smith's challenge to open debate in his own church, appeared in Little Rock a few nights ago. He drew a crowd of 7,000. The Democrats say everybody turned out to gratify curiosity. Straton said "Smith is the nominee of the worst forces of hell," but as to whether his words had effect, the Democrats point out that at the meeting a call was issued by a W. C. T. U. worker for the women to turn out next day to organize an anti-Smith unit.

Three Attempts Fail.

Not enough showed up to organize and they say three subsequent efforts have failed to produce a quorum of anti-Smithites.

The greatest advantage the Democrats have is organization. Negroes represent about a third of the population, and the election system is designed to keep the whites in control. The Republican party heretofore has been mainly the aggregation of postmasters and other federal office holders.

The Democrats have been so strong that elections have been settled at the primaries. The Democrats have a "white man's" primary, membership being confined to white electors, and the primaries have drawn a larger vote than the presidential election. For instance, a month ago, 215,000 votes were cast in the primaries, while in the last presidential election only 138,000 votes were polled.

No G. O. P. Primaries.

The Republicans hold no primaries as the candidates have to pay the cost of judges and clerks, printing of ballots, and the rest, and it would be throwing money to the birdies normally in a state of such Democratic proclivities.

The Democrats control the election machinery. The marking system looks upside down to a northerner. Instead of marking a cross for candidates the voter wants to vote for, down here he has to scratch off the ballot the names of candidates he does not want to vote for. On the mere makeup of the ballot, the Democrats, at the top of the ticket, have an advantage.

350,000 Qualified Voters.

The poll tax system, which was adopted to keep the Negro from voting, now is disfranchising more whites than Negroes. The machinery starts eighteen months ahead of an election. The poll tax for 1928 was assessed in May, 1927, and it became delinquent last April. If paid before July 1, it entitled the person to vote in any election between that date and July 1, 1929. Some 350,000 poll taxes were issued this year by July 1, and that represents the maximum electorate for November in a state of nearly two million population.

Among the Negroes much Smith sentiment is being displayed, due to the Klan hangover, and there is a Negro Smith club. But the Democrats are not for lowering the bars for in some counties the Negroes are two-thirds of the population, and in the south the abiding factor in politics, regardless of other issues as they come and go, is white supremacy.

Political - 1928

Arkansas.

Suffrage

ARKANSAS NEGROES PAY THEIR POLL TAX

Pine Bluff, Ark., July 26 (PNS)—Jefferson County this year has nearly 10,000 qualified voters according to a report filed with County Clerk L. T. Sallee, Wednesday by Sheriff Brewster. It is said that the number this year is increased several thousand over last year, when no important election were held. More than half of the Jefferson county residents who paid poll taxes this year were Negroes.

NEGROES VOTE IN ARK PRIMARY

Arrest White Man For Striking Negro As He Casts Ballot

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. Dc. 5—(ANP)—History was made here Monday when Negroes voted in a Democratic primary for the first time since the party law was passed which denied them the right to vote. The voting was made possibl through an injunction granted by Judge Mann, who ruled that the law was unconstitutional because it discriminated against Negro citizens.

While white voters in general accepted the ruling of the court, there were those whose ire was aroused by the decision. One of the latter group, a doctor, struck a Negro postman, one the head as he cast his ballot. The white physician was arrested and charged with disturbing the peace.

According to the reports, the postman sopped by the polling place to cast his vote. As he was doctor stopped by the polling place to cast his vote. As he was in the act of placing his ballot in the box, the doctor struck him in the act of placing his ballot in the box, the doctor struck him from behind, felling him. The police officers in charge of the pol testified that they saw the post man fall but did not see no one strike him, as they were looking the other way.

Voters File Petition When Refused Ballots

The Negro Democrats, Arkansas, headed by Dr. J. M. Robinson, W. S. Brown, Isaac Jimerson J. W. Douglass, Leeroy E. Williams, J. O. Hickman and others filed a suit in Pulaski Chancery Cort of Little Rock, Ark., to restrain and enjoin the election judges and commissioners from refusing to permit the Negro Democrats of said city from voting in the Democratic primary held Monday for the selection of candidates for Mayor and Aldermen. The suit was filed after a large number of Democrats of color had presented themselves at the various voting precincts and were refused a ballot.

The plaintiffs in the suit immediately secured the services of Attys. J. R. Booker, J. A. Booker and John A. Hibbler, who in record-breaking time went before Judge R. M. Mann with their petition for injunction and a temporary restraining order wherein the attorneys set up that the "plaintiffs were and are taxpayers and qualified voters and qualified to vote in the Democratic primary that the right to vote in said city primary election was being denied to them on account of their color race and previous condition of servitude; that said primary election was equivalent to final election; that they were being deprived of their rights and privileges as citizens under the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Con- America; that such a denial on stitution of the United States of account of race and color is an abridgement of their rights as citizens and a denial of the equal protection of the laws of the United States of America.

After a preliminary hearing in which it was shown that several Negroes had applied and were refused the right to vote, and a citation of the case of Nixon et al, vs the Election Commissioners of Texas, the Chancery Judge, issued the restraining order and the Negro democrats were permitted under the injunction to vote.

The Texas case, which was cited by the attorneys, was decided by the supreme court of the United States in January, 1927, and the action of the court of Little Rock, bids fair to presage another emancination for our people.

Injunction Permitting Negroes To Vote Issued

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Nov. 26—(AP)—A temporary injunction restraining election officials from preventing Dr. J. M. Robinson, local negro physician, and nine other negroes from voting in the city Democratic primary, was issued today by Circuit Judge Richard Mann.

NEGROES VOTE IN ARK PRIMARY

Arrest White Man For Striking Negro As He Casts Ballot

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. Dc. 5—(ANP)—History was made here Monday when Negroes voted in a Democratic primary for the first time since the party law was passed which denied them the right to vote. The voting was made possibl through an injunction granted by Judge Mann, who ruled that the law was unconstitutional because it discriminated against Negro citizens.

While white voters in general accepted the ruling of the court, there were those whose ire was aroused by the decision. One of the latter group, a doctor, struck a Negro postman, one the head as he cast his ballot. The white physician was arrested and charged with disturbing the peace.

According to the reports, the postman sopped by the polling place to cast his vote. As he was doctor stopped by the polling place to cast his vote. As he was in the act of placing his ballot in the box, the doctor struck him in the act of placing his ballot in the box, the doctor struck him from behind, felling him. The police officers in charge of the pol testified that they saw the post man fall but did not see no one strike him, as they were looking the other way.

Voters File Petition When Refused Ballots

The Negro Democrats, Arkansas, headed by Dr. J. M. Robinson, W. S. Brown, Isaac Jimerson J. W. Douglass, Leeroy E. Williams, J. O. Hickman and others filed a suit in Pulaski Chancery Cort of Little Rock, Ark., to restrain and enjoin the election judges and commissioners from refusing to permit the Negro Democrats of said city from voting in the Democratic primary held Monday for the selection of candidates for Mayor and Aldermen. The suit was filed after a large number of Democrats of color had presented themselves at the various voting precincts and were refused a ballot.

The plaintiffs in the suit immediately secured the services of Attys. J. R. Booker, J. A. Booker and John A. Hibbler, who in record-breaking time went before Judge R. M. Mann with their petition for injunction and a temporary restraining order wherein the attorneys set up that the "plaintiffs were and are taxpayers and qualified voters and qualified to vote in the Democratic primary that the right to vote in said city primary election was being denied to them on account of their color race and previous condition of servitude; that said primary election was equivalent to final election; that they were being deprived of their rights and privileges as citizens under the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Con- America; that such a denial on stitution of the United States of account of race and color is an abridgement of their rights as citizens and a denial of the equal protection of the laws of the United States of America.

After a preliminary hearing in which it was shown that several Negroes had applied and were refused the right to vote, and a citation of the case of Nixon et al, vs the Election Commissioners of Texas, the Chancery Judge, issued the restraining order and the Negro democrats were permitted under the injunction to vote.

The Texas case, which was cited by the attorneys, was decided by the supreme court of the United States in January, 1927, and the action of the court of Little Rock, bids fair to presage another emancipation for our people.

ARKANSANS CAN CAST VOTE IN PRIMARIES

Barring Them Violates Constitution, Little Rock Judge Rules

Note: According to this dispatch from Little Rock, the prophecy of The Call, made in an editorial immediately after the election, that democrats seem to be ready to establish contacts with Negro voters, is practically a fact.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Rules of the democratic party in Arkansas were held in conflict with a decision of the United States Supreme Court, insofar as the barring of Negroes from primaries is concerned, when Judge Mann of Second Division Circuit Court, acting as chancellor, Monday, issued a temporary order restraining judges and clerks in the city primary from denying Negroes the ballot.

Application for the order was made by Dr. J. M. Robinson and others and the petition was granted after a hearing before Judge Mann, who served in the absence of Chancellor Dodge the suit being filed in Chancery Court. D. K. Hawthorne, who was chairman of the Pulaski County Democratic Campaign Committee for the Smith-Robinson ticket, appeared as attorney for the democratic election officials. The plaintiffs, Dr. Robinson, J. O. Hickman, Ike Jimerson, J. W. Douglass, W. S. Brown, Leroy E. Williams, A. E. Amos, R. Howell, J. W. Walker and E. E. Dubisson, were represented by Robert Booker and John Hibbler.

In compliance with the temporary order, Chancery Clerk W. E. Greene certified copies to Sheriff Haynie, whose deputies immediately notified the judges and clerks at the various precinct voting places. The injunction was signed about 3:30 p. m. It will remain in effect until dissolved or made permanent order, should decide against them, the plaintiffs said they were prepared to appeal to the Arkansas Supreme Court, and if necessary, to the United States Supreme Court.

Section 2 of the democratic rules, Judge Mann ruled is discriminating against Negroes and this is not in accord with the action of the United States Supreme Court in March, 1927, invalidating a Texas statute for bidding Negroes the ballot in democratic primaries, the law being held violative of the Fourteenth amendment.

Post Bond of $2,500

The temporary order restrained the election officials from preventing any "persons qualified to vote from exercising their right of franchise in the democratic city primary . . . on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude." Bond of $2,5000 was filed by the plaintiffs to put the order in force. It was necessary for Judge Mann to conduct the temporary hearing because Chancellor Dodge was holding Prairie Circuit Court at DeValls Bluff.

As a precautionary measure, Judge Mann instructed the judges and clerks to keep separate the votes of Negroes. In their complaint, the Negroes said they were "being deprived of their rights and privileges as citizens and democrats under the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments to the constitution of the United States.

Whether the democratic state organization will become involved in an effort to sustain its rules in the litigation probably will be determined by the state central committee at its meeting here Friday morning December 7. Mr. Hawthorne said

NEGROES VOTE IN ARKANSAS DEMO. PRIMARY; WHITE PHYSICIAN STRIKES COLORED VOTER

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 4.—(A. N. P.)—History was made here Monday when Negroes voted in a Democratic primary for the first time since the party law was passed which denied them the right to vote. The voting was made possible through an injunction granted by Judge Mann, who ruled that the law was unconstitutional because it discriminated against Negro citizens.

While white voters in general accepted the ruling of the court, there were those whose ire was aroused by the decision. One of the latter group, Dr. L. L. Marshall, struck E. S. Scott, a Negro postman, on the head as he cast his ballot. The white physician was arrested and charged with disturbing the peace.

According to reports, Scott stopped by the polling place to cast his vote. As he was in the act of placing his ballot in the box, Dr. Marshall struck him from behind, felling him. The police officers in charge of the poll testified that they saw Scott fall but did not see Marshall strike him, as they were looking the other way.

Voters File Petition When Refused Ballots

The Negro Democrats, Arkansas, headed by Dr. J. M. Robinson, W. S. Brown, Isaac Jimerson, J. W. Douglass, Lee Roy E. Williams, J. O. Hickman and others, filed a suit in the Pulaski Chancery Court of Little Rock, Arkansas, to restrain and enjoin the election judges and commissioners from refusing to permit the Negro Democrats of said city from voting in the Democratic primary held Monday for the selection of candidates for mayor and aldermen. The suit was filed after a large number of Democrats of color had presented themselves at the various voting precincts and were refused a ballot.

The plaintiffs in the suit immediately secured the services of Booker and Booker, consisting of J. R. Booker and W. A. Booker, and of John A. Hibbler, who in record-breaking time, went before Judge R. M. Mann with their petition for injunction and a temporary restraining order wherein the attorneys set up that the "plaintiffs were and are taxpayers and qualified voters and qualified to vote in the Democratic Primary; that the right to vote in said City Primary election was being denied to them on account of their color, race, and previous condition of servitude; that said primary election was equivalent to final election; that they were being deprived of their rights and privileges as citizens under the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States of America; that such a denial on account of race and color is an abridgment of their rights as citizens and a denial of the equal protection of the laws of the United States of America."

After a preliminary hearing in which it was shown that several Negroes had applied and were refused the right to vote, and a citation of the case of Nixon, et al, vs. the Election Commissioners of Texas, the Chancery Judge issued the restraining order and the Negro Democrats were permitted under the injunction to vote.

The Texas case, which was cited by Attorneys Booker and Booker and John A. Hibbler, was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in January, 1927, and the action of the Court in Little Rock bids fair to presage another emancipation for our people.

NEGRO MAY VOTE IN WHITE PRIMARY

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 29.—(LP)—For the first time in the history of this state, a court has held that negroes are entitled to cast ballots in the democratic party.

The ruling resulted yesterday from a petition filed in the Pulaski county chancery court by Dr. J. M. Robinson and nine other negroes the right to participate in primary elections.

Circuit Judge Richard M. Mann, in the absence of Chancellor Frank M Dodge, granted the petition.

Dr. Robinson, who headed the negro Smith-Robinson club during the presidential campaign, said today that while only a few negroes participated in the democratic primary there are 465 negroes in Little Rock who can qualify as democrats under the new court order.

THE NEGRO'S RIGHT TO VOTE

—o—

The following editorial is from the Little Rock Democrat, a daily paper in Arkansas, and we could not have expressed the sentiment better in The Call.

Holding that the Democratic party rule in Arkansas denying Negroes the right to vote in a Democratic primary is in conflict with a ruling of the United States Supreme Court, Circuit Judge Richard Mann of the Second Division, acting for Chancellor Dodge, has granted an injunction against enforcement of that rule.

The party rule in question declares that "the Democratic party of Arkansas shall consist of all eligible and legally qualified white electors, both male and female, who have openly declared their allegiance to the principles and policies of the Democratic party as set forth in the platform in the last preceding Democratic national and state conventions, who have supported the Democratic nominees at the last preceding elections and who are in sympathy with the Democratic party in the next succeeding election."

Judge Mann's ruling was based upon a Supreme Court decision in a Texas case in which it was held that a party rule denying Negroes the right to vote in a primary violated the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. This amendment says:

"All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States."

The Negro petitioners for the restraining order further cited the Fifteenth amendment to the Constitution which declares that "the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."

These are the facts which make up conditions as they exist. The Democratic State Central Committee will meet December 7. Whether that body will fight the ruling remains to be seen.

As the situation stands today the Negro enjoys equal rights of citizenship in Arkansas.

GAZETTE
LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

NOV 27 1928

INJUNCTION GIVES NEGROES THE VOTE

Election Officials Forbidden to Bar Blacks From Democratic Primary.

PARTY LEADERS IN DOUBT

State Central Committee Probably Will Decide if Matter Is to Be Fought in Courts.

Rules of the Democratic party in Arkansas were held in conflict with a decision of the United States Supreme Court, insofar as the barring of negroes from primaries is concerned, when Judge Mann of Second Division Circuit Court, acting as chancellor, yesterday issued a temporary order restraining judges and clerks in the city primary from denying negroes the ballot.

Application for the order was made by Dr. J. M. Robinson and other negroes, and the petition was granted after a hearing before Judge Mann, who served in the absence of Chancellor Dodge, the suit being filed in Chancery Court. D. K. Hawthorne, who was chairman of the Pulaski County Democratic Campaign Committee for the Smith-Robinson ticket, appeared as attorney for the Democratic election officials. The negro plaintiffs, Dr. Robison, J. O. Hickman, Ike Jimerson, J. W. Douglass, W. S. Brown, Leroy E. Williams, A. E. Amos, R. Howell, J. W. Walker and E. E Dubisson, were represented by Robert Booker and John Hibbler.

In compliance with the temporary order, Chancery Clerk W. E. Greene certified copies to Sheriff Haynie, whose deputies immediately notified the judges and clerks at the various precinct voting places. The injunction was signed about 3:30 p. m. It will remain in effect until dissolved or made permanent by Chancery Court.

May Not Fight Ruling.

If Democratic leaders agree with Judge Mann's view that the party has no authority to exclude negroes from its primaries, several said yesterday it is likely they will not offer further opposition to the petition, which the negro attorneys declared is intended to end definitely the policy of restricting participation in primaries to white persons. If the Chancery Court, after a hearing on the petition for a permanent order, should decide against them, the negroes said they were prepared to appeal to the Arkansas Supreme Court, and, if necessary, to the United States Supreme Court.

Section 2 of the Democratic rules under which negroes have been barred provides that "the Democratic party of Arkansas shall consist of all eligible and legally qualified white electors, both male and female, who have openly declared their allegiance to the principles and policies of the Democratic party as set forth in the platform of the last preceding Democratic national and state conventions, who have supported the Democratic nominees at the last preceding elections, and who are in sympathy with the success of the Democratic party in the next succeeding election."

This, Judge Mann ruled is discriminating against negroes and this is not in accord with the action of the United States Supreme Court in March, 1927, invalidating a Texas statute forbidding negroes the ballot in Democratic primaries, the law being held violative of the Fourteenth amendment.

Negroes Post Bond.

The temporary order restrained the election officials from preventing any "persons qualified to vote from exercising their right of franchise in the Democratic city primary . . . on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude." Bond of $2,500 was filed by the negroes to put the order in force. It was necessary for Judge Mann to conduct the temporary hearing because Chancellor Dodge was holding Prairie Circuit Court at DeValls Bluff.

As a precautionary measure, Judge Mann instructed the judges and clerks to keep separte the votes of negroes. In their complaint, the negroes said they were "being deprived of their rights and privileges as citizens and Democrats under the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments to the constitution of the United States."

Whether the Democratic state organization will become involved in an effort to sustain its rules in the litigation probably will be determined by the State Central Committee at its meeting here Friday morning, December 7. Mr. Hawthorne said

Suffrage.

EXPRESS

Los Angeles Cal

JUL 3 1928

NEGROES ACT ON VOTE PROBLEM

Declare Disfranchisement to Be Question of Democracy; Not of Race

Reiterating its assertion that the disfranchisement of the American Negro is not a race problem, but one of democracy, affecting the world, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People today made public the text of the address adopted at the nineteenth annual conference of the association, which ended here Sunday.

The address was drawn up by a committee with Dr. W. E. B. du Bois as chairman and says in part:

"The year of the presidential election brings forcibly to the mind of every American, white and Negro, the insistent problem of democratic government in the United States. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in its nineteenth annual conference reiterates its charge that the disfranchisement of the majority of intelligent adult Negroes in the United States is not simply a race problem, it is a problem of democracy and it affects the entire nation and the whole world.

"If democracy is discredited and sneered at today it is very largely because of its partial failure in the United States.

"The disfranchisement of the foreign born in New England, and the gerrymandering of congressional districts elsewhere, give the astonishing result that a million voters can elect 45 congressmen in the South and 16 in New England, but only 13 in the Middle West and 12 on the Pacific coast.

"Facts such as these are ruining the interest of Americans in elections all over the United States. Ordinarily, scarcely one eligible American voter out of three goes to the polls, and the number of citizens 21 years of age and over who did not vote in the last election reached 90 per cent in two states; 70 to 90 per cent in seven states; from 50 to 70 per cent in nine states, and from 40 to 50 per cent in 16 states.

"Thus democratic government in the United States has become a farce, primarily because for the sake of disfranchising the Negro, white America has been willing to disfranchise itself.

"Disfranchisement and segregation, race hatred and war, all are steps toward the same degeneracy. We have driven official residential segregation out from the protection of the law; but it continues to be common in real estate manipulation and by voluntary agreement. Some segregation by race of American citizens is still practised and persisted in the departments of the federal government at Washington. It is due to our unremitting effort that this open defiance of the constitution is no longer general. Whatever political power we have should be used to continue the fight."

Political 1928

Suffrage

Colorado.

Dothan, Ala., Journal
Thursday, July 19, 1928

NEGRO VOTE TO SUPPORT SMITH

DENVER, Colorado,—The theory that the negroes of the nation always support the Republican nominees and vote the Republican ticket has been exploded on more than one occasion. The blacks of Colorado, according to it's leaders went over eighty per cent for Smith. The following telegram was dispatched to Governor Smith immediately following his nominatin.

"The Colorado Negro Voters Advisory Association congratulates the Democratic party upon your nomination as its standard bearer for the Presidency of the United States. Your nomination comes to the negroes of America as their second emancipation proclamation. The first freed them manual bondage. The second freed them from political slavery. Colorado negro voters will give to you and Senator Robinson in our judgment at least eighty per cent of their voting strength."

Political - 1928

Suffrage

D.C.

M'ADOO IS ATTACKED ON NEGRO SUFFRAGE

He Sympathizes With Nullification, Tinkham Charges.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Accusing the southern states of disfranchising the negro voters, Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, asserted today in the House that William G. McAdoo was "in sympathy with the nullification" of the Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Nineteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

Commercial Appeal

The Massachusetts representative said in a recent speech on the enforcement of the prohibition amendment reached the "pinnacle of nauseating hypocrisy" in his views on upholding of the Constitution.

2-29-28

"Any American who has travis familiar with the fact that the negro votes as freely as the white man in the north, east and west, but not in the south," Tinkham declared. He added that because of the nullification of the constitution the elections in the southern states "are unconstitutional and lawless and the presidential elections are tainted with fraud and illegitimacy."

Memphis Press

If prohibition is enforced by federal statute, he argued, the other amendments should be upheld by similar means.

DON'T FORGET TO REGISTER

In our enthusiasm for candidates or other things economical, or political, let us not forget to register. Let us not forget that the one essential element which will insure good government is an honest ballot and that the man without the ballot will continue to be the tool and vassal of the man with the ballot.

Independent

There is only one way in this government to have real liberty, and that is to have elections where the people can freely express their will, unmolested at the ballot box. It is well to remember that only those who are qualified to vote and exercise that right are considered a part of the people. The man with the ballot and who refuses to use that ballot is a menace to free institutions, and should be excluded by permanent disqualification. So let us register; we can only get relief economically, religiously, politically or otherwise, by the ballot, so let us register.

Atlanta Ga.

D. C.

Political - 1923
Suffrage.

Fighting For Suffrage In District Of Columbia Centers Around Negro's Plea As Voting Factor

Is Leading Forces For ... and He Answers Arguments ...y Opponents of Proposiiton

...y RIENZI B. LEMUS

...n, D. C.—The Nation's Capitol is, in ...merous, paradoxical aspects, an oasis ... a desert of inequalities—the one com- ... the entire country where both blacks and ...are disfranchised, or rather unenfranchised. ...opulation is greater and more sophisticated ...an that of Idaho which, save Alabama, furnishes the greatest yawper, Borah, to the United States Senate.

Washington wants to vote, wants to vote for President, Vice President, and a representative in Congress; but mostly wants to do so if it can be arranged as it has been arranged in South Carolina, and a dozen other sovereign States of the American commonwealth, which like Tex Rickard vainly tried to run the heavyweight-boxing championship game—wholly "nordically."

Age

The leader of the votes for Washingtonians movement is the editor of the "Evening Star," the Capitol's leading, venerable and profitable afternoon daily, Theodore W. Noyes. The Noyes are to Washington and its journalism what Dana was to the "Sun," and what Ochs is to New York and the "Times," with the distinction that Dana and Ochs were first of their dynasties. Additionally, "Ted" Noyes' brother, Thomas Noyes, president of the Associated Press, first news gathering and news distributing agency of the Universe.

3-24-23 New York, Mirr

Held "Jim Crow" Contest.

Scarce two weeks ago was it when Neval Thomas, Banquo's ghost of segregation's proponents, relentlessly pursued Noyes and the "Star" for sponsoring a "jimcrow" high school oratorical contest here. Mr. Thomas confronted Mr. Noyes with the fact that his contest manager had held a conference with the high school principals to arrange the affair—but 'twas all "lily-white." The principals of the Negro high schools were left out.

Then it was that the faculties of the latter declined the invitation from the "Star" to participate in a "segregated" debate on the scared Constitution of the U. S. A.

The resolution to amend the Constitution to permit Washingtonians the great privilege of declining to register and vote was offered in the House of Representatives by Congressman Dyer, of anti-lynching Bill—"rainbow legislation" fame, and hearings, ending March 15, were conducted by the House judiciary committee.

At the hearings, suffrage opponents grounded their opposition on the colored man, and never got away from their "ground," as the Afric content of the District of Columbia's population is in excess of 25 per cent, and enfranchisement would "mean" Negro domination. So, not unlike the U. S. prosecutors, who must defend bootleg-snatchers and hooch-sniffers accused of murder in performance of duty, Editor Noyes was constrained to hold the Negro's brief against the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune hurled at his pet hobby-suffrage for the decitizenized or uncitizenized Americans of the District of Columbia.

Comparative Statistics.

Pointing out that "the argument offered by the opponents that colored residents would hold the balance of power is not based on a careful study of statistics," Mr. Noyes asked—

"Is there some peculiar unfitness in the District's white population and some extraordinary taint in the District's colored population which render the three-fourths plus one-fourth combination virulently poisonous, while the much higher colored percentages in some of the States, reaching sometimes one-half plus one-half combination, becomes innocuous?"

He cited comparative statistics relative to racial percentages of Maryland and Virginia, and said—

"If Washington is unfit for Americanization because of 25.1 colored percentage are not Baltimore with 14.8; Atlantic City 21.6; Richmond, 31.5, and Norfolk, 37.5 (averaging 26.3) also unfit?"

Despite the sound argument of Mr. Noyes' foregoing comparative query, some persons here state tht it would not be difficult to apprehend the sort of construction Senator Blease, of South Carolina, would place on the citation of the two Virginia cities—Norfolk and Richmond—which have largest colored percentages, in view of the fact that colored citizens have been disfranchised in both for 30 years. To these persons, references to those two "lily-white" towns carries pert significance; though he followed with this—

"No element of the population has shown since 1870 greater progress in radically reducing illiteracy and in the thrift and industry which honestly accumulate property than the colored people of the District. In the World War the percentage of enlisted colored soldiers was distinctly greater in the District than the colored percentage of the District's total population."

This, and all information about the colored people used by Mr. Noyes before the judiciary committee, was furnished in a memorandum prepared by Prof. Kelly Miller, Henry Murray of Armstrong Technical High School, and Chas. E. Hall of the Census Bureau to whom Editor Noyes very properly referred when submitting a copy to the Committee "as three able representatives of the colored people."

Is A Nominal Desire.

The desire of the District's folks to vote is perfectly normal. They have to sit here and listen to the constant bids for attention of Senators Borah and Blease, both of whom represent constituents immeasurably less important than the District potentially is. What concerns colored citizens infinitely greater, however, is a more nearly fair attitude of the "Evening Star" towards them. For instance it is claimed that the "Star" recently printed what was aid in condemnation of Recorder of Deeds Froe (colored) and Superintendent of Schools Ballou (white) on the floor of the House by Congressman Holliday of Illinois, while Mr. Holliday's very complimentary references to Assistant Superintendent of Schools Garnett Wilkerson (colored) were deleted in entirety. The most progressive element of the District's population in radically reducing illiteracy and in evidence of that thrift and industry which honestly accumulates property wants the "Star" to get back in the faith and swing of its illustrious founder, long-time editor, the late Crosby S. Noyes, father of the present editor, than whom no community ever possessed a finer, nobler, squarer man.

COLORED VOTERS DIVISION.

The Republican Party has recognized the fact that no longer can every man who belongs to the colored race be counted a Republican. The time was when that was true. But it has handed out too much bunk in the past few years for the colored brother to become enthused over the idea. Besides, the Negro has grown in intelligence and has a pretty definite idea of the reasons of parties and know what National issues are and mean. Because of this the Republican party is making a special effort to influence and hold the Negro voter. Recently, Prof. John R. Hawkins of Washington has been appointed Chairman of what is known as a "Colored Voters Division of the Republican National Committee." The choice of Prof. Hawkins is quite fortunate. He is an outstanding Negro; a successful one by all the standards applied to measure success. Besides, in the organization he is assisted by other outstanding successful men. Such a move on the part of the Republicans no doubt will be to its advantage. In this respect, the Republicans have the advantage of the Democrats. All most all of the outstanding Negroes are or have been identified with that party. It will not be ever thus though. For as soon as the Democrats stop acting as is the symbol of the party, many of the best Negroes will be found that party. There is no more reason for all Negroes to be Republicans than for all whites to be Democrats.

Publication
See Number
8-1-28

Florida

Political - 1928
Suffrage

REGISTRATION BOOKS CLOSED BY OFFICIALS

Say Primaries Are for "Whites Only"

Pensacola, Fla., March 23.—State officials, after investigating "alarming" reports from this city and Tallahassee that members of the Race were registering in overwhelming numbers for the forthcoming Democratic primary, ordered the state attorney general to issue an opinion that the Florida law excluded members of the Race from participating in primary elections and that such action on their part should be met by criminal proceedings.

County solicitors have been ordered not to allow members of the Race to register or vote in the forthcoming elections.

Since the registration books were opened at the courthouse, 50 per cent of the voters registered have been members of the Race, and according to those in charge of the books, the number is increasing daily. This is the first time in history that the Race has registered in a Democratic primary since the Civil War. All of those registering have classed themselves as Democrats. They are preparing to take part in the city and state primaries. Under the classification it has gone under since the Civil war the primary is known as the "white Democratic primary."

Denied Rights

The white Democrats contend that their organization is private and has the right to bar those with whom they do not care to affiliate at the polls. The opinion voiced by members of the Race in this city and other cities in the state is that they have been denied the right to vote as Republicans in the primaries and can only vote as Democrats. The suddenness of their large registration as Democrats in order to put their candidates in offices has caused alarm in the Democratic ranks. The Race "Democrats" will vote for Democrats pledging to give them better schools, playgrounds, parks and paved streets, but will vote independently during the national election.

Regardless of the action taken by the state Democratic executive committee and the state, Race citizens will continue to visit the registration places. They are preparing to fight opposition to their registering in the state courts and in the United States supreme court. It was pointed out that a similar case of disfranchisement in Texas by Democrats was carried to the United States supreme court by citizens of that state and won. The voters contend that their rights given them under the federal Constitution have been denied them and that all elections open for the election of public officers should be open to them regardless of unwritten laws and the opinion of whites in control of certain parties.

MOVE TO QUALIFY NEGROES FOR VOTE IN FLORIDA SEEN

Tallahassee, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—Attempts are being made in at least one section of Florida, and possibly others, to register negroes for the coming democratic primary, reports to the attorney general's office today set out.

Attorney General Fred H. Davis received information that efforts were made to register about 600 negroes in Escanaba county recently. Davis has advised William Fisher, county solicitor, at Pensacola, that negroes should not be allowed to register and vote in the democartic primary election.

Although the United States supreme court has held that under a Texas law negroes may vote in democratic primaries, the Florida law on the subject, the attorney general says, is broad enough to exclude negroes.

Mr. Davis advised Mr. Fisher that the only way to handle the negro question in the primary is to file criminal information against members of the race when they apply for the oath, charging them with perjury.

"I have no doubt that an organized effort is being made in Florida to stir up trouble," the attorney general added.

PENSACOLA, FLA

Journal

MAR 16 1928

WHITE VOTERS ONLY ELIGIBLE FOR PRIMARIES

Democratic Committee Rules On Negro Registration For Elections

No matter what their desires may be, negroes are Republicans in Pensacola. They cannat vote in the Democratic white primary June 10, when the voters will decide whether Harvey Bayliss is to continue as mayor or whether Laurence Wilson shall have that job.

This decision was announced yesterday by E. P. Roch, chairman of the city Democratic executive committee, which met to discuss and rule on the problem presented when negroes, following a mass meeting some time ago, began to register in unprecedented numbers.

Resolution Given

A resolution adopted by the committee reads as follows:

"Be it resolved by the Democratic executive committee of the city of Pensacola, that only duly qualified white Democratic electors of the said city are hereby declared to be and are held to be members of the Democratic party in said city and are therefore entitled to vote in the primary election to be held by said party in said city on the 10th day of April, 1928....."

Vested With Power

The Democratic executive committee, its members claim, is vested with the power of determining who is a Democrat and who is not. However, it cannot prevent the negro from voting in a general election in June, if a general election is necessitated. A general election will not be held unless an independent candidate enters the field for mayor after the primary.

Registration officials said yesterday that registration of new voters continued with negroes equaling whites. However, the total number of voters registered shows a majority of whites.

FLA. DEMOCRAT' FIGHT BALLOT FOR NEGROES

Plan to Bar Negro Voters From Dem. Primary n Va.

Report The County Solicitor of Escumbia County, Fla., Has Been Advised That Negroes Should Not Be Allowed to Register.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Mar. 28—(ANP)—Much discussion is being brought about by the political right of the Negro to exercise the right of franchise. The Negro of the South seeks his right to register. They are not meeting with oppositon in some states, but in others, drastic moves have been made to bar them from the polls. This is especially true in Virgina and Florida. Florida even threatens to arrest them, but the colored people have threatened court action.

To Make Arrests in Florida

Taking cognizance of reports that efforts were being made to register Negro voters for the forthcoming democratic primary, Attorney General Fred H. Davis, it is claimed, issued an opinion holding that the Florida law excludes them from participation, and that any action their part should be met by criminal proceedings.

According to reports the attorney made his announcement after receivng information that registration of approximately 60 Negroes was being attempted in Escambia County (Pensacola). He advised the solicitor there that Negroes should not be allowed to register and vote in democratic primary elections adding that while the United States Supreme Court had held that under the law they had that right, the Florida law on the subject is broad enough to exclude them.

Declaring that he has no doubt that an effort is being made to stir up trouble in Florida, the attorney added that the only way to handle the situation is to file perjury charges against those who apply for the oath.

Va. Democrats Prepare to Block Negro Participation in Primary

Richmond, Va., March 28—(ANP)—The report that there are now some 5,000 qualified Negro voters which represents the balance of power, has thrown a scare into the ranks of the democratic partiy and state and city party leaders are preparing to resist threatened court action on the part of these voters who want to participate in the mayoralty primary on April 3. Despite the fact that the Suprme Court has ruled that there must be no discrimination on the part of the state, the democratic leaders are comparing carefully the law of Texas which was declared invalid with the law of Virginia. It is claimed by the white democrats that the Texas law differs from the Virginia state in that the former specifically bars Negroes from participation in a democratic primary and the law of the latter state does not deal with any particular party, nor does it bar any particular race, and if there is any discrimination it is not on the part of the state but of individuals.

The Negro voters, however, are going ahead and preparing for the battle which they feel confident will result in a great victory.

FLORIDA NEGROES DEMAND THE VOTE

Pensacola, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—A parallel with the famous Texas Jim Crow case was foreseen here tonight when the Colored Voters league issued a statement to the effect that negro voters in this city intend to vote in the coming city primary and general election come what may.

In a statement made public tonight the league says it does not want any race riot, but says it is determined to take part in the primary election, voting for the candidate it chooses. It declares it will carry the fight for this right to every court in the United States if necessary.

The statement points to lack of negro representation in the administration of city affairs and financing. It states openly that negroes in the city have not been taken care of properly, and that it, the league, intends to rectify this situation at the polls.

Pointing to the fact that its members are taxpayers and otherwise eligible to vote as they choose the league says "we want justice and justice is all that we ask for."

Several hundred negroes have already registered in the city offices. Several days ago the state attorney general issued an opinion that negroes could not, under Florida laws, vote in the city election. He suggested that negroes who registered to vote in the city primary could be held for perjury.

Gainesville, Fl
Tuesday, March

NEGROES SAY WILL VOTE IN ELECTIONS

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 26 (AP)—The Colored Voters' League of this city tonight issued a statement to the effect that negro voters intend to vote in the coming city primary and general elections.

The statement, which alleged a lack of negro representation in the administration of city affairs and financing, said that it, the league, intended to rectify this situation at the polls.

The state attorney general issued an opinion recently which satted that negroes could not, under Florida law, vote in the city elections.

Tampa, Fla., Times
Tuesday, March 27, 1928

Pensacola Negroes Will Try to Vote

Pensacola, March 27.—The colored voters' league of this city issued a statement to the effect that negro voters intend to vote in the coming city primary and general elections.

The statement, which alleged a lack of negro representation in the administration of city affairs and financing, said that it, the league, intended to rectify this situation at the polls.

The state attorney general issued an opinion recently which stated that negroes could not, under Florida law, vote in the city elections. The statement of the league declared its intention to carry its fight for representation to the courts if necessary.

Swainsboro, Ga., Forest-Blade
Thursday, March 29, 1928

Florida Negroes Demand To Vote

The negroes of Pensacola, Fla., are demanding that they be allowed to vote in the city elections. The Colored Voters League has issued a statement to the effect that negro voters in the Florida city intend to vote in the coming city primary and general election, come what may.

In a statement made public tonight the league says it does not want any race riot, but says it is determined to take part in the city election, voting for any candidate it chooses. It declares it will carry the fight for this right to every court in the United States if necessary.

The statement points to lack of negro representation in the administration of city affairs and financing. It states openly that negroes in the city have not been taken care of properly, and that it, the league, intends to rectify this situation at the polls.

Pointing to the fact that its members are taxpayers and otherwise eligible to vote as they choose the league says "we want justice and justice is all that we ask for."

Several hundred negroes have already registered in the city offices. Several days ago the state attorney general issued an opinion that negroes could not, under Florida laws, vote in the city election. He suggested that negroes who registered to vote in the city primary could be held for perjury.

DENIED BALLOT, VOTER SUES POLL OFFICIALS

PENSACOLA, FLA.—Action which may test the right of Florida election officials to deny race voters the right to the franchise was started here last week when Henry Goode filed suit for $5,000 against Thomas Johnson and Clifford Bell, white, managers of an election booth in which Goode was prohibited from voting.

More than 2000 other race voters registered but were also not permitted to vote.

FLORIDA NEGRO DENIED VOTE, HIS SUIT STATES

Seek $5,000 From Election Officials At Pensacola

Herald Commonwealth

Pensacole, Fla., April 19th.—Henry Goode, a Negro, has filed suit for $5,000 damages against Paul Riera, Thomas Johnson and Clifford Bell, manager of an election booth wherein Goode says he was prohibited from voting at a recent election.

Goode, it was represented, went to the precinct voting place armed with qualifying credentials, but was refused a ballot. Fred Marsh, clerk of the United States Court and practicing attorney here is representing the Negro.

More than 2,000 Negroes were registered for the election. None was permitted to vote, it is said.

Florida Whites Excited Over Primary Vote Fight

NEW YORK. — White citizens of Florida are excited over the determined effort being made by Negroes of Pensacola to establish their right to vote in the Democratic primaries of the state of Florida.

N. A. Jones, President of the Pensacola Branch of the N. A. A. C. P., reports that the case arising out of the attempt to bar Negroes from the polls will probably be argued in court some time in July or August.

"Most members of the N. A. A. C. P. are members of the Voters League and hence are bound together," reports Mr. Jones.

The white citizens according to local newspaper report, were called together by Mayor J. H. Bayliss of Pensacola, being notified by telephone of a meeting. Mayor Bayliss was renominated as a member of the City Commission in an election from which Negroes were barred.

The white citizens attending the meeting voted to ask that any surplus remaining from county candidates' fees after the June primary election, be used as a fee to pay attorneys opposing the Negroes. Other meetings of the white citizens were reported planned in connection with this contest.

PRIMARY TEST ON IN FLORIDA

Colored Physician Of Pensacola, Sues Election Clerks

CASE FAR-REACHING

By THOMAS L. DABNEY

Pensacola, Fla., May 15—A battle of great significance both for Southern Negroes and Southern whites is on in this city between Negroes who wish to participate in the Democratic primaries and the whites who are determined to bar the Negroes at all costs. The battle began when Dr. Horace D. Goode brought suit against Tom Johnson, C. J. Bell and Paul F. Riera, election clerks in the Democratic primary in the 32nd precinct because they refused to permit him to vote on April 10.

Dr. Goode has engaged Attorney Fred Marsh to push his case, while the three election clerks, against whom the $5,000 suit is brought, will be defended by Col. John S. Beard, William Fisher and John B. Jones. It is said that a prominent Jewish attorney, who consented to represent Dr. Goode, was so perturbed by public sentiment among the whites in the city against Dr. Goode and Negro participation in the Democratic primaries that he decided to withdraw from the case and returned the money that had been given him for his services.

Keen Interest Manifested

Keen interest is manifested among whites and Negroes in Dr. Goode's case not only in Pensacola but throughout the State. The whites are rapidly setting up their machinery of defense, and are discussing the case in the press and public meetings. A few days ago more than 40 white citizens gathered in the city hall at the call of Mayor J. Harvey Bayliss "to build a defense against the Negro vote attack.... The white press reported that the Mayor called the meeeting, "acting in the capacity of a private citizen and not mayor....." This explanation was offered to offset the appearance that the Mayor has some official connection with the defense. At the meeeting the Mayor announced that he called the meeting to devise means to raise funds to defend the three election clerks.

At the metting held at the city hall an attempt was made to crystallize sentiment among the whites against the action of Dr. Goode by relating "the trying times that Pensacola went through 35 and 40 years ago when virtual Negro rule was in effect....." Those who told the tale tried to make it appear that the city abounded in corruption under Negro rule, and that the city was saved only by the timely action of the courageous whites who gained political control from the Negroes and Northern Republicans.

Negroes Determined

The Negroes of Pensacola seem as determined to win their rights to participate in the Democratic primaries as the whites are to bar them. The local N. A. A. C. P. under the leadership of Mr. Nathan Jones is giving all the assistance it can to Dr. Goode's case. The Voters' League is also interested in the case; and its members are giving their support to the cause. Fortunately the local N. A. A. C. P. is conducting a membership drive; and the interest which Negro citizens have in the primary case is being used as a basis to increase the membership of the local.

Case Significant

All of the local Negro organizations will have an opportunity to function in behalf of the political rights of the race after June 4, at which time it is reported that an answer will be filed to Dr. Goode's charges. Dr. Goode's case is very significant in that it raises the whole question as to whether a Negro can vote in the Democratic primaries not only in Pensacola, but throughout the South. The case marks a departure of the Negro from the traditional policy of the race to vote the Republican ticket en masse. While the Southern white man still clings to the traditions of the past in things political the Negro is breaking away. This is a healthy sign, and sooner or later the white South must follow in the steps of the Negro. The Negroes of Pensacola are fighting their case with the hope and belief that they will win.

Florida.

Political - 1928

Suffrage

Cleveland, Tenn., Banner
Wednesday, March 28, 1928

RACE RIOT MAY FOLLOW

IF NEGROES VOTE IN FLA.

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 28.—(I. N. S.)—What promises to be one of the most bitter race fights ever seen is creeping upon this city with the coming of the city primary and general election, following the statement of the Colored Voters League to the effect that negro votes of this city intend to vote, come what may. The situation is a parellel of the famous Texas Jim Crow case.

The state's attorney general has already handed down an opinion that negroes could not under Florida laws vote in the city election, and that should they do, all those who registered could be held for perjury.

The Negro League is asking for the ballot on the grounds that negroes are property owners and taxpayers, that they have no representation in the administration of the city affairs and financing. The League statement declared that negro voters intend to go to the polls and rectify this situation.

The statement of the league declared that although it does not want any race riot, it is determine to take part in the elections and vote for any candidate it chooses.

Pensacola Negroes Fail In Vote Effort

PENSACOLA, FLA., April 10.—(AP)—Pensacola negroes, countering a recent ruling from the office of the attorney general of Florida, made a peaceful but unsuccessful effort to vote in a city-wide primary today.

Police were on guard at most polls and only three instances of mild disturbance were noted. Negroes who attempted to vote were told they would be unable to do so, and left quietly, except when two demonstrating negro voters were led from polling places by the police.

Negroes of the city, who early in the day retained a lawyer to bring immediate legal pressure to gain them voting privileges, tonight announced they would seek to have the election declared illegal in the courts.

J. H. Bayliss was reelected mayor by a majority of 1,705 votes over Lawrence Wilson. They were the only candidates on the ticket.

Mobile, Ala., Register

MAR 16 1928

DEMOCRATS PUT BAN ON NEGROES AT PENSACOLA

Naval Stores Men Discuss Advertising Campaign at Quarterly Gathering

WEST FLORIDA BUREAU
THE MOBILE REGISTER
Pensacola, Fla., March 15

At a meeting of the city Democratic executive committee today a resolution was passed defining those who may take part in the city primary to be held April 10. The resolution passed pointed out that only duly qualified white Democratic electors are declared to be and are held as members of the Democratic party in Pensacola, and are therefore entitled to vote in the primary election. This resolution was in accordance with the regular call for the primary which had been issued and the action is taken with a view to offset negro voters, it was claimed, when it was discovered that more than 1,000 negroes had registered as Democrats. This situation was pointed out and the committee was called together today to take action.

Washington, Ga., News-Reporter
Friday, March 23, 1928

Move To Qualify Negroes In Florida

Tallahassee, Fla., March 16.—Attempts are being made in at least one section of Florida, and possibly others, to register negroes for the coming democratic primary, reports to the attorney general's office today set out.

Attorney General Fred H. Davis received information that efforts were made to register about 600 negroes in Escanaba county, and Mr. Davis has advised William Fisher, county solicitor, at Pensacola, that negroes should not be allowed to register and vote in the democrattic primary election.

Although the United States supreme court has held that under a Texas law negroes may vote in democratic primaries, the Florida law on the subject, the attorney general says, is broad enough to exclude negroes.

Mr. Davis advised Mr. Fisher that the only way to handle the negro question in the primary is to file criminal information against members of the race when they apply for the oath, charging them with perjury.

"I have no doubt that an organized effort is being made in Florida to stir up trouble,' the attorney general added.

FLORIDA OFFICIAL DEFIES SUPREME COURT RULING

Attorney General of State Says Negroes Who Attempt to Vote Will Meet Criminal Action.

Tallahassee, Fla., March 28.—(By the Associated Negro Press.) Taking cognizance of reports that efforts were being made to register Negro voters for the forthcoming democratic primary, Attorney General Fred H. Davis issued an opinion holding that the Florida law [illegible] them from participating and that any action on their part should be met by criminal proceedings.

The attorney made his announcement after receiving information that registration of approximately 60 Negroes were being attempted in Escambia County (Pensacola). He advised the county solicitor there that Negroes should not be allowed to register and vote in Democratic primary elections, adding that while the U. S. Supreme Court held that under the law they have such a right, the Florida law on the subject is broad enough to exclude them.

Declaring that he has no doubt that an effort is being made in Florida to stir up trouble, the attorney added that the only way to handle the situation is to file perjury charges against those who apply for the oath.

Such practices as this in the South are what Southern senators, during this session of Congress, have contended do not exist, when Northern senators would bring such charges in support of reduced representation.

JOURNAL
JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

APR 21 1928

NEGROES TO ASK VOTING RIGHTS

Threaten to Call Out Militia; Republicans Hold County Convention.

Militia will be called out to see that negro voters may exercise their franchise in the November general elections, a meeting of the Duval county Republican executive committee gathered in the negro Masonic temple on Broad street, was told today by Judge H. L. Lindsay, Republican. Delegates were to be chosen to the state convention.

His assertion followed a question from Leon Anderson, negro, assistant secretary of the committee, as to how negroes could be expected to support the Republican ticket when, Anderson declared, negroes stood in line from opening to closing of the polls, four years ago, awaiting an opportunity to cast their votes.

At least one negro delegate will be on Florida's representation at the Republican national convention, it was stipulated in a report of the body's resolution committee.

Today's meeting was called by John R. Scott, negro chairman of the county Republican committee, to elect 11 delegates to the state Republican convention at Daytona Beach on May 10. These elections had not been held early this afternoon, the meeting being still in session.

After permanent organization had been perfected with Scott re-named chairman; S. D. McGill, negro attorney, vice-chairman; T. J. Bundrix, a United States deputy marshal as secretary, and Anderson as assistant secretary, various speakers were heard.

Billy Parker, editor of the Southern Republican, declared that negroes should vote. He said he had told the Believers in Jacksonville that if Florida should go Republican that the state would get publicity worth $10,000,000 from it. He predicted election of a Republican governor for Florida at this election and said that a Republican congressman and Republican United States senator might even be chosen.

Other speakers pointed out that Duval county negroes could marshal a 35,000 vote and should do so. The Jacksonville police department was brought into the discussions when one speaker said, "You all know what they're doing—what the city commission now is investigating. Let us register and vote and we can elect the commissioners and get a square deal."

Attendance of about 100 featured the meeting. About 15 were white persons, the remainder negroes.

The chairman warned, at the outset of the meeting, that nothing of a controversal nature would be admitted and Dr. C. V. Freeman, negro physician who had obtained the floor to talk declared he did have a grievance to submit but would abide by the rules. Other speakers urged more co-operation and less fighting against the organization from disgruntled persons.

Two Negroes Arrested When They Try To Vote

TALLAHASSEE, April 10.—(A.P.)—Two arrests were made here yesterday when hundreds of negroes attempted to cast ballots in a Democratic primary for a mayoralty candidate. The arrests were made in cases where the negroes insisted on voting. The police were assigned to guard the polls when it was reported violence might follow an attempt to prevent them from casting ballots. Two negroes even presented affidavits to prove their partisanship but were escorted from the polls by officers, along with several others.

NEGROES DENIED BALLOT SUE FLA. POLL OFFICIALS

$5000 Damages is Asked Against the Managers of Election For Barring Negro Voters

2000 REGISTERED BUT NONE ALLOWED TO VOTE

Qualified Credentials Fail to Give Citizens the Privilege That is Rightfully Theirs

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 25 (Special)—Florida's "white" primary law is to undergo an attack in the circuit court through a damage suit which is on the docket at Pensacola, the action having been instituted by Henry C. Goode, a voter who was denied the privilege of casting a ballot in the recent city primary when Mayor Bayliss was renominated by a large majority over his lone opponent.

Goode has filed suit for $5,000 damages against Paul [illegible] Thomas Johnson and Clifford Bell, managers of an election booth, wherein Goode says he was prohibited from voting at the recent election.

Goode, it was represented, went to the precinct voting place armed with qualifying credentials, but was refused a ballot. Fred Marsh, clerk of the United States Court and practicing attorney here, is representing Goode. More than 2,000 Negroes were registered. None was premitted to vote, it was said.

Jacksonville, Fla., Journal
Saturday, April 21, 1928

NEGROES TO ASK VOTING RIGHTS

Threaten to Call Out Militia; Republicans Hold County Convention.

Militia will be called out to see that negro voters may exercise their franchise in the November general elections, a meeting of the Duval county Republican executive committee gathered in the negro Masonic temple on Broad street, was told today by Judge H. L. Lindsay, Republican. Delegates were to be chosen to the state convention.

His assertion followed a question from Leon Anderson, negro, assistant secretary of the committee, as to how negroes could be expected to support the Republican ticket when, Anderson declared, negroes stood in line from opening to closing of the polls, four years ago, awaiting an opportunity to cast their votes.

At least one negro delegate will be on Florida's representation at the Republican national convention, it was stipulated in a report of the body's resolution committee.

Today's meeting was called by John R. Scott, negro chairman of the county Republican committee, to elect 11 delegates to the state Republican convention at Daytona Beach on May 10. These elections had not been held early this afternoon, the meeting being still in session.

After permanent organization had been perfected with Scott re-named chairman; S. D. McGill, negro attorney, vice-chairman; T. J. Bundrix, a United States deputy marshal as secretary, and Anderson as assistant secretary, various speakers were heard.

Billy Parker, editor of the Southern Republican, declared that negroes should vote. He said he had told the Believers in Jacksonville that if Florida should go Republican that the state would get publicity worth $10,000,000 from it. He predicted election of a Republican governor for Florida at this election and said that a Republican congressman and Republican United States senator might even be chosen.

Other speakers pointed out that Duval county negroes could marshal a 35,000 vote and should do so. The Jacksonville police department was brought into the discussions when one speaker said, "You all know what they're doing—what the city commission now is investigating. Let us register and vote and we can elect the commissioners and get a square deal."

Attendance of about 100 featured the meeting. About 15 were white persons, the remainder negroes.

The chairman warned, at the outset of the meeting, that nothing of a controversal nature would be admitted and Dr. C. V. Freeman, negro physician who had obtained the floor to talk declared he did have a grievance to submit but would abide by the rules. Other speakers urged more co-operation and less fighting against the organization from disgruntled persons.

Tallahassee, Fla., State
Friday, April 20, 1928

COLORED PEOPLE INDIGNANT OVER SOME FALSE NEWS

The following item recently appeared in several newspapers, and is copied from The Florida Sentinel, a negro publication in the city of Jacksonville:

Tallahassee, April 11.—Hundreds of Negroes here attempted to cast ballots in the Democratic primary election despite possibilities of violence. The election was to decide the candidate for mayor. Two even proved their partisanship by presenting affidavits but were escorted from the polls by officers. An extra force of policemen was assigned for that specific duty when it became known that Negroes were really determined to vote. Reports were circulated that arrests had been made but the charges, if any, have not been assertained.

Recently, the attorney general issued an opinion that Negroes who insisted on voting in the primary would be prosecuted for perjury. In view of this many came prepared to sign affidavits if challenged. It has been previously expressed that the fight for voice in local politics will continue to the Federal Supreme court if necessary. The primary law is being attacked by Negro voters in Virginia also.

There was not a scintilla of excuse for such a story. The colored people in Tallahassee are indignant, and have sent out the following emphatic denial:

Tallahassee, Fla., Apr. 16, 1928.

"Editor Daily Democrat:

"We have read in the colums of the newspapers that an article was published with large head lines, 'Negro Voters Led From Polls When Mayor Is Elected.' Where it states that hundreds of Negroes here attempted to cast their ballots in the Democratic primary election for mayor.

"Will state that this is an arrogant statement and is not fair to the citizens of Tallahassee, both white and black alike. We have made investigations and were reliably informed by the chief of police of our city that he had not heard of and was in no knowledge of any attempt on the part of the Colored citizens to vote in the Democratic primary election for mayor.

It is not fair to the citizens of Tallahassee, for such an article to appear in the newspapers casting a black spot on the city of Tallahassee where the best of relationship exists between both races.

"You will kindly publish this letter that all of Florida might see Tallahassee in its right light.

Signed:

JOHN NIMS, JR.
E. A. POTTSDAMER
Colored Citizens.

FLORIDA NEGROES BOLT REPUBLICANS

Gainesville, Fla., Aug. 18.—Adopting resolutions deploring the present status of the Republican party in Florida, 300 Negroes, representing 41 of the 61 counties of the state, met here today to align themselves against state candidates named by that party.

The resolutions, which denounced what was termed the "Lily White" faction of the party, were ordered sent to Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Declaring that in crucial times of the past, it had been the Negro who had kept the party intact in Florida, the delegates expressed their regret that the "Republican party of Florida has decided to make it an exclusively white party and deprive the representatives of 500,000 industrial, law abiding and God fearing colored voters of a representation in the party councils."

Political-19

Suffrage

Judge's Decision Upholds Primary Ruling In Florida

Pensacola, Fla.—(ANP)—The Democratic executive committee of Pensacola can bar Negroes from voting in city primary elections and not be liable for any action brought by Negroes denied the right to vote, Judge Thomas F. West ruled in Circuit Court here last Thursday.

The question was raised in a $5,000 damage suit filed by H. D. Goode against Thomas A. Johnson, Paul Riera and C. J. Bell, all white, after Mr. Goode was denied the right to vote in the primary election last April.

The suit will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The fight among the Negro voters of Pensacola dates back many months to the time when colored political leaders who had organized a Republican club of voters decided to enter these voters in the Democratic primary. These leaders anticipated obstacles that would be placed in their path by white Democrats and disposed of them intelligently. Before the primary, there were several legal skirmishes, with the attorney general of the state ruling against the Negroes.

leaders of the movement here feel believe that the Negroes would be permitted to vote in the primary, so they instructed certain members who were to try to vote, to obtain affidavits from white precinct judges, sustaining their denial of the vote. These affidavits were to be made the part of later suits, such as Mr. Goode has just filed. The decision of Judge West is not a disappointment as the leadres of the movement here feel that it will be necessary to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court, and are prepared to do so.

FLORIDA COURT UPHOLDS NEGRO PRIMARY BAR

Disfranchised Complainants Will Appeal Case To Supreme Court

By the Associated Negro Press

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 15—The Democratic executive commitee of Pensacola can bar Negroes from voting in city primary elections and not be liable for any action brought by Negroes denied the right to vote, Judge Thomas F. West ruled in Circuit Court here last Thursday.

The question was raised in a $5,000 damage suit filed by H. D. Goode against Thomas A. Johnson, Paul Riera and C. J. Bell, all white, after Mr. Goode was denied the right to vote in the primary election last April.

The suit will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The fight among the Negro voters of Pensacola dates back many months to the time when colored political leaders who had organized a Republican club of voters decided to enter these voters in the Democratic primary. These leaders anticipated obstacles that would be placed in their path by white Democrats and disposed of them intelligently. Before the pirmary, there were several legal skirmishes, with the attorney general of the state ruling against the Negroes.

The leaders of the fight did not believe that the Negroes would be permitted to vote in the primary, so they instructed certain members who were to try to vote to obtain affidavits from white precinct judges, sustaining their denial of the vote. These affidavits were to be made the part of later suits, such as Mr. Goode has just filed. The decision of Judge West is not a disappointment as the leaders of the movement here feel that it will be necessary to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court, and are prepared to do so.

FLORIDA COURT UPHOLDS NEGRO DISFRANCHISEMENT

PENSACOLA, Fla., Sept. 13.—(ANP)—The Democratic executive committee of Pensacola can bar Negroes from voting in city primary elections and not be liable for any action brought by Negroes denied the right to vote, Judge Thomas F. West ruled in Circuit Court here last Thursday.

The question was raised in a $5,000 damage suit filed by H. D. Goode against Thomas A. Johnson, Paul Riera and C. J. Bell, all white, after Mr. Goode was denied the right to vote in the primary election last April.

The suit will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The fight among the Negro voters of Pensacola dates back many months to the time when colored political leaders who had organized a Republican club of voters decided to enter these voters in the Democratic primary. These leaders anticipated obstacles that would be placed in their path by white Democrats and disposed of them intelligently. Before the primary, there were several legal skirmishes, with the attorney general of the state ruling against the the Negroes.

The leaders of the fight did not believe that the Negroes would be permitted to vote in the primary, so they instructed certain members who were to try to vote to obtain affidavits from white precinct judges, sustaining their denial of the vote. These affidavits were to be made the part of later suits, such as Mr. Goode has just filed. The decision of Judge West is not a disappointment as the leaders of the movement here feel that it will be necessary to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court, and are prepared to do so.

PRESS

Ft. Myers, Fla

SEP 24 1928

A WHITE PRIMARY

Always, the Fort Myers Press has stood for a white city primary. Year after year its editor has advocated in these columns and personally the advisability of the organization of a white primary before the city election, for a thorough discussion of candidates, and a decision regarding nominations.

Had these suggestions been followed year after year, and especially during the past troublous twelve months, this present difficulty would not be menacing us.

The situation in which this city finds itself at the present time is in no way the fault of our negro population, a population for which the Fort Myers Press has only the most kindly feelings, a population which it has always assisted and protected. The situation has been brought about by white citizens who have so forgotten their duty to themselves, to their city, and to the negro residents of their city, that they have attempted to use them for their own selfish political purposes.

It is possible to end this thing if steps are taken at once. It is possible to erase from the minds of these negroes who have been corrupted the misleading impressions that have deliberately been imprinted there. It is possible to help them to step back into their natural places and to keey themselves free from the "white folks scrimmages."

In fact, it is possible to cast the present errors and their results into oblivion, and as honorable men and women take a fresh start and from now on refrain from all civic transgressions, keep ourselves free from all contaminating influences, and especially from besmirching and degrading those in our midst who, because of social differences, should be our especial care, and are entitled to our protection and our help, that they may not fall into evil ways.

This is a good time to make fervent use of that well known petition, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil."

The Fort Myers Press is, here and now again suggesting a white primary before the next municipal election, and by this means we may destroy the spectre that is stalking amongst us.

Fort Myers Fla Press

Sept 24-1928

A WHITE PRIMARY

Always, the Fort Myers Press has stood for a white city primary. Year after year its editor has advocated in these columns and personally the advisability of the organization of a white primary before the city election, for a thorough discussion of candidates, and a decision regarding nominations.

Had these suggestions been followed year after year, and especially during the past troublous twelve months, this present difficulty would not be menacing us.

The situation in which this city finds itself at the present time is in no way the fault of our negro population, a population for which the Fort Myers Press has only the most kindly feelings, a population which it has always assisted and protected. The situation has been brought about by white citizens who have so forgotten their duty to themselves, to their city, and to the negro residents of their city, that they have attempted to use them for their own selfish political purposes.

It is possible to end this thing if steps are taken at once. It is possible to erase from the minds of these negroes who have been corrupted the misleading impressions that have deliberately been imprinted there. It is possible to help them to step back into their natural places and to keey themselves free from the "white folks scrimmages."

In fact, it is possible to cast the present errors and their results into oblivion, and as honorable men and women take a fresh start and from now on refrain from all civic transgressions, keep ourselves free from all contaminating influences, and especially from besmirching and degrading those in our midst who, because of social differences should be our especial care, and are entitled to our protection and our help, that they may not fall into evil ways.

This is a good time to make fervent use of that well known petition, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil."

The Fort Myers Press is, here and now again suggesting a white primary before the next municipal election, and by this means we may destroy the spectre that is stalking amongst us.

FLORIDA PRIMARY DISPUTE TO THE U. S. SUPREME COURT

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Sept. 19— Case involving the right of colored people to vote in the primaries of the State of Florida will be carried to the United States Supreme court if necessary, according to those backing the fight in this case.

Judge Thomas F. West, in Circuit Court in Pensacola, ruled that colored people cannot vote in a Democratic primary election in Pensacola as long as the city Democratic executive committee limits balloting to Caucasians.

H. D. Goode, who was denied the voting right, brought suit for $5,000 damages, through his attorney, Fred W. Marsh, who announced that appeal from the judge's ruling would be made to the Supreme court.

PRESS

Ft. Myers Fla

Sep 25 1928

NEGROES WILL BE ASKED TO AVOID POLLS NEXT WEEK

Political Opponents Sign Agreement As To Colored Vote

The request of Commissioner Cutter that all members of the city commission ,and the heads of the Progress club and the Business Men's league join in a request to the colored voters of the city to keep away from the polls on next Tuesday at the recall election, and that all parties to the election agree not to endeavor to get the colored voters to the polls or to have them vote has been finally agreed to by all parties except Commissioner Bartleson, who is out of the city. The agreement was signed last Saturday by Commissioners Bolick and Hough, and President R. L. Newman Sr., of the Progress club, and this morning was signed by Commissioner C. L. Starnes, and by President A. L. White of the Business Men's league and by Harry H. Burns campaign chairman of that organization and R. Q. Richards campaign manager of the Progress club.

Commissioner Bartleson will be asked to sign it as soon as he gets back to the city, so that no one will be out of the plan.

Suffrage

EVERY EVENING
WILMINGTON, DEL.

JUL 11 1928

THE NEGRO VOTER BECOMING RESTLESS.

A new element of uncertainty has begun to show itself in this year's presidential campaign that evidently was not anticipated in advance of the national conventions. Many thinking Negroes are expressing disgust over the outcome of the Republican convention at Kansas City. It is possible that if the platform adopted at that convention had not specifically mentioned the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution for its special attention the Negro's ire might not have been aroused to the extent it has been. In the light of what happened, however, it is difficult for many of the colored voters, who feel that they have been denied some of their rights, to understand why the Eighteenth Amendment was specified and the Fourteenth and Fifteenth, in which they are especially interested, were not mentioned also.

The platform, it is true, did affirm Washington's doctrine, that "the Constitution * * * * is sacredly obligatory upon us all;" also Lincoln's declaration that "we are both duty and inclination bound to stick by that Constitution in all its letter and spirit from beginning to end." But here is the only direct reference made in the platform to any of the amendments:

> "The people through the method provided by the Constitution have written the Eighteenth Amendment into the Constitution. The Republican party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of this provision of the Constitution."

Why single out this particular amendment and ignore all of the others—except by implication? The obvious purpose was to pacify the "drys." At the moment the latter were making more noise than the colored people. Here is the plank that was handed out to the Negro:

> "We renew our recommendation that the Congress enact at the earliest possible date a Federal anti-lynching law so that the full influence of the Federal government may be wielded to exterminate this hideous crime."

It is not strange, therefore, that some of the leaders of the colored race are advising their people to exert their independence as voters and support not parties, but the men who can be counted upon to give them a square deal. Such a movement has begun to assume form all over the country. It is alive in Wilmington and shows evidence of growing. Doubtless its influence will be felt more and more as the campaign progresses. The Negro, evidently, is tired of meaningless promises. What he wants is action.

TIMES
CUMBERLAND, MD.

JUL 23 1928

SOUTHERN NEGRO'S OPPORTUNITY

The significant story is told of a Mississippi negro who, after passing the literary test for voting, was asked by the examiners: "What does eeny meeny miny mo mean?" Promptly the answer came: "It means that you gentlemen don't want to let me register." This is an interesting reminder that since the methods of greatly cutting down the negro vote were invented a new generation of negroes has come upon the scene, vast numbers of whom are sufficiently educated to pass the literary ballot-test. As long as the whites remain united at well as determined, presumably the status quo can be maintained. But let the whites be divided into two bitterly opposed parties, each seeing need of the negro's help, such help can be readily secured under the existing legal provisions, and the negro's opportunity to become the balance of political power in the South will have arrived. For South Carolina and Mississippi contain more negroes than whites, and some of the other Southern States, such as Georgia, contain nearly as many.

If the Bishop Cannon (dry) defection is really determined on successful revolt, opportunity is within its reach. But what it will have to consider is whether it values the supposed interests of prohibition above the long recognized need of white political supremacy in the South—whether, in order to gain its immediate ends, it is willing to put the negroes in the road toward the balance of political power in the Southern States. From the Southern point of view the question confronting the Cannon element is one of supreme gravity.

DEMOCRAT

Warrenton - Va

JUL 27 1928

SOUTHERN NEGRO'S OPPORTUNITY

The significant story is told a Mississippi negro who, after passing the literacy test for voting, was asked by the examiners: "What does eeny meeny miny mo mean?" Promptly the answer came: "It means that you gentlemen don't want to let me register." This is an interesting reminder that since the methods of greatly cutting down the negro vote were invented a new generation of negroes has come upon the scene, vast numbers of whom are sufficiently educated to pass the literacy ballot-test. As long as the whites remain united as well as determined, presumably the status quo can be maintained. But let the whites be divided into two bitterly opposed parties, each seeing need of the negro's help, such help can be readily secured under the existing legal provisions, and the negro's opportunity to become the balance of political power in the South will have arrived. For South Carolina and Mississippi contain more negroes than whites, and some of the other Southern States, such as Georgia, contain nearly as many.

If the Bishop Cannon (dry) defection is really determined on successful revolt, opportunity is within its reach. But what it will have to consider is whether it values the supposed interests of prohibition above the long recognized need of white political supremacy in the South—whether, in order to gain its immediate ends, it is willing to put the negroes in the road toward the balance of political power in the Southern States. From the Southern point of view the question confronting the Cannon element is one of supreme gravity.

NEW YORK JOURNAL OF COMMERCE
JUN 22 1928

DISQUALIFIED TO VOTE.

As has been pointed out in these columns, the personalities of the candidates, the wet issue and the large campaign funds of 1928 are expected to produce the largest vote for President ever known in America. Nearly 27,000,000 voted in 1920 and nearly 29,100,000 voted in 1924. Well over the 30,000,000 mark is expected in this election by SIMON MICHELET, the best-known statistician of these subjects.

The number of disqualified citizens in the United States is very large, especially in the South, where various laws are designed to keep negroes from the polls and thus preserve the State Governments and Federal representation to the whites. In addition to these artificially disqualified citizens, there are many unnaturalized immigrants in America who cannot vote in 1928. The latest statistics on these two groups were collected by Mr. MICHELET on the basis of the 1920 census, so that there must now be many changes in the totals. But a glance at the figures is illuminating in several ways: for one thing it shows why, so long as Republicans urge the negroes to vote, the South will generally continue to vote Democratic.

Here was the situation in the Southern group prior to the elections of 1924:

State.	Eligible Voters.	*Disqualified Illiterates.	†Disqualified for All Reasons.
Arkansas	867,292	99,413	105,010
Louisiana	924,184	229,980	256,012

Texas	2,430,715	233,894	428,491
Tennessee	1,214,947	153,163	159,774
Alabama	1,143,395	228,565	236,167
Mississippi	876,106	182,135	185,834
Virginia	1,207,074	162,376	176,170
North Carolina	1,210,727	204,492	207,745
South Carolina	779,991	179,482	182,361
Georgia	1,421,606	261,294	267,833
Florida	536,614	58,497	80,758

*Nearly all negroes.
†Including unnaturalized.

In the border States, where no anti-negro voting laws prevail, the marked difference in the situation is shown in the following table:

State.	Eligible Voters.	Disqualified for All Reasons.
Oklahoma	1,021,588	64,812
Kentucky	1,289,496	147,230
Maryland	862,391	43,860
West Virginia	752,344	41,324
Missouri	2,038,814	69,103

The astonishing difference in the percentages of disqualification between these States and the States of the Solid South is readily apparent, the discrepancy in Kentucky being due to large groups of foreign workmen in the mines, strict registration laws and the municipal poll-tax requirement.

Among the States where the native-born population is high, where the colored population is small and non-restricted, the percentage of the disqualified is even less, as witness:

State.	Eligible Voters.	Disqualified for All Reasons.
Maine	475,191	53,850
Vermont	217,042	18,407
Iowa	1,428,682	61,208
Nebraska	738,310	51,116
Washington	857,079	96,518
Oregon	494,968	39,327
Colorado	564,529	42,699

There are many more in this classification: New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, the Dakotas, Kansas, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Utah and Nevada. These States, with those in similar case named above, are the ones where an increased popular vote is likely to affect the national result. For in the Southern group (owing to the disqualified Republican negroes) an increased turnout will necessarily be Democratic; and in States like New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota it will be the pressure of both pa[illegible] organizations—the turn of the election in these States depending upon the extent to which the voters change their party allegiance and not upon increases in totals.

An Indifferent Electorate.

Statistics showing the percentages of enfranchised citizens of the United States who actually exercise their voting privilege reveal an alarming increase in the numbers of nonvoters even in Presidential years when interest in political issues would naturally be greatest. Since 1880, in fact, votes cast have constituted a steadily declining estimated percentage of the total number of possible votes, falling from 84 per cent in 1880 to 49.3 per cent in the election of 1920, with a slight rise to 51.2 per cent in 1924. It seems probable, therefore, that even if the present campaign should arouse a degree of interest that will counteract the disposition of some disgruntled regular voters to stay away from the polls, not much more than half the persons entitled to vote will do so.

When the voting disposition of the country is examined by districts, the situation seems in some respects to be a deal worse than the average for the whole United States indicates. While in the last Presidential election the Northern and Western States attained a voting efficiency of roughly 60 per cent, the Southern States with few exceptions had voting percentages far below 50 per cent. South Carolina carries off the honors with slightly over 6 per cent of the estimated eligible voters actually voting. Georgia is a distant second, with a percentage of 11.3 per cent. It is clear that in the case of the Southern States voting statistics are misleading as a test of the voter's indifference, since the laws of these States have resulted in the exclusion of thousands of negro voters and some whites. The result is that the percentages have to be computed without making due allowance for unknown numbers of the disqualified.

Thus the progressive disfranchisement of the negro voter has been one of the outstanding reasons for an increase in the number of nonvoters, while the enfranchisement of women who have been slow to avail themselves of their recently acquired rights is a still more potent cause of the recent sharp decline in voting efficiency. Believers in democracy and oversanguine feminists may feel discouraged by the poor showing made in the last two Presidential years, but we need not jump hastily to the conclusion that public interest in political questions has waned to anything approximating the extent that statistics would indicate. Residence requirements have greatly cut down the percentage of voters, especially in our large cities, literacy tests have made further inroads, while it was not to be expected that suddenly enfranchised women would immediately equal the voting record of the long-enfranchised male.

It must, nevertheless, be admitted that the returns show that in many of our States the votes cast represent a dangerously small proportion of the adult population. Wherever this is the case the chances for machine domination by an unrepresentative group of politicians are much better than average. For that reason alone, every effort should be made to "get out the vote," whether or not it has any effect upon candidates or policies in any given year or particular contest.

TWO CATS IN A BAG

THE NEGRO VOTE in this Presidential campaign is one of the most complicated problems that party managers have ever had to deal with. In Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and New York the Negro vote is large enough to turn the tide in a close election. Both parties, therefore, are actively fishing for it, and both parties are embarrassed in their fishing.

THE DEMOCRATS are making the most of the fact that the Republican party has not made an aggressive stand for the Negro's rights. They argue also that since the Democratic candidate for the Presidency is a Northerner he is more likely to give the Negroes their due than a Western Republican. But here comes the dilemma. If the Democrats make any specific pledges to the Negro they will alienate the Solid South, their surest stronghold. But if they do not make such pledges or give the Negro some assurance as to his rights, they will forfeit the Negro vote and perhaps the election. In short, they are trying to keep a cat quiet while they pull hairs out of its tail.

THE REPUBLICANS are trying to do the same thing. They are attempting to hold the Negro vote while making a bid for the Southern vote. They ought to know by this time that these two cats cannot be kept in one bag. In fact, the present Lily White policy of the Republicans has done more to alienate the Negro voter than the Republican party's consistent dodging of the disfranchisement question.

FOR TWENTY YEARS Republican leaders have been chasing a pipe dream—the breaking of the Solid South. They imagine they have a good chance to do it this year because many Southerners do not like Governor Smith. But when election day comes that dislike of Smith will amount to exactly nothing. The South never cared for Cleveland, or Bryan, or Parker, or Hancock, or any other Northern Democrat, but on election day it always turned out in full force to vote for them. And for all the talk of wetness and Tammany Hall and Popish government, the South will vote for Smith this year. The Republican party had better face this fact. It had better abandon the Southern pipe dream, return to its original principles and make sure of the Negro vote.

Suffrage

General.

NEWS
CHICAGO, ILL.

JAN 27 1928

From the Negro's Point of View

BY CHANDLER OWEN.

THE NEGRO IN POLITICS.

Politically the Negro has fallen from high estate. He now seeks to regain his lost paradise. Time was when he had twenty congressmen and two United States senators. With the opening of the congressional campaign in Chicago to secure once more a representative from the colored group it is timely to set forth a brief statement of the Negro's former political importance.

Of the twenty colored men who were in the house of representatives one, Charles E. Nash, came from Louisiana; another, Jefferson F. Long, hailed from Georgia; a third, John R. Lynch, was selected from Mississippi. South Carolina led with eight, namely, Robert C. De Large, Joseph H. Rainey, Robert Brown Elliott, Robert Smalls, George W. Murray, Thomas E. Miller, Alonzo G. Ransier and Richard H. Cain. North Carolina sent to congress four Negro representatives, Henry P. Cheatham, James O'Hara, George H. White and John A. Hyman, the latter hailing from Warren county, Warrenton, N. C., the native home of this writer. George H. White of North Carolina was the last Negro to sit in congress, his second term ending in 1901. While the Negro has almost no political power in Alabama today, he once had three members in the house of representatives, Benjamin S. Turner, James T. Rapier and Jere Haralson. Virginia had a very distinguished representative in the person of John M. Langston, whose grandson, C. N. Langston, an Oberlin college graduate, at 21 is now cashier and a director of the Binga State bank of Chicago. Even though a few years ago over a hundred Negroes were killed while trying to vote in Florida, that state once had an able representative in Josiah T. Walls, who was elected four consecutive terms and served from 1871 to 1879.

In the Negro's aspiration to regain a place in congress it will probably be forgotten that he is still trailing his once brilliant political record, for he once had two members in the United States senate—Hiram R. Revels and Blanche K. Bruce, both of Mississippi. Today you would more readily expect to hear of a United States senator from Illinois, Ohio, Michigan or New York, but times change.

The disfranchised Negroes of Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina are steadily trekking to the northern and western industrial states—leaving disfranchised territory and arriving in the land of political opportunity.

It should probably be remarked that although most of these Negro congressmen held office following the throes of civil war, when hysteria was high and passions were hectic, there is not record of their vindictiveness to be found in history. On the contrary, they were poised and dispassionate, sympathetic and kindly. Bearing the spirit of Lincoln, so beautifully expressed by the emancipator in his inaugural address, "With malice toward none, with charity toward all," they sought to heal up the wounds of the civil war, to legislate as statesmen for the best interests of America, almost intuitively grasping the fine truth that what is best for America is also best for the man of color.

In the Negro's new endeavor again to attain his high political estate let us put forth a serious effort to give him modern political education, to have him shun machine politics and boss rule and exercise that political independence which is today elevating, quickening and enriching the lives of all peoples who discern the new day.

NEW YORK TIMES

JAN 9 1928

URGES FIGHT FOR BALLOT.

Representative Tinkham Tells Negro Audience Here to Demand Rights.

The disfranchisement of the negro is a fraud perpetrated not only on the colored race, but upon the whole country, Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts told the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at its eighteenth annual meeting yesterday in the Mother A. M. E. Zion Church, 151 West 137th Street. W. E. B. Du Bois, editor of the association's organ, The Crisis, spoke on the same subject.

"You are as much citizens of the United State as the most conspicuous, who must obey its laws, pay its taxes and be drafted in time of war," Representative Tinkham said. "You cannot without a nullification of the Constitution, a colossal wrong and a grievous injustice, be lawlessly deprived of your constitutional rights and equal justice.

"The disfranchisement of the negro in the South is notorious, and frankly and publicly admitted. By this disfranchisement and the nullification of the mandatory Fourteenth Amendment, which requires reduction of representation in proportion to disfranchisement, the great Northern and Western States are deprived of their proportionate, just and legal representation. Shall fraudulent majorities in Southern States elect the President and control the Congress in violation of the Constitution and its just provisions?

"It was long ago evident that the United States had abandoned the negro politically to his fate. Let the negro turn to himself, develop his power, and be master of his own fortunes. Let him demand of the Republican Party, in whom lies his only hope, first, that the Republican Party pass the resolution for the investigation of disfranchisement and the enforcement of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution, and second, that at the next Republican Presidential convention a plank be inserted for the enforcement of the Fifteenth or Fourteenth Amendment. If the Republican Party does not grant the demands, let him as a unit vote against that party.

"Let the negro say to the world that he wants no part in the shame of having the United States pose before the world as dictator of international morality and sponsor of international ethics, with her President and national representatives elected in flagrant and defiant violation of her Constitution—monstrous national hypocrisy."

Mr. Du Bois quoted figures to show that while population in the South had increased greatly and women had been theoreticallly enfranchised, actual voting had either remained stationary or decreased in the last fifty years.

"For instance," he said, "Mississippi increased in population from 606,526 in 1850 to 1,730,618 in 1920. Yet her Presidential vote was 129,463 in 1872 and 112,463 in 1924. It can be proved statistically that every time a colored man is kept from voting a white man refrains from voting. Disfranchisement, therefore, in the South is not merely a negro problem; it is a problem of democratic government, and it affects the whole United States."

Miss Mary White Ovington, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the association, presided.

VIRGINIAN-PILOT
NORFOLK, VA.

JAN 24 1928

Negro Voters Declared Amply Protected

Asserting that the negro voters had been amply protected by the Fifteenth Amendment and that the courts would override any laws, violative of that and other sections of the fundamental law of the land, the Virginian said the "difficult problem confronting us must be settled justly and fairly, and for the higher good of all concerned."

"We realize," he said in conclusion," we can not settle it in prejudices, malice or ill-will without the results being prejudicial to us and the others involved. We recognize the necessity for dealing fairly and justly with all classes and races in our section.

"We have enacted laws providing for qualifications and requirements for voting which we deem necessary to protect ourselves from a class of voters whose introduction into politics has been most ruinous, not only to ourselves but to themselves and the entire country. We have gone no further than was necessary to protect the South from having a repetition of the infamies, social and political, which cursed our section in the dark and dismal days of reconstruction. Our suffrage provisions are similar to those contained in many other States which are enforced and declared legal and constitutional and if they are not, they will be invalidated by the Supreme Court of the United States and there is no necessity for continued agitation of this question and the repeated efforts to discourage and humiliate the South.

"The South is possessed of equal rights and equal responsibilities. It will fearlessly assert its rights and will patriotically discharge its responsibilities.

"I believe the narrow, partisan talk indulged in by some to arouse prejudice against the South now falls on deaf and unsympathetic ears. The partition wall between the North and the South, which once existed, has been battered down by the patriotic heart throbs of more than 120,000,000 people who are now one, loving one and one country. The flag once cut now floats without a seam.

(Con

"Why seek unjustly and illegally to lessen Southern power? The hour may come in the storm and stress when one of the best defenders of our great national interest will be the conservative and patriotic forces of the South. Sirs, made brave by burdens borne and overcome; made patient by long suffering, chastened by great misfortune, made self-reliant by conquering difficulties and distress as great as ever afflicted a people; cherishing to a passion the high ideals inherited from her matchless Washington and her majestic Lee; thrilled by the possibilities of an industrial development and wealth almost unspeakable created by her own skill and effort, the South presents a combination of strength and of sentiment destined to make her once again a wise leader of national thought and national achievement."

VOTING IN THE SOUTH.

A few nights ago in a New York city assembly charts were shown to demonstrate how small a proportion of the adults of the national citizenship qualify and vote in our most vital elections.

There have been elections in which the president, vice president, a third of the senate and all of the house of representatives were to be chosen and in which less than half of the possible voters went to the polls and [illegible] per cent of them returned a great majority for the presidential electors of one of the major parties.

Constitution
Atlanta, Ga.
1-15-28.

The showing that was made of how small a percentage of adults vote in the southern states was amazing to those who do not understand the character of our populations and the qualifications required of voters, or the prevailing fact that there are few districts in the southern states where two-party politics is active. The consequence is that those uninformed people readily credit the charge that the southern people nullify the federal suffrage amendments of the constitution and intimidate millions of negro voters from going to the polls.

The obtrusive fact was shown, for instance, that in Georgia over 500,000 colored adults are "disfranchised" and over 700,000 white adults are not accounted for in any of our election returns. But our kind northern critics do not speak of them as "disfranchised," but simply as indifferent slackers.

In the face of those facts all of our "white supremacy" justifications lose their appealing force. We appear to be people who take little to heart our obligations as electors, charged with the conduct of our public affairs and the personnel of our administrators. And few of our best leaders do not seem to sense how much of moral and civic influence we southern people lose by our indifference to our electoral privileges and duties.

It is probably too late to stir up the lazy patriotism of the present-day generation, but there is a high and strong appeal to our educators to bring forth the next generation fully instructed in and devoted to its civic obligations.

BIDS NEGROES FIGHT FOR BALLOT RIGHTS

Representative Tinkham Calls Disfranchisement in South a Fraud on Country.

URGES CONCERTED ACTION

Tells Audience Here to Vote Against Republican Party if Help is Not Given.

The disfranchisement of the negro is a fraud perpetrated not only on the colored race, but upon the whole country, Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts told the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at its eighteenth annual meeting yesterday in the Mother A. M. E. Zion Church, 151 West 137th Street. W. E. B. Du Bois, editor of the association's organ, The Crisis, spoke on the same subject.

"You are as much citizens of the United States as the most conspicuous, who must obey its laws, pay its taxes and be drafted in time of war," Representative Tinkham said. "You cannot without a nullification of the Constitution, a colossal wrong and a grievous injustice, be lawlessly deprived of your constitutional rights and equal justice.

"The disfranchisement of the negro in the South is notorious, and frankly and publicly admitted. By this disfranchisement and the nullification of the mandatory Fourteenth Amendment, which requires reduction of representation in proportion to disfranchisement, the great Northern and Western States are deprived of their proportionate, just and legal representation. Shall fraudulent majorities in Southern States elect the President and control the Congress in violation of the Constitution and its just provisions?

"It was long ago evident that the United States had abandoned the negro politically to his fate. Let the negro turn to himself, develop his power, and be master of his own fortunes. Let him demand of the Republican Party, in whom lies his only hope, first, that the Republican Party pass the resolution for the investigation of disfranchisement and the enforcement of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution, and second, that at the next Republican Presidential convention a plank be inserted for the enforcement of the Fifteenth or Fourteenth Amendment. If the Republican Party does not grant the demands, let him as a unit vote against that party.

"Let the negro say to the world that he wants no part in the shame of having the United States pose before the world as dictator of international morality and sponsor of international ethics, with her President and national representatives elected in flagrant and defiant violation of her Constitution—monstrous national hypocrisy."

Mr. Du Bois quoted figures to show that while population in the South had increased greatly and women had been theoreticallly enfranchised, actual voting had either remained stationary or decreased in the last fifty years.

"For instance," he said, "Mississippi increased in population from 606,526 in 1850 to 1,790,618 in 1920. Yet her Presidential vote was 129,463 in 1872 and 112,463 in 1924. It can be proved statistically that every time a colored man is kept from voting a white man refrains from voting. Disfranchisement, therefore, in the South is not merely a negro problem; it is a problem of democratic government, and it affects the whole United States."

Miss Mary White Ovington, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the association, presided.

South Intends To Abide By Voting Laws

Swanson, Of Vir[illegible] Says Section L[illegible] gards Threats

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Notification given in the Senate today by the two Virginia senators that the South intended to stick by its voting laws "despite threats of universal negro suffrage" stirred up a three-hour row which took in prohibition and presidential politics as well.

Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, suggested in the course of a lengthy address by Senator Swanson, Democrta, Virginia, who was defending voting laws of Southern states, that the South sanctions "the same escape from the tyrannical oppression of the Eighteenth Amendment that it has from the Fifteenth Amendment."

Tired of Threats

Shouting at the top of his voice, Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, was quickly on his feet with the declaration that he was "tired of senators threatening the South" and he told the Maryland senator to "go ahead and get a drink if there is any way under the Eighteenth Amendment he can do it, but don't try to constrain or restrain Virginia from enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment."

Another ardent dry, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, rushed into the fight and inquired of Senator Bruce if he was urging nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment, which the Maryland senator denied.

Discussing the action of Southern states in requiring strict educational tests of voters which in turn had disqualified many negroes as voters, Bruce insisted the South had "circumvented" the Fifteenth Amendment in this manner. This was denied by Senator Borah, who said a close inspection of the voting laws of Southern states showed no violation of the constitution.

Finally, Senator Bruce called for more liberal treatment of the negroes by the South and for "more tolerance particularly in regard to social views and sectarian freedom." He then expressed the hope that at the next Democratic national convention the "sectarian prejudices shall not be as deep as they appear."

Again Senator Glass rushed into the melee and demanded to know if Senator Bruce thought a Southern man could be nominated for president. The Marylander replied in the affirmative but Glass retorted that "your grand children won't see that day."

Argument Heated

The debate between the fiery Virginian and the more reserved Marylander became so heated at one time that the presiding officer could not be heard when rapping for order and Senator Heflin, of Alabama, recent storm center in the party ranks, provoked considerable laughter by suggesting that "we have peace and harmony."

With a smile, Senator Bruce replied the "suggestion for peace and harmony comes from a very dubious source."

At one point Bruce took offense at "the furious attacks on me by the Virginia senator every time I mention the Volstead act." In this connection he called attention that Senator Glass was a total abstainer from liquor, and added: "He has denied himself a very rich measure of legitimate enjoyment."

After concluding a lengthy prepared address, asserting the right of the South's position on negro suffrage, Senator Swanson again entered the free for all debate with the statement that "he resented inferences that the South was intolerant to the negroes." Senator Borah again took the side of the Southerners and declared he thought the South more liberal along economic and industrial lines than is the North.

SENTINEL
MILWAUKEE, WIS.

MAR 20 1928

A Troublesome Issue

The issue of the south's disfranchisement of colored voters, says a Washington dispatch, is due for a further airing in congress.

The prospect of more pitiless publicity with regard to the nullification of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments no doubt is painful to democratic senators and congressmen. They would much rather talk about Illinois and Pennsylvania scandals than to throw the searchlight of debate on conditions nearer home.

But a further airing of this ancient abuse is inevitable, in connection with the reapportionment bill.

The house census committee realizes that something must be done about reapportionment, and when congress begins to scrutinize the political map and the size of electoral districts, it will necessarily have something to say as to the amazingly large balance of power now being wielded by the south.

It is inevitable in any reapportionment scheme that a number of congressmen will lose their seats. These prospective victims of the necessary revision naturally are not kindly disposed toward southern members who keep their seats chiefly by wholesale disfranchisement and nullification of the constitution.

Statistics are being gathered to show the undue preponderance of southern representation, measured by the number of actual votes cast.

According to the 1920 census, the average population per representative is about 240,000. The number of votes cast in typical northern districts ranges from 33,000 to 171,000. In southern districts, the vote is only from 5,000 to 8,000. In the last presidential election, it has been computed, the number of votes cast averaged 7,250 per representative in South Carolina, as against 91,483 in Illinois.

By reason of negro disfranchisement, some 7,000 southern voters are exercising as much political power as 90,000 northern voters. No wonder the south is making a tremendous noise about Illinois and Pennsylvania by way of diverting attention from its own assumption of an undue share of representations. This anomaly is bound to cause further debate and demand for equalization, in spite of Senator Glass' impassioned plea to congress to leave the south alone.

Political - 1928

Suffrage.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.

Gazette

MAY 8 1928

THOSE WHO DO NOT VOTE

An eastern newspaper reader writes his paper a letter maintaining that a far higher percentage of qualified voters go to the polls in the United States than is commonly supposed. He points out that whereas 57,000,000 citizens are theoretically entitled to vote in national elections, many of these are, for all practical purposes, disfranchised. He says there are nearly 12,000,000 negroes who do not have the vote; estimates that 8,000,000 other citizens lose their votes because they are "floaters" or transients and accordingly do not have settled residences; and holds that probably 10 per cent of the 57,000,000 are kept away from the polls on election day by illness, accidents or sudden contingencies they cannot control.

Viewed in this light, national election figures are more encouraging. Of course, the man's figures may be open to criticism. But he at least presents a new angle from which to view the situation.

TRIBUNE
CHICAGO, ILL.

MAY 1 1928

SOUTHERN REPRESENTATION.

In instructing a grand jury which might be called on to investigate events surrounding the recent Illinois primary election, Federal Judge Wilkerson brought to the jury's attention section 19 of the federal code, which makes it an offense for two or more persons to conspire to injure, threaten, or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise of any right or privilege guaranteed him by the constitution or laws of the United States.

Remarking upon Judge Wilkerson's charge to the jury, Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts inquired why federal judges in the south had not invoked this same section of the federal code in order to insure Negroes their franchise rights.

Representative Tinkham has pending a resolution for an investigation by the census committee of disfranchisement of Negroes in southern states. He has little hope, he says, of getting his resolution to a vote. But he promises to keep on and, failing to get action on his resolution, will attempt to reach the question when the reapportionment bill comes up by demanding amendments to cut southern representation in accordance with the constitution.

It is the attitude of the people in most states where the right to vote is not abridged by laws technically within the constitution, but actually affecting only the Negro, that the southern states have their own peculiar problem, and a serious one, and should be permitted to work it out in their own way.

The south has reiterated its defense that its discriminatory laws are within the letter, though admittedly without the spirit, of the constitution. The Supreme court decisions have been most complaisant to the southern contention, and there the matter rests, so far as political rights are concerned.

But there it ought not to rest; the north has a right to insist, in so far as it affects the representation of the south at Washington, where laws are made with the assistance of southern congressmen for the nation as a whole.

Section 2 of the fourteenth amendment declares in substance that the representation of any state denying the vote to a certain proportion of its otherwise qualified electorate shall be reduced in that same proportion.

The fourteen southern states now have 129 representatives in congress. Were the fourteenth amendment enforced and their representation reduced in the same ratio that the franchise right is abridged, they would be entitled to only 65 representatives.

The right of the southern states to an unconstitutional representation is one that does affect the other states. Let the south, if it has to, settle its own internal problems of race as it will by force of laws governing only its own people. But concerning the representation of the south in the settlement of national questions the states where the vote is not abridged on account of race have an interest and, now aroused, have a right to raise the point and ask the south's intentions.

General.

2,000,000 OF DIXIE WHITES FAIL TO VOTE

Du Bois Explains Disfranchisement In N. A. A. C. P. Keynote Address

19TH ANNUAL SESSION OPENS IN LOS ANGELES

White South Barring Negroes From Polls Cheats Itself Of Ballot

LOS ANGELES. — Disfranchisement of the Negro in Southern States has brot about such distortion of political power in the United States that a small oligarchy in the South is the dictator of the Nation, declared Dr. W. E. B. DuBois in the keynote address June 27, which opened the 19th Annual Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Dr. Du Bois pointed out that the barring of Negro citizens from the polls in southern cities had transferred political power into the hands of a small group of whites, as many as from 80 to 90 per cent of voters in far southern states refraining from voting in the election of 1920. Among the states where this abstention from use of the ballot was most pronounced Dr. DuBois cited the following states and their percentage of non-voters:

STATE	NON-VOTERS
South Carolina	92 per cent
Mississippi	91 per cent
Georgia	89 per cent
Louisiana	86 per cent
Texas	82 per cent
Arkansas	79 per cent
Alabama	79 per cent
Florida	72 per cent

Political Distortion

The consequence in political distortion, continued Dr. Du Bois, was that whereas it took 85,759 votes to elect a Representative in Congress from California and 91,785, from Ohio, citizens in southern states enjoyed in some cases ten times as much political power as citizens in the North, as follows:

SOUTH

State	Vote Per Rep.
South Carolina	9,449
Mississippi	10,312
Georgia	12,394
Louisiana	15,733
Texas	22,97
Virginia	23,10
Alabama	24,10

NORTH

State	Vote Per Rep
Indiana	97,106
New York	67,336
Kansas	71,278
New Jersey	75,333
Illinois	77,425

White Disfranchised

"It accomplishes this not simply by disfranchising Negroes. The population in Southern states has doubled and by reason of woman suffrage the voting population ought to have quadrupled; but actually, as a matter of fact, the voting population has increased less than 50 per cent showing that not only have two million Negroes been disfranchised but more than two million whites."

Dr. Du Bois quoted from an address of Henry W. Anderson, a white politician of Virginia, who asserted that in Southern States the qualification to vote is so limited that governors and other state officers are "sometimes elected by less than ten per cent of the population of voting age."

Presidential Electors

"At the event of a presidential election," continued Dr. Du Bois, "singular compilations are made. The Democrats can start out assuming the votes of 11 southern states with, at present, 124 of the 531 electoral votes. They need to fight therefore for only 142 electoral votes. They need to fight therefore for only 142 electoral votes to have the majority of the electoral college. On the other hand the Republicans must leave out of account 142 electoral votes at the start and of the other 407 electoral votes they can afford to lose only 141.

"But if this is the plight of the Republicans, what can be said of any Third Party? It simply has no chance at all.

Controversy

"As sure as fate some day there is coming in the United States a political controversy with social and economic roots which is going to open suddenly the question as to why the South has three times the political power of the West and why New England, with its disfranchised foreign workers, has more political voice than the West. The protest is not coming simply from Northerners or 'friends' of the Negro. It is even coming from the South itself.

Who Shall Rule

"This is no mere question of parish or section or race. It is a vast and pressing problem of democracy and civilization. We must decide, and decide soon, what persons, what public opinion in the United States shall rule. Shall it be the public opinion of a small select group of persons of Nordic descent? Shall it be the public opinion of the rich controllers of capital? Shall it be the public opinion of college graduates? Shall it be the public opinion of all adult Americans except Negroes, Asiatics and Latins? Or shall we try to make it the public opinion of all intelligent adults?

Whatever public opinion rules in the United States, it must rule freely and clearly without a system of rotten boroughs and without discrimination and cheating. The clearing up and settling of this great question is the vastest problem that faces America today and we must begin its solution now."

N. Y. EVE. WORLD
JUL 7 1928

BISHOP WALLS SEES DIVIDED NEGRO VOTE

Neither Party Will Control It Decalres A. M. E. Prelate

The Negro will divide his vote in the election for President, Bishop W. J. Walls of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, and a resident of Charlotte, N. C., predicts. Bishop Walls, who presides over the New England Conference, is chaplain of the National Negro Business League.

"The Negro has a great incentive to divide his vote in November," Bishop Walls said. "The wisdom of doing so has been vindicated in Chicago and other large Northern cities. In Chicago, where both Republicans and Democrats have nominated a Negro for the House of Representatives, it is practically certain a black man will go to Congress from the North for the first time."

DES MOINES

IOWA

JUL 1 0 1928

The Solid South?

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

(Copyright, 1928.)

Washington, July 9.—In the south are two opposed movements. One proceeds from political leadership. This with few exceptions is trying to hold the southern voters to Smith. The effort is strenuous. The Charleston (South Carolina) News and Courier pleads with the dry democrats of that state in an argument which runs roughly thus:

"If the South Carolina drys go out of the democratic party, the voters left in the party will be the wets. The wets may thereupon take control of the state organization, may try to make it a wet party, and may start a movement to repeal the local South Carolina dry regime which has been in effect since 1895."

The Negro Vote.

The News and Courier holds an additional threatened possibility up to the dry democrats of the state. It says that if there should be rival wet and dry democratic voters in the south, literate and property owning Negroes would be solicited to join both. Visualizing that condition, the News and Courier says:

"Let prohibitionists ask themselves whether Negro voters, for the most part, would be wet or dry." The News and Courier concludes its plea for local democratic regularity in the south thus:

"Democratic prohibitionists have everything to lose, and nothing to gain, by voting against Smith. So doing, they would blow up the fort in which they are now intrenched and surrender the site and the remaining foundations of it to their wet opponents. Only those who are fanatical wets would be delighted."

Many for Hoover.

To this kind of plea from democratic leaders and democratic newspapers, the answer of those southern democrats who disagree is that they have no intention of leaving the democratic party—they merely intend to vote against Smith and for Hoover in this election.

It is quite clear whenever one leaves the area of formal democratic leadership in the south and enters the area of more spontaneous expressions of sentiment that one finds a strong disposition to vote against Smith. The Manufacturers Record, for example, is in a sense the official organ of southern business in the whole area from Maryland to Texas. It is to the south what the Journal of Commerce and Wall Street Journal combined are to the business circles of New York. In its current issue, dated July 5, the Manufacturers Record says:

"The boast is openly made that control of the democratic party has been wrested from the south and is now concentrated in the city of New York and under Tammany auspices. If ever there was a time in the history of America when patriotic men and women were called to make a new declaration of independence, it is now.

Unwilling to Sell Soul.

"Some of our democratic friends have freely said that they 'would vote for the devil if nominated by the democratic party,' and doubtless some republicans feel the same way with respect to their party. Such men put party alliance before patriotism; party before country. It is time for these men and women, if they are patriots at heart, lovers of humanity and their country, to cast aside this kind of political affiliation and act upon their convictions. We can't believe the south is willing to sell its soul. To say that the decent, lawabiding, God-fearing, conscientious, upstanding, self-respecting men and women of the south chose such a man as their candidate for president is an insult to these men and women. He was foisted upon them by opportunist politicians, dazed by the misleading argument, 'We can win with Smith.'

"This suggestion that southern democratic leaders were misled, or in a few cases that they played false, runs through many of the outbursts of popular thought in the south. They insist that at the convention the south was fooled' or 'double crossed.' When told that Smith at least has right to make the declaration he did, they reply that if Smith did not fool them, Tammany did, and that somewhere in the management of the convention the pea was slipped under the other shell with a movement too quick for the southern dry voter to see.

Spoke for Many Women.

"There can be no doubt that Mrs. Shaver of West Virginia, wife of the democratic national chairman, spoke for many southern democratic voters, especially women voters, when she said:

"'We do not believe more than a few of the millions of the democratic women in this country can be fooled as all of the democratic leaders appear to have been fooled. How many times has Tammany supported the party nominee in the last sixteen years? Not once. Yet they have fooled these heretofore able democratic leaders into saying, 'I am a democrat—I will vote for Tammany whisky and a trick platform'."

BROOKLYN STANDARD UNION

JUL 6 1928

Colored Votes of 17th Spur for Hoover Drive

The olored voters of the Seventeenth Assembly Dstrict Republican Club are already organized for the fall Presidential campaign and are ready to work hard for the election of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis.

The ticket was unanimously ratified at a recent meeting of the club held at the Community Centre on Fulton street, at which Mrs. Maud Neal, co-leader of the district, was the principal speaker. Mrs. Neal was a delegate to the convention in place of Commisisoner Lewis M. Swasey, whose illness prevented him from attending. She gave the members of the organization an interesting descrpton of the dongs at Houston. Followng her talk, a resoluton, introduced by Mrs. M. C. Lawton, ratifying the nominations and pledging the club's support, was unanimously passed.

President Holland presided at the meeting. Talks were also given by A. D. Peyton, F. H. Gilbert, N. B. Dodson, Mrs. Gertrude Brawner and Dr. W. R. Lawton.

DES MOINES

IOWA

JUL 5 1928

The Negro Vote

EDITORIAL IN THE BYSTANDER

Claude Bowers, keynote speaker and temporary chairman of the democratic convention delivering his address at Houston said:

"We are mobilized to lead the people back to the old paths of constitutional liberty, and to the good way. We are going back—back to the old landmarks of liberty and equality when ordinary men had rights that even power respected; when justice, not privilege, was the preamble of the declaration and the bill of rights had meaning; when the nation embraced every section and every class."

What more beautiful language could be written or spoken? What better language could be used to enunciate an invitation to draw all classes, races and groups to a political party?

Possibly Mr. Bowers himself meant what he said to apply to all. Woodrow Wilson had some fair ideas about the Negro in America; there are thousands of democrats in the north and south who believe the Negro should have a square deal at the hand of political parties.

We must realize that this country is governed by political parties rather than individuals. The backbone of the democratic party exists by virtue of its opposition to the Negro. The republican party fails miserably in its treatment of the Negro, but its historical background is closely allied with the fight for justice for the Negro and it cannot stray away without a stiff fight on the part of the Negro and a large number of white people who believe in justice to all or are high up in politics by virtue of a large Negro constituency.

The Negro voter must not be stampeded into the democratic camp by pledges which they cannot carry out. Personally their candidate will be fair, but remember that his is a government by parties and not individuals, and if elected, his hands will be tied by the rabid Negro haters in the party just as President Wilson's were.

JOURNAL

JUL 2 1928

Rounding Up The Negro Vote

It is well-known that there is not a negro political organization in the country that professes to be Democratic, and the number of negro voters in the Northern states who vote the Democratic ticket, if grouped in a single precinct, would not carry it. Hence the Republicans at Kansas City went out of their way to make obeseinces to the negro designed to placate and solidify the colored brother:

"We renew our recommendations that Congress enact at the earliest possible date a Federal anti-lynching law."

The hypocrisy of the declaration is fully exposed in the next section of the platform relating to home rule. In that section the platform declares:

"It (the Federal Government) should be equally zealous to respect and maintain the rights of the States to uphold the vigor and balance of our dual system of Government * * * * the effort which, however, is being continually made to have the Federal Government move into the field of State activities has never had and never will have the support of the Republican party."

Blowing hot, then blowing cold, is a fixed habit of Republican politics. It is almost a disease with them. The Democrats are guilty of using the same sort of tactics, but the Republicans appear to be a trifle bolder and more unconscionable.

Colored Voters Furnish Victory Margin to G.O.P.

Washington, August 19.—(United News.)—From 1868 to 1920 only one republican presidential candidate, Theodore Roosevelt, received enough white votes to elect him, the others receiving their majorities from negro voters. Henry Minor, of Mississippi, former democratic national committeeman, says in a history of the democratic party about to be published.

The history denies the charges of anti-Smith democrats that Tammany was responsible for Cleveland's defeat in 1888, saying he ran ahead of Tammany's candidate for mayor. Minor blames Cleveland's defeat that year on the former Kaiser Wilhelm, charging that due to friction between the United States and Germany over Samoa, the German vote in America went republican.

"Enough democrats supported Roosevelt in 1904 to give him, probably, a narrow white majority," Minor says. "Seymour in 1868 received more white votes than Grant. Tilden received a million more white votes than Hayes. Hancock and Cleveland received the support of hundreds of thousands more white votes than their opponents. Even the half million gold democrats voting for McKinley in 1896 failed to give him a majority equal to the colored vote of the nation, a vote always practically solid for the republican candidate. In the thirteen presidential elections from 1868 to 1916 the colored voters have furnished the republicans six of the seven majorities they received, if not the whole seven."

Suffrage

N. Y. EVE. WORLD

AUG 9 1928

INCREASE NOTED IN NEGRO VOTERS

Big Flow of Workers North Adds Many Thousands

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The Negro vote, expected to play an important part in the November election, has greatly increased within recent years, according to a report from the Census Bureau. One reason is the transfer of hundreds of thousands of men and women from the Southern States to the North, East and West, where suffrage laws are less stringent.

In 1920, the number of Negro voters in New York was 142,544. It is estimated that 15,000 or more have been added since. New Jersey has approximately 80,000; Pennsylvania nearly 200,000; Illinois, 150,000; Indiana, 60,000; Ohio, 195,000; Tennessee, 245,395; Kentucky, 150,000; Missouri, 140,000; Maryland, 145,000; Oklahoma, 80,000 and Kansas, 40,000; Massachusetts, 50,000; Connecticut, 25,000. In Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine the numbers are smaller.

Negro Voters Increase

Northward Flow of Workers Gets Them in on Suffrage Rights

NEGRO VOTERS INCREASE

Washington, August 8—The Negro vote, expected to play an important part in the November election, has greatly increased within recent years according to a report from the Census Bureau. One reason is the transfer of hundreds of thousands of men and women from the Southern States to the North, East and West, where suffrage laws are less stringent.

In 1920, the number of Negro voters in New York was 142,544. It is estimated that 15,000 or more have been added since. New Jersey has approximately 80,000; Pensylvania nearly 200,000; Illinois, 150,000; Indiana, 60,000; Ohio, 195,000; Tennessee, 245,395; Kentucky, 150,000, Missouri, 140,000; Maryland, 145,000; Oklahoma, 80,000; and Kansas, 40,000; Massachusetts, 50,000; Connecticut 25,000. In Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine the number are smaller.

NEW YORK WORLD

AUG 9 1928

NEGRO VOTERS INCREASE

Northward Flow of Workers Gets Them In on Suffrage Right

From The World's Bureau

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The Negro vote, expected to play an important part in the November election, has greatly increased within recent years, according to a report from the Census Bureau. One reason is the transfer of hundreds of thousands of men and women from the Southern States to the North, East and West, where suffrage laws are less stringent.

In 1920, the number of Negro voters in New York was 142,544. It is estimated that 15,000 or more have been added since. New Jersey has approximately 80,000; Pennsylvania, nearly 200,000; Illinois, 150,000; Indiana, 60,000; Ohio, 195,000; Tennessee, 245,395; Kentucky, 150,000; Missouri, 140,000; Maryland, 145,000; Oklahoma, 80,000 and Kansas, 40,000; Massachusetts, 50,000; Connecticut, 25,000. In Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine the numbers are smaller.

VOTES OF NEGROES MAY DETERMINE NEXT PRESIDENT

Figures Show There Are Over Five Million Registered Voters of the Race in Country.

Washington, D. C., August 15.—That the Negroes' votes are a potential power in determining the outcome of the presidential election may be attested by figures recently gathered to show the relative voting power Race voters and white voters in the United States.

Facts disclosed by the investigation were as follows:

There are about 5,588,500 Negroes of voting age in the United States. While the bulk of them are located in the South where they do not count, or at least are not counted at the polls, according to Republican leaders there are a sufficient number in many of the pivotal and in some of the border states to determine the result in a close election.

According to the Census Bureau the Negro population of the country numbered 10,463,131 in 1920, and it is estimated that it was 11,698,000 in 1927. About one-half of the number estimated for 1927 had reached the voting age.

New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri are states with a comparatively large Negro population that are regarded as either doubtful or debatable in the political contest now under way. The census of 1920 showed that each of those States had enough Negro voters that year to cut quite a figure in a national election.

The census reports disclose that in 1920 there were 5,522,274 Negroes of both sexes who had reached the voting age out of a total colored population in excess of 10,000,000. From 1920 to 1927 the number of Negroes increased to over 11,689,000, with a corresponding increase in the number of voters of that race.

In 1920 the census showed Negro voters in the states named as follows:

New York, 142,544; New Jersey, 75,671; Pennsylvania, 191,226; Illinois, 128,090; Indiana, 53,935; Ohio, 126,940; Tennessee, 245,395; Kentucky, 143,881; Missouri, 121,328, and Maryland, 141,991.

Of the total of 5,522,524 Negro voters in 1920, 2,792,006 were men and 2,730,274 women.

There are other states where the Negro is by no means a negligible factor in politics. For example, there was a colored population of more than 149,000 in Oklahoma in 1920, and of these more than 76,000 had attained the voting age.

Kansas had 79,725 Negroes within her borders in 1920, and of the number 37,000 were entitled to vote. In New England the 1920 population of Negroes was:

Massachusetts, 45,466; Connecticut, 21,046; Rhode Island, 10,036; Vermont, 572; New Hampshire, 621, and Maine, 1,310.

General

Official Popular Vote 1928

Constitution 12-22-28

(Copyright, by The Associated Press.)

The official vote in the November presidential election, as gathered from state capitols by the Associated Press, follows: Atlanta Ga

State	Hoover Rep.	Smith Dem.	Thomas Soc.	Foster Workers	Reynolds Soc.-Lab.	Pluralities Hoover	Pluralities Smith
Alabama	120,725	127,796	460	....	....	....	7,071
Arizona	52,533	38,537	....	184	....	13,996	....
Arkansas	77,751	119,196	429	317	....	....	41,445
California	1,162,323	614,356	19,595	112	....	547,967	....
Colorado	253,872	133,131	3,472	675	....	120,741	....
Connecticut	296,614	252,040	3,019	730	622	44,574	....
Delaware	68,860	36,643	329	59	....	32,217	....
Florida	144,168	101,764	4,036	3,704	....	42,404	....
Georgia	99,369	129,602	124	64	....	....	30,233
Idaho	99,848	53,074	1,293	....	....	46,774	....
Illinois	1,768,141	1,313,817	19,138	3,581	1,812	454,324	....
Indiana	848,280	562,691	3,871	321	645	285,589	....
Iowa	623,818	378,936	2,960	328	250	244,882	....
Kansas	513,672	193,003	6,205	320	....	320,669	....
Kentucky	558,064	381,070	837	293	340	176,994	....
Louisiana	51,160	164,655	....	....	....	....	113,495
Maine	179,923	81,179	1,068	....	....	98,744	....
Maryland	301,479	223,626	1,701	636	906	77,853	....
Massachusetts	775,566	792,758	6,262	2,461	773	....	17,192
Michigan	965,696	396,762	3,516	2,881	799	568,634	....
Minnesota	560,977	396,451	6,774	4,853	1,921	164,526	....
Mississippi	26,889	124,539	263	....	....	....	97,650
Missouri	834,080	662,562	3,739	....	340	171,518	....
Montana	113,300	78,578	1,667	563	....	34,722	....
Nebraska	345,745	197,959	3,434	....	....	147,786	....
Nevada	18,327	14,090	....	....	....	4,237	....
New Hampshire	115,404	80,715	464	173	....	34,689	....
New Jersey	925,796	616,517	4,897	1,257	500	309,279	....
New Mexico	69,617	48,094	156	....	....	21,523	....
New York	2,193,344	2,089,863	107,332	10,876	4,211	103,481	....
North Carolina	348,923	286,227	....	....	....	62,696	....
North Dakota	131,441	106,648	842	936	....	24,793	....
Ohio	1,627,543	864,210	8,683	2,836	1,515	763,333	....
Oklahoma	394,652	219,206	3,926	....	....	174,846	....
Oregon	205,341	109,223	2,720	1,094	1,564	96,118	....
Pennsylvania	2,055,382	1,067,586	18,647	4,726	380	987,796	....
Rhode Island	117,522	118,973	....	....	....	....	1,451
South Carolina	5,858	62,700	47	....	....	....	56,842
South Dakota	157,603	102,660	443	232	....	54,943	....
Tennessee	195,388	157,343	631	111	....	38,045	....
Texas	367,036	341,032	722	209	....	26,004	....
Utah	94,618	80,985	954	47	....	13,633	....
Vermont	90,404	44,440	..	....	....	45,964	....
Virginia	164,609	140,146	250	179	174	24,463	....
Washington	335,844	156,772	2,615	1,541	4,068	179,072	....
West Virginia	375,551	263,784	1,313	401	....	111,767	....
Wisconsin	544,205	450,259	18,213	1,528	381	93,946	....
Wyoming	52,748	29,299	788	....	....	23,449	....
Total	21,429,109	15,005,497	267,835	48,228	21,181	....	....

Minor parties vote (not included in above table). For Varney, prohibition: Indiana 5,496, Michigan 2,728, New Jersey 160, Ohio 3,556, Pennsylvania 3,875, Vermont 338, West Virginia 1,703, Wisconsin 2,245, total 20,101.

For Webb, farmer-labor: Colorado 1,092, Iowa 3,088, Oklahoma 1,284, South Dakota 927, total 6,391.

Scattering: California 261, Connecticut 6, Louisiana 18, Maine 1, Wisconsin 41, total 327.

Total of popular vote: 36,798,669.

Hoover's plurality: 6,423,612

Note: California, Hoover total includes 14,394.

Prohibition votes which party endorsed Mr. Hoover. Pennsylvania, Foster total includes 2,687 labor party votes. South Carolina, Hoover total includes 2,670 anti-Smith democrats voting for Hoover.

How Should Negro Citizens Vote?

ONE thing is certain about the voting of the Negro in the approaching presidential election. His vote must not betray an easy gullibility in swallowing down all the prepared-for-profit mess of pottage being vended off by party politicians who are in the business of herding unsuspecting citizens by feeding them with that which tickles the palate, but is of no profit in the end. With the Negro, as with all other American citizens, the obligation to himself, to his neighbor, and to the nation's well-being at large is that he shall cast his ballot for Christian principles rather than for parties. He should vote as a patriotic American, and not as a partisan.

By the term "American" we imply all of the moral grandeur the term can connote. An American citizen in this sense is one who is upstanding in virtue, intelligence, the sense of justice; who is thoroughly alert and loyal to the highest interests and ideals of his country without swerving. As such, and with the view of fostering such an ideal as basic in our national life, the Negro should vote in the coming election.

Political parties may be legitimate expressions of civic conscience. But when, as expressions of such a conscience, the things for which they stand clash with moral values in society, party obligation is then justly superseded by the higher authority of moral principles. Party loyalty is something that is man-made; loyalty to moral principle is demanded by the very nature of right, and is inescapable. In the present crisis in our nation's life it is unworthy of the Negro, no less of any citizen, to be persuaded or influenced in his voting by promises of party reward. He who does so puts his own personal gain before that of his country and sells out his country as treacherously and truly as did any traitor who ever disgraced the pages of his country's history. Let the Negro remember, too, that the very ones who will purchase his vote, as history shows, are they who, despite their own crookedness in this regard, are accustomed to brand him as venal and themselves as virtuous.

That is the major reflection. But another consideration must be had. The proverbial description of party pledges holds in regard to the antics of any political party. Let the Negro see to it that he be not the shock absorber for any party. Regardless of party, let him be zealous to perpetuate by his vote those principles, written deep in the nature of this Republic, that have made it the leading republic in our modern world, despite the lapses and backwashes which we find trying vehemently to divert the main currents of the nation's life.

When all is said and done, whatever party endorses it or whatever party evades the issue, and whatever may be the intensity of our loyalty to the party that does not declare for it, the Negro must cast his ballot against the liquor traffic. This course is dictated by every consideration of moral reason. For the Negro to vote for any party, any man, or measure that would countenance the use of whisky or alcohol would be suicidal. Since the coming of prohibition the school children of our nation have put into savings banks some forty million dollars; fewer children are haled into the courts of the country; drug addicts are less; our citizens are growing healthier; there is a marvelous decrease in the number of drunken brawls; millions of the youth have never beheld a saloon or scented its sickening fumes; churches have gained in membership, and the nation is traveling on wheels. This much in seven years—what will fourteen years reveal in moral and material advance? Lincoln deprecated what he characterized as the two destructive social traffics in American life—the one, the slave traffic; the other, the liquor traffic. To the crushing of the one he gave his life. Shall not the nation, for whose moral idealism he became a martyr, rise up and effect in the nation that complete national emancipation which he visioned.

Coupled with this is that other ideal and principle—the moral sovereignty of this Union. This nation is a sacred whole. It is a unit conserving in a collective way the highest interest of its several constituent parts. Such a political philosophy underlay its formation; in such alone, can it be preserved. This bedrock principle must be upheld by the Negro's vote in the pending election. It will be a dark day for the Negro as well as for the nation when the collective ideal of this nation and our sacred Federal Constitution shall be subordinated to the partisan dictation of a provincial State or section.

Nor must the Negro's vote be cast in the direction of countenance of intolerance or narrow bigotry, whether such an un-American attitude be manifested in the industrial, political, or religious aspects of our national life. There s a political party which stands as exponent and sponsor for the militant ideas of a section of our common country with which the great masses of Negro Americans are fully acquainted and of whom the Negro voter must be keenly aware. That section is extremely orthodox in religious theory and profession. On this matter of religious or sectarian belief, it would raise and project a holy crusade. It does not seem to know that expatiating about God on one hand, and humiliating a part of its citizens—God's children—by exploitation and social injustice on the other hand, are incompatible concepts. It seems not to sense the fact that religious orthodoxy, the true kind, reveals its vitality in expressional forms of social justice rather than in upholding, in verbal battles worn-out theories of interpretation of Holy Writ, and in making these serve to sanction anti-social race attitudes. Such is rather heresy.

While the masses of Negro Americans will vote for prohibition, for the superior sovereignty of the Federal Constitution and Government, he and the nation will emerge from this election aware that a new Negro politically is emerging in American life, one who cannot be coddled, bought, or frightened, but who will insist on studying the issues as these relate to fundamental principles of government, and who will vote according to the dictates of moral values.

Suffrage

FIGHT DISFRANCHISEMENT

Senator Swanson, of Virginia in his 15,000-word speech in defense and denial of Negro disfranchisement and attempting to show that the State Constitutions and laws thereunder which restrict, hinder, hamper and prevent Negroes from voting or qualifying in order to vote in all of the former seceding States except Tennessee has brought the issue of disfranchisement plainly and boldly to the front. It is an insolent and defiant challenge to thirty-eight States where representation in Congress and in the Electoral College is based on a population whose citizenship is unabridged, unhampered or restricted either by State Constitutional provisions and legislative enactments or by illegal administration of the laws by corrupt and dishonest registration and election officials.

As slaves Negroes were counted on a three-fifths basis in enumeration for representation, as freemen the entire number is counted without the privilege of voting.

As an illustration of the power and domination of the South in the government through suppression of the Negro vote a comparison of the votes cast in the last presidential election is of interest: Alabama with a population of 2,347,684 and 12 electoral votes cast 166,593 votes for president in 1924, while Minnesota with a population about the same as Alabama and with 12 electoral votes cast 822,779 votes for president in 1924; in the same election Georgia with a population of 2,895,479 with 14 electoral votes cast 166,577 votes while Wisconsin with 2,622,139 with 13 electoral votes cast 840,779 votes.

In all of the former seceding States in which there is a large Negro population there is the same disparity of votes because of the suppression of the Negro vote.

During the Civil War it was a boast of Southerners that one confederate soldier was equal to five "Yanks"; that was not proven on the battle fields but in these piping times of peace, one white man or woman at the polls in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Arkansas or Texas is equal to five white men or women in any other State.

Edward H. Wright in declining the request of the Republican Voters League to run for Congress in the First Chicago District says:

"A member of Congress elected from the ranks of the colored people in the First District would represent not only the people of his district, but he would be the spokesman in national affairs of fifteen million of his people throughout the United States.

"In my opinion no political party can be relied upon to make the fight for human rights which is involved in the Negro's complete political and civil emancipation in those sections where hs citizenship rights are abridged. To my mind the issue of paramount mportance in this country is not whether the Eighteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution should be enforced, but whether or not the necessary legislation shall be enacted by Congress to make the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution effective in spirit and letter."

"The representation in Congress of those States where the ballot is restricted, except for crime, should be reduced as provided for in the Fourteenth Amendment.

"It is my firm conviction that lynching, peonage, jim-crow cars, and disfranchisement would shortly disappear if every citizen was protected in the exercise of his franchise. This right would not be denied if representation in Congress would be the unfailing penalty for such denial.

"We have a hard fight ahead of us, but it is our fight and we must take it, for no one else will make it for us. 'Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.' "

Mr. Wright clearly presents the issue in declaring that no political party can be relied upon to make the fight for human rights which is involved in the Negro's complete political and civil emancipation in those sections where his citizenship rights are abridged.

The Negro himself must lead in the fight and must use every party, every issue which can aid in achieving that end.

He must cut loose from tradition habit and inherited alliances and align himself locally with any party or group that possesses elements of strength sufficient to win and can be used to advance the cause of justice and fair play to the race.

Prohibition is the most intensely absorbing issue before the American voters this year. Politicians, generally both Democrate and Republican, seem to regard the Eighteenth Amendment as the only amendment that should be obeyed. Millions of dollars are spent yearly for its enforcement, while not a dollar nor a voice is lifted in Congress or elsewhere for the enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. No legislation has been passed or is offered to make them effective.

Advantage should be taken of the situation and used by the Negro for his own enfranchisement. The fight for enfranchisement must be made on Congressman and no Senator or Representative regardless of his wetness or dryness, should be voted for by Negroes unless he is known to be four square against disfranchisement.

INDEPENDENT

Helena, Mont.

JAN 24 1928

WALSH APPRECIATED ABROAD.

The Winston-Salem Journal, said to be the most influential paper in North Carolina tells in a recent issue some things about the Jackson Day dinner in Washington which would lead people to believe that Senator T. J. Walsh of Montana, is much more appreciated abroad than he is at home, particularly with regard to his possibilities as a democratic presidential candidate.

Perhaps that is just the way Senator Walsh wants things to be—at least he is not making much of an effort to win new friends in Montana by his various proposals for investigations, which do not seem to have struck a very responsive public sentiment in Montana.

However, it must be admitted that Senator Walsh is greatly admired for his ability at home and abroad. That he was a central figure at the Jackson Day banquet is well known and Montanans are proud that high personal tribute was paid to him at the great democratic gathering.

The Winston-Salem Journal says:

"The nearest the dinner came to launching a presidential boom was when the name of Senator Walsh of Montana, was called. Nobody failed to cheer long and loud for the man who drove the plunderers and corruptionists out of Washington. There was a feeling that here was a man who had done a job that Andrew Jackson, himself, would have taken delight in doing for his country. Here was a man, who in the last eight years had come nearest to typifying the Jackson spirit in American politics. Here was a man, who more nearly than any other, incarnated the only issue on which the democratic party could win."

The North Carolina paper does not say that Senator Walsh received this tribute and hearty applause because he is known as a "dry," but the same editorial conveys the news to its readers that the name of Al Smith received little applause as compared to the names of Walsh and McAdoo, and it states that Governor Ritchie of Maryland made a big blunder when he spoke on state's rights and branded national prohibition as fundamentally wrong in principal and a tragic failure in practice. The Journal says Governor Ritchie was actually rebuked by John W. Davis, the toastmaster, for his utterances.

We must take it then that the Winston-Salem Journal pays its great tribute to Senator Walsh because he is an ardent dry, and disguises the motive for its praise by referring to the activities of the Montana senator in driving the "plunderers and corruptionists" out of Washington. What the North Carolina paper wanted to say was that Senator Walsh got the cheers because he is the antithesis of Smith and Ritchie on the question of prohibition, as the editorial itself is headed "Democracy is Not Going Wet."

Andrew Jackson took the Constitution of the United States seriously. The dry element in both the republican and democratic parties take only the Eighteenth amendment seriously. It seems unthinkable to us in this later and more enlightened day, but President Jackson seems honestly to have felt that the founding fathers were not playing horse with posterity when they appended the bill of rights to that illustrious document.

What do the dry senators and representatives of either party care about the bill of rights or the sections of the Constitution other than the Eighteenth amendment? The paper which praises Senator Walsh to the limit because he stands for a strict enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment is a party every year to gross violation of the Fifteenth amendment which provides that the right of citizens of the United States to vote "shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any state, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."

This amendment is nullified by the southern states which now make such a demonstration over the necessities of enforcing the Eighteenth amendment. The negro does not vote in the south—he is not permitted to vote. If Senator Walsh stepped out and demanded the enforcement of the Fifteenth amendment, would the Winston-Salem Journal eulogize his course.

The Fourth amendment to the Constitution of the United States provides that the "right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the person or things to be seized."

If Senator Walsh had made a speech at the Jackson Day dinner advocating the strict enforcement of this amendment to the Constitution, he would likely have been rebuked by the chairman, as the Winston-Salem Journal says Ritchie was rebuked for advocating state's rights and denouncing the Eighteenth amendment.

Everyone knows the amendment to the Constitution of the United States just quoted is violated every day, but we never hear a word from Senator Walsh nor his newspaper friends in the South, demanding that the Fourth and the Fifteenth amendments be enforced. Senator Walsh and his friends know the Eighteenth amendment by heart but they overlook the other provisions—they have forgotten the other sections of the document in their zeal for the blessed Eighteenth Senator Walsh deserves commendation for driving the plunderers and corruptionists from Washington," and he has received a lot of it, but he is nominated for president by the North Carolina paper because he is a dry, and is sitting daily in the senate of the United States without demanding the enforcement of other provisions of the Constitution which would interfere with the disenfranchisement of the negro in the south and curb the activities of the prohibition agents all over the country and far out at sea.

Our forefathers wrote a few lines in the Declaration of Independence which should be read now and then. Complaining about the offences of the King of England against the people in America, they said, "He has created a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance."

That is what is the matter with the country today. The members of congress who are so anxious for the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment, are guilty of doing the very thing King George did to the colonists, only they have increased the number by thousands and they eat our substance to the extent of more than $100,000,000 annually in appropriations, made for the enforcement of one amendment to the Constitution while others are brushed aside and forgotten.

It was a strange crowd which celebrated the birthday of Andrew Jackson, the man who knew and believed in all sections of the Constitution and accepted them as equally important.

Suffrage

General

NEW YORK HERALD

JAN 22 1928

Unenforced Laws Clutter Statute Books of Nation and All States

Dead Letter Acts Remain Unrepealed as Congress and Legislatures Yearly Swell Codes With Thousands of New and Diverse Enactments; Theoretical Regulation Touches Every Side of People's Life; Amendments to the Federal Constitution Never Made Uniformly Effective

By David Karsner

IT HAS been said that the United States is a nation of law makers and law breakers and that for every person that breaks a law there are ten persons clamoring for a new one to supplement or supersede an old statute. The business of making laws in the United States has become a highly specialized industry whose factories are located at Washington, in the capitals of the forty-eight states and in every city and county seat within those states.

Considering that there has to be a large number of persons in favor of every law advocated or enacted, for one reason or another, before a bill reaches the dignity of a statute, it is reasonable to assume that every third person in the United States gives a certain amount of time each day to the thought that "There ought to be a law." Judges and lawyers have said that there is not a single right guaranteed to the citizens by the Federal Constitution and by the Bill of Rights of the various states which have not been canceled, infringed upon and altered in some vital form by Federal or state statutes, or city ordinances.

Furthermore, it has been said that the average law-abiding citizen breaks no less than twenty laws every day of his life by merely going about his business peaceably, and sublimely ignorant that he has in any measure transgressed the statutes. It would appear that there must be a law to cover every voluntary and involuntary act and thought of the average person in every minute of the day and night, and comparatively few persons know anything abotu the meaning, or even the existence, of the multifarious laws intended to restrain thought and deed. The customs, habits, climate and temperament of a country to a large extent determine the character of itts laws.

Legislators Bring Fresh Stock Of Bills When Session Begins

Judging from the tremendous number of laws enacted by the Congress and by forty-eight states, Americans need more laws than any other people on earth. The fact that we have more laws than any other nation may give some weight to the theory that Americans are either lawless or that they love liberty more than most people, for the existence of every law is certainly indicative of the desire of a given number of persons to do the very thing that the law prohibits. Judges and lawyers say that thousands of laws should never have been enacted. There is scarcely a man or woman elected to a law-making assembly, either Federal or state, but who immediately conceives it to be his or her duty to unload a plethora of bills in the legislative hopper and insist that every one become a law.

New York Code Cluttered

Many such bills, as all know, never see the printer. But enough of them are enacted annually to cause amazement at the tremendous amount of energy spent—if it should be spent—in the enforcement of such laws. A prominent New York lawyer said that were all the laws enforced that are included in the Penal Code of New York State the overhead expense to the state government would be so enormous that there wo'dn't be enough money left in the treasury to buy a one-way ticket from New York to Albany. Moreover, every citizen would have to be drafted into the law-enforcement bodies of the city and state.

The Federal and state statute books are cluttered with laws that repeat and overlap each other to an amazing degree. There are thousands of laws supposedly in effect and operative that have been dead letters for many years. Others are of comparatively recent manufacture, but of such a character that it is virtually impossible to enforce them for the simple reason that a substantial portion of the population does not want them to be enforced.

It was the late Mayor William J. Gaynor, who also had been a judge of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of New York, who said repeatedly that "the United States is a government of laws and not of men."

"As a rule all unwise legislation is passed in time of senseless clamor," said Judge Gaynor.

Congressional Output Cited

Take, for example, the number of laws passed by Congress. The Sixty-seventh Congress passed 550 public laws and adopted 105 resolutions. The Sixty-eighth Congress passed 682 laws and adopted 75 resolutions. The Sixty-ninth Congress passed 807 laws and adopted 71 resolutions.

Even these totals only partly betray the voracious appetite of Congress for making new statutes. For example, the Sixty-ninth Congress actually passed a total of 1,422 laws, of which 807 were public laws, including several acts relating to bridges over navigable waters; 537 were private bills. In the House of Representatives last session were introduced 17,415 bills, 379 House joint resolutions, 457 House resolutions and 61 House concurrent resolutions, a total of 18,312 introduced. In the Senate during the same session there were introduced 5,835 bills, 381 resolutions, 172 Senate joint resolutions and 29 Senate concurrent resolutions, a total of 6,417 for the Senate.

It would seem that this total of the activity of Congress for one session might at least cover the matter of needful legislation for the entire country. But one who thinks so has not reckoned with the capacity of the state legislatures to pass laws for their own commonwealths.

In forty-four states in 1927 there were introduced a total of 50,893 bills, of which 17,199 were enacted into laws and thus became part and parcel of the civil and penal codes of those states.

Now, a legislator who goes to the trouble of drafting a bill only to see it defeated in his legislature is not likely to let the matter rest. His continuance in office may be contingent upon his ability to have his bill enacted into law. This is particularly true in isolated communties where a legslator's activities are scrutinized with more care than may be the case in a district of large population—cities and industrial districts, for example. Hence, any number of bills that fail of passage in one session are reintroduced in the next, and often enacted to appease the political ambitions of the member sponsoring the measure. There is an immense amount of trading among members of the state legislatures, and even in Congress, in this matter of bill passing.

Very often it is a question of "you vote for my bill and I will vote for yours." The whole matter at stake may be a question of political prestige or preferment or expediency, and often is so, but the fact remains that the legislative hoppers are kept busy day and night during every session of every state Legislature and of Congress turning out more and more laws.

Federal Statutes Unenforced

One does not have to go to those several states where the old English common law is still a quiescent part of the legal regimen of the state to find laws that to all intent and purpose are unenforceable, if not actually dead letters.

The Penal Code of New York State is cluttered with statutes that are simply not enforced and seem to be unenforceable. Also there are many Federal statutes which seem to have an ornamental rather than a practical significance.

Take, for instance, the most controversial law of the day—the prohibition act. There is not a citizen in the country outside of a lunatic asylum who does not know that the nation is legally dry, and that to encourage it to become wet by buying, selling or giving away alcoholic beverages is to violate not only the law of the state (certain states) in which the violator may happen to live, but also is to violate the Federal statute and to challenge the Constitution of the Republic.

All of which would seem to be a grave matter were it not for the fact that the prohibition law, though a highly controversial subject and actively "enforced," is the more often violated, perhaps, than any other current law for the simple reason that a large number of persons throughout the land are fond of spirituous liquors and another large number of persons are interested in selling them because there is large profit to be gained as long as the demand is greater than the supply.

Bootleggers Favor Dry Law

It is notorious that bootleggers are in favor of the retention of the prohibition act. The logic of their position is that their profits would cease if the law were repealed.

Various officials of the Treasury Department at Washington, as well as enforcement officers in the several states and state officials, seeking to enforce

Continued on II

The Never-Ending Stream

Political - 1928 II General

Suffrage

state dry laws—all have admitted in one way or another, openly or covertly, that the anti-liquor law is both openly and secretly violated in virtually every state in the union. One New York lawyer said that there was not enough stone and iron in the country to build prisons in sufficient number to hold all the violators of the Federal and state anti-liquor laws. It is apparent also that the prosecuting officials and the courts do not desire that all who violate the prohibition laws should be prosecuted, for the simple reason that the handling of these cases would require virtually all their time and money.

There are many localities throughout the United States where caches and rendezvous for the obtaining of prohibited liquor are pointed out to those desiring such beverage by persons whose economic interest is directly affiliated with the sale. Facts relating to the apparent impossibility of rigidly enforcing the Volstead law are so well known as to require no convincing.

Lawyers Doubt Repeal

However, on the matter of the prohibition act, many lawyers specially versed in constitutional law are of the opinion that the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law will not be repealed, even though they may never be absolutely enforced. They say that should public opinion turn violently against the continued attempt to enforce the law it still would remain on the statute books.

But the mere fact that the prohibition act has been incorporated into the organic law of the nation does not necessarily give it eminence over statutes that lack such significance. Amendments to the Federal Constitution have not been uniformly enforced any more than the prohibition law is enforced.

Take, for example, the First Amendment: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people to peaceably assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

The vitality of this Constitutional provision has been tempered many times by Federal and state laws. The most notable example of this was the passage of the espionage law in wartime. Although the amendment says specifically that "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press," that is precisely what Congress did in the emergency produced by the war. Lawyers have pointed out that the Supreme Court of the United States, while upholding convictions obtained under the espionage law, refrained from commenting upon the constitutionality of the statute.

Right to Vote Abridged

Another amendment that is a dead letter in many Southern states is the Fifteenth, which provides: "The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude. The Congress shall have the power to enforce the provisions of this article by appropriate legislation."

Any one who has lived in the South, or who has made any inquiry respecting the status of Negroes at the polls knows that they have no such status in a number of states, or in sections of states. Various supplemental laws have been passed in certain of the Southern states to circumvent the provisions of the Fifteenth Amendment. For example, in some Southern states Negroes are prevented from voting in the Democratic primaries, which means that the free exercise of their franchise is of no consequence in the Democratic South.

The Chinese exclusion act is partly enforced. It provides that no Chinese may come into the United States except as a student or as a merchant, yet the fact remains there are thousands of Chinese in the United States who are neither students nor merchants, but are employed in various occupations, the most obvious of which are waiters, domestics and laundrymen. Many have been smuggled into the country and remain by observing certain formulas.

Then there is the Mann act. The passage of this law followed what was virtually a national rising against commercialized vice and its interstate traffic. Every lawyer knows that the Mann act is neither enforced or enforceable, except in specific instances where special complaint has been made to the Federal officials. The existance of the Mann law, said one lawyer, serves as a warning and a threat in the interest is virtually impossible.

Act Weapon of Blackmailers

However, the Mann act is often invoked in instances where its offenders are either deliberately vicious or so utterly witless as to be ignorant of the possible consequences of their acts. The Mann Law has been called by some lawyers a piece of "class legislation," meaning that it is invoked in certain brazen cases against a certain class of people but is not generally applied. It is, however, a favorite weapon of the blackmailer and the vengeful.

Federal and New York Laws In Which Enforcement Fails

If all the laws on the statute books of the forty-eight states, as well as those that compose the Federal statutes, were enforced, virtually all citizens of the United States would have to be drafted as law enforcement officers, who themselves very likely would break the very laws they were supposed to enforce.

A few of the national and New York State laws that are not enforced include:

The First Amendment to the Federal Constitution (freedom of speech and press).

The Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution (equal rights for white and colored).

The Eighteenth Amendment, which is buttressed by the Volstead act.

The Chinese exclusion act, which is evaded by thousands.

The Mann act, seldom invoked, except for revenge.

New York State law proscribing gambling. Many have never heard of it.

Laws having to do with Sunday observance.

The trading stamp law, which has long been a dead-letter.

Anti-anarchy law, which is reserved for national emergencies.

Judges, lawyers and legislators throughout the nation admit the statute books are cluttered with non-enforceable laws, yet nearly everybody says at least once a day, "There ought to be a law." And the wishes of all in this respect are usually granted a hundredfold.

In Pennsylvania there is an anti-riot act. The genesis of this law goes back to the time of the first Federal Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia. There seem to have been some persons in Philadelphia who did not like the sort of Constitution that was being framed for the young Republic. They gathered in Philadelphia around a May pole and said so. This was an affront to the Federalists, and two of the ringleaders were arrested on the charge that their agitation in concert with other persons was inciting to create a riot, in which the public peace and order most certainly would be disturbed. The anti-riot act thus came into being. It was a quiescent statute and was invoked only at long intervals.

Old Law Invoked in 1921

The last time it was invoked was at Chester, Pa., when persons gathered in a theater to hear pleas in behalf of Soviet Russia. This was in 1921. There had been no disorder in the theater when the meeting opened, and it might have continued peaceably if the police had not broken it up and arrested the speakers. They were held under the ancient anti-riot act on the theory that had they continued to speak there might have ensued a riot.

Turning from Federal statutes to state laws one immediately is impressed with the huge amount of duplication of the Federal statutes, repetitions of state laws and amendments and clauses that, in many instances, nullify the very law intended to be enforced.

Gambling Prohibited

For example, Section 970 of the New York State Penal Code covers many forms of gambling and prohibits it. The section, headed "Common Gambler," reads:

"A person who is the owner, agent or superintendent of a place, or of any device or apparatus, for gambling, or who hires, or allows to be used a room, table, establishment or apparatus for such a purpose, or who engages as dealer, gamekeeper or player in any gambling or banking game where money or property is dependent upon the result, or who sells or offers to sell what are commonly called lottery policies, or any writing, paper or document in the nature of a bet, wager or insurance upon the drawing, or drawn numbers of any public or private lottery, or who indorses or uses a book or other document for the purpose of enabling others to sell or offer to sell lottery policies or other writings, papers or documents, is a common gambler and punishable by imprisonment for not more than two years or fine not exceeding $1,000, or both."

Lawyers in New York say that under the state anti-gambling law, if it were enforced (if it could be enforced) there would be no betting on election results in Wall Street and elsewhere, prize-fights or anything else. Neither would there be the innumerable "pools," the prizes of which are in many cases from $5,000 as the first prize, or even higher down to $5.

Section 986, however, covers specifically the matter of pool selling, bookmaking, bets and wagers.

Cheating Forbidden

"Any person who engages in pool-making, with or without writing at any time or place; or any person who keeps or occupies any room, shed, tenement, tent or booth, or building, float or vessel, or any part thereof; or who occupies any place or stand of any kind, upon any public or private grounds, within this state, with books, papers, apparatus or paraphernalia for the purpose of recording or registering bets or wagers . . . is punishable by imprisonment for not more than one year."

Then after the State Penal Code forbids gambling of any kind or character, it also forbids cheating at gambling should the other sections of the law that entirely forbids gambling be violated. In other words, if a person breaks the law by gambling, he will break another law if he cheats. This is to keep gamblers honest.

Section 1534 of the Penal Code proscribes ticket speculation. It is rather an inclusive statute, and the person who drafted it as well as the Legislature that enacted it probably believed it would be enforced.

The section reads: "Any person who conducts on or in any street in a city the business of selling, or offering for sale, any ticket of admission, or any other evidence of the right of entry to any performance or exhibition in or about the premises of any theater, or concert hall, place of public amusement, circus or common show; or solicits on or in any street in a city, by words, signs, circulars or other means, any person to purchase any such ticket or other evidence of the right of entry . . . etc., is guilty of a misdameanor."

One has only to stroll around the theater district in New York to see how effective is this "ticket speculation" law.

Section 1221 provides that any person intoxicated in a public place may be arrested without warrant while so intoxicated and taken before a magistrate on the charge of public intoxication. The offender may be fined not exceeding $10 or imprisoned for six months. This law is not enforced except in cases of habitual drunkards, or when persons intoxicated become obstreperous.

Sabbath Laws Ignored

There are many sections in the Penal Code on the subject of Sabbath observance, and many of them are not enforced either in the letter or the spirit of the law, for the simple reason that seven million people in New York City cannot be watched on Sundays to find out whether they are observing the Sabbath in accordance with the law. But there is a section of the law—Section 2152—which is certainly not enforced.

This section reads: "The performance of any tragedy, comedy, opera, ballet, farce, Negro minstrelsy, Negro or other dancing, wrestling, boxing with or without gloves; or any circus, equestrian or dramatic performance or exercise, or any performance or exercise of jugglers, acrobats or rope dancers, on the first day of the week is forbidden."

The owner or lessee of such property devoted to such performances, or any one of them, on Sundays is guilty of a misdemeanor. Every person violating the section is subject to a fine of $500, which the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents in New York City, or overseers of the poor in other cities, may recover—if they can.

Theaters Evade Law

Variety theaters and burlesque houses in New York evade this law by announcing their Sunday afternoon and night programs as "Sunday concerts." Some houses even describe their programs frankly as "vaudeville concerts." This law has been variously interpreted. It appears that if there is no lowering or raising of the curtain the performance is "a concert." It still remains "a concert" if the performers do their stuff in street or evening clothes instead of costume.

Section 2143 announces that "all labor is prohibited (on Sunday) except the works of necessity and charity. In works of necessity or charity is included whatever is needful during the day for the good order, health or comfort of the community." It is obvious that this piece of innocuous, infirm and elastic legislation is a joker.

Section 2145 says that "all shooting, hunting, playing, horse racing, gaming or other public sports, exercises or shows . . . and all noise unreasonably disturbing the peace of the day are prohibited."

"Noise that unreasonably disturbs the peace of the day is prohiibted on Sunday!" says the law. This is not enforced in New York, and not much attempt is made to enforce it. Jazz bands,

Acts to Govern Sabbath Evaded Or Ignored Here

Amusements, Noise and Sale of Food Among Matters Covered in Enactments; Gambling Unrestrained

all-night parties and what not are the rule in apartments throughout the city at all hours of the day and night on Sundays. People who sponsor these things may create all sorts of racket, and do, but nothing is done about it save a moan or complaint from neighboring tenants. That law was written by a humorist, or one who lived in a dugout.

Section 2147, on the subject of Sabbath observance, cautions delicatessen stores that they cannot open before 10 a. m. and between the hours of 4 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. This law is not generally enforced.

Section 161 of the Penal Code is the anti-anarchy law. Under the terms of this statute if two or more persons were to gather in the home of either and discuss the anarchistic doctrines of any past or present exponent of that theory they both may be sent to prison for ten years and the owner or lessee of the property in which such conversations takes place may be sent to prison for two years. Other sections of this law also forbid the forming and participation in organizations having for their main and ultimate purpose the establishment of a form of government at variance with the form of government of the United States. Also, such organizations may not print and publish literature having these purposes.

Enforced in Emergency

This law is not enforced, except in times of national emergency. The intent of the law, it appears, was not only to restrain the acts of persons holding doctrines that are called subversive but also to control thought. One lawyer said that a strict enforcement of this law would make it illegal for dictionaries to contain the definition of anarchy and would most certainly prohibit professors from informing their social science classes concerning the doctrine of anarchy and allied subjects such as syndicalism and bolshevism.

Sections 2.300 and 2,301 of the Penal Code have to do with the question of suicide. It is illegal for a person to attempt to take his own life, and should he do so, and recover from the effects of the attempt, he may be sent to prison.

Also, should a despondent person say to another: "I am going to hang myself," and should the person thus addressed reply: "Well, go ahead and hang yourself," and should the despondent person hang himself, the one who said "Go ahead," would have aided and abetted the taking of a life and would be guilty of a felony.

Statutes Written as Jokes

There are on the statute books in many states all sorts of joker laws. They were written into the statute by wits and wags, and they are recognized as hoaxes. In Kansas, for example, there is a law which says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to exhibit in a public way within the State of Kansas any sort of exhibition that consists of eating or pretending to eat of snakes, lizards, scorpions, centipedes, tarantulas or other reptiles."

There is a law in Georgia that forbids traffic in cottonseed between sunset and sunrise. This law was passed after it was found that farmhands employed on cotton plantations stole large quantities of cottonseed when transfer of the product was made at night.

The Legislature of Pennsylvania on the average passes more laws at one session than are passed in ten years by the Parliament of Great Britain. Compare the record of the American Congress with that of England. The Sixty-ninth Congress, as pointed out, passed 807 public laws. Following is a ten-year tally of the laws passed by the British Parliament: 1915, 105; 1916, 71; 1917, 67; 1918, 61; 1919, 102; 1920, 82; 1921, 67; 1922, 57; 1923, 42; 1924, 40 This makes a total of 694 laws passed by the British Parliament in ten years.

Gaynor's Comment Recalled

The late Mayor Gaynor, as a result of his long experience at the bar and on the bench, knew it was impossible to enforce all the laws, and, having a philosophical turn of mind with a happy admixture of whimsicality, he never hesitated to admit that as the chief law enforcement officer of New York City he was powerless to have all the laws enforced.

On June 7, 1911, he wrote to a complaining citizen:

"I am in receipt of your letter saying that all clubs should be closed at 10 o'clock at night, also all saloons, and also that piano playing and singing should not be allowed at any hour of the night, especially in summer, when people cannot close their windows so as to shut the noise out.

"I hereby authorize you to carry out all of these reforms. It may be that you will first have to get elected to the Legislature, and pass laws therefor for you know this is a government of laws and not of men; that is to say, those put in office may not do as they like, but may only carry out the laws as they are passed by the Legislature. Did you never hear of this before?"

MINISTERS TO REGISTER

(Savannah Tribune)

It is a commendable step recently undertaken by the ministers of the city in attempting to interest their colleagues to become registered voters. In doing so they will receive the plaudits of the pews and all who believe in true citizenship. Independent

Too long has the pulpit, with a few outstanding exceptions, been derelict in taking advantage of this the highest privilege granted citizens. Their apathy in this direction, no doubt, has been the cause of the non-interest of so large a number of our men and women who should be among the registered voters. Say what you may, the credit will have to be given the ministers as being the leaders of the people; for that reason, that old truism of "like priest, like people," fits this case very aptly. 2-9-28

The efforts to secure a larger registration among the ministers will be watched with a deal of interest. The leaders among them should not waiver until the last one of the large number of them is on the list. It would be quite an array to have more than one hundred ministers of this county registered as voters. This large number will then be in a position to lead the way and direct their members to the court house where they can register in order to discharge the franchise granted by the constitution of these United States. Atlanta, Ga.

It is very opportune that this campaign should be made at this time. Next November the presidential election takes place. Every citizen should be proud to cast a vote for his choice to occupy the White House for the term after March of 1929, as well as for a candidate for Congress.

Along with the efforts of the ministers, others of age to vote should be urged to qualify. There should be on the registration list of this county not less than five thousand voters. It can be done.

Suffrage

SENATOR BORAH ON DISFRANCHISEMENT

Senator Borah in reply to questionaires submitted as to his attitude as to the enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution as well as enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment declared that the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments were not being violated, nor had nullification of those Amendments been attempted in the election laws passed by the so-called disfranchising States. Herald-Commonwealth

Senator Borah is a man of too great ability and a constitutional lawyer of too much distinction to pass up his opinion on so serious a question as idle or as the mere dictum of a politician. 1-21-28

Coming from a man of such ability at such a time and one high in Republican party leadership, sanction of Democratic disfranchisement in the South is a direct blow aimed at the liberty of the Negro in this country. It will heighten the spirit of intolerance, intensify the prejudice and increase the insolence and overbearing attitude of those who by unjust and unconstitutional laws have reduced the Negro in the disfranchising States to a condition of serfdom and made him in effect subject to the will of every individual white man. Baltimore, Md.

It will also justify the apathy of thousands of white citizens who are at heart just and fair, and satisfy the conscience of other thousands who believe in human rights but who have looked on with tolerance upon the suppression of human liberty in the South.

And Senator Borah arrived at his conclusions without the slightest investigation of the various and nefarious laws governing the suffrage and their administration.

In South Carolina for instance he would find had he investigated that the election laws require a new registration every ten years, that registration certificates are issued to voters who are permitted to qualify which certificates must be presented to the managers of election on election day. There are three supervisors of registration for each country; in order to qualify for registration the applicant must be 21 years of age, must be able to read and write any section of the Constitution of the State, or own $300 worth of property. These are the simple legal requirements. If an applicant is refused registration he can appeal to any udge of a superior court who decides whether he has the right to be registered.

Investigation would show Senator Borah that Negro applicants for registration are required in the majority of cases to not only read the Constitution but to understand or interpret legal terms of the instrument, that if they approach the supervisors' office in large numbers dilatory tactics are used and time after time hundreds of Negro applicants are unable to procure certificates at their county seats because of delay and often the registrars close the office when no white applicants are present. Also white citizens can procure certificates without applying in person while Negroes must apply.

The supervisors of registration who thus disfranchise the voters are officials appointed by the governor under the laws of the State, and the disfranchisement is known and approved by the State. And Senator Borah also puts the stamp of his approval and sanction upon this disfranchisement.

If by any calamity the able and shifty Senator should become the compromise candidate of the Republican party at Kansas City in June a million Negro citizens who enjoy the right of suffrage will know what to do to the Senator.

WORCESTER, MASS.

Woman Suffrage and Negro Suffrage

The 19th amendment to the federal Constitution provides: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

Suppose Massachusetts established a rule under which no person could be a voter in the state unless he or she could lift an iron bar of a given number of pounds. Suppose that the weight of the bar was so fixed that the rule excluded the great majority of women from the polls.

That's the way the Southern states deal with the question of Negro suffrage. They don't make rules which specifically prevent Negroes from voting. Instead, they make rules imposing tests which Negroes "happen" to be unable to pass.

HOUSE MIGHT CHOOSE TO BAR A NEGRO

Action Of Senate In Smith Case Is Menace To Minority Groups

1,500,000 PERSONS VOTED FOR SMITH

Entire Dixie Delegation In Congress Polled Far Fewer Votes

By WILLIAM PICKENS

NEW YORK, (ANP.)—Frank L. Smith, regularly elected senator from Illinois, was barred from his seat in Congress by a vote which was dominated by "gentlemen from the South."

It's a grim joke for the southern senators to be voting against any other senator on account of corruption, when nearly every senator from the South is elected by means of the most immoral disfranchisement of both white and black citizens. A senator from a southern state, for example, which ought to poll nearly one million voters, gets himself elected to Congress by a little rotten borough vote of less than 1,000, and has the nerve to vote to oust a man who was sent by an Illinois vote of 800,000, in an election that polled 1,500,000 votes,—or thirty times as many votes as were polled for both the southern senator and that southern senator's opponent. Nearly as many free and untrammeled votes were cast in the Illinois election as were cast to elect the entire southern delegation in Congress.

Politics

But, waving aside the question of morals, let us take up the question of policy and politics. Frank L. Smith was elected by the people of Illinois after they had learned all about his campaign expenses: they knew how much money had been spent on his campaign and where the money came from. Still they preferred Smith to his democratic opponent, for the democrat had doubtless spent all the money he could get on his campaign,—and had gotten all the money that anybody was willing to give him. This fact makes the question of the right of the people of Illinois to choose their own representatives the primary question.

Nobody Fooled

If Smith had fooled the people of Illinois, then the rest of the United States Senate might stand against him, in defense of the people of Illinois. But nobody was fooled; the people chose for themselves, and regardless of whether their choice was good or bad, they are not self-governing if their choice cannot stand. Certainly the people of Mississippi do not deserve to appoint themselves as guardians for the people of Illinois. Any state that is ignorant enough to elect a Bilbo for governor, cannot set itself up as a model for voters' virtues. And think of Alabama making any suggestions to Illinois after Alabama sent Hefflin to Congress!

Minorities

There is a menace to all minorities in this action against Smith: Socialists, Jews, Catholics, or Negroes could be excluded from the Senate, however lawfully elected by their constitution, if a mere majority of senators could be persuaded or bought to vote against them.

JOURNAL
RACINE, WIS.
APR 2 1928

REAPPORTIONMENT IN CONGRESS.

The reapportionment of the country for congressional purposes, for which a general resolution is before the house, is going to bring out a lively debate and airing of the disfranchisement of the colored race by the south. While the population proportions are practically the same in all the states, the number of voters per congressional district are widely apart. Thus in South Carolina the vote per district was around 7,000, but in Ohio was 91,000 and in California 114,000. The large excess in the Pacific state, however, is due to the decided increase of population since the last reapportioning under the 1910 census count, this being largely at the expense of eastern states. The bill in question contemplates the use of the 1930 official census, and provides if congress fails to act promptly, the figures shall be certified to each state, which in such event, will reapportion as the census bureau has indicated, the states acting upon the present number of representatives which is 435.

It must be said that the number of voters exercising the rights of suffrage in northern districts disclose quite a variation, but nowhere in such a great disparity as in the south. Even in southern states the disfranchisement varies but nowhere approaches the equality of northern districts. In states like Maryland, Kentucky and Missouri, the vote per district is larger due to the less severity of the disfranchising law and absence of intimidation; the biggest differences exist in the southern belt and Atlantic coast states, Oklahoma being included in this belt.

It is felt that the only way this disproportioning of votes can be reached must be by some process not involving the use of military force at the polls and counting of ballots, and just how to get at this has a lot of angles. The probabilities are that nothing will be done whatever the injustice may be. It is sixty years or so since the south through its respective legislatures nullified the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, and since the ratification of these no federal arm has been stretched to enforce such. In the opinion of many who realize that open nullification has been resorted to by the south, yet after the decades that have passed with the federal government acquiescing by doing nothing about it, it is now too late to reopen the subject.

A late Washington dispatch giving an account of congressional proceedings, has the following on the reapportioning as such bears on the disfranchising of the colored race by the south:

"The average population per representative in South Carolina under the 1920 census was 240,532, while the average population per representative in Illinois was 240,195, indicating on its face an equality of representation for the citizens of the two states.

"When the election figures are examined however, it develops that the number of votes actually cast in the last presidential election averaged 7,250 per representative in South Carolina as compared with 91,483 per representative in Illinois.

"The election figures indicate that in South Carolina the white citizens do a more effective job in keeping the Negroes from voting than anywhere else in the south. The voting totals in all of the southern states, however, are far below those in the northern states.

"Votes cast in Alabama in the last presidential election averaged 13,499 per representative; in Georgia, 13,881; in Mississippi, 14,057; in Louisiana, 15,253; in Arkansas, 19,796; in Virginia, 22,361; in Florida, 27,288; in Texas, 36,528, and in North Carolina, 48,268.

"There is a wide discrepancy between these figures and the votes cast in Illinois and adjacent middle western states. In Wisconsin the votes cast averaged 76,428 per representative; in Michigan, 88,360; in Iowa, 88,814, and in Indiana, 97,394.

In Massachusetts the votes cast per representative averaged 70,718; in New York, 75,905; in Ohio, 91,647, and in California, which is to gain several seats in congress under the reapportionment bill, 116,525. The votes cast in the last presidential election throughout the country averaged 66,709 per representative in congress. North Carolina, the southern state with the heaviest vote, thus was 18,441 below the average, while South Carolina was 59,459 below the average."

With examples from prominent southerners talking of nullifiers in the northern part of those seeking modification or repeal of the eighteenth amendment and Volstead law, and with prominent advocates of the strictest enforcement using this term, it is no surprise that public attention is being drawn to the real nullification practiced in southern states.

In the belt of states not including Maryland Kentucky and Missouri, there are 112 members of the house of representatives, and from the three omitted states 33 representatives. The United States senators are not included in this reapportionment business because the constitution guarantees two from each state, but this same instrument provides that congress shall be the judge of the qualifications of its own members.

CHRONICLE
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
MAR 18 1928

SOUTH FACES FIGHT OVER NEGRO VOTE

Old Question of Disenfranchisement Linked With Reapportionment

By ARTHUR CRAWFORD

Special by Leased Wire to The Chronicle

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Negro disenfranchisement in the South is due for a further airing in Congress.

Already the subject of heated debates in both houses at this session, the question threatens to bob up for discussion in connection with pending congressional reapportionment legislation.

Although the apportionment bill approved by the House Census Committee seeks to even up the the congressional districts in respect to population it fails to take into consideration the number of persons who are actually exercising the right of franchise.

WHEN FIGURES DECEIVE

The average population per Representative in South Carolina under the 1920 census was 240,532, while the average population per Representative in Illinois was 240,195, indicating on its face an equality of representation for the citizens of the two States.

When the election figures are examined, however, it develops that the number of votes actually cast in the last presidential election averaged 7250 per Representative in South Carolina as compared with 91,483 per Representative in Illinois.

The election figures indicate that in South Carolina the white citizens do a more effective job in keeping the negroes from voting than anywhere else in the South. The voting totals in all of the Southern States, however are far below those in the Northern States.

VOTING STRENGTH COMPARED

Votes cast in Alabama in the last presidential election averaged 13,499 per Representative; in Georgia, 13,881; in Mississippi, 14,057; in Louisiana, 15,253; in Arkansas, 19,796; in Virginia, 22,361; in Florida 27,288; in Texas, 36,528, and in North Carolina, 48,268.

There is a wide discrepancy between these figures and the votes cast in Illinois and adjacent Middle Western States. In Wisconsin the votes cast averaged 76,428 per Representative; in Michigan, 88,360; in Iowa, 88,814, and in Indiana, 97,394

CALIFORNIA TO GAIN

In Massachusetts the votes cast per Representative averaged 70,718; in New York, 75,905; in Ohio, 91,647 and in California, which is to gain several seats in Congress under the reapportionment bill, 116,525 The votes cast in the last presidential election throughout the country averaged 66,709 per Representative in Congress. North Carolina, the Southern State with the heaviest vote, thus was 18,441 below the average, while South Carolina was 59,459 below the average.

Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, who has a resolution pending before the Rules Committee of the House directing the Census Committee to make an investigation of negro disenfranchisement with a view to bringing about a proportionate reduction of representation of Southern States under the penalty provision of the fourteenth amendment to the Federal constitution, intends to keep hammering away on the subject.

Political - 1928

General.

Suffrage

TRIBUNE
CHICAGO, ILL.

OCT 9 1928

FOUGHT TO GIVE NEGRO FRANCHISE IN SOUTH IN 1890

House Passed Lodge Force Bill, 155 to 149.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8.—[Special.]—The last attempt made in congress to secure to the Negro in the south the right of suffrage which the fifteenth amendment was intended to guarantee was represented by the effort to pass the Lodge "force bill" in 1890.

After the first election of Cleveland the Republicans were convinced that if they were to perpetuate themselves in power they must take steps to obtain the electoral votes of the south of which they believed themselves deprived by the exclusion of the Republican Negroes from the electorate. They calculated that they were cheated of 24 congressmen and 38 electoral votes by election practices in the south. These practices were the intimidation of Negroes into staying away from the polls in some places and in others the suppression of the ballots of such Negroes as were allowed to vote.

Majority of One Vote.

In December, 1889, President Harrison in his message to congress proposed federal supervision of congressional elections. With approval of the Republican caucus by the narrow majority of one vote, Representative Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts introduced what was immediately dubbed by its opponents the "force bill." It was designed to enforce the fifteenth amendment, not to carry out the second section of the fourteenth amendment directing the reduction of representation in congress of states disfranchising citizens. The Republicans wanted the south to keep its representation but they wanted the representatives.

The Lodge bill provided that upon petition of from 50 to 100 voters in election districts, according to size, federal judges should appoint election boards to supervise elections and canvass returns. As the judges were nearly all Republicans, it was assumed that they would appoint boards with a majority of Republicans on each. There were provisions for using troops and deputy United States marshals to preserve order and protect voters at the polls.

Six Days' Heated Debate.

After a six day heated debate in the house, the bill was passed by a vote of 155 ayes to 149 noes on July 2, 1890. Of those who participated in the debate, few are alive today and fewer still in public life. Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, Republican, is the sole survivor of that day in either house of congress. He voted for the bill. Another survivor on the Republican side is Henry Clay Hansbrough of North Dakota, later senator, who is now in Washington heading a committee organizing the farmer vote for Al Smith. Still another is Alfred A. Taylor of Tennessee, who was once beaten for the governorship by his brother, Bob, but lived to win the job in 1920 and detach Tennessee from the solid south for the first time since reconstruction. Others who voted for the bill were Speaker Tom Reed, the late Robert M. La Follette, Uncle Joe Cannon, and Dolliver of Iowa.

Two of the few survivors of the Democratic opponents of the measure are Benton McMillin, who is Democratic national committeeman for Tennessee, and William H. Forney of Alabama.

Senate Cool to Measure.

The bill never was considered in the senate. The Republican leadership in the senate was cool to the measure. Senator Don Cameron of Pennsylvania explained that manufacturing was reviving in the south, that northern capital was pouring in, and that "the election law would disturb this desirable condition and produce ill feeling between the north and south."

Besides, six new states were being admitted to the Union, and all were Republican, or good Republican prospects. Their votes in congress and their electoral votes would offset the votes the Republicans were deprived of by Negro disfranchisement in the south.

Still another reason was that the Democrats intended to filibuster the election bill by prolonging debate on the McKinley tariff bill. The Republicans were more interested in the protective tariff than in the Negro vote. They made a deal with the Democrats whereby debate on the tariff bill was limited and the election bill was abandoned.

Uncle Joe Cannon reported the special rule from the rules committee, under which the house debated and passed the bill. His remarks in favor of the measure were applauded by a delegation of Negroes in the gallery, according to references to that circumstance occurring in the debate. The Democrats were up in arms at once.

"It is a bill to try to elect a Republican congress this fall; but they can not do it," said Representative Flower of New York.

"Here is a proposition," said Representative McMillin, "the most far-reaching and the most revolutionary that has ever been presented. It is centralization run mad. Despotism is sure to follow if it be enacted."

What Lodge Declared.

Mr. Lodge pointed out that the bill was an extension of the election supervision act, "made necessary by the gigantic frauds in the city of New York" in 1870, when in some instances more votes were cast than there were residents in the election district. He instanced election frauds in other northern states to prove that the bill was not aimed at the south exclusively. Then he went on to deal with the question of the purity of elections in the south.

"If, as I have heard it stated on this floor," said Mr. Lodge, "southern elections are perfectly fair and the black man goes caroling to the voting place by the side of his employer seeking only to cast his vote for those whose interests are identical with his own, then, sir, it is the duty of the United States government to uncover this pleasing picture and display it to the country so that confidence may be restored, and no man may suspect longer that southern elections are open to criticism. . . .

Assails South's Elections.

"If, on the other hand, the belief of large masses of the people that in certain sections of the south such a thing as a fair election is unknown is well founded, then it is high time that the United States should put a stop to that evil, if they have to exercise to the very last point every power that the constitution has put into their hands."

Mr. Lodge said he did not wish to judge harshly of the southerners for dealing with the vexed race question otherwise than he would, but the fact was that whether wisely or unwisely the Negro had been enfranchised and that it had become the duty of the federal government to protect him in the exercise of that right.

"The government which made the black man a citizen of the United States," he said, "is bound to protect him in his rights as a citizen of the United States and it is a cowardly government if it does not do it. No people can afford to write anything into their constitution and not sustain it."

Excluded from Voting.

Mr. Lodge dwelt upon the inequality of representation in the house produced by the fact that Negroes were counted in apportioning congressmen to the south, but were excluded from voting, wherefore, each southern congressman represented but a fraction of the number of voters represented by the northern congressman.

Incidentally, Mr. Lodge pointed the way to the device the southern states soon thereafter began adopting to disenfranchise the Negro.

"If any state," he said, "thinks that any class of citizens is unfit to vote through ignorance it can disqualify them from voting for state officers or for members of this house. It has but to put an educational qualification into its constitution. But the disqualification like the qualification cannot recognize color, and that is the reason that legal methods never have been tried. The Negro is not thrust out from his rights merely because he is ignorant and unfit to use them, as is constantly charged, but because his skin is black. It is this distinction which gives the lie to every principle of American liberty that is at the bottom of the difficulty and of the problem which we all deplore."

Those Democratic Bolters.

One of the principal counts in the indictment of Al Smith by the southern Democratic bolters in this election is his affiliation with Tammany, arch symbol of corruption. And one of the principal arguments being put forward in defense of Tammany is that it saved the south from the Lodge force bill. This argument is based upon the activity of Tammany in fighting the measure. Although the bill passed the house, Tammany organized mass meetings of protest and to these is attributed in large part the crystallization of opposition which impelled the Republican leaders to pigeonhole the bill in the senate.

Ironical as it may seem in the light of the current southern anathematization of Tammany as the corrupter of government, the New York organization was opposed to the Lodge bill for the same reason as was the south: Because it would give the federal government the power to compel the holding of honest elections. Tammany controlled New York elections were notoriously dishonest, no less so than those in the south in which the Negroes were counted out. In those days Tammany and the south were political bedfellows.

Federal Supervision.

Representative Cummings of New York, Democrat, portrayed the operation of the proposed system in the case of New York. There would be federal supervisors of elections and canvassing boards appointed by Republican federal judges.

"After the election," said Mr. Cummings, "the board canvasses the vote for congressman in all the districts of the state and declares what candidates are entitled to seats. Imagine these three gentlemen, appointed for life by a circuit judge sitting in Vermont, canvassing the vote of the great state of New York, with its thirty-four members of congress. The New York representative who votes for this bill ought to blush with shame. He will repent of it in sackcloth and ashes."

TRIBUNE
CHICAGO, ILL.

OCT 23 1928

THREE SENATORS FAVOR ENFORCING 14TH AMENDMENT

Michigan Pair Pledge Full Co-operation.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—With but few exceptions, present members and new candidates for congress in the middle west answering THE TRIBUNE'S query have declared for impartial enforcement of all constitutional provisions, including the second section of the fourteenth amendment.

Thus far fifty replies have been received from the five states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin. In this area present members and new candidates number about 160.

Four of the nine senators and nineteen of the seventy-three representatives as well as one new candidate for the senate and twenty-six new candidates for the house have replied.

Quizzed on Negro Vote.

More than half of the senators and three-fourths of the representatives in these states have not as yet been heard from on the proposition of whether the second section of the amendment, which would reduce the congressional representation of southern states which have disfranchised the Negro, should be given the same degree of enforcement as the eighteenth amendment.

The question as propounded by telegram to all members of congress and new candidates was as follows:

"Do you hold that all provisions of the constitution should be impartially enforced? If so, will you introduce or vote for a bill to carry into effect the second section of the fourteenth amendment?"

Of the middle western senators replying, Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] declares for enforcement of the constitution as written and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep. Mich.] answers affirmatively, but says he believes that precedence should be given to another constitutional mandate which has been ignored by congress, that providing for reapportionment every ten years. Reapportionment would mean several additional members of congress for the state of Michigan.

Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] pleads a desire for more light on the legal questions involved before committing himself, and Senator John J. Blaine [Radical, Wis.] accuses THE TRIBUNE of seeking to drag a red herring "across the political pathway."

Of the 19 present members of the house who have responded, all declare for impartial enforcement of all constitutional provisions with the exception of Cyrenus Cole [Rep., Ia.], who avoids answering the first half of the query and says he cannot commit himself to vote for or against any legislation until he has seen it in final form.

Mr. Cole is the only member of the present Iowa bone dry delegation who has answered.

Enforce All Provisions.

Harry C. Canfield [Dem., Ind.] also wants to examine any proposed legislation before promising to vote for it but he adds that he sees "no reason why all the provisions of the constitution should not be enforced."

Senator Robinson answered thus:

"I believe in the constitution of the United States as written and shall always vote to enforce it."

Senator Vandenberg's reply:

"All provisions should be enforced." This includes second section of 14th amendment, although its interpretation may be complicated by Supreme court decisions bearing upon question of what constitutes an actual unconstitutional denial of suffrage. But paragraph three, section two, article 1 dealing with same general subject of reapportionment is a plain and uncontrovertible mandate which congress has ignored for eight years.

"I believe this latter lapse should be cured first without complicating it collaterally. I have already introduced a bill in the senate to this end. I believe it is the first time house reapportionment was ever initiated on the senate side. If the house further delays in the matter, this senate measure will be pressed in the December session."

Senator Couzens' response:

"There have been many debates in the senate concerning this matter. Senators with excellent legal minds do not seem to agree as to whether the 14th amendment is being adhered to or not. I being a layman, do not feel competent to speak upon the matter until it has been thoroughly debated and comes up for final action."

Calls It Red Herring.

Senator Blaine's reply:

"The red herring that you drag across the political pathway should deceive no one."

A. J. Cermak, Democratic senatorial nominee in Illinois, is the only new candidate for the senate in the five middle west states who have replied.

"Consistency would demand that I give my utmost support to any legislation that would carry into effect the second section of the 14th amendment," said Mr. Cermak. "I have been a leader in the fight in Illinois for proper apportionment. The second section of the 14th amendment is imbedded in principles to which it is highly necessary that we conform in every respect. Discrimination against any body of our citizenry in whatever guise sows seeds from which there must inevitably be a bitter harvest."

Responses of present house members in the middle west declaring for enforcement of all provisions include the following:

Britten Shows Interest.

FRED A. BRITTEN [Rep., Ill.]—All provisions of the constitution should be enforced. I will introduce a bill if necessary or will vote favorably on another's bill to carry into effect the second section of the fourteenth amendment.

ELLIOTT W. SPROUL [Rep., Ill.]—I would answer yes to both questions.

CARL R. CHINDBLOM [Rep., Ill.]—I hold that all provisions of the constitution should be impartially enforced. Will support necessary legislation to carry into effect second section of fourteenth amendment, as we as other provisions of the constitution.

A. J. SABATH [Dem., Ill.]—Am in favor of impartial enforcement of not only one but all provisions of constitution. Will also state that, in view of the fact that eighteenth amendment has been forced upon the people by questionable means, as admitted by Pussyfoot Johnson and his associates and as it is responsible for the wave of crime and corruption throughout the United States and disregard of law, I am in favor of its amendment even its repeal.

Igoe Stands Firm.

JAMES T. IGOE [Dem., Ill.]—I stand firmly for the honest enforcement of all the provisions of the constitution. But I believe just as firmly in the right to amend that revered instrument if and whenever a majority of our people believe amendments are necessary in order that its provisions shall be the more fittingly adapted to the vast changes in modern life and national development, such amendments to be brought about as specifically provided in article 5 of the constitution itself. I am thus in absolute accord with the attitude of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

HOMER W. HALL [Rep., Ill.]—I hold that all provisions of the constitution should be impartially enforced.

J. EARL MAJOR [Dem., Ill.]—I am in favor of enforcement of all provisions of the constitution, including section section of the 14th amendment and will vote accordingly.

ED M. IRWIN [Rep., Ill.]—I shall suport legislation to make operative second section of the 14th amendment.

H. E. ROWBOTTOM [Rep., Ind.]—Will introduce or support bill to carry into effect second section of the 14th amendment.

NOBLE J. JOHNSON [Rep., Ind.]—Will at all times vote to enforce the constitution.

R. N. ELLIOTT [Rep., Ind.]—I believe that the constitution in its entirety should be enforced and respected and will vote for a bill to carry into effect the section section of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution if the rights of the state of Indiana are properly safeguarded.

FRED S. PURNELL [Rep., Ind.]—Am in favor of doing whatever is necessary to make the fourteenth amendment or any other amendment fully effective.

JOHN C. SCHAFER [Rep., Wis.]—Would certainly vote for legislation carrying into effect second section fourteenth amendment.

GEORGE J. SCHNEIDER [Rep., Wis.]—Favor impartial enforcement second section fourteenth amendment of the constitution.

FRANK P. BOHN [Rep., Mich.]—My answer is yes.

LITTLE HOPE FOR ENFORCEMENT OF 14TH AMENDMENT

Most of Our Legislators And Would-Be Legislators Seem To Be Afraid of The 14th Amendment To The Constitution

(Associated Negro Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 7—Little or no hope for action in congress to compel the enforcement of the second section of the 14th Amendment to the constitution is to be found in the replies to more than nine hundred telegrams on this subject sent by the Chicago Tribune to members of the senate and of the house of representatives and to candidates for membership in these two bodies.

Only sixty-four members of the present congress, containing more than five hundred members in senate and house, replied to the telegram of the Tribune, which was as follows:

"Do you hold that all provisions of the constitution should be impartially enforced? If so, will you, if elected, introduce or vote for a bill to carry into effect the second section of the 14th Amendment?"

Enforcement of the second section of the 14th Amendment would compel the south to give the Negro the vote or to submit to having its representation in congress reduced.

A total of 145 replies were received to the 900 telegrams dispatched by the Tribune. Of these, 14 were from present senators and 50 from present representatives, a total of 64. Of 81 from new candidates four were from senatorial nominees and 77 from house nominees.

Present senators lined up as follows: For impartial enforcement of all provisions of the constitution 9; against 2; noncommittal 3.

Present representatives: For, 42; against, 8.

New candidates for the senate: For, 3; noncommittal, 1.

New candidates for the house: For 70; against, 3; noncommittal, 4.

Members and candidates from the Democratic south were a practical unit, either against proper enforcement or in their failure to reply to the telegram.

Only one member, La Guardia of New York, indicated any willingness to put up a fight for such legislation.

Leaders in the fight for the en- were conspicuous by their silence in respect to the 14th. Senator William forcement of the 18th Amendment E. Borah, Republican of Idaho, one of the most active drys in the country, pleaded that he needed time to study the 14th Amendment, in spite of the face that he has hitherto expressed himself unfavorably in regard to Negro enfranchisement.

AUGUSTA, ME.

MAY 22 1928

REFUSAL TO GRANT BALLOT STIRS SOLONS

S. Carolina Leads in Disfranchising

Washington.—The pending congressional reapportionment legislation has both northern and southern members of congress preparing for a battle on Race disfranchisement in the South. The apportionment bill, although approved by the house census committee, seeks to even up the congressional districts in respect to population, it fails to take into consideration the number of persons who are actually exercising the right of franchise. The northern members of congress will attack such conditions in the South as exemplified by the recent action of the Florida authorities in denying Race members the right to register for the Democratic primary election on the ground that the party was a private affair and not open to all citizens.

COMPARISON REVEALS UNJUST RULES

The unfairness of the present system used in electing members to congress is shown in the case of Illinois and South Carolina. The citizens of Illinois casting their ballots for representative will continue to wield an average of only one-twelfth as much political power as actual voters in the Southern state. This condition will be maintained, since Illinois will continue to have 27 representatives and South Carolina seven under the terms of the bill. The census showed that in South Carolina in 1920 the average population per representative was 240,532, while the average population per representative in Illinois was 240,195. This indicates on its face an equality of representation.

The election figures, however, revealed that the number of votes actually cast in the last presidential election in South Carolina averaged 7,250 per representative as compared with 91,483 per representative in Illinois. Only about 3 per cent of the men, women and children of both races exercise the right of franchise in South Carolina as compared with 40 per cent in Illinois. The South Carolina senator, Cole Blease, is true in his boast that under the qualifications prescribed for voters by the constitution of his state, members of the Race are kept from the polls.

CONGRESS MAY REDUCE SOUTH'S POWER

The election figures indicate that in South Carolina the white citizens do a more effective job of keeping people from voting than anywhere in the South. The voting totals in all of the southern states, however, are far below those in the northern states.

Votes cast in Alabama in the last presidential election average 13,499 per representative; in Georgia, 13,881; in Mississippi, 14,057; in Louisiana, 15,253; in Arkansas, 19.796; in Virginia, 22,361; in Florida, 27,288; in Texas, 36,528, and in North Carolina, 48,268.

Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, who has a resolution pending before the rules committee of the house directing the census committee to make an investigation of disfranchisement with a view to bringing about a proportionate reduction of representation of southern states under the penalty provision of the 14th amendment to the federal Constitution, intends to keep hammering away on the subject.

"There is much more in the refusal of congress to enforce the Constitution than the lawless and unconstitutional suppression of the Negro vote," said Mr. Tinkham. "There is involved the destruction of a just and equal balance of political power among all the states of the Union.

"The states of the South now count all the white population and all the Negro population as the basis for their representation and obtain in congress and in the electoral college representation for both the white population and the Negro population, the latter of which they disfranchise."

Negroes Make Ready To Vote

Plan to Take an Active Part In The Southern DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES

Their Insistence to Vote Causing Politicians Concern

New York, Apr. 6—The victory won last year before the U. S. Supreme Court in the so-caled Texas White Primary Case by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has brought about a ferment throughout the South in this year's primary elections. In many cities of the South Negroes are registering as Democrats with the purpose of casting their ballots and making themselves felt as a power in local elections. White politicians are at a loss to account for the situation and are attempting to devise means to keep the Negroes from participating in the primaries.

In two States particularly, Virginia and Florida, the vote of Negroes are making a determined stand.

Nathan A. Jones, President of the Pensacola Branch of the N. A. A. C. P., reports that no less than 1500 Negroes have registered in that city to the consternation of the white politicians. The Attorney General of Florida is reported to have advised charging the Negroes with perjury on the ground that they had not voted as Democrats in the previous election.

Florida

Mr. Jones writes in part: "We Negroes have registered to vote in the Democratic primary and have registered as Democrats. It is only in this city that that is the case and we have registered 1500.

(Continued on page 4)

SOUTH IN FERMENT AS NEGROES INSIST ON PRIMARY VOTING

(Continued from page 1)

"We have so registered in the city and state and county registration books. Our action was taken because we felt as taxpayers we were not getting a fair deal by the city authorities—no parks, nor lights, nor water, nor city work.

"The city Democratic Committee says we can not vote in the city primary which comes off on Tuesday the 10th of April. The Attorney General has made a ruling that we can no vote in the state wide primary, since the Bryan primary law of this State gives the Executive Committee authority to say who can vote in a democratic primary and who can not.

"In the primary for city officer or commissioner, which primary is equivalent to an election we are taking the position that we have a right to vote under the Supreme Court's ruling (in the Texas White Primary Case).

"We are preparing to contest any refusal to permit us to vote on next Tuesday when we shall go into court on a writ of mandamus that very day. Our case will go directly to the Circuit Court and should we lose there we are to take our appeal to the State Supreme Court and should we lose there shall go to the U. S. Supreme Court.

"Knock-Out" For Southern Laws

'Our winning means the knocking out of various election laws in the South and that question will be settled for all time to come.

"The opinion of the Attorney General on perjury means that perjury could be charged only if one should swear to an election official that they had voted a Democratic ticket in the last election when they had not done so."

Another "knock-out" for southern disfranchisement is being prepared by colored voters in Richmond, Virginia, to the number of some 5,000, who are preparing to vote in the primary elections and to carry their case to court on the basis of the Supreme Court's decision in the Texas White Primary Case, in the event the white politicians try to prevent their voting.

Texas

In Texas, according to the Houston Sentinel, Negroes are not only being urged to enter the Democratic state primary election but are taking active part also in the Republican campaign.

Commenting on the contests over primary voting in the South, James Weldon Johnson, Secretary of the N. A. A. C. P., said:

"The first breach in the disfranchisement wall against Southern Negroes has been made. The N. A. A. C. P. last year obtained a clear and unequivocal ruling from the United States Supreme Court that Negroes are entitled to vote in primary elections and cannot be excluded. Once the Negroes take advantage of this in large numbers, as they are beginning to do in Virginia and in Florida, the solid South and the rigid caste dominance of a small group of white Democrats are doomed. The white politicians realize this. They are faced with the inevitable. They will try to evade the plain issue. But Negroes are now determined to vote as United States citizens in the Far South on the same terms as in New York and Chicago. These Supreme Court decisions being won by the N. A. A. C. P. naturally cannot be fully utilized immediately. But they are there to stay. Eventualy the Negro will take full advantage of them. Inevitably white Southern prejudice will have to bow to law, or law itself will give way to the rule of force and anarchy."

The Negro As A Voter

Barred from the polls in the South; elected to office and in some States a political power in the North—this remains the present anomalous position of the American negro politically," declares Herbert J. Seligman, director of publicity of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in Current History. Several events during the past year have clearly shown the drift toward independence among the negro voters. First of these, perhaps have been the results of the United States Supreme Court's decision respecting the Texas white primary law when the case of Dr. L. A. Nixon, a Democrat fully qualified as a voter and a member of the Democratic Party, except for his color, was carried before that body "which unanimously held that the Texas law violated the provisions of the Fourteenth Amendment." The result was an unprecedentedly heavy registration of colored people and enrolment in the Democratic Party in Western Texas. Since the last municipal election "the whole of Cleveland is now awake to the fact that the negro's vote can no longer be classed as solidly for the Republican Party or for any party. The situation of the negro voter in the South has lately been given a thorough airing from two opposite points of view. Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts declares in plain terms that the disfranchisement of qualified negroes is a 'national scandal,' and he has urged upon Congress appropriate action to reduce the representation of the disfranchising Southern States in consonance with the second section of the Fourteenth Amendmet. Mr Tinkham stresses the fact that the Civil War actually increased the power of the South in that the Southern States are now given full representation on the basis of non-voting negroes; whereas before the Civil War they were represented on the basis of only 60 per cent of their slaves. On the other hand, Senator Glass and Senator Swanson have been saying plainly that the South does not intend that the negro shall vote; that he will continue to be disfranchised; and that this is being accomplished with the strictest technical regard for the Constitution. In Mississipp and other Southern rural sections where the white dominance is equally rigid and uncompromsing, constitutional or legal questions simply do not arise. Any negro who attempts to vote takes his life in his hands. The negro vote is also negligible in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Georgia and Tennessee, outside the large cities, in fact throughout the rural South."

AMERICA'S 8 MILLION VOTELESS CITIZENS

Republicans of North Connive in Disfranchisement of the Negro Population of the South

By Herbert J. Seligman

INSOFAR as the United States is supposed to be an experiment in democratic form of government, the South is not part of the United States. The South does not believe in democracy. It does not practise it, insofar as democracy is supposed to rest in the voting privilege. For colored citizens of the Southern States, in every way qualified, by property, tax-paying, and intelligence, are deprived of their right to vote simply because of their color and their African descent.

New Leader

Only recently we have had the spectacle of two United States Senators proclaiming on the floor of the United States Senate, not only their knowledge of the fact that Negroes are denied the vote in the South, but the expressed determination of the white people that Negroes shall continue to be deprived of the franchise.

and American

Appeal

3-3-28

The disfranchisement of the Negro after the Civil War was accomplished mainly by lawlessness, violence and intimidation by the Ku Klux Klan and other bodies. It will be recalled that there are two Amendments to the United States Constitution, dealing with this question of the vote. One is the 14th Amendment, of which the second section provides that in States disfranchising Negroes or other people because of their race or color, representation in Congress shall be proportionately reduced. The other Constitutional Amendment which applies to the matter of voting is the 15th Amendment which states plainly that no American citizen shall be denied the voting right because of race or color.

Dead Amendments

Both these Amendments to the Constitution are constantly and admittedly evaded, most flagrantly in that section of the country which is loudest in its demands for the enforcement of the prohibition Amendment.

Before 1890 Negroes were deprived of their votes mainly by violence. But since the era of violence between the years 1870 and 1890, new means of accomplishing the same end were discovered. One of the most famous of these means, some years ago declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court, were the so-called Grandfather clauses in the Constitutions of Southern states. These clauses made the voting privilege dependent upon war service or residence or voting of oneself or an ancestor in the past. Other means were easily found for accomplishing the same end as that sought by the Grandfather clauses.

Property qualifications were required of intending voters which deprived not only many Negroes of the vote, but many of the poorer whites as well. There were poll and other tax requirements so that if one either failed to pay the tax or lost any of his tax receipts the right to vote could be denied. There were educational tests. These educational tests were most obviously designed to be used against the Negro. Under the provisions of the educational requirements citizens might be required to explain some sentence or part of the Constitution. As the most eminent lawyers differ about the Constitution and its interpretation, and as the Supreme Court sometimes votes five to four on Constitutional questions coming before it, it is not hard to see how some Southern Negro's explanation of a sentence or paragraph from the Constitution might be found wanting.

The South's Apology

These laws, technically legal and in accord with the Constitution, do not mention the Negro. Therefore no Constitutional question is involved in most of them. Yet their intent was to furnish a pretext for depriving the Negro of his vote. And although the law shows no discrimination on its face, it was passed for the express purpose of being unjustly and inequitably administered. So that in many Southern States, in Mississippi, for example, where the colored population is almost equal to the white, in Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, except in the large cities, the Negro has virtually no voice in determining who shall represent him, who shall make and who shall administer his laws, and spend the taxes he pays. Taxation without representation is of the essence of the Southern scheme of things, so far as the Negro is concerned.

What is the apology of the South for this situation? Senator Swanson of Virginia recently voiced it. Senator Swanson says the Fourteenth Amendment did not give the Negro the right to vote, but penalized any State which withheld that right. The Fourteenth Amendment therefore, left the question of conferring the vote in the hands of the States. Moreover, the Supreme Court has declared that the Fifteenth Amendment did not confer the vote on anybody but merely stated that the vote should not be withheld because of race or color. Therefore, says Senator Swanson and a considerable section of the South, the South is not violating the Constitutional Amendments because its laws are not withholding the vote on the ground of race or color.

The Texas Improvement

The answer of course, is that the disfranchisement occurs outside the law. Senator Swanson says the recourse of the Negro is to the courts, when his rights as a citizen are invaded. One Negro in Mississippi did go to the courts and bring suit because he was refused opportunity to register. The consequence of his attempt to obtain justice was that he had to flee from his town because the white people threatened him with violence. And the suit was discontinued. For a Negro outside the largest cities in the South to attempt to vote, is to take his life in his hands. Unless he is one of the handful of colored people admitted to the polls by grace of the white minority as a gesture or because it is known those few Negroes will vote right.

The attempt to deprive the Negro of his fundamental citizenship went so far in Texas, that Texas in 1924 passed a law which made it illegal for any Negro to vote in the Democratic primary elections of that State. Now as everyone knows, in Texas, as in other Southern States, there is only one party of any voting strength and that is the Democratic party. So that the candidates designated at the Democratic primary elections in Texas and other States, are practically automatically elected to office. Therefore, to exclude anyone from voting in the primary is just as effectually to deprive him of his vote as if he were deprived of the voting privilege altogether.

This Texas law did not go uncontested. A qualified Negro voter, Dr. L. A. Dixon of El Paso, a Democrat, took the case to court. He was backed up by the National Association for the Advancement of colored People which carried the case to the United States Supreme Court. And confronted with a plain case of denial of the vote on the ground of race and color, the Supreme Court had no alternative but to declare the Texas law unconstitutional. But the purely legal side of the disfranchisement question, although it is a matter of national hypocrisy in which the North is quite as much involved as the South, is only a phase of the situation.

The Stamp of Inferiority

Denial of the vote to the Negro in the South becomes a symbol for fastening the stamp of inferiority upon him. The man who is voteless, is ineffective in his demands for better education, for police protection, for sanitation. Too often he is the victim of injustice in the courts. Where his personal safety is concerned he is often the victim of the mob, the mob which may either beat him, or in too many cases hangs him, shoots him, or burns him alive at the stake before gloating audiences in which women and children mingle.

Part of the problem of the South and of the rest of the nation as well, is to get rid of the relic of slavery days, the notion that the Negro is something less than a man, and that white supremacy must be by laws which are in their intention lawless, which have been enacted for the purpose of denying and evading the spirit of the law of the land. For it is not a question of the Negro's having to prove his fitness to exercise the privilege of voting. If the Southern laws were directed merely against the ignorant and the unfit, and white men of this class were excluded equally with Negroes, there would be no valid criticism. It is because the Negro, no matter how thoroughly well qualified he may prove himself in every way, is submitted to this denial of his fundamental citizenship rights that protest is made against the Southern practise as vicious.

In the North Negroes have not only been exercising the ballot, but have been holding important offices with the most conspicuous success. One of the ablest members of the Ohio legislature for a number of years was a colored attorney of Cleveland, Harry E. Davis, who has recently been elected to the Civil Service Commission of his city.

What Actually Happens

The kind of intimidation Negroes are subjected to in the South to keep them from the ballot boxes was exposed during the 1920 election, by which a Republican President came into office. It was disclosed by an investigator for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people that Negroes were threatened and insulted as they approached the polling places in Florida. One leading colored man, a physician and respected member of the community, was spat upon by a crowd which dared him to wipe his face because he committed the crime of advising colored men and women of the community to register and vote. Two brothers in Columbia County were called from their homes and almost beaten to death two weeks before election day and for the same crime of having urged Negroes to vote. In one small town, Ocoee, in Orange County Florida, a bloody riot ensued upon the attempt of a colored man to vote. Word had been sent out that no Negro was to be allowed to cast a ballot. But this colored man, owner of an orange grove, of his own home, a respected member of the community who had never been in any trouble, did attempt to vote. He was severely beaten and told to go home. Thereafter a group of armed white men went to his house to get him, having no warrant for his arrest. Two of them were shot in the Negro's defense of his home. In the riot which ensued every Negro home, schoolhouse, church and lodge in the community was burned to the ground, in one case at least acording to report, a colored woman and her child perished in the flames.

The situation as disclosed by special investigation of the election in 1920 in Florida, represents the spirit of the white minority which is determined to rule the South and to prevent the Negro from voting there. United States Senators may say what they like about the legality on the face of the Southern laws. It is the facts that count. And those facts, it is quite generally understood, include any sort of brutality, law evasion, inequity in the administration of the law, hypocrisy and subterfuge, by which colored citizens may be deprived of what is plainly intended shall be their right.

Heretofore efforts in Congress to have these facts placed on record and proved, have failed. The North has conspired with the South in its violation of the Constitution. Congressman George H Tinkham of Massachusetts has introduced a resolution in the present session of Congress, Resolution Number 34 in the House of Representatives, calling upon the Census Committee to investigate and report on disfranchisement, making the facts available in such a form that States Constitution among friends, when those friends happen to be politicians, is known that the Southern States defy the Constitution and evade it. But who cares? After all, what is the United States? But it is but a scrap of paper? Congress can and must act. But it is doubtful if there will be any action. Congress is not in the least interested. It

AMERICA'S 8 MILLION VOTELESS CITIZENS

Republicans of North Connive in Disfranchisement of the Negro Population of the South

By Herbert J. Seligman

INSOFAR as the United States is supposed to be an experiment in democratic form of government, the South is not part of the United States. The South does not believe in democracy. It does not practise it, insofar as democracy is supposed to rest in the voting privilege. For colored citizens of the Southern States, in every way qualified, by property, tax-paying, and intelligence, are deprived of their right to vote simply because of their color and their African descent.

New Leader

Only recently we have had the spectacle of two United States Senators proclaiming on the floor of the United States Senate, not only their knowledge of the fact that Negroes are denied the vote in the South, but the expressed determination of the white people that Negroes shall continue to be deprived of the franchise.

3-3-28.

The disfranchisement of the Negro after the Civil War was accomplished mainly by lawlessness, violence and intimidation by the Ku Klux Klan and other bodies. It will be recalled that there are two Amendments to the United States Constitution, dealing with this question of the vote. One is the 14th Amendment, of which the second section provides that in States disfranchising Negroes or other people because of their race or color, representation in Congress shall be proportionately reduced. The other Constitutional Amendment which applies to the matter of voting is the 15th Amendment which states plainly that no American citizen shall be denied the voting right because of race or color.

Dead Amendments

Both these Amendments to the Constitution are constantly and admittedly evaded, most flagrantly in that section of the country which is loudest in its demands for the enforcement of the prohibition Amendment.

Before 1890 Negroes were deprived of their votes mainly by violence. But since the era of violence between the years 1870 and 1890, new means of accomplishing the same end were discovered. One of the most famous of these means, some years ago declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court, were the so-called Grandfather clauses in the Constitutions of Southern states. These clauses made the voting privilege dependent upon war service or residence or voting of oneself or an ancestor in the past. Other means were easily found for accomplishing the same end as that sought by the Grandfather clauses.

Property qualifications were required of intending voters which deprived not only many Negroes of the vote, but many of the poorer whites as well. There were poll and other tax requirements so that if one either failed to pay the tax or lost any of his tax receipts the right to vote could be denied. There were educational tests. These educational tests used were most obviously designed to be divisions against the Negro. Under the provisions of the educational requirements citizens might be required to explain some sentence or part of the Constitution. As the most eminent lawyers differ about the Constitution and its interpretation, and as the Supreme Court sometimes votes five to four on Constitutional questions coming before it, it is not hard to see how some Southern Negro's explanation of a sentence or paragraph from the Constitution might be found wanting.

The South's Apology

These laws, technically legal and in accord with the Constitution, do not mention the Negro. Therefore no Constitutional question is involved in most of them. Yet their intent was to furnish a pretext for depriving the Negro of his vote. And although the law shows no discrimination on its face, it was passed for the express purpose of being unjustly and inequitably administered. So that in many Southern States, in Mississippi, for example, where the colored population is almost equal to the white, in Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, except in the large cities, the Negro has virtually no voice in determining who shall represent him, who shall make and who shall administer his laws, and spend the taxes he pays. Taxation without representation is of the essence of the Southern scheme of things, so far as the Negro is concerned.

What is the apology of the South for this situation? Senator Swanson of Virginia recently voiced it. Senator Swanson says the Fourteenth Amendment did not give the Negro the right to vote, but penalized any State which withheld that right. The Fourteenth Amendment therefore, left the question of conferring the vote in the hands of the States. Moreover, the Supreme Court has declared that the Fifteenth Amendment did not confer the vote on anybody but merely stated that the vote should not be withheld because of race or color. Therefore, says Senator Swanson and a considerable section of the South, the South is not violating the Constitutional Amendments because its laws are not withholding the vote on the ground of race or color.

The Texas Improvement

The answer of course, is that the disfranchisement occurs outside the law. Senator Swanson says the recourse of the Negro is to the courts, when his rights as a citizen are invaded. One Negro in Mississippi did go to the courts and bring suit because he was refused opportunity to register. The consequence of his attempt to obtain justice was that he had to flee from his town because the white people threatened him with violence. And the suit was discontinued. For a Negro outside the largest cities in the South to attempt to vote, is to take his life in his hands. Unless he is one of the handful of colored people admitted to the polls by grace of the white minority as a gesture or because it is known those few Negroes will vote right.

The attempt to deprive the Negro of his fundamental citizenship went so far in Texas, that Texas in 1924 passed a law which made it illegal for any Negro to vote in the Democratic primary elections of that State. Now as everyone knows, in Texas, as in other Southern States, there is only one party of any voting strength and that is the Democratic party. So that the candidates designated at the Democratic primary elections in Texas and other States, are practically automatically elected to office. Therefore, to exclude anyone from voting in the primary is just as effectually to deprive him of his vote as if he were deprived of the voting privilege altogether.

This Texas law did not go uncontested. A qualified Negro voter, Dr. L. A. Dixon of El Paso, a Democrat, took the case to court. He was backed up by the National Association for the Advancement of colored People which carried the case to the United States Supreme Court. And confronted with a plain case of denial of the vote on the ground of race and color, the Supreme Court had no alternative but to declare the Texas law unconstitutional. But the purely legal side of the disfranchisement question, although it is a matter of national hypocrisy in which the North is quite as much involved as the South, is only a phase of the situation.

The Stamp of Inferiority

Denial of the vote to the Negro in the South becomes a symbol for fastening the stamp of inferiority upon him. The man who is voteless, is ineffective in his demands for better education, for police protection, for sanitation. Too often he is the victim of injustice in the courts. Where his personal safety is concerned he is often the victim of the mob, the mob which may either beat him, or in too many cases hangs him, shoots him, or burns him alive at the stake before gloating audiences in which women and children mingle.

Part of the problem of the South and of the rest of the nation as well, is to get rid of the relic of slavery days, the notion that the Negro is something less than a man, and that white supremacy must be by laws which are in their intention lawless, which have been enacted for the purpose of denying and evading the spirit of the law of the land. For it is not a question of the Negro's having to prove his fitness to exercise the privilege of voting. If the Southern laws were directed merely against the ignorant and the unfit, and white men of this class were excluded equally with Negroes, there would be no valid criticism. It is because the Negro, no matter how thoroughly well qualified he may prove himself in every way, is submitted to this denial of his fundamental citizenship rights that protest is made against the Southern practise as vicious.

In the North Negroes have not only been exercising the ballot, but have been holding important offices with the most conspicuous success. One of the ablest members of the Ohio legislature for a number of years was a colored attorney of Cleveland, Harry E. Davis, who has recently been elected to the Civil Service Commission of his city.

What Actually Happens

The kind of intimidation Negroes are subjected to in the South to keep them from the ballot boxes was exposed during the 1920 election, by which a Republican President came into office. It was disclosed by an investigator for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People that Negroes were threatened and insulted as they approached the polling places in Florida. One leading colored man, a physician and respected member of the community, was spat upon by a crowd which dared him to wipe his face because he committed the crime of advising colored men and women of the community to register and vote. Two brothers in Columbia County were called from their homes and almost beaten to death two weeks before election day and for the same crime of having urged Negroes to vote. In one small town, Ocoee, in Orange County Florida, a bloody riot ensued upon the attempt of a colored man to vote. Word had been sent out that no Negro was to be allowed to cast a ballot. But this colored man, owner of an orange grove, of his own home, a respected member of the community who had never been in any trouble, did attempt to vote. He was severely beaten and told to go home. Thereafter a group of armed white men went to his house to get him, having no warrant for his arrest. Two of them were shot in the Negro's defense of his home. In the riot which ensued every Negro home, schoolhouse, church and lodge in the community was burned to the ground, in one case at least acording to report, a colored woman and her child perished in the flames.

The situation as disclosed by special investigation of the election in 1920 in Florida, represents the spirit of the white minority which is determined to rule the South and to prevent the Negro from voting there. United States Senators may say what they like about the legality on the face of the Southern laws. It is the facts that count. And those facts, it is quite generally understood, include any sort of brutality, law evasion, inequity in the administration of the law, hypocrisy and subterfuge, by which colored citizens may be deprived of what is plainly intended shall be their right.

Heretofore efforts in Congress to have these facts placed on record and proved, have failed. The North has conspired with the South in its violation of the Constitution. Congressman George H Tinkham of Massachusetts has introduced a resolution in the present session of Congress, Resolution Number 34 in the House of Representatives, calling up on the Census Committee to investigate and report on disfranchisement, making the facts available in such a form that States Constitution among friends, when those friends happen to be politicians. But who is known that the Southern States defy the Constitution and evade it. But it is but a scrap of paper? After all, what is the United Congress can and must act. But there will be any action. Congress is not in the least interested. It cares?

Political - 1928

Suffrage

General

PLAIN BUNK

A well known leader writes that the "white man is guileful and the black man is gullible." This statement was inspired by the clever manner in which black people are being jockeyed in national politics. It strikes us that the great rank and file of both black and white are gullible and by that we mean that they readily believe that which is not true. There are white people in this country who really believe that the Republican party is seeking to establish some kind of social equality for the black people and on the other hand there are black people who are fed up on the idea that the Democratic party champions lynchings and would put them back in the house of bondage. It is gullibility, pure and simple.

The Republicans have neither thought nor concern about establishing the myth of social equality; in fact our social, political and economic problems are not in the scheme of party politics. Those who dope up racial propaganda and seek to turn away white votes from the Republican party thereby, know that in certain sections of this country this kind of talk arouses the sluggish, backward, ignorant whites who feast upon it like dogs on raw meat. They, like some others that we know about, are reached through emotions and their emotions alone. No intelligent black man nor any fair minded American citizen of the white race is alarmed or concerned about the Republicans changing the existing status of the black man. There is no such issue involved. The black people are not expecting any sudden upheaval themselves along these lines and would be amazed and dumbfounded beyond expression if any drastic or radical changes were made in regard to themselves. They know what to expect from the Republicans.

Just as most of the southern whites view the Republicans as champions of the black man's cause, just so a large portion of black voters shrink from the idea of a Democratic administration; but if any individual, be he white or black, were asked the difference in regards to the black man of Woodrow Wilson's or Harding's or Coolidge's administration he could not state it to save his life, for there were no outstanding differences. We have lived and survived under both Democratic and Republican administration under virtually the same conditions, and this writer feels that we will continue to do so.

We feel that a campaign of intelligence and truth is sadly needed both among the blacks and the whites and the question about race ought to be disregarded. The great questions before the country today do not include the problems of the black man and we do not believe that either of the parties is ever going to work them out; the black man will be compelled to work them out himself. When he gets strong enough economically he will be able to get his political rights.

The issues that are deemed paramount before the nation now are the questions concerning prohibition, farm relief, foreign relations and trade in general and whenever the issues of race or religion are interjected and interposed it is because of the known gullibility of masses. They fall for the bunk.

The Democratic party is not interested in lynching us or disfranchising us and we do not believe that there is any practical difference in southern white Republicans and southern white Democrats. The southern white Republicans are known as Lily-White and they mean us no good and southern white Democrats feel just about the same.

We belive that it is time for the people, both white and black, to begin to think straight and spurn all of the foolish, meaningless bunk that has swayed them so long. It is time for the southern white man to awaken and put an end to his exploitation by those who have beclouded his vision with rudely drawn word pictures of black domination. It is time for the black to awaken to the fact neither political party has its foot on his neck and that he should be controlled and motivated by the issues of the day and their relation to him.

Think Before You Vote

Representatives of the parties meet in Jefferson City September 11 and there make up their party platforms. They are the nominees each has chosen to run for state offices and the platform says what they will do if elected. Four years ago, the two parties made very similar promises, but the republicans won. It is their failure to keep their word which leads us to insist that the 1928 platform shall mean more than that of 1924.

Platform talk about Negro education has been made a farce by Governor Baker's administration when it leaves in force Missouri's damnable stipulation of fifteen children before a Negro rural school is required. This unfairness is no chance. Mark the political skullduggery that has gone on in Lincoln university during the whole of this term. Remember Baker's veto of funds voted for improvements at Lincoln! Without the lynchings which Missouri has had under Baker, without this administration's heartless handling of our unfortunates, its failure to do anything constructive for Negroes proves the need of plainer language in the platforms of 1928.

The Negroes of Missouri "need everything from a hat down and from an overcoat in," and both parties need the Negro in this state. The much-talked-of "balance of power" has real existence in Missouri. The need of the parties is our opportunity to wipe out that elementary school stipulation! Let's lift Lincoln out of the political pig sty! Let's stop lynching! Let's punish any judge who takes possession of a Negro's property, and whacks off a huge chunk for his favorite as one did in St. Louis. In short, lift Missouri out of its mossback ways and set its face toward civilization! Negro voters should vote for the party that promises best, and most looks like it will carry out its promises.

Colored Population Exceeds Whites in Two States

GIVE STATISTICS ON SOLID SOUTH

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9th—Statistics showing the Negro and white population of the states of the "Solid South" has just been released here by the census department. According to the table given the Race votes would be a potential power in politics in the South if it were not for disfranchisement practices. Over half the population of these states is made up of Negroes. The table follows:

State	White	Negroes
Alabama	1,447,032	900,652
Arkansas	1,279,757	472,220
Florida	638,153	329,487
Georgia	1,689,114	1,206,257
Louisiana	1,096,611	700,257
Mississippi	853,962	935,184
N. Carolina	1,783,779	753,407
S. Carolina	918,538	864,719
Tennessee	1,885,993	451,758
Texas	3,918,165	741,694
Virginia	11,617,999	690,017
Totals	17,129,013	8,055,760